LIBRARY
FLORIDA STATE COLLEGE FOR WOMEN
TALLAHASSEE, FLA.

Congratulations Go To Mary Jeanne

The Florida Flambeau

Published by the Students of Florida State College for Women

Hear Organist Fox and Lecturer Dr. White

VOLUME XXIV. | Tallahassee, Florida, January 8, 1937 | NUMBER TWELVE

Young Artist Will Present Organ Concert

Young American Appears In FSCW Auditorium Tuesday Evening

FOX CHOSEN FOR SECOND RECITAL

Musician's Career Began At Fourteen Years Old Before 1200

Virgil Fox, young American organist, will present an organ concert in the college auditorium as the second of the Artist Series Tuesday evening at 7:45.

At 14, Virgil Fox played in concert before an audience of 1200. In 1932, after a year at Peabody Conservatory, Baltimore he won the only Artist's diploma ever given a one-year student and took the highest grade among all graduates. He then went to Europe for a year studying with Marcel Dupre.

Parallels Concert Players

His first American tour was made during 1933-34 season. Wherever he plays the organist is raised to a high level of artistry that parallels the art of the concert pianist, violinist, and vocalist at their best.

Program Plans

He will open his program with three sketches for pedal-piano from Shumann; F Minor, D Flat Major, and Canon in B minor. This group will be followed by Concerto in D minor—Largo by Bach-Middleschulte. He will continue with G Minor Fugue, Bach; Organ Mystique Offertoire from Feast of the Circumcision, Tournemire; Dreams, McAmis; The Call of the Lake from "Pastels of Lake Constance," Karg-Elert; Carillon, Vierne; Perpetuum Mobile (etude for pedals alone), Middleschulte. Virgil Fox will conclude his concert with Legende by Howard Thatcher and The Westminster Carillon by Vierne.

Comentators Favorable

The New York Herald Tribune has said of him, "Mr Fox exhibited a highly trained technique, excellent taste in registration and well-grounded musicianship."

"There was extraordinary enthusiasm for this young American, who is raising his instrument from the realm of high class but popular appeal," says the New York Evening Journal.

Day Students Are Discussed

Executive Council Plans Closer Contact For Tallahasseeans

The problem of bringing the day students into closer contact with college life was the main subject discussed at a meeting of the executive council held before the holidays.

Mentioning first the action already taken, Mary Jeanne McKay spoke of the club room in the new wing of the Administration building. Here, the day students may eat lunch, smoke, and hold meetings.

As suggestions for immediate action, it was proposed that dining room announcements be placed on the bulletin board of this club-room and that pigeon hole boxes for campus mail be set up also. The day students' organization was advised to petition the budget committee for a budget covering the expenses of teas given in this club room.

Several minor suggestions were also made. Day students who wished to attend convocation were to be asked to hand the executive council their names which will be given to the usher committee.

Tickets for campus dances were to be distributed to day students as to resident students. Day students were to be invited to dormitory teas, and the chairman of the social committee should plan at least one tea for these students only. It was also suggested that next year's orientation program include a committee of upperclassmen day students to orient the freshmen day students.

Representatives of the day students attending the meeting were: Mrs. Bellamy, president of the day students' organization; Daisy Parker, representative to the senate; and Mattie Lou Love, Mary Voss, and Margaret Maxwell.

Freshmen to Meet With Dean Salley

Dean Nathaniel M Salley will meet with all freshmen who are enrolled in the school of education next week to advise them about their work for the second semester. These meetings are compulsory and the roll will be taken each time.

The schedule is as follows: Names beginning with A through B, Monday, Jan. 11, at 4:30 o'clock; names beginning with C through D, Tuesday, Jan. 12, at 4:30 o'clock; names beginning with E through G, Wednesday, Jan. 13, at 4:30 o'clock; names beginning with H through J, Thursday, Jan. 14, at 4:30 o'clock; names beginning with K through Mc to Martin, Friday, Jan. 15, at 4:30 o'clock; names beginning with Martin to Patten, Monday, Jan. 18, at 4:30 o'clock; names beginning with Patten through R, Tuesday, Jan. 19, at 4:30 o'clock; names beginning with S to T, Wednesday, Jan. 20, at 4:30 o'clock. Remaining freshmen will meet Thursday, Jan. 21, at 4:30 o'clock

Andrews Talks About Offices For Women

Speaks of Opportunities And Requirements Of Public Life

"Women in Public Office" was the topic of a vocational address given by Dr. Elizabeth Gordon Andrews yesterday afternoon.

Public office is no place for a sensitive person, said Miss Andrews, who pointed out that a successful person in this walk of life would have to withstand disappointments and still keep faith in human nature in spite of them.

In explaining that public positions are obtained either by appointment or election, Miss Andrews named recent appointments of women to important positions which are encouraging, among them being secretary of labor, assistant director of United States employment service, assistant director division of labor statistics, director of woman's division, assistant secretary of treasury, director of United States mint, judge in a United States circuit court, and minister to Denmark.

Although few reach these heights there are many opportunities for distinguished service in public life. All civil service examinations, including administrative, scientific, clerical, manufacturing, mechanical, and educative, are open to women, great numbers of women being employed each year. College education is being increasingly demanded in the civil service examinations.

Men, because they are the head of a family, are usually more successful than women in elections. In many positions women are bet-

Continued on page three

Students Must Give Schedule By January 23

Registrar Asks for New Cards Though Class Change Not Made

DOYLE ISSUES EXAM PROGRAM

Test Week Will Close Friday Afternoon At 4 o'Clock

Examination schedule will be found on page three.

The schedule for mid-term examinations beginning Jan. 25 and continuing through Jan. 29 has been issued by S. R. Doyle, registrar, who has also announced that each student must make out a new schedule for the second semester.

Last Exam Is Friday

The examination schedule has been arranged so that Monday, Wednesday and Friday classes have been evenly distributed with those of Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday. The last examination will be given from 2 to 4 o'clock Friday. The registrar has announced that in case of a conflict between two one-hour courses, the examination in each course should not exceed one hour, both to be given at the scheduled time.

These schedules for the second semester are to be made beginning Jan. 11 and in no case later than Jan. 23. A student who makes no change in her first semester should go to the registrar's office and make a copy of her schedule for the second semester. A student who is changing her schedule the second semester must secure a signed statement from her dean before going to the registrar's office to make out the new schedule.

Not Necessary to See Dean

It is not necessary for a student to see her dean in case of changing to a trailer section because of failure, or to change from one integrated course to another. In case of failure in courses that are not followed by trailer sections, it is necessary for the student to see her dean before she will be permitted to change her schedule. Such changes are to be made after the beginning of the second semester.

Very few changes in the hours at which courses are offered are to be made for the second semester with the exception of those courses which begin the second semester.

Registrar Gives Statement

In regard to the grades "I" and "X" the registrar has released the following statement: first, that the mark "incomplete" shall designate that some part of the regular work in a given course is unfinished at the end of the semester. (Absence from examination, which is designated by X, is not unfinished work.) And that unfinished work indicated by "incomplete" must be completed satisfactorily to the teacher or teach-

Continued on page four

Groggy Students Return from Festive Vacation To Stare at Restored Administration Building

Dull, groggy, unhappy and semi-unconscious students returning from what was by Monday morning only a wonderful dream of sixteen short days, opened their weighted lids and tired mouths to stare in undisguised wonder at a now wholly restored Administration building. Appraising glances were exchanged as milling groups examined the new post office, climbed the new stairs with the shiny brass rails, and inspected the seven remodeled classrooms on the third floor.

Interesting bits of conversation overheard included approving remarks, earnest conjectures as to probable uses of the various new rooms, and irrelevant observations. "Personally, I'm glad the postoffice has been moved again. Maybe it'll break the jinx. Do you know I can practically count the letters I've received since they jammed the boxes up there in the center?"

"What do you 'spose that big room on the northeast corner is going to be? It's got enough sockets in the wall to make a good home ec. lab."

"No, not that. I think it'll be the new physics lab. See the sinks?"

"Well, what's the safe there for? I bet it'll be the bookstore." The last observation was correct for the book-store will occupy the large room adjoining the postoffice on the ground floor, with private offices and a printing room beneath.

Irrelevant remarks followed. "Doesn't it look funny without the ivy?" "Good-looking linoleum on the third floor." "Have you tried walking that silly plank at the north entrance?" "I wish they'd finish experimenting with the new radiator. The smoke's terrible." "Look out—that's wet paint!" "Don't walk there; the varnish isn't dry yet." "The business office will be in the same place it was last year." "What's that room on the west with all the funny electrical fixtures in the floor?"

Workmen and painters sighed. The students of Florida State had returned. "The newly constructed wing of the Ad building will soon be ready for occupancy," dozens of questioners were informed. Perhaps the opening of the new wing will be a date for future freshmen to learn.

Ceremony For State Officers Draws Crowd

Faculty and Wives Serve On City Inauguration Committees

Tuesday, when Fred Preston Cone of Lake City was inaugurated to governorship, Florida State College participated in the various activities and festivities that were held during the day and evening.

Classes were dismissed from 11:30 to 2:30 o'clock to allow the students to attend the inauguration and see the parade.

Many of the girls went to the reception, the open house at the mansion, and the ball with visiting relatives.

The college orchestra, under the direction of Walter Ruel Cowles, played during the reception held in the capitol building from 8:30 to 10:00. Selections which they played included Overture by Telemann, Minute by Marpurg, Fantasy by Muffat, Furue by Pachelbel, Silhouette "Kaiserstadt, du schone" by A. Walter Kramer, and Huldingsmarsch by Greig.

Dr. Edward Conradi, president of the college, and his daughter, Louise, stood in the receiving line with the new governor, his wife, and others.

Several of the faculty members and wives of faculty members were on various committees which planned and took charge of the inauguration program.

Dr. Edward Conradi served on the distinguished visitors committee, and H. D. Mendenhall served on the parade committee.

Mrs. J. G. Kellum was chairman of the committee which had charge of the open house at the mansion. Miss Leila Venable, Miss Maud Schwalmayer, Mrs. C. P. Heinlein and Mrs. Edward A. Hayden also served on this committee.

At the mansion's open house, Mrs. J. G. Kellum with Guyte McCord of Tallahassee introduced the callers to the receiving line.

In the music room of the mansion were Miss Leila Venable and Mrs. Guy Diffenbaugh, while Mrs. H. D. Mendenhall, Mrs. E. A. Hayden, and Mrs. C. P. Heinlein were in the dining room.

Miss Anna Mae Tracy and Miss Louise Conradi presided at the punch bowl.

Sophomore Instantly Killed in Collision

Katherine Esther Harper, sophomore from Homestead, was killed instantly during the Christmas holidays when the car in which she was riding with her father collided with an ambulance near Miami. Katherine's father, C. T. Harper, died several days later as a result of injuries received in the accident.

Katherine is survived by her mother, Mrs. Stella Harper. Last year at the end of the second semester Katherine was second in the freshman class of more than 500 scholastic standings.

Baptists Meet With Preston And Robinson

Methodist Student Group Will Discuss Plans For Conference

William Hall Preston, of Nashville, Tennessee, associate southwide Baptist student secretary, and J. Roy Robinson, who was recently appointed state Baptist secretary for students in Florida, were appointed state Baptist secretary for students in Florida, were here Tuesday and Wednesday for a series of conferences with Baptist students.

Tuesday night Mr. Preston and Mr. Robinson showed pictures taken at the annual Baptist student retreat held last June in Ridgecrest, N. C., and Wednesday morning the two met with students for short conferences.

Members of the Methodist students council will meet tonight at the student headquarters on West Jefferson street to discuss plans for the state-wide student conference which will be held at Southern college, Lakeland, February 5, 6, and 7. All council members are urged to attend.

Virginia Clayton will conduct the Methodist league program Sunday night. Her topic will be "How to Tell Right From Wrong." Miss Winnie Lee Davis will continue her series of talks on "What May a Student Believe" at the regular Sunday school services held at the student house Sunday morning.

At the regular meeting of the Presbyterian student league Sunday night at six o'clock the story, "Peter, Bingo, and those Others," will be read. During the worship service Sunday morning Dr. Caldwell will bring a brief New Year's message.

During the holidays the Presbyterian students spoke in their home churches about the plans for a student house, and brought back contributions for this project.

The league is making plans for programs on student work to be presented throughout the state on February 28, the day of prayer for schools and colleges.

FSC Graduates Make Up 44 Per Cent of State's Home Economic Teachers

Of the 250 home economics teachers in Florida's public high schools, forty-four per cent are graduates of Florida State college, according to a survey made recently by the college placement bureau on the official list of home economics teachers of Florida.

With its 111 graduates who are home economics teachers in Florida, the college has more economics teachers in Florida, the college has home economics teachers in fifty-nine of the sixty-seven counties in the state.

In addition to the teachers of this course, many other home economics graduates now hold places in school and hospital positions. These include public utilities in Florida and other states, and in retailing and administrative positions in the field of nursing.

16 Professors Use Vacation For Traveling

Nine F. S. C. W. Faculty Members Attend Conventions

MOTOR TRIP TAKEN BY FOUR TEACHERS

Dr. Herman Kurz Leads Field Expedition In Florida

During the Christmas holidays nine faculty members of Florida State attended conventions, one went on a motor trip to Cuba, five motored to Mexico, and one took five students on a botanical field trip to Floral City.

Opperman Attends Meeting

Ella Scoble Opperman, dean of the school of music, attended a joint convention of the National Music Teachers' association and the National Association of Schools of Music held in Chicago Dec. 28-31. This is Dean Opperman's third year as assistant secretary of the Music Teacher's association, and also her third year of service on the ethics committee of the Association of Schools of Music.

Discussion at the convention centered around the new trend in the presentation of subjects and measurements of standards, and musicology.

Dr. Kathryn T. Abbey, professor of history, went to the annual convention of the American Historical society held in Providence, Rhode Island, following a visit to Chicago. Dr. Annie M. Popper, assistant professor of history, also attended the convention after spending a few days in Marblehead, Mass.

Language Convention Held

Miss Margaret Campbell, instructor in modern languages; Miss Helen McKean, instructor in English; Dr. Dorothy L. Breen, assistant professor of Spanish and French; and Miss Elizabeth Hutt, critic teacher, attended the National Modern Language convention in Virginia. The first day of the convention was spent in Richmond, the second day in Williamsburg, and the third day at the University of Richmond.

Dr. Breen also attended the meeting of the American Association of University Professors as the official delegate from Florida State. The meetings were held at Duke university and at Chapel Hill in North Carolina.

Mrs. Lucille G. Bass, instructor in typing and shorthand, enjoyed a week's trip to Havana, Cuba, during the Christmas holidays. A sightseeing visit was taken to Morro castle and other points of interest.

Miss Leila Venable, assistant professor of home economics; Miss Elizabeth Lynn, instructor in physics; Miss Margaret Whitney Dow, associate professor of organ; and Dr. Marion Hay, associate professor of education toured Mexico for two weeks.

Dr. Herman Kurz, professor of

Continued on page three

Vice President

Mary Jeanne McKay, president of the student body and one of Florida State college's delegates to the meeting of the national congress of N. S. F. A. in New York during the Christmas holidays, was elected vice president of that organization. Mary Jeanne, who was chairman of the local chapter last year, served during that time as a delegate at large of the national council.

Editor Gives Contents For Next Distaff

Second Issue of College Magazine to Appear In Near Future

The second number of the Distaff, quarterly critical magazine, will appear in the next few weeks, Daisy Parker, editor has announced. All material for this issue has been selected.

It will contain an article, "Premonitions," by Pearle Shepard, junior, in which the application of facts and attitudes learned in college is made to later life.

Clotilde O'Rouke, senior, has written a light, humorous sketch of her father, "Fathers are Like That."

There will be answers to Martha Baker's article, "How Can We Do It?," of the last issue, by two sophomores, Mary Noble and Sadie Anderson.

Edna K. Burhans has submitted an unusual story, "Between Kruge Creek and Me."

There will be poetry by a senior, Anna Marie Mitchell, and by three juniors, Evelyn Fisher, Mavis McMillian, and Phil Asher.

The book reviews will include G. K. Chesterton's "Autobiography, Carl Sandburg's "We, the People," and "The Return to Religion" by Henry C. Link.

The art work will be an extravaganza, "Bank Nite," by Ruth Sadler, senior.

Only two entries have been made in the one-act play contest. Because of several requests, the time for submitting the plays has been extended.

Many Give Cherished Views About Classes On Saturday

Professors and Students Mingle in Commentary On the Joys and Sorrows of Staying In Tallahassee on Weekends

By MARTHA LUMPKIN

"What do you think of Saturday classes and do you think they should be abolished?" This question was taken by many individuals as a golden opportunity to express their always definite and sometimes indignant ideas on the subject.

One member of the faculty, in a discussion on this subject, said, "I don't like them. They break into the students' period of work, since certain kinds of work such as reference work in the library and extensive assignments take a long time, and students have to stop to go to a class before they can finish what has been started." The students, she thought, didn't get as much work done for this reason as before. "Besides," she continued, "I think it does everyone good to get away for a weekend once in a while."

Another teacher does not mind Saturday classes since she had been used to them in her own college days, and, since most weekends must be spent in Tallahassee she would just as soon teach on Saturday as not.

One professor stated very emphatically that he was "very much against them," believing that they did not lighten work, and that having Saturdays off was much better than a few hours here and there on week days. "There are a thousand arguments that could be used against them," he concluded.

A science instructor, although she does not like them, believes that Saturday classes take care of laboratory periods which would otherwise have to come from 3:30 o'clock to 5:30 o'clock on afternoons, a time when students do not do good work.

One senior, approached with this question, began immediately: "I think they're terrible, personally. You can't go off for weekends or do anything else Friday nights but study," and continued a lengthy discussion of the evils of Saturday classes.

A group of three seniors when asked their opinions began a long

Continued on page three

McKay Elected NSFA Official At Convention

Borton and Eveleth Also FSC Representatives At New York City

220 DELEGATES IN ATTENDANCE

Outstanding Speakers Lead Commissions And Meetings

From the Twelfth Annual Congress of the National Student Federation of America in New York City, where Mary Jeanne McKay became the organization's new vice-president, Mary Jeanne, Janice Borton, and Polly Eveleth returned to the college Sunday night.

220 Delegates Attend

Coming from every section of the country and from every type of educational institution, 220 delegates gathered at the Hotel Victoria on December 28 to spend five days discussing educational problems. The theme of the Congress was "Students and Democracy," and its scope was designed to fit the needs of student government on the individual campus and of student government as a whole.

Delegates are Guests of Mayor

Three daily sessions—one in the morning, one in the afternoon, and another at night—brought the delegates together in group and plenary meetings. Each delegate was assigned to a commission. The Honorable Fiorello H. La Guardia, mayor of New York City, and Chancellor Harry W. Chase of New York university, whose university played host to the Congress, were the first speakers on the federation's program. On Monday evening Dr. Ralph S. Harlow of Smith college addressed the delegates at a public meeting of the commission of student rights.

Outstanding Speakers Attend

Tuesday's schedule included open meetings of the commissions on student government, on militarism in the United States, on athletics, on the national policy, on the international policy, and on college newspapers. Outstanding guest speakers appeared on each commission program. That evening Mr Charles W. Taussig of the National Youth Adminis-

Continued on page four

Fox Will Give Organ Recital

Organists Guild Will Celebrate Epiphany With Program

On Tuesday the American Guild of Organists will celebrate the Epiphany season and the arrival of Virgil Fox, who will give an organ recital Tuesday night as the second part of this year's artists' series.

At 5:30 o'clock both Fox's program and Epiphany will be explained at Ruge Hall. At six o'clock in the same place the Episcopal student choir will have a short candlelight Epiphany service, "The Feast of the Lights," at which they will sing the Gregorian Plain-song. Both of these services are open to the public.

At 6:30 o'clock the members of the organist guild will celebrate the feast of the three kings with dinner in the college dining hall, from which they will attend the recital by Mr. Fox.

Two FSC Graduates Are Employed on Magazines

Two graduates of Florida State college, Mrs. Donald McIntosh, the former Miss Margaret Jordan, of Tama, and Miss Clementine Newman, assistant to the dean of students at Stephens college, Columbia, Mo., hold important positions on the quarterly magazine publications of the Beta Phi Alpha and Kappa Delta national sororities.

Mrs. McIntosh is editor of the Aldebaran, official publication of Beta Phi Alpha, and Miss Newman is associate editor in the alumnae department of Angelos, official publication of Kappa Delta. Mrs. McIntosh served as editor of the Flambeau and Miss Newman as editor of the Distaff. Both held these positions in 1931-32.

THE FLORIDA FLAMBEAU

student newspaper

1937

Florida State University

Tallahassee, Florida

1971

This filming - THE FLORIDA FLAMBEAU - is directed by Mrs. Gertrude Mozley Roche, Head, Micro-Materials, Florida State University Library from the originals in the Library Archives. Through the efforts of Student Senator Jeffrey Jones and SOLTAS, student organization, funds were provided in Bill 76, 23rd Senate, Student Government, FSU, 1971.

Many Faculty Episcopalians To Be Honored

Alfriend, Gehan to Have Reception Tomorrow At Ruge Hall

The Rev. W. J. Alfriend and Mrs. Alfriend and Miss Julia Gehan will receive Episcopal members of the faculty at Ruge hall tomorrow afternoon from five to six. Invited to call are Dr Katherine A. Abbey, Dr. Anna Porbes Liddell, Dr. Guy L. Diffenbaugh, Miss Florence Bethea Prof. Walter Ruel Cowles, Miss Margaret Whitney Dow, Miss Mildred Fraser, Dr. Marion Hale, Dr. Christian Paul Heinlein, Miss Elizabeth Lee Hutt.

Miss Eunice Hurd, Dr Minna Koch, Dr. Herman Kurz Miss Rita L. Matthews, Miss Edna Mae McIntosh, Miss Isabel McKinnell, Mrs. Lee E. W. Miller, Prof. Robert Miller, Dr. Margaret R. Sanders, Mrs. Cecile Strong, Dr. Jennie Tilt, Dr. Sarah Parker White Miss Carrie G. Smith, Miss Margaret Dunbar, and others.

Eleanor Biggers will be in charge of the regular after-dinner coffee tonight in Ruge hall, promised by Eugenia Munnerlyn and Anita Sue Stuart. Tonight Episcopal students will hear Stewart Wright, who will have charge of the entire program.

Doris Purchase will be in charge of arrangements for the caroling trip the group will make on Wednesday night. Students will meet at Ruge hall at 6 o'clock, where refreshments will be served after the caroling. Other students who will assist in planning the program are Jane Crille and Reuben Coleman.

Tonight at 7:45 o'clock members of the Young Woman's Auxiliary of the Baptist Student union will meet at the Baptist community hall. Immediately following the meeting there will be a Christmas party to which all Baptist students are invited.

Sunday morning the group will present a modest Baptist student night program at the regular Sunday school services. The program is the result of a southwide Baptist student movement, which has as its aim the presentation of student-conducted services on the night of Dec. 27 in all churches which have college students among their members.

Presbyterian League members will present a White Christmas service Sunday evening at 6 o'clock. Group carol singing will be followed by a white gift ceremony in which each student will bring a present, wrapped in white, to be sent to children in the mountains of north Georgia. Doris Terrell will read a Christmas play, "Bothan—a New World Wise Man."

During its regular fellowship meeting this Sunday night, the Presbyterian student league will hold its annual white Christmas gift service.

At the service, which will be led by Sara Hethcox, members will bring gifts for the mountain children in Betty's Creek, Georgia. Students have also donated oranges and nuts to be sent to the eighty children of this north Georgia village.

Following the gift service Doris Terrell will read a Christmas play, "Bothan—a New-World Wise Man."

A new way of sending Christmas greetings has been adopted by the league this year. Instead of mailing cards, the league members are requested to place the money usually spent on cards and stamps in a box on the Presbyterian bulletin board in the Administration building. This money is to be used for the student house fund. Then the girls are to write the name of those to whom they wish to send greetings on a big Christmas card placed on the bulletin board.

Library Average Is 250

The average number of books withdrawn from the library per day is about 250. The most popular books at the present time are those on social science and biography. One day 212 non-fiction books were taken out, while only 49 fiction books were checked out.

Do your Xmas shopping
IN AMERICA'S GREAT GIFT GUIDE
Esquire
THE MAGAZINE FOR MEN
JANUARY ISSUE
ON SALE DECEMBER 11th

Editor

The editors of the Flambeau are offering this week the first ten-page issue of the paper since its establishment in 1918.

In 1929 the paper assumed its present form of make-up and dimension, and since that time there have been several eight-page editions. Hazel Bowman is the Flambeau editor.

Franz Mobbed By Publicity, Fame Hounds

Handsome Pianist Hides Behind Piano From Many Admirers

What appeared to be the Pied Piper followed by his merry little town was in reality Mr. "Allie" Franz, pianist, on the first program of the artist series for the year.

Hardly was the final selection played when a group of hundreds of the music lovers pushed their way to the aisle and swarmed out onto the stage, demolishing programs and demanding the official autograph.

A peck backstage revealed Mr. Franz palely entombed behind a grand piano and "signing" frantically. Numerous indeed were the brilliant remarks passed. Remarks ranging from "O, he smokes Camels" (this followed by a pleased "Ohs") to a dry "Utopia as full of men as like him."

Suddenly he glanced up and raised his hand for silence. A few of the executive minded "shushed" imperatively and the meeker majority became quiet. What was he going to say?

"Girls," there an effective pause: "I'm sure you are in a hurry to get home and get to bed," he said.

Two hundred cheerful denials filled the air.

"Well," he insisted, "shall we say that I must get home as I have to catch an early train in the morning?"

Apparently he did not. It sounded like the mob scene in Julius Caesar, as this possibility was waived aside deprecatingly.

More programs were pushed into his face and he signed for a while and then with a firmness born of desperation—

"I simply cannot sign any more autographs tonight." The crowd murmurs darkly. He raised his voice piteously and said, "Now if you'll just send them to me..."

"Your secretary will sign them for us," finished a cynic.

"No." There was a note of entreaty in his voice.) "I promise I will sign them myself."

This was the ultimatum, and there was nothing else to do but accept it. But the crowd continued to stand and stare in a quiet, friendly manner. The object of their attention became a bit flustered, but the girls continued to stare. He examined his fingernails minutely, while the girls giggled.

Rescue came in the person of a photographer who wished to take the artist's picture, fleeing a way out of the predicament, he agreed hastily. As he attempted to push his way through the crowd, he was saved the trouble for the crowd went with him. The minority that wasn't clustered around him was on chairs, seeking to peer into his face as he passed.

An efficient photographer soon cleared the stage and Mr. Franz seated himself at the piano. He attempted to look nonchalant, gazed out into the sea of faces that were staring up at him, and gave up the attempt.

Finally the pictures were taken and Dallas Franz fled from the stage followed by the admiring gaze of two hundred pairs of eyes. Gradually the crowd drifted away amid cynical and admiring remarks.

All of which goes to show that our students appreciate art to an almost painful degree. If the pianist had been fair, fat, and forty would he have received the same warm welcome?

Writer Notes Outstanding Qualities of Englishmen

Splendid Language and Smooth, Easy Intonation Characteristic of Man, Woman and Child Of Neighboring Country

By ARLINE GRAY LOCKHART

"Listening over the radio yesterday morning to Prime Minister Baldwin reading to Parliament the announcement of Edward the Eighth's abdication, the reporter was struck by Mr. Baldwin's beautiful diction and the excellent quality of his speaking voice.

It is curious that every educated Englishman or English woman, plus reporter has heard speak, has used splendid language and easy smooth tones. This is the case whether it be a child, such as the actor little Freddie Bartholomew, or such a personage as S. K. Ratcliff, lecturer and journalist who visited this campus in November, or just an Englishman with the ordinary boy's amount of education. Aside from the peculiar inflection which appears to be a characteristic trait of the British it would seem to be a matter of pride with them to speak English as correctly as possible. The precision with which the educated Englishman chooses his words and his clear enunciation as well as his inflection, enables one to listen to him for hours without tiring.

In contrast there is the American and his use of the English language. There are, of course, many Americans who speak well including choice of words and diction, but does the average educated American do so? Assuming that the average education American is among the thousands graduated from the national colleges and universities every June, one certainly cannot pretend that he speaks the English language well. It would be more nearly correct to say, if one could use this campus as an example, that he butchers th- king's English.

He mumbles and slurs his words, or he drawls, or talks too fast, or too loud, or too harshly, or he twangs, depending largely upon the section of the country in which he lives. His conversation is largely made up of slang phrases. It is a rare occasion if one can be amid a group of college students for two hours and not hear such expressions as: Oh yeah; well, now, after all; sure 'nough; I'll say; you've got something there; yes you; so you say; so what?; you said it, you; you said that reele; how's every little thing? Farewells are usually ended with the advice "Be good," or "Be sweet." Most frequently a phrase is run together to form one word such as "Whatchadoin?" or Whatchaknow?"

The little word "you" has nearly lost its own distinction by being slurred with other words—dya, dontcha, etc. While there would appear to be a notable decrease in the vocabulary of the college student in the last few months as he consistently terminates his conversation with the phrase "—an' stuff."

With this influx of slang into the average educated American's language, the question arises, has America so popularized slang that it has become or will become accepted as correct usage?

Certainly America has gone "slang mad" and anyone not up on the late witty catch phrases has a difficult time conversing with the average American, college student or otherwise. Consequently, the art of conversation is suffering.

Today Is Last Time To Be Photographed

Today will be the last day that pictures for the Flastacowo can be made, according to an announcement made by Frances Porch, editor. Students who have not had their photographs taken are asked to make an appointment at the Alan Anderson studio in the Demonstration school.

Sororities have been urged to take and submit informal snapshots to be used in a section devoted to them. Picture showing the greatest amount of originality and photographic skill will be used. Other campus groups are also invited to submit snapshots to be used informally throughout the book.

Amateur Photographers Prove Their Mettle On Squirming Subjects and Call It Amusing

BY ANN LYDDANE

Among other Sunday afternoon pastimes picture-taking is popular on the campus of Florida State College for Women.

"If you'll just hold still—" amateur photographers sigh patiently. The victims squirm, pat their hair, moisten their lips and show rows of teeth in what is meant to be a happy smile.

When everything is in order, the photographer decides that the background is not quite correct. "Let's go over to the open air theater," she suggests.

Once against the desired background, the routine is repeated. This time, however, the smiles are a little more forced. "This is and get it over with," the subjects mutter grimly through smiling lips.

The camera clicks: the picture is snapped.

"And I was talking—my mouth was wide open!" the girls wail.

"We'll take another," the photographer says to pacify them.

One of the party decides that her hair is out of place. Borrowing a comb she spends a few minutes fixing it. Her neighbor, feeling the need of more make-up, opens her compact and powders vigorously. A third member examines sore foot out of the new shoes, and rubs it gently.

"Are you ready now?" the photographer finally asks in exasperation.

The comb is returned: the compact closed, and the shoe replaced. The girls arrange themselves where the light is best. They beam. The camera clicks. "That's a good one," the photographer smiles enthusiastically.

"Let's take one more."

Quillian points out. Thus she attempts to explain, the why of conversation in dowdy English, and as a matter of personal opinion whether it is for better or worse.

One cannot help wondering if good conversation has declined in America because of the influence of books, radios, shows, the telephone and the telegraph, or if these modern devices are not simply expressing the sentiment of the average educated American.

There are the same modern devices in England yet the influence seems to be the opposite. The British conversation for instance has a committee of spoken English to judge radio announcers and it set up a standard of English to be used, thus ensuring the public of hearing only the best voices and languages.

Americans have become just as famous abroad for their harsh unpleasant voices and slang sprinkled speech as they have for their money. Only the average educated American can determine whether they shall continue to be known for this crude trait or not—and who better qualifies for the title of educated American than the college students?

Nurses' Group Sees Playlet On Red Cross

Regular Monthly Meeting Followed by Short Social Hour

"Red Cross Nursing Service" featured the regular monthly meeting of the College Nurses association held Wednesday evening in the Education building. The presentation of a playlet, "The Red Cross Nurse," written and directed by Pearl Smith, explained the duties of the Red Cross nurse and the significance attached to the wearing of the Red Cross nursing badge. Florence Ward as Eleanor O'Haver played two office girls in the explanatory act.

The business meeting was followed by a social hour with Jean Root, social chairman, in charge. Other members of the nurses association include Marjhaven Cook, Ruby Elizabeth Ellis, Barbara Ellis, Barbara Enders, Beverly Horn, Catherine Levy, Seine Randle, Leona Rehlinger, Mavis Rickert, Lorena Simms, Jeanette Spector, Vivian Testa, Jane Thomas, Elizabeth Wadsworth Margaret Wheeler, Betty White, Frances Woodward, Julia Harrison, Myrtle Wilson, Jane Frost, Charlotte Connell, Mary Bowman Hill, and Mary Calhoun Coody.

Any students who is interested in nursing, whether she is enrolled in a B.S. course or not, is cordially invited to attend future meetings of the association, said Pearl Smith, president.

Dr. Leonard Speaks To Psychology Club

On a long march, penguins break the monotony of walking by tobogganing or pushing themselves along on their stomachs.

...out of the Horn of Plenty come the good things that smokers enjoy
... mild ripe tobaccos from the Carolinas, Georgia, Kentucky, Maryland and Virginia—there's aplenty of the best in Chesterfield.
... aromatic tobaccos
from Turkey and Greece—and plenty to make Chesterfields taste better—and different.
Pleasing taste and aroma, refreshing mildness—Chesterfields are chock-full of the good things you enjoy in a cigarette.
...for the good things smoking can give you
...enjoy Chesterfields
Chesterfield CIGARETTES
Copyright 1936, Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co.

LIBRARY
FLORIDA STATE COLLEGE FOR WOMEN
TALLAHASSEE, FLA.

The Florida Flambeau

Published by the Students of Florida State College for Women

Tallahassee, Florida, January 8, 1937

VOLUME XXIV. NUMBER TWELVE

Congratulations to Mary Jeanne

Hear Organist Fox and Lecturer Dr. White

Young Artist Will Present Organ Concert

Young American Appears In FSCW Auditorium Tuesday Evening

FOX CHOSEN FOR SECOND RECITAL

Musician's Career Began At Fourteen Years Old Before 1200

Virgil Fox, young American organist, will present an organ concert in the college auditorium as the second of the Artist Series Tuesday evening at 7:45.

At 14 Virgil Fox played in concert before an audience of 1200. In 1932, after a year at Peabody Conservatory, Baltimore, he won the only Artist Diploma ever given in a one-year course and took the highest honor among all graduates. He then went to Europe for a year of study with Marcel Dupre.

Parallels Concert Players

His first American tour was made during 1935-36 season. Wherever he plays the organist is hailed as one with a level of artistry that parallels the art of the concert pianist, violinist, and vocalist alone.

Program Plans

He will open his program with the sketches for pedal-piano con Shumann, A Minor, D Flat Major and Canon in B minor. His group will be followed by Sherrin in A Major, Lemigo by Bach-Middlebrooke. He will conclude with the group Bach; Grave Mystique Offertoire from Feast of the Circumcision," Vermont Christmas Carol, Carol of the Lake from "Pastels of Lake Geneva," Mary-Enrico, Lullin, Varne; Perpetuum Mobile etude for pedals alone), Middleschulte. He will end with his concert with Legende by Howard Thatcher and The Ascensier Carillon by Vierne.

Favorable Comments

The New York Herald Tribune said of him, "Mr. Fox exhibited a highly trained technique, exquisite taste in registration and a well-grounded musicianship."

There was extraordinary enthusiasm for this young American who is making his instrument the realm of high class but popular music says the New York Evening Journal.

Day Students Are Discussed

Executive Council Plans Closer Contact For Tallahasseeans

The problem of bringing the students into closer contact with the college and the dormitory discussed at a meeting of executive council held before holidays.

Mentioning first action already taken, Mary Jeanne McKay of the club room in the living wing of the college building. Here, the day students may eat, lunch, smoke, and hold meetings.

Six suggestions for immediate action, it was announced that plans announcements be placed in the mailbox of this club room and that pigeon hole boxes for day students be set up also. The day students are also instructed to petition the budget committee for a definite amount or expenses of tea given in this room.

Several minor suggestions were made. They will be considered to attend convocation were be asked to hand the executive council blanks which will be given to the usher committee.

Tickets for campus dances were to be distributed to day students as heretofore students. Day students were to be invited to dormitory teas, and the chairman of social committee should plan that these teas be given for them only. It was also suggested that an orientation program include a committee of upperclassmen day students to assist the freshmen day students. Representatives of the day students attending the meeting were Ruth Bellamy, president of the day students' organization; Daisy Parrish, representative to the senate; Mattie Lou Love, Mary Voss, and Margaret Maxwell.

Freshmen to Meet With Dean Salley

Dean Nathaniel M. Salley will meet with all freshmen who are enrolled in the school of education next week to advise them about their work for the second semester. These meetings are compulsory and the roll will be taken each time.

The schedule is as follows: Names beginning with A through B, Monday, Jan. 11, at 4:30 o'clock; names beginning with C through D, Tuesday, Jan. 12, at 4:30 o'clock; names beginning with E through G, Wednesday, Jan. 13, at 4:30 o'clock; names beginning with H through J, Thursday, Jan. 14, at 4:30 o'clock; names beginning with K through Mc to Martin, Friday, Jan. 15, at 4:30 o'clock; names beginning with Martin to Patten, Monday, Jan. 18, at 4:30 o'clock; names beginning with Patten through R, Tuesday, Jan. 19, at 4:30 o'clock; names beginning with S to T, Wednesday, Jan. 20, at 4:30 o'clock. Remaining freshmen will meet Thursday, Jan. 21, at 4:30 o'clock.

Students Must Give Schedule By January 23

Registrar Asks for New Cards Though Class Change Not Made

DOYLE ISSUES EXAM PROGRAM

Test Week Will Close Friday Afternoon At 4 o'Clock

Examination schedule will be found on page three.

The schedule for mid-term examinations beginning Jan. 25 and continuing through Jan. 29 has been issued by S. R. Doyle, registrar, who has also announced that each activity must make out a new schedule for the second semester.

Last Exam Is Friday

The examination schedule has been arranged so that Monday, Wednesday and Friday classes have been given the same hours as those of Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday. The last examination will be given at 4 o'clock Friday. The registrar has announced that in case of a conflict between two one-hour courses, the examination in each course should not exceed one hour. This is to be given at the scheduled time.

Those students entering the second semester are to be made beginning Jan. 13 at the registrar's office and the a copy of her schedule for the second semester. Student who is changing her schedule the second semester must secure the permission of the dean of her group before going to the registrar's office to make out the new schedule.

Not Necessary to See Dean

It is not necessary for a student to see the dean in case of change due to a conflict between hours, failure, or to change from one integrated course to another. In case of failure in courses that are not followed by trailer sections, it is necessary for students to see her dean before she will be permitted to have her schedule. Such changes are to be made after the beginning of the second semester.

Very few changes in the hours at which courses are offered have to be made for the second semester, with the exception of those courses which begin the second semesters.

Registrar Gives Statement

In regard to the grades "I" and "E" the registrar has issued the following statement: first, that the mark "incomplete" shall designate that some part of the regular work in a given course is unfinished at the end of the semester. Absence from examination, which is designated by X, is unfinished work.) And that unfinished work indicated by "incomplete" must be completed satisfactorily to the teacher or teacher

Continued on page four

Andrews Talks About Offices For Women

Speaks of Opportunities And Requirements Of Public Life

"Women in Public Office" was the topic of a vocational address given by Dr. Elizabeth Gordon Andrews yesterday morning.

Public office is no place for a woman who wants to be a wife, Andrews, who pointed out that a successful person in this walk of life would have to withstand disappointments and still keep faith in human nature in spite of them.

In explaining that public positions are obtained either by appointment or election. Miss Andrews named several appointments of women to important positions which are encouraging, among them the secretary of labor, the assistant director of United States employment service, and the director division of labor statistics, director of woman's division, assistant secretary of treasury, director of United States mint, judge in a federal district court, and minister to Denmark.

Although there are many opportunities there are many opportunities for distinguished service in public life, there are examinations, including administrative, social service, lecturing, mechanical, and educative, are open to women, great numbers of whom are employed each year. College education is being increasingly demanded in the civil service examinations.

Men, because they are the head of a family, are usually more successful than women in business. In many positions women are be-

Continued on page three

Hay and Party Spend Novel Christmas in Mexican City

Follow Regular Yuletide Turkey Dinner by Visit To Floating Gardens at Xochimilco; Now Electrified to War God

Christmas in Mexico City.

While the majority of the students of Florida State College for Women spent their two-weeks holiday in the usual round of entertainments, Miss Hay and Miss Hay in a somewhat different fashion and celebrations, a party of ten, under the guidance of Mr. and Mrs. Harry H Hay drove in private cars to Mexico City. Mrs. Hay is associate professor of education at the college and teaches the University of Florida summer school. Other Florida members of the party included: Miss Marjorie Dow, associate professor of organ and theory; Miss Lelia Venable, assistant professor of home economics; Miss Elizabeth Lynn, instructor in physics; Betsey Anderson, a senior at Florida State; and Herman Graves, student at the University of Florida.

On Christmas eve there was a dinner at Sanborn's. This establishment dates back to the time of the Spanish viceroys and is one of the most famous in the city. Its designs in the world. Later in the evening the party had a regular American Christmas tree with a Santa Claus to distribute the gifts. Some of the members of the party attended midnight mass, while others played brides.

On the following day the turkey dinner in Mexico City with turkey, dressing, and all the trimmings, the party visited the floating gardens at Homelimilco. This is called the Venice of Mexico, for these tiny, flower-covered islands are separated by canals. The tourists ride about in funny flat-bottomed boats, called "trajineras," and throw the flowers into other passing boats. Natives sing, play guitars, and sometimes even dance in the boats.

In the evening they dined at the San Angel inn. This beautiful old inn, which is located about ten miles from the city, was formerly a convent. It was here that one of the presidents of Mexico, Obregon, was assassinated several years ago.

The day after Christmas on a tour to the pyramid of the sun

Continued on page three

Groggy Students Return from Festive Vacation To Stare at Restored Administration Building

Dull, groggy, unhappy and semi-unconscious students returning from what was by Monday morning only a "onderful dream of sixteen short days, crowded their weighted lids and tired mouths to stare in undisguised wonder at a now wholly restored Administration building. Appraising glances were exchanged as milling groups examined the new paint job, climbed the new stairs with the shiny brass rails, and inspected the seven remodeled classrooms on the third floor.

Interesting bits of conversation overheard included approving remarks, earnest conjectures as to probable use of the various new rooms, and irrelevant observations. "Personally, I'm glad that postoffice has been moved again. Maybe it'll break the jinx. Do you know I can practically count the letters I've received since they jammed the boxes up there in the center?"

"What do you 'spose that big room on the northeast corner is going to be? It's got enough sockets in the wall to make a good home ec lab."

"No, not that. I think it'll be the new physics lab. See the stairs?"

"Well, what's the safe there for? I bet it'll be the bookstore." The last observation was correct for the book-store does occupy the large room adjoining the postoffice on the ground floor, with private offices and a printing room beneath.

Irreverent remarks followed. "Doesn't it look funny without the ivy?" "Good-looking linoleum on the third floor." "Have you tried walking that silly plank at the north entrance?" "I wish they'd finish experimenting with the new paint-colors. The smoke's terrible." "Look out—that's wet paint!" Don't walk there; the varnish isn't dry yet." "The business office will be in the same place it was last year." "What's that room on the west with all the funny electrical fixtures in the floor?"

Workmen and painters sighed. The administration of Florida State had returned. The newly constructed wing of the building will soon be ready for occupancy." dozens of questioners were informed. Perhaps the opening of the new wing will be a date for future freshmen to learn.

Ceremony For State Officers Draws Crowd

Faculty and Wives Serve On City Inauguration Committees

Tuesday, when Fred Preston Cone of Lake City was inaugurated to governorship, Florida State College participated in the various activities and festivities that were held during the day and evening.

Classes were dismissed from 11:30 to 2:30 o'clock to allow the students to attend the inauguration and see the parade.

Many of the girls went to the reception, the open house at the governor's home, and the ball with visiting relatives.

The college orchestra, under the direction of Walter Ruel Cowles, played during the reception held in the capitol building from 8:30 to 10:00. Selections which they played included numbers by Tschaikowsky, Minnie by Marpurg, Serenata by Moffat, Furze by Pachelbel, Silhouette "Kaisersiadt, dn school" by Schaefer, Gavotte and Huldingsmarsch by Greig.

Dr. Edward Conradi, president of the college and his wife, Mrs. Louise, stood in the receiving line with the new governor, his wife, and others.

Several of the faculty members and wives of faculty members were on various committees which planned and took charge of the inaugurating ceremonies.

Dr. Edward Conradi served on the distinguished visitors committee and Dr. Nathaniel M. Salley, chairman of the committee in charge of the open house at the mansion. Miss Lelia Venable, Miss Maud Schwartzkopf, Miss Ruth Heinlein and Mrs. Edward A. Hayden also served on this committee.

At the mansion's open house, Mrs. J. G. Gilham with Governor Cord of Tallahassee introduced the callers to the receiving line.

In the inauguration ball the decision were Miss Lelia Venable and Mrs. Ray Carlton Cowles, Miss Ruth H. D. Mendenhall, Mrs. E. A. Hayden, and Mrs. C. P. Heinlein were on the dinner committee.

Miss Anna Mae Tracy and Miss Louise Conradi presided at the punch bowls.

Sophomore Instantly Killed in Collision

Katherine Esther Harper, sophomore from Homestead, was killed instantly during the Christmas holidays when her car in which she was riding with her brother collided with an ambulance near Miami. Katherine's father, C. T. Harper, died several days later as a result of injuries received in the accident.

Katherine is survived by her mother, Mrs. Stella Harper. Last year at the end of the second semester Katherine was second in the freshman class of more than 500 scholastic standings.

Baptists Meet With Preston And Robinson

Methodist Student Group Will Discuss Plans For Conference

William Hall Preston, of Nashville, Tennessee, associate southwestern student secretary, Preston and J. Roy Robinson, who was recently appointed state Baptist secretary for students in Florida, were appointed state Baptist secretary for students in Florida, were two Tuesday and Wednesday for a series of conferences with Baptist students.

Tuesday night Mr. Preston and Mr. Robinson met with pictures taken at the annual Baptist student retreat held last June in Ridgecrest, N. C., and Wednesday night they met with the study students for short conferences.

Members of the Methodist student group met Tuesday night in the student headquarters on West Jefferson street to discuss plans for the student volunteer conference which will be held at Southwestern College, Memphis, February 5, 6, and 7. All council members urged to be present.

Virginia Clayton who conducted the Methodist league program tonight, led the study group in "How to Tell Right From Wrong." Miss Elizabeth Davis will continue her series of talks on "What May a Student Believe" at the Methodist meeting on Wednesday held at the student house Sunday morning.

At the regular meeting of the Presbyterian student league Sunday night, Dr. Joseph Smith spoke "Peter, Bingo, and those Others." Dr. Smith will conduct the morning service Sunday moring Dr. Caldwell will bring a brief New Year's message.

During the holidays the Presbyterians entertained in their home churches about the plans for the coming year, and beyond back contributions for this project.

The league is making plans for programs on student work to be presented throughout the state on February 28, day of prayer for schools and colleges.

FSC Graduates Make Up 44 Per Cent of State's Home Economic Teachers

Of the 250 home economics teachers in Florida's public high schools, forty-four per cent are graduates of Florida State college, according to a survey made recently by the college placement bureau on the official list of home economics teachers of Florida.

Miss Edith Kibler, head of home economics teachers in Florida, the college has home economics teachers in thirty-nine of the sixty-seven counties in the state.

In addition to the teachers of this course, many other home economics graduates now hold places in school and hospital positions. These include public health nurses in various states, and in retailing and administrative positions in the field of nursing.

16 Professors Use Vacation For Traveling

Nine F. S. C. W. Faculty Members Attend Conventions

MOTOR TRIP TAKEN BY FOUR TEACHERS

Dr. Herman Kurz Leads Field Expedition In Florida

During the Christmas holidays nine faculty members of Florida State attended conventions, one went on a motor trip to Cuba, five motored to Mexico, and one took five students on a botanical field trip to Florida City.

Opperman Attends Meeting

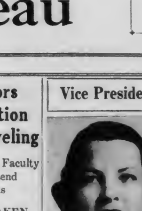
Ella Scoble Opperman, dean of the school of music, attended a joint convention of the National Music Teachers' association and the National Association of Schools of Music held in Chicago Dec. 28-31. She is Dean Opperman's third year as assistant secretary of the Music Teacher's association. She is also chairman of service on the ethics committee of the Association of Schools of Music.

Discussions at the convention centered around the new trend in the presentation of subjects and measurements of standards, and musicology.

Dr. Kathryn T. Abbey, professor of history, attended the annual convention of the American Historical society in Philadelphia. Dr. Abbey, following, a visit to Chicago, Dr. Abbey is Professor, assistant professor of history, also attended the convention after a vacation in Philadelphia.

Modern Language Convention Held

Miss Margaret Campbell, instructor in modern languages, Miss Helen McKenzie, instructor in English; Dr. Dorothy L. Breen, assistant professor of Spanish and French; and Miss Elizabeth Rust, of the Spanish department, all attended the modern Language convention in Virginia. The first day of the convention was spent in Richmond, the second day in Williamsburg, and the third day at the University of Richmond.



Dr. Breen also attended the meeting of the American Association of University Professors as the official delegate from Florida State. The meetings were held at Duke University and at Chapel Hill in North Carolina.

Mrs. Lucille G. Bass, instructor in Spanish, spent the holidays on a week's trip to Havana, Cuba, during the Christmas season. A sightseeing visit was taken to orro castle and other points of interest.

Miss Lelia Venable, assistant professor of home economics, Miss Elizabeth Lynn, instructor in physics; Miss Margaret Whitney Dow, associate professor of organ; and Dr. Marion Hay, associate professor of home economics, Mexico for two weeks.

Dr. Herman Kurz, professor of

Continued on page four

Mary Jeanne McKay, president of the student body and one of Florida State college's delegates to the meeting of the national congress of N. S. F. A. in New York, during the Christmas holidays, was elected vice president of that organization. Mary Jeanne, who is also chairman of the local chapter last year, served during that time as a delegate at large of the national council.

Vice President

Editor Gives Contents For Next Distaff

Second Issue of College Magazine to Appear In Near Future

The second number of the Distaff, quarterly critical magazine published by the students of Florida State college, will appear in the near future, Daisy Parker, editor has announced. All material for this issue has been selected.

The second issue contains articles, "Pro-mopitions," by Pearle Shepard Junior, in which the application of principles of facts and attitudes learned in the college is made to later life.

Clotilde O'Rouke, senior, has written a light, humorous sketch of her father, "Fathers are Like That."

There will be answers to Martha Baker's article, "How Can We Do It?," of the last issue, by two sophomores, Mary Noble and Sadie Anderson.

Edna K. Burbanks has submitted an original story "Between Kruger Creek and Me."

There will be poetry by a senior, Anna Mae Mitchell, and by three juniors, Evelyn Fisher, Mayie McMillian, and Phil Asher.

The reviews will include G. K. Chesterton's "Autobiography, Carl Sandburg's "We, the People," and "The Return to Religion" by Henry C. Link.

The art work will be an extravaganza. Sanik Nile," by Ruth Sadler, senior.

Only two entries have been made in the one-act play contest. Because of several requests, the time for submitting the plays has been extended.

McKay Elected NSFA Official At Convention

Borton and Eveleth Also FSC Representatives At New York City

220 DELEGATES IN ATTENDANCE

Outstanding Speakers Lead Commissions And Meetings

From the Twenth Annual Congress of the National Student Federation of America in New York City, where Mary Jeanne McKay became the organization's new vice-president, Mary Jeanne, Janice Borton, and Polly Eveleth returned to the college Sunday night.

220 Delegates Attend

Coming from every section of the country and from every type of educational institution, 220 delegates gathered at the Hotel Victoria on December 26 to spend five days discussing educational problems. The theme of the Congress was "Students and Democracy," and the scope was designed to fit the needs of student governments on the individual campus and of student governments as a whole.

Speakers are Guests of Mayor

Three daily sessions—one in the morning, one in the afternoon, and another at night—brought the delegates together in discussion and meetings. Each delegate was assigned to a commission. The Reverend Reinhold H. La Guardia, mayor of New York City, and Chancellor Harry W. Chase of New York university, whose university played host to the Congress, were the speakers on the federation's program. Mr. Monday and Mrs. Dorothy Hirshow of Smith college addressed the delegates at a public meeting of the commission of student rights.

Outstanding Speakers Attend

Tuesday's schedule included open meetings of the commission student government, on militarism in the United States, on education, on the student policy, the international policy, and on college newspapers. Outstanding guest speakers appeared on each commission program. That evening the Reverend W. Tuning of the National Youth Administration

Continued on page four

Fox Will Give Organ Recital

Organists Guild Will Celebrate Epiphany With Program

On Tuesday the American Guild of Organists will celebrate the Epiphany season and the arrival of Virgil Fox, young artist, as organ recital Tuesday night as the second part of this year's artists series.

At 5:30 o'clock both Fox's program and Epiphany will be explained at Ruge Hall. At six o'clock in the same place the Episcopal student choir will have a short candlelight Epiphany service, "The Peas of the Light," at which they will sing the Gevaert Hymn and Gloria. Both of these services are open to the public.

At 6:30 o'clock the members of the organist guild will celebrate the feast of the three kings with dinner in the college tea hall, from which they will attend the recital by Mr. Fox.

Two FSC Graduates Are Employed on Magazines

Two graduates of Florida State college, Mrs. Donald McIntosh, formerly Miss Mary Jane Jordan, of Tampa, and Miss Clemensine Newman, assistant to the dean of students at Stephens college, Columbia, Mo., have published positions on the quarterly magazine publications of the Beta Phi Alpha fraternity of which they are sorosities.

Mrs. McIntosh is editor of the Alderaan, official publication of Beta Phi Alpha, and Miss Newman is associate editor in the alumnae department of Aenrea, official publication of Kappa Delta. Mrs. McIntosh serv- as editor of Alderaan, Miss Newman as editor of the Distaff Both held these posi ions in 1931-32.

Many Give Cherished Views About Classes On Saturday

Professors and Students Mingle in Commentary On the Joys and Sorrows of Staying In Tallahassee on Weekends

By MARTHA LUMPKIN

"What do you think of Saturday classes?" was the question. "Why should be abolished?" This question was taken to several individuals as a golden opportunity to express their always definite and sometimes outgrown ideas on the subject.

One member of the faculty, in a discussion on this subject, said, "I don't like them. They break into the students' period of work, since certain kinds of work such as laboratory periods which must otherwise have to come from 2:30 o'clock to 5:30 o'clock on afternoons, a time when students don't go good work.

One senior, approached with this question, began immediately: "I think they're terrible, personally. You can't go off for weekends or do anything else Friday nights but study," and continued a lengthy discussion of the evils of Saturday classes.

A group of three seniors when asked their opinions began a long

Continued on page three

The Florida Flambeau

EDITORIAL STAFF

HAZEL BOWMAN — Editor
ELEANOR WILLIAMS — Associate Editor
MARTHA BAKER — Assistant Editor
PEARLE SHEPARD — Managing Editor
EVELYN FISHER — News Editor

DEPARTMENTS

Art, Evelyn Glazier; Exchanges, Virginia Early; Features, Arline Grey Lockhart and Jane Quinn; Literary, Sarah Beth Davis and Sarah Sealey; Outside News, Clotilde O'Rourke, Society Margaret Claire Lafferty and Minna Agress Assistant, Special Reporting, Arline Lockhart Mary Lynn Massie, Sports, Ella Virginia Brooks and Elizabeth Turner

REPORTERS: Hazel Adams Ruth Atkinson Dorothy Barcley Blanton Barrett Dorothy Bellamy, Frances Brunson Petree Cabaniss Elizabeth Causey Theresa Christel Glenn Coarsey Honor Coleman, Virginia Davis, Hazel Donnegan Maxine Fugate Mary Gober Margaret Gourlie, Leona Howe, Betty Lou Ingermann, Lucy Kelly Ann Ladd, Betty Leach Martha Lumpkin, Anne Lyddane Mary Jeanne McKay Alicia Meacham, Mary Noble Alberta Patrick Jonet Pierce, Marion Purviance Nancy Rogers Jane Sharon Lavine Spaulding Elizabeth Spicer, Mary Sullivan, Alma Warren Frances Waterhouse

BUSINESS STAFF

LILLIE McGUIRE — Business Manager
JANE QUINN — Advertising Manager
NAN O'SHAUGHNESSY — Asst. Adv Mgr.
MARGUERITE BROWN — Circulation Mgr

Represented for National Advertising by
NATIONAL ADVERTISING SERVICE, INC.
College Publishers Representative
420 Madison Ave. New York, N. Y.
Chicago - Boston - San Francisco - Los Angeles
Portland - Seattle

Member National Scholastic Press association and Florida Intercollegiate Press association

Entered as second class mail matter January 30, 1915, at the post office at Tallahassee, Fla., under act of Congress of March 3, 1879

Another Honor Comes to F. S. C. W.

Students at Florida State can well feel proud of their student body president, Mary Jeanne McKay, who was elected vice-president of the National Student Federation of America at its national convention during the holidays.

Considering itself the most powerful "representative" student organization in America, N.S.F.A. has consistently stood for liberalism. Over two hundred delegates from approximately one hundred and twenty-five colleges in the United States met together in New York City, each delegate bringing the problems of his own particular community before the convention for consideration.

Allowing each delegate to speak and think freely, N.S.F.A. probably for this reason could not go on record as favoring any aggressive program towards the solution of national and international problems.

On the question of war N.S.F.A. resolved to favor international peace but not by anti-war strikes. Along with internal reorganization the main business of the convention, our delegates report, was a discussion of student government.

Now with the nations of the world fearing war will break out within the next few years, yet with each nation at the same time doubling and tripling its armaments, it seems rather a sorry time for such a representative group of N.S.F.A. to be devoting most of its efforts toward solution of local problems of student government rather than the one great underlying problem of war.

The convention did pass a resolution favoring "optional" R.O.T.C. yet in view of the international situation this does not seem enough. In these critical years all progressive student organizations, we believe, should go on record with the refusal to bear arms in aggressive warfare. Only by a strong united stand can college students thus give direction to their future lives and government.

It is hoped our Florida State representatives of N.S.F.A. will have greater opportunity in the future to influence the national policies of the organization. The calibre of our student president will, we believe, assure this.

Opportunity Is Still Knocking

In recent years when traveling units such as athletic and debating teams, musical organizations, and dramatic groups as means of college publicity have become very important it is surprising that Florida State college has never made a real effort to put some of its student organizations before the public.

It is true that in the spring of 1934 the college symphony orchestra went on a short tour of central Florida but aside from this the college has seemingly taken no interest in student advertising. Perhaps this has been due to the fact that student organizations have not been fully appreciated here, especially those groups of students who, under faculty supervision, have become highly skilled in their respective fields.

Since the Christmas concert of the college glee club, however, there can no longer be any doubt about the amount of public interest in this organization. The fact that the glee club is without a doubt one of the most highly-proficient organizations of this sort in the country removes any remaining arguments against sending it out as a school advertisement once the initial financial backing is secured.

Besides the glee club, the college can also boast of a well-organized debating team, a dramatic organization of no little versatility, and two fine orchestras. It is to be doubted that any other college comparable to Florida State in size and financial status would allow these opportunities for excellent publicity go to waste.

Let's Not Clip Our Wings Too Hastily

Our new governor was inaugurated this week with a number of social functions heralding the ceremony. Those Florida State students, who were invited to the social affairs, were elated at the prospect and quite envied by other of their less fortunate sisters. The Governor's Reception and Ball were campus talk for a week.

With even this superficial interest in government and governmental officials, it might be pertinent to ask the old question: Just how much influence can women have in politics?

A number of political observers believe the question can hardly be answered for woman's chief influence should be at best indirect, they say, and therefore unmeasurable. For instance, the French's conception of woman's place in the world contributes to this. Charlotte Muret points out in her articles, "Marriage as a Career," that married women in France scorn our demand for equality. They would not substitute the subtle influence they believe they have by right of their "pedestal" position just as a sex for our thin equality. In sublimating their own lives to their husbands' careers, they share their husbands' successes and failures, and as a result their husbands often ask their advice on important decisions.

Clever married women often through their social contacts insure their husbands' appointments to the French Academy, Charlotte Muret writes. "Their salons are still so often the unofficial headquarters where events are molded, when their tactful hands still manipulate the threads of action and intrigue, when they are always the first to know what is going on both above and below the surface."

Our own Mrs. Roosevelt, for that matter, is supposed to wield a great deal of influence on the President's policies. Persons who meet Mrs. Roosevelt at informal affairs and who make a good impression on her, the author of the New Dealers points out, are usually assured of an appointment—because Roosevelt is one-third Lady Eleanor.

Students might consider then the need for developing an intelligent outlook along with cultivation of the social graces. Perhaps through more subtle methods than "lobbying" and other political devices they may guide civilization to the better world for which, by nature, they are supposed to stand.

F. I. P. A. Head Needs Support

Some criticism of the Florida Intercollegiate Press association has been voiced recently by member newspapers. These papers insist that they are not being kept informed of association activities or plans for the next convention to be held at Rollins college this spring.

An interview with the president of the F.I.P.A. revealed that all communication with members of the association has to be paid for out of the president's pocket since no funds have been provided for meeting such expense. It would seem logical at this point for association members to contribute to a small expense fund if they wish the president to show great activity in the way of letters.

However, without the aid of an expense fund from the F.I.P.A. the president has managed to have bulletins concerning the labor movement and other important aspects of American life sent to Florida college papers and did a fine job of representing the state at the October convention of the National Scholastic Press association in Louisville, Ky.

Members of the faculty and student body of the Florida State College for Women hold only the deepest of sympathy for Mrs. Stella Harper, mother of Kathryn Harper who was killed during the Christmas holidays.

Spirit of the Week . . . . By Glazier

University Editorials . . . . .

The Carolinian offers all the nine hundred and ninety-nine collegiate peace organizations just a drop of criticism. Shame! Shame! Or is it so shameful? Perhaps even peace organizations have their faults.

UNWARRANTED OPTIMISM

Europeans as a whole think of Americans as optimists, and of optimists as being closely related to imbeciles. They possess a pessimistic attitude not by necessity. When many powerful nations who have as their heritage centuries of political intrigue, wars, and hatred are compressed into a rather small area, the inevitable outcome is friction, unrest, and perhaps even war. This situation is aggravated by the surging tide of nationalism which is engulfing the freedom, reason and religion of these people. When you do not know from one day to the next when you may be used as cannon fodder, it would be unnatural if your view of life was not at least tinged with pessimism.

With world affairs as they are today, dare we be too optimistic? True, we are nicely isolated from European powers, but it will take much more than mere physical isolation to keep us from dabbling in a foreign war. The anti-war organizations of youth may give rise to a feeling of optimism, but this should not necessarily be the case. Thus far their attempts mark only a beginning of the work in store for them.

There is a tendency for students to wish to join every available organization that has the word "peace" attached to it. Whether the group is of proven worth or is simply a collection of emotionally unbalanced ruffians makes little difference in the mad desire to become identified with a peace movement.

The peace groups have touched a large proportion of collegiate youth. Until they can stimulate this youth to serious thought and definite practical action, they have failed.—The Carolinian.

Now here's what we've been trying to say all the time—time-time—and speaking of time, we're still wondering if there is such a thing?

ARE WE ILLITERATE?

At a recent conference of the Eastern College Librarians at Columbia University, it was stated that "the average college student graduates ignorant of everything except textbooks, and finishes his college course illiterate.

While we hesitate to concur entirely with this statement, we feel that there is a certain amount of truth in it, and its implications are, to some degree, dangerous. Of course, we are not so pessimistic as to assume that every college student has no acquaintance with letters and graduates illiterate. It must be conceded that the student still exists, hough he may be in the minority, who has attained that necessary balance between academic and broad cultural endeavor.

But our concern is not with this minority group. We must give our attention to that type of student who enters college with the express purpose of getting a degree and nothing else. His purpose is a negative one, rather than a positive one. It is not his ambition to learn, but rather this type of student is a victim of circumstances. Circumstances in his preparatory school work have conditioned him to assume this attitude concerning higher education. He comes to college with the background of "the comic stip, the Sunday supplement

Continued on Page Three

This Week

Politics and War Hold Spotlight in the News

Politics. The opening of the 75th congress at Washington. The inauguration of Fred P. Cone as governor of Florida. German interference in the Spanish civil war. An Anglo-Italian peace pact for the Mediterranean area. These were some of the events on the national and international horizon for the first wees of the new year.

• • •

Combining traditional ceremony with the informality of a family reunion, a heavily democratic congress convened at Washington Tuesday and prepared to tackle its first big task of 1937—legislation slapping a swift embargo on arms shipments for Spain's civil war.

Both house and senate appointed their foreign relations committees so that they may deal promptly with the neutrality bills that are proposed. Chairman Pittman, of the senate foreign relations committee, and Chairman McReynolds, of the house committee, offered a joint resolution to each house on Wednesday. Its immediate effect would be to give Roosevelt power to cancel export licenses of arms and airplane shipments to Spain and to prevent such licenses from being issued in the future.

• • •

This resolution aims directly at Robert Cuse of New Jersey and Richard Dineley of San Francisco. Recently, the state department was forced to issue a license to Dineley authorizing him to ship $4,507,050 worth of war implements to Valencia. A license was also reluctantly issued to Cuse allowing him to ship $2,770,000 worth of airplanes and motors to Spain. The state department protested but could do nothing as the present neutrality law covers only wars between nations and not civil strife.

• • •

Fred Preston Cone, Lake City banker, became Florida's 27th governor in Tallahassee, Tuesday, replacing Dave Sholtz, Daytona lawyer. Cone took the oath of office from J. B. Whitfield, chief justice of the Florida Supreme Court, then launched into a 45-minute extemporaneous speech punctuated with "Cracker" yells, applause and frequent laughter. Some 10,000 people jammed around the capitol to hear the new governor promise to put the government on an economical business basis and abolish unnecessary political jobs. "I'm not going to put twenty men on the payroll when we don't need but five," he said. Specifically, he accused the road department and the racing commission of waste and extravagance and said he would investigate the million dollar contracts that had been issued by the road department. By reduction of expenses, he continued, he hoped to provide the required six million dollars from state funds for old age pensions without increased taxation.

• • •

Mrs. Irene Armstrong who succeeded her husband as mayor of Daytona Beach three weeks ago refuses to give up her office. On New Year's Day she defied an order of removal by Dave Sholtz. The governor called out the militia and filled the city hall with armed guards. Mrs. Armstrong hoped that no one would consider her "a mean old woman" but said she was determined to stay and protect the administration and city property from illegal invasion. Mrs. Armstrong's case will now go to the courts.

• • •

Germany stepped into the Spanish conflict this week by openly seizing the Spanish steamer Aaragon, and shelling the Spanish steamer Solon. Germany maintained it was done in retaliation for the retention by Basque Nationalists of the cargo of the German freighter Palos. On Monday, three Fascist planes manned by German pilots were shot down in the air raid on Bilbao. In the meanwhile, a Fascist air bombardment was launched on Madrid killing 100 persons, injuring 30 or more and spreading fire throughout a wide area. Three of the thirty bombs fell in the neutral area, imperiling the lives of twenty American refugees in the United States embassy.

• • •

An Anglo-Italian pact, in discussion since November, was concluded this week. Both parties disclaim any desire to modify or to see modified the Mediterranean status quo. The accord also guarantees the freedom of the Mediterranean as "a vital interest" to both nations.

Collegiate Comebacks

The only cheerful note in our return trek to Tally was the way in which the faces of all the local boys lit up when the buses carrying Florida State's string-bean fed fairest rolled up before the station. We don't mean what you may think, either, because they were all humming "Just Watch the Money Roll In." You're right, the town store-keepers getting a load of the just-before-fleeced lambs.

• • •

If you're wondering why all the solemn faces and hushed voices about campus, we'll squawl. No, no one is dead: it's only a touch of final examitis in the breeze. Those most afflicted are our dear sisters who have loafed all semester, gotten a good lecture from Papa during vacation as he shook his check-book in a fair face, and are now back to think about it all between term papers. And Sinclair Lewis wrote a book called "It Can't Happen Here"!

• • •

From the Brown and White we learn that on their last tour the Yale Glee Club gave recitals in Belgium, Denmark, France, Holland, Norway, and Sweden. We wish some of the flutists, et cetera, who visit Florida State for the purpose of imposing a bit more "culture" upon the young ladies would take themselves off to similar geographical divisions—permanently.

• • •

Also from the Brown and White comes the news that foresters of Syracuse university have devised goggles as an aid to foresters in fire detection. Our roommate needed a pair of said "what no household should be without" goggles, for she herself informed us that her young man had fire in his eyes during the holidays.

• • •

The Alabamian prints the following:

After The Pigskin Season

God bless Ma,
God bless Pa,
God bless me—
Rah—Rah—Rah.

• • •

Medical schools, according to an exchange, will soon install new methods for the explanation of surgical operations. Movies taken over the surgeon's shoulder as he works will be made in actual color and shown to the young doctors. If we can hang on to those bum appendix for a few more years, some surgical-minded cameraman will no doubt satisfy our long and secret desire to break into the movies.

• • •

We are reminded by the Gallatin News that absence makes the grades grow rounder. Just a little hint to the cutters.

• • •

According to those in the know Gainesville won't have a feature section of the state's beautiful girls unless these aforementioned girls take pen in hand and entreat the boy-friend to do what he can to have their sugary smiles in the Seminole. The Christmas mail rush was probably nothing to that which will follow soon after the reading of this item.

• • •

The Daily Collegian keeps us from disappointing the children:

Little Miss Muffet sat on a tuffet,
Eating her curds and whey,
By came a spider
And sat down beside her
And said, "Is this seat reserved?"

Magazine Jottings

BY SARAH SEALEY and SARAH BETH DAVIS

Women's Rise to Power

By Eudora Ramsay Richardson

A prominent clubwoman of Richmond, Va., answers in this month's Forum an article of John Gordon Ross in a recent issue of the magazine which pointed out women's ineffectiveness and lack of interest in politics.

Mrs. Richardson's discussion has the advantage over Mr. Ross's in being more factual than prejudicial. She asserts that the reason for the inaccuracy of the Literary Digest's last presidential poll was that few if any women were sent ballots. The author defends the over-optimistic suffragists of past years who promised the millenium if women would be given the vote on the grounds that they were expressing only hopes, not promises. Sixteen years, incidentally, is a rather short time to allow for the remaking of society.

Women are interested in politics, says Mrs. Richardson. She cites the ten-year program of study adopted a few years ago by the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs aimed at the development of a more adequate social order from an economic point of view. Women are becoming more powerful in politics than Mr. Ross is willing to admit. "In every state there are now women who can influence the women's vote. Without their aid politicians are helpless."—S. S.

• • • •

Can We Live Longer?

By George W. Gray

Back in the seventeenth century there appeared in the Athenian Mercury, a weekly miscellany of questions and answers published in London, a reader's query "whether may a man preserve his life to extreme old age, without diminishing of his senses, or interruption of health, either by pains or sickness."

In the January 1937 Harper's George W. Gray explains a number of recent scientific experiments which lead one to believe that man may someday hope for a considerable lengthening of his life span. That the capacity for longevity is handed down from parents to children with mathematical precision has been demonstrated in a series of experiments performed on fruit flies by Dr. Raymond Pearl of Johns Hopkins.

Two biologists at the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research have discovered that temperature greatly effects the life of the fruit fly—the colder the temperature the longer the average duration of life. Experimenters at Harvard began in 1935 a six-year research program to investigate the effects of limited diets upon rats and changes in the bones, hearts, livers, and other internal organs as a result of limited diets. They also expect to learn whether exercise after middle life hastens or delays senile changes.

At Columbia university investigators have found that calcium and probably vitamins A and G contribute to length of life.

Mr. Gray concludes his article with an interesting prophecy from Haldane's Possible Worlds: "Less than a million years hence the average man or woman will realise all the possibilities that human life so far has shown. He or she will never know a minute's illness. He will be able to think like Newton, to write like Racine, to paint like Fra Angelico, to compose like Bach . . . When death comes, at the end of a life probably measured in thousands of years, he will meet it with as little fear as Captain Oates or Arnold Von Winkelried."—(S. D.)

New Year Quips

Mythical Resolutions by Professors Reveal Intentions of Serving Coca Colas to Taking Up Cigars.

By ARLINE LOCKHART

With the old year in the discard as the chimes rang midnight and merry reveling welcomed in the 1937, probably one person out of a hundred made a New Year's resolution. Reason given usually, that it is a futile business since few people ever keep resolutions after all the resolving they do. Some New Year resolutions however, that are being offered:

Mrs. Baldwin (nee Miss Briggs)—to furnish flashlights to all students taking the art history course so that they can see to jot notes during lectures while viewing slides in the dark room.

Dr. Bellamy—to serve Coca-Colas in her classes during the year 1937 to give that pause which refreshes.

Miss Tracy—to cut down on such filling lunches in order to help the girls maintain their slender girlish figures.

Dr. Coyle E. Moore—to illustrate points in sociology with an example other than Susan Hitchinpost.

Mr Kellum—to provide all off-campus students with bicycles to save the wear and tear on their shoes, as well as their bank accounts.

Miss Kemper Moore—to be consistent in the use of her Oxford accent—at least until Easter vacation.

Dr. Heinlein—in the interest of psychology to use himself as the subject in studying the effect of a long hair cut on a person's musical ability.

Dr. Breen—to give French and Spanish students blanket A's for a New Year's gift.

Mr. Joubert—to recommend teaching in a women's college to any unmarried man.

Dr. Leviney—to give her old green field suit to the junk man and get a new bright red one to prevent hunters from mistaking her for a bit of wild life.

Dr. Rogers—to smoke cigars even though they are not as picturesque as pipes.

The reporter—not to do this again until next year.

C. P. Heinlein Chosen Member

Psychological Society Asks Professor To Make Study

During the Christmas holidays, Dr C P Heinlein, professor of experimental psychology, was made a charter member of the Society for the Psychological Study of Social Issues at the Dartmouth meeting of the American Psychological association.

The society, of which Dr. Goodwin Watson of Columbia university is president, has two principal objectives. One is to encourage research opon those psychological problems most vitally related to modern social, economic, and political policies. The second is designed to help the public and its representatives to understand and to use in the formation of social policies, contributions from the scientific investigation of human behavior. The society further advocates encouragement of realistic research in the field of social psychology.

During the coming year it will be the purpose of Dr. Heinlein to investigate the psychological causes of war and the various ways and means of preserving international peace. He expects to present a paper in the society as the result of his research into this topic.

Hay and Party Spend Christmas in Mexico

Continued from page one

San Juan de Teotihuican one the most amusing events of the trip took place.

Miss Dow as the sacrificial maiden, fairest of the fair, was sacrificed to the war god, Huitzipochti on the pyramid. Miss Venable, Miss Lynn, and the others danced about her while Mr. Hay conducted the sacrifice. Herschel attempted in scramble up the sides of the pyramid to rescue the maiden, but his effort was in vain. Betsey, who carried a movie camera equipped with colored film, secured pictures of the tragedy. These as well as other incidents will be reviewed by the travelers as soon as the films are developed.

On the Sunday after Christmas the party had the opportunity in witness the best bull fight of the season. Armillita and el Soldado were the matadores. Armillita killed the first of the . bulls so perfectly that he was awarded both ears and the snip of its tail, which is the highest award a bullfighter may receive.

The second bull gored el Soldado, who was not seriously injured, and returned to kill the last of the six bulls. Armillita killed the other four bulls doing such good jobs that he received at least an ear from each one. Miss Anderson secured colored movies of the more exciting parts of the fight.

"Thomas an' Charlie" was a favorite of the travelers. This is a primitive Indian village, Tomazunchale where orchids grow wild and coffee trees grow in the back yards. It is situated in a deep valley between high mountains. About two years ago when the road was constructed through the village it had its first contact with civilization. Twice a year at full moon the Indians gather from miles around and dance for twenty-four hours.

While in Mexico City the members of the party purchased lottery tickets. Miss Venable and Mr. Graves each won small sums on their tickets.

On their way back to Tallahassee the party passed the Y. M. C. A bus which was carrying some of the University of Florida students. The bus up-set later and fourteen of the students received injuries. Eight were taken to a hospital for treatment, but only one was seriously hurt.

The party spent New Year's eve in a night club in San Antonio where they had dinner and saw the floor show. The dancing teachers of the movie "Born in Dance" were present and gave several exhibition dances.

In New Orleans last Saturday, the party looked in on the night life of the French. In the small hours they ended up in the market for the inevitable doughnuts and coffee.

While in Mexico City, Mrs. Hay saw Pablo Martinez del Rio of the University of Mexico in connection with a proposed plan to enable junior year students who are majoring in Spanish to continue their third year of study in the university, receiving credit from their American institutions. In previous years such junior students have pursued their studies in Spain but due to the present circumstances these courses cannot be offered there. According to Mrs. Hay, Smith College has always taken the initiative in connection with the other Eastern colleges. She gathered information concerning courses and accommodations at the request of Wellesley authorities.

Many Give Views About Classes on Saturday

Continued from page one

argument without convincing one another or changing their own ideas. "I don't mind Saturday classes," one of them said, "Because I'd go to the library and study anyway, and now since the classes are divided over more days it doesn't give you such a heavy schedule on one day." One of the others disagreed. "I'd hate in say what I think," she said. "I don't like 'em particularly," she ended mildly, while the other senior complained, that "Saturday classes don't give us any time to sleep. I slept on Saturdays every morning for three years, and now I can't. Besides it doesn't give you time in do your laundry."

"Saturday classes offer no beginning or ending in a week," one senior told me sadly, "Saturday has and always will be to me a day to take a deep breath, face around and catch up on loose ends, but with our new system this day is eliminated." She sighed, and wandered down the hall.

Upperclassmen, too, seemed to have very definite ideas concerning Saturday classes. "Saturday classes make the week-end pass too soon; Sunday comes before you know it. Friday nights can't be looked forward to as an evening of leisure. Instead, it is preparation for another day's work. With classes on Saturday all your house cleaning has to be done in the afternoon," one junior stated, while a sophomore with her didn't like the Saturday classes because they cut week-ends to half their former length.

A junior lanquidly yawned as she stated that she "didn't have but one, so they didn't affect her so much," while another said very emphatically, "I certainly think they should be abolished."

Sharing her opinions, the next girl approached, stated, "No, I don't like Saturday classes. I detest them. You don't want to have in study Friday night for there's always playnight, and it breaks up the week-end."

"I don't mind them," one person said calmly, "although I can see the point of view of the ones who don't like them."

Although some freshmen thought they could not state their opinions concerning Saturday classes because they had no previous college years on which to base a comparison, some were very loquacious on the subject. "Saturday classes deprive many students of a chance to go home over the week-end. It breaks up the chance for any recreation on Friday night by the need of study for next day's class and it 'most always causes studying on Sunday. I do not think it a very good plan," she continued with a deep breath, "as the students who study all week do need a time when they can do as they please for a change. It is a part of their education to learn to use their leisure time to advantage and it can't be done with Saturday classes." Her roommate disagreed with her, and said that she "approved of them highly, since they spread out your work. You'll find that leading universities have them," she continued with a bored look of superiority, "and you'll find that having tried them they have kept them."

An enthusiastic little freshman concluded with assuring me that, "They should be abolished because girls who have dates have no time to get their lessons."

Andrews Talks About Offices For Women

Continued from page one

ter than men but sometimes they are not wanted because they demand proof of political statements, insist on the keeping of promises, demand itemized statements of expenditures, and give more attention to detail.

"In many positions women excel men as executives such as the handling of money, public instruction, certain phases of law and many places in civil service. Women are especially qualified to make laws on taxation, child labor, equal standards of pay, equal property rights, education, and social welfare."

According to Miss Andrews there is a scarcity of women in public office because women are not willing to build their foundation first by holding minor offices. To be successful in public office the woman must have good health, the ability to take a slight without showing it, no self pity, belief in the righteousness of cause, belief that the party is bigger than the individual, and consider her spoken word as good as a contract. For this line of work training is necessary in accounting, political economy, taxation. Experience in party work is desirable.

Students Ask Funny Things Of Assistant

Dormitory Worker Finds Signing Up Causes Most Mistakes

The student assistant in a certain dormitory has many funny anecdotes to tell about her work behind the office desk. "I never realized until I worked here," she said, "how inadvertantly stupid people can be and the number of absurd questions that can be asked."

It seems that signing up causes more mistakes than anything else. One freshman asked the other night in be allowed to sign out to the library. Another came running in at first light flash to sign up for the use of the bath tub, and still another brought her mother, who was visiting her over the week-end, to sign up to go to town.

Not so long ago, she narrated, two students came in together asking that they be allowed to see their date cards. After gazing at the cards rather blankly, they asked, "But where are the lists of boys who are going to take us out?"

It's rather a common fallacy among upperclassmen that freshmen are the only ones who pull boners. This is certainly not true. Only last week a junior was complaining because the little space under the title "date" on the engagement cards was too small for her in write her date's name in.

After hearing all these trials that the student assistant has had in endure, it would appear that she would dislike her work. But at a suggestion of this, she replied laughingly, "I'd rather work here than any place on campus. It helps my inferiority complex to find that other people can be just as foolish as I sometimes am."

16 Professors Use Vacation For Traveling

Continued from page one

botany, took five students on a four-day botanical expedition to Floral City. Working with the nationally known fern specialists, Dr. Robert St. John and Dr. Edward St. John, they made an intensive study of Florida ferns and aquatic botany. The students who accompanied Dr. Kurz were Sara Beth Davis, Helen DeVries, Florence Evers, Hazel Sangster, and Carl Brigman.

University Editorials

Continued From Page Two

and The Saturday Evening Post."

Thus, we see that it is not entirely the students fault that textbook learning has become the basis for a college degree. He has been forced to regard academic study as all-important, because he has been blinded to all other pursuits. But, can we fairly place the blame wholly on our preparatory and secondary schools? We think not.

It must be admitted that the curriculum of our institutions of higher learning should bear partial responsibility for the existence of this problem. A student is only human, and a day has only twenty-four hours. There are some students who could not fit voluntary reading hours into their days even if they perceived the value of so doing. If a student wishes to participate in extracurricular activities, he finds it plainly impossible to give adequate attention to three pursuits—academic study, extra-curricular interests, and voluntary reading.

Obviously, some adjustment is necessary. A college degree should mean more than the completion of textbook assignments. Students must become aware of the necessity of a proper balance by classroom assignments and what is equally valuable, voluntary reading. And this cannot be accomplished without a conscientious review of the college curriculum by the administration having as its objective the attainment of this balance.

FLORIDA STATE COLLEGE FOR WOMEN
Examination Schedule
First Semester
1936-37

January 25-29, 1937

Classes Which Meet	Will Have Examination
M. W. F. 830	8:30-10:30 Monday, January 25
Hygiene 101 (All sections in Aud.)	10:30-12:30 Monday, January 25
T. Th. S. 8:30	2:00- 4:00 Monday, January 25
M. W. F. 9:30	8:30-10:30 Tuesday, January 26
Th. S. 11:30	10:30-12:30 Tuesday, January 26
T. Th. S. 9:30	2:00- 4:00 Tuesday, January 26
M. W. F. 10:30	8:30-10:30 Wednesday, January 27
T. Th. 1:30	10:30-12:30 Wednesday, January 27
T. Th. S. 10:30	2:00- 4:00 Wednesday, January 27
M. W. F. 11:30	8:30-10:30 Thursday, January 28
T. Th. 2:30	10:30-12:30 Thursday, January 28
M. W. F. 1:30	2:00- 4:00 Thursday, January 28
M. W. F. 2:30	8:30-10:30 Friday, January 29
M. T. W. Th. F. 2:30	8:30-10:30 Friday, January 29
T. Th. 3:30	10:30-12:30 Friday, January 29
M. W. F. 3:30	2:00- 4:00 Friday, January 29
M. T. W. Th. F. 3:30	2:00- 4:00 Friday, January 29

In case of a conflict between two one-hour courses, the examination in each course should not exceed one hour, and both examinations given at the scheduled time.

Note: There should be no exceptions made in the schedule, according to S. R. Doyle, registrar.

Girl Calmly Licks Lollypop Amidst Surging Holiday Jam

Freshman Carries Mamma Pair of Goldfish and Bus Driver Faces Insanity With Beginning Of Long-Awaited Christmas Season

By MAXINE FUGATE

With a blowing of horns and chugging of motors the huge holliday buses joined the taxis and cars in front of Bryan hall. The pungent odor of gas and oil and smoke mingled with the spicy scent of the newly-cut pine decorations in the dormitories.

Girls of all sizes and descriptions rushed about in various stages of dress and undress carrying suitcases, boxes, and bundles.

Perched on her up-turned suitcase one girl nonchalantly licked a red lolly-pop. Two other girls sat opposite her on a stone bench. One held the first girl's fur coat while the other held her hat, purse, and gloves. They fired instructions and reminders at her like so many bullets. She calmly continued to eat the all-day sucker.

"Please just toss this up in the top, will you, Mr. Busman?" asked one girl. She held up a huge laundry bag over-stuffed with soiled clothing. "I just had to take it home so mother could mend it. The laundry's simply torn it to shreds," she continued.

Carrying a queerly-shaped bundle wrapped in tissue paper carefully in both hands, a " mousie" little senior climbed aboard. With a look of consternation she discovered that all the regular seats on her bus were filled and that even two of the jump-seats had been taken. Without the least bit of fuss she took the third.

"Pardon me," she said timidly to the girl next to her, "but would you please hold this while I slip out of my coat? It's a narcissus for mother. I think it will bloom for Christmas."

Smiling the other girl held her precious package. As she handed it carefully back to its owner, she pointed to a round bundle wrapped in several layers of facial tissue and balanced on her own lap.

"Would you like to see?" she asked "I'm taking my mother a pair of goldfish. Of course I could get them at home. Much nicer ones, I suppose. But I've had these since the first of school, and I've really become rather attached to them. I'm a freshman you know," she added, as if that explained everything.

With a warning toot, the bus driver swung the great door shut, but the girls on the back seat set up a howl. They had just discovered one of them was missing. With a patient sigh the driver opened the door and crawled out of his seat.

The missing girl came loping across the Bryan sunken gardens dragging a plump suitcase behind her. Her hat was plopped on the back of her head and her curls which were still wrapped in curlers hung down on all sides of her head. Her coat was draped over her shoulder and in one hand she carried a sweater that would not go in the over-filled suitcase.

After she had flung her bag in the general direction of the driver, she ran around the bus to the rear door so she could occupy the place saved for her by her friends.

As the bus got under way the girl across the aisle dragged down a huge knitting bag. Settling her horn-rimmed glasses more firmly on the end of her nose, she began to knit, muttering to herself as she did so, "Knit one, two; purl one, two knit—"

"Isn't Robert Taylor just the cutest thing?" Over the top of a brilliantly covered movie magazine a peroxide blonde gushed over the movie hero's charms to her neighbor. Before the other girl had a chance to answer the blonde stuffed a "gooey" chocolate-covered cherry into her mouth and returned to her magazine. The other girl was deeply interested in an article in home-making in a "Ladies Home Journal."

As the bus pulled to a stop in a small town, the thirty-odd girls jumped to their feet. Almost before the driver had time to open the door and get out of their way they pushed toward the door.

Approximately twenty minutes after the bus stopped it was under way again. Now each girl clutched the cup that had once contained her dope—lime, cherry, vanilla, or plain—and attempted to eat the ice that was left.

Now all the favorite songs, new and old, filled the bus and mingled with the cigarette smoke. "Pennies from Heaven," "My Old Kentucky Home," "The Music Goes Round and Round,' "Let me Call You Swetatheart," "I Love You Truly," and many others rang from end to end of the bus. Soon the beautiful old Christmas carols "O Little Town of Bethlehem," "Hark the Herald Angels Sing," and others were sung. By the time they had reached "Silent Night," most of the girls had stopped singing and many had gone to sleep. Now the others stopped their singing and once more the bus was quiet except for the deep purr of the motor and the occasional toot of the horn at some wandering cow lounging in the middle of the road.

A curve in the road disclosed the lights of a distant town. With a little squeal a freshman began to rummage about in her purse. With a sigh of relief she finally pulled out a small bottle of listerine. After rinsing out her mouth, she tossed the remainder of her package of cigarettes out the window together with her matches; mother didn't know she smoked.

At each little town a girl or two climbed off the bus, each claiming her bags and calling sleepy goodbyes and holiday wishes as she left. Now the bus reached the last town. The last dozen or so girls crawled off. Standing in huddled groups they claimed their suitcases, boxes, and bundles. Friends and members of their families claimed them in turn. They were bundled into cars and driven away to home and bed, some of them for the first time in four months.

Back in the station the bus, too, was at rest. The motor was stopped and the horn was silent. Behind them the girls had left many traces of their presence. Scraps of paper cups, cigarette stubbs, tissue paper, bits of candies and nuts, magazines, cluttered the floor and the seats.

Florida High School Gets Improvements During Year

Four Members Added To Teaching Staff In Past Months

A number of improvements have been made in the plant, equipment and instructional staff of the Demonstration school during the past twelve months.

On the exterior of the building the roof of the building has been repaired, the wood and stucco have been painted, and certain other minor repairs have been made. In one basement room an incinerator has been installed for the disposal of refuse.

In the interior the first two floors have been painted with washable paint, the third floor in cold water paint, all in pleasing color combinations. All unused blackboards and bulletin boards have been removed from the rooms. Bookshelves of attractive design and appearance have been constructed. The small rooms on the first floor have been decorated and converted into offices for the instructional staff; there are six of these rooms.

On all of the first floor, except the assembly room, the concrete floor has been covered with asphalt tile. The floor of the assembly room has been covered with oak hardwood. In the assembly room a stage and proscenium arch have been constructed. In the west room on the second floor suitable walls have been constructed which divide the room into an entrance hall, an outer office, and a room for the typing department. An Armstrong linoleum carpet has been laid on the floor of the library.

Items of equipment which have been provided include a new desk, which has been purchased for the office of the superintendent, two new rotary Ditto machines, one of which is the office and the other for the use of college students who work for members of the teaching staff, and sixteen new typewriters which have been installed for use in the commercial department.

The library has been equipped with new furniture. Also several hundred new books have been added to the library, and a number of old books have been rebound. A library of textual and other instructional materials for the use of critic teachers and student teachers has been started. These materials are secured free from the book companies who desire to have their publications on display in the Demonstration school. The text book library already contains a considerable amount of materials and occupies two sections in the school library. These materials are being used extensively by student-teachers.

New Universal desks have been provided to furnish one room completely and to replace desks no longer serviceable in another room. New opaque shades have been installed in the assembly room which convert it into an entirely satisfactory dark room for the projection of still and motion pictures. One hundred and fifty new steel folding chairs have been purchased for use in the auditorium. A velvet curtain and a broadcloth cyclorama have been provided for the stage. A combination radio and phonograph of the very highest quality has been purchased. About two hundred fifty new records have been provided for the public school music department. A new Haddorff Vertichord Grand Piano has been purchased for the assembly room.

A Victor talking-picture machine and a portable screen have been secured for use in visual instruction. New apparatus has been furnished the department of science. A number of new machines and a printing outfit have been provided for the manual arts department. Ten new outfits of football equipment have been purchased. A case of maps has been provided for use by the foreign languages department. Seven new high speed ventilator fans have been purchased for use on the third floor and two of them have been installed in the manual arts department. A play room has been opened on the third floor in which two ping pong tables and other play equipment have been installed.

Four new members have been added to the instructional staff. They are: a teacher of commercial subjects and secretary to the superintendent, a teacher of art and spoken English, a teacher of physical education for boys, and additional fellowship student teacher in home economics.

Enrichments of the curriculum which have been affected include the following: one hour a week of home economics for girls and manual arts for boys have been provided for pupils in the fourth fifth and sixth grades; one hour of swimming in the college pool each week has been provided for each pupil in the school; two hours of instruction a week in spoken English are now given to pupils in the seventh and eighth grades; two periods of instruction in music each week are now available to all pupils in both junior and senior high schools. Other additions to the curriculum are courses in typing and general business.

The Demonstration school has access to and uses regularly the college gymnasium, including the swimming pool, and the Augusta Conradi theater is available for use when needed.

Robertson Named Bulletin Editor

Louise Robertson, graduate of the class of '35, has been made editor-in-chief of the Chattahoochee Bulletin, a semi-monthly paper published at the Florida State hospital at Chattahoochee.

Louise worked on the Flambeau for three years while at Florida State College and was associate editor in her senior year.

The Chattahoochee Bulletin is a four-page paper sponsored by the Florida State hospital welfare association, edited by the employees of the hospital and circulated among the patients and employees of the institution.

Edith Ayers, a former student at Florida State is also a member of the staff.

Carling Hotel Invites Contestants in Search To Discover New Name

The management of the Carling hotel of Jacksonville, has announced a contest to discover a new name for the hotel. The contest, which is open to anyone except employees of the hotel and their families, begins today, and all letters must be postmarked not later than midnight, Saturday, January 9.

Twenty-eight cash and travel prizes will be awarded the following week to winners, first prize being a tour through the Eastern United States for to persons with all expenses paid. Second prize is $50 . cash, and the third $25 in cash. There are also twenty-five prizes of $1 each.

The rules state that contestants are to write a letter suggesting a name for the hotel and giving reasons why it should be used. Each contestant may submit as many names as he wishes, but each entry must be in the form of a separate letter. All letters are to be addressed to Mayor John T. Alsop, chairman of the judges' committee, at the Jacksonville city hall.

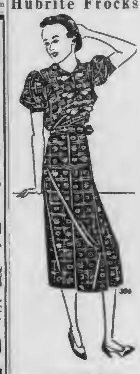
All persons planning to enter the contest are invited to write to Charlie Griner, manager of the Carling for information about the hotel. Complete rules for the contest are on file in the Flambean office.

Dine At
THE DUTCH KITCHEN
102 S. Adams Telephone 540

THE SWEET SHOP
703 West Jefferson Opposite Gilchrist
Phone 1001 We Deliver
—WEEK-END SPECIALS—
—FRIDAY—
Bar-B-Q with Potato Chips 15c
—SATURDAY—
Small Cheese Sandwich 5c
—SUNDAY—
Home-made Apple Pie a la Mode 10c

THE LITTLE STORE
701 West Jefferson Opposite Gilchrist
Phone 1001 We Deliver
We Announce a NEW Toiletries Department!
A Powder Puff FREE with each 25c Purchase,
As Long as the Supply Lasts!
Kotex......21c
Kleenex....15c
FOR YOUR CONVENIENCE, STAMPS AND POSTAL CARDS

CLOSE-OUT
of all
FALL SHOES
Late fall models in all the new shades.
$1.00
PER FOOT
THE FRENCH SHOP



SPARKS STATE PHONE 180.
FRIDAY AND SATURDAY
January 8-9

SUNDAY AND MONDAY
January 10-11

TUESDAY, JANUARY 12

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 13

THURSDAY, JANUARY 14

GELBERG'S
Presents
Hubrite Frocks

This Hubrite Informal Frock is styled with exclusive dressmaking details including — ☆ CLOSED PLACKETS
☆ EXTRA SEAMS TO PERMIT ADJUSTMENT IF NECESSARY
$1.95 to $5.95
GELBERG'S
"Complete Store for Ladies"
COLLEGE AVENUE

Colin English Talks To Club

Kappa Delta Pi Members Hold Pledge Meeting And Social Hour

Colin English, state superintendent of public instruction, addressed members of Kappa Delta Pi, honorary educational society, last night in Broward lounge. The meeting opened at 7:30 o'clock with a pledge service, and a coffee and a coffee will follow.

Student members of Kappa Delta Pi who attended are Hazel Sangster, Martha Frank Wildman, Virginia Early, Ruth Howard, Sarah Myrvin Everett, Dorothy Crews, Dorothy Purse, and Marjorie Tilton.

Others invited to the affair are President Edward Conradi, Miss Louise Conradi, Dean Nathaniel Moss Salley, Dr. and Mrs. R. L. Lyman, Pat Priest, Miss Elizabeth Hutt, Mrs. Dora Skipper, Miss Florence Tyrrell, Mr. and Mrs. Ovala Harrison, Dr. and Mrs. P. P. Pinner, Mr. and Mrs. Harry May, Dr. and Mrs. Mark Mc-Graff, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Ellis, Miss Marie Chapman, Dr. Dorothy Dasher, Dr. Ruth Connor, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Smith, Miss Wynelle Peden, Miss Margaret McCurdie, Dr. and Mrs. J. J. Rueniger, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Richards, Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Sheely, Miss Elise Gunderson, Miss Hallie Cartmel, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Moon, Miss Margaret Pfluge, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Lalli, Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Stone, Miss Cora Fay Miss Marian Pryor, and Mrs. Mamie L. Mackery.

FSCW Graduate to Teach In Florida High School

Miss Myrtis Tureman, a graduate of Florida State College for Women in the class of 1925, has been placed in charge of the department of English in the Florida high school as critic teacher and instructor in education.

While in college Miss Tureman majored in English and took courses in education and psychology. For the past eleven years she has been employed as teacher of English in Andrew Jackson high school in Jacksonville, and has been a member of the faculty of Jacksonville Junior college for several years.

McKay Elected NSFA Official At Convention

Continued from page one

tration was the principal speaker. Afterward the commissions on college newspapers, business and religion had public meetings.

Mary Jeanne served as chairman of the commission on forums, which along with other commissions, met on Wednesday. Wednesday afternoon the commission reports were reviewed in a plenary session. Heading Thursday's roster of speakers were Dr. Homer P. Rainey, who is director of the American Youth Commission, and Mr. Walter Van Kirk, director of the National Peace Conference. Dr. Van Kirk told the delegates that if another war came, the United States must keep out to save whatever culture is left.

At the final plenary session Thursday afternoon Mary Jeanne was no minated vice-president of N.S.F.A. and received the office by ballot vote. Delegates chose Albuquerque, New Mexico, as the convention city for the next N.S.F.A. Congress.

Realizing the unusual entertainment opportunities in New York or New Year's eve, the Congress committee left th evening free to delegates. Polly Jaunce and Mary Jeanne, therefore, found out how world-famous Times Square puts on its annual New Year's celebration.

Next Tuesday morning in convocation each of the local delegates will give her impressions of the convention. Meanwhile Janice has some new slants on Y.W.C.A. as an organization; Polly has some new topics for the N.S.F.A. forum; Mary Jeanne has new ideas to incorporate into C.G.A.

Students Must Give Schedule by Jan. 23

Continued from page one

ers concerned before the end of the first subsequent quarter (not including the summer school) during which the student concerned is in residence. Otherwise the mark "incomplete" shall be changed to "F".

Second, the mark "E" should be given only when the instructor feels that due to some special circumstance a re-examination should be permitted. This re-examination must be taken and grade recorded in the registrar's office before the end of the first subsequent quarter during which the student concerned is in residence, otherwise the mark "E" shall be changed to "F".

Personals

Alpha Chi Omegas attending the inaugural ball were: Pat Foster, Charlotte Veith, Lillian Schulte, and Marie Spurlock.

Mrs. Harry Peyton, Mrs. Ed Clarke, Ann Hartridge, Elise Richards, Katherine O'Brien, all of Jacksonville, and Rosalie Baya of Tampa, were visitors at the Chi Omega house for the inauguration.

Katherine Barry of Jacksonville visited at the Tri Delta house during inauguration.

Judy Whidden of Jacksonville, and Charmaine Lufburrow of Tampa were visitors at the Alpha Delta Pi house during inauguration.

Theta Upsilon Girls Entertain Rushees

Rushees of the Theta Upsilon sorority were entertained last night with an after dinner coffee given by members and pledges at which time coffee and mints were served.

Members and rushees of the sorority will go to Camp Flastacowo tomorrow afternoon to enjoy canoeing and sailing after which supper will be served.

Day Students Elect Officer

Gage Selected by Group As Parliamentarian For This Year

Jane Gage was elected parliamentarian at the meeting of the day students' organization Thursday morning and it was decided that a brief, informal study of parliamentary rule should be included in the program of each meeting. It was also decided that with the beginning of the second semester an informal study of the college handbook shall be included in the program of the meetings.

An announcement that day students can still enter the intramural athletics for tennis, ping-pong archery, badminton, swimming and shuffle board was made. All girls who want to enter any of these activities were told to sign up on the day students' bulletin board.

Mary Emily Parker was appointed chairman of a committee to have charge of the orientation of the day student freshmen next year. The freshmen will be informally orientated in the light of the needs of a day student at her place on the campus.

Margaret Maxwell and Ann Moon were appointed to have charge of plans for the day students going to camp on the week-end of Feb 6. All girls who want to go were asked to sign up on the day students' bulletin board.

Intramural Games Will Be Postponed

Marion Weeks, chairman of intramural games, has announced that there will be no more contests until after semester examinations.

Among the first title scheduled for spring are those in ping pong, archery and swimming.

Journalism Honorary To Pledge Four Girls

Alpha Chi Alpha, journalism honorary, will pledge four new members at a service this week-end. The students selected have given outstanding service to campus publications during the last two academic years and have shown a definite interest in journalistic and literary activities.

New members of the honorary are: Daisy Parker, editor of the Distaff; Pearle Shepard, managing editor of the Flambeau; Evelyn Fisher, news editor; and Sarah Sealey, literary editor of the Flambeau, and Junior editor of the Distaff.

FSC Students Renew Habits At New Year

Varied Resolutions Prove Ineffective Though Made Sincerely

Although the old habit of making New Year's resolutions seems to take little effect at Florida State, there are a few who have made certain declarations that they swear to follow during the year.

Seniors as a group have resolved to graduate by hook or crook peaceful means, or otherwise and each is determined to uphold that big-sister standard, the ideal of all freshmen.

The juniors resolved to be seniors next year by whatever means necessary.

The sophomores are promised to do better next semester if they can only be spared through the exams.

And the freshmen? Each member of that class has her own ideas to uphold. One young lady resolved to sleep all day on Sunday, so she would be able to keep her friends sufficiently entertained during the week days.

One ambitious little soul looked over her horned-rimmed glasses and said, "I'm going to darn my socks the minute one hole appears. They aren't going to pile up anymore."

Several of the girls earnestly promised to study more, while one young lady resolved not to study too hard, and still maintain a passing grade.

Many girls resolved to diet religiously, and one specified that she would eat no butter.

To visit the post-office not more than three times a day was resolved by several freshmen. One declared that she would not write a second letter before she received an answer to the first.

Two sisters said that they were going to save money. Each was chewing gum and there were two candy bars in sight.

White to Lecture Here On Secrets of Musical Sounds Friday Night

Dr. William Beard White, director of acoustic research of the American Steel and Wire company will lecture here in the Augusta Conradi theater tonight at 7:45 o'clock on "Some Secrets of Musical Sounds."

The lecture accompanied by demonstrations will be based on researches of musical sound undertaken by Dr. White and his associates at the acoustic laboratory of the American Steel and Wire company in Chicago. Much original work has been done in the laboratory in the way of investigating the behavior of musical instruments and in applying physical and engineering methods to their improvement.

Dr. White, who was born in Great Britain, was educated at St. Paul's School. He is a college, London, and Cambridge.

"Sex and Personality" Seminar is Conducted By Finner, Burlingame

The first of two seminars on the subject of "Sex and Personality" was held Wednesday night in the home of Dr. P. F. Pinner, head of the psychology department. A group of about twenty-five students and faculty members were given the Terman-Miles attitude-interest tests by Dr. Mildred Burlingame, psychology professor, who was in charge. Afterwards Dr. Burlingame explained the significance of the tests, how they were composed, how well they could be correlated, and their reliability.

These tests, designed, to rate the masculinity or feminity of individuals on the basis of their attitudes and interests, will be graded, and the information obtained from them will furnish the material for the next discussion.

American Work Exhibited Now

Trends in Contemporary Painting Displayed In Reproduction

The second in the series of four Living American Art exhibits is to be held here this year is now being shown in 305 Administration building. This exhibition will continue until January 11, and will be followed immediately by another which will include reproductions illustrating the different modes in modern painting. The latter will remain open until January 22.

The first exhibition being shown this week includes twelve reproductions of pictures by living American artists.

The pieces being shown are as follows: Autumn Leaves by by Georgia O'Keefe; Fire Eater by Franklin Watkins; Outdoor Circus by Lucile Blanch; West Point New York by Louis M. Eilshemius; Hawthorne, New York by George A. Picken; American Interior by Charles Sheeler; Still Life by Niles Spencer; My Wife by Alexander Brook; The Kid by Isabel Bishop; Deer Isle Islets, Maine by John Martin; Valhalla Bridge by Thomas Donnelly; The Village Church by Emil Ganso.

A new place on the Chesterfield Map

The new Wake Island Hotel —over-night stop on the new Pan American Airways route to China.

Carrying more pleasure to more people . . . giving smokers what they want . . . Chesterfields are off on a new cruise.

From Wake Island 5000 miles out in the Pacific Ocean, Pan American Airways flashed this radio:

"RUSH TEN THOUSAND CHESTERFIELDS TODAY'S CHINA CLIPPER."

At three o'clock that afternoon the Chesterfields were on their way. Four days later came the message:

"CHESTERFIELDS JUST ARRIVED. FAST WORK. PANAIR WAKE."

When smokers find out the good things Chesterfields give them . . . nothing else will do

Copyright 1937, Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co.

Read Emorywheel's War Dissertation
In University Editorials

The Florida Flambeau

See Editorial Page for News About University of Florida

Published by the Students of Florida State College for Women

VOLUME XXIV. Tallahassee, Florida, January 15, 1937 NUMBER THIRTEEN

Dr. White Will Speak Tonight On Tone Sound

Lecture to Begin Talk With Expository Introduction

DISCUSSION WILL BE ILLUSTRATED

Explanation of Central Secrets of Sound To Be Given

Dr William Baird White, director of acoustic research, of the American Steel and Wire company, Chicago, will give an illustrated lecture on "Some Secrets of Musical Sound" tonight in the Auguste Conradi theater at 7:45 o'clock.

Mystery of Sound

The lecture will be opened by a short exposition including simple experiments in understanding the nature of sound, how it is originated and propagated, and its physical constitution. This will lead to an explanation of the central secret of musical sound, namely the property of "color" and "quality," whereby the voice of one instrument is distinguished from that of another, and one "spoken" or "sung" sound from the person distinguished from the same sound uttered by another person. The talk will be illustrated by experiments utilizing the wonderful particularity, as well as other means.

Sound Images

The room will be darkened and the projection oscilloscope will be set. By means of this instrument, musical, or other sounds given out in any manner, are picked up microphonically into electric energy, and cause to vibrate a tiny mirror in a magnetic field. A beam of light is cast on the fluttering mirror, which causes it to accord with the rhythm and speeds of the sound waves, and the resulting bit of light, reflected against a revolving wheel of mirrors, is thrown upon a screen as a line of moving light. The line breaks up each instant into new forms of remarkable symmetry and beauty, as the sounds succeed one another, forms in the contrary, show their dissimilarities and incoherence, nature is the broken and ugly forms which they display upon the screen.

At the end of the demonstration the lights will be turned on and the facts which have been brought forward will be briefly summed

Continued on page four

Work Is Begun For Minstrels

Performance Scheduled By Marjorie Jones For February

Rehearsals are now being held for Junior Minstrels, the first big event on the college calendar for the second semester. The performance is scheduled for the middle of February.

Marjorie Jones is general chairman for the affair, and the committees she has formed to assist her are as follows: script, Lillian Bufford, Kay Harris, Willie La Sar, Evelyn Fisher; business manager, Mary Kathryn Stoel; publicity, Hilda Sheraden, chairman, Irma Engel; assistant directors, Sallie Bland Stoel, Rachel Stoy.

Music, Mickey Conn, chairman, Kathleen Gruppe; modern dances, Betty Gouland, tap dances, Jo Bisner stage manager, Rose Price, chairman, Jean Treadwell; properties, Kay Harris, Ophia Hines, chairman, costumes, Frances Thill, chairman, Margaret Walcott, Ruth Agnes McClain, Caroline McCall, Eleanor Ruff; make-up, Sallie Burt Nunn, Beverley Brown, Mary Bentley Shaw, Ann Lee, Hortense Guin; programs, Evelyn Blaker, chairman, Dot McCullough.

Astronomy Group Meets

At the regular Wednesday night meeting of the Astronomy club a telescope observation of the great Nebula of Orion was held. Previously the telescope team observed Venus, visible now on the southwest horizon, with the naked eye, field glasses, and a small telescope. The team intends to observe again Saturday night.

Virgil Fox Expresses Liking For Girls' Schools and Jazz

Young Organist Prefers Swimming to Other Kinds of Sport

By ANNE LADD

Virgil Fox, twenty-four year old organist, likes girls' schools, Florida climate, interviews, and jazz. His even consented to having his picture taken, although he said he "looked like heck," and wants the prints so he can put the best one in the "Musical America."

Mr. Fox was very enthusiastic about Florida's climate, air, landscape and flowers. He liked very much the train ride from Jack sonville to Tallahassee.

While practicing in the auditorium, Mr. Fox frequently took a bite from a half-eaten apple and waved a faded narcissus under his nose.

Swimming is his favorite sport. He thinks Florida State's pool is superb and had to restrain himself from diving in. He likes modern accent and would learn it if he could stay here for two months.

Mr. Fox always tries to avoid autograph seekers and did nobly when he was mobbed after the concert in the auditorium Tuesday night. He was delighted to find such a good organ at this place and said it behaved beautifully for him.

When asked if he liked jazz, Mr. Fox answered hesitatingly that he did and that one could certainly tear it to pieces on an organ; but promises were made that he would use this untilly he had gone because of the possibility of ruining his reputation.

Mr. Fox likes school audiences much better than those of any other. Young people are so enthusiastic, and I can always feel that," he said. "Once I played in a colored girls' school and found the girls were so enthusiastic I thought they'd bring the house down."

"All interviewers ask me the same questions," he said, "and usually the first question asked is whether or not I am married. I guess you can't be a real success if you're that I'm not."

Mr. Fox plays concerts nearly all day, every day of the week. That is his entire occupation. He sometimes wishes he had less practicing to do, but memorizing takes much time and work, and he is not beginning to compose. He does not do much radio work, but would like to see studios are equipped with concert organs.

From Tallahassee Mr Fox went to St. Petersburg, and after filling his engagements there he returned to Atlanta.

"I leave for a five weeks' tour to California. He will give concerts in Texas and many other mid-western states, in Portland, Ore., and Seattle, Wash. He is looking forward to his engagement in a high school in Hollywood.

Mr. Fox was born in Princeton, Ill., where he lived until four years ago when he moved to Baltimore, Md. He is organist in the Brown Memorial Presbyterian church in that city.

Mr. Fox began his outstanding career when at the age of fourteen he played the accompaniment for brilliant concerts. He began studying music when he was three years old and a year later was playing the organ in church serv-

Continued on page four

Night Ambulance Physician, Former Graduate Visits F.S.C.

Walters Tells Anecdotes of Incidents Quite Ordinary In Her Life as Student While Recalling Old Memories

By MARTHA LUMPKIN

"I'll always think of Florida State college as being the grandest place on earth," said Dr. Viola Jane Walters, graduate of Florida State college for Women in '31, who, serving her internership at Medical College of Virginia, is the first woman ever to be night ambulance physician.

"Florida college did something for me that nothing else did," she continued, "and I'm sure all subsequent blue eyes thoughtful for a moment. It is simply wonderful to be back."

We had found her in the center of a hilarious group of girls entertained by her anecdotes of incidents, exciting to us, but common place events in the life of an ambulance physician.

Dr. Walters, having graduated from Florida State college, attended Medical College of Virginia for four years, where she graduated with an M.D. degree, sixth in her class of seventy-six. She is now at Memorial hospital in Richmond, serving her first year's rotating internship, in which she acts as night ambulance physician, one of the city ambulances for emergency calls.

"I get a tremendous kick out of riding the ambulance," she said in laughing.

For the year 1937-38 she will serve a straight surgical internship, which will be the first held by Memorial hospital to a woman.

Part of her time has been spent in the delivery room, and Virginia is helping a country doctor.

Dr. Walters has wanted to be a physician since childhood. She was a sophomore in Bradenton high school, when she took her first course in zoology. She wishes to go into the field of surgery, although she is also interested in psychiatry. "But I must do something with my hands, and prefer surgery," she concluded, and glancing down at her strong, competent hands, smiled. I thought

Continued on page two

Andrews Gives Final Lecture On Vocations

Feminine Sex Successful In Laboratory Says Personnel Head

That women are generally successful in the laboratory was revealed in a talk by Dr. Elisabeth O. Andrews who yesterday brought to a close a series of lectures on vocations open to women. Dr. Andrews began this series, an innovation this year, early in the fall and during that time has offered information concerning vocational fields such as journalism, the stage, law, personnel, medicine, business and retail work.

Dr Andrews had as her subject "The Laboratory Technician," whom she believes owes his vocation to Louis Pasteur. It was he, she said, by discovery of the germ as the source of disease and the possibility of studying it in the human body, opened the way for laboratory research. Joseph Lister's theory of asepsis was partly responsible for the beginning of the laboratory. The first applied Pasteur's germ theory to surgery.

Since ninety-five per cent of his work is of a routine nature, the laboratory technician's task is the same danger of infection unless care is exercised, makes tests of blood, urine, other secretions and excretions of the patient. The results of the discovery of these tests often decides the diagnosis of the case.

The laboratories use, in this work are much like college laboratories, the difference which are the hospital laboratory, available only to patients of the hospital, and the private commercial laboratory, whose clients are usually physicians and surgeons who send the laboratories of practical physicians; Dr. Andrews explained. Research, which analyze drinking water, combat epidemics, and analyze anything of a nature that is likely to be harmful to the health of the people. The federal laboratories, which study little-known diseases; and medical college laboratories in which research and practical work is done by students and graduates.

The laboratory is supervised by a technician or engineer who in addition to being a college graduate must have had three years of graduate work in pathology, bacteriology, and chemistry. Some institutions require no diagnosis unless made and signed by a staff physician.

Among the technicians in a laboratory are found a head technician, who must be trained and experienced; the college graduate, who does the staining of the slides and who gives a diagnosis of the case; the X-ray technician who makes and develops the exposures made with the complicated machine; and the student, who is the student technician who is to be trained. In the doctor's laboratory there is an assistant who varies from an office girl to a col-

Continued on page four

Personnel Office Calls for Photos

Photographs of seniors and two-year transfer students are due in the personnel office this week, it was announced by Elisabeth Andrews, director. Those who have not had application pictures made should do so at once and file them with the placement bureau some time during the month of January. Those who want assistance in securing work in any field must file six pictures. A four-year graduates who do not need assistance at present are required to file only one picture.

Linen Display Exhibited For Student Group

Harold Van Buren Shows Materials Produced In American Firm

Dr. Harold Van Buren of the American Linen Institute gave a lecture and presented an interesting display of linens to the home economics assembly Monday afternoon in the Science building.

Upon returning eight years ago from the American embassy in Madrid Dr. Van Buren found that he discovered there were no American linens available. He conceived the idea of research and experiments of the patient. The result of the discovery of these tests often decides the diagnosis of the case.

The laboratories use, in this work are much like college laboratories, the difference which are the hospital laboratory, available only to patients of the hospital, and the private commercial laboratory, whose clients are usually physicians and surgeons who send the laboratories of practical physicians; Dr. Andrews explained. Research, which analyze drinking water, combat epidemics, and analyze anything of a nature that is likely to be harmful to the health of the people. The federal laboratories, which study little-known diseases; and medical college laboratories in which research and practical work is done by students and graduates.

The laboratory is supervised by a technician or engineer who in addition to being a college graduate must have had three years of graduate work in pathology, bacteriology, and chemistry. Some institutions require no diagnosis unless made and signed by a staff physician.

Among the technicians in a laboratory are found a head technician, who must be trained and experienced; the college graduate, who does the staining of the slides and who gives a diagnosis of the case; the X-ray technician who makes and develops the exposures made with the complicated machine; and the student, who is the student technician who is to be trained. In the doctor's laboratory there is an assistant who varies from an office girl to a col-

Continued on page four

Changes Made In Curriculum Taking Effect

Many Formerly Required Courses Are Dropped For New Students

HUMANITIES FORM HEART OF SYSTEM

Achievement Tests Allow Exemption and More Elected Classes

With enrollment beginning for second semester courses, a number of students may become aware for the first time of the curricula revisions put into effect this fall.

The revisions are in the form of a two-year general college with the aim to integrate into a student's living required courses which might have severed isolated under the old set-up.

Four Survey Courses Required

Whereas under the old curriculum all students were required to take English 210, History of Western Civilization, and parchology all these distributed in the new list of required courses adopted by the faculty last year. The change, however, applies only to those entering this year.

The heart of the new curriculum is four integrated courses: humanities, biological science, social studies, and physical sciences. In order to complete them by the end of her sophomore year, the student takes one survey course each semester. These courses carry five hours credit and comprise one-third of the class hours required as a minimum.

Humanities Express Man

The humanities course taught by the departments of English, art, and philosophy is "an introduction to course courses as manifestation of the mind of man in his endeavor to give outward expression to his thoughts and feelings.

The biological sciences include a study of botany, zoology, physiology and bacteriology designed to give students a knowledge of the fundamental structures and process of living organisms.

The social studies are under the departments of history, economics geography, and government and

Continued on page four

Agent Accepts Wing Addition

Other Work Not Included In Contract is Done Under Mendenhall

On Jan. 8 the new wing of the administration building was accepted by federal agents representing the federal government and by Mr. Walter Mendenhall, representive of the state department of education.

Some work, which was not included in the contract, is being done under Mendenhall, the direction of Mr. H. M. Mendenhall, brother of Walter. This work, which includes painting, painting in the electric fixtures, painting the ceiling, and cleaning away the building, is being done by college workmen.

The new wing will provide a place for the unloading of college freight and mail. This is on the north side of the new special driveway which will allow the freight to be kept clear of parked trucks.

Scholarship Award Made Available by Honorary For Next Semester Use

Pi chapter of Omicron Nu, national home economics honorary society, has available for second semester use a loan scholarship of $100. Any junior major in the School of Home Economics who has had satisfactory average is eligible for the award, which will be made by the scholarship committee on the basis of need and worthiness.

The amount, made up primarily of alumnae contributions, is repayable within one year of graduation, interest of 6 per cent being charged on any amount unpaid at the end of that period.

Application blanks are obtainable from Louise D. Johnson, of 230 Broward. They should be obtained by noon on Tuesday, Jan. 19, and returned not later than 5:30 o'clock the following Friday.

'Cellist Will Play

Gregor Piatigorsky, 'cellist, who will present a program Tuesday evening in the college auditorium at 8:15 o'clock as the third of the Artist Series. Piatigorsky, a Russian by birth, has studied under the outstanding European musical artists.

Senate Agrees On Proceedure Against Unfit

Student Body Officials Open to Impeachment For Inefficiency

A revised report on legislation which makes inefficient student body officials subject to impeachment was accepted by the student senate Wednesday afternoon.

The main changes in the report concerned the size of the court which handles such cases and the elimination of a trial by the whole student body. The court was increased to include the senate, except appointed members, the judiciary, and both branches of the lower court. The student body was to function only in petitioning for impeachment.

Further minor changes were made. Initiation of proceedings is to be by petition of twenty-five students to the senate; or of 100 if the senate is opposed to such action. A clerk to take charge of evidence should be appointed. Any material for public report is to come from the dean of students.

An amendment providing more elasticity in deciding the penalty was passed. This allowed other punishments than removal from office, to be made.

Other business at the meeting included a report from Mary Kathryn Gibson, chairman of the social committee, who asked that her committee be increased from

Continued on page four

Soda Fountain Boys Comment Upon Co-eds in Off-Moments

College Girls Are Never Heard to Discuss New Psychological Theories; Want Mental Relaxation in Tea-Rooms

If you want to find the most realistic commenters on college life in their moments back to the soda fountain boys who work in the three tearooms near the campus.

They never hear girls discuss European affairs, or the psychological theories they've just learned or have been exposed to. College girls scarcely utter a sentence word when they come to get a coke or a sundae. They're usually laughing and joking and "making eyes."

Some of this "mental relaxation" takes on peculiar forms. Says one boy with a sly smile.

For instance, some girls delight in stuffing a paper napkin into a glass of water, sprinkling salt, sugar and pepper over it, and surveying it with great pride. If this is supposed to be their idea of a fancy drink, none of them has ever been seen to taste it.

Adding to the general merriment of the soda fountain are the practical jokers who, for instance, mix salt in with the sugar to surprise the next comer or pour vinegar into their neighbor's glass when they turn to look at the man who just walked in. Another good "joke" is to put pepper in the ice cream. A menu for several thoughtful minutes and say, "I believe I'll have a lime dope."

One cannot blame the boys for doubting the intelligence of college girls when some of them so frequently ask for "two-cent stamps" and "Does the mail go out tonight?" when for three years they have been buying stamps or seeing others buying them and the mail has gone out regularly every night.

Sometimes girls ask, "Why don't you have such and such a special" and they let their imaginations loose and describe some fancy dish made of everything from bananas and guis to chocolate syrup and cherries served with cheese wafers.

So the tearoom takes the sug-

Continued on page four

Works In Art Are Displayed By Department

Different Painting Modes Feature Exhibition Being Shown Now

An exhibition of the different modes of painting will be shown by the art department in the Administration building until next Friday.

The various modes of painting represented in this exhibition are impressionism, Cezanne's mode of painting, cubism, expressionism, factualism, surrealism and traditionalism. Included in the examples of impressionism are several paintings by Claude Monet, The Siesta by Pissarro, a painting by Renoir, two paintings by Degas and Maternite, a pastel by Mary Cassett. There are three paintings by Cezanne, one of which is a still life painting the second a landscape, and the other a picture entitled Youth with the Red Vest.

The mode known as cubism is represented by paintings done by Picasso, Braque, and Van Doesburg. The school of expressionism is well represented by eight paintings. Under the section devoted to factualism are several paintings including American Interior by Niles Spencer, Landscape near Chicago by Aaron Bohrod and Still Life by Niles Spencer.

Among the examples of the modern type called surrealism are several covers from the Voice magazine and the Transition Au-

Continued on page four

Artist Series Gives Concert In Auditorium

Russian Cellist Appears Wednesday Evening For Program

SKINNER COMES NEXT SATURDAY

Announcement to Be Made Concerning Tickets In Convocation

Gregor Piatigorsky, Russian 'cellist, will be presented in concert under the auspices of the artist series committee Wednesday evening at 7:45 in the college auditorium. He will be accompanied at the piano by Vladimir Pavlovsky.

The fourth artist series, a presentation by Cornelia Otis Skinner of her original Modern Monologues, will be given at 7:45 the following Saturday evening in the college auditorium.

Reserved Seats

Announcement will be made in convocation Tuesday as to when the time students will be given reserved seat tickets for these two programs.

Piatigorsky was born in Russia in 1903. By the time he was six years old he could handle an instrument almost bigger than himself. His early training was from his father, who played as well advised on the violin but little versed on the 'cello. His first public appearances were in Moscow in Russia. Soon his fame reached abroad and he was engaged as first cellist by the Imperial Opera at Moscow when he was 19 years old. He was a member of the string quartet of the Moscow Conservatory and has appeared often as soloist. His teacher during this period was the late Alfred Von Glehn, who in turn had been a pupil of the famous Davidoff.

'Cellist Studies

In 1921 Piatigorsky went to Berlin, where Wilhelm Furtwangler, eminent German pianist, invited him to play the 'cello part in a chamber music work by Beethoven-Berg. This proved a turning point in his life because the first part was played by the second flutist of the Berlin Philharmonic Orchestra, a man who easily recognized genius. After Wilhelm Furtwangler's conductorship of the Philharmonic heard Piatigorsky he

Continued on page two

D. A. R. Elects First Officers

Plans for Organization Told by Lydia Craig, Chapter Regent

A short business meeting of prospective members of the D.A.R. Daughters of the American Revolution was held tonight at night at 7:45 o'clock in Ruse hall.

Lydia Craig, regent, urged students to fill their membership blanks in time for the national board meeting in February. Unless twenty-five do so, she said, Tallahassee will not be able to have a chapter this year. Lydia also spoke briefly on the work of the Florida division, the national school for poor children, its student loan fund, and the international research.

The regent then appointed the following officers for this year: Ella Virginia Brooks, vice-regent; Dorothy Osler, secretary; Martha Mathewy, treasurer; Elizabeth Hall, chaplain; Verena Brockbridge, historian; Janice Wheatley, chaplain, Madeline Duncan, chairman of program; Clara Simmons, chairman of by-laws; and Anne Ladd, chairman of membership committee.

As assistants to Anne on this last committee, the following were appointed: Willamette Cone, Barbara Moore, Arline Lockhart, and Martha Jean Jones.

League to Hear Ferguson

At the regular fellowship meeting of the Presbyterian student league Sunday night Mrs. Esther Ferguson, assistant director of residence halls, will speak on "In School in Turkey." The worship service Sunday morning will be conducted by Katherine Todd. There will be a council meeting tonight at 7:45 o'clock at Elizabeth Prench's house, 637 West College avenue.

Nilson Chosen To Head Group Giving Award

Distinguished Alumnae To Receive Honors At Alma Mater

Mrs. Edgar Cecil Nilson, of Orlando, has been appointed chairman of the committee in charge of the awards of honor to be presented at the commencement exercises to May to alumnae of this college who have attained distinguished achievement in their respective fields.

Presented for the first time last May by the Alumnae Association, these awards represent one of the highest honors given to graduates of the college. They are bronze medallions showing a sketch of the Administration building on one side and the three torches, the insignia of the college, on the other.

Nominations (or this honor may be made by alumnae or by members of the college executive council. Complete histories or records of post-graduate attainments of all nominees must accompany nominations which must be sent in by March 15, to Mrs. Nilson, 207 North Main street, Orlando.

Serving with Mrs. Nilson on the committee are Mrs. Howard Calhoun, Bunts; Mrs. J. W. Rosemond, Lakeland; Maude B. McCall, Clearwater; Mrs. Laurie Rutland, Williston; Miss Natalie Lamb, Daytona Beach and Mrs. Douglas McVicar, Miami.

Soda Fountain Boys Comment upon Co-eds In Off-Moments

Continued from page one

gestion and sometimes a new special." But where are the girls who ordered it? They don't come that day. They come the day before and ask, "Why don't you have a special on a banana split, nute and chocolate syrup and cherries and so on?"

It is quite easy for the fountain boys to tell when it is exam week or just before holidays. During exams, the girls come in loaded down with books and order strong coffee. They express, more loudly than usual, various and strong opinions about teachers, methods of exams, and school in general, and they want to go home or quit school and work.

Just before the holidays, they are so excited that they all talk at once, and none of them know what they want. "More like a insane asylum than a college," says one boy.

Besides the usual year-round customs there are some unusual short-lived antics. One of these became a "fad" right after the showing of the picture of "Love on the Run" at the local theatre. You remember Clarence Darrow in that picture? He frequently ate lunch at the Spick and Span, the Sweet Shop, and the Three Torches all on several days. And his efforts were not in vain. Mr. Bismark was not neglected. Before closer girls depped deper, he chewed on a slice of bread [illegible] he nartzing that turned no one.

Then there were the fly-catchers who made on-lookers question the poise and dignity of the college girl. To them it is a peculiar slight to witness mature, or full grown, girls frantically running around in search of imaginary of flies. They raised questioning eyebrows, but the fountain boys just smiled and said, "College girls."

In spite of the fact that girls go to the sorosrons to "relax mentally" as well as indulge in sweets—the soda fountain boys say that they are pressed to wait on. They are an honest, jolly and patient clientele. One boy who has had occasion to serve everyone from senators to fishermen, says college girls are the most courteous to serve that he has ever known.

"Oh yes," added one boy, "They act very different when they come in with a date."

Changes Made In Curriculum Taking Effect

Continued from page one

sociology, planned to explain the emergence and development of our modern society.

The physical sciences are presented by the chemistry and physics departments and are intended to provide the student with a sound conception of the physical universe in its entirety and her own relation to it.

Courses Electives Given

With the exception of the School of Music all divisions of the college are affected by the change. The adjustment has been made in order to give the student a broad general training during the first two years at college. This is a part of the modern trend in education. Its purpose is to provide a broad background for later work and to supply a general knowledge of the basic facts underlying present day society through the study of a series of integrated courses covering major fields of thought.

All students desire to add to his curriculum another course a course in family life next year. "This will be a requirement for graduation.

Now upon college entrance, by taking achievement tests the student who can show a thorough knowledge of the subject matter of required courses may be exempt and use the time thus gained for electives in the field or her own interests.

Vance Must Learn More of Wild Life

Mr. Karl Vance, professor of English and Journalism, thinks maybe he'd better learn a little bit about wild life and nature.

It seems that during one of his many hunting trips, he encountered an unusually large rattlesnake. Deciding to show the snake to his children, he killed it and stuffed it into the trunk on the back of his car.

During the ride home a member of the party laughingly remarked, "Wouldn't it be funny if the snake were to life again?" and sure enough, when they did we lifted, the rattlesnake was sa alive as ever.

Mr. Vance, having no further use for a real live rattlesnake gave it to Dr. Ballamy, who in turn handed it over to Jack Mooney, of the science department.

However, this wasn't the last of the snake, for during one of Mr. Vance's classes, Miss Ruth Hall found out one of her students to him. Popping from the door, she said, "Mr. Vance, Miss Devaney wants to know how you prefer your rattlesnakes skinned."

Fatalism Has Much Support During Exams

Some Are All for Being Prepared; Others Find Lack Necessary

By VIRGINIA DAVIS

Numbers of Florida State College students are fatalists—at least in connection with examinations and preparation for them is the conclusion of a study today. However, others believe a little preparation the night before the exam is necessary after all.

The first girl approached, an approbation student, was taking care of her cards and two packs of cigarettes."

One girl was walking rapidly down the hall, her face set and head fast. "Life to me at these times is just a hungry-eyed face. I promise myself after every exam never to study again, and I don't—until the next set of examinations. I'm a crammer."

"My philosophy will just be before examinations is 'forget it,'" another said. "I have to the show and let things slide."

"At times," one girl replied, "I will just sit down and study with nothing on my mind but a lot of cram and then go to bed one of those times. I quickly go cram the week before exams and it is the only time I can make myself keep from sitting in a corner and cutting my throat."

"My preparation for examinations is a philosophy I will live by: before examinations is 'forget it,'" another said. "I have to the show and let things slide."

"At times," one girl replied, "I will just sit down and study with nothing on my mind but a lot of cram and then go to bed one of those times. I quickly go cram the week before exams and it is the only time I can make myself keep from sitting in a corner and cutting my throat."

"My preparation for examinations is a philosophy I will live by: before examinations is 'forget it,' and then study."

"It's right after the showing of the picture of "Love on the Run' at the local theatre. You remember Blanmar the inimitable dog? He frolicked there this week at the Spick and Span, the Sweet Shop, and the Three Torches all on several days. And his efforts were not in vain. Mr. Bismark was not neglected. Before closer girls depped deper, he chewed on a slice of bread [illegible] he nartzing that turned no one.

Then there were the fly-catchers who made on-lookers question the poise and dignity of the college girl. To them it is a peculiar slight to witness mature, or full grown, girls frantically running around in search of imaginary of flies. They raised questioning eyebrows, but the fountain boys just smiled and said, "College girls."

In spite of the fact that girls go to the sorosrons to "relax mentally" as well as indulge in sweets—the soda fountain boys say that they are pressed to wait on. They are an honest, jolly and patient clientele. One boy who has had occasion to serve everyone from senators to fishermen, says college girls are the most courteous to serve that he has ever known.

"Oh yes," added one boy, "They act very different when they come in with a date."

Richey Outlines Ten Years' Growth In Sons of Japanese

Horns Are Admonished "To Tootle Gently" On City Street

By JO TAYLOR

Twelve years spent in Japan during the years 1920-1930 were twelve years watching the rapid rise of Japan's "Sons." One of the home economic teachers, Miss Louise Richey, spent that time there as a missionary from the Christian Church, the United States. Listening to her, one hears of the rapid freeing of the Japanese people by the end of the war, the liberation of youth, and the superlative system set up in education while retaining the ancient philosophies that were handed down through generations by the yellow race.

Nagasaki, a southern province, was the scene of the first years in the Richey's life. It was commonly known as "the country" by the Japanese for the average town contains only 40,000,000 people. Here are still evidences of the olden Japan, the lower level of living among peasant life, the transportation by hand-power and feet in transportation. Cars are seldom available except in the form of old Ford "T" models which illuminate the taxi systems. There are no roads and sidewalks, side, dogs, pigs, and even occasionally a horse and buggy meander in the streets. Drivers of cars are cautioned by the rule to, "Toodle horn gently," either that they cause an accident by frightening pedestrians and animals, with a sudden blast.

The silk industry furnishes a substistance in living lower than in the city, but the cases of starvation, ignorance, and of people are no worse if not as bad as in sections of this U. S. Starvation is mainly caused by spiring freeze which may cause the loss of more than $1,000,000 in the silk industry. Commerce among the people exists in the exchange of trading stuff and exchange of the actual goods.

Here are found the "Sons" who so often pictured to us in elementary geography books, the rolling plains, against snow-capped mountain peaks. The snow blankets all the mountains even during the warmest seasons of the year.

The moves which America takes in regard to Japan can be guessed from the native children's attitudes. When our country helps Japan in time of famine and after the last great earth quake, the children could be partly seen in gracious enough. An extreme change was noticed when the U. S. passed new immigration laws against their race. The children of the Japanese will suddenly and every white person in the streets will shout, "Hello you old A'merican fool," whether he was English, Dutch, or anything but American. These children best situations in regard to America changes in the homes of the rich homes and regulate their actions according to the new schedules.

From Miss Richey's commentary we learn that education all over the country is considered the best features of the educational systems of the world. The basis of this was obtained by Japan sending representatives to all leading nations to study the newest ideas and steps that have been taken. As a result she seems to have best all nations at their own game. The public school system is carefully detailed in country and city. The issue of every modern education is pride in the nation thru knowledge of its assets. Every student has to be entered kindergarten until he graduates from high school is taken on tours covering industrial centers of the country and historical places of interest. It is a custom always to leave with a present from every province visited. Such as fish for the seashores, to the mountains, to all other sections of the country and are conducted thru the factories and other industrial centers. In the public schools the government takes care of the education, which may be by train, boat, or walking for shorter trips. One trip on which Miss Richey went was 16 miles long, and they thought nothing as a all of walking back so as not to miss the best scenery. Seniors in high school take week-long trips stopping at the best hotels, visiting the leading factories, sometimes going by train and coming back by boat on the small steamliners. In these cases, the city paid the bill. The students save from their money to supply the other half. The low cost of traveling over these trips is due to the hard-saving and feet in transportation. Cars are seldom available except in the form of old Ford "T" models which illuminate the taxi systems. There are no roads and sidewalks, side, dogs, pigs, and even occasionally a horse and buggy meander in the streets. Drivers of cars are cautioned by the rule to, "Toodle horn gently," either that they cause an accident by frightening pedestrians and animals, with a sudden blast.

Laughing at my surprise, Miss Richey told me of the annual school ender. The school year begins April and ends in March, allowing the last month for graduation; however the amount of national holidays [illegible] make up a group of non-school days that approximates our own. It seems to be the custom to inspect in all Japan's set. Japanese are a polite people, always helpful else and they seem born with a love for the unconventional in it. Perhaps that accounts for the success of great artists who are in Japan.

Home Economics is the basis of all the girls' education and is also usually trained for home life, although all of them marrying within two years after graduation from high school. However, women in the large cities have begun entering elevators, being airplane hostesses, stenographers, etc. Their styles are up to date as well as their employers.

Questioning Miss Richey on the amount of militarism there, I was told that the training in military training is compulsory to all boys of the age of fifteen. They are on call about a week each month to keep in training. This is a maximum of a week, which is easier to understand when one considers that Japan is surrounded and her immediate warlike acquaintances.

With a smile, Miss Richey told of the housekeeping customs that were in use among the Americans. The government sets a certain day for each Japanese and every white person in the streets will shout, "Hello you old A'merican fool," whether he was English, Dutch, or anything but American. These children best situations in regard to America changes in the homes of the rich homes and regulate their actions according to the new schedules.

From Miss Richey's commentary we learn that education all over the country is considered the best features of the educational systems of the world. The basis of this was obtained by Japan sending representatives to all leading nations to study the newest ideas and steps that have been taken. As a result she seems to have best all nations at their own game. The public school system is carefully detailed in country and city. The issue of every modern education is pride in the nation thru knowledge of its assets. Every student has to be entered kindergarten until he graduates from high school is taken on tours covering industrial centers of the country and historical places of interest. It is a custom always to leave with a present from every province visited. Such as fish for the seashores, to the mountains, to all other sections of the country and are conducted thru the factories and other industrial centers. In the public schools the government takes care of the education, which may be by train, boat, or walking for shorter trips. One trip on which Miss Richey went was 16 miles long, and they thought nothing as a all of walking back so as not to

Montgomery Talks To Scout Council

Miss Katherine Montgomery, head of the physical education department, will speak at the annual meeting of the Girl Scout council Thursday night, at the Windsor hotel, in Jacksonville, Mrs. Robertine Bell Landon, Scout director, will preside at the meeting.

Miss Montgomery will consider in her talk the responsibility of programs and objectives of the Girl Scouts with those of persons interested in physical education.

Final Exemption Tests In Physical Education Will Be Given Shortly

The last exemption tests in the physical education department will be given today and next Tuesday and Wednesday. These tests are the last ones set aside for this purpose, and any student desiring exemption in any of the physical education activities must appear at the designated time and place to submit to the tests. Those who have had the activity in class and all sophomores, juniors, and seniors are eligible. Information regarding exemption requirements may be obtained in the physical education office.

The schedule for exemptions period is as follows: modern dancing, Friday, 4:30 o'clock; large gym; archery, Friday, 4:30 o'clock; archery range; soft ball and golf Friday, 4:30 o'clock; field; basketball, Friday, 4:30 o'clock, basketball court; tap dancing, Tuesday 4:30 o'clock; large gym; tennis, Tuesday, 4:30 o'clock; volleyball Tuesday, 4:30 o'clock, pool; folk dancing, Tuesday, 4:30 o'clock, large gym; hockey, Tuesday, 4:30 o'clock, field; golf, Tuesday, 4:30 o'clock, scooter field; tennis, Wednesday, 4:30 o'clock, tennis courts; modern dancing, Wednesday, 4:30 o'clock, large gym; archery, Wednesday, 4:30 o'clock, archery range; soft ball and golf Wednesday, 4:30 o'clock, field; basketball, Wednesday, 4:30 o'clock, basketball court.

cross the street to aid your direction.

Religion occupies a prominent place in the country. The religion of the national government is Shintoism, which is based upon ancestors, deep reverance for the past and the government of the present. Mainly it is a national religion which permits the Japanese to worship whatever religion they choose so that they take the form of a deep belief in Shintoism which ancestors as Gods. All Japan believes that it's history goes further back than any other nation and country.

Many other religions are prevalent, Confucianism, Buddhism, and Christianity. Religion was taught in the schools years ago but has been brought back into it by the Christian doctrine being taught there. The step was made in its progress recently when its leaders were asked to take part in the ceremonies. This was a decalling of so many Japanese ministers and missionaries that Miss Richey attributed it to lack of funds in the country and not to any trouble with Japan. She thinks that they do occur are purely accidental and no matter in any way.

Miss Richey's opinion of Japan's attitude toward the world based on understanding of its problems, that the world must increase pride of country, but due to the need of space and raw materials, that it will be best for the Japanese are pussied by our observations, to find opportunities in other territory, because what she knows of what nations have done since the beginning of time when their country becomes too crowded.

Then too, according to Miss Richey, we must consider the immigration laws of Japan. Change in territory it accomplishes. Obviously the government would and will continue so with the world made up as it is today.

Artist Series Gives Concert In Auditorium

Continued from page one

was my first seat in the cello division.

Gregor Piatigorsky made his first appearance in the field of music in 1929, appearing in leading American cities with a soloist with the such orchestras as the Philadelphia Orchestra, Boston and New York Philharmonic - Symphony. Since then he has returned each year.

Ideas of Music

During the past month he played in New York under Toscanini, introducing a new composition by Tedesco which the composer had dedicated to him.

Piatigorsky has said that music is hard to understand. He feels that a composer should not tell what it was before it was written down. The public should let it was the composer's mind. He has explained that music it like nature. It is not always understood at times it is tragic. It cannot always be understood. It must sometimes be ugly, stupid and lazy.

Program Given

The program for Wednesday has been divided into two parts with a short intermission between each. The first division will include: Sonata in C minor (1.2) century" which is after a manuscript from the private library of the King of Saxony; Adagio-Allegretto grazioso - Sicilino - Allegro. Dance of Terror, De Falla.

Anonymous: Sonata in A major, Opus 69 (for piano and 'cello), Beethoven; Allegro-Scherzo-Adagio-Allegro, Beethoven; Sonata-with variations, Vivo, Piatigorsky.

After the intermission Piatigorsky will play: Minor (1.2) century" which is after a manuscript from the private library of the King of Saxony; Adagio-Allegretto grazioso - Sicilino - Allegro. Dance of Terror, De Falla.

Awful Ghosts Of Past Days Begin Duties

Midnight Oil and Black Coffee Again Lunge Into Popularity

By RUTH ATKINSON

When students begin to doing a semester's work in one week with the aid of black coffee and a singular supply of nervous energy when an epidemic of term papers falls upon the campus and all the while ignoring the dismal sighings of midnight oil and hair-tearing, when the whole student body begins to assume that something horrible-about-to-happen look, it has must be something wrong. Exams are coming.

Ghosts of past days begin to haunt us when we think of the "Ides of March" and the parallel we've failed to read. Now that too few days remain before the dreaded exams, we have visions of all night sessions with books such as "The Naked Beast of Civilization" or something even worse. We have visions of spending Saturday afternoons to make up lab periods and writing Bob note in the hall. We've already begun to wonder definitely that this whole week-end (except Saturday afternoon when we shall go to the show) will be spent in a serious attempt to catch up on the little odds and ends of study that we've been dragging behind us for the past month.

We look at our lecture notes and are horrified at the condition that they are in. The world did all those profiles drawn around the margins come from? Who in the world played that solitary form of tit-tat-toe right in the middle of the page? And we think of it there aren't very many of them. We look at our notebooks and they are a mass of blank and of scanty. Most of the page seems to be taken up with figures, on which the Dewey decimal system is based.

There are other signs of the approach of exams. There is a crowded these days: the line of students waiting to check out reserve books is much longer than usual; "Rec" is not quite so popular after the first week.

The dead looks on the faces of students who are in the throes of mental attrimthic in an attempt to figure up just how many pages [illegible] must be read in the Woe-be-gone expressions are seen on the faces of those who have arrived at the answer.

We are beginning to realize the fact that we've only a week and beginning to know that if we can only keep from falling asleep, we can live through anything; and we are resolving once more (as we do twice every year) that from now on we will read at least a few pages ahead in our lessons so that we will take labs as they come, and that we will not hand term papers until the last twenty-four hours.

Night Ambulance Physician, Former Grad Visits F. S. C.

Continued from page one

ing more satisfying than I ever dreamed it would be" she continued. "I would like to stay indefinitely, to see the "good old" days again.

"I feel just like I did when I was a student here about the time I graduated. Then I'll turn next year to see H' Virginia Clay Harris, Miss Georgefield-ste hure, Dr. Walters was president of W. A. A. and there was a party every year, won a numeral in volley ball, wrote poetry for the Distaff, and was a member of Phi Delta Phi and Alpha Kappa Gamma sororities.

"Dr. Walters continued in mock seriousness, as we were about to leave. "the only black eye I have given anyone was to Miss Devinev." She hastened to add that it was entirely accidental, happening when she was driving Miss Harris home from Tampa. Carolina on Christmas and ran into a fire plug.

Doyle Announces Change in Exams

Registrar S. R. Doyle has announced a correction in the examination schedule for integrated courses.

Examinations in the integrated courses meeting Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday at 10:30 and at 2:30 will be given Friday morning at 8:30-10:30, at the same time as the 3:30 classes. Conflicts with the integrated courses should be scheduled for Friday at 2:00-4:00.

College to Offer New Three-Hour Education Course Next Semester

A new course giving three semester hours' credit in education will be offered by the School of Education at the beginning of the second semester. The new course, education 393, will deal with rural education, and will be in charge of Dr. Ralph Eyman.

Upon sufficient demand education 113, dealing with methods of teaching arithmetic, will be offered this summer session also. The course will give one hour's credit, and will meet every Tuesday, 1:30-3:30.

Education 302A, methods in elementary school work, has been reduced to a three hour course as in former years.

Andrews Gives Final Lecture on Vocations

Continued from page one

ege graduate, and who must be fitted to them by counting, intimately, and metabolism.

Skillful use of the microscope and the intelligent handling slides is important among the qualifications of a technician. Personal characteristics, also, are important: intelligence, cooperation, integrity control of one's self, neatness, cleanliness, tact and discretion, and ability to organize in the world." Mr. Fisk studied in all these countries before he made a sensational debut in London.

At nineteen years of are he broke all records at Peshoff when he took twenty-two, solo hour examinations in a row and made high honors in them all.

Mr. Fisk says that he is particularly pin. He was made an honorary member of this musical fraternity at Harvard and at the Illinois Alpha chapter.

Senate Agrees On Procedure Against Unfit

Continued from page one

nine to fourteen members. It was also decided to submit a list of recommendation to this college council.

SPARKS STATE THEATRE PHONE 190
FRIDAY AND SATURDAY
January 15-16
Jack RENNY Gloria SHEA Glenn ALLEN and The Merry Macks Boys
SUNDAY AND MONDAY
January 17-18
GARY COOPER ANN HARDING in THE PLAINSMAN and JAMES BARTON in THE LAST OUTLAW COLLEGE HOLIDAY
TUESDAY, JANUARY 19
LEW AYRES
in
"Murder with Pictures"
WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 20
"SPANKY" McFARLAND
GENERAL SPANKY
PHILLIES HOLMAN THOMAS LAWRENCE RALPH MORGAN - ROSCOE ATES
THURSDAY, JANUARY 21
Movie Time in Specialty
JEAN HERSHOLT BRENT

SPLENDID LUNCH
Steak and French Fries ..... 35c and Up
Oysters Sandwiches ..... 5c and 10c
205 South Adams Phone 932-R

DUKE UNIVERSITY
SCHOOL OF MEDICINE
DURHAM, N. C.
Four terms of eleven weeks are given each year. Credit may be taken consecutively (straight) or three and one quarter years or three terms may be taken each year (graduation in four years). The entrance requirements are three years of college work, including 12 hours of college work in each of the following subjects specified for Grade A medical schools. Courses in the premedical curriculum may be obtained from the Duke University.

Four-Act Play By Department

Little Theatre Players Will Present Drama February 11-12

"The Truth," a four-act play written by Clyde Fitch, will be presented Feb 11-12 in the Auditorium Conrad) theater under the direction of Miss Kemper Martin Moore, of the speech department. This will be the third Little Theater presentation of this year.

New scenery is being made and modern costuming will be used. The Vorse is to furnish costumes for the play.

The cast for the production is as follows:

Jennie, Lillian Burford; Eva Linden, Dorothy Hill; Laura Preston, Rachel Seay; Becky Warner, Margery Jones; Mrs. Genevieve Crispigny, Betty Ellinger; mistress Rose Warner, Virginia Lindon, Robert Mickler, of Tallahassee and Steven Point, Cheevers Lewis, Tullahassee

Committees include: Stage managers, Frances Lewis and Hal Berryhill; properties, Helen Wade, Betsy Scott, and Betty Ann Hamilton; costumes, Mrs. Davis; publicity chairman, Lottie Cason; lighting, Jack Mooney, Frink, Sallie Bert Nunnm, Kathleen Hughes, Claire Wilson, Ruth Riddle, and Hattie Kichline.

The assistant director of the play is Betty Peck.

Virgil Fox Expresses Liking for Girls' School and Jazz

Continued from page one

ing Mr. Fox said with emphasis, "I like Florida, I like England! have some of the most beautiful organs, and I like to organize in the world." Mr. Fox studied in all these countries before he made a sensational debut in London.

At nineteen years of are he broke all records at Peshoff when he took twenty-two, solo hour examinations in a row and made high honors in them all.

Mr. Fox says that he is particularly pin. He was made an honorary member of this musical fraternity at Harvard and at the Illinois Alpha chapter.

Senate Agrees On Procedure Against Unfit

Continued from page one

nine to fourteen members. It was also decided to submit a list of recommendation to this college council.

Sports Squints

There may be a lot of banged up gym majors around campus at present but the maternity of stripped to the waist basketball players to decorate the nearly waxed dormitory corridors.

The new sailboat we've been hearing so much about has made its appearance at last and is docked reposing in its nice little estate at Camp Flastacowo just waiting to be launched in real good. Who will be the first to bring home a sailboat catastrophe?

Odd-even hockey and soccer practices seem to have put some pep into the post-holiday slump around here. More and more joggers are showing up every day for practice each day. And there is still plenty of time for late entries if anyone is interested.

Speaking of volleyball, we have a distinguished visitor on campus this week in the person of Lt. Harris, U. F.S.C.W. during her undergraduate days here. She's also been Miss Kay Wilson's only known woman ambulance physician in the South.

With this mid-summer weather which is surely too good to last, tennis are ominously crowding the tennis courts to wage spirited battles with opponents of with their professors. If we must not set ourselves up as authorities on tennis, or other recreational activities in which they are ranked as experts, we certainly have more time for tennis ourselves. Or is our mind clear?

Late Bowie, our aquatic freshman is with us no more. It seems that he coach told her that she'd like her to be a college girl or a swimmer, and even the dumbest of us don't need much guidance to decide which she chose to be. Like one of the best of us, she picked a little extra weight and now she has to stay at home, train, and go to another meet and talk away with some more honors. During the Christmas vacation she appeared in one meet in Havana Cuba and is several at Miami and St. Lauderdale.

One of the several parties cramped into this week-end is that staged on of all journalism students. They will be accompanied by Mr. Earl Vance, several members of the publicity department, and not as a visitor or two. But don't believe it will be a journalistic week-end. It's for recreation.

In order to prevent further arguments on the subject, Mickey Baron wishes it announced that her grandma are to fill the gap created out of her foot during a recent heavy soccer practice. And not to be outdone, Fisher wants this paragraph dedicated to the girl that was knocked off her bike in a hockey game.

For the benefit of those for whom hockey and soccer are too strenuous it might be well to mention the new extra-curricular classes of badmination that are to be offered here. For further details read your Flambeau.

Lectures on Home Life Of Roman People Given Last Night at Meeting

Illustrated lectures on "The Home Life of the Roman People" were featured in the monthly meeting of the classical club last night.

Under the leadership of Geneva Wilson, program chairman, three talks on the theme of the month were given.

Thelah Taylor in her talk on "Homes of the Patricians," traced the development of the types of homes among the common Roman people from the earliest days up through the time of the Empire and paralled the contested conditions of Roman city life with that of our own day, instances in like manner, which describes the living conditions of the poor were cited.

Homes of the Patricians" was the title assigned by Dorothy Derrick. She described the plan of a Roman house and the luxuries of a Roman household which even included running water and a heating system.

The last talk was given by Nancy Cornhuits whose subject was "Furnishings of a Roman House." The mural decorations, furniture, food, kitchen utensils and statuary of a Roman home were discussed.

The program was one of a series planned for the year, all centering around the life and of the Roman people.

Lectures Are Postponed

The executive council decided Tuesday to postpone the Thursday morning talks on college government until after examinations.

Rawls Will Train For Aquatic Honor

Katherine Rawls, United States olympic star, who was a freshman at Florida State College this fall, has withdrawn in order to continue her swimming training.

During the Christmas holidays Katherine broke several records in various swimming forums held in Fort Lauderdale and Cuba, the telling of her trip to Cuba. Katherine said she thoroughly she had gotten over the habit of being seasick on her travels all the way across the Atlantic ocean for the Olympic games, but she found herself staying close to the rail during the whole trip.

At present the swimmer is training in the pool which is held in Australia. Her coach ordered a period of hard training so that she could lose some of the excess weight gained at college which might affect her speed.

Katherine says that her greatest wish is to return to Florida State and she hopes to do like she did before, swimming and I love college," she said, but "I can't have my cake and eat it too."

Date Is Given For Odd-Even Soccer-Hockey

Perfection of Technique Is Attacked Before Taking Scrimmage

Traditional Odd-Even rivalry will again hold sway when the 1936-37 season of hockey and soccer games is launched.

The Odds and Evens are counting on the next four weeks to give them ample time for practice for the games. All the teams are practicing every Monday, Tuesday, and Friday at 4:30 on the hockey and soccer fields near the gymnasium.

At the present time, the teams are working on technique rather than doing actual scrimmage in order to have the fine points of the game working smoothly when actual scrimmage is started. Later on more time will be devoted to scrimmage and at the same time girls will be chosen to fill the positions which they will play during the actual games.

Assisting the teams are members of the faculty of the physical education department: Miss Ruth Lehman, Odd soccer; Miss Kay Fraser, Odd hockey; Miss Grace Fox, Even soccer; and Miss Betty Washburn, Even hockey.

Girls who are practicing for Even hockey are: Louise Rice, Evelyn Fisher, Mary Bess Pat Mack, Nan Clark, Bennie Syfrett, Pat Smith, Catherine Kirby, Smith, Frances Thill, and Yvonne Marchesseau.

Girls practicing for Odd soccer are: Dorothy Colburn, Jean Maples, Jackie Gates, Jean Gillies, Sadie Anderson, Mary P. Parker, Mary Palmer, Martha Baker, Ruth Wilson, Julia Beckman, Florence Gross, Valerie Hunt, Nellie Parks, Dorothy Milner, Marian Lesley and Fay Corey.

Retired Oberlin Dean And Wife Visit Campus During Tour of State

Dr. C. N. Cole, retired dean of girls and actress at Oberlin college, Ohio, and Mrs. Cole, spent Wednesday and Thursday at Florida State college on an informal visit of the campus. Dr. Cole and Mrs. Cole who were making a tour of the state included the local college on their itinerary.

While here they were taken on tours of the campus and made visits to many of the departments heads. Thursday night they were entertained at dinner in the dining room, followed by an afternoon coffee in Reynolds hall. Students assisting were Jo Binion, Mary Cathryn Gibson, Mary Miller, Martha Makemson and Mary Jeanne McKay. Guests were members of the faculty.

Dr. Cole will serve as professor of Latin next year at Berea college where he will take the place of a friend on leave of absence.

Florida State Girls Still Talk on Just "Girl" Topics

Trivialities Usurp Prominent Place In Everyday Gossip of Should-be "Educated" Students Of Outstanding Woman's College

By PETREA CABANISS

What does the typical Florida State college student talk about when she is not in the class room? In general, the same things she talked about during grammar school and high school years; her studies, men, other girls, clothes, and movies.

Although studies are placed first on this list it is not meant that she discusses the various questions that arise in class in a spirit of inquiry and with a desire to understand the problem better. Rather, her conversation is on the order of, "I just have so much studying to do that I don't know how I'll ever finish," or "I haven't looked at my English lesson for today, but maybe the teacher won't call on me."

The attitude of the average student toward books is the same as that towards a dose of medicine, some take it in a hasty gulp and rid off their minds while others put it off as long as possible. While putting off the evil hour they talk about how they should get to work but just before they do they find another finishing complains about how tired they are, of studying.

The average student does not go to class to learn, she goes to get grades. The class room discussions which she might occasionally join in, are usually left to the "intellectual" student and the teacher, and she is soon bored and forgotten until the teacher announces a test when they come into the corner of her brain and never invited to associate with her other thoughts.

The same student who complains about the study load so much also talks about nothing to do to Tallahassee. This is mainly a result of the week-end and week-end, for during the week she has no time to practice for dates and getting her lessons to think much about amusements. Saturday night she is almost sure to get into a ball session, where the "girls" center around other girls, sororities, and mainly men.

When a girl has been home, or to Gainesville, for the week-end she can hardly wait for the bus to drive into Tallahassee so that she can sit up all night telling her room-mate everything that happened. Her conversation is filled with "he said" and "I said" and "it was so wonderful" and "I had the most marvelous time ever."

The subject next in importance to studies and men is that of finances. It is hardly an exaggeration to say that at least one-half of the students at Florida State College run an average of once a day, "I'm so broke that I just don't know how I'm going to make age if my family doesn't send me some money soon." There are many variations on this theme, for instance, "I saw the best-looking dress down town today, and I wanted to buy it so badly, but I couldn't possibly afford it," or "I want to see that new movie so much—Robert Taylor is playing in it—but I've already been to one movie this week and I can't afford another one." Sometimes there is this attitude: "I'm going to treat myself to a show and a steak dinner this week-end. I really can't afford it, but I'm tired of staying out at this college and doing nothing."

The subject of going out to eat then leads to complaints of the dining room food. Whenever two people meet and can't think of anything to say, all that is needed to start a conversation is a remark about how horrible the food is. Usually the food and the fried everyone is of spinach and string beans.

Occasionally however, the average Florida State college student begins to worry about what will become of her when she has graduated. She has usually absorbed enough education to realize that she doesn't know anything about life, and the prospect of being turned out into the world rather frightens her. But when this idea gives her too much discomfort she dismisses it with this thought, "Oh, when I finish college I'll probably get married, and if I don't I guess I can find some kind of job. Anyway, here I am in college for a few more years so why worry until then to?" She hears talk of wars and economic problems, but as life for her has usually been pleasant and uneventful she does not see how these disturbances can affect her. Though college is supposed to broaden the student's vision, either she has her own nearsightedness or that of her teachers, she seldom sees beyond the college gates.

Quality Point Limits Set by Registrar For Graduation from FSC

A student is required to have only a number of quality points equal to her work completed in residence, to be graduated from Florida State College for Women, according to a statement by Registrar S. R. Doyle.

For the student doing her full four-years' work at this college, 124 quality points are required for graduation. In the case of transfers, the number of hours transferred is subtracted both from the total number of quality points required, leaving the student required to make only that number of quality points equal to the number of hours' work in residence.

Registration is moving forward rapidly, according to Mr. Doyle, who says schedules for the second semester should be made out before the end of the present semester.

Alumnae Head

MRS. E. L. BEESON

Mrs. F. L. Beeson, president of the Florida State Alumnae association, who visited the campus this week and directed a meeting of the alumnae board. During this meeting plans were discussed for the student-alumnae building and a committee was appointed for the modeling award. One representative from each district attended the meeting, including Ruth Perkins, Lake City, editor of the Flambeau last year.

Students Observe Uncles' Day Here

Just as we have Mothers' day and Fathers' day, last Tuesday might easily have been called Uncles' day.

For judging from the more than 250 Florida State students who turned up to go to the governor's ball with their uncles, Tallahassee was overflowing with this species of relative on Inauguration day.

Accoring to the students, their uncles poured into town from Jacksonville, Fernandina, Jacksonville, Tampa, Madison, and other points south, east, and west to attend the inauguration ceremonies and incidentally to take their nieces to meet the new governor.

One girl stated that her uncle came all the way from Tampa just to take her to the ball. While another lamented that her uncle came up here, got sick and couldn't escort her to the dance.

All the girls so unfortunate as not to have such devoted uncles resorted to find one somewhere before the next Tallahassee social function requiring relatives as escorts.

M AND N CAFE
STEAKS AND OYSTERS
Any Time of Day or Night
119 S. Jefferson Phone 1004

Indoor Hobbies Popular Aid To Overworked Campus Minds

Sweet Old-Fashioned Girl Is Still Existing On Campus

By MARGARET GOURLIE

Indoor hobbies are numerous on the campus and while not as openly vaunted as the out-of-door pastimes they have many devotees.

There are the old stand-bys, such as reading, knitting, sewing, making scrap books, cooking, and gossiping. The modern girl is really old-fashioned at heart, as you will realize if you watch the number of college students who knit. They make everything from dresses to sleeping shoes, and finish the garments off with a bit of artistic crocheting. Christmas gifts are made in this manner, and there is even one report of a junior who knits socks for her boy-friend.

Reading material varies from Liberty, weekly magazine, to Wells' Outline of History. Students seem to find little time for fiction, but in case they do it is the modern type, such as Gone With the Wind. Most reading is compulsory, and is going a trial to those who do not like to read. The most popular magazines are American, Good Housekeeping, Cosmopolitan, Redbook, Reader's Digest, and the magazine section of the New York Times. Many students who have rushed for time have discovered that by reading the book review section in the latter paper, Sunday edition, they can keep up on the modern literature. This does not do away with complete reviews that one can converse with some authority on a book without having ever opened its covers.

Poetry enjoys a wide popularity. Many anthologies are borrowed from the library when they are not required as parallel. Also many are purchased from the book store where excellent prices may be obtained for a very small cost.

Hope chests are coming back into fashion, and with them we find girls making towels, pillow slips, embroidered doilies, and dainty laundry bags. These are not cheap additions, but really fine examples of sewing. Hooked rugs of colored rags and old stockings adorn many a college room, and are proudly displayed as "home products." Numerous quilts have been made by students, contrary to the popular notion that the up-to-date modern is interested in little besides getting some place fast, with no apparent destination in mind.

Scrapbooks have been kept for many years by most of us, and these college days are no exception. The campus and home town papers are carefully scrutinized for a mention of a certain name, and these items are treasured in a book, with comments of a rather humorous type, especially when viewed from the vantage point of a few year's separation. One rather novel scrap book is kept by an ardent follower of the army football team.

Much and every item is clipped out of the papers which fall into her hands, and is pasted on the proper page in her scrapbook. This plan has its disadvantages, as it will be rather difficult to take the door home with her if she wishes to save her clippings.

The kitchens in the various dormitories and sorority houses are well-used. Not that meals are made in them, but pop corn, coffee, hot tea, cocoa, and even a full course dinner has come off on the four burners. The odor of Sunday morning steak, potatoes, and warmed canned vegetables are not uncommon in the vicinity of these kitchens. Friday and Saturday nights are favorite times for cooking, but coffee is brewed any night that someone feels the urge to study in spite of need of sleep.

Enough perhaps too much, has been written about the gossiping of college girls. But not all "dull" or inane favor, and with them we find for essays.

Badminton Pat On Activities

Game Similar to Tennis Is Extra Curricular Sport in Future

Miss Eunice Hurd of the physical education department announces that badminton has been added to the list of extra curricula activities.

The game is similar to tennis. The racket is much like the one used in playing squash, and the ball is composed of cork, pierced with a number of green quills.

Badminton was started by a group of English army officers. The first game was played in the county of Badminton, from whence it derived its name. It had been popular in England for many years and was introduced into the United States about ten years ago. It has become especially popular recently in parts of New England, in Michigan and in Hollywood. In April, for the first time, a national amateur tournament will be held in Chicago.

Plans are under way for the construction, in the near future, of a court on campus. It will probably be located in back of the gym, where the players will not be bothered by visitors.

An exhibition game will be held tonight in the gym and Miss Hurd will take the first door prize for her part in the game, which tables and dishes about the school in general and certain phases in particular receive deportment grades. This is also credited to students. Constructive criticism is then heard, consisting of the type College Government assembly desired when they called

NEW HIT ON THE RADIO!
"Uncle Charlie's Cabin"
It's a riot—it's unbelievable
—it's Oakie at his best!
Also BENNY GOODMAN'S "Swing" Band, GEORGE STOLL'S Concert Orchestra, Hollywood comedians, and singing stars —and—special talent from the colleges every Tuesday night!
HERE'S college life, not as it is, but as it ought to be, according to Jack Oakie! Imagine Jack Oakie running a college. Think what would happen—and tune in on this notable occasion—the first radio series of this popular screen star. Along with Jack, you get Benny Goodman's "swing" rhythms, George Stoll's concert orchestra and the broadcasting crew from Hollywood, and—here's news—special talent from the colleges every week. A sparkling full-hour show that you won't want to miss.
EVERY TUESDAY NIGHT
9:30 pm E.S.T., 8:30 pm C.S.T., 7:30 pm M.S.T., 6:30 pm P.S.T. WABC—CBS Network. JACK OAKIE, BENNY GOODMAN, GEORGE STOLL. Hollywood comedians and singing stars. Special college talent every week.
"Pruny" Oakie, the distinguished Hollywood educator, photographed in the full glory of his academic robes, ready to dish out a lecture.
All offered for your entertainment by
CAMEL
MADE FROM FINER, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS—TURKISH AND DOMESTIC—THAN ANY OTHER POPULAR BRAND

The Florida Flambeau

EDITORIAL STAFF

RACHEL BOWMAN ——— Associate Editor
MARGARET ADAMS ——— Associate Editor
MARTHA WALKER ——— Associate Editor
PEARLE SHEPARD ——— Managing Editor
EVELYN FISHER ——— News Editor

DEPARTMENTS

Art, Evelyn Glazier; Exchanges, Virginia Batty; Features, Ruth Atkinson, Dorothy Bellamy, Frances Bullock, Sarah Beth Davis and Sarah Beaver; Orlando News, Clothilde O'Bourke, Society, Margaret Chase Lathrop and Mary Louise Arline; Associate Society Editor, Mary Louise Arline; Sports, Ben Mason, Sports, Eva Virginia Brooks and Elizabeth Sanders.

REPORTERS: Mary Louise Arline, Ruth Atkinson, Dorothy Bailey, Eleanor Barrett, Dorothy Bellamy, Frances Bullock, Virginia Batty, Margaret Chase Lathrop, Thelma Cochran, Elizabeth Cochran, Elizabeth Cochran, Sara Davis, Hasel Dominguez, Martine Fussle, Mary Grace Hayward, Gertrude Lucia, Lucia Howle, Betty Lou Ingraham, Lucy Kelly, Alice Lang, Betty Leach, Martha Livingston, Mary Louise Mathews, Mary Ann Mitchell, Mary Louise Mathews, Mary Theo Moore, Alberta Penfield, Frances Pierce, Marion Purrington, Nancy Rogers, Julie Sharon, Lavina Sherrill, Elizabeth Simon, Mary Sullivan, Alma Warren, Frances Waterhouse.

BUSINESS STAFF

LILLIE McGOIRT ——— Business Manager
DAN O'BRIANT ——— Advertising Manager
NAN O'BRIANT ——— Asst. Adv. Mgr.
MARGUERITE BROWN ——— Circulation Mgr.

Represented for National Advertising by
NATIONAL ADVERTISING SERVICE INC.
College Publishers Representative
420 Madison Ave. New York, N. Y.
Chicago Boston San Francisco Los Angeles
Portland Seattle

Member: National Collegiate Athletic Association and Florida Intercollegiate Press Association.

Entered as second class mail matter January 20, 1915, at the post office at Tallahassee, Fla., under act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

New Achievements For the Orange and Blue

Last week the Flambeau suggested that Florida State might make use of its opportunities for student publicity. The only comments on this suggestion have indicated that the idea is not considered feasible for a state-supported institution because of the financial difficulties that might, for this reason, be involved.

Saturday, however, the Florida Alligator, newspaper of the University of Florida, carried the details for three extensive student publicity campaigns being carried out at the university, also a state-supported institution.

The university band has just completed its fall season, having been on several long trips. The debating team, now a definite traveling unit, will journey over the south east during the spring. In addition, the university is sending out sixty freshmen and sophmores for a speaking tour of the state's high schools. From this number is the financial hacking to come? We judge from Alligator comments, though this point will have to be checked with the university officials, that the funds are taken from a general publicity fund.

Other things are happening at Florida. Mid-semester registration lines have been abolished as a result of the latest action by the university council. The aeronautical course offered by the School of Adult Education has increased its enrollment to thirty-six students. Forestry club members will visit the plants of what are two of the most widely recognized industrial achievements in the South when they go to the Hilton Laboratories in Savannah and to the Cross City paper mills this spring.

This week the P. K. Yonge laboratory school will install a program of visitation days for public school teachers throughout the state. Visiting teachers will not only see the school at work but will take part in a previously organized program for the day.

The Florida Farmer, a magazine on agriculture edited by students at the university, has this year definitely taken a place among the best farm periodicals in the South. The latest reports from Florida also indicate that the university may soon take its place as the second institution of higher learning in Florida to be recognized by Phi Beta Kappa.

Florida High Challenges Us—

The "timeless day," a device allowing pupils a chance to spend one day adapting to whatever study they wish was installed at the demonstration school this week after one day of trial proved it eminently satisfactory in aiding pupils to catch up on back work. Needless to say the whole idea sounds like that chance to catch up with odds and ends so parallel and plain assignments to students here have been id-ve-cerning for years.

If the "timeless day" is as satisfactory with public school pupils as it should it should certainly be welcomed by an institution of higher learning which by its measure of both faculty members and students, no longer allows for any degree of failure for orderly research and study.

Columbia Institutes The General College Plan

Florida State, in line with progressive colleges throughout the country, introduced into its curricula last fall a two-year general program for the freshman and sophomore years. It is interesting to note that the faculty of Columbia college, Columbia university, has now under consideration a two-year general college plan somewhat similar to that in effect at this college.

The Columbia plan includes three survey courses, of which two—the course in social studies and the course in humanities—will be required. The third survey course, in the sciences, is offered as "an alternative to more extended work in special fields of science, and is therefore not, strictly speaking, a required course."

The course in the humanities, embracing work in literature, philosophy, music and the fine arts, carries as part of the obligation of the freshman and sophumore years the writing of a "work of, say, 5000 words, generally connected with one of the three orientation courses."

With the humanities course meeting four hours a week, "a student to be exempt from the required work of the second year if he prefers to pursue advanced work of not less than three hours a week in specified courses in any of the humanistic branches." The hours requirement of the social studies survey course, Contemporary Civilization, which was introduced as a required course in 1930, has been reduced from sixteen to fourteen hours.

Whether or not the proposed Columbia plan has any advantages over our own general two-year curriculum, it may be worthwhile to study and compare the plans of other colleges for a view to future experimentation.

More Students Resolve to Stand

While N.S.F.A. convened in New York during the holidays, another group of students assembled at the University of Chicago. The second annual American Student Union convention composed of 400 delegates from nearly 150 high schools and colleges adopted a sweeping program of action.

The highlights of the program included unanimous support of the April student strike against war and war preparations (expected to win the support of one million students this April), a pledge to march on Washington, February 19, with two thousand students dramatizing support of the American Youth Act (a three and a half billion-dollar program for youth and student aid); and a reaffirmation of the present peace program of the Student Union. The program embodies the Oxford pledge "not to support any war which the United States government may undertake," renewed pressure for adoption of S.J.U.C. with support of the Nye-Kvale bill as a step toward this goal, and independent protest by people throughout the world against nations guilty of aggression.

Professor Jerome Davis, head of the American Federation of Teachers and recently ousted from the Yale divinity department for his liberal opinions, in an address to the delegates, urged them to "engage in a ceaseless battle" in behalf of economic as well as political democracy. A unanimous vote of the delegates endorsed his reinstatement and protested the ousting of Robert Burke, student, from Columbia university.

An address was read from John L. Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers of America and leader of the Committee for Industrial Organization, hailing the growth of the Student Union as a significant step in the fight against "financial autocracy" in America. The delegates pledged a one-year drive to make the American campus a "closed shop" and to build the Union's membership to 30,000.

The action of students everywhere in attempting to get to the bottom of the issues grasping the world by its neck today may be indicative of a better world to come. These students are putting up a vigorous fight for democracy, economic as well as political, a democracy conceived by them in the light of present day realities rather than from the shadowy ideals of a student generation twenty years ago.

Our congratulations to the editors of the Emory Wheel of Emory university for the back collage editorial which came to our attention this week. We feel proud to be able, at a time when the fight against war has become so important, to offer a reprint of this editorial in the University Editorials column.

Spirit ... the Week ... By Glazier

University Editorials ....

The Emory Wheel breaks forth with what we consider the year's brain child on this business of America's much-talked-about — little-practiced neutrality pact

DEFENSE OF THE NATIONAL HONOR" NO BLOOD DEATH IN A MUD HOLE!

We are tired of reading editorials and hearing speeches to the effect that "we can stay out of war only by arousing a strong public opinion against war." We already have a public opinion against war. We always have had, but it always vanishes at the first threat to our "national honor" or at the first story of an outraged American citizen whose property or Thinbones has been destroyed by warring governments. The people are suckers for war propaganda and probably always will be. Something more than public opinion in time of peace is necessary if the United States is to stay out of the next big conflict that is bound to come.

The self-appointed patriots who attack any plan for peace as un-American politics whose only idea for peace is preparation for war are keeping to make themselves ridiculous, in view of their past success, but their attempts to assassinate the most powerful pressure group in the country—labor, we are going to continue to let them run our country and determine the policies for which we got to do something about it.

We will sooner or later start down the fatal road we followed twenty years ago. . . .

Unless we revise our militant and naval policy it will be restricted to the protection of continental United States against invasion. By demanding the right to protect American interests in every part of the world the United States will become automatically involved whenever conflict breaks out. . . .

Unless we make our present farcical neutrality legislation more flexible providing for mandatory embargoes on munitions, loans, credits, and general raw materials of warfare, when war breaks out, not when war is declared. . . .

Unless we tax the profits out of war and prosperity for war and make the munitions business government affair. . . .

Unless we enact international lesson through reciprocal trade agreements and other economic readjustments. . . .

Unless we prevent the War and Navy departments from setting universal draft laws and from concocting the absurdly named Industrial Mobilization Plan which provides for no active operating leadership under military control which his failure can be had at Hilo. . . .

You are the cannon fodder for the war. You are the defense of the national honor. Your statistics but it is bloody death in a mud hole for you. Get busy.

Year After Year we hunt ourselves mourning for friendship we had for those whose some couldn't obey the law. The Daily offers an excellent comment applicable not only to those who have already been the cause of a mud hole but also for each of us who ever drives a car.

SLOW—DANGEROUS CURVE!

Slow — dangerous curve Hos many times are those three words repeated in the

Continued on page five

This Week

Issues of Week Told In President's Talk

The three chief issues of the week in national affairs were contained in President Roosevelt's message to Congress on the state of the nation, namely, the Supreme Court, the budget, and neutrality.

The development most curiously sought is to bring the Supreme Court in line with the legislative and executive branches of government. But the regulation of industry of crops, of working hours, of child labor will soon be forthcoming. Presidents feels a constitutional amendment would be necessary if the court would take a more enlightened view in interpreting it. To this end, he proposes a changed personnel in the attitude of certain justices or an enlargement of the court by appointment additional sympathetic justices.

Although the neutrality law passed the House and Senate within forty-eight hours of its introduction, it was not done in time for the passage of the first shipment of American aircraft to Spain. Senator Pittman withdrawal delayed passage of the bill in the House for two hours before it passed 404 to 1. The Senate passed it unanimously but forgot to authorize the presiding officer to sign it. Meanwhile, the destroyer, Mac Cartahour, sailed for Madrid with $1,000,000 worth of airplanes and supplies.

The legislation did come in time however to balk the rest of the Cuse shipment as well as 55,000,000 worth of war supplies sold to Madrid by Richard Dudley of San Francisco.

In his message on the budget Roosevelt was optimistic about the economic situation, adding that the present rate, to attain in 1939 a balanced budget.

The national income for the fiscal year 1936 which began July 1 is estimated at $7,293,607,000, and expenditures—excluding those for recovery and relief—will be $6,157,990,000. This leaves one billion for recovery measures in 1937-38. The government will then start in on a reduction of the debt, the public debt. The ills, however, are not all met as Mr. Roosevelt clearly pointed out. The figures on income showed in the continuation of recovery and the number of unemployed that industry is able—and willing—to absorb.

The crash of the Western Air Express transport in California marks the third air accident in the west in as many months. A scant ten miles from its goal in Los Angeles, the twin-motored plane smashed into the Tehachapi foothills because of adverse weather conditions. Among the killed was Martin Johnson, famous explorer, and writer.

The University of Wisconsin, ever prominent because of its advanced educational methods in research programs, and its activities in pre-New Deal social legislation, has come to the front once more in a noteworthy lesson—the ousting of its president, Glenn Frank. The Board of Regents voted him out, by 9 to 7, after a difficult, controversial, and unpleasant duty and in favor of the immediate outside lecturing and writing.

Ex-president Frank feels that politics are responsible for his dismissal. The regents, he said, were obeying the orders of Governor La Follette, who is opposed to Frank. LaFollette is a Progressive-Frank a Republican.

Film critics of the nation, polled by Film Daily, ranked the Academy Award winners best picture of 1936 with Mr. Deeds Goes to Town ranked second place. In the personal portraiture poll Clark Gable, Shirley Temple and Actor and Rosalind carried off the honors in the nine men voted.

Mae West, however, is consoled by a more substantial index of popularity. According to Treasury returns Miss West earned 1450 033 in 1935, a figure second only to that of William Randolph Hearst $2500000 in the general ranking of American incomes.

Collegiate Comebacks

For those of you who can't see the point of living what with final exams just around the corner, we offer Mother's little helper brand to you the comforting assurance that there are only 133 days until school closes.

* * * *

An exchange informs us that a razor which has been in the family and has been used daily for the past 126 years is the treasured heirloom of Harrison Douglas, St. Louis carpenter. The relic is passed on from oldest son to oldest son. Huh! We have term papers here that have been used ever since the college was built and handed down from friend to friend.

* * * *

This little lamb went to market,
This little sheep stayed home—
And so we have virgin wool,
And so we have chops.

* * * *

From the Alabamian we learn that No Rats Dates is the name of the Spinster Club which has made its appearance at Wetleigh College. A girl must refuse at least one date before she's eligible for membership. The girl who goes the longest time without having a date is the president. Since the object is to get the president out of office she is the first member asked to fill a blind date. Our choice is the blushing Heart and their theme song is Solitude." At night before retiring, each girl kneels down by her bed and says, "Lawdy, Lawdy, oh-here. We print this just as a news item, not to give you any ideas. All we can say about the whole thing is that there are many definite glutions. Our nightly prayer is only: A-man."

* * * *

According to the Junior Collegian women students at U. C. are "bored to death" being used as guinea pigs than do men, or so they judge by the answers to psychology classes. Ah, but said women still have the last men—please explain that to us in view of their distaste for experimentation.

* * * *

Late editor: this little poem that seems to have a short and sweet way of saying everything:

If nearly everything I've said to date
Has been boring, I'll be a well-turned lie:
This much, at least, has verity my sweet
This word is spoken from the heart:
Goodbye.

* * * *

According to the Tacoma Ledger spectators attend a matador at Puebla Mexico in protest against bull fighting. Evidently employed. We certainly hope our professors never get violent on that subject

* * * *

A dean at Yale comes across with an accurate definition of a New England conscience one which does not keep you from doing but which does keep you from enjoying it.

* * * *

The following poem will prove conclusively that our taste in poetry this week rules to mutton

Mary had a little lamb.
It drank some kerosene
One day it came home a flame—
Since then it's not been

One for the Editors

In the fall a Flambeau editorial called attention to the terrible infelicities of college papers and college editors in the treatment of news, both from the writing and the make-up viewpoints. That month however a landscape trade journal relates this statement in a claim of its own "that more thinking in the colleges is being done by students than ever before and that the habit of thinking presents after college.

Quoting Dr. J. Edgar Park, president of Wheaton college, Illinois, the journal reports: "One has only to compare the college papers of the past with those of today to become convinced that the editorial processes are more astute, more exact, more thorough-going than yesterday."

Dr. Park thinks that "colleges are for the most part loyal to the theory that, dangerous as it is it is safer to have people think about things controversial than not to think at all." He adds the idea his newspapers serving as thought dictators should possibly be part of the educational extension service of the nation

Magazine Jotting

BY SARAH BEALE
AND
SARAH BETH DAVIS

Hungry Children

By Mazine Davis

Of all the harmful effects of the recent economic depression, one of the least publicized, but one of far reaching implications is the undernourished condition of large numbers of American children. Mazine Davis gives in the January Atlantic Monthly a convincing report from a study of what happened to underfed children in this country and England during the depression.

For example—In 1933 the New York Board of Education announced that malnutrition was made 135,000 elementary school children in the city schools too weak to profit by attendance in classes. A study of 1000 railway employees showed that more than half the families were cut down from 50 to 75 per cent of their normal supply early in the depression. As for the unemployed and the relief clients, their meager allowances averaged less than the cost of a minimum adequate diet, as estimated by the Federal Bureau of Agriculture.

Rickets, pellagra, tooth and eye disease, nervousness, dullness in school, stunted growth and high death rates—these are only the more evident results.—E. S.

Congress—How Can the Mechanism Be Improved?

By Albert Shaw

Before Congress introduces in the state, amendment giving the Federal government increased powers in regard to control of business and labor, social legislation, and the like, it would be advisable, suggests the writer in the January Review of Reviews, to improve the mechanism of government itself before placing heavier loads upon it. Mr. Shaw makes many suggestions—abolish the electoral college; fix the presidential term at six years with restricted eligibility after six years out-of office; and most important, increase the term of Congressmen from two years to six in the interest of greater efficiency and less high-pressure lobbying which always comes at election time.—E.

The Next Four Years in the TVA

By Arthur E. Morgan

A plea for the continuation and enlargement of the Tennessee Valley Authority is made by Mr. Morgan in this week's New Republic from which he discusses the present accomplishments and merits of the project and what it can do in the near future if congress stallions enlarges its functions.

Control of the Tennessee river for navigation, flood control, power development and salvage purposes is a project of unprecedented magnitude. Three of the largest dams in the entire world are under construction and four more under construction. At least four others will be built.

As a measure to insure flood control Mr. Morgan advocates the erection of a dam at the mouth of the Tennessee river, which would store several million acre-feet of flood water and go a long way toward controlling flood. the lower-Ohio and Mississippi River. The dyro-electric power which these dams would make possible can be made to repay the cost of construction in part and in so doing encourage wide use of electricity and contribute to the elimination of flood control. Great possibilities are seen in bulk sulfur, both for commercial fishing and for recreation, in the TVA reservoirs.

The TVA region is seriously affected by erosion. Since it is about half forest land the prevention of forest fires and the subsequent excellent flood mold would be a great benefit to rapid flow of water and soil after heavy storms

Great mineral and other natural resources within the region are mentioned which can be used widely in behalf of the interests of the American public.—E. D.

Men Must Teach

By Dean Lobaugh

Women form the really great obstacle to professionalization of teaching, says Mr. Lobaugh in the January issue of The National Schools. The author sees the necessity of having women teachers, yet those interested in teaching only a few years because they marry or college graduation and marriage—prevent a change in the status of the profession. This type of woman is a heavy burden to the community increasing certification requirements

Mr. Lobaugh believes that married women should not be debarred from the profession, salaries of teachers should be increased and determined by their experience and length of service and that the profession should command the respect shown lawyers, physicians ministers, engineers and others for their public service

Men, who can build themselves professional-development that have in mind goals for their to twenty-five years ahead, must be willing to enter teaching in such numbers that they will eventually predominate.—E. D.

The Social Week

Sororities To Entertain Friends At Informal Teas

Spring sorority activities for the week-end include many formals and receptions for rushees and faculty members.

Tuesday night at 8 o'clock Dr. Jessup Hay will address members and pledges of the Phi Mu sorority on "The Situation in Spain at the Present Time." Dr. Hay is specialized to talk on this subject having been in Spain during the last summer when the civil war was raging.

Following her talk the pledges of the sorority will serve coffee and sandwiches. Faculty members are invited to hear Dr. Hay at this time.

Cookie Shine

Phi Pi Beta Phi members and rushees will entertain tomorrow afternoon with one of their traditional "cookie shines" in the sorority house on College avenue. Outsiders are not allowed to attend these affairs.

Valentine's Day program will be held next Thursday afternoon when the members of the chapter of the Theta Upsilon sorority to which patrons and friends have been invited.

Following the program of celebration a tea will be held.

Delta Delta Delta

Members and rushees of the Delta Delta Delta sorority will entertain friends at an informal tea to be given in the chapter house Sunday afternoon.

Tea and cookies will be served in the rooms of the house which will be appropriately decorated with varigated winter flowers.

Faculty members and friends were entertained yesterday afternoon with an informal tea given by the members and pledges of Chi Omega sorority at their home on Jefferson street.

During the tea hour cookies and hot tea were served the guests. The house was decorated with a low bowl of narcissi.

Alpha Chi Omega

An informal tea will be given Sunday afternoon in the Alpha Chi Omega sorority house honoring friends of the members and pledges.

The informal motif will be appropriately carried out in the delicious social refreshments which will be served by the pledges.

---

musical selection perhaps, and once in a while enjoy some light refreshment such as a delicious sandwiches! Thus several hours are wasted for the presentation of perhaps only one quite often. If we could derive from 10 minutes by the radio, reading of a brief magazine or newspaper article, and an order of music, a "drug" free schedule themselves show little enthusiasm for the entertainment that is offered them show up for the meetings—the handy example to compose a decent football team

At present many of our clubs are in the grip of the social side of the campus. When they were organized, one of the purposes mentioned them for the social life they afforded and willingly came to the meetings. But still the social part of our life is being neglected altogether by what means the clubs have in some instances become superfluous. Let us now reorganize and abolish the ineffective clubs, and they certainly will be abolished. Meanwhile, so we just go on accepting them, handy examples of what they are doing and why.

We need one organization on the campus which has been created for the benefit of all students, a new one which would be large enough to organize about three-fourths or the superfluous clubs and organizations we have now, and to inaugurate a newer and more interesting program of activity. We do not advocate complete abolition of the clubs but only the curtailing. We believe that several of them are doing constructive work. We are thinking especially about the Forensic club which do not accomplish a great deal and which could very effectively be combined with similar organizations to the end that we might have some actual importance and influence here.

Here's a sophomore who offers the Colonade in his term theme just about what we've had com-ing to us for a long time. But I don't suppose we could take a hint.

"I knit. I think it's fun to know why, I like Robert Taylor but I do not squeal whenever I happen to see his smiling countenance on the screen. I'm not a fanatic on gum chewing, although I hardly think we have mastered the art of chewing it inconspicuously. But I feel that each has its place. I am one of the many students who feel that the auditorium should not be the public pot for our idiosyncrasies.

"The Powers That Be' are kind enough to remind us what to wear and what type of program to expect. Should it be necessary that they distribute at the door pamphlets on 'The Time to Laugh' or one entitled 'When to Clap?'

"At graduation I hope to receive besides my degree some inner sense of dignity, poise, and courtesy enough to know when and where to chuckle—to know that we have my knife and fork in hand when I don cvening clothes! Shouldn't we all want these attributes?

Your lack of respect shows that we're certainly on s detour to-wards our ideals."

Meeting of Sophomore Council Held Thursday

Dr. William H. Rogers was guest speaker at a meeting of sophomore council, Thursday night in Broward lounge. After selections of contemporary poetry were read by Dr. Rogers, a short business meeting was held by the council.

Committees of sophomore council will meet next week to discuss the project to be undertaken by the council, and to plan the program for the remainder of the year.

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK

(Notices for this column should be sent in to the Flambeau)

Friday

Episcopal after-dinner coffee for faculty members, students and friends, Rue hall, 7:15 p. m.

Baptist Young Women's Auxiliary, meeting, Broward club room, 7:45 p. m.

Presbyterian council, meeting with Elizabeth Pinch, 437 West College avenue.

Talk on "Musical Sounds," by Dr. William Rand White, Augusta Conradi theater, 7:45 p. m.

Play night, gym. 8 p. m.

Saturday

Church services, 11 a. m.

Vesper, Augusta Conradi theater, 7:30 p. m.

Monday

Orchestra rehearsal, auditorium, 4:30-6 p. m.

Choir rehearsal, music annex, 7:30 p. m.

A.A.U.W. forum, open meeting, Methodist Student house, 8 p. m.

Tuesday

Convocation, 11:30 a. m.

Orchestra rehearsal, auditorium, 7:30-9 p. m.

N.S.F.A. forum on student antiwar strikes, Log Cabin of education building, 7:45 p. m.

Wednesday

Artist Series, Josef Platirorsky, 'cellist, auditorium, 7:45 p. m.

Thursday

Orchestra rehearsal, auditorium, 4:30 to 6 p. m.

Alumnae Club Elects Mrs. George Lewis Group President

At the meeting of the Tallahassee Alumnae club on Wednesday afternoon at Rose hall, Mrs. George Lewis was elected president, while Mrs. Frank Moor as vice president and Mrs. Velma Keen as secretary-treasurer.

Speakers during the meeting were Dr. Dorothy Dodge, business manager, Mrs. Moor, and Dr. Mabel Ulmer, registrar. Each spoke on the need for a student-alumnae building which has been designated as the chief project of the college Alumnae association this year.

Those attending the meeting included: Miss Florence Tryon, Miss Ruth Cobb, Mrs. Ruth Scheerhorst, Miss Katherine Warren, Mrs. H. B. Hawkins, Mrs. Clark Fain, Mrs. Lou Egerton Whitfield Miller, Mrs. Evelyn Hunter Sweatt, Mrs. Sarah Davis Lewis, Miss Rachel Pitchford, Mrs. Velma Keen, Mrs. Elisabeth Byrd Taylor, Miss Sarah Frances Gray, H. Gordon ''', Mrs. Wilma Mayo, Mrs. Mary B. Affriend, Miss Rovena Longstreet, and Mrs. Velma Moor.

Alpha Gamma Delta Chapter Will Be Honored Tonight

Members and pledges of Alpha Gamma Delta sorority entertained their national inspector, Miss Ione Gere of New York City, at an after dinner coffee given last night in the sorority house.

Miss Riser will be honor guest tonight at a formal reception given by the members of the sorority. Faculty members, patrons, and friends have been invited. In the receiving line with Miss Riser will be the house mother, Mrs. Gilliland, and Misses Louise Hill, Catherine McGarry, and Mary Belle Strickland.

Members of the sorority include Misses Betsy Cowan, Virginia Scrimp, Madge Collier, Victoria Curtis, Mary Jane Gallemore, Helen Godwin, Julia Harrison, Mary Ann Hart, Louise Hill, Julia Hodgson, Elsie Kersey Nell Lassiter, Catherine McCarry, Middie Moore, O'Shaunkessy Mary Nell Pinch-er, Margaret Richards, Shirley Screven, Clara Stewart, Amber Turner, and Dorothy Williams.

Journalism Students Plan Weekend Stay At Camp Flastacowo

Between fifty and sixty journalism students are planning to spend this week-end at Camp Flastacowo. The C. M. E. will leave from behind Bryan hall at 1:30 tomorrow afternoon. It will return Monday morning before classes.

This will be the first opportunity for the freshmen and upperclassmen in this field to get better acquainted with each other. The campers will be free to go swimming in the new fifty-foot sailboat, or do whatever else they wish.

Chaperons for the party are: Miss Rachel Pitchford, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Leslie, and Mr. Mrs. Earl Vance.

ADAMS' STUDIO

PHOTOGRAPHS THAT PLEASE

119½ E. College Phone 297

KAPPA DELTA MEMBERS GIVE FORMAL RECEPTION FOR NATIONAL INSPECTOR

Honoring Miss Josephine King of Lakeland, national inspector and former chapter president, the members and pledges of the Kappa Delta sorority entertained at a formal reception Wednesday night.

In the receiving line were Miss King, Mrs. M. Perkins, house mother, Miss Ruth Schoenherst, faculty advisor, and Frances Thomas, president of the local chapter.

Members of the faculty, house members, and guests were present to meet Miss King at this time.

Hostesses for this occasion were: Helen Turnbull, Marjorie Noggle, Jane Tharin, Jo Taylor, Pegy McMichael, Lilly Ayala, Margaret Thompson, Anne Sams, Amelia Lockwood, Virginia Rogers, Frances Thomas, Dot Benford, Jean Brown, Dot McLean, Helen Ballenger, Jo Bunton, Sue Whitaker, Grace Whitaker, Jane Jackson, Anne Missli, Erma Engel, Madge Glenn, Jean Baughman, Lois Hooper, Jane Tillman, Jane Crook, Jare Crook, Doug Debney, Nell Rober Webb, Frances Lamotte, Mae Anderson, Petres Calantes, Beauford Thrower, Barbara Moore, Dee Carroll, Martha Edwards, Lutrelle Patterson, Janet Lockwood, Becky Ashton.

Virginia LaMotte, Caroline Edwards, Jeanette Litschgi, Martha Ballenger, Peggy Ayala, Emma Ft. Hebash, Ina Margaret Robinson, Hilma Young, Jeanne Webster, June Quinn, Bunny Turnbull, Uuncle McCloskey, Martha Van-Brunt, Clifton VanBrunt, Lavelyn Voss, Harriet Kent, Helen Murphy, Martha Sipe, and Anita Peak.

Student Believes Campus Politics Dull, Spiritless

Says Enthusiasm Injected Into Elections Only By Sorority Group, Which Often Uses Somewhat Dubious Methods

By NANCY ROGERO

Politics on this campus are dull. Student elections are a spiritless affair, with enthusiasm coming mainly from the sorority groups, who often use somewhat dubious political methods in the sweep of election of their respective candidates. This is not meant as an indictment against sorority members, however. The fact that they do put life into our rather lame campus campaigns absolves them of any criticism at the moment.

The question of things there is a lack of interest, at the student body itself—not the leaders, but the rolling stones, but its members as a whole. Undeniably, the average student at Florida does not concern himself more than vaguely with student activities. She is conscious that there is a college government association which functions on the campus, but that it is a judiciary body with which any personal contact is to be avoided, and that officers of these bodies are elected once a year.

She knows that campus publications have editors, chosen by general election, she realizes some what indifference that campus affairs are directed by some of her fellow students. But does she care a whit who is elected, what one candidate stands for as against another? Does she even care in what manner college activities are directed, so long as her own personal privileges remain unmolested?

The average student does not. She is interested in the cut system because it affects her personally. She likes to hear tales of the hard-heartedness of judiciary members, and the intuitive committee which assigns unthinking guilt—less cannabis who happened to meet with the judicial body as the result of some minor error in rules observance. But she feels no reverse student manifest any remarkable show of interest in the affairs of her college?

Perhaps. But it isn't exactly a conspicuous interest. Apparently college government lacks sparkle —the spice to rouse the necessary enthusiasm on the part of the governed. Other campuses are alive with flurries of excitement during election time; students repeat phonebooth activity with the entire group taking active interest in all that transpires during the election period. Every time a representative number asserts any noticeable degree of animation over the idea of election officers What do we lack?

Men, of course, our group can not truly expect to function realistically as an organization of citizens without the presence of the male portion of the population. But this does not happen to be a plea for co-education.

Certainly we would have more spirited elections if we were a coeducational institution. But it is the student belief that the student body of this college can be aroused to more animated interest by leaving out the importation of a Gainesville rabble rouser.

Why not try the two-party system? Competition provokes action. Organization of the two political parties, each with a definite platform, might arouse easement. Elections on the campus would be the candidates for office; student citizens would be forced to make decisions. Thoughtfully analysis of character would enter the situation, and the stimulation of constructive thinking might actually follow. Perhaps the most valuable result of such a program, however, would be the arousal of student enthusiasm for student government.

At the University of Florida members of the Democratic League and the Progressive League have split in two parties amidst the ballyhoo of soap-box speeches, torchlight parades, free cigars, and election cards—at the expense of the candidates and political leaders.

We need not go into the expense entailed by this method. Neither need we pass out free cigarettes to secure votes. Likewise, we would probably omit Dizzy Petzula Planet's baby-kissing act. But if we should apply some determined earnestness in the matter of stu-

Philosophy Students Give Dinner Party

Dr. Anna Forbes Liddell was entertained at dinner party Wednesday night at the Three Torches by members of her philosophy class in adventures in thought. The table decorations followed the theme of Plato's "Symposium."

Those attending were: Miss Ella Brown, Janet Pierce, Helen Brumbaugh, Jane Tharin, Mrs. Caldwell Wyman, Winifred Ewart, Mary Jeanne McKay and Adelaide Ireland.

YWCA Plans Candle Service This Week

Instead of the usual vesper service this Sunday night, the Young Women's Christian association will have another of it's candlelight services at 7:45 in the Augusta Conradi theatere.

The meeting will be opened-edd with a worship service led by Janice Borton, president of the organization.

Two musical selections will be given by Mickey Doan, Margaret Gourlie. Sara Hethcox. Maxine Ward, Ruth Knight, and Jean Odell.

Delta Zeta Sorority To Honor National Field Secretary

A formal reception honoring Miss Augusta Pitts of Birmingham, Ala., national field secretary of the Delta Zeta sorority will be given in the local chapter house tomorrow night at 8 o'clock.

The receiving room will be arranged attractively with bowls and vases of Killarney roses, the sorority flowers. Plants with rose and green minta will be served to the guests.

In the receiving line will be Miss Sadie Young, Mrs. Ada Bell Jones, Miss Pitts, and Miss Ireland.

Other hostesses will be Kathryn Hall, Edith Adkinson, Kay Harris, Emily Bush, Martha Moore, Mary Elizabeth Hall, Jane Ireland, Karolyn Patterson, Charlotte Davis, Thyra Thompson, Edith Compton, Julia Beckman, Jeanette Nordman, and Margaret Stoutamire.

Government Students Have Pow and Talk With Miss Irish

Miss Marion Irish entertained her class studying European governments at tea in her home Wednesday afternoon at which Martha Thomas, French student on campus, was the group on French government and politics.

Martha also discussed different phases of student life in France, France and England, illustrating her points with French newspapers.

Following the interesting talk Miss Irish served tea with cheese straws, brownies, and novelty pastries.

Members of the class who heard this interesting discussion were: Mary Elizabeth Herndon, Cita Goodell, Patricia Foster, Clotilde O'Rourke, Frances Moore Hartman Buford, Darween Morrell.

N.S.F.A. Discusses Strikes

The NSFA will meet Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the log floor of the education building to discuss anti-war strikes. Polly Cowan, who did great work during holidays represented the local chapter at the Madison convention held in New York city, will explain to the group what action the convention took in regard to strikes and the part strikes may play upon this campus.

dent affairs, perhaps we would receive a more spirited reaction on the part of the student body. The suggestion is offered with that purpose in view. Take it for what it is worth. How about it? Underying Democrats and Procrsvative republicans for board and better campus elections!

A fast talker often will speak as many as 150 words a minute, according to estimates.

Campus Vegetarians Strive To Radiate Perfect Health

Twenty-five Join in Band Who Refuse Bread, Meat And Dessert for the Sake of Elusive Qualities, Beauty and Comfort

By BLANTON BARRETT

To give up all those things which they believe, with justification, to be bad for their systems; to try to keep their movement from becoming a fad, and to progress quietly toward their goal or "perfect health" is the object of a little-known group of vegetarians on campus.

It seems almost unbelievable that some twenty-five girls would have restraint enough to refuse breads, meats, and desserts. But there is a group who have been for some time holding themselves to an entirely vegetable diet for beauty's sake.

"We believe," said the leader who wishes her identity to remain unknown, "that we are most healthy when we eat only those things which contain chlorophyll and carotin. We would prefer to live on raw vegetables alone for a while, for it seems that heat destroys some of the properties of the fresh vegetables. That is obviously impossible. Therefore we have developed a menu which is confined to fruits and fruit juices, and we eat salads and vegetables at the dining room."

That there was none of the "vegetarian movement" propaganda mixed up in the plan for health the captain was quick to affirm. "So far as the 'right' or 'wrong' of eating is concerned—we don't care. The problem has no moral aspects so far as we are concerned. The idea simply seemed like a good and economical method of keeping our collegiate freshness and we felt we were in danger of losing if we kept on stuffing on starches and sweets.

"The hardest thing about the whole diet is passing up the hot rolls and ice cream on Sundays. But we don't miss them for long now. At first we tried to get along without milk but we found the idea was very poor. After all, milk is one of the best foods there is and we had no intention when we began this scheme of behavior to "build" backsliding.

The girls have no meetings or meeting places. There is no formal "club" backing or assuming for perfect health. They rarely get together, and make no protests over taking food that they do not want on their plates.

"We don't want to make any play for publicity," several followers chorused. "We're doing the whole thing for our own good and that's about all. Some people turn around and stare. If a lot of people started they would soon get bored. They'd only take it once or twice if fad and pretty soon they'd want to quit. Anyone can see what an effect that would have on our group morale. We want to try to finish out the year the way we began it.

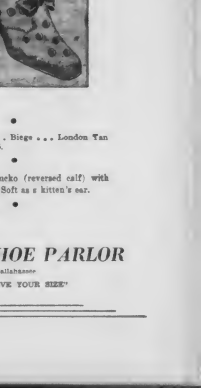
"Part of our daily program is to drink at least five swallows of water when ever we pass a fountain. You'd be surprised how the amount grows. That water, plus what we drink in the dining room at meal time—approximately two glasses a meal—makes a good deal more than the 'eight glasses daily' which the hygiene books prescribe. And you hardly realize how much you're drinking.

"At first we had a great deal of trouble over the cigarette question. Several of us were habitual smokers. Several more entertained a good deal for pleasure but didn't have the habit. Two weeks after we started on the new regime the problem solved itself. The girls gradually stopped wanting tobacco. Whether there was any scientific reason for this tiring of the stimulant we couldn't say. Five of the girls, though, who formerly smoked have entirely quit it. Others of us smoke now and then, but when we feel like it."

"Of course," the leader of the group took up the thought of the girl, "we still want things, particularly sweet things, rather badly at times. But we hope to continue our experiment for a few months longer without giving in to our whims and then see whether the result will be worth the sacrifice."

Traditional Pledge Dance Planned Saturday Night

Pledges of Alpha Gamma Delta will entertain at the sorority house Saturday night with "The Black and White," traditional pledge party of the sorority, which initiated are the pledges of all other sororities.



Decorations, costumes, and refreshments will all carry out a color plan of black and white, and during the entertainment for the evening clever dance routines will be staged.

Hostesses for the evening will be Misses Mary Knight, Carolyn Boyd, Jessis Coachman, Jane Cooper, Elizabeth Williams, Alma Godwin, Betty Hodgson, Irene Hutchinson, Helen Lane, Bettie Little, Eleanor Meigs, Eleanor Mullins, Kathryn Patterson, Louise Rooks, Mary Virginia Ruff, Laura Cole Trawick, Edith Underhill, Joyce Vann, Nancy Williamson, Myrtle Wilson, Jane Floyd, Isabelle Satterfield, Peggy Bottelier, and Marianna Swank.

VOGUE SHOE PARLOR

Presents the

MARDI-GRAS

As pictured . . .

Navy . . . Gray . . . Biege . . . London Tan . . . White . . . $6.75.

Made of unlined bucko (reversed calf) with hand turned soles. Soft as a kitten's ear.

Lo flat heels.

VOGUE SHOE PARLOR

Tallahassee

"WE HAVE YOUR SIZE"

European Trip Is Described By Miss Irish

International Relations Group Holds Regular Bi-Monthly Meet

A talk by Miss Marian Irish, associate professor of political science, in which she described her recent European trip was the featured part of the regular meeting of the International Relations Club last night.

Miss Irish illustrated her lecture with postcard slides, and described various places of interest that she visited.

Leaving New York on the Normandie the first of August, Miss Irish first went to England where she made her first stop at the historic city of Bath on the river Avon. Journeying on through England and Wales her views of the country were climaxed by a visit to London where Dr. Ben, the House of Commons, the House of Lords, Buckingham Palace, Westminster Abbey, and other traditionally famous points claimed her attention. Oxford University, Eton, Shakespeare's birthplace and the Stoke-Poges church were not overlooked in her route.

Traveling next to Holland, Miss Irish visited the court of International Justice and t'n took an automobile tour of Holland which included Delft, the villages, Edam, Burges, and many historic battle fields.

Visiting Germany then, Miss Irish described her voyage trip up the Rhine where the swastika flags and drilling troops showed Hitler's influence on every hand.

Continuing her talk Miss Irish told of her stay in Switzerland where she spent an auto trip over the Alps to Interlocken and visited the buildings of the League of Nations at Geneva.

Paris was the ending point of her trip. Here she saw the Louvre, Fontainbleau, Versailles and Ile Hall of Mirrors and paid a dollar and a half for an American breakfast of orange juice, toast, and scrambled eggs at the Cafe Rue de la Paix!

Association of Nurses Hears Reports on Many Professional Colleges

Reports of the curricula entrance requirements, expenses and tuition of several American schools of nursing featured the regular bimonthly meeting of the College Nurses' association held Wednesday night in the Science building.

The student nursing program of Vanderbilt university was outlined by Myrtle Wilson, the program at Duke university by Elenor O'Haver, and the nursing school of the University of Virginia by Frances Woodward.

Margaret Wheeler reported on the requirements of Yale university, which admits only students who have already received four-year diplomas in nursing, and open discussions were held. The meeting was followed by a social program with Florence Ward in charge.

Other members of the association are Marthajean Cook, Ruby Elizabeth Ellis, Barbara Endres, Beverly Horn, Catherine Levy, Helen Randel, Leona Rehbinder, Marcia Ricker, Jean Root, Lorena Simms, Jeanette Spector, Vivian Testa, Jane Thomas, Betty Wadsworth, Betty White, Julia Harrison, Jane Floyd, Charlotte Connell, Mary Bowman Smith, and Mary Catherine Coody.

Flastacowo Announces Cash Prizes for Best Snapshots in Contest

Cash prizes will be given for the two most oriatinal snapshots entered in the Flastacowo picture contest, which will be open until further notice.

"This contest is the result of an active hatred of 'posed" pictures. We are after something new and above all different. That is the picture's first requirement," stated Betty Wrenn, assistant editor of the 1937 Flastacowo.

The snapshots turned in will be used in the snapshot division of the annual. All sororities are responsible for getting their pictures in on time. Unless especially designated these pictures will not be in the contest, although they may be entered.

Ideal Roomie Doesn't Live Says Senior

Many Requirements Set Make Perfect Type Hardly Possible

By MARTHA LUMPKIN

What is your ideal roommate? What characteristics do you require in the girl with whom you choose to room?

The prompt answer to this question by many upperclassmen, usually seniors was, "There aren't any ideal ones." They required generally practical qualities in their roommates, while freshmen as a whole expected much more of theirs and required a more rigid adherence to certain qualities.

"My ideal roommate would be one with whom I could talk and share confidences," one freshman told me seriously, amid the gaiety of a Christmas party. "She would enjoy doing things with me and would be a companion and pal. She would not be too chummy though, but would respect my right at times and privacy on the subject of the convention.

Polly Ersleich, junior representative, told of his convention as a whole. Janice Borton, senior representative, discussed the work of the committees and the plenary sessions; and Mary Jeanne McKay, delegate at large and new vice president of the national group, spoke on the subject of the national federation, urging the students to support their organization.

because you were apt to let your feelings get the better of you around some one you know well, and would be more selfish, and not as considerate, since you know that she knows what you are like anyway."

ing and returned to the home room teacher in the afternoon.

The plan permits the student to carry on his work without the interruption of bells and does away with the rigid schedule of the ordinary school day. The backward student may gain added assistance in his weak subjects. Just as many assignments will be given as before, and the same amount of work covered.

One student was able to complete a statue for his manual training class and another to finish a term paper. Many of the students showed interest in the mechanical subjects such as typing, art work, and mathematics.

Dr. Richards is Guest Speaker at Meeting Of Upper-Class Debaters

Dr. Harold Richards was guest speaker at the meeting of the upper-class debate team held Tuesday afternoon in the Administration building.

Dr. Richards spoke on the technicalities of debating. He advised the debaters to have confidence in themselves, never to get embarrassed if they lost their place in their speech, and to have plenty of material but never to memorize a debate.

The next meeting of the team will be Tuesday at which time partners for the ladder tournament to be held in preparation for the debate with William and Mary college on March 5 will be appointed. The question for debate is that of minimum hours and maximum wages, the national college debate question.

Three Delegates Speak Tuesday on Convention

Florida State College's three delegates to the Twelfth Annual Congress of the National Student Federation of America spoke in chapel Tuesday morning on the subject of the convention.

Polly Ersleich, junior representative, told of the convention as a whole; Janice Borton, senior representative, discussed the work of the committees and the plenary sessions; and Mary Jeanne McKay, delegate at large and new vice president of the national group, spoke on the subject of the national federation, urging the students to support their organization.

Attend Baptist Convention

Bernice Oliver, left, president of the campus Baptist group, and Miss Billie Ruth Curtis, student secretary, attended the Baptist convention in Ocala this week. Miss Curtis was present at the entire sessions from Tuesday through Thursday, while Bernice attended the final sessions for the purpose of putting before the group plans for the construction of a Baptist student activity house in Tallahassee. Elsie Renfroe also attended the final sessions.

Demonstration School Adopts Plan Eliminating Time Schedules in Favor of Freedom for Pupils

Beginning last week the demonstration school of Florida State College for Women carried out a modified Dalton plan whereby the student is allowed to use his time at his own discrimination. The plan, if found to work sufficiently well, will be carried out for the rest of the year with a possible two-day session a week.

There are no classes scheduled during the day except music classes, physical education, girls' glee club, and orchestra practice which must necessarily be in group attendance. Each student has a card on which the teacher marks the hour of his arrival and departure. These cards are presented to the student in the morn-

Many Suffer Post-Season Quit Spells

Mailmen Deluged With Appeals and Threats During Aftermath

By MARY SULLIVAN

The post - Christmas season finds us each year with a host of dissatisfied maidens who have decided that, after all, Higher Education is not absolutely necessary to their well-being.

After spending an out-all-night, breakfast-in-bed, dear—I'm worried-about-you existence for two weeks they find it more than difficult to settle down to a life in which one hundred and ninety-nine girls aren't especially interested in Janie's ideas on Life and haven't time to worry about the fact that she has frequent headaches.

Letters are rushed home to mother. There are various types. The frantic "I can't-stand-it-any-longer" type has been sent religiously for the past two or three years and will, of course, be ignored after the first paragraph. The writer knows that Junior sends it more from force of habit than anything else. Another kind is more subtle. Milady adopts a very serious tone and tells mother that, after weighing both sides of the question carefully she has reached the conclusion that the only sensible thing to do is to leave school. If this is her first attempt at such a letter, mother is apt to be a bit impressed and might at first consider giving her consent. After the first surprise wears off, however, she will decide that daughter was wrong; the most sensible thing by far, is to remain in school.

Having written home students adopt different attitudes. Some fellowmen writhe Woe betide this fatalistic, having done what was expected of them, settle down to work, knowing that the subject of leaving will never be mentioned again. Others still have hopes, adopting the role of a not-very-interested parent the few remaining weeks of the semester. They ignore assignments gayly and have a "just-stopped-in-for-a while" air that makes their

FSC Paper Steals March on Monitor

The Flambeau published an article earlier than the Christian Science Monitor.

This little weekly with its circulation of scarce 2000, got in ahead of one of the world's greatest newspapers. Combating the extensive telegraphic and stenographic services of the Boston journal, the Flambeau of December 11, 1936, with only pencil and paper as transmitter and receiver printed a story that did not appear in a rival page until January 8, 1937.

This story was on that new game of "business."

Methodists to Present Special Music Program

The Methodist student league will present a special musical program Sunday night, directed by Mary Humphries and Marion Herbert. League supper will be served as usual at five o'clock. Sunday evening at 6 o'clock.

Miss Winnie Lee Davis, student secretary, will speak at the First May a Student Believe About Immortality?" At the regular Sunday school class Sunday morning Methodist students are continuing to make plans for a convention to be held at Southern college Lakeland, Feb. 5, 6, and 7.

Speech by Eyman Opens Series of Forums With Sponsorship by Y.W.C.A.

An address last night by Rev. L. Eyman on "Has Christianity Purpose for Christian Youth Vitalizing as Is Being Offered Communism or Fascism?" began a series of forums sponsored by the Young Women's Christian Association.

The underlying theme of the series, which is a follow-up program of the Religious Emphasis week activities, is, "Individual Christian Development."

Other talks in the series will be given by faculty members and religious leaders.

In the second lecture on the 26 Miss Rachel Wylie, student secretary of the Presbyterian church, will speak on the subject, "What Place Does Jesus Have in the Life of an Individual?"

Miss Maude Flowers, director of the residence halls, will outline "What Practices Make for Christian Growth," on Feb. 11, as a third address.

"The Psychology of Christian Experience" will be the theme of the talk to be given by Dr. Paul Pinner, professor of psychology on Feb. 25.

The last lecture will be given March 11, by Dr. Ralph Bellamy, head of sociology, on the topic "A Christian's Responsibility in Bringing About Social Justice."

little group when they learn that they are to be permanent fixtures in their Alma Mater until May at least.

One by one, those who will withdraw get word from here that they are not leaving, that on the contrary they are staying. The novices take it rather hard, but the more experienced ones accept their fate with a passiveness that is touching. In a few weeks they will have forgotten all about leaving and once more we go pegging along towards a degree.

Steaks, Fried Chicken, Deviled Crabs, Salads, Sandwiches and Goodies Galore Served Every Day at THE THREE TORCHES
Home You Tried Them!

Why Wear Blue
And Jitter on Exam Day?
Let's Study Instead

The Florida Flambeau

To Needy Students:
Read About Student-Loan
On Alumnae Page

Published by the Students of Florida State College for Women

Tallahassee, Florida, January 22, 1937

VOLUME XXIV. NUMBER FOURTEEN

Miss Skinner Will Present Entertainment

Artist Will Give Series Of Modern Monologues Tomorrow Night

HAS APPEARED IN MANY PRODUCTIONS

Repertory Has Sketches Of Comedy, Satire And Pathos

Cornelia Otis Skinner, monologuist and writer, will present a series of her original modern monologues tomorrow night at 7:45 o'clock in the college auditorium under the auspices of the artist series committee.

Repertory Has Sketches

Miss Skinner's repertory consists of six interesting comedy, satire, and pathos, sketches of which she is both the star and author. The program tomorrow night will include such monologues as "Motoring in the 90's," and "Stage Work," two comedies; the peculiarly satirical sketches "Beging Presented" and "A Southern Girl in the Metropolis"; "Lynch Party" and "Blind Pew"; a pathetic character study, "Times Square," a sketch which runs the whole gamut of emotions.

Daughter of the actor, Otis Skinner, she was born in Chicago. She attended Bryn Mawr college and the Sorbonne in Paris, later studying for the stage with the lecturers of the Comedie Francaise and at the school of Mazon Copeau. In 1928 she married Alan S. Hodgson.

Appeared in Play

Miss Skinner appeared in many parts, such as "Blood and Sand," and Shakespeare," "The Wild Parents," and "White Collars," when she started presenting original sketches and solo performances, the result of which was the first of these, "The Wives of Henry VIII," and "The Empress," a monologue.

In addition to her monologues Miss Skinner wrote a play, "Captain Fury," which was produced in 1928, and contributes verse and stories to many magazines. She recently had a book of her monologues published.

Press Comments

The London Times says of Miss Skinner: "She can make women enjoy treatment is to depend for a couple of hours she is rich in preliminary advantages. She is glad to see through the carriage and manner of a lady of quality." She makes no assault upon your confidence but, in the same manner, very rare in the theatre, surely and deftly assumes it and, whenever the part she is playing does not call for concealment, she has a genuinely beautiful

Continued on page four

Art Students To Show Work

Design Class to Exhibit In Ad Building On Week-End

Miss Amy Briggs, assistant professor of art, has announced that the students in the second year design class will exhibit their semester's work this week-end in room 307 Administration building.

The exhibit opens Friday and will continue through the week-end. The wall space in the room will be divided into sections in which each of the thirteen students in the class will display her own work.

Types of work which will be on display are: linoleum block prints, silks, Christmas cards of different designs, a book of poems between abstract designs, wooden bowls and book plates and bookmarks.

Students of the class are: Louise Allen, Dot McCullough, Margaret Jenson, Grace Clark, Jean Zachary Bonnycastle, Mary Elizabeth Fisher, Pearl Lewis, Jean Hodges, Mo Gaye Kelly, Mary Ellen Bittle, Mary Hamblen, and Mrs. E. V. McSwain.

Founders' Day Observed

Members of Theta Upsilon sorority entertained yesterday in honor of the twenty-third anniversary of the national organization. A special service, in memory of Delta, was held in observance of Founder's Day. Following the service, the chapter sponsored a tea with an informal wa-

Will Present Modern Monologues

Cornelia Otis Skinner, monologuist, who will present a program of modern monologues tomorrow evening at 7:45 o'clock in the college auditorium, as another of the Artist Series entertainments. Daughter of the actor, Otis Skinner, Miss Skinner is well known in her own right as a dramatic artist.

Editor Names Release Date For Magazine

Distaff Will Carry Wide Variety of Student Literary Work

The second issue of the Distaff, quarterly magazine edited by the students, will appear the first of next week, according to Evelyn Fluker, editor. It will contain a wide variety of literary material including articles, sketches, a story, poetry, book reviews, and art work.

"Premonitions," by Pearle Shepard, junior, with the subtitle, "Can We Use Our Dreams?" is an article discussing the ability of the student to carry over into later life the attitudes and ideals that are acquired during college.

Evelyn Fluker, junior, portrays human nature in a realistic sketch, "Sand Night."

Varying from the usual type of story is "Between Krugs Creek and Me," by Edna K. Burbank, an adult student. It carries with it the idea that helping others is not always as futile as it seems.

Two sophomores answer Martha Baker's article of last issue, "How Can We Do It?," in "How Can We Do Otherwise?" by Mary Noble, and "As Best We May," by Sadie Anderson.

Clodish O'Rourke has done a character sketch of her own favorite, "Members Are Like That."

The issue will contain poetry, "Observation" by Mavis McMillan, "Portrait" and "Ballade" by Evelyn Fluker, "Out Under the Trees" and "Tryst" by Phil Asher,

Continued on page two

Proposals Are Given Faculty Senate Group

Suggestions Concerning Integrated Courses Are Offered

At a recent meeting of the faculty senate the committee on tests and examinations, of which Mark H. Ewerly is chairman, made three major recommendations to the senate concerning the integrated courses.

The committee's first recommendation was that for the first semester the construction and the grading of the final comprehensive examinations in the integrated courses be left entirely to the departments concerned. To those particular departments the committee suggested as close an approach to uniformity among the examinations prepared for the different sections of a given integrated course as would seem feasible. It was also recommended that a considerable part of the final examinations in the integrated course be of the objective type.

For the first semester of 1936-37 the tests and examinations committee asked that copies of all final examinations in the integrated courses be given to the committee chairman in the same form as given to the students. Furthermore, it requested that all final examination papers written

Continued on page two

Auction Sale Attracts Many Prospective Student Buyers

Handbags, Cigarette Cases, Compacts, and Pens Are Among Coveted Articles Offered As Colossal Bargains

By ANN LADD

Clang! Clang! Clang! The deafening clang of the large bell announced to the crowd in lower Bryan atrium that the auction had begun.

"What do I hear for this beautiful hand made pocket book? An heirloom handed down to your children!! Handkerchief and lipstick thrown in. Ten cents. Do I hear twenty? Do I hear twenty? Twenty! Who'll raise to twenty-five? Going! Gone to the girl in the rose sweater for twenty-five cents."

"Now here is a handy little leather number. Will make an excellent change purse or tobacco pouch. Gone for ten cents."

"I'm awfully sorry but I haven't any money with me. I'll have to take it on credit."

A cigarette case bedecked with an R.B.C.W. seal was sold for ten cents. Elegant party hankie, rings, compacts and bracelets were sold for amazingly small amounts.

"Quiet! Down in front! Down in front! We can't see."

"And now ladies! We come to the fountain pens. No try outs. All are good pens. If the pens don't work you can have them back. Take a chance. What do I hear?"

Parker models were sold for as low as fifty cents and the more unidentified models were sold for ten cents.

"An academy ring! I've got to have that. Jane! If that big Cuban thinks he's the O and O, I'll show him a thing or two. Ten cents!"

"Ah! This beautiful academy ring sold to the little lady with the blond curly locks for ten cents!"

Now here's another ring with a green setting. Sterling silver.

Continued on page three

Thirteen Give Vote Favoring Peace Strikes

NSFA Forum Has Debate On Anti-War Action Suggested Here

NEGATIVE LOSES BY SINGLE VOTE

Supporters Want Active Part in Arousing Public Feeling

After considerable debate students attending the N. S. F. A. forum Tuesday night passed a resolution, by a 13-12 vote, which stated that they favored participation in the anti-war strike to be held in various colleges throughout the country on April 17. An amendment included in the resolution provided that the strike should not be held without the cooperation of the administration. The resolution as amended will go to the student senate for consideration by that body and other campus organizations.

Arguments Debate Strike

Those who favored the strike as a means of showing disapproval of war, declared that the students would have the chance for active participation rather than passive listening, as is usually the case, and that a strike of this would arouse the public to the realization that the young people are thinking of the problem of war today, and have a right to their opinions. They pointed out that a strike would be an interesting and impressive way of presenting such opinion and said that an anti-war strike is already planned on a nation-wide basis and would, therefore, be more effective than a single demonstration by one college.

Opposition to Strike

Those who opposed the strike contended that peace movements should be driven by legislative methods. They recommended that a constructive program should be arranged rather than a mere demonstration, and they advocated a mass and sincere petition for the purpose of educating students concerning the peace movement.

Based on these reasons and as a counter-suggestion to an anti-war strike, the forum at a national

Continued on page two

AAUP To Hold Joint Meeting

Conclave is Planned For February 7 Weekend In Gainesville

The local chapter of the American Association of University Professors has accepted an invitation from the University of Florida chapter to be host at a meeting in Gainesville the week-end of Feb. 6-7. One of the interesting features of the program will be a luncheon meeting at the Primrose Grill on Saturday, Feb. 6.

This is the second joint meeting held during the year. Rollins College and the University chapters last year met at Rollins in a closer harmony in connection with certain projects.

The meeting last year took place in Tallahassee.

It is expected that representatives from all other Florida colleges and universities will be invited the Gainesville meeting, and that a state-wide organization may be formed to include the several chapters in the state.

About fifty members of the faculty comprise the local chapter of which Earl L. Vance is president.

Three Men's Glee Clubs Will Appear Here Soon

An announcement that the Mercer, Emory, and Florida State clubs will appear at the college next semester was made at the meeting of the executive Tuesday afternoon, Mary Miller, president, announced. A committee of which it was decided that the services would sponsor the Glee club programs.

The object of class rings was discussed and the revised old ring was accepted as the one to be used this year. Seniors may place their orders in the bookstore.

Committees for the Junior-Senior prom were appointed with Betty Hammond heading the refreshment committee, and Marjorie Tillis in charge of the entertainment.

Photos Taken Here Seen in Yale Paper

Appearing in the January 15 issue of the Yale Alumnae Weekly was a picture of President Edward Conrad, and Professor Walter R. Cowles of Florida State College for Women, with Dean Charles R. Brown, Dean Emeritus of the Divinity School of Yale university. The picture was taken during Dean Brown's visit to Florida State college in October.

Talk Is Given On Education By Dr. Hinson

School System Problems Will Be Considered By Legislature

At the monthly meeting of the American Association of University Women Monday, Dr. Dorothy Hinson, of the education department, instructor by Miss Pepper, gave a brief history of education in public schools in Florida, and recommended the system to be brought up in the next legislative session.

Dr. Hinson told briefly of the rise of the school system since the constitution of 1868. With the Civil War in 1845, when there were famous free schools in Florida. The first "free schools" were supported by subscriptions and were considered free schools.

The first public funds for schools were obtained from the income from the 16th section lands given the state by the federal government. These public funds were for the support of free schools only. Since that time high school taxes. The registrar of school was a state superintendent: there was no administrative system set up. The southern part of Florida was settled by Spaniards. When the first school system was set up the superintendent of public instruction.

A law in 1893 provided that county commissioner might appropriate funds for school purposes, making possible for the first time direct support of schools with county funds. Although there were a number of academies, public schools before the Civil War were mostly for the white people, while there were no schools for negroes.

The constitution of 1868 provided that the state superintendents, members of county boards of public instruction, and trustees be appointed. Before that they have been elected by popular vote since the Constitution of 1885. Thus a highly centralized system was set up, with the people appointed to these positions and often well qualified. The one mill tax provided at this time is still the state tax for public schools. Counties have no special taxes.

In the Constitution of 1885 a

Continued on page four

French, Spanish Honor Societies Hold First Of Joint Discussions

Theta Kappa, French honorary society, and Sigma Delta Pi, Spanish honorary society, held their first joint meeting of the year at 4 o'clock in Broward club room.

At this time Mrs. Dorothy Bell, Miss Margaret Campbell, and Miss Elisabeth Hutt of the administrative staff gave short talks about the convention of the National Modern Language Association which they attended during the holidays. Sessions were held in Richmond, Washington, Burg, Virginia.

Both societies hold their regular business meetings during the first part of the week.

Officers Will Lecture On College Government

Beginning the week after examinations, a series of lectures on college government by officers of the association will be given every Thursday and Friday at 4:30 o'clock. Mary Jeanne McKay, the first speaker, will present a general outline of the whole organization.

These lectures are being given in an attempt to clarify for the students the working of their government on this campus. Many students, according to Mary Jeanne, do not know that organizations like the National Student Federation of America are branches of the association. The handbook which explains this is either too brief or is not read, she said.

18 To Receive Degrees When Semester Ends

Many Integrated Courses Offered to Freshmen For First Time

GRADES DUE OUT BY FEBRUARY 6

Today Named Final Date To File Schedules For Second Term

Following five days of examinations the first semester of the 1936-37 term of Florida State college will draw to a close next Friday. This semester has seen the new two-year curriculum for freshmen and sophomores established and the revised grading system put into operation. While there have been some changes made in the curriculum for the second semester a number of the integrated courses for freshmen will be offered for the first time.

Eighteen to Graduate

Eighteen degrees and certificates will be presented Friday night to graduating students. Although no formal commencement exercises will be planned for these candidates they will have the privilege of returning for the May ceremonies.

Today marks the last time that schedules for the second semester may be made out in the office of the registrar. Dean Pepper announced that every student must comply with this regulation. A student who has completed his work this semester must make a copy of his schedule for the second semester, while those changing their schedule must secure a written statement from the dean before going to the registrar's office to make out their final slips.

If there are any changes to be made in schedules depending upon grades, schedules should be made out as near the end of January as made during the first week of the second semester.

Examinations will continue from Monday through Friday, and will follow the schedule already posted, with the exception of a correction announced by S. R. Doyle, registrar. Examinations in the integrated courses meeting Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday at 2:30 o'clock will be given Friday morning at 8:30-10:30 o'clock at the same time as the 2:30 o'clock classes. Examinations in the integrated courses should be scheduled for Friday at 1:30 o'clock.

The first grades of the year will probably be ready for distribution the following week-end, it was stated by Friday afternoon or Saturday morning. Feb. 5 or 6. On the quarter periods only "unsatisfactory" and "satisfactory" first year grades were given at the quarters but were not part of the permanent records of the students. This change has been made in order to emphasize undue emphasis from grades.

Inquiries from various applicational have been coming to the registrar's office from old students, high schools and the National graduates. Mr. Doyle, judging from past experience estimates

Continued on page four

Sophomore Succumbs To Dire Ill Inflicted By Professor

"Term Paperitis" Claims Another Victim; Coeds Are Exposed to Infectious Melody By Hard-Hearted Teachers

Justa Sophomore
Deceased, January 31, 1937.
"She devoted her college life to term papers."

Term papers — two ominous words in decoded probably seconded only to examination week. It's just a tiny phrase, but full of meaning to the student for it means so unfortunate as to be assigned the task.

To the professors, the neatly-typewritten, well-bound, carefully painstakingly copied in ink or on the typewriter, represent a personal accomplishment. Completely unaware of the havoc they have caused, they survey these material results of student effort. Behind the scenes, the students have a different interpretation of what they stand for. As one senior remarked, "They stand for a lot. In fact, I've stood for them for years."

When a term paper is assigned, the average student probably has several responses. First, she has a sinking feeling which begins as a mental headache and then drops agonizingly to her stomach. Then she marks in her notebook, using huge, important letters, "Term paper, due three weeks from today." From this stage on, students may be separated into two types.

In Class A is the student, undoubtedly rare, judging by recent comments heard on the campus, who begins work immediately and has her thesis finished a week in advance of the due-date. Class B, The more common type, Class B, includes the student who has several term papers to do, and starts preparations a week or several days before the deadline. In either case, the paper is a nightmare until finished.

In spite of popular faculty belief, the average student has a limited number of hours in the college

Continued on page four

National Peace Day Planned By Council

College Ranks Fifth Largest In Enrollment

Enrollment Has Increased Since Survey Made Preceding Year

Florida State College for Women is the fifth largest woman's college in the United States this year, according to a survey of college enrollment just announced by Dr Raymond Walters, president of the University of Cincinnati.

Florida State College, now witnessing its largest enrollment in history for this time in a year, shows an increase of 9.7 per cent or approximately 100 students at the time of the survey as compared with that time last year.

The ten largest women's colleges in the country this year, showing enrollment November 1, 1936, according to Dr Walters are: Hunter, 6,506, Texas State College for Women, 2,287; Sweet Briar, 1,069, Women's College of the University of North Carolina, 1,-795; Florida State College for Women, 1,728; Simmons, 1,500; Randolph, 1,474; Winthrop, 1362; Georgia State College for Women, 1,279; and Vassar, 1,192.

Hunter College continues to rank first in enrollment among women's colleges and the other ten have changed somewhat in their relative positions. However the entry of Texas State College for Women, which was unreported last year; Sweet Briar, which has not reported the others down one place in the scale. Florida State College for Women, which first place last year has exchanged places this year with the Woman's College of the University of North Carolina.

Dr. Walters based his findings on reports from 302 reported institutions which include co-educational and men's colleges and universities as well. The institutions in his survey show 746,-224 full-time students and a much grand total, including part-time and summer school registration, of 940,786 resident students. These figures represent an increase of 6.5 per cent in full-time enrollment over 1935 and the grand total advance was 7.3 per cent.

Dr. Walters annually publishes a survey of college enrollment statistics in the third December issue of the School And Society magazine.

This 1936 survey by Dr Walters was utilized as a compilation prepared by the Council on Medical Education of the American Medical Association. It included both universities and senior colleges approved by the United States Education Association of colleges and secondary schools, the North Central Association of colleges and secondary schools, the Northwestern association of secondary and higher schools, the Southern association of colleges and secondary schools and the co-educational members of the New England association of colleges and secondary schools.

Country-wide Observance Is Scheduled For April 17

TO MAKE CONTACT WITH ALL SCHOOLS

Florida State College Wishes to Unify All Programs

"National Peace Day" a plan for the nation-wide participation of college youth in locally organized peace activities was instigated this week by executive council of College Government association. This action has been unofficially approved by members of the college council.

To Vitalize Sentiment

The plan is the outgrowth of a nation-wide peace sentiment which Florida State college feels might so vitalized by an organized national observance. Maintaining that every campus should indicate its desire for peace in a manner which will not only be effective locally but also nationally, executive council feels that the plan to bring local peace programs throughout the United States into a country-wide program would serve as a more positive means of publicizing the feelings of college youth. At the same time Florida State feels it will serve as a unifying link for all programs.

The executive council plan for a national peace day will be presented to the student body at the next convocation, indicates that every college in the country will be contacted and their opinion obtained on the proposal. Where colleges do not as yet have any peace machinery in operation Florida State will furnish details of programs which may be revised to fit local needs. Where such machinery does already exist, Florida State will ask for cooperation in making the peace movement a nation-wide affair, regardless of observance procedure adopted on individual campuses.

Council Has Local Plan

Executive council reiterated that it also has a local plan in mind, the details of which will be worked out during the next two weeks and presented to senate in its first session after examination week.

Certain features of the local plan, however, have been tentatively worked out and would include the first of a series for the cooperation of the faculty in carrying out the provisions of war and peace on Saturday, April 17.

Secondly, April 17 would be devoted to some form of campus-

Continued on page three

Minstrel Cast Is Made Known

Jones Announces Players For Production Now In Rehearsal

The cast for Junior Minstrels was announced this week by Marjorie Jones, general chairman for the performance. The Minstrels is now under rehearsal and will be presented on the night of February 19.

The cast as announced by Marjorie is as follows: Reporters, Alicia Meachan, Pat Mack, Sara Ann Ivey, Frances Moss; the drunk, Elva Melvin. Announcer, Sarah Bowman; old maid, Eloise Trott; journalist, Dot Barr; girl, Mickey Conn; Queen of Venus, Dot Hill; Miss Elisabeth Hardee jester, Bobby Watson; dancers, Margaret Stacy; and dance groups directed by Betty Catlund and Jo Rinion.

Although the play is produced by the Junior class, representatives from all classes are included in the cast. The time of the play, which is as yet without title, will be set in both the present and the future.

Murphy to Give Recital

Miss Augusta Murphy of the music faculty will give a violin recital in the college auditorium at 7:45 o'clock, Friday, Jan. 8.

Miss Murphy will be accompanied by Miss Mary Jane Winslow, pianist and also of the music faculty.

Church Groups Plan For Teas Between Exams

Methodist Students Make Plans for Conclave To Be Held Soon

Exam week will be marked by religious organizations on campus with teas in the various student houses, as well as regular meetings during the week.

"Marching Orders in the Mountains" will be the subject of the regular Sunday night meeting of the Presbyterian student league. At this time Lillie McGuire and Frank Wildman will tell of their experiences last summer in the north Georgia mountains, where they held Bible schools and lived among the people of that district.

Five members of the freshman Sunday school class have charge of the morning worship services this month. They are: Marjorie Marwick, Jean Hampton, Katharine Graham, Betty Barfield, and Mary Alice Lester. This class, of which Lalla Pierson is president, will be honorees to all the league members at a chicken dinner on February 8, at 6 o'clock in the church annex. All those wishing to go are requested to sign on the "Presbyterian bulletin board in the lower floor of the Administration building. Admission will be twenty-five cents and a baby picture of yourself.

The league is planning an all-day hike to the Country Club estate on the Saturday following examinations. Further announcement concerning this will be made on the bulletin board.

During examination week the regular morning watch service and communion service, will be held as usual in Rugg hall. Every afternoon from 4:00 to 5:00 tea and crackers will be served at Rugg hall for Episcopal students and friends. Betty Ostlund, Peggy Haines, and Mary Elizabeth Daughtry are in charge.

Exam teas will also be served as the Methodist student house Monday through Thursday, from 4:00 to 5:00. Mac Vet Holway, general recreational chairman of the Methodist student group, will have charge of programs of music, reading, games, and general relaxation, assisted by Methodist council members and hall chairmen. Tea, coffee, and cookies will be served each afternoon.

Miss Wilmoe Lee Davis, Methodist student leader, will conclude her series of talks on "What May a Student Believe" Sunday morning at the regular Sunday school meeting with "What May a Student Believe About the Church."

Regular league supper will be served at the student house Sunday night "Is Christianity Practical?" will be the topic of the league program, with Robert Bliss as leader. Methodist students are continuing plans to attend the state-wide Methodist student conference which will be held February 5, 6, and 7 at Southern college, Lakeland. Theme of the meeting will be "Christian Action on the Campus," and Dr. W. Aiken Smart will be the keynote speaker. Other speakers will include Dr. N. C. McPherson, general representative of seminar groups, Billie Matthews, University of Florida, who will speak on "Christian Leadership;" Dr. Spivey of Southern college, whose topic will be "Christian Ethics;" Dr. Raymond Bellamy, Florida State, who will discuss "Thinking on Campus."

Proposals Are Given Faculty Senate Group

Continued from page one

by the students in these courses, after being graded and plainly marked, be preserved by the department and made available to the committee upon request.

The final recommendation that the committee was that for the second semester of 1936 and 1937 and thereafter the final comprehensive examination in any one integrated course be uniform for all sections of that course and that it be approved by the committee on tests and examinations before being given to the students.

Miss Skinner Will Present Entertainment

Continued from page one

vice. Her work, in brief, is not mere casting of personality upon the waters of easy enthusiasm. It is gracious, polished, careful, and original. A sensitive and cultivated mind looks through it. It asks not to be outfaced at, but to be enjoyed with discrimination."

"Enthralling entertainment" is the New York Times' judgment of Miss Skinner's program, while the Boston Transcript remarks that "Miss Skinner rises to poignant monologue, in our theatre a field of her own."

Reserved seat tickets for this program will be issued today from 2:30 to 6 o'clock in the college box office.

Englishmen Visit Here

Lord Gerald Gordon of Cumberland, England, left, and Sir Geoffrey Mardon of Devonshire, right, who visited the campus here Sunday. They came here with Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Grimes of Palmetto, who had met them previously in Lakeland. Mr. Grimes is attorney for the Florida Citrus Commission and here the party visited Mary Glenn Grimes, the Grimes' daughter, who is a freshman at the college. (Courtesy of Florida State News).

Nobility From England View College on Tour of Florida

Believe American Girls Better-Looking as Whole Than English Sisters; Impressed With Manner in Which Food Served

By FRANCES BRUNSON

Nobility came to the campus last week.

Sir Geoffry Bart Mardon of Devonshire, and Lord Gerald Hugh Gordon of Cumberland, England, who are touring Florida for the first time, spent last Sunday on the college campus.

Coming to America from England, the two landed in New York City, from where they traveled down to Florida, visiting in Miami and Lakeland. While in Miami they were entertained by Mr. Roebuck of Sears and Roebuck. During Christmas holidays they will go to Bermuda, returning to Florida several days ago.

Dressed in English tweeds, brown suede shoes and green felt coats and ties on which the figures of a horse and a dog were hand-painted, they observed life at a typical American girls' college. They stated that in their opinion American girls were better "turned out" then the English. Girls in this country are better looking as a whole than the English, although not individually.

The Englishmen, who came to Tallahassee with Mr. and Mrs. Grimes of Palmetto, Fla., were impressed by the great number of girls eating in one dining room and the manner in which the meal was served. They were surprised that the food was passed around the table instead of being served individually over their shoulder. They considered the girls' starting rude and bold, and because of this, almost refused to enter the dining room.

In England they have seven meals each day, consequently our dinner seemed insufficient to them. Every morning at 11:00 they are served tea and fruit cake in bed. At 8:00 they have breakfast, consisting of porridge, fish, coffee, marmalade, and toast. At 11:00 a mid-morning tea is served and at 1:00 there is a five-course lunch. Tea-time is 4:15, and at 8:30 the main dinner is served, consisting of eleven courses. Everyone dresses formally for this and never thinks of being late for the meal. It took much persuasion to convince the Englishmen that it was not proper to attend dinner at night in this country in tails.

After dinner the ladies withdraw to the drawing room and the men remain in the dining room for their wine and smokes. Later they join the ladies and they have dancing or the group attends the theatre. At 11:00 o'clock a light meal is served, after which the family retires. So-dish do they stay up par midnight.

Being of the noble class of England, Sir Mardon and Lord Gordon have strict ideas regarding their position. While they object to being addressed by their titles, they will not endure being called "Jeff" or "Gerry." In England their association with women is formal, and they cannot understand the friendly relationship that is prevalent in America. When dancing the lady is held at arms' length, and she never takes the male's arm. Instead, when it is necessary, she lightly touches the man's elbow. Walking around the floor between dances remembered with tennis in cages is their estimation.

Lord Gordon said he had never been so insulted as when an American lady told him he resembled some movie star. Actors in their country are considered people of the lower classes.

They object to riding in closed cars, and seldom purchase one. The extremes of Christmas holidays they will go to Bermuda, returning to Florida several days ago.

Another girl is always afraid that she will fall, so she wears only low-heeled slippers, watches her every step, and always takes to the rear in a procession so she won't be the one to fall.

At the close of some students' short year at Florida State college, their more prominent and outstanding pet fear is the appearance of the opposite sex. When peace demonstration day was offered. The bachelor thought that such a day would cause the students to think seriously concerning peace, rather than to think of it in terms of strike that allowed them to walk out of class for an hour.

Thirteen Given Vote Favoring Peace Strike

Continued from page one

The American Youth Congress originated the idea of a national anti-war strike, at the 10 to 12 conference held in New York during the Christmas holidays, the 250 college representatives to evenly divided for and against the strike.

visory, and with power to employ the county superintendent of public instruction. Next, he suggested that the county superintendent be professional and executive officer of the board.

Elimination of the school board of trustees, whose places were to be taken by a local school representative, was the next proposal.

Dr. Hinson also suggested a gradual change in the manner of choosing school officials. The state superintendent, state members of board exofficio, there were trustees of special tax, and county superintendent was elected. Dr. Hinson continued, explaining the changes in the mill tax for schools. Before 1926 state funds could not be appropriated for schools.

Dr. Hinson continued his talk with a discussion on a number of changes necessary in the public school system. His first proposal was that a state board of education action serve without pay, taking the place of the ex officio board. This board would be composed of seven to nine members, appointed by the governor, with overlapping terms and with power to employ state superintendent of public instruction.

His second proposal was for a professional state superintendent, with qualifications set by law. Next, he proposed for the county boards of education, consisting of three members elected from the county at large, to serve without pay, with duties legislative, advisory, and with power to employ the county superintendent of public instruction. Next, he suggested that the county superintendent be professional and executive officer of the b.ard.

Elimination of the school board of trustees, whose places were to be taken by a local school representative, was the next proposal.

Dr. Hinson also suggested a gradual change in the manner of choosing school officials. The state superintendent, state members of board exofficio, there were trustees of special tax, and county superintendent was elected. Dr. Hinson continued, explaining the changes in the mill tax for schools. Before 1926 state funds could not be appropriated for schools.

Dr. Hinson continued his talk with a discussion on a number of changes necessary in the public school system. His first proposal was that a state board of education action serve without pay, taking the place of the ex officio board. This board would be composed of seven to nine members, appointed by the governor, with overlapping terms and with power to employ state superintendent of public instruction.

His second proposal was for a professional state superintendent, with qualifications set by law. Next, he proposed for the county boards of education, consisting of three members elected from the county at large, to serve without pay, with duties legislative, ad-

Senior Elects New Coiffures Greatest Hate

Others' Aversions Range From Bolled Eggs To Spanish

By BETTY LOU INGERMAN

Everything from Spanish and hard-boiled eggs form the pet antipathies of students at Florida State. Even the new coiffures displayed by some students are included in the "no nominate for oblivion" list.

"Each girl to her own tastes," said a tall senior, "but in my opinion there is nothing so disgusting as to see a person doing very campus and see "bananas" of innumerable sizes sticking up on the heads of nine out of every ten girls.

"I am referring to the new style of hair dress; if only the girls could realize how detrimentally ruins the contour of the head. That is my pet hate and will continue to be so until curls are worn where they should be—at the hair-line."

Another student whose her pet hate is seen fat-legged girls wearing socks, and particularly heavy woolen socks in order to accentuate the size of the ankles.

While one girl hates Spanish with a purple passion, another violently hates hard-boiled eggs, hates to go to Spanish class unprepared.

In reference to food, a junior writes that he hates to see girls thought of soft-boiled eggs; while a senior, who having been here four years, tells of the peculiar sensation she experiences at the sight of prunes on the same day that the wines of the Administration building are being pressed.

The thoughtful person puts her pet hate in the form of "insincerity," but the "cut-lose and fancy-free" specimen of femininity takes in knowing stair in her class, the one who has always been teacher's pet, and who knows the answer to every problem.

Pet fears also play a definite part in every girl's life.

Many have the fear of water and fire. Several girls tell of crossing the street to avoid a vicious bull-dog.

One student experiences the horrible desire to jump off some high place, and she fears that some day she will carry out such a threat; for this reason she stays on level ground.

Another girl is always afraid that she will fall, so she wears only low-heeled slippers, watches her every step, and always takes to the rear in a procession so she won't be the one to fall.

At the close of some students' short year at Florida State college, their more prominent and outstanding pet fear is the appearance of the opposite sex. When

Freshmen Baptists Plan Two Contests

Continued from page one

At the meeting of the freshman B. Y. P. U. on campus last Sunday night, the union initiated itself the "C. O. D. B. Y. P. U., the first three letters standing for "Christ Our Deliverer."

Plans were made for a poster and an efficiency contest which will last three months, at the end of the efficiency contest the winning group is to be entertained by the losers.

Editor Names Release Date For Magazine

Continued from page one

and "Alone" by Anna Marie Mitchell.

The book reviews include "The People Yes" by Carl Sandburg, reviewed by Frank Wildman; "An American Dentistry Odyssey" by Victor Heiser, M. D., reviewed by Pearle Shepard; "The Return to Religion" by Henry C. Link, reviewed by Sarah Sealey; "The Flowers of New England 1815-1865" by Van Wyck Brooks, reviewed by Marjorie Oates; "Tang first at school they did not miss the presence of the "he-man," but by the close of the first semester they had so trained themselves to be entirely independent that the sight of a manly form in the parlor sent cold chills up and down their spines.

18 To Receive Degrees When Semester Ends

Continued from page one

that they will prove to be useful fifty entrants at mid-term.

There will be a few changes in the curriculum. A new course giving three semester hours' credit in Curriculum. A new course giving three semester hours' credit in Curriculum will be offered. It is education 393 and will deal with rural education. Dr. Ralph Eyman is the professor. Upon sufficient demand education 118, dealing with methods of teaching arithmetic, will be offered also. The course will give one hour's credit and will meet every Tuesday at 2:30 o'clock. Education 302A, methods in elementary school work, has been reduced to a three hour course as in former years.

From the physical education department comes the announcement that a new class in tap dancing for beginning upperclassmen has been added to the curriculum. The sociology class in marriage and the family, given second semester by Dr. Coyle E. Moore, is scheduled to meet Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday at 9:30 o'clock, instead of the hours it and Yin" by Alice T. Hobart, reviewed by Dorothy Barclay; and a play, "St. Helena" by Irwin Shaeffr and Jeanne De Casalis, reviewed by Peggy McMichael.

As frontispiece, there is an extravasanna, "Bank Night," by Ruth Sadler, senior, and accompanying the book review there is a portrait, "Carl Sandburg," by Grace Whitaker, senior.

Soup to Be Served During Exam Week

During exam. week soup will be served to students just as in former years.

The soup will be served in Gilchrist, Reynolds, and Jennie Murphree parlors for students living in these dormitories while students living in Bryan and Broward, and those living off-campus will be served in Bryan.

The serving will begin at 10 o'clock and continue until 11 each morning.

The week-ends are shortened by Saturday classes, and during this time the student should have the human privilege of a few hours of recreation. There's no rest for the weary.

The instructor should not assign more work than can be done efficiently or try to cover a year's work in one semester. However, tradition continues and the students continue to be subjected to what becomes sleepless examination and a danger to individuality.

It is small wonder that the student loses her religion, when she is must spend her time trying to a mechanical god. "Please, let me get my term paper done on time!"

Even a doomed man, eternally awaiting execution, has his values granted.

Sophomore Succumbs To Dire Will Inflicted By Her Professor girl's day. There are classes to attend, lessons to prepare, practice work, and scores of personal things, none of which are effectively done because of lack of time. The term paper must somehow be crammed into the routine schedule, at the cost of much energy and loss of sleep. And for what purpose? The few little stacks of papers, usually to be graded by an assistant.

Continued from page one

The week-ends are shortened by Saturday classes, and during this time the student should have the human privilege of a few hours of recreation. There's no rest for the weary.

The instructor should not assign more work than can be done efficiently or try to cover a year's work in one semester. However, tradition continues and the students continue to be subjected to what becomes sleepless examination and a danger to individuality.

It is small wonder that the student loses her religion, when she is must spend her time trying to a mechanical god. "Please, let me get my term paper done on time!"

Even a doomed man, eternally awaiting execution, has his values granted.

Sports Squints

By "JINKY" BROOKS

Tee, the warm weather to date is perfect for tennis, horse-back riding, golf and camp-trips, but don't pack up the sweaters and skis yet, for round-the-log day is just around the corner beyond rain-soak!

The natural report on the sailing at camp is it underwent a wet-out last week-end. Frances Hill and Valerie Hunt took a sail for a sail accompanied by Miss Dickenson. After their return to campus we lend-rubbers are first taste of sailing-lines since Miss Dickenson said the trip was a bit "wacky," but a "coming" success on the way out!

The new tap-dancing class for sophomores will not be closed to outsiders by both exemption-hunters and would-be partners for Pop Ansley.

The very latest activity enjoyed by college girls seems to be roller-skating. The rink down by the high school is generally occupied by small tots who show up every time we do, but Jefferson doesn't appear to be rapidly getting to be a skating-rink. Several weeks ago a few bicycles rested for fifteen-cents an hour. Wonder how much the skate cost?

Just three more weeks for Odd and Even hockey and soccer practice! All sports are very active at present, and the Odd-Even contest next week will bring a close to the practice, and the start of enthusiasm. For the past few years the interest in the fighting of these two Odd-Even games has not been as great as the interest in the games played at Thanksgiving. This year let's make the fight for all as loud and the spirit of competition just as strong as it was before and Evens did either in the year!

For all the girls who find tennis too much to master, the new game of badminton, introduced on campus, should prove interesting. It might not be as hard to play as an ball and tennis, but it's composed of both as a tennis-ball!

Those wet, bedraggled, but triumphant looking girls you've been seeing this week are those who passed their swimming-examination. Everyone who has an physical education courses have been a full-swing this week, and the results can be heard around very corners: "I passed—", or "I didn't!"

We should make the Olympics yet! Last week an excellent exhibition in high-jumpers was given by some girls returning from Paris. It seems it was not professional for they were frightened off by some furry-looking stuff being thrown across the street in front of them by some small boys. The estimated distance of one thing was approximately three feet—not bad for an amateur!

Several groups are going to camp next week-end—to recuperate, no doubt, from the strenuous week-activity just week will necessitate.

Auction Sale Attracts Many Student Buyers

Continued from page one

now much am I bid? Ten? Twenty? Twenty-five? Thirty-five?

"Who Margy? Are you crazy? Stop! Don't go any higher! It's not a 2 on it. You can't wear it. No! You sot. Fifty-five cents! Well, on the wear is sometime, will you?

"Now here's a ring of sorts! Why am I bid? Twenty-five? Why. Going up! Ah! Sold to the little lady for one dollar!"

"Let's see it! What did you get? Is it? Good's fit, I'll take it back."

Ed shows were sold for sixty cents. A wool sweater was bought for forty-five cents, and umbrellas for seventy cents.

"Did someone in this beautiful soul start on campus? Mom-mum am I bid? What do I hear? Nine fifty cents. Will not sell to less. Well, I guess we'll put it up and sell it next winter. It'll be just as good."

Hey, sport! Did you go to the auction last night? Well, remember that ring that didn't fit the girl who bid so dollar for it? Well, guess what? I got it for one thin-dime!

THE SWEET SHOP

706 West Jefferson — Opposite Old Capitol
Phone 1081 — Wm. Delivery

—WEEKEND SPECIALS—

Giant Banana Split 15c
Jumbo Ice Cream Soda 10c
Bar-B-Q with Potato Salad 15c

HAVE YOU SEEN THE NEW TOILETRIES DEPARTMENT IN THE LITTLE STORE?

Board Passes Schedule For Coming Games

Odd-Even Hockey-Soccer Tilts To Be Played In February

Final decisions as to the playing of Odd-Even hockey and soccer games was passed at a meeting of the Athletic board Tuesday night. According to the board's decision there will be three Odd-Even games instead of the customary one Odd-Even and two class games, and the dates for these games are February 6, February 13, and Saturday, February 10, 12 and 11.

Discussion concerning practice lead to the decision that they will be held for two weeks after exams with practices counting for the week of the Odd-Even games.

The board also passed a recommendation submitted by the P. E. department that a letter "P" not be given until a C average is received. Under this recommendation the P that a student earns will be held until she makes a C average. At least one P for each average when she receives the P.

The recommendation which said that there will be a Physical Education Banquet in the spring the week after exams in which there will be reports given by the delegates to the Lauderdale swimming meet.

The board also decided that this year's basketball and volleyball teams would follow the usual procedure of awarding letters to the team leaders. A meeting will be held after exams for this purpose.

Betty Peck Reads Play By Ryerson, Sponsored By Speech Department

Betty Peck, a senior in the speech department, read "A Cup of Tea," prize play of the Ryerson, Tuesday evening in the Assembly Council room.

The play is a domestic farce concerning the treatment of her husband's habit by the wife of a poet. "A Cup of Tea" was Betty's first recital, but she will give another in the spring.

Betty had a part in "The Wonders of Sligo" a three-act play given at the first of this year, and last year she appeared as "Ladies in Waiting" and "Moorbern." She will be student director of a four-act play, "The Truth," which will be given in February.

Dishers for "A Cup of Tea" were, Betty Skinner, Irene Peck, Janet Charles, Ruth Sadler, Mary Miller, Betty Jane Lanier.

Liddell, White, Gehan Go to Church Conclave Held in Jacksonville

Dr. Anna Forbes Liddell, Dr. Sarah P. White and Miss Julia Gehan left here Wednesday to attend the annual convention of the Episcopal diocese of Florida, meeting at the All Saints' Episcopal church in Jacksonville yesterday and today.

The Right Rev. Frank A. Juhan, D. D., bishop of the diocese of Florida, is presiding officer at the convention, Guest speaker for the meeting will be the Right Rev. Theodore Bratton, D. D., Bishop of Mississippi and chancellor of the University of the South at Sewanee, Tenn.

Reports on the convention will be given at the regular meeting of the student auxiliary at Rose hall Sunday night. Sallie Ratliff will be in charge of the program.

Reports Are Received Of Births to Alumnae During the Past Year

Reports have been received recently from Florida State College for Women alumnae who have married since they graduated.

Born to:

Mr. and Mrs. Russell McCaughan (Mary Ryan, '29), of Gainesville, a daughter, Mary Louise, December 18, 1936.

Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Mitchell (Mary Raffinger '29), of Gainesville, a daughter, Barbara Lou Vicl, December, 1936.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Lewis (Rachel Anderson '29), of Tallahassee, a daughter, Jane Haskell, September, 1936.

New Sailboat Acquired For College Camp

Regulations for Its Use By Students Are Announced

Camp Flastacowa has been provided with a new fifteen-foot sailboat.

The craft, which was procured from the Old Town Canoe and Boat company in Maine, is green on the interior and white on the outside, and is fitted with brass. It has sixty-eight feet of sail, and is equipped with four life saving cushions that may be hooked at the shoulder. These life preservers will probably never be used except as cushions, for the boat is easily managed and there is no real danger that it will capsize. The fact that it is built like a canoe and has no keel and has a round keel is a safeguard against accident.

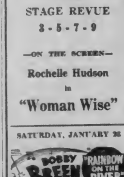
The girls that have been sailing are already ardent enthusiasts, and there was quite a row at camp the first week-end after Christmas and the sailboat was taken on a jol. Fran Lewis Varnette Hunt, and Miss Dickinson have been making the week end sailing tests and will be given by Fran and Valerie in the near future may learn to sail. Changing winds on Lake Bradford add to the fun, as the boat heels way over. Sunday morning the boat sailed across the lake in a few minutes, which is probably the fastest any boat has gone across that lake.

The boat has not been named, and anyone desiring to do "christening" it, may turn in their suggestions to Miss Montgomery.

Regulations for the use of the boat are as follows: only four girls may use it at a time and there must a life preserver for each person. At least one of the persons must have passed the swim test, no one may ride who cannot swim, and no one may stand up while sailing. The boat must not be taken out when it is raining or threatening to rain, and must be taken off Lake Bradford, and can be used for night sailing only on moonlight nights. It must be kept in the boathouse during the week, and there must be a pair of oars in the boat at all times.

The sailing test consists of demonstrating how to launch and right the boat, how to come about, sail with the wind, tack, and into dock, and mastering Also you must know the following terms: stay, halyard, centerboard, tiller boom, luffing, and sheet.

On clear days, the cathedral of St Isaacs, in Leningrad, can be seen from the Gulf of Finland, 20 miles distant.



Plans Started On Organizing Swimming Club

Tarpons' to Be Composed Of Those of Superior Aquatic Ability

Plans are underway for the organization of "The Tarpons," a club to be composed of the better swimmers on campus. During each year the club will undertake the presentation of a freshman demonstration, a Thanksgiving Day demonstration and a spring demonstration.

The entrance requirements for "The Tarpons," are a "C" average for the semester, a health grade of "A" or "B," passing grade for swimming or diving tests, and a two-thirds vote by the active members of the organization.

The charter members of the club will be the first ten students passing the entrance test with the highest average. A meeting will be held the first week after semesters to explain requirements of the club or which the main purposes are to learn the protection of self and others, to develop in the individual an interest in swimming which will continue through college and afterwards, to make students realize thoroughly knowledge and mastery of skills and techniques, the social and moral value inherent in activity, and to add enjoyment through bringing the swimmers closer together in promoting better swimming and in doing research work in water stunts and games."

Co-eds Reveal Inhibitions, Dormant Woes

Roommates Disclose All Concerning Nightly Sleep-Talking

BY MARY SULLIVAN

If talking in one's sleep means anything, a number of girls at our fair institution are suffering from "Hidden Sorrows," "Inhibitions" or possibly "Indigestion."

In the wee small hours of the night when normal people are sleeping soundly these sleep enthusiasts are muttering strange words, much to the distress of the roommate, if she happens to be the silent type.

"Heavens," wrote a high pitched giggle from one end of the room, "I feel just like a balloon!"

A few minutes later another voice joins in—a sad voice, with an all too Southern drawl, "Go, Don Rodrigue," it pleads mournfully. "You ah willin' me." (That no doubt from too much French parsley!)

In these nightly monologues the talker's innermost thoughts, aversions and fears are apt to be made public, for of course the roommate isn't going to keep them a secret.

Some sleep-talkers, possessed with the thought that divorce is right they speak the thoughts that are bothering them as they prop off to sleep, or all in their power to control said thoughts. "Mary's a nice girl," they mutter to themselves. "Mary is a nice girl." And so on into the night.

Last week one girl indulged in an onion sandwich before retiring. She asked her roommate if she minded and was told, "Why of course not." What was her dismay to wake up in the middle of the night and hear her roommate's voice, full of resentment, the morning. "People go to onion parties . . . They go to onion parties . . . O, me!" The last sounded like a soul in utter despair. Next morning the One Who Had Spoken was accused of being a hypocrite and is still wondering why.

Some sleep talkers, being kindly souls, dislike hurting others' feelings. These people lie awake nights waiting for the rest of the room to quiet down and finally drop off into a state of semi-slumber themselves. In the morning they wake up first, glance hastily over at their roommate to see by her expression whether or not they have made any breaks in the face in the other half of calm and serene, all is well. Otherwise . . .

These poor unfortunates are often taken advantage of by the unconscious. After a night of sleep-lits silence they are informed that they disappointed so in their sleep. Without a word or explanation, they hand over a "small consideration" to the blackmailer, who exits, chuckling.

It's a hard life indeed for sleep talkers and there isn't much to be done about it. Get midst of course, wear a sag, or form the habit of sitting up all night.

The Metropolitan Museum of New York has a small but precious collection of slaves dating back as far as the Elizabethan period in England. Made of soft leather, they are elaborately embroidered in floral designs, heraldic emblems and miniature pictures.

Weeping Onion-Eaters Hold Sobbingly Successful Supper in Bryan Kitchen last Friday night.

Quiet sobbing sounds, mingled with a peculiar but quite familiar odor, led student investigators to Bryan kitchen last Friday night. Pursued by strange conditions in the vicinity surrounding the kitchen, and worried by the disappearance of their house director, Mrs. Margaret Sumor, students decided that something foul was afoot.

Their fears were justified. As they cautiously approached the scene of the disturbance they drew back in amazement. Mrs. Sumor, seated at a table with some half-dozen students, was sobbing brokenly, choking while tears streamed unabated down her smiling face. The students, affliated in a like manner seemed also to be enjoying the procedure, for they pointed, half-laughing and half sobbing, first at their director, then at themselves—and reached for another onion sandwich.

"Ugh!" grunted one of the bystanders, almost overcome by the fumes. "How could they!"

"Oh, we like it," one of the onion-eaters paused to contribute. "There's nothing so stimulating as a good onion sandwich and a cup of hot coffee." She calmly prepared herself for another strong bite, while the astonished investigators retreated somewhat concussedly. The party continued uninterrupted except by the occasional ebbs of its members —until second light flash.

National Peace Day Planned by Council

Continued from page one

with consideration on what war and peace really mean.

Thirdly, the presentation Saturday night of two one-act anti-war plays by student talent.

Although the council admits that there are only minor points in a big plan it believes that the present tentativeness of the program makes it impossible to give full details as yet.

Gilchrist Wins Bridge Tourney from Reynolds

The finals of the bridge tournament between Gilchrist and Reynolds were played Saturday night in Gilchrist lounge. The winning team was composed of Ruth and Mary Porter of Gilchrist. The players representing Reynolds were Ann Bishop and Mary Greenwalt.

In the eliminating matches, in each ball duplicate contract was played with the final scores of straight rubber bridge, with the Gilchrist team winning three out of five.

Debate Teams Plan To Meet Many Schools

Partners Are Named For Ladder Tournament Next Semester

Preparations for the debates with Georgia College for Women, Piedmont and Mercer, Georgia, and University of Florida were made Tuesday afternoon when freshman and sophomore debaters held a joint meeting.

Phil Asher, chairman, announced that the question to be debated for the remainder of the year by both divisions would be resolved. "That congress should be empowered to fix minimum wages and maximum hours for industry." This is the question that all colleges will debate in April.

Partners for a ladder tournament to be held in the respective divisions immediately after the opening of the second semester were named Tuesday. In the upper-class division partners are Betty Wynn and Mickey Conn, Viola Brooks and Louise Gehan, Lucile Collard and Miriam Harrold; Polly Ezelish and Janice Booton, Trelish Taylor and Marjorie Brown, Peggy Middlebrooks and Mary Noble, Mary Jeanne McKay and Nell Colvin, Marion Rauserson and Emma Randolph Hannah. The freshman teams are Rosemary McDonald and Mary Glenn Grimes, Flavil Townsend and Fran-ces Hunt, Elizabeth Anne Webb and Minnie Pleland.

The first debate between upperclassmen will be held the Thursday following exams when Betty Wynn and Mickey Conn debate the affirmative of the question and Viola Brooks and Louise Gehan taking the affirmative. The meeting Thursday will be held in room 108 Administration building and anyone interested is invited to attend.

With its many dialects, Chinese is accounted to be the most widely spoken language in the world.

For Digestion's Sake—Smoke Camels

Digestion often needs Camel's aid too!

OFTEN during a hard, tiring day, smokers pause to get a "lift" in energy with a Camel. And at mealtimes, Camels offer a helping hand to good digestion. They help you to enjoy your food more. And Camels increase the flow of digestive fluids—alkaline digestive fluids—so vital to a sense of well-being. Make every meal a refreshful—more pleasant —by smoking Camels. With their matchless mildness, Camels are better for steady smoking.

"BIG ASSIGNMENTS (right) don't bother me a bit," declared Miss Camels! For Camels ease the strain, stimulate digestion, and enjoy your sense of well-being. Make Camels a regular part of your dining. Get a "lift" in energy with a Camel—they never get on your nerves, or tire your taste.

CLAD IN ASBESTOS SUIT (right), "Pat" Patten smiles a blasting oil-well—quickly gets the inferno under control. "Even after that I can tuck away a hearty meal—provided I have plenty of Camels handy," says "Pat," enjoying a tasty bite (above). "Smoking Camels helps keep my digestion in proper trim. I smoke mighty often, too. And Camels don't get on my nerves!"

ALL-AMERICAN HOCKEY STAR, Phil La Bate (below), says: "Good digestion and healthy nerves are 'musts' in this game. I smoke Camels—for digestion's sake!—and because Camels never get on my nerves."

COSTLIER TOBACCOS!

Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS—Turkish and Domestic—than any other popular brand.

CAMEL

RADIO'S NEW SMASH HIT! "Jack Oakie's College"

Impossible Jack Oakie at his best. Also Benny Goodman's "Swing Band," George Burns's Cigarette Quiz-zicals, Hollywood comedians and singing stars—and sports gossip galore! Every Tuesday night—9:30 on E.S.T., 8:30 p.m. C.S.T., 7:30 on M.S.T., 6:30 p.m. P.S.T., over WABC—Columbia Network.

The Florida Flambeau

Represented for National Advertising by
NATIONAL ADVERTISING SERVICE, INC.
College Publishers Representative
420 Madison Ave. New York, N. Y.
Chicago - Boston - San Francisco - Los Angeles
Portland - Seattle

Entered as second class mail matter January 20, 1911, at the post office at Tallahassee, Fla., under act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

Continued!
The Old, Old Story—

As long as two years ago suggestions were made publicly by both faculty members and students that something be done about required courses in which two sections of that course meet at the same hour.

To date, however, despite the changes which were promised certain student leaders if they would accept the Saturday-class proposition, there are a few glaring examples in the schedule catalogue of the persistence of poor planning.

The answer, when someone gathers courage enough to mention the matter to higher authority, always is, "Yes, but only a few students are affected." That unfortunately may mean a very large number of students when the situation has been carefully analyzed.

Let us take the example of nearly any student in the present senior class. She has been required to take about sixty hours of constants, required courses to those who have not studied the catalogue. In addition she may be required to spend as many as eighteen to twenty-four hours more in acquiring a major. If she takes a minor she will use up another six to eighteen hours. And if she is in the College of Arts and Sciences, the student working for a teacher's certificate will put in at least another twelve hours in requirement.

Accordingly, the minimum in required subjects is about ninety-six, the maximum about 114 hours. That leaves a student a precious bit of time out of 124 hours for those courses which though not contributing to her major, minor, or constants, may nevertheless contribute more than any of these to her education. But unfortunately every year she has required courses jumping up at the hours when these would-be elective courses meet. The student stands no show against the curriculum.

Last year upperclassmen believed that students entering in 1936 and thereafter would be relieved of many of the scheduling and required course difficulties under which they themselves had labored. The new curriculum was to change things. But by the time the various committees went through with their work, both upperclassmen and freshmen found themselves deeper than ever in the schedule morass.

The old story goes on forever. Students will continue to spend four years in required courses which conflict with all the elective courses they would like to take. And both sections of the same required course will continue to meet at the same hour through eternity.

On Rules Unbecoming
To a Mature Institution

It has recently been brought to the attention of the chaperones of off-campus houses that no more persons than there are beds in the house should be allowed to spend the night in an off-campus house, even on weekends.

Although such a regulation does not appear in the handbook of College Government association, we are told this is an old administrative ruling. Students, however, have not observed such a regulation in the past four years, so far as we know; in fact most students are surprised to hear such a regulation ever existed.

The fact is few sorority houses, if any, are equipped to provide each visitor and each pledge her own bed over the week-end.

Sorority girls have become so used to having sorority pledges and visitors spend Saturday night "at the house" that if any discomfort is felt with "sleeping two in a bed" they laugh at it. Pledges usually place blankets on the floor and sleep there rather than "inconvenience an active." They philosophically consider the floor as the pledges' place and their hardships, if they be hardships, as just "the fate of the pledges." They know the pledges who succeed them will have to go through the same thing.

But most of the pledges would rather sleep two in a bed or on the floor than forego the fun of spending Saturday night at the house. Week-ends are usually anticipated as moments of relaxation in which college girls gather around for intimate "bull-sessions". Friends become better acquainted and the bonds of human relationship strengthened.

We do not question the wisdom of the college administration to make such a regulation. Under the constitution of College Government administration, it reserves the privilege of regulating for the public health and public safety of the students.

The question we ask is whether the enforcement of such a ruling would actually raise the "public" health of students. Hardly any student goes to the sorority house "to play" on a week-end when she is not feeling up to par. Furthermore, if she ever suffers any ill-effects from sleeping in a crowded bed or on the floor she herself knows it and can decide to forego that privilege.

When students have had this attitude for the last few years, in regard to their own health we cannot understand the administration's suddenly coming forward to remind us of this old regulation. In the regulation brought up again we ask, because the administration is trying to maintain a "motherly" regard for its students?

If faculty and administrative officers investigate they will find that the students themselves do not regard the college personally as their "mother." They know their own mothers would never have let them come to college, at least to such a large college, if they thought they could not to some degree take care of themselves. And after graduation few students expect to flee back to mother's house.

Supposedly, students having learned something about an art of living while in college, want to find a niche in the world and exercise that art when they graduate.

Yet if they have never had to make any decisions for themselves, in regard to themselves, while in college, it is doubtful whether they have acquired an art of living. It is doubtful whether they even know successful living as an art.

A law without social approval is difficult to enforce and a law without enforcement is not worthy of being called a law. Therefore, we recommend that some action be taken towards removing the administrative ruling under discussion from the books.

Peace Conference
Suggested for Campus

The question of Florida State's joining other colleges throughout the country in a peace strike in April has aroused much campus discussion both pro and con.

AT N. S. F. A. meeting Tuesday night the 13-12 vote in favor of the peace strike represented such a small number of students that it has been suggested a campus-wide peace conference be held between now and April.

The peace conference would take the form of round table discussions with a delegate or two from each organization representing the stand her organization wished to take on peace strikes. The delegate would also be oblized to report back to her organization all educational information she had received from the round table discussions.

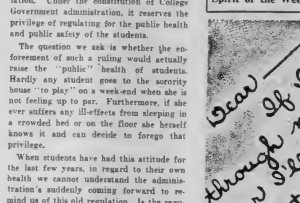
The conference delegates would learn how strikes had been carried on at other colleges and the success or failure of such student activities.

Reporting on the peace strikes and demonstrations last year the New York Times of April 25 said:

"Students in the nation's high schools and colleges raised their voices yesterday in a prayer for peace."

Since New York's Board of Educators threatened high school students if they participated in the nation-wide peace strike the plans for the high school strikes were called off by the American Student Union after the principals had agreed to permit assemblies to which all students might attend.

The Times reported the strikes were "most orderly gatherings" with over sixteen thousand students rallying in New York city while 5,500 gathered in Brooklyn.



"As a token of the sincerity of their pacifism, the youths abandoned plans to strike at every institution where authorities sanctioned undergraduate meetings at which they could express their views without censorship."

Among accounts of the peace strikes at other colleges was the demonstration at Dartmouth where a majority voted not to take up arms for the United States except in the case of actual invasion. Over one thousand attended the meeting.

The peace strikes were in most instances accompanied by letters to the faculty explaining the purpose of the strike and inviting faculty members to join it. A number of faculty members spoke at the demonstrations held during the strike hour between 11 and 12 o'clock on April 22 last year.

As much education is needed along peace lines, a peace conference seems the most intelligent step to be taken on this campus at the present.

Spirit of the Week . . . . . By Glazier

This Week

President Inaugurated While Rain Pours Down

Franklin Delano Roosevelt entered his second term as president of the United States Wednesday in the traditional inaugural ceremony on Capitol Plaza. Standing bareheaded but smiling in a continual downpour of rain, the president took the oath of office, gave his address in which he pledged anew his efforts to defend democracy for the masses of forty million underprivileged citizens.

* * *

Two monetary bills passed Congress this week swamping the president with renewed powers to shape the dollar's future at home and abroad. The bill provides for the continuation of the treasury's two billion dollar stabilization fund, and the power of the president to change the gold content of the dollar.

The senate extended these powers until June 1, 1939.

* * *

Kentucky became the first southern state to ratify the Federal Child Labor amendment in a meeting of its legislature last week.

The Federal Child Labor act that has been before the states of the union for consideration for thirteen years. Since its passage by Congress in 1924, twenty-five states have ratified it. This leaves eleven ratifications needed before it can become an organic law of the United States.

The bill was received its support from the north central and far western states. Only six states had agreed to in 1933: the depression with its accompanying scarcity of work has put nineteen states into the amendment ranks in the last three years. The legislatures of nineteen states which have not ratified (including Florida) will meet this spring. If eleven support the amendment 1937 will be the year in which the twenty-second amendment to the Constitution will join other historic changes in the land.

* * *

Howard Hughes gave the country a new air record to gasp about this week by averaging 332½ miles a minute from coast to coast. The thirty-four-year-old millionaire sportsman and movie producer drove his specially constructed, bullet-nosed monoplane from Los Angeles to Newark in seven hours, twenty-eight minutes, twenty-five seconds. Hughes followed the route of a commercial transport line over the 2,490 mile dash, hit top speed of 370 miles per hour, averaged 332½ miles per hour.

* * *

The three weeks strike in the General Motors Industry is temporarily suspended by a fifteen-day truce so that strikers and corporation officials may talk terms. Since January 4, 136,000 employees in strikes all over the country have been idle, at a loss to the company of more than a million dollars daily. General Motors is the largest automobile

Continued on page six

University Editorials . . . .

The Santa Clara editor Kevin Tansky threw out a challenge, a plan for solution of the strike situation throughout the nation found in the "Mission" magazine. He shows a keen study of the situation. It is worth reading and we consider them worthy of note.

STRIKE SOLUTION

As time passes, and millions of dollars in wages and industry are being lost, the consternation is continually rising in regard to the final outcome of the disastrous strikes which are ravaging the entire country at present. In one camp we have those champions of labor who would precipitate with their dying breath all the machinations of the devil upon the heads of industry, and hold up the working class as the abused children of a persecuting mother and the victims of unfair discrimination. In the other camp are leaders of industry themselves, comfortable in their plush chairs, loudly bemoaning the flight of the wined millions, and pointing an accusing finger at the leaders of labor. Between these two great classes is the large body of interested but slightly bewildered onlookers who, like the celebrated "innocent bystander" are ruefully finding their own pocketbooks emptied by bullets flying back and forth, and being drawn-out feud. Everyone, however, the leaders of labor and industry as well as the populace, realize strongly the desperate necessity of ending the present strike immediately, and of preventing others in the future.

Who's To Blame?

Labor or capital, whom is the intelligent step to be taken on this campus at the present. Who is to blame for the disagreement and endless wrangling that lead to nothing but further entanglement and greater loss. How long are we going to stand for it; what are we going to do about it? Vital questions that deserve much consideration. The following plan is one that we discovered in one of last year's issues of the Nation, and we gratefully refuse all credit for same. Not having concocted it, Still, it did look like a big sight like a fairly presentable idea, so here it is for what it's worth.

Why not institute a federal board of arbitration in each of the twelve federal districts which shall: (a) have the power to decide all cases of dispute arising between capital and labor; (b) have no power to act except in cases referred, and then only when the issue is referred by both parties; (c) not be made by either or both of the belligerent parties; (d) when the matter is brought before the board, its decision will be final and irrevocable, and shall establish precedent for future similar cases; (e) in order to prevent corruption, the members shall be appointed for life, as are the judges of the United States supreme court; (f) finally, in view of the unfairness of arbitration, strikes will be prohibited by law, being substituted by the law as speedy decisions of the court."

Do Something.

In this way we might be able to avoid in the future the lengthy and financially disastrous strikes which have recently become so numerous and recurrent. At any rate, whether we adopt a plan similar to this or one entirely different, it is

Continued on page six

Collegiate Comebacks

Soup-serving time has rolled around again on our campus. Therefore we consider the following advice to freshmen, who have not as yet lived through those trying days to be most timely:

1. Copy your roommate's notes on the various courses and resign yourself to fate. There's nothing so comforting as not having to take the blame yourself for flunkins.

2. Put up a "Study" sign and cram diligently. If you don't know what the word means, sleep. It'll improve your disposition, if not your mind.

3. Write home to mother with the air of a martyr, inferring subtly that you're sacrificing your all just to make the family proud of you and that you're going to be brave and not faint anymore this week. This fixes up the family end of the affair.

4. Go to exams, mentally throw yourself at the feet of the great god, Bull, and do your stuff.

5. Gripe to everyone about how hard your exams were. This purges them for the worse.

6. Get your grades, and consider yourself mighty darned lucky that the prof hadn't time to grade the blue books, therefore giving you the benefit of the doubt.

* * *

We understand that our real visitors of Sunday last were duly but not favorably impressed by the "rude and bold" stares of Femina Perfecta, which have been reported to us by complaints registered on this score. Judging from the words of those gentlemen and by the oiling they were doing themselves, we'd say that certainly no one who ever entered our dining-room was better qualified to make such an observation. May we suggest that those are having at all hours for those fair isles from whences they came and that anyway we like our men with a dash of handsomeness.

* * *

From the Wee Sleekit comes the following little poem. We print it just to provide the student body with a vicarious experience which we are sure it would not otherwise have—we hope.

Blue eyes mae at mine—vexation:
Soft hand touches mine—temptation!
Fair hair brushing mine—expectation;
Red lips close to mine—temptation;
Posterope—damnation!

* * *

According to the Creightonian, Judge Frank Cox of Omaha has a solution for those who pronounced a cure for drunkards; he feeds them a healthy dose of castor oil. This would be an excellent way for the family to make one celebrate New Year's, etc., with buttermilk.

* * *

The Brown and White tells us that movie scouts will scour hundreds of colleges and university campuses for youthful talent to appear in future productions. Maybe this will be an incentive for the dear sisters who go around with their new sets wrapped up in bandanas to starved for lack of nurture; they have been fed on newspaper sensationalism, idle chatter, high-speed entertainment, with no hint of normal emotional creative impulse, a hopeful philosophy, or a vitalising religion.

Psychotherapy is in need of a deeper and more adequate philosophy. But its greatest need is religion, which helps souls to overcome their loneliness in life's struggle, conquers fears, and brings a deeply satisfying relationship with God. "The sovereignty of the soul: that is what life would teach."—(8. 8.)

* * *

An exchange informs us that a dean at Nebraska rendered the unanimous decision that the primary reasons why freshmen flunk, seems to us that he would consider the two under one head, because you can't have the former without the latter, although you can have the latter without the former.

* * *

The Alabamian apologizes to Carl Sandburg:

The report card comes in
On blue paper.
It sits on silent haunches
Looking over its victim
And then
To the waste basket.

Lucrezia Advises Writers

By ARLINE LOCKHART

Dear Sister:

You write me enthusiastically about your course in freshman journalism: that you have definitely decided to become a Fourth Estater, that eventually when you have become a writer of sufficient water you will give the long patient public the great American novel, or the great American play, or the great American short story, whichever best suits your talents. Bravo! I suppose I should cheer from the sidelines of their hidden office hopeful and aspiring writers.

Your present problem, as you indicated, is how to launch yourself in a practical manner into the profession. What should you study? What should you read? What should you be doing now as a preparation?

Quite confidingly you have turned to me, a junior journalist, to solve this problem. You have done me a great honor. Never before has anyone asked my opinion on so weighty a matter, although I am well-known as the campus 'Aunt Winnie,' having handed out free advice on everything from telling Mary how to patch up her quarrel with Joe, to prescribing a diet for the Gamma Psi's baby alligator.

In an attempt to prove worthy of such an

(Continued on page six)

Magazine Jotting

BY SARAH SEALEY
and
SARAH BETH DAVIS

The Provincial Lady in Moscow
By E. M. Delafield

The English novelist, author of The Diary of a Provincial Lady and The Provincial Lady in London, describes in her own inimitably caustic style her observations on a recent visit to Soviet Russia. The article, appearing in the January Harper's, is the first in a series by Miss Delafield, gives some significant ideas in the comparison of Russian and Western civilization.

"Moscow . . . has a most depressing effect on me. I think it's partly the number of Communists who walk the streets and throng the trains and stand in queues outside the shops and the cinemas, all looking rather drab and unwashed and solemn. And one has caught such depressing glimpses, through unshaded windows, of dormitories with beds packed like sardines."

Miss Delafield recommends on the fact that from nearly every wall in Moscow a likeness of Lenin looks down—either as an infant or as an elderly man exhorting "Learn, learn (there is no intervening stage)." She visits a clinic held in the welfare of mothers and babies, watches proceedings in the Court of Marriages and Divorces, where numbers of equally unexhilarated people come to register marriage or get divorce. Among the tourists, food is a popular conversational topic, as well as the state of one's personal store of soap, aspirin, ink, and safety pins. The author's penetrating observations and her entertaining style promise to make the series unusually interesting.—(E. B.)

* * *

Cure by Faith
By Winifred Rhoades

"In about half the cases in general hospitals the illness is entirely psychical and not physical . . . Not the state of the body but the state of the mind and soul is the measure of the well being of each one of us." This statement, Dr. Dunbar, ranchman, minister, and social worker—illustrates this age-old concept in the Jamesian Forum with conclusions based on the most advanced of modern physicians to the philosopher Socrates. The fact that all cures are effected with conscious suggestion, hypnotism, and superstitious cures for their diseases give evidence to the efficacy—in many cases—of such cures, and that the "mind-cures" from the minds of those who believed in them and expected much from them."

People who have not the courage to face the complexities and difficulties of life often give up in spirit and express their sense of perse-cution through "nervousness." Breakdowns or other bodily ills which have no organic cause. Minds such as these, the author contends, are starved for lack of nurture: they have been fed on newspaper sensationalism, idle chatter, high-speed entertainment, with no hint of normal emotional creative impulse, a hopeful philosophy, or a vitalising religion.

Psychotherapy is in need of a deeper and more adequate philosophy. But its greatest need is religion, which helps souls to overcome their loneliness in life's struggle, conquers fears, and brings a deeply satisfying relationship with God. "The sovereignty of the soul: that is what life would teach."—(8. 8.)

* * *

Balance-Sheet of Repeal
By H. H. Kay

Those in favor of repeal shouted that it would speed up business. But the most recent department of commerce statistics, according to Mr. Kay's article in the January Survey Graphic, show that 385,291 persons are employed at wages of $281,834,000 dollars during 1935. This figure is slightly higher than that paid to all employees of retail drug, cigar, tobacco, and lunchroom throughout the nation.

Federal taxes on alcoholic beverages of all kinds brought approximately half a billion dollars into the treasury annually. A total of approximately two billion or half the estimated annual retail consumption of the United States government will have been collected by next July because of prohibition's repeal. As to whether repeal costs more than it brings in, Mr. Kay points out the budget of the treasury department's, alcohol tax unit amounts to $12,332,000 dollars. The bureau of prohibition required 12,802,204 dollars during 1936.

State treasuries have received additional revenue from the repeal of alcohol prohibition. Those profited from the rehabilitation of the liquor industry. In the 1936 fiscal year they sold 48 - 150,000 bushels of grain to distillers.

Classifications of major crimes, except rape show either decreases or indecisive irregularities during the past six years, according to Uniform Crime Reports based on all offenses known to police in 89 cities which have populations of more than 25,000 and are tabulated by the department of justice.

However two sets of statistics given by Mr. Kay do not bode favorable for repeal. Arrests for drunkenness shot from 2.6 per cent of all arrests in 1932 to 15.4 per cent in 1936. The number of women arrested for driving while intoxicated and for drunkenness is steadily increasing. Prohibitionists contended in their battle against repealers that repeal would mean an unfavorable effect on the health of Americans. Statistics show that neither prohibition nor repeal has solved the problems arising from intemperate drinking. It is Mr. Kay's belief and hope that these problems may be solved by education toward moderation.—(E. B.)

FLORIDA STATE NEWCOMER

By LAURA STRUNK LESLIE
Alumnae Secretary

Inside College Gates

By BETTY SPICER

...ector of the Administration ...s at Florida State College ...r Women was changed to ...lames D. Westcott, Jr., Me... Building, at a recent ...eeting of the board of control. ...change was made in honor ...e late Judge James Dorsett ...est, III, of Tallahassee, one ...lorida's prominent judges and ...f the college's chief benefactors.

...ia Heil Heinlein, director ...ther training in the summer ...n of this college, was recent... named by Durward Howes as ...e of the outstanding American ...women of 1936. And her biography appears in "American ...ne," the official Who's Who ...e women of the nation. Dr. ...ein has published several ar... in child psychology which ...e appeared in scientific jour... and is an authority on the ...ment of "handedness" in ...ren.

...hourly-student party con... ...ed by Dr Marion Bell Mac... a member of the Christ... fellowship. They made stops ...ntains in Florida, Biloxi in ...ssippi, Baton Rouge in Lou... Beaumont, Houston, San ...nio and Laredo in Texas. ...y sent a week in Mexico City ...ing famous and many. They ...ened New Year's eve in San ...nio and then continued on ...e by way of New Orleans ...e to Miami. Mrs. Ray ...erwood Pablo Martinez del ...d the University of Mexico in ...ed to a private party in the ...ar's other students who are ...ested in continuing to contact ...e third year of study in the ...ner session credit from ...ern American institutions.

...ngi Fox, young American or... ...t presented an organ recital ...ay afternoon at 4:30 in the ...ng of the Artist Series given ...s the year at Lively Parlor ...ed in concert before an audi... of 1600. In 1932, after a year ...Paris conservatory, Miss Fox ...n won the only Artist's ...ip given ever year to one ...ent and took the highest grade ...ng 9 graduates. He studied ...h Marcel Dupre for a year in ...

...dy Jeanne McKay, president ...e student body, and one of ...ida State College's delegates ...e meeting of the national ...ve council of Student Volun... ...ersion of America in New ...k during the Christmas holi... was elected vice-president of ...organization. Mary Jeanne ...s was chairman of the local ...ter last year, served during ...me as a member of the ...ar of national council.

...ring the Christmas holidays, ...r. P. Hamilton, professor of ...ational psychology, was ...n a charter member of the ...ty for Psychological Study ...f Social Issues at the Dart... meeting of the American ...ological association. During ...ame year it will be the pur... of the Society to investigate ...e psychological causes of war ...e various ways and means ...preventing international peace. ...ganize to promote a peaceful ...ety as the result of his ...rch into this topic.

...

...any changes in the curricu... are taking effect with the ...ment of student- for the ...ester. The revisions are ...n of a two-year general ...ion with the aim to integrate ...e student's training with ...ork which might have seemed ...ed and out of set-up. The ...t of the new curriculum in ...ol of Music, organized by ...ological sciences, social ...es, and physical sciences ...ed to complete a term by the end ...r sophomore year, the stu... then can, if he course daily ...ctor. These courses carry ...ame credit as any other ...ed of the fifteen class hours re... at a minimum.

...

...Professor Piatigorsky, Russian ...ist, was engaged in concert ...r the auspices of the artist ...ses committee this week. Sat... Cornelia Otis Skinner will ...her original Modern Mono... in the college auditorium.

...

...Dr William Baird White, direc... of zoonic research, of the ...ida State Board and Wire road ...n Chicago, gave an illustrated ...ure on "Some Secrets of Mus... Sound" in Florida State Col... on Wednesday this past week. ...the end of the demonstration, ...r briefly summed up the facts in ...ard to their importance today."

...

...Hilda Jane Walters, graduate of ...ida State College for Women ...d, the first woman ever to be ...ted to membership in Phi Beta ...pa during her first year, ...k three years. Miss Walters ...e graduated from Florida

Alumnae Raise $75 At Birthday Party

Proceeds from the "Alumnae Birthday Party" have just passed the $75.00 mark. In order that many alumnae who wish to contribute to the "birthday fund" can still have a part in this phase of their gaining for the student-alumnae building, an extension of time until February 15 is being made, during which time birthday contributions will again be accepted.

Alumnae may "attend the birthday party" by sending to the alumnae office as many pennies or coins to that amount as they are years old. If they like, they may even pretend that they are 50 or perhaps 100 years old!

Building Plan Is Suggested

Students and Alumnae Hear Horner Talk On Project

Plans for the proposed student-alumnae building at Florida State College for Women were outlined to Crescent City students and alumnae at the annual Founder's Day tea held during the holidays at the Woman's club. Mary Orr Reynolds, student chairman, and Mrs. A. M. Brossard, alumnae chairman were in charge of arrangements for the affair.

During the evening hour, college songs, including the alma mater song, "Garnet and Gold," were sung. The purpose of the proposed building to provide a headquarters for the Student Government association, Young Women's Christian association, honor societies, and other student organizations was explained by Mrs. Horner. She stressed the important feature of space for the alumnae office and accommodations for visiting alumnae and parents. The architectural plans of the building, she pointed out, is from $200,000 to $250,000.

Floor baskets of poinsettias and lighted red tapers decorated the auditorium in which the group assembled. Overlaid with a lace cloth, the tea table was centered with the lighted candles, the candelabra flanked by tall tapers in crystal holders. Mrs. Elizabeth Risbeck poured tea with college students assisting in serving.

The miniature birthday cake topped with red candles concealed a gift to the fund. Each guest of graduate placed pennies equalling the years of her age, at the same time lighting a candle on the cake. Several who were unable to attend sent gifts or contributions; these birthday gifts will be used to the fund for the student building.

Those present during the afternoon were: Mrs. Alexandrine Cavell Risbeck, Mrs. E. M. Pickens, Mrs. Pauline Gaskin, Mrs. Elizabeth Ely, Mary Lowe Posg, Mrs. Frances Moore Kitchens, Mrs. Ethel Bell, Mrs. Sarah Martin, Miss Adelaide Lounds, Miss Jane Meredith, Miss Elizabeth Lounds, Mrs. Margaret Rinck, Miss Zonira Hunter, Miss Kitty Brown Ford, and the chairmen.

Committee for "Alumnae College" is Appointed

Appointment of the members of the alumnae committee for the Alumnae College, which will be held April 16-18, has just been announced by Katherine Warren, general chairman of the event.

Members of the committee include: Maude Flowers and Addison Miller, both, housing and registration; Louise Cornacchi and Julia Dehan, social events; Frances Dodd and Mrs Guy L. Differdanel, classes and curriculum; and Florence Tryon and Mrs. Paul F. Pinner, publicity.

State College, attended Medical College of Virginia for four years, and received her M. D. degree, sixth in her class of seventy-six. She is now at Sweetwater, Florida, where she is serving her first year's rotating internship. Dr. Hamilton will open a night ambulance physician on one of the city ambulances for emergency calls.

* * *

Katherine Rawls, United States olympic star, who was a student at Florida State College this fall, has wished on in order to continue her swimming training. At present Katherine is training for a meet to be held in Australia. Her coach states that a period of strict training so that she could lose some of the excess weight gained at college.

Beeson Names Seven Alumnae For Committee

Nominations For Honor Award Acceptable Through March

Seven alumnae have been appointed by Mrs. E. L. Beeson, president of the Alumnae Association as the "Alumnae of Honor" committee for the current year. The committee will accept nominations for the "Woman of the Year" between now and March 20, and after that date make their decisions as to the alumnae who will receive awards at the May commencement.

Members of the committee to whom nominations may be made are: Mrs. Edgar Cecil Nilson (Dorothy Johnson), chairman, 207 N. Main St., Orlando; Mrs. Douglas MacVicar (Florence Call Morgan), 2644 W. 27th St., Miami; Mrs. Howard Gamble (Willie Jane), Hotel Mrs. A. W. Passmore (Josephine Drane), 728 New York Ave., Lakeland; Miss Maude B. McCall, Box 834, Clearwater; Mrs. Laurie Rutland (Emma Pearce), Williston; and Mrs. Adele Lamb, 531 N. Grandview, Daytona Beach.

The award is designed to honor graduates of Florida State College for Women who have made distinction to themselves and to their Alma Mater by such achievement. This achievement may be attained in the fields of literature, liberal arts, of professional accomplishment, of civic and social service, or in business, commerce or industry.

Nominations for the honor may be made by any alumnae or by the nominating committee of the Alumnae Council. The final decision will be made by the committee as the by-laws state, "after careful consideration of the qualifications of each graduate receiving a nomination." This achievement may be attained in the years after graduation.

Complete histories or records of recent graduates receiving initial nominations must accompany nominations. The committee will meet in committee by March 20, 1937. In order to allow sufficient time for investigation, nominations of all material submitted.

Those alumnae who were nominated last year and who did not receive the award are eligible for re-nomination this year.

The alumnae award of honor is the gift of the Alumnae Association showing the towers of the Florida State College for Women, formerly called the Administration Building; on one side of the bronze tablet, the insignia of the college on the other. The first award was made commencement last May to seven graduates of Florida State College for Women.

Two Graduates Play Life Dues

Alumnae Association Has Eleven New Members Since October

The two newest life members in the Alumnae Association of Florida State College for Women are Mrs. Sara Tyson Williams, class of '20 of Pompano. This makes a total of eleven new life members since October when dues were sent out in October.

First payment on these memberships were made this month by Dempsey Creary, Santa Barbara, California, husband of Mary B. Creary, class of '20 of Jacksonville and Mrs. Sylvester C. Smith, Jr., husband of Marjorie Anderson '23—Mrs. Walter Blair Roddenberry, Jr., Cairo, Ga.

Helen Smith '20—Mrs. Joe Hall Tallahassee; Betty Perry '31—Mrs. Perry E. Gery, Miami; Millicent Hendricks '31—Mrs. Morris Van Gelderen, Lake Worth; Helen Frances Miller — Mrs. George H. Smith, Cairo, Ga.; Olive Dugan '33—Mrs. Harry H. Ward, Augusta, Ga.

Emily Alice Dorsey '28—Mrs. Perry John Palmer, Augusta, Ga.; Margaret Bradley '34—Mrs. Royce A. Pasto, Ithaca, N. Y.; Victoria Dunlevy '29—Mrs. Russell O. Morrow, Lake Worth; Elsie Bailey Clark '30—Mrs. Willard Alexander, Thomasville, Ga.

Olive Sechrist '27 to Wm. H. Arnold, Apt. 7, Fleetwood Apts. 515 Upland Road, West Palm Beach.

Amelia Rose Lucignani '32 — Mrs. Evelio Cabeli, 524 Bahama St., Key West.

na: Myrtle Hogg, Jacksonville; Anna Hogg, Jacksonville; Mrs. Charles W. Strangwarx (Ethel Hurt-zler), Syracuse, N. Y.; Mrs. Chester Griffin (Nellie Richards), Pensacola.

Survey Shows Journalists Had College Yen For Work

Largest Number of Grads Claimed by Newspaper Branch

Of the thirty-one graduates of Florida State College for Women known to be engaged in journalistic work, thirteen come from the journalistic graduating classes, and eleven of the remaining eighteen graduated after the first three year journalism was offered here. Practically all of these now in journalistic work made journalism their chief interest while in college, and conversely, practically all of those who made journalism their chief interest while in college are now in journalistic work.

These facts were revealed in a recent survey of the whereabouts of journalism graduates by Professor Earl L. Vance of the journalism department, who adds that there are doubtless many other graduates in journalistic work about whom information is unobtainable.

Among the several types of journalistic work, Professor Vance claims the largest number of forces graduates, with 13 employed in this field. Nine are in publicity and advertising work, six are teaching journalism, four are engaged in magazine or free-lance work.

Graduates working on newspapers are: Marion Hobson, '24, Miami Daily News; Eloise Dallas '23, Miami Daily News; Edna Tinsley '31, Miami Daily News; Times; Lucy Fulghum '35, Tampa Tribune; Mary Lou Hall, Lake City Reporter; Elaine Kleppinger, Lake City Reporter; Mary Rockwell, '30, Topeka Daily Capital, Kansas City and also with Kansas City Journal-Post; Mrs. Bradford Van Doren, '08, who for many years held the position of "Books" literary supplement of the Miami Herald; Mrs. Irene McCreary Edwards, Gainesville Daily Sun; Molly Wilson Hamilton, '31, Miami Times Union; and Mrs. Estelle Pennington, '31, Orlando City Herald.

Pressie Gable, '30, Carolyn West, '24, and Rachel Pitchford, '29, reported for newspapers until recently. Miss Gable was secretary editor of the Lake City Reporter for one year and Miss Hall accepted a Civil Service position in Washington, D. C., the past summer. Miss West left for her marriage to C. E. P.gue in 1933, when a report for the St. Petersburg Times. Rachel Pitchford resigned for the New Orleans Times-News, Stuart Daily News, and the Daytona Beach News Journal on the death of her former publicity director at Florida State College for Women.

Those graduates teaching journalism are: Mrs. Ruth Sheldon Cone, '34, instructor at the Henry W. Grady School of Journalism at the University of Georgia; Nedra McNamara, '35, Ponce de Leon high school, Tallahassee; Virginia Hicks, '32, Avon Park high school, Avon Park; Mrs. Ruth Sheldon Leon high school, Tallahassee; Billy Hodges, ex-student, Alabama; Sallie Hall Wilson, Jacksonville; and Johnny Williams (Mrs. Stetson Kennedy), Palm Beach high school, Palm Beach.

Graduates doing publicity work include: Dora Byron, '32, who is doing publicity work for a religious publication in Atlanta; Mrs. Lucile Kendall, '24, publicity director for the Florida Federation of Music Clubs; Lorena Eaddy (Mrs. Lucius Boyd), '31, assistant to the publicity director at Stetson university, Deland; Rachel Pitchford, '29, assistant to the publicity secretary at Florida State college; Mrs. Elizabeth Ely, '26, Miami, '29, publicity and alumnae secretary for Florida State College for Women; Mildred Ross, '25, who has charge of the publicity, promotion and advertising departments of B. Altman and Co. in New York City; Mrs. Elizabeth Cooley, '26, who is writing advertising for a leading Jacksonville department store; and infants' foods; Louise Robertson '34, who is in charge of the college publicity department of the state hospital in Chattahoochee and is also a free lance writer; Josephine Blue Bulletin, bi-monthly publication of the Florida Federation of Art; Mrs. H. A. Lumb) and Mrs. Lucile Kendall, who is also chairman of the Florida Federation of Music Clubs.

Graduate students doing magazine and free lance work are: Mrs. Lucy Byron, '32, who has articles published in the New York Times, Christian Science Monitor, and Atlanta Constitution; Mrs. Atlanta Journal; Mrs. Helen Hunt '30, who is employed by the League of Nations and many other events of national interest both in America and abroad; and Mary Elizabeth Cooley, '26, who is connected with a magazine chain in New York City; Clementine Newman, '32, and Margaret Jordan '32 (Mrs. Donald McIntyre), Tallahassee, are members of Kappa Delta and Beta Phi Alpha sorority magazines respectively.

Alumnae Clubs Make Birthday Gifts To Fund

Many Send Contributions To Student-Alumnae Building Plan

Alumnae in fifty-four Florida cities twelve states other than Florida, and the Canal Zone participated in the annual birthday party, Jan. 1, by sending in coins to the amount of their age or even to be placed in the Student-Alumnae Building Fund Contributions totaled more than $75.00.

During the Christmas holidays, Alumnae groups in Kissimmee, Cross City, and Crescent City held "alumnae birthday parties," and the proceeds were given to the Student-Alumnae Building Fund. Alumnae chairmen in these cities are: Eleanor Rosen, Augusta Poor and Mrs. A. M. Horner (May Bradley), Crescent City, the originator of the "birthday" idea.

Among the alumnae who sent in their "birthda[illegible]" are:

Tallahassee: Irma Biddie, Clara Bowen, Rachel Pitchford, Ruth Schornherst, Helen Davis, Grace Fox, Mrs. Julia C. Caldwell, Sallie Williams, Ruth Wallace, Mrs. Ira Richardson Culley, Loulie Hale Hall, Hazel Anderson Lewis, Margaret McCurdy, Mrs. Katherine Brandon Gramling, Mrs. George I. Haddock, Mrs. Ruth Sheldon Cone Routledge, Elizabeth Thompson, Mrs. Margaret Wilson Bryan, Sara Burwell, Mrs. L. C. Pain, Mary Rita Thatsicthwaite, Mrs. Elizabeth Cawthon Rogers, Ethel Holloway Clark and Mrs. Lucile Kendall.

Tampa: Genevieve Crowley, Mrs. Elizabeth Richards Patten, Anna DePaas Peacock, Thelma Goodbread Flanagan, Bess Hall Gamble, Mary Frances Hall, Josephine Bagg, Arvelle McWilliams, Mrs. Lucile Chandler, Marvis Allen, and Faye Webb.

Pensacola: Alberta Lee Davis, Mrs. Frank C. Crawford, Mrs. Leu Hamond, Evelyn L'Abbe, Isabel Brainard, and Virginia Schimmel.

Jacksonville: Mildred Denton Edith V. Gable was ex-officio Secretary of the Lake City Reporter for one year and Miss Hall Wilson, Mary Elizabeth Cooley, Mary Virginia Mann Bryant, Virginia Mann Bryant, Virginia Mann, Martha Lee Segal, and Louise Taylor.

Key West: Amelia Lucignani '32, Mrs. Evelio Cabeli, Mrs. Ruth and Florence Albury.

Kissimmee: Mary Frances Allen, Elizabeth Robinson Fausett, Grace Mae Webster, and Elisabeth Barney.

Cross City: Margaret K. Anderson, Mrs. Hilda Waddell '31, Yvonne Radford, Janet Griffith, Louise Brown Echols, Martha Brown Hodges, Mrs. Eugenia Causey, Augusta Poer, Jeannette Snyder, Mrs. Sara Tyson Williams, Carter Smith, Gladys Folsom, Helen Menendez Anderson, Mrs. Margaret Barnes Hancock, Mrs. Hood, Kathleen Weaver Gardner, Mrs. Hilda Waddell Chauncey Cherry, Myrtle Coke Campbell, Nevada Palmer, and Marion McCormick.

Crescent City: Mrs. E. A. Bishop, Mrs. Ky. Edwin Odom, William Bradley, Mrs. Wylie Pope Hendershott, Dorothy Lee Horner, Nell Martin, Sarah Martin, Adelaide Lounds, Jane Meredith, Elizabeth Lounds, Margaret Rinck, Zonira Hunter, Mary Ola Brown Ford, Zora, Viola Turvaville Stephens.

St. Petersburg, Elsie Hargrave, Louise Mullinix, West Palm Beach, Virginia Whitehead, Mrs. Robert Parmelee; St. Cloud, Blanche Gunnels, Mrs. Lucile Mayard, Mrs. Sanford; Mt. Pleasant, Ann Hendry; Avon Park, Hettie Hunderdorf; Sebring, Louise Hinck; Starke, Charley E. Johns; Lakeland, Mrs. Lastater; De-Land, Lorena Eaddy Dunning, Mrs. Lucius Boyd; Bradenton, Louise, Virginia Holland Gallemore, Lake Wales, Ruth Feinberg; Bonifay, Mrs. Katherine Brandon Gramer; Miami, Sylvia Ahern Petteway; Ocala, Clara Johnson Hall; Orlando, Mrs. Edgar Cecil Culhough; Monticello, Frances Parks; Hawthorne, Anna Helms Baker; Jasper, Mamie Lila Montgomery; Milton, Rose Panowski.

Port Orange, Effie Patrick; Lake City, Ruth Persons; Lamont, Hazel Reams; Oakland, Iris Partridge; Sylvania, Ga., Mrs. Flournoy Ashmore; Ft. McCoy, Henrietta Lake, Groveland, Cecil

Officers Named At Tallahassee

Mrs. George Lewis Heads New Alumnae Branch At Capital City

Mrs. George Lewis was elected president of the Tallahassee alumnae association at a meeting Wednesday afternoon at 4 p. m. Mrs. Frank Moor was elected vice-president and Mrs. J. Velma Keen secretary-treasurer.

Speakers during the meeting were J. G. Kellum, college business manager; Mrs. Ray Sanders, Mrs. Raymond Sensabaugh, who spoke on the value of a student-alumnae building which has been designated as the chief project of the alumnae association during this year.

Those attending the meeting included: Miss Florence Tryon, Miss Louise Conrad, Miss Ruth Sheldon Cone, Miss Katherine Warren, Mrs. Laura Strunk Leslie, Miss Louise Clark Pain, Mrs. Lou Everson Whitfield Miller, Mrs. Whitfield Miller, Mrs. Ruth Sarah Davis Lewis, Miss Rachel Pitchford, Mrs. Bessie Richardson Brainard, and Virginia Schimmel.

Jenkins Beeson; Pt. Myers, Yvonne Stone, Hinson, Mrs. Duncan Lawrence; Bell Boy, Laura Dorsett Wiatt; Sarasota, Lois Overstreet Summers, Katherine Brine Bradley; Edgewater, Effie Floyd Greene; Lakeland, Olga M. Lambert; Sorrento, Myra Goodwin Sanders; Dade City, Wilma J. Elsworth, Viola Yates Waldorf; Manasana, Patti Gray Duckworth; Hollywood, Mrs. Elizabeth Sanford, Anna Lenora Brown; Melbourne, Mrs. Irene S. Christen; New Smyrna, Mrs. Ruth Sheldon Cone.

Georgia: Atlanta, Ella Gretchen Smith; Albany, Mrs. Eudonia Mahaffey; Columbus, Marguerite Williamson.

New Jersey: Dunnellon, Lillian Carlson; Newark, Marion L. Stine; Paterson, Eller McConnell Moll.

New York: New York City, Katherine Blood; Ithaca, Roberta Michler Gervan.

North Carolina: Greensboro, Mary Dundan; Asheville, Emilie Wolcott.

Maryland: Lonaconing, Lois Wood; Bethesda, Jocie Lee Mackey-Trevey.

Tennessee: Memphis, Mary Wood Davis, Roberta Davis.

Texas: Ky., Edwina Odom. St. Louis, Mo., Alice Gillespie; Washington, D. C., Ruth Durrett Horner, Adelaide Lounds, Jane Meredith, Elizabeth Lounds, Margaret Rinck, Zonira Hunter, Mary Ola Brown Ford, Zora, Viola Turvaville Stephens.

A number of other alumnae contributed to the "birthday party" but failed to sign their names on the birthday cards.

Alumnae Visit Campus

Alumnae members, Dorothy Wilson, Winifred Hamilton and Elise Richards, of Jacksonville, visited the Chi Omega house last week-end. Other visitors were Jane Burr and Pegsy Palmer, also from Jacksonville.

Date for Alumnae Homecoming is Set

Alumnae home-coming at Florida State College for Women will be held the week-end of April 16-19. In the form of what will hereafter be known as the "Alumnae College."

The "Alumnae College," which is similar to the plan used by leading universities and colleges over the country, will feature classes on interesting topics led by professors of Florida State College for Women. As guests of the college the alumnae may attend these classes and the various types of social activities planned for the week-end.

Board Meeting Works On Plan For May Meet

Privileges May be Given To Alumnae Who Pay Dues Regularly

Presentation of a recommendation to send the alumnae publication to only alumnae who have paid their dues will be made at the annual alumnae meeting in May, the executive board of the Alumnae association, in session here January 9, decided.

Present at the board meeting were: Mrs. E. L. Beeson, Grovetown, Georgia; Mrs. Ed McCollum, Gainesville, and Miss Rowena Longmire, Tallahassee, representatives at large; Mrs Ruth Middlebrooks, Marianna, Miss Louise Houck of Sebring, Miss Ruth Persons of Lake City and Miss Mary Lou Post of Clearwater, district directors; Miss Ruth Schornherst, recoding secretary, and Mrs. R. H. Leslie, alumnae secretary.

Purpose of the meeting was to plan and pass upon alumnae activities for the coming spring months, and to discuss certain recommendations to be presented to the general alumnae meeting in May.

In past years, the alumnae publication, which from 1929-1935 was in the form of a bi-monthly leaflet, and since September 1935 as an issue of the Florida Alumnae with a page devoted to alumnae activities, has been sent to every graduate of the college, whether or not she had paid her dues. If the recommendation of the executive board is passed at the May meeting, discontinuance of sending the publication to alumnae not paying dues will begin with the July, 1936-1937, issue. Plans are to have next year's alumnae publication in the form of a quarterly magazine, if sufficient funds can be secured for that purpose.

Mention was also made that beginning in May of this year, the committee in charge of the last alumnae meeting, only alumnae who have paid dues will be granted the privileges of voting for officers at the Alumnae association. Details of the chanrtd system of voting will be presented at that time.

A report from Katherine Warren, chairman of the committee appointed to make plans for the "Alumnae College," placed the week-end of April 16-18. The purpose of the week-end, which is regarded as a unusual alumnae home-coming in November, is to bring a program of activity that will attract the greatest number of alumnae and at the same time provide for their return to the college. The committee will consist of lectures, musicales, plays, social events, and other allied activities. Alumnae will be guests of the college during the week-end, and all is in one of the residence halls.

Plans for the coming months of the month of organization of alumnae with undergraduates were presented by Maude Flowers, chairman. Foremost among the activities planned for the organization is a tour of Tallahassee and interesting nearby points of interest for the collect senior class.

The appointment of Mrs. Edgar Cecil Nilson (Dorothy Johnson) as chairman of the alumnae award committee to honor members of Miss Edna Mae McIntosh as chairman of the alumnae publication committee was announced by Mrs. Beeson.

Following a request of a number of alumnae that the "outstanding mother" be eligible for the alumnae award, the board decided to "ask the award committee to consider an award to an outstanding mother and a scholastic trend could be associated with it and thus meet the spirit of the award." The alumnae awards are granted to alumnae who have attained distinction in the field of science, liberal arts, professional achievement, civic and social service, and distinctive service to the college.

SPLENDID LUNCH
Steak Special ..... 45c, 60c and 75c
Sandwiches ..... 5c and 10c
OYSTERS

ADAMS' STUDIO
119½ East College
"Photographs that Please"

Four Visiting Home Ec Girls Speak To Club

Students from Other Colleges Discuss Own Courses

Four home economics majors from various colleges spoke to the Ho-Ec Science club at its meeting last Tuesday evening in the Science building. The speakers were: Miss Justine Bruner from Southwestern Louisiana Institute, Miss Shirley Emerson from the University of Minnesota, Miss Harriet McGeagan from the Woman's College of the University of North Carolina, and Miss Elizabeth Smith from Seton Hill college, Greensburg, Pa.

As Florida State College is one of the three institutions in the United States approved by the American Dietetics association the four are now serving their required one-year apprenticeship here as student-dietitians after finishing a four-year college course in their respective schools.

In speaking to the club, they told of the systems used in the home economics courses in their colleges. The first speaker, Miss Bruner, gave interesting discussion of the Home Economics club in her college, telling of the bazaar held every year, and of the three-months' stay in the home demonstrament house required of all majors.

Miss Emerson then told of the large enrollment of the University of Minnesota and of the number of colleges composing it. One of the main functions of the Home Economics club there is the Home Economics day which is held in February and consists of style shows, skits, and a concluding dance.

The third speaker, Miss McGeagan, stated that her club was much the order of the clubs here. The head of the department at her school is Miss Ruth Edwards, a former dietitian of Florida State. The biggest event of the department, the Christmas Ball, was instituted there by Miss Edwards.

Miss Smith, the last speaker, said the students at Seton Hill were also required to stay in the home management house three months and that they learn first hand information in child care by borrowing a baby from an orphan asylum to live with them at the house.

Lucrezia Advises Writers

Continued from Page Four

honor I have given your problem thoughtful and serious consideration. The only conclusion that I reached is that, in the light of my experience, I could best tell you how not to become a writer.

Football, practice, fraternity functions and your other classes require so many of your hours that you complain of having little time to spend on journalism. As you continue through four years of college life you will find that your time schedule is used to the last minute and there is no way to work in any of that good reading you have been wanting to do. Even now, you shrug at the weekly editions of the New York Times lying stacked in the corner of your room, unread.

That is the first step. Sid Don't bother to read the Times or any other newspaper thoroughly. Forget about reading any of the good books or articles you get your hands on. Just avoid the library except for required parallel. Don't try to keep up with world affairs or try to figure out the political or economic policies of the various governments, or even the present day problems of this country, because if you do you will have to read and study constantly. Remember instead that all work and no play is apt to make you dull, and someone might call you a student. It is more important for you to make contacts while you are in college. Be sure to take advantage of all the opportunities you have to attend picture shows, go to dances, and "setup around" over the weekends like the other fellows.

You can put one of the first laws of journalism into practice immediately. That is, observe everything carefully. By observing you will notice the pretty blonde with the slim ankles at the football game and realize that she is just the girl to ask to the Inter-Frat Hop.

So much for your education in general.

When it comes to the actual business of writing, never write anything that isn't assigned in class. Of course, it has been said that the only way to learn to write is to write, and write continuously, but for a person as busy as you are the assignments will be quite enough to do. If you are given three weeks in which to do an article wait until the day before it is due to select your topic. This selection should come through a blinding flash of inspiration sometimes gained while taking long walks or just listening to the radio.

No doubt your subject will be one which you know nothing about, and that is preferable since it will allow your youthful imagination to get some exercise. Sit up all night to write your story, as that is the period when one's imagination works best. It is the quickest way to get the article done, and it leaves no time for you to ponder over re-writing it. Just deliver the first draft written at four-year pace.

There is the small detail of a vocabulary. I understand that O. O. McIntyre and other successful writers peruse dictionaries the way most of us read magazines while traveling in order to increase our knowledge of philology, but if you stick to trite phrases and expressions that won't be at all necessary and you will be saved a possibly boring hour or so.

There are only two other things I wish to call to your attention. First, never carry a little notebook around with you in which to jot down ideas as they come to you. Second, don't keep clippings of interesting facts or important data on file. Some authors of best sellers have been known to do such things since the random notes often prove to be pregnant with subjects for up-to-the-minute stories, and the files provide reliable sources of information on which to base articles. Notebooks and files, however, are merely troublesome time-wasters which you can easily ignore, if you will just wait for an inspiration and use your imagination.

If you employ this method, Sid, you will be free to have your fun, make those valuable contacts, and never worry about your thinking.

You must realize, Sid, that I have counseled you thus, knowing only too well that no one ever asks for and receives advice, gratis or otherwise, with any intention of following it. Best of luck to your future as a writer.

As ever,
Lucrezia.

Constitution Exam Date is Announced

The United States Constitution examination will be given in the old Leon high school building on Saturday, February 6, at 1:30 o'clock.

Dr. Elizabeth Andrews urges all seniors and two-year students who are not exempt from the examination to take it at this time. Students who expect to take the examination at this time should sign up in the personnel office during the week of February 1-6.

Peck is Entertained Following Recital Tuesday Night

Members of the Delta Delta Delta sorority entertained with a coffee Tuesday night for Betty Peck following her speech recital. The house was attractively decorated with cut flowers.

Those attending were members of the sorority, ushers at the recital, speech department instructors, and Mrs. R. K. Peck, Mrs. W. H. Dowling, Mrs. S. B. Skinner and Billy Dowling from Jacksonville.

Coffee, crackers and mints were served by Ruth Sadler, Mary Miller, and Janet Charles.

This Week

Continued from page four

industry in the country and second only to United States Steel in number of employees.

The strikers are members of the International Union, United Automobile Workers of America. They demand recognition as the sole bargaining representative of all General Motors employees, abolition of piece work; the 30-hour week (G. M. has a 40-hour week) and minimum wage rates. The first demand is the issue at stake. The present labor policy of General Motors recognizes the auto workers union only as the bargaining agency for employees who are members of that union. Half the employees, especially the skilled craftsmen, are not union men. The union is determined that the management of the mass production industry shall be the sole bargaining agency hereafter.

Streak of Light Staggers and Dances Merrily On to Tune of Musical Sound Lecture by White

By MARY NOBLE

All was in darkness. It was as quite as the story-book's night-before-Christmas. Out of the density boomed a deep voice. In the obscurity appeared a thin streak of light, a pencil-like line. The voice asked for music, and got almost any kind a person might want—piano, flute, violin, 'cello, and vocal.

To the music the streak of light, which was an electric ray, staggered across the screen on which it was cast. It tottered in a different manner to each new tune. The Funeral March went slowly for in a dignified manner; a certain well-known little tune danced merrily along. The ray left behind it notes. It was then that this bright little line took a deep breath, puffed up to its fullest extent, and with great effort expanded the width of the screen. The result was jittery, of course, because that was its nature; but it puffed proudly.

Such a process is called "seeing sound," and was demonstrated to students and members of the faculty last Friday night in the Augusta Conradi theatre by Dr. W. B. White, director of acoustic research of the American Steel and Wire company, Chicago, in an illustrated lecture on "Some Secrets of Musical Sound."

Dr. White opened his lecture by explaining the nature of sound, its origin and physical constitution. Then he presented the secrets of musical sound according to their quality and color. The room was darkened after this introduction, and by means of an oscilloscope the sound waves were transformed into electric energy and caused a tiny mirror to vibrate. A ray of light was reflected by the mirror, and the resulting dot was cast on a revolving wheel of sixteen mirrors which projected it as a single line on a screen. The patterns made by the line changed with the quality and color of each sound.

After the demonstration the lights were turned on again and Dr. White gave a summary of the facts in relation to their importance today. A phonofilm introduced by Dr. Harold Richards, professor of physics.

Sands is First Music Student to Apply For Honors Work at FSCW

Isabelle Sands is the first student in the School of Music to register for honors work.

She will begin her study at the beginning of this semester with Margare. Whitney Dow as major professor. Her work will include an original problem in the analysis of modern music compositions.

Isabelle, who passed the freshman solfeggio and harmony examinations upon entrance to college, gave her piano certificate recital just before the Christmas holidays.

Lawrence is Elected Pi Phi President

Ermine Lawrence was elected president of the local chapter of Pi Beta Phi at a meeting of the fraternity Monday night.

Other new officers elected at that time were: Elouse Prink, vice president; Peggy Jackson, treasurer; Phil Aaber, recording secretary; Florence Kerr, corresponding secretary; Winifred Ewart, pledge supervisor; Danner Baker, rush captain, and Jean Treadwell, house chairman.

University Editorials

Continued from page four

obvious that something must be done promptly if we intend to sustain any semblance of industrial solvency in the future. Because twenty-five million dollars a day is an awful lot of money to lose, even for the west coast shipping industry; and yet this is exactly what is going on at present, with little hope for an immediate reconciliation.

It is continuous much longer, we may rest assured that Pacific coast shipping will eventually be remembering the day when it was an outstanding industry.

Jamie James Wins Mortar Board Cup

Jamie Louise Jones received the Mortar Board scholarship cup for this year at convocation last Tuesday. Carrying out Mortar Board's aim to encourage scholarship, the cup, is awarded each year to the junior having the highest average for her class for the first two years of college. Jamie's average is 2.86. Elizabeth Knapp received honorable mention, having an average of 2.83. Daisy Parker received the award last year.

Presentation as made by Marjorie Tilis, president of Mortar Board.

Sophomores Name Seven As Committee Chairmen

Chairmen of committees for the Sophomore hop, which is to be held at the college gymnasium Saturday night, Feb 6, were announced today. They are as follows: Virginia Dell, general chairman; Peggy Jackson, music chairman; Virginia Craig, program chairman; Peggy Dunn, in charge of decorations; Mary Elizabeth Dougherty, door chairman; Betty Cashen and Janet Lockwood, in charge of entertainment.

Approximately 800 people are expected to attend the hop.

New Tap Class Arranged

The beginning class in tap for upperclassmen will meet at 5:00 on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday. This class has been added to the curriculum due to the demand for another opportunity this year to pass the exemption test.

Upperclassmen who have had tap before and wish to be exempted from the dance part of the requirements can come to the beginning class until they pass their exemption test.

The advanced class will continue at 5:00 on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

Dinner Given Honoring Two Boards at College By Dr. Edward Conradi

Dr. Edward Conradi and his daughter, Miss Louise Conradi, entertained Sunday, Jan 9, at dinner in the college dining hall honoring members of the State Board of Control and members of the college alumnae executive board. Both groups had meetings Sunday morning.

Among those attending the dinner in the Board of Control party were: George H. Baldwin, Jacksonville; R. P. Terry, Miami; Thomas W. Bryant, Lakeland; H. C. Duncan, Tavares.

Mrs. Edward L. Beeson, Groveland, president of the Alumnae association; Miss Ruth Schonherr, Mrs. Raymond Sensebaugh, Miss Rowena Longmire, Mrs. R. H. Leslie, Tallahassee; Mrs. J. W. McCollum, Gainesville; Mrs. Hugh Middlebrooks, Marianna, Miss Ruth Persons, Lake City; Miss Louise Fouts, Sebring; Miss Maude B. McCall, Clearwater, of the alumnae board, were guests.

Miss Anna May Tracy, Dr. Olivia Dorman, Miss Louise Richardson, Miss Florence Tryon, were of the faculty committee on coordination with the alumnae. Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Kellum were also guests, as were Miss Mary Jeanne Mortag, Tampa, Miss Martha Masemson, Ft. Lauderdale, and Miss Mary Miller, Orlando, student leaders.

Following the dinner, the alumnae and members of the faculty committee met together for after-dinner coffee in the parlors of Reynolds hall.

New York Branch Plans Tea for FSCW Alumnae

The New York branch of the Alumnae association is planning an alumnae tea on January 24 at the home of Mrs. G. C. Williamson ;Florence Combear, 39 Boyden St., East Orange, N. J. Many alumnae in New York and vicinity are expected to attend.

President of the club is Mrs. Benno N. Bronsum ;Florence Hostaker, 24 Farrington St., Caldwel, N. J.

Phony Cake Fools Victim Of Humorist

Birthday Hoax Floors C Who Wanted to Chan Original Date

Having made the statement Dave Christmas that she wanted changes her birthday from Ja 18 to January 19 in order to fit from a birthday celebration school, Peggy Hughes was much surprised when she w into the dining room last Tues night to find a beautifully or nated cake setting in front of h place at the table. The cake large and square with delic looking white icing and the us "Happy Birthday" greeting w ten across the top in pink icing

When the meal was over, Pe ey was offered a knife with wi to cut and serve the cake s held the knife lightly and pres it gently against the cake impression was made. She gra ed the knife more firmly t sawed diligently; still there w no visible effect. Peggy fina gave up, and discovered that "cake" was an inverted cardbo box.

She tried to be nonchalant a leaned her chair back on t legs, laughed, and drank a cup of glasses of water. Just as s was beginning to nibble at the icing from around the cardboa another cake was brought in b This one was devil's food, wi chocolate icing, and burba greetings. And it proved to the real thing! So Peggy had succeeded in changing her birth and her celebration.

Conradi Addresses Cl

Last Wednesday, Dr. Edw Conradi talked to the Ru Woman's club at Eustis, on t subject, "Colleges of Florida."

Before coming back to Tal hassee, Dr. Conradi will att the Orange Festival at Win Haven on Thursday.

Attend Speech Play
"The Truth"
On Thursday Night

The Florida Flambeau

Published by the Students of Florida State College for Women

Tallahassee, Florida, February 5, 1937

Patronize the A.A.U.W. Picture Tomorrow Morning

VOLUME XXIV. NUMBER FIFTEEN

New Semester Affords Much New Activity

Many Offices Are Moved To Ad Building's Rebuilt Wing

ENTERTAINMENTS WILL BE VARIED

Athletic Program Begins With Odd and Even Hockey-Soccer

The second semester of the present school year at Florida State College for Women began Feb. 1, evidenced outwardly by the appearance of the offices of many officials into the newly constructed north wing of the Liberal Administration building, now known as the James D. Tennent, Jr., Memorial building.

Now Wing Is Completed

The reconstruction portion, completed at a cost of $48,000, is of brick and reinforced concrete and steel construction. In the remodeling of college officials, the president's office, bacteriology and the department.

Entertainment features of the second semester will be many, starting early, the speech department presenting on Feb. 11 and 12 "The Truth," a four-act play. Feb. 13, the Emory Glee Club will give a concert, probably followed by a dance. Two days later the cast of Artist Series will take place, featuring the Golden Gate Quartet. On the 18th-19th, the annual Junior minstrel will take the boards. On March 8, the fifth concert in the artist series will be presented by Greta Kraupski, Metropolitan opera soprano. On March 24, the Glee club will give its spring recital, followed on April 15 by that of the college orchestra. April 1 and 2 will mark a return of drama when the speech department puts on the Senior play. April 23 will mark the end of the artist series with a dance recital by Martha Graham and her group and the scheduled program of entertainment for the second semester is a concert by the Florida Glee club on May 1.

Social Season Opens

Saturday night the social season will be opened with a Valentine Hop. On the twenty-seventh, the Pan-Hellenic dance will be held and 16 is the date set for the Inter-Senior Prom, and the day after dance card will take place on May 18.

In the athletic program the odd-even hockey and soccer games will be decided on the Continued on page two

Feature Group To Be Elected

Flatacowo Ballot Holds Names of Sixteen Campus Leaders

Today the students of this college will choose for the feature group of the Flatacowo the five girls they believe to be most representative of the Florida State college body.

The eight girls will be chosen from the sixteen who received the highest number of votes in the primary election held at convocation on Thursday. These eight names, which appear on the final ballot are: Phil Asher, Jo Jenkins, Mary Borden, Isabel Hutchinson, Dot Deane, Polly Eveleth, Frances Pratt, Margaret Mahaffey, Mary Jeanne McKay, Peggy McMichael, Mary Miller, Betty Cornell, Daisy Parker, Marjorie Stevenson, Hilda Spradlin, and Catrine Tilla.

The new feature section is an attempt to make this year's Flatacowo more personal and more representative of actual college life, according to Frances Pendleton, editor.

Voting will be carried on from 9:30 a. m. to 5:30 p. m. today in the lobby of the lower floor of the administration building.

Mrs. Finner Will Speak

At the regular meeting of the American Association of University Women to be held at the home of Mrs. Arthur Bessey, 918 Park Avenue, Monday night, Dr. Paul Finner will talk on modern fiction. The business session will be followed by a social hour.

Offices Are Moved To New Locations

Changes in the location of classrooms and offices on campus have been announced by the office of the business manager.

The process of moving has not yet been completed. J. O. Kellum, business manager, said, as the majority of the office will remain in its present location, the Bibb history building probably for the next two weeks. It is expected that all the offices will be in their new locations at the end of two weeks.

The changes are as follows: College postoffice 109 Ad. Bldg. College bookkeeper 110 Ad. Bldg. Business Mgr.'s office 208 Ad. Bldg.

Cashier's office 206 Ad. Bldg. Bookkeeper's office, 210 Ad. Bldg. President's office 312-313 Ad. Bldg.

Mod. Lang office, 306-308 Bibb Bldg.

Sociology offices 214-215 Mod. Bldg.

Phychology classroom 214 Mod. Bldg.

Bacteriology Lab., 114 Ad. Bldg. Registrar's office, 114-115 Ad. Bldg.

Dr. Asher's office, 417 Bibb Bldg. Dr. A. Williams' office, 107 Bibb Bldg.

Dr. H. P. Bonhams' office, 120-122 Ad. Bldg.

Ten Students To Represent Campus Group

International Relations Group Plans to Make Convention Trip

IRISH WILL LEAD LOCAL DELEGATES

Ivey Will Preside Over Meeting to Be Held In Auburn, Ala.

Ten representatives from the International Relations club on this campus will attend the southeastern district meeting of that organization to be held Feb. 19-20 at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute at Auburn, Alabama.

Miss Marian Irish, sponsor, will head the delegation from F. S. C. W. Members of the club who are planning to go are Mary Ellen Gibson, Dixon, Anna Marie Mitchell, Marguerite Brown, Ruth Dunn, Irma Braverman, Elnabeth Matheny, Agnes Stiggins, Lillian Burford, and Dorrene Bowden. The active member of the organization may attend.

Club History

The International Relations Club, the first chapter of which was established in 1915, is a world-wide organization sponsored by the Carnegie Endowment Fund for International Peace. There are now about 300 chapters in the United States, and more than 100 chapters in other parts of the world. The chapters in the United States are divided into seven districts, the Tallahasee chapter belonging in the southeastern district, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, and Florida.

Program Is Extensive

An extensive program has been arranged for the southeastern convention, at which Professor G. T. Ivey, faculty adviser of the International Relations Club at Auburn, will preside. The two days' tours will include visits to Florida tour, they appeared at P.E.C.W. under the sponsorship and sang before a large audience.

Organized 30 years ago on the campus of old Emory college at Oxford, Ga., the club has progressed steadily in scope and quality until it has now furnished as one of the outstanding college musical organizations in America, Dr. Malcolm H. Dewey, professor of fine arts at Emory, declares.

Among their past performances, the Emory singers have toured two European tours, including a two-weeks' run at the famous London Coliseum. They have been on national radio networks on several occasions and have given numerous discussions of topics of world-wide importance. Among the subjects to be discussed are the American Foreign Policy, the League of Nations, Conflict in the Far East, and Dictatorship vs. Democracy.

There will also be discussions

Continued on page two

Actress Discusses Politics, Stage, Education and Books

Cornelia Otis Skinner Emphasizes Importance Of Getting College Training Before Beginning Dramatic Work

By DOROTHY BAETJER
and MARY SULLIVAN

"The American theatre is too dominated. As far back as Wycherley's time critics were predicting the end of the drama. And it seems to have lasted fairly well."

Standing before the dressing-table in one of the small music practice rooms in the Administration building, Cornelia Otis Skinner was preparing for her appearance in the first of the Artist Series programs.

She is tall and at ely. Her hair, combed closely to her head, emphasizes her classic features. As she talked, she was busily lowering tapering fingers, moved expressively. Composed and perfectly at ease in the crowded atmosphere of the dressing room, she spoke of the stage, of education, of politics, and of books.

Asked what led her into the stage, Miss Skinner believes that it is too mechanical a term to explain her career to his best efforts. He is not his own master and must play his part, not as he feels it, but as the clock dictates. Subtle meanings which Shakespeare put into his stage gestures must be suggested by vocal interpretation. The total absence of applause proves discomforting to an actor who usually gets his response from audience reaction as an indication of the necessity of changing the pace or as an indication of audience reaction is the fun with which artists from the footlights to ten days after the program. However much this may be suppressed, it does not appear to be the same inspiration as the applause of the audience. To Miss Skinner's mind, the only improvement which television will have to bring tapering fingers, moved expressively. Composed and perfectly at ease in the crowded atmosphere of the dressing room, she spoke of the stage, of education, of politics, and of books.

Asked what led her into the stage, Miss Skinner believes that it is too mechanical a term to explain her career to his best efforts. He is not his own master and must play his part,

Continued on page three

Better Selves Are Asserted In Aid Given Flood Victims

Proctors Use High-Powered Speeches Persuading Students to Part With Possessions; Family Relics Relinquished

By MARY SULLIVAN

Last weeks drive to aid the flood sufferers disproved the old that some of our modern writers so tondy act forth . . . The younger generation is a set of selfish, thoughtless children."

When donations were asked for, students contributed everything from "the last nickel" to the rain hat that had served so faithfully for all three years.

The situation had its humorous as well as touching aspects. Proctors made the rounds of the halls, "Anything for the flood sufferers?" If a girl appeared loathe to part with one of her possessions the proctors used the high pressure of persuasion and before the would-be Simon Legree had time to think, departed with the down with sweaters, shoes and perhaps a dress or two.

Piles of clothes mounted in the rooms of the house-managers. Girls rushed up and down the halls to add a bit or "just to look."

"I have a pair of white sandals" murmurs one student dubiously. "I don't suppose they'd help . . ."

"Wrong sash," the house chairman snatches up the pair of very unbecoming looking shoes.

"Here's a good looking twenty-six model," someone deposits an antiquated looking coat on the bed. "My sister had it before me" she adds by way of information.

In a room down the hall several girls are under the beds disturbing the dust collection for the first time in months. An old tooth brush is tossed out and a toaster—without the cord. Finally there appears a pair of elegant looking slip at which its owner give a sigh of regret and adds it to the pile, feeling that she has done her bit.

Some insist on philosophizing "It takes a disaster to bring out the good in some people," announces a serious looking girl in the manner of a sage. "I think its wonderful the way people have helped," she rambles on happily

Continued on Page Three

Seniors Bring Emory Singers Next Saturday

University Glee Club Appears Here For Second Time

The Emory Glee club, of Emory University, Georgia, will be heard in Tallahasee for a concert at 8 o'clock Saturday evening, February 13, in the P.E.C.W. auditorium under auspices of the senior class of the college. The director, class president, announced this week.

The Emory singers, known both at home and abroad as "The Scottish Rite Quartet," will be making their second appearance here in the past three years. Three years ago, while on their 1935 Florida tour, they appeared at P.E.C.W. under the sponsorship and sang before a large audience.

Organized 30 years ago on the campus of old Emory college at Oxford, Ga., the club has progressed steadily in scope and quality until it has now furnished as one of the outstanding college musical organizations in America, Dr. Malcolm H. Dewey, professor of fine arts at Emory, declares.

Among their past performances, the Emory singers have toured two European tours, including a two-weeks' run at the famous London Coliseum. They have been on national radio networks on several occasions and have given numerous discussions of topics of world-wide importance. Among the subjects to be discussed are the American Foreign Policy, the League of Nations, Conflict in the Far East, and Dictatorship vs. Democracy.

There will also be discussions

Continued on page two

AAUW Sponsors Picture Based Upon Humanity

Growth of Civilization Traced from Early Phases Tomorrow

"The Human Adventure," a motion picture tracing the development of civilization from the earliest phases, will be shown tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock at the State theatre. The picture is shown under the auspices of the local chapter of the A. A. U. W. for benefit of the scholarship fund.

The picture was three years in production and has consumed the use of 32,000 feet of film and 9,000 miles of travel. It was made under the supervision of the largest archeological research organization in the world, the Oriental Institute of Chicago University. It is a specially compiled by Dr. James H. Breasted, sociologist and archeologist, and produced, filmed, and directed and narrates the picture.

High lights of the film are sequences in which the work of civilization is shown. The story of a man is told: A flight over the Persian mountains and another in a U. S. mail plane; reached the heights of 12,000 feet; excavations which reveal fourteen different cities each built upon the other and the oldest of which was on the bottom and a Christian temple on the top; weapons made by the Egyptian King Rameses and Assyrian King Solomon and many other fascinating bits of interpretation to the historian of ancient man.

The film ends with the first printed Gutenberg Bible and was made on standard size film of 35 millimeter. It is called the Persian Empire, built by Darius the Great in about the year 500 B. C. The picture is educational as well as entertaining.

Admission to the picture is 25 cents. Tickets may be bought at the Student store or they may be gotten on campus from Miss Flowers' office or members of the A. A. U. W.

Emergency Peace Group Meets This Afternoon With Miss Mary Eaton

The first meeting of Emergency Peace campaign will be held this afternoon at 3 o'clo in 304 History building, according to Miss Mary Eaton, chairman of the local committee. Plans for the campaign and other countries for peace, with Miss Eaton in charge, participation of history, leading the group.

A bibliography has been posted on the bulletin board in the Administration building, next to the H. S. P. A. board. Many of these books will be found in the library and some of the pamphlets have been placed temporarily in 304. Reynolds where they may be secured at any time.

Anyone interested in the peace movement may attend this meeting, and all girls who are not participating in the campaign are urged to attend.

Senate Passes Plan On Peace Day Suggested

700 Colleges Are Asked To Consider Florida State's Proposal

McKAY EXPLAINS LOCAL PROGRAMS

Student - Led Discussion On War Conditions To Be Featured

Plans for a "National Peace Day" which originated in the executive council of the Colleges Government association were passed at a meeting of the Senate Wednesday afternoon. The plan has for its purpose a nation-wide participation of college youth in a movement to indicate their desire for peace in a manner which will be effective nationally.

McKay Explains Plan

Mary Jeanne McKay, president of the College Government association, explained the local plans for the observance of the National Peace Day, which the senate has done to contact other colleges. So far, letters have been sent to 700 colleges telling about these plans and asking them to give their serious consideration. Up to yet, no answer have been received, but it is hoped that this may be due to flood conditions in various parts of the country.

Local plans include student-led discussions of war and peace for several weeks before the day itself. On the National Peace Day a series of student-faculty discussions have been planned with the classes being that day. Continuing the plan, the student-faculty committee will be asked to see that the plan is carried out in the dormitories and that a parade of the student body from the college to the capitol. The legislature will be asked to cooperate with this plan, and Governor Cone will be asked to make a talk to the students at the end of the parade.

That night three one-act plays will be presented by student talent depicting war and peace.

The Plumbeau has been asked to make a special issue and also the Library has been asked to make a special peace display for that week.

These plans have been approved by Dr. Conrad Wilson, college counsil. The College Government intends to carry out the plan even if other colleges do not cooperate. The date has been set for Thursday, April 22.

Former Student is Killed

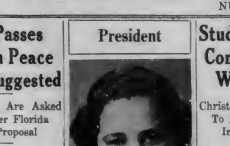
Lucy Lee Linn, a graduate of Florida State college for Women in the class of 1936, is receiving treatment for influenza and pneumonia at Lakeside hospital in Cleveland, Miss. Linn, who has been doing graduate work at Western university in Cleveland, is reported to be somewhat improved at the present time.

College Leaders Disagree On Worth of Their Offices

Generally Believe Duties Take Up Time Needed For Recreation and Study; One Regrets Giving Up Creative Work

By PETREA CABANISS

Agreeing generally that their offices take up time which they could use for study and recreation, the leading student officers on campus are of different opinions as to whether the experience gained from their responsible positions compensates for the loss of other phases of college life.



An editor of one of the student publications said that this year she has had no time to do creative work, but that she considers that getting 7's assignments from Miss Kay is all she can manage. However, she feels the advantages she derives from her position outweigh the disadvantages by far. As her work necessitates her being informally connected with the faculty, she is getting to know them as people, not merely lecturers and paper-graders, she says. Her work also gives her the opportunity of meeting people from the business world with whom she feels she believes that what her office takes away from her studies is more than offset by the contacts she gets offers for meeting people and in learning how to deal with them.

However the editor of another student publication states that if she had another student, she would take the latter course. She said she likes to hang around and talk with her professors and fellow students, but that there is no time to spare. She feels the fault of the activity system on this campus is that the same people take part in too many things. She believes that if the students who were not in many activities were encouraged to participate in some of them, the work would be easier on and more helpful to all concerned.

On the other hand, the chairman of one of the student organizations stated that in her opinion students are given a chance to do creative work, but in the

Continued on page four

President

Anna Tilden, president of the sophomore class which is giving its annual hop tomorrow night in the college gymnasium. This is the first of the big social affairs on the college's spring calendar.

Clyde L. Fitch Four-Act Play Will Be Given

Speech Department Under Moore to Act Next Thursday, Friday

The speech department will present a four-act play, "The Truth," by Clyde Fitch, next Thursday and Friday evening in the Augusta Conradi theater.

The play which is under the direction of Miss Kemper Moore is classified as serious comedy, for although the problem is a serious one it also contains much humor. The play deals with the marriage of various people to—the truth.

In the cast are Jennie, played by Mary Margaret Ellis; Mrs. Rutledge, Braxton Case, who is teaching farming to the youth in Pensacola, Burma, Miss Muriel Lester, known as the "Jane Addams of England," and also the author books, "Ways of Praying" and "We Have Met Victory"; Manuel Torres, preacher and teacher who has been active in the new Nationalist Youth Movement in Cuba, Mrs. Indult Pak, Korean missionary worker; Dr. W. C. McPherson, Jr., of the General Board of Christian Education with the Southern Methodist church, who will speak on "Christian Ideals in Economic Status"; Herrick B. Young, college professor in Teheran, Iran, who has helped the Iranian government establish its school system and who is now connected with the Mission Board of the Northern Presbyterian church, and others.

Continued on page two

Former Social Director Dies

Mrs. Seandrett Succumbs At Daughter's Home In Birmingham

Mrs Carrie Seandrett, former social director at Florida State College, died yesterday morning at 5:30 at the home of her daughter, Mrs Ben Walker, in Birmingham, according to word received by the college. Mrs Scandrett had been ill for some time.

Funeral services and interment will be held at Cordele, Ga., this afternoon. Mrs Scandrett is born in Cordele. Miss Anna May Tracy, Mrs Melissa Turner, Miss Rose Denham and Miss Mamie Andrews, all of the college, plan to attend.

Mrs Scandrett is survived by daughters, Mrs Ben Walker, Miss Carrie Scandrett, assistant dean of Agnes Scott college, and Miss Jo Scandrett, Washington, D. C., and the United States department of labor. Mrs Seandrett was at one time executive secretary of the Florida Y. W. C. A. Christian association here on the campus.

Mrs Scandrett was a social director in Reynolds hall at one time and in Gilchrist another. She was also chaperone at the Delta Delta Delta house at one time

Name Committee Member

Last Wednesday at the meeting of the senate, Janet Charles was elected a member of the ad campus committee.

Lent Services Scheduled For Church Groups

Presbyterians Give Play, Methodists to Have Faculty Talks

Church activities for the coming week will be concentrated on the Lenten season which begins Wednesday, Feb. 10.

The Episcopal students have an extensive Lenten program, which begins on Ash Wednesday. There will be Holy Communion at 7:15 o'clock an evening vesper service at 6 o'clock on that day. The regular after dinner coffee will be held tonight at 7:15 o'clock in Rugg hall, and will be the the last one until after the Lenten season.

During Lent the program for the Episcopalians will be: Tuesdays, the complete service at 10 o'clock at night; Fridays, Holy Communion at 7:15 in the morning, and an open forum at 7:30 o'clock at night; Sundays, early breakfast at 8:30 in the morning, and in the evening at 7:15 the auxiliary programs with special speakers.

Lenten services at the Catholic Church will begin with the distribution of ashes after Mass on Ash Wednesday. Mass will be celebrated every morning at 7 o'clock, and on Friday and Sunday evenings at 5:45 o'clock there will be benediction of the Blessed Sacrament.

As second speaker in a faculty symposium, Dr. Lillian Rescigno will teach the Sunday School lesson this week for the Methodist college students.

At their regular fellowship hour Sunday night at 6 o'clock the Presbyterian league will present a play, "Three Wanters," the cast for which includes Sara Nance, Pat Campbell, Cecil Ramage, Maxine Ward, Marjorie Oates, Virginia Taylor, Merrydee Rosser, and Mary Ella Teagle.

The Baptist student union will have a "member council" meeting tonight at 7:45 o'clock in the music annex. The separate organizations and committees will hold their business sessions until 8:30 when Mrs J. L. Burnett, of the First Baptist church here, will speak.

The Baptist college girls' Sunday "choir class will begin their attendance this Sunday. The content for the purpose of promoting habitual attendance at Sunday School. It will be managed on the pentagon basis with the class here in competition with the Baptist college classes at the University of Gainesville and at Stetson.

Students Plan Conclave Here With Missions

Continued from page one

tional Student Inc. Arthur Raper of Agnes Scott college, and George Robinson, who will speak on "Destruction of Youth of Germany."

The conference will open Friday night, Feb. 12, Addresses and sermons will be held Saturday morning and afternoon and a banquet Saturday evening, the subject for the program to be "Christian Youth in Other Lands". The conference will close Sunday morning with a commitment service.

One hundred twenty-five girls have been selected from Florida State College to attend this conference; they are chosen from the student body, the Young Women's Christian Association, and the executive cabinets of the different churches.

Missionary Chain to Follow

Youth conference on Sunday afternoon, Feb. 14, the Florida Chain of Missionary Assemblies will hold its opening session in the auditorium. At this time Miss Yonko Kim, the daughter of a noble Japanese family and well-known throughout the United States for her excellent work, will give a music recital. She will sing at each program and will wear native costume.

At the assembly Dr. H. B. Young will talk on "Rebuilding the Moslem World."

The Rev. Emenid Torres is the first native Cuban who was educated both in that Republic and the United States. He will speak on "Young Cuba Turns New" and "Church School of Saddlebags."

Charles D. Murry has been devoting the past twenty years of his life to studying the impact of American civilization on the life of the world. He has visited over fifty foreign countries and has addressed 10,000 students from abroad. He is interested in the study of languages and the comparative writing in the Latin European countries, especially Spain.

Miss Muriel Lester will talk for her themes "The World Crisis", "The Practice of the Presence of God," and "Europe and the way of Christ." Miss Lester believes that women are responsible for their actions with conscience as any other art demands.

Economics in relation to religion will be discussed by the Rev. N. C. McPherson Jr., who will speak on the subjects "Shall We Go to War?" and "Christianity and Economic Justice."

Dr. A. Raper will talk on "Race Factors in Cotton Tenancy," a subject that he has studied extensively.

The speakers will give their addresses in the afternoon at the various churches, and the city club luncheons.

On Monday and Tuesday afternoons, Feb. 15-16, two of the speakers will give programs on Broward clubroom.

The Chain has held its meetings in all the principal cities of Florida, and will close with its lectures in Tallahassee. It is being sponsored by a town organization, and all services are free to the public.

Flowers Announces Residence Changes

More than 160 students have changed their residence since the end of the first semester, according to Miss Maud Flowers, director of residence halls. Twenty-five students have moved to sorority houses: sixty have moved on-campus, and within the dormitories seventy-five students have exchanged rooms. Approximately sixty more students will move to sorority houses if they make their grades.

No new students could be accommodated on campus since there were 252 students off-campus waiting for rooms.

New Semester Affords Much New Activity

Continued from page one

alphi - fields Feb. 10, 12, and 13. Odd-Even swimming, basketball, and tennis will follow.

F.S.C.W. Dates Set

Scattered throughout this program of events will be a host of others not easily classified. February 20 is Dr. Conrad's birthday and the traditional carolling and gift bearing will be repeated. February 22 being F S C W week, a period set aside for the publicizing of the school. Easter vacation will extend from March 25 to 30 and will offer an adequate break between quarters. This year's homecoming, to be known as Alumnae Institute, will take place from April 16 to 18. The political set-up on campus will undergo its usual change when new officers are installed on April 5.

As for the seniors, a series of activities has been planned for them, beginning with the A. A. U. W. senior party on the thirty-sixth of this month. May day will be celebrated on the first of that month with the traditional Sophomore-Senior breakfast and the crowning of the May queen. Spring 39 has been set aside for Class day activities and on the thirteenth the baccalaureate address will be delivered. On May 31, the Commencement exercises will take place, ending the school year.

Ten Students to Represent Campus

Continued from page one

on club work on Friday, and the day's activities will close with a banquet.

On Saturday a moving picture on international relations will be shown, and round-table discussions will continue. Election of district officers will be held in the afternoon, and the convention will close with a party Saturday night.

Miss Muriel Lester will talk for her themes "The World Crisis", "The Practice of the Presence of God," and "Europe and the way of Christ." Miss Lester believes that women are responsible for their actions with conscience as any other art demands.

Economics in relation to religion will be discussed by the Rev. N. C. McPherson Jr., who will speak on the subjects "Shall We Go to War?" and "Christianity and Economic Justice."

Dr. A. Raper will talk on "Race Factors in Cotton Tenancy," a subject that he has studied extensively.

The speakers will give their addresses in the afternoon at the various churches, and the city club luncheons.

On Monday and Tuesday afternoons, Feb. 15-16, two of the speakers will give programs on Broward clubroom.

The Chain has held its meetings in all the principal cities of Florida, and will close with its lectures in Tallahassee. It is being sponsored by a town organization, and all services are free to the public.

NO MORE CLOGGED FOUNTAIN PENS

Fill your pen with the new SKRIP—Parker Quink' Ink. Skrip flows freely. Won't clog. Won't dry out. Never needs other. Dissolves sediment left by pen-clogging inks.

Always rich, brilliant—never watery. Get it at any store selling Ink, 15c and 30c.

Made by The Parker Pen Co., Janesville, Wis.

Parker Quink

MSU Attends State Meeting

Methodist Conclave Held In Lakeland During Entire Weekend

The state-wide Methodist student convention is being held this week-end at Southern College in Lakeland. The services will begin tonight and continue through until Sunday noon, with Dr. W. A. Smart, of Emory University who was speaking during Religious Emphasis week on this campus in November, as the keynote speaker.

Saturday afternoon five "interested groups" will meet, including one on "Christian Ethics," led by Dr. Ludd M. Spivey, president of Southern College; "Christian Recreation," led by Dr. C. C. Methodist Episcopal church; "Christian Leadership," led by Billy Matthews, of the University of Florida; "Drinking on the Campus," led by Dr. Ralph H. Bellamy, professor of sociology on this campus; and "Men and Women Relations," led by Mrs. H. L. Conley, formerly Dr. Edith P. Mois of fon faculty here.

There will be a formal banquet Saturday night in the college dining hall.

Students representing this college include Hetzin Nisbet, Mary Ann O'Byrne, Margaret Peacock, Mary Elizabeth Stevenson, Jane Dowdell, Virginia Clayton, Mamie Pilaeel, Jennie Mae Johnson, Dora Belle Baggett, Lucile Hall, Frances Lane, Annie Laurie Polk, Phillip Hayes, Clarence Revell, Mary Ola Reynolds, Kilagene Bivins, Charlotte Cameron, Florence Lee, and Kathryn Howe.

College Leaders Disagree On Worth of Their Offices

Continued from page one

end all the work falls on the shoulders of the few who are willing to take the responsibility, she feels that if the students themselves were better, her duties would not take up the large amount of time from her studies and also that they do now.

The head of another organization stated that her duties deprived her of sleep and participation in social activities and her own organization, for since she has become head, she has had to give up athletics to a great extent.

Still another student official said that the duties of the organizations she took on were immense amount of ti e. She has had to learn to concentrate on what she is doing at the moment in order to make the most of the little time she has. She feels that the extra-curricular work she does is necessary, but it is the only recreation she has time for.

Two other campus officials said that the extra-curricular activities interfered mostly with their sleep, for even if they did occasionally manage to get to bed before midnight, the mental strain was enough to keep them awake. They found that they eventually got their school work done, having learned how to let their lessons slide when they had much outside work to do, and then to make up later when their campus activities were not so heavy. They expressed the opinion that if they were better managers they could probably keep up in their campus work and studies, and still have plenty of time for recreation and sleep. One of these girls pointed out that the student herself makes the choice of being active on the campus or not, and personally she was glad she had chosen the course she did.

Five Faculty Members Plan to Make Trip

Continued from page one

American Alumni council Feb. 12-13 in Greensboro, N. C.

Miss Anna May Tracy, dietitian, returned Wednesday from Chicago where she was president at the meeting of the American Dietetic association executive committee of which she is a member. Miss Tracy is also president of the Florida Dietetic association. Last year she was Dr. Asbury Kelly, head of the history department, attended the meeting of the Florida

PEPSODENT ANTISEPTIC

1 REG. 50c BOTTLE

only 1c

With purchase of a Regular bottle at 39c while they last!

BENNETT'S
College Inn Pharmacy
109 S. College Ave. Phone 800
Tallahassee, Fla.

Palm-Reading Chosen Best Indoor Sport

Student Fortune - Tellers Become Life of All Dinner-Parties

By RUTH ATKINSON

When nine out of ten girls at the dinner table stop talking when spoons are forgotten half-way to their destinations, when the ice cream is ignored and left to melt, you may be sure that the Florida State girls are listening to the mysteries of a palm reading.

The girl who happens to know enough about the bottom of people's hands is the most popular and sought-after, is given no peace. Requests to be "next" are plentiful. Innumerable questions are asked, like "Is my future going to bring me many times will I marry?" The answers to this one may from one on to one. The girl is to marry four times and is only supposed to live forty years. She evidently believes in change. Other favorite questions are, "What is my talent?" "How long will I live?" "Will I accomplish anything?"

Students are told that they're "ambitious," "artistic," "sensitive," "hard - headed," "others." The whole list of Webster's adjectives are used over and over again and yet the girls never tire of it.

The left hand is compared with the right in order to discover which qualities of character are inherent and which are acquired. The "mount of Venus," the ability of one of their number who can't find it a few time in the palm of a hand and learn from them qualities of character and predictions of the future.

The spread between the index finger and the thumb is indicative of a measure of intelligence. Students who are from the mentality of an idiot to the ability of a genius; the suppleness of the thumb is a measure of indication of stubbornness and indecision; breaks in the long line down the center of the palm supposedly symbolize illnesses that interfere with the course of one's life. One girl who had a very broken line was discovered reading a rubber band down around her hand in hopes of increasing the length of the line.

The study in the school is visited by palmist, and students make appointments for readings days in advance. Some of the students wait in to secure artist seating places as the vacabulary is compared to the lines of girls who read the mysterious revelations concerning their present and future.

A never-ending interest in all

Members, Faculty Board To Be Entertained With Wakulla Springs Party

A party at Wakulla Springs will be given Saturday by Y. W. C. A. for the faculty board and all members who wish to go.

The party which leaves Saturday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock will include afternoon games and swimming will be enjoyed. A picnic supper will be served, and the Wakulla campfire vespers will be held.

Katherine Cobb and Sarah Nance are general chairmen for the Wakulla party, and Mary Ellen Bryant is in charge of vespers. Bunny Lowery is recreation chairman, and Patty Bell Bass is in charge of food for the occasion.

Historical society in Palm Beach

Dr. Conradi last week attended a recreation conference in Orlando called by the state planning board. The conference was preliminary to a nation-wide recreation study to be made by the National Park Service of the Department of the Interior. In Florida the survey is to be conducted in cooperation with the planning board.

Sampler for VALENTINE'S DAY GIVE Whitman's CHOCOLATES

Here, fresh from the makers, are favorite packages of Whitman's Chocolates — including the world-famous Sampler, and delightful Heart Boxes. Call now and select.

BENNETT'S
College Inn Pharmacy
109 E. College Ave. Phone 800
Tallahassee, Fla.

Honor Society Plans Meeting

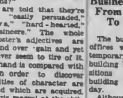
Alpha Chi Alpha Directs Publication Jamboree Arrangements

Further plans for the publications jamboree to be held this spring were formulated at a meeting of Alpha Chi Alpha, Tuesday afternoon. The Jamboree is to take place sometime in March pending the selection of a speaker.

As a part of the Jamboree, a tour of the Democrat office while the Flambeau is being printed will be made. If the Flambeau and the Distaff are also on the press at that time, arrangements will probably be arranged to see what is the process of being printed.

All the publications and societies taking part in this Jamboree will hold exhibits of their work. Alpha Chi Alpha, Chi Delta Phi, the Distaff, the Flastacowo, and the Flat Hoss are included.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Vance will be invited to act as sponsors for Alpha Chi Alpha.



Business Offices Move From History Building To Original Positions

The business and bookkeeping offices were moved from their temporary location in the History building back to their former positions in the Administration building in Prof and Sally Dorsey's day.

Although they will occupy the same general position, they are re-arranged and extended. The bookkeeping and auditor's department will use the space the registrar's office held before the latter was torn down. The registrar's office will take the space formarly held by the placement bureau and general office. Dr. Conradi's office will be in its old position. The new arrangement provides with even a smaller business offices and the registrar's office.

The new offices of the President, the registrar, and the business offices are greatly improved. The walls are finished with acoustical tile, all the walls are painted a light brown that absorbs the glare of light, and the floors are inlaid with brown jaspe linoleum. Additional windows have been placed in the northern end of the building. The cashier's department has been moved to the general feel to permit an additional balcony.

One corner of the business things concerning personalities and characters different. Physically concerning all things to come, and to listen to and listen to the ramblings of anyone with even a smattering knowledge of palmistry.

Some of the facts always manage to hit home, too, but the only objection that all the remarks are necessarily general, and so the college girl is unable to discover the color of her future husband's eyes or, even more important, his name.

Normal School Pupils Will Give Two-Piano Recital Monday Night

The piano normal department, under the direction of Miss Mary Reeder, instructor in piano, will give a two-piano recital in the music annex Monday night, Feb. 8, at 7:45 o'clock.

Miss Mary Esther Winslow, instructor in piano; Miss Mary Ann Waller, harpist; and Gordon Epperson, cellist, will assist in the recital.

The program is as follows: Scale Study by Dille—Patricia Yates and Marjorie Lee Montgomery; Puny Cat, by Diller—Betty Dell and Joan Andrews; Sleep, Baby, Sleep and Augustin, by Wheeler—Nell Thorpe a n d Yale Gunn; Shepherds Hey, by Percy Grainger—Ralph Jones and Jack Scarborough; Must I Go, by Schmidt—Ruth Ervin and Lucille Osborne; Minuet, by Beethoven—Nell Thorpe and Ralph Jones.

Plans Are Started For Hike Group to Attend Meeting in Texas Soon

Miss Katherine Montgomery and Miss Nellie Bond Dickinson of the Physical Education department with students from the modern advanced dancing group will attend the annual convention of the Southern Physical Education association to be held in Houston, Texas, March 2 through 6.

Miss Montgomery, who is vice president of the Southern Association of Directors of College Women, will leave early to attend the meeting of that association which will be held in Houston on Feb. 19th. She will have charge of the program for this meeting.

Miss Montgomery will also give a talk at the Southern Physical Education convention on demonstrations of dancing in high schools basketball. Miss Dickinson will give a talk, and the advanced dancers of the club present a phase in be dance section.

Gordon String Quartet Will Appear Here Soon

The Gordon String Quartet, composed of Jacques Gordon, first violin; David Sackson, second violin; William Lincer, viola, and Alexander Hilsberg, 'cello will give a co cert in the college auditorium Monday night, February 15.

The quartet which made its initial existence in 1921, when Jacques Gordon became concert master of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, is the fifth program of the Artist Series presentations this year.

Mrs. Reeder, instructor in piano manager's former office has been out off to make room for an instructor's studio. This is the first arrang-ement of its kind the college has made for strangers who wish to obtain lessons. This room will also contain a telephone exchange when the campus telephone system has been installed.

Average annual production of grapefruit in the United States between 1928 and 1932 was 14,- 730,000 boxes. In 1936 the production rose to 37,603,000 boxes, the largest total ever recorded in the nation.

The Crooked Hat and Song of the Sword. Moravian Folk songs—later, by Schubert-Saminsky. Suite, by Bach-Poulenc. Scherzo, by Bach-Poulenc. Ye Merrie Winter, by Blake—Isabel Rogers and Collins Gunn; The Bumble Bee, by Rea-Carter—Julia Collins and Flora Kurz; Turkey in the Straw, by Wentworth—Ida Cahr Walk, by Dolores Owen and Julia Alfriend; Avalanche, by Heller-Prothmann—Kathryn Howe and Mary Winslow; Waltz, by Reinecke—Colene Gunn and Frances Proctor; Arioso, by Bach—Gordon Epperson and Mary ann Waller, tenor

The Vogue
feminine wearables
TALLAHASSEE FLORIDA

A New Year Brings A New Interest In Dress

The DAGGER DRESS

Ellen Kaye

A Feature Style of Utter Simplicity!

Tailored in a manner to excite your tactual admiration and enthusiasm, and bringing you the season's outstanding dress of street, entire or spectator sports wear.

We invite you to try it on today ... it is awaiting your selection.

In Wool 11 to 17

Entire Contents Copyrighted

For Better Going in the New Semester-

USE THE PEN WITH TELEVISION INK SUPPLY

Last Go Around-- for FRIDAY AND SATURDAY ONLY

COATS AND SUITS
Fur Trimmed and Untrimmed.
$3.00 $5.00 $10.00
VALUES TO $19.50

SILK DRESSES $1.00 each
Limited One to a Customer.

DIANA SHOP

Television Ink Supply
SPEEDS WHEN TO WRITE
THROW OLD PENS HERE

The Parker Vacumatic Won't Run Dry In Classes

For It Lets You SEE Days Ahead If It Needs Refilling and Holds 102% More Ink Than Old-Style

Millions of Parkers are now reducing their old "ink worries" with this revolutionary Parker Vacumatic writing instrument. Never needs writing "the hard way." When held up to the light, it lets you see the ENTIRE ink supply, hence won't run dry at some crucial moment.

And because it has fewer parts—it holds 102% More Ink. Its Scratch-Proof Point of Platinum and Gold eliminates drag. Its lustrous Laminated Pearl and Jet design is a wholly new exclusive style.

This Pen is carried by more college students than any other two makes COMBINED. It won the recent Pen Beauty Contest by a vote of 2 to 1—was awarded by the All-American Board of Experts as the 90 outstanding players of 1936.

Try the Parker Vacumatic at any good store selling pens. Note the price—the genuine by this secret ARROW—this holds this Pen low and SAFE in the pocket. The Parker Pen Co., Janesville, Wis.

Parker VACUMATIC
MEASURED ACTION BALANCED
Junior, $5. Pencils, $2.50.
Over-Size, $7.50 $3.50 and $4

To Make Your Pen a Self-Cleaner operate with Parker Quink, the new quick-drying ink. 15c, 25c and up.

Sports Squints

By "JINKS" BROOKS

Intra-murals are to begin next week according to an announcement from the manager. Now will be some spirited competition between both the players and the rooters not only on the floor but also in the bleachers. Which reminds us that Odd-Even swimming and soccer games are not over and we must keep in good shape during condition for them!

The girls who attended camp last week-end got some first-hand experience in nursing when one of the girls couldn't take the effects from exams. Our sympathies are extended to the patient, and also to the girls who came back from camp with aching muscles from too much canoe-paddling. They all think camp is fine but to get away from it all—especially after exam-week.

The ground-hog did his stuff on Tuesday, so now we have the usual exercise of pulling on sweaters and raincoats and then using them off again to look for the sun!

Coming from breakfast the other morning, we saw a girl dressed in a purple suit and tap shoes streak out of the dining room door in the general direction of the gym. We might surmise that the new tap-dancing class is for sleepy-heads . . . imagine something worse than trying to do wild bouncing about doing the one-step or triple-taps!

The extra-curricula fencing class has started again and is quite popular. So far there are seven twenty and thirty girls out for each class, and a brand new bulletin board keeps them posted on what's happening in the class.

Practically every day the tennis courts are being used by lovers of that sport. The new asphalt ones erstwhile constructed last year allow students to play on rainy as well as sunshiny days. What a treat not to have to wait three or four days for the courts to dry out after a rain!

Snatches of conversation at dinner the other night suggested there was an enthusiastic ping-pong tournament in progress, and another in archery. Not having heard anything else about it we wonder who is playing and who is coming out. Won't someone volunteer this information?

The folk and modern dancing classes danced at the Country Club last night for the Girl Scout benefit.

Minor Sports Get Underway In Next Week

Intramural Game Progra Includes Five More Group Activities

The starting gun at 4:30 Monday afternoon will send second semester intramurals off with a triple program of archery, ping-pong and shuffleboard running parallel for the first two weeks.

Approximately twenty - five teams are entered in competition in the three minor sports including Kappa Alpha Theta, Zeta Tau Alpha, Pi Beta Phi, Phi Mu, Alpha Xi Delta, Theta Upsilon, Chi Omega, Kappa Delta, Alpha Chi Omega, Episcopals, Methodists, Oldchrist, Broward, Bryan, Reynolds, Jennie Murphree, Presbyterians, Newman Club, Delta Delta Delta, Alpha Gamma Delta, Sptrogira and Ecteran.

The archery tilt will be played off in one day. Competition will be rated according to individuals and each team may have as many or as few competing as they wish. One Columbia round, fifty arrows, will be allotted to each individual with the privilege of using one round for practice if they desire. The four highest scores will be counted and the team standing rated accordingly. Dorothy Marwick will be the archery official.

Each team for ping-pong will have two male players and one doubles team. The game will be played according to official lawn tennis rules. The schedule for the play-off will be mailed to sports leaders and will be posted in the physical education building and the administration building. Each team is asked to bring its own officials and report scores to Marian Weeks, intramural chairman.

Two out of three wins will determine the victory in the shuffleboard games. One game is a score of fifty, so the winning team will have a total of 100 game points. The schedule for these games will also be sent in the mail and posted as for ping-pong. The teams are asked to bring their own score keepers and Marian Weeks will act as official.

Practices for these contests have been underway for the past week.

Tennis is the next sport listed on the intramural program. Competition will probably begin before the end of the first quarter and participants are urged to begin practice immediately. Swimming will follow the completion of the tennis tournament at the end of the season and determine the high score team for the year.

The exact schedule of sports cannot be set because of the uncertainty of weather conditions, but they will follow as closely upon each other as possible

Feminine Faculty Proves Its Worth

Feminine members of the faculty have been practicing weekly for the past four or five weeks in preparation for entrance into a Tallahassee women's basketball loop. The faculty team has been practicing in the college gymnasium against a group of student players chosen at random.

Among those who have shown up at practices are: Miss Maud Flowers, Miss Charlotte Reeves, Miss Ray Prather, Miss Ruth Lehman, Miss Katy Montgomery, Miss Pearl Beverly and Miss Gertrude Vermillion. The team is not complete as yet and several more practices will be held before game participation.

Actress Discusses Politics, Stage, Education, Books

Continued from page one

stage is the proper place for stage training.

Going to the subject of politics Miss Skinner said, "I stand before you as the living example of why women should not have been given the vote. I vote just as my father and husband tell me." She claims no great knowledge of politics or interest in that subject.

The actress writes all her sketches. She does not keep up with the latest books as she hasn't the time she thinks should be devoted to them in fairness to the author. She usually reads the popular novels two or three years after they come out.

It was time for her appearance and Miss Skinner, after a glance in the mirror, started to leave. In response to a last query she said that marriage and career can certainly be successfully combined. It takes a great deal of planning, she thinks, and a number of sacrifices. A married career woman must be willing to forego certain social activities. This does not bother her a great deal though, as she expressed a total lack of interest in bridge parties, tea, women's clubs, and the like. If a woman is able to handle a career along with marriage she leads a happier life and has more to offer her children in the way of cultural interests.

Clyde L. Fitch Four-Act Play Will Be Given Here

Continued from page one

be Elnor Prinz, Sallie Bert Nimmo, Kathleen Hughes, Shirley Pemberton, Ruth Biddle, Marjorie Thompson, Marie Spurlock, and Elva Melvin.

The costumes are being furnished by the Vogue, having been selected especially for the play by Mr. Blumstein when he was in New York two weeks ago on a buying trip.

Rivalry Rises Between Teams As Games Near

Hockey, Soccer Combats Again Match Evens Against Odds

Odd-even rivalry, apparently quiet during the past few weeks, springs into life again this week with the odd-even soccer and hockey games. The odds are out to draw blood and avenge the wrongs done them in the Thanksgiving game and the evens are just as determined to hold that line.

There are an insufficient number out to make four full teams in soccer so three odd-even games will be played rather than the old schedule of two class games and one odd-even.

In hockey the class games will inaugurate a new form on this campus. The game will be played with six-man teams, three forwards, one center half, and two full-backs. The first game will be played by the old rules with eleven members to a team.

Games will be played Wednesday, Thursday and Friday afternoons at 4:30 on the athletic field. The odd-even games will be played on Friday.

The only team so far selected in hockey is the senior team composed of Mary Miller, Beth Dozier, Margaret Maxwell, Martha Maxeiner, Janice Borton, and Marion Weeks.

Even soccer line-up will be Helen Brown, goal-keeper; Marguerite Brown, Frances Waterhouse, halfbacks; Ruth Rogers, Ruth Weber, fullbacks; Frieda West, center forward; Evelyn Glasier, right inner; Louise Orehan, right outer; Frances Fryer, left inner; Elaine Fletcher, left outer; Margaret Makemson, half-back.

The odd soccer team will be chosen from Fay Corry, goal-keeper, Martha Baker, Jean Gillen, Florence Gross, full-backs; Ruth Wilson, Mary Emily Parker, and Mary Palmer, halfbacks; Dot Colburn, center forward; Sadie Anderson and Valerie Hunt, inners; Jackie Oates and Marion Lesney, outers, and others.

Community Recreation Class Assists on WPA Work in Tallahassee

A recreation project, sponsored by the W. P. A. and under the direction of Mr. Ralph Carter, recreation director of Tallahassee has been started in the armory every Tuesday and Thursday night at which time women are allowed to use the equipment of the armory free.

Mr. Carter and Miss Eunice Williams have taken charge of these activities since the project was started last May. The community recreation class has started assisting with the activities by practice teaching.

The activities the women enjoy include social dancing, volley ball, basketball, ping-pong, tap dancing, and a general exercise group at a half hour.

The community recreation class also will take charge of plans for future programs for the coming semester.

FSC Dancing Class Has Part in Scout Banquet

Members of the gym major folk dancing class had a part on the program of the annual scout Council's banquet last night at the Woman's Club. They gave two dances, the "Highland Schottische" and "The Norwegian Mountain Mark."

At this banquet the reports of the year's work given. The theme of the program was "International Scouting." The guests included representatives from all the leading organizations of the community. The dance group portrayed some folk dances of countries where girl scouts exist.

Those girls taking part in the dancing are: Betty Ostland, Jane Cook, Dorothy Meisner, Marion Weeks, Ruth Agnes McClain, Patricia West, and Frances Thill.

Continued from page one

appeared in principal cities along the tiantic seaboard from New York in Miami and as far west as New Orleans. Also among their past successes is a Cuban concert tour

Riding Groups Show Progress

Many Students Learning Fundamentals Under Marie Taylor

Riding classes for the second semester are organized and under-way under the direction of Marie Taylor, instructor. Classes both for beginners and advanced riders are being conducted daily from the college stable.

Classes meet Monday, Tuesday and Thursday at 4:30, Friday at 3:30, Saturday at 10:30 and Sunday at 7:30, 8:30 and 9:30.

Students include Elizabeth Whitfield, Mary Elizabeth Munson, Edith Orr, Nancy Bryan, Jean Gillies, Frances Ellis, Lillian Lahser, Lorraine English, Melba Parks, Marguerite Browne, Thay Powell, Pauline Jackson, Margaret Stoutamire, Margaret Green, Freida Maxwell, Beatrice Krus, Marjorie Tillis, Frances Morrow, Shirley Pemberton, Dot Osborne, Florence Currie, Eleanor White, Harriet Post, Emma Randolph Elebash, Mary Jane Bailles, Jane Quinn, Marcia Raney.

Trudy Rogers, Patti Barringer, Betty Ann Graham, Anita Peek, Ruth Stonecipher, Frances Woodward, Marnie Anderson, Esther O'Byrne, Mabel Bennett, Dot Steele, Hilma Youngs, Lois Collins, Mary Ann Chapman, Janet Pierce, Jane Floyd, Joan Tolver, Luttrelle Patterson, Barbara Watson, Rose Apel, Martha Thomas, Adelaide Ille, Sunny Turnbull, Vencile McCloskey, Jane Sharren, Lillien Taylor, Margaret Walker, Helen Dillard and Kathertine Pratt.

Seniors Bring Emory Singers Next Saturday

Continued from page one

the tiantic seaboard from New York in Miami and as far west as New Orleans. Also among their past successes is a Cuban concert tour

Modern Dance Students Are Working for Play

Students in modern dancing are practicing intensively now on dances for the speech department play, "School for Husbands" which will be presented sometime in the next two months.

Miss Nellie Bond Dickinson is in charge of the group among which is included: Ruth Wilson, Bunny Lowery, Betty Cottrell, Felicia West, Beth Deane, Marion Weeks, Victoria Crisp, Ruth McLain, Viola Brooks, Frances Thill, Janet Cook, Isabel Sands, Dot Hill and others.

Astronomy Club Begins Program Series on Moon

At the meeting of the Astronomy Club Wednesday night plans were discussed for programs which will be in charge of the reorganized group.

The program for the next meeting to be held February 10, will consist of reports concerning the moon. Marie Wagner will speak on, "Phases of the Moon'. Holly Walker will discuss "The Topography and Climatic Conditions of the Moon." and Rosemary McDonald will tell something of the background of past discoveries. This program will be followed by a telescopic observation February 17.

Better Selves Asserted In Aid to Flood Victims

Continued from page one

despite the fact that no one is listening.

"Wait a minute, some humorist donated my silver slippers." All thoughts of man's humanity to man disappear as she goes in search of the practical joker.

Call them sentimental or selfish, no could not bear to part with the family heirlooms. "I just couldn't give away this sweater, sighs a sweet young thing. "I never wear it but my sister might when she gets older."

A well meaning friend takes it away from her and, hailing a relief mark to the effect that the sister would no doubt appreciate her being away with it, places it with the rest of the donations.

This goes on for hours and finally, the hall cleaned as it hasn't been for years, the house chairman crawls over the clothes and into bed, removes a shoe from under her spinal cord, and so to sleep, wondering what the flood sufferer will look like who acquires that gorgeous green jacket.

Joffre Begins Fencing Class For New Term

Old, New Students Are To Meet Separately Every Week

Beginning Monday afternoon at 4:30, Marie Joffre will revive the art of touching and not being touched at the first extra-curricula fencing class of the new semester.

Monday fencing classes are open to those who have had some training in the rudiments of fencing. This advanced group will work on perfecting what they already know. They will also learn some new techniques with their foils.

Marie will also conduct classes on Wednesday at 4:30 o'clock. At this time beginning fencers will have an opportunity to practice the fundamentals of attack and defense with a weapon. Evelyn Edwards will assist Marie with the Wednesday classes.

Between twenty and thirty girls are expected to come out for this extra-curricula sport. The only requirement is that those coming out wear shorts or slacks, and tennis shoes. The equipment will be furnished by the physical education department. The classes will meet for an hour each week either in the balcony or the gymnasium or outside on the lawn.

As a part of the fencing program for the semester, Marie plans to keep a bulletin board up to data devoted to fencing news and pictures. She is also subscribing to "The Epeeist," a fencing periodical published monthly by a group of New York fencers. From time to time Marie plans to send local fencing news to be published in "The Epeeist."

For Digestion's Sake... Smoke Camels

— One reason why they all keep Camels handy

VIGOROUS, active people — in sport, society, and in the world of work — count on healthy nerves and proper nutrition to see them through. Take your cue from them and make Camel your cigarette too! When you smoke Camels at your meals and afterward, the flow of digestive fluids — alkaline digestive fluids — speeds up. Strain and tension are lessened. And you have a delightful sense of digestive well-being. With their matchless mildness, Camels are better for steady smoking, and they don't ire your taste.

Copyright, 1937, R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, Winston-Salem, North Carolina

"BUT I DON'T WANT A HUSBAND I WANT A FORD V-8"

"SKIING TAKES GOOD DIGESTION and a healthy set of nerves," says Sig Buckmayr, shown executing a difficult jump turn across a rock (right), and enjoying Camels during a hearty meal (above). "I smoke Camels a lot. I know they don't get on my nerves. And they help my digestion. Camels and food are always in the same picture. Smoking Camels with my meals and afterward lets me enjoy my food more. Camels set me right! Lighting up a Camel seems to give me new 'pep.'"

RADIO'S NEW SMASH HIT "Jack Oakie's College"

Irresistible Jack Oakie is host to Alice Faye (Sensation), "Swing" Band, George Stoll's Concert Orchestra, Hollywood's most talented guests, and singing Texas Troubadours — 9:30 to 10 E.S.T., 8:30 to 9 C.S.T., 7:30 to 8 M.S.T., 6:30 to 7 P.S.T. over WABC-Columbia Network.

SEA-GOING CHIEF ENGINEER. George Buckingham (above), controls a mass of high-powered machinery. Such responsibility needs digestion. He says: "I enjoy Camels steadily. Camels keep my digestion on an even keel."

ROSE DAVIS (above), champion cowgirl from Fort Worth. As a real connection of the rodeo, Miss Davis often rides a bucking bronc twice a day. She says: "The jolting puts a strain on my digestion. That's why I always smoke Camels with my meals and after."

COSTLIER TOBACCOS!

Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS — Turkish and Domestic — than any other popular brand.

CAMEL

The Florida Flambeau

EDITORIAL STAFF

HAZEL BOWMAN ..... Editor
ELEANOR WILLIAMS ..... Associate Editor
MARGARET BOWDEN ..... Managing Editor
PEARCE SHEPARD ..... Managing Editor
EVELYN FISHER ..... News Editor

Member National Scholastic Press association and Florida Intercollegiate Press association.

DEPARTMENTS

Art, Evelyn Cramer; Exchange, Virginia Kelly; Features, Alice Dyer Lockhart and Mary Shirley Alverez; Society, Catherine Gilbert, Sarah Bennett, Gertrude Ness, Clodine O'Steen, Dorothy Bellamy, Mary Frances Cone, and Minnie Aaron Sandoval; Special Reporting, Arthur Lockhart, Mary Lou Massie; Sports, Ella Virginia Hall, Ben Hall, Jr., Jack Hall.

REPORTERS: Hazel Adams, Ruth Atkinson, Dorothy Barnes, Blanton Barrett, Dorothy Bellamy, Frances Brigham, Peyton Cabaniss, Elizabeth Causey, Pierce Chastain, Clinton Combs, Conover Combs, Minnie Coleman, Virginia Cone, Mary Frances Cone, Mary Cox, Mary Lou Crawford, Margaret Dozier, Lenna Dukes, Betty Lou Easterlin, Lucy Kelly Ann Ladd, Betty Lloyd, Martha Longmire, Mary Lou Massie, Mary Frances Mayo, Alleta Meachum, Mary Nicks, Alberta Patrick, Rose Peters, Martino Portillion, Nancy Rogers, Jane Sanders, Mary Ann Spalding, Elizabeth Sutter, Mary Sullivan, Anna Warren, Frances Waterhouse

BUSINESS STAFF

LILLIE McGUIRE ..... Business Manager
JAN CHRISTENSEN ..... Advertising Manager
MARGUERITE BROWN ..... Circulation Mgr.

Representative for National Advertising by
NATIONAL ADVERTISING SERVICE, Inc.
College Publishers Representative
420 Madison Ave. New York N. Y.
Chicago · Boston · San Francisco · Los Angeles
Portland · Seattle

Entered as second class mail matter January 30, 1915, at the post office at Tallahassee, Fla., under act of Congress of March 3, 1879

Examinations Have New Purpose

With the examination seige now over, we raise our heads to wonder what it was all about. We stuffed ourselves full of facts, drank coffee, stayed up late, and then waited for the flunk slips.

Several weeks ago the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching published a five-year study of examinations that might throw some light on our confusion.

Chairman of the study, Dr. I. L. Kandel, of Columbia university, concludes, "The success of an educational system can or should no longer be measured in terms of the numbers who pass or fail in examinations but by the degree to which it has been able to discover the abilities and needs of pupils and students and has provided for them the type of education from which they are capable of profiting.

"And for this purpose the traditional type of examination cannot be used, for the problem is not merely one of selecting an elite or even elites, since the types of leaders required by modern societies have increased in numbers, but of giving to all the type of education and instruction that will equip them, in accordance with their abilities, to be useful members of society."

A glance at some of our own examinations may reveal that many of our own professors still believe in the "traditional type of examination." If the results of the five-year study are carefully assimilated by educators here and throughout the country, however, we may expect a revolution in institutionalized education.

Dab System Dies at Hiram

Though statements of generality are easy to put secure bases upon which to build an argument, Kenneth Irving Brown, president of Hiram college, has chosen to explain in such manner the Hiram Study Plan. Says President Brown:

"The genius of great teaching must ever be the inspiring teacher, adequately prepared in his subject, who comes to the classroom with respect for the abilities and needs of his students. The genius of learning will ever be the eagerness and industriousness of the student, capable of receiving."

Would any educator or any student disagree with any part or the whole of either of these literary definitions of the teacher, the pupil? Very likely not. But many educators, many more educators than students, would disagree with the administrative plan which President Brown would build with these two sentences.

Many more educators than students because the educators have been brought up in a tradition which at first seems inflexible, incapable of standing the test of modernity. Students are soon very ill at the thought of three classes today in three different courses, two classes tomorrow in two other courses, critical only very dimly related to either to first three or to each other. That is a simple picture of traditional education. Harvard's president has said that American students come out of college with a remarkably small knowledge of a great many things.

The Hiram college faculty gave a vote of 89 per cent favoring the continuance in 1937 of the Hiram Study Plan. The students gave an 88.6 per cent favorable vote. The next question naturally is, what is the plan? What plan could win not only a large faculty support but also a huge student majority? What plan could be so interesting to students that 99 per cent of the enrollment voted when ordinarily an 80 per cent vote from a student body is considered optimum?

At Hiram a student studies only two things at once, but does intensive work in one of these two subjects. In a space of nine weeks he has completed a year's work or the equivalent of six semester hours in one course. One course only he has completed one quarter of the work, for he devotes only three hours per week in class time to this second subject.

In four quarters at Hiram a student completes four of five year-courses with extensive study in each. The fifth course, studied over a period of one year as in more prosaic educational circles, allows a maximum of time for the intensive work but eliminates the possibility of monotony.

The Hiram plan is not a new education fad. It is being tried in varying degrees at several schools. At Hiram it has been in use at summer school for six years, in regular session for two years. The plan is now a permanent administrative fixture by reason of the vote already cited.

The Hiram Study Plan advantages are many. The "dab" method of education is more nearly eradicated. Schedule entanglements are impossible, making registrations child play instead of pandemonium. The grading system is relieved of the involved process of gathering from five to eight faculty opinions on one student at one time. Students obviously can concentrate more fully in one field at a time. The necessity for "hither and yon" tactics is eliminated. The best thing perhaps to be said for the idea is the comparative freedom for research and study which it makes possible not only for students but for faculty members.

Are the Bonds Growing Heavier?

"Individuality is waning in American life," a statement from an article in January Harpers, deserves serious thought.

We have too much proof of the truth of this statement to ignore it in essence.

Within only the last year Student Robert Burke, of Columbia university, Professor Jerome Davis, of the Yale Divinity school, and Ex-President Glenn Frank, of the University of Wisconsin, have obviously for their political or social sympathies been ousted from these most reputable universities.

In 1935 alone over one-third of the twenty-two teachers' state oaths were made applicable. The oaths were to protect or defend the Constitution of the United States. If this means to defend the Constitution as it now stands, which some foresighted teachers fear the oaths may become to mean in the hands of those who may have their own purposes to serve and who would put forward at the opportune time to interpret a way to advance those purposes, then the oaths themselves are derogatory to the spirit in which this democracy was conceived.

Has action such as the ousting of well-known personages from colleges and the introduction of teachers' oaths increased enough within the last few years to justify the statement that "academic freedom" is a more fly-by-night phrase? We hope not. Yet facts of new import here make one think that not only is "individuality waning in American life"; individuality is near suffocation.

We in schools and colleges who know well most of the battle lies in maintaining academic freedom are to be congratulated. Our greatest strength is in unity; our greatest weakness is fear.

If we continue to tolerate such undemocratic action towards our colleges by "reputable" universities, which are highly publicized, we may expect a wave of fear to sweep the country. We may discover too late that teachers are too afraid for their own security to unite in the fight to foster academic freedom.

And if we are willing to tolerate suppression of speech among our own teachers, what claim have we to democracy? What right have we to protest the Nazi exile of German teachers, the Russian and Italian methods of silencing that speech which does not advocate their particular systems of government?

It is against these flagrant challenges to democracy that intelligent organizations in schools and colleges throughout America must now unite to prevent our hypocritically lapsing into fascism—the most dangerous enemy to democracy today.

Spirit of the Week . . . . . By Glazier

This Week

With the Ohio and Mississippi rivers on the widest rampage in their history, front page news for the past two weeks has been devoted almost entirely to reports of death and destruction in the towns and cities located on their shores.

The 2000 mile course of the Ohio and Mississippi, swollen by unprecedented winter rains, has risen from 30 to 50 feet above flood levels bringing death to some 500 people in 11 states—Pennsylvania, Ohio, West Virginia, Kentucky, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Tennessee, Arkansas, Mississippi and Louisiana. As many as a million people are homeless, and property damage is estimated at more than four hundred million dollars.

The combined efforts of the army, navy, Coast Guard, Red Cross, WPA and CCC are now getting the situation somewhat in hand. Troop trains, boats, motor, water craft and airplanes have been sent from all over the country to the flood areas. Tented cities have been erected for the homeless, and emergency kitchens and hospitals have been set up. President Roosevelt has sent a survey board into the devastated region and a bill for a broad plan for government aid. He has passed it to the funds to finance the work of reconstruction.

New rioting in the Gastpar and Motors strike which is now going into its sixth week, has resulted in the concentration of a full National Guard strength of 4000 soldiers in Flint, Michigan. The trouble began when union supporters, includi... a group of ninety women known as the Women's Emergency Brigade, attempted to keep non-union workers from entering Chevrolet plant No. 9. Police rushed in to defend the men and fighting ensued.

The National Guardsmen have now surrounded all the Fisher Body and Chevrolet plants in the city. They have orders not to enter the buildings or to attempt to eject the strikers forcibly. However, their cordon prevents any food or supplies from getting into the plants. Some of the sit-down strikers have canned goods on hand; others have nothing and will soon be starved out if the situation is not altered.

In the meanwhile, Secretary of Labor Perkins is trying to persuade Alfred Sloan, President of General Motors and John L. Lewis, head of the Committee for Industrial Organization to resume negotiations for ending the strike.

President Roosevelt and his Congress seem imperturbed by the avalanche of criticism that has so often been heaped upon them for New Deal spending. This week Congress is rushing two billion dollar appropriation bill to final passage. The Senate has approved a nine hundred million dollar relief bill carrying seven hundred million for work relief, and has sent it to the House for approval. The House has passed a one billion, forty million appropriation to operate the government's independent offices, chiefly the Social Security Board.

As the same time, the president has presented a third call for legislative consideration calling for five billion dollars, in a six year program for public works which will be used as a basis for "a long range plan

Continued on page six

University Editorials . . . . .

From our editorial columns this week we find two points of view on that all-inspiring, breath-taking experience so many of us have come to go through. What do you think?

HERE'S A THOUGHT

In a move to go away with traditional commencement exercises, The Transylvania University of Arkansas student newspaper, published an editorial purporting to "abolish in one sweep the expense, nuisance, and nonsense of graduation exercises."

"Of all the slapdrap and useless fixtures of college life, the commencement is one of the principal absurdities," said editor Robin Richardson.

"How many seniors want to sit through a lengthy commencement comprising little else but college platitudes and high school philosophy?" the editorial asks. "How many seniors have any desire to endure a funeral exercise featuring boresome introductions, political bombast, and mediocre music?"

The Arkansas editor presents a question well worth the thought of every student looking forward to obtaining a diploma. "Must useless if gradiation exercises are mere procedure—a form to go through in finishing school, the Traveler is correct in its assertion that commencement is an absurd custom. But if commencement is planned to mean something to the graduates and to their families, the Arkansas editor errs in the logic of his remark.

Graduating is similar in many respects to meeting a class. It can be mere routine, but it may have value to the graduate and to the school. Prominent speakers with worthwhile messages stimulate serious-minded people, and especially students who are about to go out into the world on their own for the first time.

The Arkansas editor would contribute a great deal more to his school and to college commencements generally if he would give suggestions on how to make graduation exercises worth-while, instead of lambasting it as time-honored custom and a proved asset to college activity.

The Stetson Reporter offers us a somewhat satisfying comment based on an editorial which appeared several weeks ago in the Florida Flambeau, an editorial which stirred the hearts of us all!

SACRED COWS

There are sacred cows, and cow worshipers. Even them in India; Egypt has her cow-headed Hathor. But they all fade before the Halfway Cow of Florida.

Our subconscious has taken her for granted. She is the household goddess, 'the mother of beef, the source of butter, the original cause of cheese, to say nothing of shoe-horns, hair combs and upper leather; and as such her left turns onto the highways are sure to be respected than the lives of our unworthy citizens. Nay, her whims and fancies transform the traffic into a movie of stunt performers.

The Tampa Tribune's "Gulf Glean" published some apt lines on this topic signed "Shobe":—

"Your poetry's good but your logic be blowed!
No cow ever learned to go down the road!
It's people like you, sir, who slow up our pace
And keep our fair state from its logical place . . .
The bull that you mention is looking grand, while singing like Tibbett and throwing up sand will never induce Yank into rapturous spells en route to Lake Wales to be charmed by the bells. Let cattle use gumption and stay on the grounds and cease to compete with our traffic machines or else the commercial vehicles will make money, I know, by doing away with the old Halfway Cow."

With memories of the University of Louisiana still burning, our hearts we find the dismissal of Glenn Frank left an unquestioned actuality in spite of student uproar and a nation's indignation. The Minnesotan editorial on the difficulty, interesting to us because we are one with them, the position of the state-run school in regard to politics:

AS IN WISCONSIN

The dismissal of Dr. Glenn Frank from the presidency of the University of Wisconsin is another example of the power exerted by politicians over the colleges and universities of today.

Dr. Frank is a renowned educator. He brought to the Madison university a prestige it had not previously known. His presence was an inspiration to the students of one of the greatest institutions of higher learning in the nation. But Dr. Frank had one shortcoming—one which

Continued on Page Five

Collegiate Comebacks

According to rumor, tomorrow is the day when our dreadful suspicion will crystallize into sickening reality. Grades are coming out, we hear. In case you are thinking that nothing can be worse than this horrible suspense, just wait till you see your name on the "pro" list.

* * *

A couple of healthy snorers for the girl who has made unpleasant every class in our major subject for the last two years by telling our answers she learned in the preceding course in said subject to questions the instructor meant to be rhetorical. He assumed, of course, that any moron would naturally know the answers. Evidently that dear sister has never heard that it's best to remain silent and leave some room for doubt concerning one's mental capacities.

* * *

From the Auburn Plainsman we learn that, according to W. W. Kerr, head of the department of medicine at the University of California, tender steaks, prepared foods and soft breads are causing faulty development of faces, jaws, and teeth in the American people. Come now, be honest. Why not admit that the Americans just don't like to masticate as they once were. It doesn't seem quite fair to keep bolstering up our hopes.

* * *

It used to be the hand that rocked the cradle which ruled the world, but today it's the hand that dishes out the grades.

* * *

An exchange informs us that Ely Culbertson, bridge expert, declares that "all real bridge players are gentlemen, including myself." Small consolation that is to us after losing everything but our shirt in a bridge game the other evening.

* * *

From the Log comes this toast:

The Freshman—he loves his wine—
The German loves his beer—
The American is not far behind—
But drinks all he finds here.

* * *

In the Creightonian we read that the National Association of Teachers of Speech has decided that, "the most unpleasant voice is that of the English language are: phlegmatic, crunch, flatulent, cacophony, treachery, asp, jazz, pluvial, erupt, and bleating. We're still wondering how they could have overlooked "exam."

* * *

The Johnsonian reports that all personal problems of students at Lo Angeles Junior College can now be solved by sending a note to the Associated Students president's office. A note asking for anything from arranging dates to securing a dress for a special occasion will be given attention. The sophomore lad will probably like to know how to suggest in the most tactful manner possible that orchids are most acceptable for corsages.

* * *

With spring in the air the Log prints the following little ditty, entitled Spring and Romance.

The moon was low—the motor stopped
I thought perhaps he did it—
I fell; he fixed it; I said "Oh my!
But bashfully had hid it;
His burning eyes looked into mine—
He grasped my laughing hand—
'I've something I must ask you dear,
I hope you understand—'
His face was red, he bowed his head.
These words came from his collar:
'My purse is low—my clothes are rags;
Please let me have a dollar."

* * *

According to the Miami Hurricane, the newest racket for students at Manitania, South Dakota, College, is that whereby the girls sell mimeographed "reputations" of boys as they are while singing like Tibbett and throwing up sand will never induce Yank into rapturous spells en route to Lake Wales to be charmed by the bells. Let cattle use gumption and stay on the grounds and cease to compete with our traffic machines or else the commercial vehicles will make money, I know, by doing away with the old Halfway Cow."

With memories of the University of Louisiana still burning, our hearts we find the dismissal of Glenn Frank left an unquestioned actuality in spite of student uproar and a nation's indignation. The Minnesotan editorial on the difficulty, interesting to us because we are one with them, the position of the state-run school in regard to politics:

AS IN WISCONSIN

The dismissal of Dr. Glenn Frank from the presidency of the University of Wisconsin is another example of the power exerted by politicians over the colleges and universities of today.

Dr. Frank is a renowned educator. He brought to the Madison university a prestige it had not previously known. His presence was an inspiration to the students of one of the greatest institutions of higher learning in the nation. But Dr. Frank had one shortcoming—one which

Continued on Page Five

Magazine Jotting

BY SARAH BEALE
and
SARAH BETH DAVIS

How to Stay Out of War— An Open Forum of Opinions On Keeping America Neutral

Forum recently sent out a questionnaire to a number of observers of international affairs asking this question of action . . . is to prevent war should threaten civilization, what policy should the United States pursue in order to avoid being drawn into the conflict and to safeguard and conserve her physical and moral resources?" In the January issue appear answers of eleven individuals. Other responses are to be published later.

Charles A. Beard (professor of political science)—My program of action . . . is to preserve neutrality and to preserve it by drastic limitations on selling munitions and sending men to all belligerents. We must maintain domestic sanity.

Carrie Chapman Catt (lecturer)—If a majority of our citizens are determined to withstand the restrictions on personal liberty, loss of freedom of speech, and loss or profits—peace of a strict neutrality will result.

Harry W. Colmery (National Commander of the American Legion)—(1) Maintain adequate national defense; (2) provide for limiting capital and industry into service, as well as man power; (3) adopt a strict neutrality policy.

William Allen White (Editor)—We must withhold food, chemicals, or textiles to belligerent nations. Commerce with them must be on cash basis provided for the purchaser to take the goods from our ports

W. W. Waymack (editor)—(1) Hold national strength down instead of increasing it; (2) force a revision of our intervention policy; (3) adopt radical legislation that actually limits the profit and power of capital. Keep a cash-carry scheme for foreign trade; (5) provide for anti-war propaganda, and define as treason any interference with free expression of anti-war arguments.

Wilbur L. Cross (governor of Connecticut)—Mobilize public opinion behind an official neutrality statute.

Gerald Garrison Villard (journalist)—Before we legalize a nation-wide referendum on war or peace, we should: safeguard our neutrality—as the man in the White House. I am a believer of the Nye-Maverick bill. Even if it is of rudimentary nature, it would be infinitely better than the cost of going to war."

Frank E. Gannet (publisher)—I see no reason why we should not keep out of any war, but once war gets going nothing a complete embargo will save us. And we are the only people in the world who really can be self-sustaining.

Quincy Wright (professor of international law)—We must be "co-operationist neutrals," i. e., open trade with all states but the aggressor, thus avoiding a business depression and discouraging aggression.

Harry F. Ougenheim (diplomat)—We should find the golden mean between the isolationist neutrality of those who would withdraw into splendid-social mania." The framework for a neutrality law must be flexible, and subject to manipulation by the Department of State and by Congress.

Charles E. Martin (professor of international law and political science)—We must prohibit loans and sale of munitions to belligerents.

* * *

Strategy in the Mediterranean

By Captain Liddell Hart

Italy's enlargement of her forces and armament of her bases of offensive action have undoubtedly complicated Britain's problem of securing her trade routes and overseas territories says Captain Hart in his article in the monthly Fortnightly Review.

The prospect of Spain's developing into a first power with "sea-like tastes and Pacific ties." The writer believes will increase the insecurity of the British position in the Mediterranean and the route to the Suez Canal and the Cape route. Yet these complications may improve wholly adverse. As Captain Hart explains it, "It would be like shutting up a herd of mad cats in a cage to start a war where many heavily armed powers are confined to narrow a space, all with their bases interwoven. This narrow space is constantly shrinking in size by the rapid growth of modern weapons of offense and the nearness of air raid retaliations, he concludes, may deter even the most warlike statesmen.—(S. D.)

* * *

Inside Mexico

By Maurice Halperin

With the Spanish tragedy before our eyes there is a good deal of discussion as to whether or similar events are not in store for Mexico. Mr. Halperin is writing for the February Current History soon after a tour of Mexico says there are many encouraging indications that Mexico may be spared the experiences of Spain.

First of all, President Cardenas is popular among the peasant class, the workers, and even the business men. Most Mexicans are not only vehement in their expression of sympathy toward the present government, but seem to realize their responsibilities toward it. President Cardenas has acted and continues to act with firmness in carrying out an agrarian reform.

The army, so frequently in Mexican history an instrument of brutal despotism, is now losing its old character. At no period since the Revolution has it been less encumbered with corrupt and self-seeking generals.

The Social Week

Sophomore Hop To Be Held In Gym Tomorrow Evening

The annual Sophomore Hop will be held at 9 o'clock tomorrow night in the gymnasium with music being played by Bobbin Roberts and his Florida.

The theme for this hop and the decorations are being kept secret until the gym is opened for this affair. A novel program of entertainment is being planned by Betty Chaben and Janet Lockwood, who will direct during the evening.

Committee chairman who have been assisting Virginia Dell, general chairman, in making the plans for the hop are: Peggy Wilson, music; Virginia Craig, program; Peggy VanDyke, decorations; Frances LaMotte, invitations; Mary Elizabeth Dougherty, chairman; and Betty Chaben and Janet Lockwood, entertainment.

There will be program dances with cut-in encores. Approximately 500 couples are planning to attend the dance.

Sophomores and Dates

Those attending the hop with their dates include: Evelyn Arnold, Fred Woods; Mimi Anderson, Max Ahrano; Adella Appleyard, Keenan Morrison; Mary Badger, Carl Jones; Dorris Bassett, Ralph Callahan; Dorothy Bell, Bob Dismukes; Margaret Bellamy, Whitemore; Betty Bichotte, Curtis Carswell; Mary Elizabeth Black, Marion; Margaret Bolster, Leon Howard; Josephine Bowen, Bill Bowen; Frances Boyd, Tom Walker; Lillian Bradley, Thomas Bradley; Irene Braverman, Arnold Rubin; Dorothy Broward, Bert Broward; Emily Jane Brown, Gilbert Purdy; Winifred Brown, Jack Whidden; Frances Brunson, Joe Daniel; Mary Frances Campbell, Bill Ennis; Eugenia Marie Canova, E. H. Parrish; Betty Bettina Carlton, Curtis Stanton; De' Carroll, John Carrabella; Rene Christy, Harry Omanson; Myrtle Alice Clifford, J. P. Street, Jr.

Jeanette Compton, Perry Edwards; Mary Elizabeth Daniel, Owen Jones; Orleen Dey, Charlie Brown; Helen Dillard, Harry Johnson; Mary Elizabeth Dorsey, John Love; Emma Elesbah, Dorge Roarck; Evelyn Edwards, Thomas Costello; Mary Margaret Ellison, Cecil Bernard; Mary Ferguson, Charlie Beck; Amanda Elizabeth Finch, Clarence Lyvonski; Margaret Fishler, Sidney Mendelson; Louise Fitzpatrick, W. L. Fitzpatrick; Frances Floyd, Ernest Wallace; Weiaska Fullmer, Marshall Boykin; Roberta Gammon, George Milton; Lorine Gates, Gordon Certain; Mary Gower, Howard Le Tourneau; Mary Margaret Gourlis, Vance Duncan; Annis Greenawalt, George Lewis; Elizabeth Ortlay, Gene Bullington; Carolyn Grissett, Billy Warren; Jewell Groover, Sherwood Gay; Florence Cross, John Hey; Nina Gulla, Bob Beasley; Harriet Lovelina Gyles, George Penn.

Elton Greer, Frank Gresham; Elizabeth Harrison, Francis Harmon; Marian Herbert, Mervin Bristol; Eleanor Hickson, Charles Betts; Winifred Hill, Jimmy Versaggi; Joyce Hinckley, Willie Marks; Hazel Hinson, Tommy Livingston; Jean Hodges, Dennis Tolbert; Marian Constance Howard, Lucius Battle; Leona Jane Frank Moreno; Lois Hughes, Kenneth Scott; Mary Hudson, Max Pair; Margaret Jackson, Victor Nesbles; Henriette Johns, Donald Lyman; Joan Johnson, Arthur Webb; Nellie Jones, Cary Everett; Martha Kennedy, Jack Simpson; Geraldine Knapp, Billy Goss; Gwendolyn Knapp, Wallace Seawell; Anne Ladd, Edward Burton; Frances LaMotte, Allen Lane; Catherine Latham, Wallace Montgomery; Betty Leach, Bob Pendleton; Martha Lila Lee, J. Roy Duggan; Elizabeth Lemon, Jimmy Hires; Jessie McCollum, Jack Clark; Muriel McClurkin, Bill McLeod; Mary Hill McCrary, Edwin Lawrence; Dorothy Main, Carl Linke; Alicia Meacham, Raymond Schmoker; Margaret Meredith, Bedford Brown; Beulah Mildred Mildmond, Virginia. This school, which admits only those students who have had two to four years of college, gives a two-year course for laymen wishing to do church or social service work and grants two degrees, B. D. and M.A. in religious education and Bible.

During the Christmas holidays Dr. Dewitte, of Lake City, who attended the school recently, gave a talk on the various aspects and aims, after which a musical program was presented by Eleanor Daniels, Merryday Rosser and Julia Rosser.

Ramage, Frank Inman; Elizabeth Ramage, Andy Barker; Jeanny Reed, Claud Smith; Gertrude Rodgers, D. J. Namrik; Nancy Rogers, Fred Durant; Jewel Rollins, Dal Rollins; Nancy Rou, Talbert Rou; Dorothy Scott, Ed Scanlon; Mary Russell, Leonard Bass; Isabelle Satterfield, Jimmie Everett; Luella Sedd, Barney Fuller; Annie Skinner, Wallace Covington.

Betty Snyder, Frank Milliken; Anne Spencer, Jim Porter; Edythe Stanley, Willis Fugate; Clara Stewart, Circe Thompson; Helen Stewart, Cecil Parker; Marvis Stewart, Thomas Willis; Agnes Stiggins, Burk Sadik; Maymo Stuckey, D. L. Croft; Audrey Swilley, A. C. Knight; Marcia Thompson, Jimmie Allen; Anna Tildon, Bill Ingram; Jeanette Trapnell, Tuel Hendricks; Sumie Tsuzuki, Harold Robb; Marguerite Tyler, J. C. Phillips; Alta Vann, Roy Bond; Mary Wade-worth, Johnny Seay; Margaret Ward, Jack Ward; Dorothy Ward, John Wing; Betty White, Rodney Haney; Myrtle Wilson, John Cone; Mary Wimbish, Jack Green; Betty Wynn and Art Chase.

Stag Line

Members of the Sophomore class who are planning to attend without dates are: Errol Anderson, Rose Appel, Dan Arnold, Ralph Arnold, Rebecca Ashton, Katherine Bacon, Mary Jane Barnes, Charles Barnett, Marion Barrett, Marion Bearman, Alma Bevilla, Jessie Bishop, Mary Boatright, Carolyn Boyd, Ruby Bronstein, Petres Cabaniss, Betty Cashen, Hugh Chapman, Brenda Clements, Ruth Cleveland, Honor Cleveland, Bill Cobb, Mary Phillips Chalker.

Virginia Craig, Edith Daniel, Mary Virginia Dell, Hiam Donegan, Mary Louise Duncan, Margaret Durham, Mildred Edwards, Veola Evans, Myrtis Fenn, Helen Ferguson, Dora Fisher, Rosa Gates, Grace Gill, Eugenia Glass, Mary Ann Hart, Julia Hollander, Mary Archibald Sarah Frances Howell, Lucy Hunter, Elizabeth Kennedy, Margaret Kennedy, Margaret Kennedy, Eleanor Kirkland, Sarah Lewis, Lillian Lidner, Martha Benham Lumpkin, Luella Lynch, Mary Frances Manigold, Mercer Marvin, Frances Meigs, Jessie Melvin, Dorothy Molnar, Julia Mullis, Jean Alene Nash, Retithis Niblack, Lelia Noble, Catherine O'Mara, Bernabe Owen, Mable Parks, Sarah Moore.

Annie Laurie Polk, Mary Elsie Powell, Amy Phay, Martha Phillips, Marion Purviance, Mabel Rogers, Sara Scott, Josh Smith, Doris Rountree, Ruth Rubin, Annie Laurie Sanchez, Dorothy Scott, Vivian Sanborn, Jane Sharron, Mary Stevenson, Eloise Trott, Martha Gregory Smith, Mildred Margaret West, Polly Ann White, Lillian Whitehurst, Frances Williams, Geraldine Williams, Margaret Wilson, Jean Zacharias and Sarah Lytle.

"Politics," yelled the students, but they may as well have been saying "Hot dog" to the moon. Dr. Frank is at Wisconsin on more than official business. Whether action will have on that university is not known, as yet, but one thing is sure—Wisconsin has Dr. Frank.

Mississippians well remember a similar shakeup at "Ole Miss" during the second Bilbo administration. Politics unseated the venerable Chancellor Alfred Hume, and "Ole Miss" lost its A rating for a time what it had been gaining for years. After a long struggle the university is regaining its former position, but a struggle it has been, and one which educators of this state will not soon forget.

It is not right in any state that a governor of that commonwealth, should have absolute control over the educational facilities of state-owned schools. Conditions such as those existing at Louisiana today, and at "Ole Miss" seven years ago are a staggering reminder to all friends of

HAVE DINNER
at the DUTCH KITCHEN
—TUESDAY NIGHTS—
Creamed Chicken and Waffles
—THURSDAY NIGHTS—
Baked Beans, Individual Pots
—SATURDAY NIGHTS—
Fried Oysters
Broiled Steaks and Those Good Dutch Kitchen Rolls Every Night!

ADAMS STUDIO
119½ East College
"Photographs that Please"

This Week's Calendar

(Notices for this column should be sent to the Flambeau)

Friday

Presbyterian league banquet, given by the freshmen, church annex, 6 p.m.

Voting for Flastacovo personality contest, lower floor of Administration building, 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

Emergency Peace Campaign meeting, 304 History building, 8 p.m.

Coalition club banquet for new members, Dutch Kitchen.

Saturday

A.A.U.W. sponsored motion picture, The Human Adventure," State theater, 10 a.m.

Sigma Kappa, open house for sophomores and dates, church annex, 8 p.m., followed by buffet supper.

Pi Beta Phi open house for sophomores and dates, chapter house, 4 to 6 p.m.

Y.W.C.A. picnic for members and faculty at Wakulla springs, truck leaving at 1:30 p.m.

Sophomore Hop, gymnasium, 9 p.m.

Sunday

Phi Mu all-dinner coffee, with Miss Mary Alice Kellum as guest of honor, for friends.

Delta Delta Delta afternoon tea for faculty members, 4 to 6 p.m.

Alpha Chi Omega tea for friends and faculty members.

Monday

Piano formal department recital, music annex, 7:45 p.m.

Thursday

The Truth," four-act play, by speech department, Augusta Conrad theater, 8:15 p.m.

Personals

Ruth Wilson was pledged by the Alpha Xi Delta sorority Monday night.

Mrs. J. R. Griffin of Tampa visited this week end with Mrs. Parks as the guest of her daughter, Elspeth.

Beta Phi Alpha had as house guests Monday Mrs. R. Carels and Mrs. W. Fox of Tampa.

The Alpha Xi Delta province president, Miss Lillian Laughlin is expected to visit the local chapter this coming week.

University Editorial

Continued from page four

government is not neglect to recognize. Dr. Frank had the audacity to oppose some policies of the state government. He paid the state. The first gentleman of Wisconsin rebelled at the thought that anyone in a state-owned school should disagree with him on anything, and he urged and obtained Dr. Frank's dismissal by the Progressive-controlled Board of Regents.

Hit Parade Proclaimed Tops By Ardent Radio Listeners

Ben Bernie, Fred Astaire and Nelson Eddy Run Close Seconds In College Students' List of Favorite Programs

By DOROTHY BARCLAY

Just walk down any dormitory hall any evening and listen.

Despite the regulation that says radios may be played only if "they may not be heard outside the room," the mingled hum of orchestras and news commentators, dramatists and comedians provides a strange background for the academic pursuits generally thought to be going on behind closed doors. Stop before any door for a moment and you'll guess.

It was Sir John Langdon-Davies who said in a lecture here last year that it was his impression that "half the children in America could not prepare their school work unless radios were playing at their sides." Such seems to be the contention of, if not half the students here, at least half of the conversations overhearing radios registered in the business office, and it is interesting to note that the freshman contingent has a relatively greater lead than the upper class hails.

Radios play a surprisingly constantly although in quite a few cases their listeners are totally unconscious of the fact. Perhaps the most every girl owning a radio has the favorite program which she listens to those religiously.

The preferences of the different classes are for the most part much the same, but the reasons vary considerably. Also, particularly liking one program or another as a matter of taste and diverse as the individuals themselves.

The "Hit Parade" has staunch adherents in every class. In one room in Bryan there is a group of two girls and a boy who have listened together almost consistently for a year. "It's probably force of habit that keeps us at it," one of them said. "But it is interesting to see how your favorite songs rank in national favor." One of the boys member, a mathematically inclined classic major, has kept records of these standings over periods of weeks and now has the information to good advantage as a basis for prediction in the sweepstakes. Several girls, within a twilight hour when the program was out from a full hour to a half, have to run buy their cigarettes again," protested a junior who has never smoked.

At this same hour one Wednesday night, a freshman and a sophomore, quite unaware that musical history was in the making, sat stiff in her chair while Oscar Bustern trapped erstwhile Hit Parade hits. She never listened to the "Hit Parade" except "well, maybe once in a while, on Saturday."

Another program generally liked was Fred Allen's. "I might just as well be in jail on Tuesday night," a junior lamented. "At 9 o'clock I have to listen to Ben Bernie. Then Fred Astaire comes on at 9:30, and that's the only one so good I can't leave."

The very mediocre of all Tuesday night's programs is the cause of a minor battle in a room in Gilchrist. "I command," said one girl, sitting militantly before the radio. "I command that what just because she paid half the fee she can dictate the programs. Well, I'm listening to Fred Warning and the Camel Caravan, and that's that."

Among the other radio features mentioned were Jack Benny, Rudy Vallee, Kate Smith, Nelson Eddy and Nino Martini, and, despite the opinions of "Bing" Crosby devotees, Rudy Vallee still has his following. Comedians like Eddie Cantor, Bill Bidde Cantor, Milton Berle, and Fred Allen are very well liked. Strangely enough, some of their most ardent supporters fall into the group generally considered the intelligentsia.

Edwin C. Hill led the field with fourteen votes as the best news commentator, although Boake Carter, Clem McCarthy, and Paul Sullivan had their enthusiastic education of what happens when a governor plays politics with a university.

Spanish Life Featured In Artistic Handiwork Being Shown This Week

Spain comes to the library.

Yellowed one hundred-year old books of Don Quixote, colorful Spanish pottery, wine bottles of odd shapes, seventeenth century chocolate pots with long, exquisite draw work, and mantillas bright with Spanish embroidery are all featured in this week's library exhibit which has been prepared under the direction of Miss Rita Lane Matthews by the junior library science class.

The exhibit which also includes a lovely and very old Spanish paisley shawl and some delicate Don Quixote lace, was arranged from material procured from Dr. Marion Hay and Dr. Margie Burks. Books and pottery with a Spanish background and theme complete the display.

Miss Matthews and the library science will be in charge of the next exhibit.

Andrews Discusses New Study on Development Of Personality Traits

"Character and personality go hand in hand, neither being worth much without the other," said Dr. Elizabeth Gordon Andrews in discussing her new course, Character and Personality Development, which will be given every Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday at 9:30.

"Although character and personality are often used as synonyms, it will be necessary for us to common use of the terms ink general and school assignment with character while personality is associated with some sort of psychological charm. In this course we will define character as the true inner self while personality will be regarded as the way one individual affects another.

"The aim of this course is to understand and then control human nature, and although we will touch on the scientific methods which have given the necessary data, the emphasis will be on the use of this data as a means of

Photographer Returns

The photographer for the Flastacovo will be in the studio in the Demonstration room from Monday, Feb. 8, through Wednesday, Feb. 10, so that any students who wish to order pictures may get them at resulting prices.

ANNUAL BANQUET OF COTILLION CLUB TO BE GIVEN NEW MEMBERS TONIGHT

The Cotillion club will give its annual banquet in honor of those tapped in November, tonight at the Dutch Kitchen. The decorations will be in the Cotillion colors of green and white, and favors will be presented to the guests. Plans for the banquet were made at the meeting of the Cotillion club held Tuesday afternoon at the Kappa Delta house. At that time, too, the plans for the remainder of the year were outlined.

Officers of the club are Jane Tharin, president; Mary June Michal, vice president; Lila Parmore, secretary; Marion Beaver, treasurer.

Those to be honored include

Ruth Atkinson, Jane Brown, Mary Buttle, Erma Bisel, Louise Fougate, Martha Lee, Janet Lockwood, Dorcas Medlin, Jean Miller, Julia Mullis, Katherine McCreary, Frank Peck, Jane Quinn, Clarice Sanches, Virginia Schreiber, Jane Shannon, Dorothy Sheldon, Dorothy Smith, Mary Katherine Smith, Katherine Stevens, Bert Towne and Marcia Wyche.

Members are Phil Asher, Billy Horne, Jane Crook, Jere Crook, Mary Frances Mabie, Ann Mizell, Virginia Payton, Jane Tharin, Sue Whitaker, Dorothy Barr, Sara Mae Davis, Marion Neger, Emelie Mae Lockwood, Mary Jane Mitchel, Dorothy Olmsted, Lilla Parmore and Wal Robey Webb.

OPEN-HOUSE, TEAS, COFFEES GIVEN BY SORORITIES AUGMENTING DANCE

Sharing the social spotlight along with the Sophomore hop are open-house dances, receptions teas and coffee, which are being given by the various sororities on behalf of honoring members, friends, and faculty.

The Alpha Chi Omega sorority will entertain Sunday night with a tea in the home for faculty and friends. Skits given by the pledges will feature the evening, after which a buffet supper will be served.

This afternoon a coffee will be learning how to understand and control conduct.

The material will be culled in selecting principles which will help her develop a dynamic character and a more pleasing personality," said Dr. Andrews. "One of the first principle was to understand the material on which the student is building.

The works of Edwin D. Starbuck, former director of the institute of character research at the University of Iowa, to whom a $20,000 prize was given for his plan of character education, as well as those of other leading psychologists will be studied in the course.

given by members of Alpha Chamma Delta for chapter members and pledges. An informal tea will be served and in the decorations and refreshments.

The members of Delta Delta Delta will entertain Sunday afternoon with a tea in the sorority house on Park Place for faculty members. Hot tea, sandwiches, and rolls will be served by the hostesses.

Entertaining in honor of the sophomore members of the sorority, Pi Beta Phi will hold an open-house tomorrow afternoon from 4 until 6 o'clock on the chapter house on College avenue. Informal dancing will be enjoyed.

Members of the Phi Mu sorority will entertain with a coffee after their dance. There will also be a buffet supper from 8:30 until 9:30 o'clock tomorrow night.

Claudette Colbert says:
"My throat is safest with a light smoke"

"An actress' throat is naturally very important to her. After experimenting, I'm convinced my throat is safest with a light smoke and that's why you'll find Luckies always on hand, both in my home and in my dressing room. I like the flavor of other cigarettes also, but frankly, Luckies appeal most to my taste."

Claudette Colbert

STAR OF PARAMOUNT'S FORTHCOMING "MAID OF SALEM" DIRECTED BY FRANK LLOYD

An independent survey was made recently among professional men and women—lawyers, doctors, lecturers, scientists, etc. Of those who said they smoke cigarettes, 87% stated they personally prefer a light smoke.

Miss Colbert verifies the wisdom of this preference, and so do other leading artists of the radio, stage, screen, and opera. Their voices are their fortunes. That's why so many of them smoke Luckies. You, too, can have the throat protection of Luckies—a light smoke, free of certain harsh irritants removed by the exclusive process "It's Toasted". Luckies are gentle on the throat!

THE FINEST TOBACCOS—
"THE CREAM OF THE CROP"

A Light Smoke
"It's Toasted"—Your Throat Protection
AGAINST IRRITATION—AGAINST COUGH

Copyright 1937 The American Tobacco Company

McKay States Purpose And Work Of CGA

Meeting Held to Inform Student Body About Its Government

At a meeting of C. G. A. yesterday Mary Jeanne McKay announced that the purpose of this meeting was to be an informational source and to explain the main parts of the constitution of the college and the workings of C. G. A. to the students.

Mary Jeanne gave briefly the beginning of the College Government Association in 1912, telling of its progress from that time, and explained the general set up at the present time. She explained that the Student government had complete jurisdiction concerning student conduct except in matters pertaining to academic affairs, the public health and safety of the students, household management and dormitory regulations, and those matters pertaining to use of college equipment. In these matters the Student Government may recommend questions to the faculty but they cannot pass on these matters themselves since the student body is constantly changing, and moreover students cannot devote all their time to Student government affairs. These specified matters have been reserved for the faculty. In cases of student conduct involving suspension the student has the right to appeal to a higher body the faculty. Thus there exists in the relationship between the faculty and students cooperation in government.

In discussing the constitution, Mary Jeanne said that the student senate a committee had been appointed to study the revision of the constitution in an attempt to set a fundamental basis for a legal pattern of a constitution, thereby changing the form rather than the content. As it stands the constitution is a body of amended knowledge since it has been changed so much since its beginning.

She continued with reading part of the constitution, discussing naming the points, and explaining the duties of the officers of the College Government Association in a brief diagram she explained the parts of and the general set up of the student government which consists of both faculty and students in cooperation.

In spite of a general misconception on the part of the student body, as to their part in government affairs, there is an individual responsibility in regard to voting, tc, which should be training for citizenship in later life.

In the following weeks at the same time on Thursdays similar meetings will be held, each time with the head of one department of the student government, both faculty and student, explaining their departments and their functions.

College Girl Fails to Act The Highbrow

Finer Things of Life Find Small Place In Schedule

A college girl and a highbrow—hardly synonymous terms, in spite of all the parallel reading and term papers, and incidently all the thinking one is supposed to do for the time one is in college. However by the time the parallel reading and term papering is done there isn't much time left to sit down and think.

Usually we would rather read a movie magazine or go to a show or perhaps while away time at the Sweet Shoppe for relaxation. But then there is the question of being a highbrow. though a college girl would usually think of it in some other term. After all one should give some evidence of being an intelligent person. Interested in the "finer things of life." Perhaps we should read Bacon's essays, or at least have the book around the room to look intelligent. It's a shame the movie magazine is always in reater evidence spread out on the desk, while the essay or any other "deep" book somehow hides itself under papers until it becomes overdue, and in the meantime one hasn't had an opportunity to look at it—at least not when the right mood was there too. It's an awful strain to be a highbrow.

The fact that a musical comedy is on this week at the theater and an historical picture coming next, our highbrow college girl talks about the interest and the historical background of the picture to come, but she goes to see the musical comedy. Somehow we are more in the mood for a picture right at the present.

Too, the lecture given at various times in the evenings for the benefit of the students are so worthwhile and interesting, that is, if you are interested in such things, and of course we are because it is so uplifting, but somehow the trip to Spic to buy a stamp leads to a dope and after that it is really too late to go. One hates to go in late to such meetings—it doesn't seem dignified. We will have to be sure to attend the next one.

It seems a little hard to her to remember that we should look at everything with eyebrows a little uplifted in skeptical criticism, and show surprise at nothing, for at times one forgets and becomes hysterical over someone's joke at the dinner table, and then I is so much easier to believe what you hear than to think out the answer. Perhaps one should wait until after college to become a highbrow. It would be much simpler and one realor doesn't have the time with so much else to do.

Emory Glee Club to Appear in Concert

The Emory Glee club, known as the "South's Sweetest Singers," will present a program in the college auditorium Saturday, February 13. The Glee club is being brought here under the auspices of the senior class, of which Mary Miller is president.

This Week

Continued from page four

and policy of construction."

Chancellor Adolph Hitler is still rankled by the recent award of the Nobel Peace Prize to Vari von Ossietzky, a German pacifist whom the Nazi nation had first imprisoned then exiled. Hitler gave formal expression to his anger this week by issuing a decree which forbids Germans to accept any Nobel prize in the future. The decree established rival prizes for Germans only. Three awards of 100,000 marks each will be made each year to Germans who have distinguished themselves in art or science.

Students Give Views About Programs on Artist Series

Some Consider Them Very Interesting; Many Find Them Dull

By BETTY SPICER

Artists Series' presentations have caused run a little discussion among students on campus. However, when it comes down to plain facts, it seems that most students really think the same thing, only they express it in different words. A few girls are somewhat determined in their views upon the subject, but the majority advocate a few changes and nothing more.

A sophomore does not think very much of the present system of Artist Series. She said that they were the same thing over and over which was boring even to the most stupid person. She expressed a preference for one well-known artist such as Nelson Eddy to a dozen mediocre artists that she claims Florida State College engages. She thought that students ought to have a voice in the selection of the artists instead of leaving it to the judgment of a faculty committee because the students were the people that attended these series and therefore should voice a preference for the people they desired. She added that students should have more free time to devote to these things, since she believes they are the things which add wholly to their education; at lot more so than some classes they attended.

Another sophomore thinks the series are fine and very interesting. She thinks the college should have more of them but did see how they could not do it for economical reasons. She thinks that a faculty committee and a student committee elected for the purpose of helping to express student preference, working together would be more nearly able to select what the college girl wanted most in the line of entertainment.

Another girl who had been here more than one year said that in her opinion all the Artist Series had been very good. She said there was at least one very good program each year. She is a program that everybody on campus had heard of. Her one criticism was that a little more variety would help in holding the students' attention. She thought there was a little too much music and would like something in a different line. "People who complain about the series are the people that never attend them nine times out of ten. They just want something to fuss about." She added that students should not have a voice in the selection of Artist Series because they don't have enough sense to make intelligent selections or suggestions, she said, might help, but they should stop at that.

One girl is tired of soloists who seemed to her to be of average calibre. She prefered orchestras, or something that required a lot of people, and wanted more dancing. She was in favor of selections of Artist Series by students.

One girl expressed herself as follows: "I would much rather have one well-known person than a lot of mediocre people. I know of some universities that have had H. O. Wells and Nelson Eddy and all kinds of people like that. Florida has plenty of opportunities to t ve them too because a lot of them come South in the winter and we could get them for the same price that we get these others. I also think that students should have a voice in the selection of these series because they have to listen to them. If they don't appreciate them, they don't get any good out of them."

According to a senior the programs are all right but could be varied. She wishes for some legitimate plays, readers, and Shakespearian actors, or something timely that all the students know about. She thinks there were too few programs and wants more. She is against student selection. She believes that the intelligensi can choose better than the student body.

A junior, who had been listening to the senior voice her opinion, took an opposite stand in a decided way. She was very much against the statement that intelligensia can choose better than the student body. She thought that the faculty committee should pick out a great many subjects for Artist Series and let the student body choose what they wanted from those. In this way, both factions would be pleased. She thought that the series were as good as could be had but she was far from being satisfied with them. She would like to have more dancing.

One girl when asked what she thought of the Artist Series, replied that she had never been to any. She explained that she never had time to attend when they came or else she was out of town. However, she thought that students should have a choice if programs because more students would go.

Most people are not of a high enough level of intelligence to appreciate the good things that come here, said another girl. She thinks there should be more melo-dramas. She is against student choice.—"No telling what we'd have if students had a voice in the selection."

One senior thinks the presentations are all right but that they interfered with studies. She stated that any more would be too much for her to take. She in would like to have more variety and she expressed a preference for more plays.

Petersburg Makes Opening Donation

The St. Petersburg Alumnae club made the first donation among the alumnae clubs towards the proposed student - alumnae building recently when they sent in a check for $50.00. Mrs. Carleen Vinal, former president of the student body at Florida State College for Women, is president of the St. Petersburg club.

This is the first step towards the $200,000 goal that approximates the cost of the proposed building which is the chief project of the Florida State College Alumnae association for this year.

Eta Sigma Phi Members Talk Upon Classicists

"Eminent Classicists / Today" was the subject of several talks given by the members of Eta Sigma Phi, honorary classical society, at their last meeting.

With Pearle Overbuhs in charge, the members sketched the lives and work of forty-four men outstanding in this field in the United States.

The speakers included: Pearle Overbuhs, Mary Kathryn Gibson, Kathleen Robinson, Julia Vanderipe, and Holly Walker.

Labor Officers Visit Campus

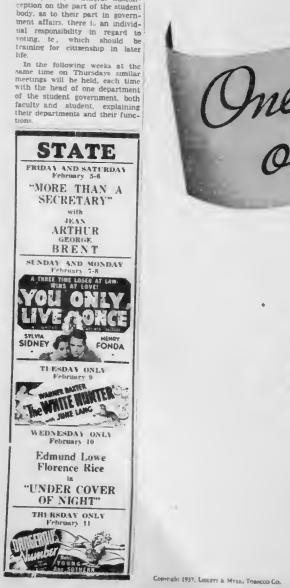
Confers With Governor On Workers' Status And Conditions

Miss Mary Anderson, of Washington, director of Woman's Bureau of the United States Department of Labor, was a visitor on the campus last week-end. During her stay in Tallahassee Miss Anderson conferred with Governor Fred P. Cone regarding a survey of working conditions in Florida now being made.

With her as luncheon guests in the college dining room were Mrs. J. G. Kellum, president of the Florida Federation of Women's clubs; Miss Sarah Partridge, Tallahassee, editor of the Florida Club Woman; Mrs. Walter S. Jones, Jacksonville, chairman of Florida's advisory committee to the Women's bureau; Mrs. Cora Valentine, Jacksonville, president of retail clerks in Jacksonville; Mrs. Malcolm McClelland, Jacksonville; and Mrs. P. C. Moore.

Chi Delta Phi to Tap Eight Girls Next Week And Initiate in March

At the monthly meeting of Chi Delta Phi, literary honorary, Thursday aft.-noon, in Bowne lounge, plans for tapping and initiation of new members were discussed. Eight girls will be tapped next week and initiation will be held in March.



Catherine Levy, president, made an announcement concerning the seventh annual playwriting contest of the Alabama College Theater in which Chi Delta Phi members are eligible to participate. Catherine appointed Elizabeth Becknell to represent Chi Delta Phi on the committee for the forthcoming Journalistic Jamboree.

After the business meeting, tea and cake were served, and the literary issues of the Literarian, Chi Delta Phi publication, were distributed.

Faculty Members Named On High School Program

Dean Nathaniel Moss didn't will speak to the high school group at the Midwest Florida Teachers Association to be held at Chipley, Florida, on Feb. 12.

Dean Salley, Dean Margaret Sandels and Mrs. D. F. Williams will be on the program in the afternoon session. Mrs. Williams is taking the place of Dr. Marion I. Conway on the faculty of the School of Education.

Hear Emory Singers in Program Tomorrow

The Florida Flambeau

Published by the Students of Florida State College for Women

Welcome Delegates to Youth Conference

VOLUME XXIV. Tallahassee, Florida, February 12, 1937 NUMBER SIXTEEN

Gordon String Quartet Plans Music Program

Will Give Concert Here Monday in College Auditorium

ANNOUNCE PIECES TO BE PLAYED

Fifth Artist Series Offered to Florida State Students

The Gordon String quartet will give a concert in the college auditorium Monday evening at 7:45 o'clock. This will be the fifth of the Artist Series presentations. The members of the quartet are Jacques Gordon, first violin; David Sackson, second violin; William Lincer, viola, and Nasum Benditsky, 'cello.

Program Listed

The program of chamber music to be presented, the sheet instrumists by the quartet Monday night will include Quartet in B minor, Opus 2, No. 5: Presto, Serenade Intermezzo, and Finale—Schumann, by Haydn; Quartet in G minor, Opus 10 (two movements) Andantino Allegretto; Scherzo and Assesi vivi—both by Debussy; Quartet in E major, No. 2: Allegro moderato, Scherzo — Andante, Finale — Arnold Schoen.

The Gordon String quartet came into existence in 1921, when Jacques Gordon became concertmaster of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra. Gordon was in his early twenties at that time, and had only recently finished his studies with Professor Auer, famous and first violinists of the Kreutzer String quartet. Upon arriving in Chicago, Gordon organized a quartet with certain of his associates in the orchestra. After eight years he found it advisable to retire from his position as concertmaster and devote himself entirely to the interests of his string quartet.

Sackson is Youngest

David Sackson, second violinist of the quartet, is an American by birth and the youngest member of the group, having graduated only two years old. Most of his musical training was received at the Juilliard Institute of New York. Prior to his association with Gordon he was a member of the Lenox quartet.

Nasum Benditsky, 'cellist, left Russia after the World war and settled for a time in Syria, where

Continued on Page Three

Parker Writes War Editorial

Florida Review to Print Article by Editor Of "Distaff"

An article by Daisy Parker, editor of the Distaff, will appear in the April issue of the Florida Review, quarterly magazine of the University of Florida. The theme of the issue will be "Antiwar," and will be published in connection with the peace day tomorrow in April.

"After Bourbon Aires, What?" will be the title of Daisy's article. She will discuss the Latin-American situation and will point out the political interferences and pressures between executives of governments will not get us very far in the struggle for peace unless they are built up by background being the people.

Daisy will also point out that the need intellectual conferences and exchange of studies and literature and so forth between countries, she will show that there must be built up by friendship and not by talks of peace and so.

The editor of The Review wrote to Daisy in December inviting her to write an article for the April issue. She has requested that from time to time the Florida Review publish one on co-education activities by students at this college appear in the University magazine. This will be done in an attempt to bring the two institutions closer together.

Daisy has asked the editor of the Review, John Paul Jones, Jr., to write a guest editorial for the next issue of The Distaff to appear in print published by the end of the third quarter.

$50 Prize Offered For History Essay

The beginning of next week has been set as the deadline for entries in the annual essay contest on Florida history. A prize of $50 is offered by D. H. Redfern of Miami. Any student who has taken or is taking a history course other than the required six hours is eligible to compete. The essay must be on the subject "Henrietta Mary Croom: the Life of a Young Girl in Territorial Florida," and must be at least 3,000 words in length.

Emory Singers Will Present Concert Here

Thirty-Nine Tour South With Club on Annual Winter Journey

DEWEY DIRECTS CHORAL PROGRAM

Organization Members Do Special Arranging Of Spirituals

Emory University's Glee club, known as "The South's Sweetest Singers," will present the first in a series of glee club concerts sponsored by the senior class Saturday night at 8 o'clock in the college auditorium.

Thirty-nine members, including Dr. Malcolm H. Dewey, director, managers, and accompanist will compose the tour party. Florida State College is second stop in the club's annual winter tour.

Program is Varied

The program tomorrow night will include choral selections from classical to the most modern musical and a selected group of negro spirituals.

Among the numbers the club will sing are Beethoven's "Creation Hymn," Gounod's "Ave Maria," "Ave Verum," Brahms' "Lullaby," Mousorgsky's "Song of the Flea."

Club Has Own Music

The negro spirituals, for which the glee club is well-known, reflect the history of the organization. Trained in the negro schools students hummed the themselves matches from the plaintive chants of the Negroes of the deep South. Gradually the singers added to the tunes, gradually often together strain by strain. They made trips far away from traveled highways, deep into the woodlands and small farms of the southern states to study the Negro old plantation negroes at their tiny cabins.

Spirituals Unpolished

The work of gathering the spirituals is not incomplete, according to the club.

Eleven today, however, there is no printed music to the spirituals collected by the club. The tunes and lyrics are handed down from one year's club to the next, and thus are preserved only in the minds of the boys who sing them.

Recordings have been made of the glee club by American and English recording companies. Broadcasts have also been made by the glee club since 1922, including programs on national hook-ups.

Among the high spots of two European tours by the club have include concerts in New York, London, Amsterdam, Washington, Glasgow, and Paris.

One of the stories related about the club, back in its second trip to Europe is an incident which occurred when the club was booked for a week at an Amsterdam theater.

Nearly half of the boys caught

Continued on Page Three

St. Valentine Day Recalls History of Ancient Custom

Many Superstitions Connected With Occasion Now Celebrated in Honor of Two Saints And Dan Cupid's War Activities

By RUTH ATKINSON

Because Sunday is St. Valentine's Day, a few sentimental students will spend several hours trying to find the appropriate verse surrounded by the right amount of lace and the right number of cupids and hearts to send to Jimmy or Jack. Others will be more sentimental in order to keep the spirit of the day, and will not know the state of a certain female heart, but, on the other hand, it must be the too extreme who will be thinks "thei kind of stuff is silly."

Since Sunday is St. Valentine's Day, a few bitter students and a few practical ones will be running around trying to find some comic Valentine cards, ugly or satanic and labeled with biting or sarcastic remarks to send to that girl down the hall who flirted so outrageously with Bob last week-end. Or to that boy in the next door who makes such good grades that she pulls the whole curve above normal in the psychology class.

In spite of the fact that Sunday is St. Valentine's Day, the unknowing and uncaring majority of the students are going really on their way, smiling at the sentimental gifts and cards from the social jokers, admiring the Valentine displays, and thinking unconcernedly of the long-gone past when they, too, had sent fancy cards covered with cupids and bleeding hearts, and containing verses about love and affection such as "because roses are red and violets are blue you're sweet as sugar."

The two revered saints for whom the day is named have little credit for the character of the day, for it is their vows of a specially romantic nature, and as Walsh said, they were never accused of "making sheep eyes at the Roman maidens." Rather it is thought that a holiday which was celebrated during the month of February was given the sanction of he church by being renamed St. Valentine's Day in honor of one or more of that name. One of these saints was a martyr to the church and was beheaded in the year 270.

Continued on Page Three

Director

Dr. Malcolm Howard Dewey, above, is director of Emory glee club. Dr. Dewey received his doctor of philosophy degree from the University of Chicago in 1910 and was the recipient of the American Red Cross national field secretary for that organization. Going to Emory later in 1919, Dr. Dewey accepted a position there as professor of romance languages, which he held until 1927 when he was appointed head of the department of fine arts, in which capacity he serves today.

Florida State Chooses Girls For Peace Day

Elect Chairmen Handling Program for Entire Day, April 22

Committee chairmen under the general supervision of Mary Jeanne McKay have been appointed for Florida State's Peace Day program to be held April 22.

In selecting these chairmen the committee consulted many of the girls themselves as the head of each committee and gave her for co-chairman a girl not belonging to the council. The remaining members of the committees will be chosen next week by the chairmen.

The girls picked for these posts were: publicity chairmen, Marian Makemson and Hazel Bowman; radio program, Marorie Faulkenson; special Peace Day early morning vespers, Mickey Conn and Judy Borton; faculty-student discussion, Jo Binion and Louise Cothan; parade, Winifred Ewart and Margaret Walcott; play committee, Marjorie Tilis and Mary Ann Hartsfield; entertainment, Betty Hatch and Sira Hemphill; library display, Marie Taylor.

Continued on Page Three

Burhans Wins Distaff Award

Editor Announces Special Freshmen Section For Next Issue

Mrs. Edna K. Burhans received the Distaff award for the best prose contribution to the college quarterly story "Between Creek and Me" in the current issue.

Mary Noble, a sophomore, received the second award for her article "Can We Do It?" Honorable mention" an answer to a previously published article, "The Reply," "How Can We Do It?"

Mrs. Burhans was awarded Carl Hayden's prize for the best article, The Perfect Pie. Ira and Mary Noble won the book, Wee College Worthwhile by Mr. J. T. R. Tunis as the second prize.

The faculty committee of judges included Dr. William G. Dodd, Dr. Venilia Shores, and Dr. M. R. Hinsdale.

Daisy Parker, editor of the Distaff, said, "The contributions used in the next issue of the Distaff there will be a freshman feature section. This section will be open over entirely to the freshmen, and they may contribute any article type of work, preferably prose.

Besides the regular prizes awarded each quarter to the winning contributors in the Distaff there will be a separate award to the winner in the freshman section. This award will be a copy of O. K. Chesterton's Autobiography."

The deadline for the next issue of the Distaff will be March 10 and the magazine will be out at the end of the third quarter.

Enrollment Is Highest Ever Reached Here

Inadequate Dormitory Facilities Result In Acute Need

53 ENTER SCHOOL SECOND SEMESTER

Registration of 1,819 Increases Housing Difficulties

The most acute housing situation in the history of Florida State College for Women has arisen since the beginning of the second semester. With an increase in enrollment bringing the total to 1,819 students, the highest in the history of the school, officials are facing a serious problem.

Previous to this semester, the record enrollment was reached during the 1932 term, when 1,792 students were in school here. Registration at the beginning for the semester just begun brought the total above the 1,800 mark for the first time.

Dormitories Taxed

"Enough students to fill a large dormitory assembled plans to come here last fall when they learned the dormitory space was all taken," said Registrar S. R. Doyle in describing the inadequacy of present housing facilities.

Approximately 700 students this year had to be accommodated in off-campus houses. The dormitories, which house only 1,106 students, are taxed beyond their capacity in the middle of the summer preceding session, although no students are accepted up until the time of registration in September.

Because of crowded dormitory facilities, only Florida students are given the privilege of living in the dormitories. Tuition is free for Florida students but a nominal fee is charged students from other states.

This year Tallahassee leads all other cities in enrollment, with 180 students, many of whom are day students who live at home. Miami is second with 145; Jacksonville thirty with 147; and Tampa fourth with 139. Enrollment by counties puts Dade county at the top with 180, Duval county in second with 194. Hillsboro third with 150, and Hillsborough with 147. Sixty-six out of the sixty-seven counties in Florida are represented.

Besides Florida students, there are enrolled at present students from twenty other states. Cuba and France States represented are Alabama, Georgia, Connecticut, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Massachusetts, Minnesota, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Tennessee, Vermont, Virginia, West Virginia, and Wisconsin.

More than 100 "transfer" students who have entered from other accredited schools.

Leader

Dr. Charles D. Harrey, director of the Youth conference which begins tonight at Rapp hall. This conference is being sponsored in Tallahassee by the Religious Workers' council of Florida State colleges and is made possible by the executive board of the Florida Chain of Missionary Assemblies.

CGA Sponsors Another Talk On Mechanism

Makemson Gives Outline Of Judiciary Duties And Campus Value

The fact that the Judiciary department of the College Government association is a constructive and educational force as well as being a penalizing organization was stressed by Miss Marian Makemson, chairman, in the second of a series of talks on the College Government, given yesterday.

Martha also corrected the impression, general on campus, that the activities of the judiciary are entirely secret. "Trials are not open to everyone," she stated, "but if, for any reason, a girl should have a reason for wanting to have the details of a case, she would have only to state those reasons to a member of the judiciary to have the records opened for her."

At the beginning of the talk the speaker presented a brief outline of the aims and purposes of judiciary. Then, she went on to promote harmonious group living and social unity by attempt to impress on students the necessity for honorable living.

"There are no set penalties for any case," she continued. "Each case is considered on its merit, or demerits and the culprit dismissed or penalized in proportion to the size of her offense.

Although there has been no case in which a student wished to appeal a case tried in lower court to the higher body such action is possible. Judiciary has the final word in inflicting most penalties, but decisions on cases involving shipping offences must be reviewed by the faculty committee before the penalties are put into effect."

Horror and Thrills Feature Sophomores' Haunted Dance

Skeletons and Cobwebs Adorn Gym as Couples Hop To Tune of Frankenstein Fling as Dates Shudder at Terror Trot

While curtains bearing the sign of the Sophomore class hung together at the entrance of the big gym on Saturday night. From behind these curtains could be heard much jam and swing music like unto the sound their dates could impatiently in the long line in the foyer waiting for them that names checked off the list.

Once inside the gym they forgotten and after standing in line for what seemed like hours, embarrassed girls had to return home for their cards of admission and then back to the foyer they went.

The amused sophomores comforted their uneasy escorts who could be heard uttering strange and slightly sneering sounds. "Ohh!—Yes!—Sure!—Stand in line! Get your name checked off. Can't smoke in the gym. Can't even go outside to smoke. Can't leave the dance. Can't stay out after 12 o'clock. Can't do anything! Whatta dump! I sure would like to see the guy that made the rules to put in the frat scrap book." Such were the words.

Inside punch was being guzzled, loss were being mashed, and shins were being barked as the dizzy heels were walling Their escorts were walling because of aching feet which had been dancing since two o'clock in the afternoon. Their motions were becoming automatic, their smiles plastered.

The decorations and the skeletons on the wall grinned widely! The lights were turned low for the men. This would show them how it felt to be stuck and to have one's partner wave wildly for help. This would show them how it felt to be "framed-up" now it felt to be coolly ignored when some-break-on-me smiles were flashed.

The twins from Gainesville were a cause of much embarrassment. In the stag line was overheard: "Have you met the twins?" "I've met one. Introduce me to the other." "How do you do? I just danced with your twin. You all look exactly alike. Oh! Was it you I was dancing with? I thought you would have known it."

"You know, I should have died

Continued on Page Three

Youth Conference To Begin Tonight

Third Session Mission Meet Here Sunday

"Power of Christ" Theme Of Annual Assembly Fla. Missions

With "the vitalizing power of Christ" as its theme, the Florida Chain of Missionary Assemblies will open its third session with a program Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in the college auditorium.

Dr. Herrick B. Young, of Iran, and Miss Muriel Lester, who is in America this winter connected with the National Preaching Mission, will give the principal addresses Sunday afternoon. After the presentation of the world ambassadors, Miss Yoko Saito, coloratura soprano from Tokyo, Japan, will sing.

The program continuing at the college on Monday will be opened at 10:30 with a devotional by Dr. Arthur Rapp. Mr. George P. Robinson will address the group at 11:30. The first meeting of the afternoon will also be held in the little theater. At this time Mr. Reginald Torrey will be the speaker.

At five o'clock on Monday afternoon, a student conference will be held in Broward lounge. Miss Muriel Lester will talk to students on "Wo Id Peace," and her talk will be followed by one by Mr. Robinson, the subject of which will be "Regimented Youth in Germany."

Mr. Charles Hurrey, director of the state-wide Youth conference will be the speaker at convocation Tuesday morning. There will be another student conference in Broward Lounge at five o'clock on Tuesday afternoon. At this time Mrs. Indiuk Pak will speak on the subject "Building a New World," and Dr. Arthur Raper will discuss "Race Relations."

The Florida Chain of Missions will have headquarters for its town meetings at the First Methodist church. Ministers from each of the city churches will have one of the world ambassadors. Monday afternoon and Monday evening, Tuesday afternoon and Tuesday evening the missionaries will bring messages to the various congregations. These talks are open to everyone.

Two Alumnae to Attend National Council Meet

Mrs. E. L. Breaux of Groveland, president of the Florida State Alumnae association, expects to attend the meeting of the American Alumni council, district 3, February 13 and 14 in Greensboro, N. C.

Mrs. R. H. Leslie, executive secretary of the Alumnae association, has been invited to be on the program.

Faculty Views Junior Show

Minstrels Are Approved For Presentation At University

The program of Junior Minstrel, which will be presented in the junior class in the college auditorium Friday night, was reviewed by a faculty board last Monday night for the purpose of deciding if it is acceptable to Gainesville.

The faculty committee gave its approval to the program, but suggested that the minstrels be at a date which will not conflict with activities at the University and on the campus during the next set. The University of Florida Glee club, which extended invitation to the junior class to present their show on that campus, will sponsor its performance.

In the meantime, rehearsals are continuing being held to bring the show up to polished form by Friday night.

Margery Jones is general chairman. Kay Harris and Lurlien Hutchinson are assistants to those in the cast since the first appointment of the participants was made.

Eta Sigma Phi Taps Two

Members of Eta Sigma Phi classical honorary met in the library Tuesday afternoon at 5:30 when Mary Jones Lee and Grace and Marcia Smith to membership Initiation will take place soon time during February

Students Arriving Here To Launch Initial State Meeting

DR. HURREY WILL GUIDE ASSEMBLY

Campus Religious Group Sponsors Sessions Of Gathering

Two hundred inter-denominational delegates will come today to launch the initial Florida Youth conference under the direction of Dr. Charles D. Hurrey. The conference will open tonight with an address on the theme of the conference "Christian Youth Building a New World."

Chain Will Follow

The sessions of the conference which is being sponsored by the Religious Workers' council on the campus, will serve as a leadership training assembly prior to the advent of the Florida Chain of Missions. One hundred twenty-five students representing the councils of religious organizations and the Y.W.C.A. on campus are expected. Students delegates from colleges and universities throughout Florida will comprise the delegation attending the conference. Plenary meetings will take place in Rapp hall; the seminars will meet in various classrooms of the college.

The roster of speakers for the Youth Conference is taken from the Florida Chain of Missions Directing the conference is Dr. Charles D. Hurrey. Miss Rachel Henderson, international secretary, and Janice Borton are serving on the advisory committee. Miss Winnie Lee Davis is chairman of the Religious Workers' council the organization sponsoring the conference.

The program will continue during Saturday morning, when Miss Muriel Lester, "The Dare All dams of London," the founder of Kingsley hall in London's east side and the hostess of Mahatma Gandhi during the Round Table conference in London, will conduct the devotional. Following this Dr. Arthur Raper will address the conference on "Breaking Down Racial Barriers." The speakers for the afternoon session will be Miss Lester, Dr. Harry Ward, and Dr. Herrick B. Young.

A banquet in the lower dining hall followed by a party at the Methodist student house will conclude Saturday's program. Mrs. Indiuk Pak, of Korea, Miss Yoshi Saito, of Tokyo, Japan, Mr. Ezequiel Turres, of Cuba, and Mr. Brayton C. Case, of Burma, India

Continued on Page Three

Girls Discuss German Matter At NSFA Forum

Speakers Talk on Return Of Teuton Colonies To Fatherland

The bi-monthly meeting of N.S.F.A. was held Tuesday night in 203 Westcott building. The question was, Resolved: Germany should be given back her colonies. The speaker for the affirmative side was Jas. Cook and the speakers for the negative side were Betty Ostlund and Martha Baker.

The first speaker, Janet Cook, brought out many interesting facts in her talk. She said that Germany had been given a raw deal because she went into the treaties made after the war with the idea that her colonies would be given back to her. England has said that Germany's colonies weren't valuable but as a matter of fact they were to her.

Miss Cook said that 100,000,000 square miles of Africa and sections around the coast of Asia were colonies of Germany. These colonies contained 14,000,000 people. Germany needs these colonies for raw materia, for the overflow of people that she has as a market for goods, and to salve her wounded pride. Hitler is determined to get them back and will even go to war for them. He is rapidly arming Germany for this purpose, and as a result the whole of Europe is in an uproar. All the countries of Europe are neglecting their economic conditions for fear of an armament race, and the continent is in a mad state of confusion, the speaker said that the colonies would be a cheap price to prevent war.

The second speaker, Betty Ostlund, said Germany is merely using her colonies as a club to get back her colonies as an excuse to gain naval bases and build a navy. After accomplishing this she will add France, Poland and many many other countries to her dominion as has always been her plan. Her purpose for gaining these colonies has been disguised in order to gain the backing of her people. Before the war, the population was not great in the colonies nor would it seem logical that it would be after the war.

Miss Ostlund, in conclusion, stated that Great Britain and other countries would commit suicide to give back to Germany her colonies. She added that the great war machine Germany has built up would be promoted by the restoration of these colonies.

The third speaker, Martha Baker, stated that Germany did not receive much economic help from these colonies and that the upkeep for them would more than offset the compensation. Records show that only a bonafide and profitable raw materials from which rope is made are the only resources of the colonies. It costs Great Britain $5,000,000 to keep up her colonies. It would cost Germany to take them over.

Miss Baker described the early government of the German colonies by the Germans themselves. She said that when Germany took them over, there were 85,000,000 people in them. After the rebellion there were 15,000,000 people left. This was said to have been due to the "set treatment of the people by the soldiers and those in power. This same method of governing being taught the German youth of today, so if their colonies are given back, it is only logical that the inhabitants would be treated the same way. This was Miss Baker's concluding statement.

Following the speakers of the affirmative and negative sides, the speakers were questioned and discussion ensued. The discussion finally resolved into a motion which was passed that, Decision: Give Germany back her colonies. Th meeting was then adjourned

Red Cross Life-Saving Tests Will Be Offered Members of That Class

The first standard National Red Cross Life-saving test will be given to the members of the life-saving classes within the next two weeks.

Following the first exam, a second will be given for those desiring to take it.

Frances Thil, captain of the life-saving corps announced that a new class in life-saving will be started soon and all girls interested are invited to join the classes are held at 11:30 on Saturday with Fred Edwards as instructor. "Mates" teaching the classes are: Valeria Hunt, Ruth Wilson, Dot Colburn, and Janet Cook.

Girls planning to take the examination are: Carolyn Collins, Mary Collins, Fay Corey, Mildred Seekins, Ruth Barrington, Blanton Barrett, Mary Nichol, Mary Ruth Clayton, and Marjorie Marwick.

PROGRAM OF YOUTH CONFERENCE
Feb. 12-14

Friday

8:00 p.m.—Ruge Hall.
8:20- 9:00 p.m.—"Student Thought and Action Around the World" ..... Dr. Charles B. Hurley
9:00- 9:40 a.m.—"A New World" ..Dr. Berrick B. Young

Saturday

9:00- 9:30 a.m.—Ruge Hall.
Worship ..... Miss Muriel Lester
10:00-10:20 a.m.—"Breaking Down Racial Barriers"— Dr. Arthur Raper.
10:00-10:30 a.m.—Discussion.
10:30-10:45 a.m.—Intermission.
10:45-11:20 a.m.—"Creating a Warless World," Muriel Lester.
11:20-12:00 a.m.—Discussion.
2:00- 2:30 p.m.—"Regimented Youth of Germany" George F. Robinson.
2:30- 4:30 p.m.—"Personal Christian Living"..... Miss Muriel Lester
"World Outreach of Christianity", Dr. H. B. Young
"Breaking Down Racial Barriers", Dr. Arthur Raper
"Discovering a New Patriotism"... Geo. F. Robinson
"International Relations"..... Charles D. Hurry
630 p.m.—Lower Dining Room.
Banquet:
Mrs. Indnk Pak.
Miss Yokso Saito, Coloratura Soprano.
Dr. Brayton Case.
Dr. Ezequiel Torres.
8:00 p.m.—Party, Methodist Student Home.

Sunday

9:30-10:00 a.m.—Ruge Hall, Worship, Mrs. Indnk Pak
10:00-11:00 a.m.—Seminar reports:
"International Relations"...Mr. Charles P. Hurry
"A New Patriotism"..... Dr. George B. Robinson
11:00-12:00 a.m.—Closing Service—"Presence of God"
Miss Muriel Lester.

Constitution Victims Yearn For Luck of History Majors

Noisy Girls Fill Rooms Accommodating Thirty Students As Atmosphere Becomes Charged With Nervous Anticipation

By MAXINE PUGATE

Noisy, tense, apprehensive, the girls trailed into th classrooms. Each room accommodating thirty or thirty of the 130 girls who were scheduled to take the constitution exam. As one room began to fill the nervous air became charged with the strain under which the girls suffered. This particular room was evidently the "Spanish room" made by Leon Trish school, the school where these prospective teachers were to take their exam. The semi-hysterical girls commented on the Spanish tags on the light, the door.

"Now I know why my roommate took political science," commented one nervous girl as she began vine voice.

"What are the powers of the senate?" one senior asks another who was leafing nervously through a small black copy of the constitution.

In an effort to oblige her inquirer the second senior leafed still more rapidly through her book. "I know them a while ago, but I can't seem to be able to find them now" she replied.

The buzz of excited voices was rising in pitch and intensity. Suddenly a little man came quietly into the room. At once books were closed and put away and deadening silence enveloped the room. He began to pass around small white slips of paper with fine black print.

"Is that the exam?" questioned a bold unior

"No," replied one of the girls in the front. The buzz of many nervous voices began to swell again. It was only a statement vowing to support the constitution and her country which was to be signed by each prospective young teacher.

Once again the little man entered and silence even more deadening fell over the room. In his hands he carried more papers; more of the slips of paper. He began to pass these out.

"Is that the exam?" Again the question was asked

"No," came the hoped for answer. Each student was given a number to identify her exam paper by. This was a questionnaire asking her name, address, certificate desired, grade, and race. This caught down an avalanche of questions. What did it mean by certificate desired? What should one put for grade, or did that it mean what grade did one make on the exam? When the little man explained that "white" should be placed in the blank opposite "race," a hysterical titter ran over the room.

The third time the little man entered the room he asked the usual question. Surely this was the exam, but the air was still charged with fear. The little slips of white paper were passed out. Silence settled thickly over the room. This was the test.

How are the president of the senate and the speaker of the house determined? How are bills made? By whom are they made? What happens to members of congress who are guilty of disorderly misbehavior? What provisions are made for impeachment? What are the qualifications for the presidency of the United States? What is the supreme law of the land? Name five amendments to the constitution. How may it be amended?

These and other questions rattled around in muddled minds. Each question answered was a source of relief to each girl. Why did one have to memorize the constitution? It was only temporary.

Tomorrow one would have forgotten much of what one had learned. Indeed, after the show that afternoon, one would probably remember very little.

Three or four weeks have to pass before their grades could possibly be figured out, mailed home, and finally mailed back to them at school. Then each girl will know if she has been sufficiently patriotic to become a teacher if she secured her degree.

Alumnae Head Appoints Committee of Citizens For Building Project

The appointment of an executive committee of prominent Florida citizens to serve in an advisory capacity with the Florida State College Alumnae association in its project to secure a student-alumnae building was announced recently by Mrs. R. L. Beason, of Gainesville, alumnae president.

The committee includes R. B. Owen, Jr., of Jacksonville, secretary of the Florida League of Municipalities; Mrs. John O. Kellum, Tallahassee, president of the Florida Federation of Woman's Clubs; Mrs. Myrtle B. Engler of Port Myrtle B. Engler of Port Jarue; Daniel H. Redfearn, of Miami; and E. P. Lambright, of Tampa, editor of the Tampa Tribune.

The proposed student alumnae building will serve as head quarters for student organizations and for the college alumnae association.

The committee and its first meeting in Jacksonville, Wednesday February 18.

SWEET SHOP
WEEK-END SPECIALS
—FRIDAY—
ICE CREAM SODAS 10c
—SATURDAY—
CHEESEBURGERS 10c
—SUNDAY—
Potato Salad with All 15c Sandwiches

Activity For Frosh Resumed By Directors

Extra-Curricular Groups Begin Work Program For Second Term

As the second semester begins, the freshman extra-curricular groups are resuming their activities, some groups planning new projects to be worked upon throughout the remaining term.

The nature study group under the direction of Charlotte Kemper who is assisted by Miss Eula Bentley, has planned a series of hikes for observation purposes.

The designing group directed by Margaret Wilson and Nina Clark have taken as their project the designing of costumes for the speech department play, "School for Husbands."

Members of the freshman writing group meet regularly every Thursday evening at 11:30 o'clock in Bryan atrium under the direction of Eloise Trott. Their purpose is to write articles for publication in the freshman section of the Flambeau. Writings by members is critically evaluated when the group and current reading material is discussed.

The music appreciation group led by Betty Hatch is planning to meet with Mr. Carter who will instruct them as to the background of certain musical compositions.

The Coalition club is in charge of the dance which showed the fifty members of the group for instruction given during the sessions over a period of three weeks.

The modern dance group is receiving instruction on the principles of the dance from Betty Ostlund.

Dr. Andrews Announces Coyle Will Be First On New Lecture Series

First in the lecture series for the new semester, Mr. David Coyle, C.E., consulting engineer in New York City, will speak on "Planning for "reperti" on Thursday, March 11, it was announced by Dr. Elisabeth Gordon Andrews, director of journalism.

Mr Coyle, who has specialized in monumental building construction, has been for the past few years writing extensively on the subject. His talk and his new plan from the engineering view-point.

Training Course Given For Scout Leadership

A general course in Scout leadership, open to all those students interested, will be given each Saturday afternoon, with Mrs. Raymond Sensabaugh, director of the Tallahassee Girl Scouts, instructing the course.

There will be eight meetings in all, with meetings held every Saturday and Thursday afternoon at 4:30. Those wishing to start the course late will be required to make up the work they have missed before the course is completed.

Although the course is of primary interest to physical education majors, all those interested may attend. No prerequisite training in scout work is required.

At the completion of the course the girl will receive a certificate from the national Scout organization.

GIVE Whitman's
CHOCOLATES
Remember her on Valentine's Day with Whitman's Chocolates—the candy known and liked by every woman. Our supply is fresh, direct from the makers. Call in and select today.
BENNETT'S
College Inn Pharmacy
109 E. College Ave. Phone 800
Tallahassee, Fla.

Film Depicts Man's Course Through Ages

University Women Offer "Human Adventure" To Students

By FRANCES WATERHOUSE

Considering man's existence on earth as a "Human Adventure," the film sponsored by the American Association of University Women showed by pictures of prehistoric relics and of modern excavations the beginnings of this adventure.

The first scenes, setting the stage for human activity, pictured the earth as it must have been before the development of man with the burning lava, glaciers, dense forests, fish life, and enormous reptiles.

When man once appeared and distinguished himself on this stage, a new epoch of the film was explained, by the use of fire, language, and tools, he started civilization. Its crude stone implements and his hieroglyphic and cuneiform writings on clay slabs and papyrus were shown as evidence of progress. Also pictured were metal tools—an old copper needle, a bronze bit, and an iron chisel—which mark the transition from the stone to the metal age, from the nomadic to the agricultural. Drains of wheat and metal hooks were photographed, too, as the earliest farming implements.

Following the general glimpse of man's advancement, the "Human Adventure" showed the archaeological work of the Oriental institute of the University of Chicago with pictures of the Egyptian civilization. It was viewed the ancient old Cairo with its modern buildings and its ancient mosques; Memphis, its 197 kings, and Sakkara, the oldest masonry structure in the world. Then, in Iraq, the ancient library; the temple of Karnak, that took 200 years to build; obelisks and huge statues by slaves from solid rock were all shown in succession. A modern "layer-cake" city built on the ruins of seven earlier cities and north Syria and central Turkey. Here was pictured one pit in which were traces of fourteen civilizations ranging from the stone age to the Roman period.

Desolate mountains appeared in the next scenes that followed. On the site of ancient Ninevah were the ruins of Sargon's palace with its bas-reliefs depicting the stone that had been seen in other countries. On one of these bas-reliefs were the marks of dog's paws next to the insignia of the king. Babylonia revealed its ruins of mud bricks. On these baked tablets were found records of the kings, prices for goods, and even the dimensions for the new tower of Babel. Excavations at Tel Asmar, long sewers and drainage ditches, and streets were large pots in which beer had been kept.

The last of these early civilizations depicted was the Persian. The ruins of Darius' great palace at Persepolis were shown, already

STATE
FRIDAY AND SATURDAY
February 12 and 13
POWELL STEBBINS
Oil in the Evening
RITZ BROS. & ALICE FAYE
SUNDAY AND MONDAY
February 14-15
COLBERT MacMURRAY
MAID of SALEM
TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 16
GEORGE ARLISS
Man of Affairs
WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 17
"WE WHO ARE About To Die"
A PICTURE MARKED FOR GREATNESS
WINTERSET
From Maxwell Anderson's Broadway Hit

Two Presidents

Milton Campbell, left, president of the Emory Glee club, and Mary Miller, right, president of the senior class which is sponsoring the program of the glee club tomorrow night in the college auditorium. Campbell, tenor, besides singing in the Glee club is a member of the Emory's varsity track team. In addition to these accomplishments he has an honor roll average and is student manager of fencing.

Library Exhibit Gives Birth to Many Romantic Speculations on Ancient Spanish Love Stories

By BLANTON BARRETT

Had they ever met before in some long forgotten time and in a castle which now lies in ruins in a war-torn Spain?

One cannot keep from wondering whether or not that dainty mantilla of lace, that tall, carved, certain-shell comb, that cigarette case of beaten Toledo gold, which came from the collections of Dr. Martin Burke and Dr. Marion Hay and which now lie side by side on exhibition in the library, had ever served in some romance of the Alhambra days.

How well that fan of ivory, so carved as to lose like lace, could have hidden the light of love in eyes.

Or was it an unhappy match?

partly rebuilt. On the walls were bas-reliefs representing Persian activities. Outside of Persepolis were the tombs of the emperors cut deep in the mountain side.

Interspersed with these pictures of old cities were demonstrations of methods used by modern archaeologists for aerial photographs. Here was pictured a man sinking a test iron over the terrain to be excavated for traces of buildings and other remains were mapped and drawn.

Does the wide decanter for two remember scenes of mirthful banter between the faithless lord of the castle and his beautiful, sorrowful lady? Did the brilliant scenes of pageant and contest on another fan illumine a scene which should have been brightened by a flashing smile?

On display there are also books into which the mantillas, the combs, the fans, the fine handdrawn work, fit. There are books on Spanish history, books on Spanish travel and adventure. They range as widely in period as do the exhibited articles themselves, and that means from the ancient to the twentieth century.

On the corner table are guides and pamphlets telling of the particular beauties of this or that part of Spain. There is found a description of Madrid as it was, in the days of the fairies.

Junior students of library science have prepared an exhibition which is a memorial to a dead country as well.

But could those intimate possessions, that mantilla, that fan, that cigarette case ever have met before?

Fraser Acts as Referee

Miss Ray Fraser of the Physical Education department, nationally rated official for woman's basketball, went to Madison last Tuesday to referee a basketball game between Madison and Lake City girls' basketball teams.

In 1896, the War Department of the United States was authorized to fight flowers. Water hyacinths, imported from Brazil, were choking up the rivers and streams of Florida.

To Star in Your School Work BACK YOUR BRAINS WITH THE ALL-STAR PEN
Television ink supply
It Lets You SEE When to Refill
—hence won't run dry in classes or exams
Yes, thousands of students start to rain higher when they replace their old "blind-barrel" pens with the new Parker Vacumatic.
This is the pen for people who are capable of rating high who go for the line in a big way, because it is this kind of Pen—and only this kind—that can bring out the best that is in them.
Dead Storage Ink Gone, Forever
Seen and Sold Gold writes like a dry-writer. Visible supply of ink within the barrel, this Invisible Feed Bearing Pen lets you SEE. Days Ahead when it's running low. When best to do Refill it always tells. THE Ink Supplies—holds 102% More Ink than other pens.
It's the pen that received more than 50% of the votes cast in the test of Penn COMBINED when 30 College Deans asked "Which pen do you use?" "Which pen do you own?" It was awarded by the All-American Board of Football as 90 percenters for the All-American Team, 1936.
Go at once to any good store selling pens and try this revolutionary invention. Identify it by the genuine Parker Vacumatic by the Arrow Clip—this holds this Pen low and SAFE in the pocket. The Parker Pen Co., Janesville, Wis.
Clean Your Pen As It Writes
Parker Vacumatic Fountain Pen
Holds 102% More Ink
Parker
VACUMATIC
GUARANTEED UNCONDITIONALLY FOREVER
$5 $7.50 $10
No. 1206—This striped two-piece dress of Rosewood print with picque vestee and cuffs. Contrasting buttons, wide skirt.
Black and White. Navy and White. Brown and White.
Sizes 12 to 18.
Price $10.95
GELBERG'S
"Complete Store for Ladies"
LEGE AVENUE
GELBERG'S
Co-Ed
Fashion Revue
Glass Exhibit To Be Offered For Next Week
To Include Most Recent Designs of Various Modern Artists
There will be an exhibition of Orrefors Glass in the Industrial Arts department from February 13 to 21. The present collection, representative of the most modern designs of such artists as S. Gate E. Hall, and Vicke Lindstrand.
The history of these beautiful objects that comprise the collections which are being shipped on tours to museums is very interesting. In the olden days glass and iron factories needed large quantities of charcoal and wood in the manufacturing of their products, so they were usually located in woody districts preferably where cheap water power was available. Such was the position of the Orrefors Iron Works, founded in 1726 in southeastern Sweden. In 1898 a glass factory was built which first manufactured only glass for table use, lamps, and some window glass.
In 1913 crystal was manufactured and in 1916 Orrefors began manufacturing artistic glass. However, not until Simon Gate and Edvard Hall were employed in 1916 did the Orrefore glass work become substantial and reach artistic foundation.
The glass which is classified by two categories, namely, colored and cheap soda glass and artistic glass, highly refractory and lead glass, generally called crystal, is made by a according to the glass blowers, engravers and artists. Engraving is an expensive process done usually only on crystal while coloring is usually applied to the soda glass.
In the artistic impression of a piece of glass depends first of all on the shape of the object. It is essential that it create the impression of the softness of glass. The actual decoration is added when the glass is quite finished so as to accent its lustre and transparency.

Sports Squints

By "FLIP" TURNER

Pagan contributes the following cheese concerning a recent occurrence at camp:

Without the traditional bottle of champagne the college sailboat went unofficially christened.

Last Sunday morning two canoes were sailing along on Lake Bradford. The sail seemed to have caught and one of the boats crowded up to the front of the boat to adjust it. Before she could loosen the rope holding the sail in position canoe along side of the little boat flopped over on her side.

Being caught under the sail with a rope around one's leg was no joke. The girls were both good swimmers, however, and managed to disentangle from the boat without any harm, life-savers, and other equipment that had been in the boat were recovered and thrown on the side of the boat. Only the sail was lost and left to mark the spot in the briny deep.

The two girls clung to the side of the boat, towing it along while the boat righted itself, the college girl now crowded to them. Then a number of canoes came out to help them. The gunners in the boat took the two girls into their boat and towed the boat back to Lever's Landing. The boatman took the boat aboard, wrapped them in blankets and rowed them back to the animal camp.

The kind strangers re-rigged the boat and towed it over to make it safely to the college dock.

Pagan offers the suggestion that since the boat has been unofficially christened by two Mrs. Mare it should be officially christened "Marion."

Looks like the rain post-poned the golf meet for another week but there'll come a day when the sun will shine bright enough and long enough to dry all the little mud puddles on the field and until then, as Dutch says we'll just have to wait.

The weather or no weather, some of the best games are going to be played at 4:30 this afternoon.

With her beginning extra-curricular classes well underway, Grace Jaffe is turning her beautiful head in all directions in search of the lost, strayed, or stolen members of the advanced class. She is taking this opportunity of asking them in a subtle way that classes have started and those interested in enrolling may see her about it.

Right now we're gonna be in an investigation of the athletic departments on campus to see if some of these battles are "fixed." Our reason is a good one because we overheard our editor saying someone who was going to be the Odd-Even hockey captain because she wanted to put it in the column for some daily paper.

At last the lighting system on the tennis courts has been completed. If the courts ever thaw out now they should give us lots of pleasure or something in the way of the evening.

Horror and Thrills Feature Sophomores' Haunted Dance

Continued from page one

brew on the same one three times in succession. I thought my lid got the other one the third time."

The solo singer, Madam Holmes sang her xylophone, and the dancers were very popular. The audience stood on the barrel arches and the nail keg chairs to better views of the entertainment. The balcony was crowded with those unfortunates who were late comers and had to be content to watch the "haunted house."

Come meet my date. He's not so ugly in cute though. It's not somebody to break right "Say, do you have a date?" What handsome men in this!' 'I'd really like to meet him.' "Say, do you have a room? Drag with my date?" Oh, I've got the skeleton wing and him." "Honestly I thought I'd die before the second no-break No, Horror Hop! And I will." Oh, Cutie! I made my grade. Isn't that super? I'm all ready to go." Horror Trek now. Or is it the Frankenstein Fling I have with you?"

Here comes the last dance. Ruth Wells. I've really got to work fast on this. Has your date asked you to Military Ball yet? Then haven't and thirdly the only reason I've bothered with him for a whole week-end."

ADAMS STUDIO
119½ East College
"Photographs that Please"

Date Set For Odd and Even Hockey Games

To Use Eleven Man Team; Both Sides Publish Girls Playing

The date for the first Odd-Even hockey game has been set for this Saturday at 2:30 o'clock. It is featuring an eleven man team instead of the six man team first planned and worked on. At the beginning of the week the second game will be played, the date of which will be announced later. Subsequent games will be played next Saturday at 2:30 o'clock.

The members of the Even team scheduled to play this Saturday will include: Doc Smith, Meta Helms, Evelyn Fisher, Alberta Lloyd, Sidney Moore, Sara Jane Stembaugh, Mary Day Rosser, Louise Rice, Janet Jewett, Catherine Kirby-Smith, Ruth Agnes McClain, Lorette Thompson, Helen Daniel, Margaret Holloway.

The members of the Odd team scheduled to play include: Beth Deaton, Janice Morton, Martha Masterson, Margaret Smith, Mary Miller, Betty White, Katherine Brown, Lucy Brewer, Tod Taylor, and is one of the ten most perfect Stradivari in the world. It was made by him later in 1732, when he was ninety years old. Among those who have used it are Paganini, Ludwig Spohr and Joseph Joachim.

Bendiktay's cello, formerly a part of the Rudolph Wurlitzer collection, is one of the best known of those made by Guadagnini.

The leader of the quartet, Gordon, believes that the American public is now ready to accept chamber music as one of the lively arts. For the last half century or more, he said, string quartets and other chamber music concerts have been labeled "high brow," and "it's been a struggle to get anything that will frighten the public away from the concert hall it is two terms—an educational quartet and one that is a good influence".

However, Gordon believes that "you can't keep a good thing down for long." Any more than in other fields of activity. The Gordon String Quartet discovered that, far from being dull and highbrow, the music played concerting quartet programs is some of the finest and most entertaining ever penned; that the best of almost every great composer is to be found in his quartets."

Programs, too, have been responsible for a great deal of the unpopularity of chamber music concerts, Gordon points out. Therefore he makes it a point to achieve as much variety as possible in programs of the Gordon quartet. During its history this quartet has given first performances of works by more than forty contemporary composers.

In the past the quartet has been invited to give twelve concerts under the auspices of the Library of Congress and has been selected by Mrs. Elisabeth Sprague Coolidge, a patron of chamber music, for recitals at Yale university, the Boston public library and the festival at the Congressional library in Washington.

Youth Conference To Begin Tonight

Continued from page one

will give short talks at the banquet. The banquet is open to those students who sign up on the Y.W.C.A. bulletin board before the quota is filled. The party will carry out the Valentine idea in songs, skits, special numbers and refreshments, with a special emphasis on love.

The program for the concluding day of the conference, Sunday, will again be held in Rupe hall. Reports of the seminars held by the various groups on the preceding afternoon will be given first. Following these reports, Mr.

Life Saving Corps Collects Donations

Student body donations in the recent flood relief drive on campus totaled $128 and more than a truck load of clothes, the money going to the Red Cross and the clothing to the Elks club for distribution.

Shoes predominated in the collections for the refugees. The money was collected in three days and the clothing in one night by the Life Saving corps under the direction of the president, Sarah Heitzcx.

Minor Sports Are Postponed To Later Date

Intramural Leader Calls For Organizations' Team Players

The second semester minor sports intramurals which were scheduled to begin last Monday have been postponed because of the failure of the various organizations to hand in the names of the girls planning to enter the contests.

All organizations wishing to participate in the tournaments are asked to hand the names of all girls who plan to enter to Marian Weeks, intramurals chairman.

There will be a triple program of archery, pingpong and shuffleboard running parallel for the first two weeks of the tournament. Each team may enter as many girls as its wishes in the archery tilt, which will be played off in one day.

Each team for pingpong will have two singles players, and one doubles team and is asked to bring its own officials.

Victory in the shuffleboard games will be determined by two out of three wins. Each team is asked to bring its own score keepers, and Marian Weeks will act as the official.

The intramurals will begin as soon as the set ups of the teams have been determined, and all organizations wishing to enter are asked to communicate immediately with the intramurals chairman.

Florida State Chooses Girls For Peace Day

Continued from page one

forum, Virginia Allen; inter-club cooperation, Hilda Spradlin, Beth Dasher, Peggy McMichael, and Polly Everleth.

Fraser is Elected Head of Committee

Miss Ray Frasier, member of the physical education department, has been chosen chairman of the Southeastern division of the contest committee of the American Physical Education association.

She is at present making a study of co-recreation in the high schools of Florida, Georgia, Alabama, Virginia, North and South Carolina and Washington, D. C., to learn what high schools are doing with co-recreation.

St. Valentine Day Recalls History of Ancient Custom

Continued from page one

headed on Feb. 14, 270. The other saint had a less reverenced attitude to his life when he choked to death on a fish bone.

In olden times the main custom of the day was a lottery drawing. An equal number of girls and boys wrote their names on pieces of paper and then drew for a partner. The partners were Valentines during the following year and it is said that the game often ended with love.

Many superstitions were connected with this saints day. It was believed that the first person one saw on Valentine morning was destined to be one's future husband or wife. Girls wrote the names of their sweethearts on pieces of paper, rolled them in clay and put them in water, the first ones that came to the surface were to be their Valentines. Other girls went so far as to remove the yolks from some hard-boiled eggs, replace them with salt, and eat them just before retiring for the night without speaking or drinking afterwards. This was done to insure dreaming, for if girls dreamed of their sweethearts on St. Valentine's Eve it was predicted that they would marry within the year.

What a far step such observances to us in our own mild custom of exchanging sentimental verses about Dan Cupid shooting darts into space. However, we still find some mystery hidden in a corner, in the middle of a heart, or scrawled prominently across the middle of the card the age old query, "Will you be my Valentine?"

Teachers Aid Gym Students

Coaching Classes Aim To Clear Problems In Instruction

Coaching classes have been organized in the inter-mural athletic association majors in their teaching problems. Three girls assist in the freshmen gym classes under the direction of Miss Fraser.

The coaching classes are held twice a week and were organized for the purpose of giving the girls experience in practice teaching. In their meetings they try to bring up every problem of physical education teachers today.

Once a week they have a theory class and discuss methods of teaching, the most modern changes in gym instruction and the latest theories in physical teaching.

Some of the topics discussed have been the problem of interscholastic or inter-mural athletic in high schools. They are discussing at the present time the value of athletics in required schedule of the high school student, a topic to be discussed in the near future is the grading of students in gym.

Those attending the coaching classes are: Betty Oatlund, Frances Tyndall, Patricia West, Ruth Agnes McClain, Viola Brooks, Mary Ruth Harrison, and Janet Cook. All the girls are juniors.

Emory Singers Will Present Concert Here

Continued from page one

a kind of Dutch flu, and the theater manager threatened to break their contract unless they could furnish the specified number of twenty-two singers. So the club manager lined up on the back row all the members of the orchestra who were not sick and instructed them to move their mouths, but not to sing a note. After the concert, presented with twenty-two boys on the stage and only twelve of them singing, the theater manager wanted to book the club for a tour in Rotterdam and a week at The Hague.

Of the director, Dr. Malcolm H. Dewey, the music critic in Havana, Cuba, said "He must direct the Club itself as well as the Havana audience, accustomed to the wild gesticulations of the usual director of an orchestra or choral group, was puzzled by the almost imperceptible movements of Dr. Dewey's hands as he drew harmony from the group of boys.

The Emory Glee club has received flattering press notices on its numerous tours. Among them are the following: "The singing of the young men showed at once a solid foundation and an ear for fidelity to pitch and free tonal production."—from the Washington Star, and from the Baltimore Sun, "The club sings as one man, and there is an elan and vivacity about its offering that is obviously the result of an extended training."

Carvin D. Hurry, conference director, will speak on the subject of "International Relations." His talk will be followed by a talk on "A New Patriotism," by Dr. George B. Robinson, and the conference will be concluded by Miss Muriel Lester, who will talk for her subject, "Presence of God."

Alpha Delta Pi held pledge service Monday night for Jane Lee of Tampa and Dorothy Parker of Tallahassee.

Board Elects Team Leaders For Next Year

Group Plans Faculty Play Night and Discusses Sports Traditions

Team leaders for basketball and volleyball teams of next year were elected, plans for a Water Sports demonstration were discussed, a faculty Play-Night was planned and various discussions of traditions in campus sports were given in the meeting of the athletic board Wednesday night.

Hilda Spradlin will be the Even leader of basketball next year while Marcia Horton will lead Even volleyball. For the Odds, Fay Corey will lead basketball and Valerie Hunt will head the volleyball.

Tentative plans for a water sports demonstration which would be combined with the P Club Water Sports Day and would feature canoe demonstrations by an expert in the field of canoeing, the christening of the new sailboat, and a supper. The suggestion was made that the affair might be held at night with the added attraction of lighted boats. It was also proposed that a contest be held for the naming of the sailboat.

Tentative plans were also suggested for a faculty play-night at which the board would be hostesses. Faculty members will be asked by students to attend and the entertainment will include sport teams, song festivals, "good old" dances, and numerous minor sports. Miss Hurd will head the women faculty sponsors and Dr Corye E. Mace, the men.

In the other business of the meeting the board considered the P club recommendation that a "C" average be required for the awarding of the P. Since it is necessary to amend the constitution of the board before this recommendation can be passed, the notice will be posted on the physical education bulletin board for two weeks and will be voted on at the next meeting of the board.

Changing the playing off of Odd-Even Hockey and Soccer games, the board decided that three Odd-Even games would be played instead of the usual two series of class games and the final Odd-Even. Games will be played this week-end and the first game of each week with the final game possibly being played next week-end.

Considerable discussion was held concerning the re-scheduling of sports games, the board decided that sports as soccer and hockey requiring large numbers of participants would not be played after the game period. Various aspects of the problem including the breaking of the traditional Thanksgiving program and the arousing of class spirit were discussed but no decision was reached and the matter was put aside for further consideration by the board.

Julia Daniels has been pledged to the Alpha Omicron Pi sorority, Lenoy

Tennis Courts Now Lighted for Night

College girls wishing to keep down the old waist line, and whose classes keep them busy during the day will be able to get their exercise by moonlight from the new synthetic moonlight. The lighting connections have recently been completed on the tennis courts.

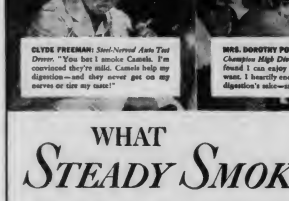
It is necessary to keep the light box locked and students wishing to play tennis at night may obtain the key from Bryan office.

Odd and Even Soccer To Be Played Today

First Game in Series Of Three Will Be Held On Sport Field

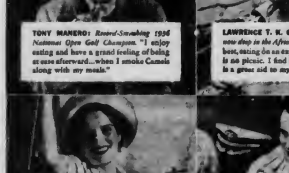
After an interval during which team spirit has been fairly quiet, the Odds and Evens will renew their old rivalry this afternoon at 4:30 when they will meet on the soccer field in the first of a series of three games. The other two games in the series will be played Wednesday afternoon at 4:30 and next Saturday afternoon at 2:30.

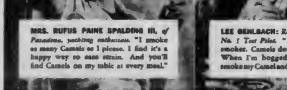
Since there are not enough players out to make up four full class teams, three Odd-Even games will be played rather than two class games and one Odd-Even game as has been done in the past. Due to the fact that one of the requirements for earning an "P" is participation in two class games and only one Odd-Even game in at least two sports, the first two Odd-Even soccer games will be counted as class games for this purpose.



The soccer line-up will be as follows: forward line—Petina Wood, center; Jackie Hunter, right outer Frances Fryer, right inner; halfbacks—Ernestine Mckemson, right halfback; Ruth Hogers, right fullback; Mary Hunter, left halfback; Frances Waterhouse, left fullback; Ruth Mercer, center half; Helen Brown, goal keeper. Substitute Marguerite Brown

Odd-soccer practice line-up will be as follows: forward line—Sadie Pounds wood, center; Mary Fryer, right outer; Jackie Oates, right inner; Fay Corey, left outer; Valerie Hunt, left inner; halfbacks—Dot Mclver, right halfback; Virginia Baker, right fullback; Kathe Parks, left halfback; Jean Gilles, left fullback; Mary Palmer, center halfback; Ruth Wilson, goal keeper. Substitutes: Florence Brown, Julia Beckman, Marian Weeks.





WHAT STEADY SMOKERS HAVE LEARNED ABOUT CAMELS

Copyright, 1937, R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, Winston-Salem, N. C.

Camels are made from finer, More Expensive Tobaccos ...Turkish and Domestic... than any other popular brand.

COSTLIER TOBACCOS

"JACK BENNY'S COLLEGE"—a full-hour gala show with Jack Oakie in person! Benny's Comedians • "Swing" Band • Hollywood guests and swinging variety broadcast. Every Tuesday night—10:30 p.m. E.S.T., 9:30 p.m. C.S.T., 8:30 p.m. M.S.T., 8:30 p.m. P.S.T., over WABC-Columbia Network.

The Florida Flambeau

EDITORIAL STAFF

HAZEL SOWMAN ..... Editor
ELEANOR WILLIAMS ..... Associate Editor
ALICE BOYD ..... Managing Editor
PEARLE HEREFORD ..... Managing Editor
EVELYN FISHER ..... News Editor

Member National Scholastic Press association and Florida Intercollegiate Press association

DEPARTMENTS

Art, Evelyn Glazier, Exchanges, Virginia Barry; Features Arline Grey Lockhart and Jane Quinlan; Literary Editor, Ruth Bryan Owen; Music, Dolores Cichlar, Clubs, Charlotte Sweely; Assistant, Clara Lafferty and Minnie Arrow; Assistant, Special Reporting, Ar-line Grey Lockhart; Society, Marjorie Sheets, Ella Virginia Davis

REPORTERS: Hazel Adams, Ruth Atkinson, Dorothy Barnes, Blanton Barrett, Dorothy Bellamy, Frances Bryanson, Perrie Caballes, Elizabeth Calnett, Theresa Carta, Mary Cawthon, Mary Louise Chapman, Virginia Davis, Sara Dominick, Marion Fullerton, Mary Hand, Margaret Gourlie, Lorena Howe, Bertie Lee Ingram, Lucy Kate Ann Ladd, Betty Leigh, Martha Lewis, Anne Lindsay, Mary Jeanne McKay, Alicia Measham, Mary Ellen Mitchell, Ruth Nelson, Mary Ellen Parrish, Florence Percy, Eleanor Jane Shands, Lavina Spaulding, Elizabeth Stoner, Mary Sullivan, Alma Weber, Frances Whitehouse

BUSINESS STAFF

LILLIE McCUTCHEN ..... Business Manager
NAN CURRANDINENNY ..... Advertising Manager
MARGUERITE BROWN ..... Circulation Mgr.

Represented for National Advertising by NATIONAL ADVERTISING SERVICE, INC. College Publishers Representative
420 Madison Ave New York N. Y.
Chicago - Boston - San Francisco - Los Angeles - Portland - Seattle

Entered as second class mail matter January 20, 1915, at the post office at Tallahassee, Fla., under act of Congress of March 3 1879.

"Collegiate" Type No Longer the Vogue

More and more do we read that the college generation of today is growing away from a frivolous outlook on life.

In judging Princeton youth, Dean Christian Gauss has statistics to support his belief that the excessively "collegiate" type is on the decline.

"The number of cases calling for disciplinary action," said Dean Gauss in his periodical report to Princeton's President, "was reduced to the lowest mark in years."

He attributes this to two factors: the college's system of selecting its undergraduates and "the increase of interest on the part of the average undergraduate in the the problems of society and the world."

"Here there is much to give us pause," Dean Gauss says, "and we dare not forget that the very interest of these problems lies in the fact that they are important and unsolved."

If we youth of today are willing to face the problems of society in a serious attempt to ameliorate them, then we cannot tolerate calling ourselves or having others call us the "lost generation."

As a Florida Review editorial points out we may become the "lost generation" only if we lose ourselves in a sense of our own self-importance. If we are going to demand security above all attempts to solve intelligently the problems wracking society today, then we may be lost to hopeless destruction. We may cry out for Jobe but we must also expect to assume the responsibilities of intelligent participation in government.

Can We Learn This Bitter Lesson?

The flood did not have to happen. Almost five hundred persons known dead last week and almost half a million homeless, yet bask in the early days of the World war a man had a plan to prevent all this.

A recent Nation editorial pointed out that the flood waters could have been controlled by systematic storage dams on the trihtnaries of the Ohio river to skim the crest off the flood and transform a seventy-five foot stage into a fifty-foot stage with which the river communities might somehow cope.

Dr. Pierson, a great engineer, who had supplied Rio de Janeiro with modern utilities and who was taming the Tennessee river in Spain in the hope of taming Catalonia, returned to the United States before we entered the World war with a plan for putting the Monongahela and the Youghiogheny rivers to work. Being a great capitalist Dr. Pierson planned to buy up all the steam plants along the rivers at a generous margin, build dams, and supply Pittsburgh and a radius of one hundred miles with power at less than half the cost of steam-generated power.

As he was informed by appropriate Cabinet members, however, that he could be involved too many infringements of the Sherman "Anti-Trust Act," Dr. Pierson set out on his return to Spain, only to go down with the Lusitania.

Today most of us look on floods and famine as acts of God. We say we cannot control the rainfall so we refuse to think about catastrophe until catastrophe has occurred. True we cannot control the rainfall, but we can arrive at the point in our thinking where we recognize the government as the only central agency to undertake such projects which affect the property rights of the few.

And surely the property rights of the few can be sacrificed when the civilization of such a vast number of persons is concerned. If this is not a bitter lesson, experience is a dull teacher and we Americans who sit by our fires and sympathize from afar with the flood refugees are dull pupils. We will probably go on thinking the flood simply "an act of God."

"Train Up a Youth In the Way He Should Go . . ."

When 200 delegates to the Florida church youth conference meet here tonight for the opening session an event will take place, important not alone for its immediate influence, but for its future influence.

One of the youngest of the states in cultural background, Florida has been converted later than much of the country to the adoption of many ideas for mass arbitration of common problems. For this reason it is unusual that youth conferences should be among the first of such ideas to take hold here.

Considering the facts that many of the young people who will come to this conference have yet to make definite plans for their future, that these young people, despite the triteness of the phrase, are "the citizens of tomorrow," and that in a short time these people will be a force in the government of the state and of the United States, it is a splendid sig- to find them interested so early in life in social problems and practical solutions to these problems.

Coming generations must know the fundamentals of cooperative effort to a larger extent than present and past generations have known if any part of our present social and economic civilization is to survive. The way to insure the world that coming generations will acquire this knowledge is to grant young people the opportunity to learn the secrets of cooperative effort before they find it necessary to us such knowledge on a big scale.

The necessity for this preparedness is sufficiently illustrated by extinct organizations whose survival would have been guaranteed under the leadership of some person versed in methods of planning and procedure for common effort.

No, Florida will not see any very important results of its youth conferences today, but ten or fifteen years in the future will find many key positions in Florida civic life held by delegates to today's conferences.

We Prefer Our Onions Fresh

Long evenings before a log fire, songs rolling across the lake from canoe to canoe, camp meals cooked in a hnge wood stove or fire-place—these are the pictures that any of would like to put in her mental memory book. Must she substitute for these the revolting picture of dishes, pots, and pans found as the last camp party left them, slay shreds of onions and meat still clinging?

This is a nauseating but truthful picture of how many careless parties of students take care of property which does not belong to them personally.

Camp Flastacowo is probably one of the best ont-fitted camps to be found in this section of the country. Furthermore, students have access to it at all times and with few restrictions. It is little enough to ask that dishes be washed, the wood-boxes fil', houses cleaned by departing campers. The next party of campers will certainly have much more beautiful memory books as a result of their visit to Flastacowo.

Students Demand To Judge Junior Minstrels

The question of taking Junior Minstrels to Gainesville has aroused much faculty and student discussion.

Although a majority of the faculty committee appointed to review the production has sanctioned Junior Minstrels being taken to the University, a number of students have voiced their protests.

These students, claiming they know the calibre of the Gainesville audience, argue that such a production in which a girl assuming a male role tries to make love to another girl will be "booed" by our brothers at the University. They believe the male audience at Gainesville will not be sympathetic like our audiences here.

As we are attempting to set a precedent of exchanging student prodnctions with the University, it seems a pity to risk our first appearance in Gainesville, if the prodnction is doomed at the outset for failure.

Spirit of the Week . . . . . By Glazier

This Week

Roosevelt Supreme Court Proposals Upset Country

The activities of Congress crowded the headlines this week with discussions of President Roosevelt's proposal to "reorganize" the Supreme Court, and debates on the new neutrality legislation.

* * *

Roosevelt startled the country last Friday with a proposal to "fuse new blood" into the Supreme Court. In a surprise message to Congress, he asked that the president be empowered to appoint, until the total number of justices reached fifteen, one new justice for each member who was over seventy and within six months of his 70th birthday. Justices wishing to retire could do so with full pay.

Six of the present nine justices are, as of October 1, appointed in holding their jobs, the court would immediately rise to its full fifteen-man quota. The six are Chief Justice Hughes, 74; Justices Van Devanter, 78; Mc-Reynolds, 75; Brandeis, 80; Sutherland, 74; and Butler, 70. Justices Stone, Roberts and Cardoza are in the 60's.

For several months Roosevelt has been hinting that it would be necessary to remake the Supreme Court in preparation for further New Deal legislation. A glance at the New Deal record in the Supreme Court makes this clear. In four years the administration has lost ten decisions, including the AAA, and has won only four.

The president's proposal was promptly introduced into the Senate in the form of a bill prepared by the Attorney General. In the Senate Tuesday, the bill met with opposition from Senator Johnson, who offered a compromise plan in its stead. This plan calls for the immediate passage of the full-pay retirement bill. New appointees would then be sought that two or three justices would retire as they indicated they would do when a similar measure came up two years ago. Roosevelt would then be empowered to replace the retiring justices and his desire to remake the court could still be accomplished.

When reported to him Wednesday, Roosevelt refused to consider the compromise plan, and declared he would submit his own plan to the country at large and ask for a constitutional amendment if it became necessary.

* * *

Familiar echoes in the Capitol this week announced that the annual battle on the neutrality legislation had begun.

The neutrality law as it now stands directs that upon the outbreak of or during a war between foreign countries or such a civil war as now exists in Spain, the president shall proclaim the fact that it shall be illegal to send arms, ammunitions or implements of war from American territory to belligerents.

Continued on Page Five

University Editorials . . .

Tower Times drawn to our attention the necessity "intensive course" plan underway at Hiram College in Ohio. Such educational experiment worth consideration and investigation. Educational Experimentation.

After three years trial, a new trend in higher education has been definitely established at Hiram College in Ohio, with the approval of the "intensive course" plan.

Under the Hiram plan, which has been called "the abolition of the time-clock in education," students concentrate on one subject for nine weeks and then take up another. The object of the system is more in depth and thorough work. as well as more individualization in college study.

The plan, first worked out by Hiram, seems to have obvious merits. Students do not have to rush from fifty minutes in chemistry to fifty minutes in sociology, followed by a dose of a language. The crowded examination week with its frenzied 36 hour quizzes is eliminated, for students are examined at the end of each nine-week period. Greater flexibility of time is permitted by the method, as well as greater unification of effort. Even more significant is the increased time for individual conferences.

The Hiram plan is deserving of consideration. Whether or not in the long run it is practicable to the system under which most colleges still operate cannot be made definite. Hiram has worked at Hiram where the student enrollment is less than four hundred. Perhaps in a larger college, exclusively individualized study is neither desirable nor practical.

This innovation devised to meet the educational needs of one particular institution of higher learning is a significant step. It represents a notable effort on the part of President Kenneth Brown and the faculty of Hiram College to keep college study in step with modern educational demands.

* * *

Elections are still many weeks in the future but it is not too early for us to be considering a problem that always caused concern among campus leaders. The selection of editors and business managers of publications seems hardly the duty or privilege of the present student body, ignorant of the work or merit of the aspirants. The Michigan State paper offers a suggestion in discussing the same problem. It says:

The Political Pot

Most of the publication offices on this campus are nothing more than political plums. There are a few positions that involve technical knowledge. These should go to the best trained for the work.

Among holders of jobs in the latter class are the managing editors and business managers of the college publications. The selection of these people should be as far removed from campus politics as they can be.

Experience gained at other schools and colleges has proved that the best means of severing political influence from the journalistic offices is to turn the naming of the jobs over either to a group similar to our own Board of Publications.

An analysis of the situation makes this a rather logical solution. The students and faculty members who make up Boards of Publication are clearly in the best positions to observe the work of the various candidates for the jobs on the two staffs.

Why then should not these people be given the right to name the editors and business managers?

One argument in opposition

Continued on Page Five

Collegiate Comebacks

After a week to get over their ire, we'd say that students will no longer be dangerous to professors and that arsenic may be returned to drug-store shelves with little danger to said instructors.

* * *

From the New Hompshire we learn that distance is judged better by girls than by men. Thinking of the bruised shins and sprained toes suffered by our dear sisters as a result of the sophomore hop, we are inclined to question that statement.

* * *

For the lower fifty per cens we print the following from the Tulane Hullabaloo:

There should be no monotony
In studying your botany;
It helps to train
And spur the brain
Unless you haven't got any.

* * *

The Crietshonian informs us that citizens around Koedoesrand, South Africa, decided not to send their children to the Empire Exhibition at Johannesburg "because so many Americans were coming to the exhibition, and the children might be kidnapped." Wait somebody please tell these not entirely informed people that their children would be comparatively safe, since few Americans are "snatch-minded." Or are we mistaken about the good folk of Koedoesrand?

* * *

For each error made on a syntax exam at Midland, according to the Hastings Collegian, the students must contribute one egg or one tomato to the Visiting Army. If we thought our dining-hall obtained eggs that way, as well they might, we're afraid our better nature would force us to be able to digest itself; there'd be a lot of deceased typing students about.

* * *

The Blue Stocking contributes a little ditty: Dressed to kill is a form of fur.
Lounging against a cocktail bar;
Baby, what do wouldn't you wear
Just a third as naughty as you think you are.

* * *

Dr. Amos Baker, a psychiatrist called in by Sing-Sing prison officials, discovered, as we read in an exchange, that the average mental age of convicts was 13½ years, while that of the prison guards was 14. Maybe if we could obtain a similar comparation of the I. Q.'s of our profs and those of registrars, we could make Pop understand why we oughtn't to be sent away to school.

* * *

We are assured by W. P. Meroney of Baylor university that "cave men" are still preferred in the American home, that the majority of women still want and prefer to be subordinated. Bet a lot of fellows who were of that same opinion have been buried young.

* * *

The following poem from the Punch Bowl gives the male's view-point, one that we seldom get on this campus:

Women working at the office,
Women in the smoking car,
Women in the pulpit, women preaching,
Women drinking at the bar;
In our statehouses and senate
We see women all around;
Women working in positions
Where they never before were found.
Women doctors, women cooks,
Women salesmen in the stores,
Women airplane pilots, women crooks,
Women fighting in the wars;
'Twill ever be thus we're told,
Until the world is done and dead,
But thank the Lord we're always safe
Inside the door marked "Men's Room."

* * *

WAR INFORMATION

Loyalist Viewpoint of Long Fight Over Fascism Dooms Rebels

By ARLINE GRAY LOCKHART

Inevitably with war is propaganda and the grim Spanish struggle is no exception. In its eighth month proves no exception.

Of interest is the information delivered by the Spanish Information Bureau and the Medical Bureau of Propaganda which describes vividly the civil war from the viewpoint of the Loyalists. The writer had the privilege of seeing some of this information which was sent to Dr. Margie Harris, associate professor of Spanish on this campus, and who was in Spain at the beginning of the war.

The picture blue envelopes bearing the stamps of the Spanish republic contain tragic pictures of Madrid's bombardment; mimeographed sheets written in English, French, partly in Fyench: a postcard depicting "the nationals" in caricature, and a booklet printed in Spanish across which blazes "Pan, Trabajo, Cultura!"—Bread, Work, Culture!—the Loyalist slogan.

This information, doubtless being sent into France and England, is not a plea for pity, the writer says, but a "demand of all those who are responsible for the lives of children, for the culture, freedom and welfare of democratic countries to do their duty; and this duty consists in fighting effectively against Fascism as well as against those who allow Fascism to gather force until the whole of civilized Europe will be swept away, as once before, by the Barbarians."

The rebels are doomed to defeat, according to this information, even should they win the military victory, since before they would be able to command they would have to destroy all they wish to govern—Spanish society.

All the information by the Loyalists is expressed in these sheets against the rebels who

Continued on Page Six

Magazine Jotting

BY SARAH SEALE
and
SARAH BETH DAVIS

Propaganda Rules the Waves

By Silas Bent

Sir Thomas Inskyp's statement that "editors have only become possible through the invention of the microphone" is almost, but not true. The decline of the press and the rise in political upheavals is due largely to the military and nationalistic now engendered the use of the radio, says the author in the new Review of Reviews.

The Soviet Union's eighty powerful radio are broadcasting in seven languages. Dictator of communism has risen on the wave while more than a million receiving-sets hum over Russia, many with loudspeakers in public places, listen in. In Germany, Hitler's voice alternates with klaxon on excellent radio programs. Mussolini is heard by millions of loyal constituents by means of radio. The fact with his Vatican station is conducting an extensive and extensively anti-communist campaign.

Efforts to reduce radio competition between nations and to promote better understanding through broadcasting for foreign listeners have been made, rather unsuccessfully, by the International Broadcasting union. However, the personalities of becoming a short-lived peace weapon.

Surely it would be more difficult to foment into national hysteria against any nation with whose culture, history and music we are familiar."—(S. B.)

* * *

Parson's Progress

By Anonymous

The viewpoint of the modern minister—of which most of us are signally ignorant—is presented in the February Atlantic Monthly in a clear-thinking and interesting article. One of the most significant facts about the editors was the author's title, the importance of his own personality. The old faithfulness of a Protestant congregation depends largely on how well the pastor is liked. The most difficult part of a pastor's work for the author is the intricate administration of church affairs, the raising of money and financed; the preacher must raise his salary as well as earn it.

"One thing may be said for the liberal Protestant pulpit: it is the freest place on earth. A modern congregation expects its pastor to be forthright in his preaching. . . . There is never in twenty years of preaching has found a greater difficulty to be himself. Often he has his opinions or his own weakness injure his confidence in others. Too, he may in the course of years lose his sense of the reality of religion. The man for whom preaching would be that he himself fails to worship."

He sums the matter up by saying that in two things a minister must constantly strive: are to "keep the evangelistic note in his preaching; be constantly doing unobtrusive kindnesses."—(S. B.)

* * *

Japan's Road to War

By Robert Karl Reischauer

Without a doubt Japan is on the road to war, according to Mr. Reischauer's article in the February Atlantic Monthly. Telling great! why Reischauer explains six major reasons why Japan is headed for war. First of all, population would mean the continuation of the status in Japan, and her people are bitterly discontented with economic and political set-up in the world. They are demanding a higher standard of living.

Japan is very much afraid of several nations. Her neighbor Russia has the largest army in the world. The British Empire and the United States have the most powerful navies in the world, while China, many times the size of Japan, has a population six times as great. Japan is politically independent, but she feels that geography, natural resources and population numbers are all on the side of her neighbors. The economic and industrial condition also looks on the road to war. Japan has a one-party government and society based on feudalism and armies economy. The military dominates every phase of government and a semi-democratic social system with an industrial economy caused a great deal of friction between the two groups. Right now, disrupted the life of the people and brought various groups and classes into bitter conflict with each other.

When the United States prohibited all Japanese immigration, Japan felt publicly humiliated. The Japanese people, the white race refuses to treat her as an equal.

The Japanese are an artistic and at the same time a war-like people. They form a powerful danger to the peace of Eastern Asia, because they are a nation of fierce warriors with a highly artistic, romantic, artistic temperament.

Lastly, the Japanese are in a continual state of imminent danger of becoming involved in war because of the intense nationalism which constitutes their philosophy or life. The totalitarian state is their ideal, and they will use every warlike means any force they consider injurious to this state.

Before Japan will abandon the road to war many reforms must take place within Japan. These reforms which cannot occur until other nations make Japan's present course unnecessary. Fundamental changes must be made in the forces of economic policies of nations rich in raw materials. As for America, she must make changes in her tariff policies in her economic structure to enable the Japanese to raise their standard of living. She must also change her quota and modify her immigration laws

The Social Week

Annual Pi Beta Phi Dance To Be Given Tomorrow

The Pi Beta Phi fraternity will give its annual formal dance tomorrow night at the home on College avenue. It will follow the Gamma Phi dance. The house will be decorated with hearts and cupids and bows and arrows.

A program will be presented by members of the sorority. Frances Katherine Stevens and Janet Mattern will give several songs. Jean Miller, Eugenia Chandler Ladd, and Marjorie Stewart will tap-dance; Shirley Anderson will sing several Italian solos, and Mickey Gourlie will sing some of the sorority songs. Martha Lee Wilkinson and Winifred Ewart will accompany these numbers.

Members of the sorority include, Mary Jackson, Anne Ladd, Polly Ann White, Mickey Gourlie, Marion Stewart, Eugenia Cannon, Nadine Bailey, Betty Blalock, Winifred Ewart, Phil Asher, Frances Morrow, Emma Lawrence Hall, Jean Hollis, Violet Prim, Eleanor Williams, Arline Lockett, Marion Hiepel, Jean Chandler Atkins, Florence Kerr, Kathryn Mercer, Ann Treadwell, Shirley Pemberton, Danner Baker, Martha Lee Wilkerson, Kathryn Ladd, Ann Hubbell, Mary Ramsey, Mary Wynn, Julia Burnette, Dot Delaney, Olive Alderman, Mary Ann Sim, Jean Gardner, Marjorie Anderson, Marian Bedell, Mabel Bennett, Betty Chitwood, Patricia Coleman, Betty Curtis, Mary Frances Dunlap, Betty Davis, Mae Dunaway, Louise Fugate, Mary Holliday, Janet Jewett, Peggy Lee, Mary Jane Lester, Rula Jay, Caroline Lowe, Janet Malone, Jean Miller, Caroline Moore, Frances Moss, Katherine McCready, Harriet Post, Martha Sikkins, Mary Susan Rawley, Lelia Snook, Katherine Stevens, Lillian Taylor, Mary Taylor, Betty Jo Tyler, Betty Vinning, Julia Wheeler, Virginia Wiggins, Gwendolyn Burke Warren, Gardner Nottingham, Francis Harrison, Billy Dealtly, Norman K. Brown, Laurence Hall, Jack Pinkerton, Art Chase, Jimmy Dear, Wilbur Conn, John Clark reminds that by doing so the spirit of the student body will choose its editors is removed. Possibly a student's right to vote on editors is removed but in the long run the student's even more basic right to have the most capable man in charge is protected.

University Editorial

Continued from page four

At present the four top posts on the publications are the objects of such political maneuvering on the part of fraternities and other groups. Each year there is little but the formal vote after the slate have done their figuring and trading.

That any group of people to control and election involving political jobs is unfortunate. Up to now nobody shabby plays no part in the selection of a slate's candidates. Those affiliations decide the issue.

Another argument is that the opposite system will result in unscrupulous campaigning. Under present law it is claimed that personal friends of the current heads would tend to be favored in the election of new heads.

We do not believe that possibility would be as dangerous as the present election system. It must be remembered that there are four faculty members on the Board and two non-publication students. It is clear that there is sufficient check on any flagrant favoritism.

A move to run into the claim that the State News is paid for by the student body. The sum total per year paid is $1.95. At the same such student pays $12.50 per year toward the athletic and entertainment fund, but has almost no voice whatever in the direction of policies in those activities.

The proposed constitution has not been hastily prepared to meet any current situation. Rather it has been drafted following a long study of the systems used at colleges throughout the country. The plan is submitted for the approval of all students seems to be the best possible one. It is distinctly an improvement over the old electoral method.

THIS WEEK'S CALENDAR

Friday

Emergency Peace meeting, 304 History building, 7 p. m.

Hockey and Soccer games, athletic field, 4:30 p. m.

The "T'ruth," four-act play by Speech Department, at 8:15 p. m. Admission, 75c.

Saturday

Emory Glee Club concert, auditorium, 8 p. m., followed by dance for seniors and Emory Glee club members

Monday

Gordon String quartet, college auditorium, 7:45 p.m.

Tuesday

Convocation program. Mr. Charles D. Hurrey, speaker, 11:30 a. m.

Richeys Get Letter About Flooded Area

Commentary of Brother Reveals Tragedies In Louisville

Miss Luella Richey of the Commerce department and Miss Helen Richey of the Home Economics department have received a letter from their brother containing a description of the flood situation in Louisville. Mr. Richey is a commercial artist.

Letter Describes Flood

The letter is dated Jan. 26 and says as follows:

"You are all somewhat familiar with the lay of the land here in Louisville. It is possible to conceive of water getting high enough to submerge the whole of Louisville, but it is beyond imagination to picture boats at 4th and Third avenue. And still harder to think of downtown Louisville submerged to the tops of the Highlands and from Crescent Hill.

Existing Story of Experiences

On Saturday I received a call from Jeff Hall, a commercial company to go down to the Waterside electric station at the foot of Third avenue. I was directed to the 3rd floor efforts that were being made to keep power current for the city. Joseph Green (advertising manager of the Gas company) and I took on rubber boots and went into the power station. I thought it a bit of a lark at first but before I got out I was more scared than I've ever been in my life. We went down 50 feet under the surface of the water in a sub-pavement room to the basement.

The walls on all sides were cracking and the water pouring in through the slightest openings. The walls were built to withstand a 45-foot stage the river at this time was at 83 feet). We waded through an underground passage to a boat and then to the wall that occurred seven or eight hours before and had not yet been overcome. These men had started working on the leak in the wall that was up to their waists, and constantly rising. They had to go under the water to keep up their repair work. After boarding it up they had to lay tiers of sand bags but the water was still coming in through boards and fissures cage when we were there and there was also a perceptible bulge in the wall. All this work taking place 50 feet under the water and 100 or more yards of narrow passageway back to an opening into the main chamber and I had visions of flights of steep stairs up to the water level.

Men were also place a high window had been boarded up and sandbagged to a height of 15 feet and over so often additional boards and bags had to be added until the thing that we feared most was that the weight of the sandbags would break a window to form at the base of the window.

At another place in the sound down they had had to use big 4 x 4 boards as braces, not to hold the ceiling up, but hold the floor down, because of the pressure upward caused by the water.

I can tell you I did my stretching in little or no time and breathed more freely as I climbed up the final top stairway to the level of the river. From a rallying ground on top you could look down into this deep pit full of machinery with furnaces three stories high on each side and see the courageous workmen struggling over the operating pumps in an effort to get rid of the water that was rising steadily in spite of their efforts.

But now the water has risen another three or four feet and the power went off at midnight last night. Everything seems eight and beau over what was thought to be humanly possible.

Even WHAS went off the air for a short time but I notice they are operating again on some sorts of private ringing today, and I can still get them in the car although the radio here in the house is silent because of lack of current.

Refugees are pouring into the Highlands. I drove out to Buechel this morning to bring in some of them. I don't know whether my studio is under water or not. I had to drive through water at Third and York streets. Here I got stuck and somebody pushed me through.

All this was Saturday (January 23) and the biggest rise has occurred since then. We have stocked up with food and can take in some refugees as soon as desired. There are still thousands of people that have been forced for more than half the city is under water and are existing 700.-000 to be cared for. It is difficult for us in our warm dry house to understand what these people have been through. One of the major problems has been the fact that the marooned people were first taken in by families that be high and dry, and then about eight hours later they had to be moved again to make room for the hundreds instead of in small family groups, and they were there is no place to move them as all exits from town were cut off among by boat and there weren't enough boats to go around. It will be all right by Wednesday. So far as I know the post office is still operating."

The water has been subsiding gradually since this letter was written but sub-zero weather has added to the distress of the refugees in Louisville where there are still no adequate heating facilities, and few of an inhabitants. I caused a quarantine to be declared through twelve miles of the city.

HAVE DINNER
at
THE DUTCH KITCHEN
TUESDAY NIGHTS—CREAMED CHICKEN & WAFFLES
—THURSDAY NIGHTS—
Baked Beans, Individual Pots
SATURDAY NIGHTS—FRIED OYSTERS
BROILED STEAKS AND THOSE GOOD DUTCH KITCHEN ROLLS EVERY NIGHT

SORORITY ENTERTAINMENTS PLANNED FOR WEEK-END ARE VARIED IN SCOPE

Cultural Meeting

A cultural meeting of Kappa Alpha Theta was held in the sorority house Wednesday afternoon at which Dr. Raymond Bellamy spoke on "Religion." Friends of the chapter were invited. At the end of the meeting tea, sandwiches, and cookies were served.

The members and pledges of Alpha Chi Omega will have an all-house banquet to spend this week-end at Camp Flastacowo. They plan to return Monday morning.

Monday afternoon a tea was given by the members and pledges of Kappa Delta in honor of pushees and friends of the chapter. White gladioli were used in the house decorations. Tea and cakes were served.

Sophomore members of Alpha Delta Pi entertained their dates at a buffet supper at the sorority house on Jefferson street last Saturday afternoon. Guests were the Sophomore Hop.

Members and their dates present at the affair were Cohen Dey, Wilmer Thomas, Bland Sims, Tra Green, Geraldine Knapp, Lewis Hill, Gwendolyn Knapp, Reginald Mayo, Mary Elisabeth Daughtery, John Lowe, Evelyn Anderson, Paul Brockett, Betty Scott, Edgar Skipper, Nancy Rou, Tolbert Rou, Steve Love, and Ruth Wilson.

Other sophomores who attended were Mable Hunter, Marcia Mayboth Goss, Betty McMullen, Frances Hobbs, and Jeanne Maness.

Seniors Discuss Plans For Emory Glee Club's Concert Here Saturday

At a senior class meeting held Tuesday morning there was a discussion of final plans for the Emory glee club concert which will be presented Saturday night under the auspices of the senior class. It was decided that dances will be allowed to attend the dance which will be held in the gym following the concert with dates who are not members of the glee club as well as with glee club members.

The question of the wearing of caps and gowns to convocation was voted upon, and it was decided that the seniors hereafter will march into convocation in caps and gowns only on special occasions.

New Dance Regulations Announced by Makemson

The following list of regulations has been announced by Martha Makemson, dean of women.

The Glee club dances in the Florida Union will open and adhere to these rules.

Girls must not allow their dates to smoke within the gymnasium. The dance will last until 12 o'clock and the girls must be in their rooms then by 12:15 o'clock. Girls may not leave the dance floor early to ride or walk around or go to drugstore and they must not sit in parked cars.

Freshmen Give Program For Sophomore Council

The regular weekly meeting of Sigh vo council was held on Thursday night in Broward club room. A short business meeting was held after which duties for the week were assigned. It was decided that Sophomore council will continue wearing the traditional blue jackets every Thursday.

Later a program of freshman talent was presented, with a vision solo by Helen Brown and several readings by Lillian and Louise Usher.

EMORY GLEE CLUB TO BE HONORED AT DANCE FOLLOWING ITS PROGRAM

Following the program tomorrow night in the auditorium by the Emory Glee club a dance will be given in the gymnasium. This affair will be open to members of the senior class which is sponsoring the program, members of the Village Vamps who sold tickets, and members of the Collegiate club which assisted in the dance arrangements. Glee club members will be the honor guests.

The gym will be decorated in the Valentine motif, a large heart to be suspended over the floor. Another heart will be arranged throughout the gym.

Dr. Hugh L. Waskom and Chief Watkins and Dr. Mark McGhee and Mrs. DeGraff are members of the floor committee, with Dr. Kathryn Abbey, sponsor of the senior class. Members of the committee who have planned the dance include Mary Miller, president of the class; Frances Middlebrook, and Dorothy Barry, a representative of the Collegiate club.

Members of the Glee club are: John Bumstead, Atlanta; Curtis Mowlan, St. Petersburg; Frank Robertson, Macon, Ga.; Moreton Rolleston, Atlanta; Henry Plush, Monticello, Ga.; Edwin Yates, Tallahassee, Fla.; John Lewis, Louisville, Ga.; Milton Campbell, Decatur, Ga.; George Jordan, Scgorton, Ga.; Julian Waters, Jacksonville; Robert Rhodes, Atlanta; Linton Rau, Washington, Ga.; Robert Cowart, Atlanta; V. Glanzia, Miami; Frank Bates, Gay, Ga.; Dan Bates, Gay, Ga.

Francis Munn, Perry, Ga.; Paul Bankston, Chattanooga, Tenn.; Harry Nunnally, Monroe, Ga.; Bradford Ansley, Tampa; Herbert Ogden, Macon, Ga.; Lang Elliott, Atlanta; Joe Bumstead, Fort Lauderdale, Fla.; Wayland Bennett, Washington, Ga.; Leland MacKay, Atlanta; Bob Phillips, Greer, S. C.; Dave Black, Atlanta; Howell Bowen, Macon, Ga.; John Shepard, Fort Valley, Ga.; Paul Anderson, Scotia, Ga.; Tom Wiggins, Bartow, Fla.; Charles Aurerman, St. Petersburg, Fla.; Berkley Cox, Valdosta, Ga.

Others in the party are: Dr. Malcolm H. Dewey, director; Carl Stevens, Macon, Ga.; and Richard Felder, West Palm Beach, Fla., accompanists; Wharton Mitchell, Atlanta, business manager; Warren Duffee, Laurel, Miss., publicity manager; and James Mosher, Clarkdale, Miss., assistant manager.

Bride is Entertained At Surprise Shower By Kappa Deltas

Last night members and pledges of Kappa Delta sorority rose high in surprise shower in honor of Mrs. C. H. Race, formerly Virginia Rogers, a member of the chapter. Mrs. Race was married January 1 in her home at Winter Haven.

The sorority house was decorated for the occasion with rose buds and bulbs of the valley. Refreshments of chocolate and sandwiches were served.

Hostesses for the evening were Helen Turnbull, Dorothy Hendry, Jane Tharin, Jo Taylor, Peggy McMichael, Lilly Ayala, Margaret Thompson, Anne Blount, Mary Lockwood, Frances Thomas, Dee Bedford, Sara Brown, Dot McLean, Helen Ballenger, Jo Bisson, Sue Whitaker, Grace Whitaker, Jane Jackson, Ann Hubbell, Erma Engel, Madge Glenn, Jean Hollis, Frances Herring, Sara Putnam passarvay back a an opening into the main chamber and I had visions of flights of steep stairs up to the water level.

Men were also place a high window had been boarded up and sandbagged to a height of 15 feet and over so often additional boards and bags had to be added until the thing that we feared most was that the weight of the sandbags would break a window to form at the base of the window.

At another place in the sound down they had had to use big 4 x 4 boards as braces, not to hold the ceiling up, but hold the floor down, because of the pressure upward caused by the water.

I can tell you I did my stretching in little or no time and breathed more freely as I climbed up the final top stairway to the level of the river. From a rallying ground on top you could look down into this deep pit full of machinery with furnaces three stories high on each side and see the courageous workmen struggling over the operating pumps in an effort to get rid of the water that was rising steadily in spite of their efforts.

But now the water has risen another three or four feet and the power went off at midnight last night. Everything seems eight and beau over what was thought to be humanly possible.

Even WHAS went off the air for a short time but I notice they are operating again on some sorts of private ringing today, and I can still get them in the car although the radio here in the house is silent because of lack of current.

Refugees are pouring into the Highlands. I drove out to Buechel this morning to bring in some of them. I don't know whether my studio is under water or not. I had to drive through water at Third and York streets. Here I

Alpha Xi Entertains With Tea Honoring Province Leader

Members and pledges of Alpha Xi Delta entertained at an afternoon tea Wednesday night in honor of Mrs. Allen Hudson Lauchlin, Xi province president. Mrs. C. Provine presided.

Hostesses were Mary Ellen Lovelace, Whonna Ireland, Frankie Wilderman, Margaret Ann Bessey Mead, Mary McDonagh, Clotilde O'Rourke, Arlena Vernce, Mary Ellen Baker, Mary Frances Du Bose, Victoria Crisp, Mickey Brownell, Gwendolyn Burke Warren, Evelyn McMoloid, Fay Covey, Helen Brown, Murray Lou Anderson and Ruth Wilkes.

Parsons to Make Speech

Dr. R. B. Parsons, associate professor of education, will be the intendant of the demonstration school at the State College for Women. He will address the American Educational Research association that will be in New Orleans at its annual meeting. His subject will be "The Relation of Teacher Education to the General Program of Higher Education in a State."

Faculty Recital Is Given Tuesday Night

The second faculty recital of the season was given Tuesday night in the auditorium of the Florida Union by Miss Dorothy Barry, a piano recital. Miss Barry played a group of compositions by Bach, Beethoven, Chopin, Debussy, and Liszt.

Panhellenic to Have Benefit Tomorrow

A benefit bridge party will be given tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Woman's club by City Panhellenic of Tallahassee.

Mrs. O. C. Collins is chairman of the party, proceeds of which will be used to assist a Tallahassee girl at Florida State college.

For several years City Panhellenic has helped in scholarship awards by offering a part loan and part gift to a Tallahassee girl who wished to attend the college of her choice. The girl does not have to be a member of a sorority to be eligible for the scholarship.

Classical Club Holds Meeting to Hear Talk By Miss Ruth Fairman

At the meeting of the Classical club Tuesday night, Miss Ruth Fairman spoke on the Classical association meeting which she attended during the Christmas holidays and told of her trip abroad.

While abroad Miss Fairman studied with the American academy, locating Munich, Germany, as the center from which she worked. She spent 14 weeks with the German family there and visited all other times in Rome, Florence, Venice and Greece. Pictures she brought of her travels abroad were shown to the present.

During the business session a new bulletin board committee was appointed and Marie Anderson was appointed chairman. Others on the committee are Fern Robertson, Jane Jackson, and Geraldine Albritton.

"The Voice of Experience"... the man with the million dollar throat insists on a light smoke

"My voice is my career. It has inspired more than five million people to confide in me their personal problems. During 25 years, first on the lecture platform and then on the air, I have never missed a single engagement because of my throat. I am a steady smoker, and because my throat and voice are vital to my career I insist upon a light smoke. In Luckies I find a light smoke plus the enjoyment of fine tobacco . . . and that's why Lucky Strikes have been my choice for 14 years."

"The Voice of Experience"

FRIEND AND COUNSELOR TO MILLIONS OF RADIO LISTENERS

THE FINEST TOBACCOS—
"THE CREAM OF THE CROP"

An independent survey was made recently among professional men and women—lawyers, doctors, lecturers, scientists, etc. Of those who said they smoke cigarettes, more than 87% stated they personally prefer a light smoke.

"The Voice of Experience" verifies the wisdom of this preference, and so do other leading artists of the radio, stage, screen and opera. Their voices are their fortunes. That's why so many of them smoke Luckies. You, too, can have the throat protection of Luckies—a light smoke, free of certain harsh irritants removed by the famous process "It's Toasted". Luckies are gentle on the throat.

A Light Smoke
"It's Toasted"—Your Throat Protection
AGAINST IRRITATION—AGAINST COUGH

Copyright 1937, The American Tobacco Company

Methodists Go To Conference For Students

Presbyterians' Paper Will Devote Issue To Graduates

Church activities among the various groups have been marked this week by the return of delegates from the Methodist state student conference held at Lakeland last week-end and by preparations in all groups for the Youth Conference and Cham of Missions series that will be held at this college this week-end and next week.

At the annual Methodist state student conference in Lakeland last week-end, Esther O'Byrne, sophomore, was elected president for the ensuing year. Annie Laurie Polk, also a sophomore, was elected secretary, and Harold Price, of the University of Florida, treasurer. Dr. W. A. Smart, of Emory university, was the keynote speaker. Twenty students from this campus were present at the conference.

An invitation was extended to the conference to hold the meeting here next year.

As a member of the faculty symposium at the Methodist church, Miss Rowena Lampkin will teach the Sunday school class this week on the subject, "What Religion Means to Me."

The Epworth league will have its regular meeting Sunday night with Elisabeth Plake leading. The topic will be "Faith—the Substance of Things Hoped For."

At the regular fellowship meeting of the Presbyterian student league Sunday night one of the speakers for the Youth conference will address the league members.

The staff of the 'Collegeraste," a news sheet issued by the junior council of the league, is putting out a special alumnae number of this paper next week. Copies will be sent to all former league members to inform them about the student work in this college and the progress being made toward the student house. The paper will also carry greetings from former presidents of the league, the first of whom is now head of Christian activities in the Presbyterian hospital in Denver.

The league is sending to the ministers and auxiliary presidents all over the state booklets describing the student work being done here and in Gainesville and containing programs for the day of prayer for schools and colleges, on Feb 28.

The young women's auxiliary of the Baptist student union carried out its regular program last night with the four circles meeting separately. The topic discussed in each one was "Fascinating Discoveries About the Jews."

This Sunday night, a "Glowing Heart" program will be given by the freshman B.Y.P.U. The topic is "Obeying God Rather Than Men." Lighting will be furnished by an illuminated red heart, carrying out the Valentine idea. Lucille Kistler will be in charge of the program. Heart-shaped copies of the program will be presented to each member present.

As a part of the Lenten program at Rage Hall there will be morning watch services on Monday, Tuesday and Thursday at 8:15 o'clock. Tuesday afternoon at 6 o'clock the confirmation study class will begin. Wednesday morning at 8.15 the litany service will be held. At 10 o'clock Wednesday night there will be the Compline service. All regular activities will be discontinued beginning tonight and continuing through Sunday noon because of the student youth conference.

War Information

Continued From Page Four

have been forced to bring in foreigners to fight their war, as the true Spaniard will fight against another Spaniard.

The resentment flames scorchingly against these "nationals" who have brought suffering death and destruction in their rebellion against a government proven to be the choice of the immense majority of the people by the February elections in 1936. A government which has restored the peoples' liberties, given them bread and schools and joys of life.

The present minister of education has created 3 000 schools and provided them with 9,500 teachers, and the minister of agriculture has given land to the peasants. Even now in full civil war the sum of 150 millions of pesetas, or about $7,000,000 has been raised for the educational fund.

"It is said of this government," Cesar Falcon writes in his appeal to England and France, "that the Fascist generals have rebelled; provided with arms and men by the two Fascist powers, Germany and Italy. Treason on one hand and foreign interference on the other, but to neither of which will

Members of the Gordon string quartet which will present a program of chamber music Monday night in the college auditorium. This will be the fifth Artist Series presentation this year. The concert will begin at 7:45 o'clock, reserved seats for which can be obtained Monday.

String Quartet to Appear

Three Receive Student Loans

Omicron Nu Scholarships Awarded to Members On Monday Night

Three scholarship loans were awarded by the home economics honorary, Omicron Nu, at the monthly meeting Monday night.

Those receiving the scholarships were Edith Blalford, president of the Home Economics club and a member of Omicron Nu; Margaret Delaney and Louse D Johnson, members of both the Home Economics club and Omicron Nu.

The annual scholarship loans of one hundred dollars a year are open to all juniors and seniors in the School of Home Economics.

Twelve Attend Meeting Of College Professors

Twelve faculty members went to Gainesville last week-end to attend a joint meeting of the Florida State college and University of Florida chapters of the American Association of University Professors.

At the meeting It was agreed to form a permanent joint committee in order to coordinate the work of the two chapters. A representative from Rollins college suggested a plan which has as its aim the formation of a state association.

Boteler Elected Head Of Sophomores Due To Resignation of Tilden

At a meeting of the sophomore class recently, there were some changes made in the personnel of the class officers. Peggy Boteler was made president, following the official resignation of Anna Tilden.

Sarah Lytle was elected vice-president, the office formerly filled by Peggy Boteler.

Frances Douglas was elected representative to senate taking place of Dorothy Borders.

Elcie Trott was appointed chairman of the sophomore-senior breakfast, which is to take place on May 1.

Betty Skinner was appointed sophomore chairman of the May Day committee.

Ruth Fairman Attends Meet

Classical Association Has Second Annual Convention

Miss Ruth E. Fairman of the classical department and five graduates from Florida State college attended the annual convention of the Florida State Classical association at Rollins college last Saturday.

This was the second annual convention of this association which was started by the Latin honorary on this campus. Last year the members of the association met here.

The convention opened Saturday morning with a talk by Dr Pelzer Wagener on the status of classical studies. After the talk, a discussion on the status of classical studies at the present time was led by Dr. C. J. Armstrong, classical teacher at Rollins and host to the convention.

The afternoon session was opened by Dr. Pelzer Wagener reading a paper entitled "The Intimate Life of the Greeks as Revealed by Their Literature." Following this Dr. Armstrong gave a lecture on Greek art.

Later in the afternoon a business meeting was held to elect new officers. Miss Vera Cronk, graduate of Florida State college, was elected president. Miss Mary Spencer was elected vice-president. Miss Kelly, secretary; and Miss Harvel, treasurer. February was set as a tentative date for the next convention which is scheduled to be held in St. Petersburg next year.

After the business meeting, the delegates attended the dedication of a white collection of Greek stones for the Walk of Fame.

While in Winter Park, the delegates were entertained by an organ recital late Saturday afternoon and a banquet at the Hotel Alabama that night. After the banquet, they were guests at a play, written and directed by a member of the faculty of Rollins,

Tallahassee Children Featured in Ensemble Recital Monday Night

An ensemble recital, featuring twenty-four Tallahassee children, was given at 7:45 o'clock Monday night in the Florida State College music annex.

Gordon Epperson, 'cellist, accompanied by Mary Ann Waller on the harp, appeared on the program. Miss Mary Winslow and Miss Mary Reeder of the college music faculty played the closing group of numbers. Miss Reeder was director of the piano normal department.

Tallahassee children who were in the program included: Mary Meyers Alford, Jean Andrews, Julia Alfriend, Harriet Chance, Julia Collins, Betty Davis, Evelyn Doyle, Ruth Ervin, Irving Fleet, Celine Gunn, Marie Gunn, Rachel Jones, Flora Kurz, Marjorie Lee Montgomery, Ida Owen, Frances Proctor, Isabel Rogers, Vivienne Rainy, Lucille Sanderson, Jack Scarborough, Nell Tharpe, Mary Ann Waller, Iris Watson and Patricia Yates.

Girl Gets Soaking In Fountain Water

Two pairs of popping eyes were caused by the light of the street lamps. Two shapeless forms rose from the fountain and crawled silently over the edge. Little pools of water spread around them.

Kiffy had started it by offering to carry her purple-heart from the education building. They had just heard a lecture on the moon; now that explained it. At any rate, Louise asked Kiffy to throw her to the moon.

Kiffy was very obliging. She carried her burden to the side of the pool and stepped up on the rim. Swaying a little, she turned around, back to the danger. Louise giggled in triumph.

Suddenly they tipsy column lost which was presented at the college.

Florida State college graduates who attended the convention were, Hadale Helms, Margaret Scott, Vivia Craig, Louise Goodbread, and Margaret Roberts.

Nurses' Group To Raise Fund Through Party

Bridge Affair Designed To Help Get Annual Representation

The Nurses' association, at its regular monthly meeting Wednesday night, made plans for a bridge party to raise funds for a page in the Flastacone.

Beverly Horne was appointed investigate for a suitable place and time to give the party. Refreshments will be served and prizes given, and the tables will meet forty cents, ten cents a person. Further announcements concerning the party will be made in convocation.

The president asked each member who had not already done so to fill out a chart location blank for a permanent record of address, intention of going to nurses' training school and any information. She also asked that members bring a small picture or snapshot of herself to be kept with the record.

The program, conducted by Leonora Simms, consisted of two talks, one on training schools by Miss Lowe by round table discussion of them. Jeanette Spector reported on the New York Hospital of Nursing, the second oldest in the United States which is affiliated with Cornell university. It has a capacity of 1000 beds, and treats all types of illnesses. The entrance requirements are similar to those of any of the standard training schools.

The Nursing School at Yale was reported by Pearl Smith, is one of the best in the country and is one of the few which requires a B.S. degree for entrance. A discussion of training schools and their entrance requirements followed the two reports.

Its balance and collapsed backwards. Water flew in all directions.

"Anyway," said Kiffy later, "that suit had needed washing for weeks."

Give Juniors Your Support

The Florida Flambeau

Published by the Students of Florida State College for Women

Let's Have Clean Election

VOLUME XXIV. Tallahassee, Florida, February 19, 1937 NUMBER SEVENTEEN

Juniors' Show Features Trip To Far Planet

Production to Be Given Tonight in College Auditorium

CAST, DANCERS ARE ANNOUNCED

Annual Musical Comedy Offers New Stage Setting Type

Using a new and effective type of stage setting that is known as "space" or "structural," "Chaotic Rhapsody," the annual junior minstrel musical comedy which features a trip to the planet Venus aboard a rocket ship and the experiences which follow, will be presented tonight in the auditorium of the Florida State College for Women.

Rocket Ship Takes Of

The production unfolds with a group of people taking off in a rocket ship for the planet Venus to avoid probable destruction when the planet Saturn collides with the earth. These people, a scientist, an astronomer, an Englishman, an old main, a boy, and a girl, reach Venus safely. While there they meet with strange beings including a tyrannical and jealous queen, "The Queen of Venus," who falls in love with the boy. When he spurns her love, she plots his death as revenge. However, the ingenuity of the scientist saves them all from destruction in the "sacrificial well."

Modern Dances Featured

Modern and futuristic dances such as dances of "Metal Men," "collegians" and "slaves," singing, and xylophone and organ music will be scattered throughout the entire minstrel. The script, staging and costumes are all done by students. The minstrel is regarded as one of the foremost student productions of the year.

Students havings peaking parts are Frances Moss, Mickey Conn, Dorothy Barr, Dorothy Hill, Alicia Meachem, Sara Lewis, Elva Melton, Patricia Mack, Nancy Rogero, Eva Hemphill, Eloise Trott, Kathryn Harris, Bobby Watson, Lurline Goodman, and Janet Cook.

Dancers are: Marjorie Raulerson, Lucy Grant, Mary K Scott, Patricia Hamilton, Isabelle Sands, Victoria Crisp, Ruth Prather, Helen Hall, Janet Cook, Marion Weeks, Mildred Seekins, Felicia West, Ruth Wilson, Bunny Lowe, Kathryn Pratt, Ruth Agnes McClam, Valerie Hunt, Betty Ost-

Continued on Page Three

Chairman

Marjorie Jones, junior, who is chairman of the Junior minstrels production which will be presented this evening in the college auditorium. The presentation this year is called "Chaotic Rhapsody" and will represent a mythical trip to Venus.

Five Colleges Send Students To Convention

Campus Youth Conference Talks Concern Many New Problems

Featuring discussions on racial problems, international relations, economic conditions, religions of the world, and the youth of different nations, the state Christian Youth conference was opened Friday night at Ruge hall, with representatives present from five colleges including Rollins college, Stetson university, University of Florida, and Florida State College for Women.

Sponsored by Council

The conference was sponsored by the Religious Workers' council of this campus and was made possible by the executive board of the Florida chain of Missionary assemblies. The theme of the conference was "Christian Youth Building a New World," and the purpose was "to bring together representative Christian students who, under the inspiration and guidance of youth leaders from many parts of the world and engaged in many phases of Christian service, will join the hundreds of thousands of Christian youth who are seeking to build a new world —a world which meets the specifications of the kingdom of God."

The speakers were all members of the Chain of Missions faculty and were scheduled to speak here as e part of that group later on in the week. Dr. Charles D. Hurrey, who has been connected with the international Y. M. C. A., was director of the conference.

Members Are Introduced

On Friday evening the faculty members and various state leaders were introduced to the conference by the Rev. Don Cook, Methodist student secretary at the University of Florida. Dr. L. R. Christie, of the First Baptist church here, led the devotional.

Dr. Hurrey, director of the conference, delivered the first address on the topic, "Student Thought and Action Around the World." He mentioned several international trends of students averywhere, among them the trend to get together and seek to overcome "confusionism" concerning race relationships, universal peace, and economic problems, another to be skeptical and analytical, and another trend to be the friend of the "underdog."

Dr. Herrick P. Young, a former Associated Press correspondent and now a full-time missionary in Persia, spoke on "A New World." He said that so many radical changes have been brought about that now the three prevailing religions of the world are Nationalism, Communism, and Christianity.

On Saturday morning the Right Reverend Frank R. Juhan, Episcopal Bishop of the Diocese of Florida, led the devotional.

Dr. Raper Speaks First

Dr. Arthur Raper was the first speaker on Saturday morning, having as his subject "Breaking Down Racial Barriers." He spoke mostly of the racial barriers in connection with the economic setup here in the South. He pointed out that the richest centers in the country contain the most unemployed men. He advocated e

Continued on Page Five

Three Hundred Students Seen On Honor List

Freshmen Lead Number Of Girls Achieving Approbation

ALL "A" GRADES MADE BY THREE

Doyle Announces Names Of Those Receiving "B' Averages

Of the 1,766 students enrolled in Florida State College for the first semester of this year, three hundred girls made an everage of B or higher for the semester, thereby being on approbation.

Of this number there were only three girls who made all A's. They were, Daisy Parker, senior; Mary Elizabeth Orleman, sophomore; and Anna Marie Mitchell, senior.

Freshmen Lead

The freshman class leads the approbation list, with 85 members of their class on it; the juniors are next with 84; seniors have 70; and the sophomores a total of 59. Registrar S. R. Doyle stated that the number of girls on approbation last semester is larger than usual.

Those making a B average or higher are as follows:

Minna Agress, Geralddine Albritton, Olive Alderman, Betty Ambler, Kathryn Andrews, Jeanette Annin, Rose Appel, Phil Asher, Rebecca Ashton, Lorey Mae Buchand, Dora Helen Baggott, Nellie Frances Bahrt, Danner Baker, Martha Baker, Dorothy Barclay, Marjorie Beach, Dorothy Bellamy, Margaret Benjamine, Annie Caroline Bennett, Mary Engenia Berryhill, Eleanor Biggers, Josephine Binion, Sara Frances Blackwell, Elizabeth Blalock, Margaret Botsler, Hillian Lois Bowen, Louise Bowery, Hazel Bowman, Frances Annette Brewer, Virginia Belle Bridges, Doris Brigman, Opal Carmen Brook, Ella Virginia Brooks, Viola May Brooks, Beverly Brown, Frances Brunson, Ruth Buechly, Mrs Edna K. Burhans, Alice Emily Bush, Eleanor Bushnell, Marie Betty Busselle, Alma Butler.

Students Are Listed

Patrea Cabaniss, Florence Cameron, Charlotte Carlton, Rose Mary Carlton, Nell Carroll, Marion Carson, Marie Castellano, Dulcie Cavangnero, Mrs Lottie M Clark, Mary Glenn Coarsey, Frances Nell Colvin, Janet Cook, Wilton Virginia Craig, Barbara Indus Curry, Clarice Surry, Victoria Ines Curtis, Beth Daane., Olive Key Dame, Eleanor Daniells, Rosalyn Daum, Catherine Davis, Elizabeth Davis, Sarah Elizabeth Davis, Shirley Davis, Irene Day, Margaret Delaney, Dorothy Detrick, Edyth Dickson, Hazel Donegan, Francis May Douglas, Emma Louise Doyle, Winifred Dunn.

Virginia Eager, Virginia Early, Ann Raleigh Eastham, Kathryn Amelia Eckles, Emma Randolph Elebash, Dorothy Emerson, Mary Ensign, Sarah Myrvin Everett, Winifred Ewart, Ruth Louise Eyman, Martha Frances Farmer, Amanda Elizabeth Finch, Evelyn Fisher, Pauline Flake, Eleaine Fleischer, Jane Floyd, Allene Dell

Continued on Page Five .

Conradi Reveals Life Story And Educational Philosophy

President Searches For His Dictionary When Asked to Talk

By HAZEL ADAMS

Tomorrow is Dr. Conradi's sixty-eighth birthday.

On being asked for an interview, Florida State College's president since 1909 began in his own inimitable way by telling a humorous story of the first time Mark Twain was asked for an interview.

He explained that a reporter once asked Mark Twain for an interview. Twain began paging through his dictionary while the reporter stared at him and finally asked what he was looking for. Mark Twain answered, "I'm looking for the meaning of the word interview."

Dr. Conradi leaned back in his chair, smiled, looked up and said. "I'm ready." Then a pause. "I'm one of the country kids who attended a little country school in Ohio."

Dr. Conradi was born in New Breman, Ohio, February 20, 1869. He attended the University of Indiana where he received his A. B. degree in 1877 and his M. A. in 1898. He became superintendent of schools at Carlisle, Indiana in 1898, which position he filled until 1902 when he became a fellow at Clark University where he received his Ph.D. degree in 1904. After leaving Clark, Dr. Conradi was principal of the Normal and Industrial schools in St. Petersburg, Florida until 1909 when he became president of Florida State College for Women.

"There is only one brick building still standing that was here when I came," said Dr. Conradi. "That is Bryan Hall, which with a few old wooden buildings on a 13 acre campus was Florida State College for Women. The other dormitory, old East Hall, which housed the dining hall, was a wooden structure. It was not until 1918 that there were any paved walks on campus."

In the first year that Dr. Conradi became president the Administration building that now houses the auditorium, most of the offices, and many class rooms, was built. From this first year there has been a steady increase of buildings on campus, until now there are 11 brick buildings on a 90 acre campus.

Dr. Conradi says he hopes that in the near future part of the present college farm will be converted into further recreational facilities for the college.

"But," Dr. Conradi hastened to say, "Florida State College does not emphasize size, but standards. Good, high, intellectual and moral standards come first and then let the size meet the demand."

"It is through this two year general college plan we hope to have every student receive a good solid cultural background that will serve as a foundation on which to build their knowledge for a happy and wholesome home and professional life."

Dr. Conradi ended by saying, "Too many students tend to emphasize profession, without taking into consideration that they will need a background on which to make a passing grade in the greatest profession—living."

President

Dr. Edward A. Conradi, president of Florida State College for Women, who will celebrate his sixty-eighth birthday tomorrow. Dr. Conradi has been president of the college since 1909 and succeeded President Murphree, the first president of the college.

Conservation Agency Work Seen On Tour

Many Faculty Members Attend Motorcade And Dinner

In cooperation with a program planned by various conservation agencies during the past week, several members of the faculty of Florida State College for Women attended the motorcade and dinner which occurred Wednesday.

This program was planned in an effort to show something of the work carried on by various conservation agencies in this state and by the Florida Forest Service and to provide an opportunity to hear Dr. H. H. Wheeler of Washington, chief lecturer of the United States Forest Service.

Three groups started from Tallahassee, Quincy, and East Point, Franklin county. The section leaving from Tallahassee was under the guidance of Mr. Colin D. Gunn of the Resettlement Administration and Mr. William F. Jacobs, district forester. Enroute to the Hosford CCC camp in Liberty county, the group had an opportunity to see the type of work being done on the resettlement project, pine tree plantations on the Florida Power company's land, and fire control improvements on the east end of the Hosford unit.

After luncheon at the camp there was a short program during which Mr. Gunn, Mr. Jacobs, and others spoke.

About 2:30 o'clock there was a tour of inspection of the camp. Following this was a demonstration showing the latest type of fire line plow and a fire fighting

(Continued On Page Two)

Coyle To Talk On Prosperity Planning Here

Widely Quoted Engineer, Writer, to Comment On Government

OFFICIAL COMES NEXT WEDNESDAY

Speaker Takes Standpoint Of Private Citizen In Observations

David Cushman Coyle, who has for the past few years been writing extensively on the economic crisis and the New Deal from the engineering standpoint, will speak on, "Planning for Prosperity" next Wednesday evening at 7:45 o'clock in the Augusta Conradi theater.

Is Author

Articles by Mr. Coyle have appeared in the American City, Mechanical Engineering, The Survey Graphic, The American Scholar, Scribner's, Forum, and the Atlantic Monthly. His forty-five page book, which has been several times rewritten as the situation changed, has been used in several universities, including Pennsylvania, Syracuse, Kansas, and Wisconsin. Another of his books, Brass Tacks, has been widely quoted.

During 1933-34 Mr. Coyle served as a consultant to the housing division, as a member of the technical board of review in the public works administration at Washington, and as a consultant to the national planning board.

He speaks, however, not as an officer of the government with official commitment but as an engineer in private practice with some insight into the problems that confront the administration. It is said of him that he is an engineer who, out of wide experience and observation, has devalued a sense of the significance of the economic structure and the organisation of modern society, his analysis of present day problems being penetrating and spiced with humor.

Having traveled and lectured extensively through the country, Mr Coyle has spoken before audiences at Harvard, Williams, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Union College, New York University, Columbia, the American Academy of Political and Social Science at Philadelphia, the National Conference of Social Work in Detroit, and before business men's clubs and civic forums in Louisville, Cleveland, Chicago, Utica, Minneapolis, Albany, Philadelphia, New York, and Washington.

Mr. Elmer Scott, director of the civic federation in Dallas, Texas, and under whose auspices Mr. Coyle has been presented to a wide variety of forums, institutes, and discussion groups in Texas, says: "Mr. Coyle has given evidence of a fine educational quality and has inspired his audiences to a thoughtful consideration of his subject matter, not only in respect to his own carefully considered views but as respecting the opinion of others."

Mr. Howard Vincent O'Brien, writing in the Chicago Daily News, says: "Mr. Coyle—an en-

(Continued On Page Two)

Presidents, Editors To Start Elections

Qualification Speeches Planned for Tuesday In Convocation

FLAMBEAU GIVES ELIGIBLE GIRLS

Schedule Has Nomination Of Candidates For Next Thursday

Election preparations will swing into action on the campus next Tuesday when the presidents end editors of organizations and publications explain the qualifications necessary for their offices to the student body.

Amendment Voted On

By the amendment of a standing rule the student body voted last Tuesday to use again the election procedure of last year and to begin elections early. Nominations for the 1937-38 term will take place the last Thursday in February rather than the first Tuesday in March.

After the plans for elections were accepted by the 1936 nominating committee the program for 1936 F. S. C. W. Week made it necessary to advance the elections a week and begin them on Thursday. Beginning the elections on Thursday also allows primary candidates to print their platforms in a special Saturday edition of the Flambeau. The change this year was made necessary due to the fact that the old rule is still incorporated in the standing rules of the C. G. A.

Beginning work this week the elections committee will follow the new system of election procedure adopted last year. In Tuesday's student body meeting present office holders will give short talks on the qualifications necessary for their positions. Nominations will take place Thursday, Feb. 25.

Actual voting will begin Tuesday, March 2, when the student body goes to the polls for the primary vote. Finals will be held on Thursday, March 4, and elections for minor offices will be held Tuesday, March 9.

Students Are Eligible

Lists of students eligible for editors and business managers of the publications were submitted to the committee and approved. They have not yet been approved by the office of the registrar due to the fact thet the office is moving.

Students whose nemes have

Continued on Page Three

Swedish Glass On Display Here For Two Weeks

Orrefore Work is Rated Finest in World For Variety, Beauty

A display of Orrefors glassware from Sweden, considered the best glassware in the world, will be on exhibition in the lower floor of the Education building until Feb. 28. This exhibit is presented in cooperation with the industrial art adepartment.

The Orrefors Iron works, forerunners of the present glass works, was founded in 1726. The glass works, founded in 1898, was chiefly noted for its exquisite table ware. In 1916 three world-famous artists were hired to taka charge of the decorating of the products, and to conduct a school to teach engraving on both soda glass and the more expensive lead glass or crystal.

Engraving is so delicate and so expensive that it is seldom used on anything but the crystal ware, which is sometimes tinted. The artistic impression of the decoration depends on the shape of the vessel, which is carefully constructed so as to enhance the impression of softness, and on the refracting qualities utilized. The decoration, which necessitates great cooperation, is used only to accentuate the lustre and transparency of the glass.

Prices on the exhibited glassware range from an "Artimis" vase, priced at $60, to a small vase of "Bird of Paradise," priced at $2.50. There are many varied and beautiful shapes, ranging from tall vases in conical shapes to small candy dishes and ash trays. These latter are so cut as to refract the light from the colored bases in a novel fashion.

The decorations are a varied as the shapes. There are fish, flowers and butterflies, birds of paradise, female figures whose muscles seem to come alive as the light varies on the surface, a group of ducks in a marsh scene, ice skaters who seem about to begin animate action, an oasis scene which brings to mind Christmas stories of Bethlehem, a hunt complete with fox and hide-out, stars and comets, etched to give the impression of heavenly spaces, gazelles whose delicate beauty has been accuretely captured on cold glass, and a youth flying a kite in a high wind which is about to sweep her aloft with her plaything.

Among the display is a small table bell which gives off a musical note when rung, although all the pieces give off a musical note when struck, the pitch depending on the size and shape of the receptacle.

One decanter resembles a tear drop, almost liquid in its beauty, while another gives the impression of a waterfall, with all its cooling powers. One vase which has attracted much attention is decorated with a figure of a girl riding a surf board. Her head and one arm are flung aloft with the exuberance of motion which is enhanced by the glass itself. It has been blown to represent waves which are carrying the surfboard along with them.

A.G.O. Sponsors "Pop" Concert

Informal Symphony Idea Will Be Introduced Last of Month

Florida State's first "pop concert" will be presented by the college symphony orchestra assisted by vocalists from the School of Music on the afternoon of Feb. ... Margaret Melzer, chairman of planning committe, has announced. Sponsored by the local chapter of the American Guild of Organists this concert will initiate the informal symphony program idea here.

Completely under student management, the purpose of the concert is to obtain funds for financing the tri-state Guild convention to be held at Florida State college next year.

Students who are helping Margaret with arrangements are Edna Moon and Lois Bowen, refreshments, Evelyn Bayless, Helen Taylor, Evelyn Patterson, and Charlotte Veith, decorations; Margaret Finck, publicity.

Local and national members of the American Guild of Organists are requested to meet in Bryan ...rium, Tuesday night, 7:20 o'clock, for a further discussion of plans for the concert.

Review of Book Given For Sophomore Council

A book review was the program feature at the weekly meeting of Sophomore council Thursday night in the C. G. A. room. Winifred Ewart, chairman of the project committee gave a review of "Gone With the Wind," by Margaret Mitchell.

Following the program duties were assigned for the week and there was a discussion of the council project.

Religious Ambassadors, Sponsored by Florida Missions Chain, Give Special and Economic Aspects of Own Lands

Beginning Sunday afternoon and continuing through Tuesday, for the third year the Florida Chain of Missions brought to the campus from all parts of the globe religious ambassadors who presented the religious and economic aspects of their respective lands.

Those who took part were Dr. Herrick B. Young of Iran; Miss Muriel Lester who is in the United States this winter speaking with the National Preaching Mission; Dr. Arthur Raper, research secretary for the inter-racial commission, and professor of sociology at Agnes Scott college; George P. Robinson, field secretary for Christian German refuges; Mrs. Induk Pak of Korea; Miss Yosko Saito, opera star from Tokyo, Japan, and Dr. Charles Hurrey, director of the state-wide Youth conference.

These speakers also were featured in talks before townspeople during those three days. Sunday evening each of the city churches heard one of the world ambassadors. Headquarters for the town meetings were in the First Methodist church.

Dr. Young and Miss Lester were the featured speakers at the opening session of the Mission Chain. Dr. Young brought a mission message on the march of Christianity in Iran. World peace was advocated by Miss Lester. The nine world ambassadors of the Chain were presented and Miss Yosko Saito geve a musical program.

Opening Monday's program and choosing for his talk a subject, "somewhere between history, economics and sociology," Dr. Arthur Raper, research secretary for the inter-racial commission, deplored the various exploitations practiced in America.

In regard to natural resources, he maintained that a technical deed to land did not give the holder the right to squander its natural wealth. It was this exploitation that he blamed for drought areas, flood regions and imperialism.

As another exploitation common to America, Dr. Raper named that of peoples. He cited the Indians, confined to lands that no one wants; the negroes, politically, economically and culturally repressed; and the immigrants, once invited and now forced out of even the most menial jobs. From 1915 to 1935, he said, "more than 300.000 white tenant farmers displaced the negroes and drove them to seek relief.

Dr. Raper's fifth exploitation was that of "Americanism." Monopolists and bankers—to name two—were crying for rugged individualism when corporations like the Hearst papers were regimenting their writers. Anti-socialists were demanding private property when a small group of wealthy men owned most of American land.

In conclusion, Dr. Raper pleaded for a correction of these faults. If steps are not taken, he argued, the United States will have a bitter class struggle on its hands. "We will have to stop building barriers to Democracy," the speaker concluded, "and build Democracy instead."

Characterizing the present Nazi tactics as the actions of a group whose minds are diseased with hate, George P Robinson who also spoke Monday morning, told of the outrages perpetrated against free citizens of the concentration camps and the non-Aryan laws.

"There are at present," he said, "between fifteen and twanty thousand Christian refugees in America, forced from Germany by the present hysteria, and obliged to live in poverty despite their circumstances because of a law forbidding them to withdraw their money at e rate greater than ten marks a month." Reminding his listeners that the Allies, through their unfair treatment of Germany at Verasilles, helped lay the foundation for the present situation, Mr. Robinson quoted the statement that Hitler is the Allies' gift to Germany.

Cuban students have a tradition that with them lies the responsibility for their government, Dr. Esequiel Torres pointed out in his talk on contemporary problems in Cuba, Monday afternoon. This tradition, started by the movement for Cuban independence, has allied the youth of that island with both the labor and army parties for the purpose of bettering Cuban conditions.

As a preface to his speech, Dr. Torres listed three benefits given by the United States to Cuba. American sympathy was made apparent by the Spanish-American war. A sense of fair play

(Continued On Page Two)

Prize is Offered For Finest Original Song Submitted in Contest

The annual school song contest, an age-old custom at Florida State College for Women, has recently been announced.

Each year such a contest has been held, at which time any student or students are asked to contribute original words and music to a song of the Alma Mater. As many students may wish to collaborate on one song, the number of songs submitted is not limited.

In 1934 Sally Walder was the winner, and in the last two years Isabelle Sands and Hazel Bowman were the prize contributors.

All songs must be turned in to Beth Daane in 321 ... ward by first light-flash, Feb 26.

The judges are: Marian Conn, Betty Parker, and Frances Forth.

The winning song will be presented by a chosen quartet in convocation, Tuesday March 2, during F.S.C.W. week. The prize will also be awarded at that time.

Tillis Names Program Date

Six Organizations Take Part in Skit Night Preparations

The tentative date for the presentation of skit night has been set for March 12, Marjorie Tillis, chairman, announced this week.

The six campus organizations that will present a skit are as follows: Sophomore Council, Spirogira, Mortar Board, Kappa Alpha Theta, Kappa Delta, and Pi Beta Phi. In case any of these organizations should withdraw, the Dining Room Girls, and Y. W. C. A. will take their place.

Skit night is an annual presentation sponsored by the Flastocowo for the purpose of raising funds for that publication. The maximum length of a skit is fifteen minutes, and a cash prize is awarded to the organization that puts on the best skit. The judges will be members of the faculty.

Freshmen Elect Eyman, Schornherst Sponsors

At a meeting Thursday morning, the freshman class elected Dr Ralph L. Eyman and Miss Ruth Schornherst its faculty sponsors and Sarah Jane Stambaugh athletic manager. Also, committees were appointed for booths for the F.S.C.W. week carnival.

Ina Margaret Robinson will have charge of the fish pond, Janet Jewett, the target booth, and Marian Grinnell, the skating rink. Gail Gathright and Marjorie Jessop will preside over the fortune telling booths and refreshment booths will be under the direction of Elaine Fleischer, Alberta Lloyd, Jeannette Litchgi, and Jean Jernigan.

Episcopalians Make Special Lenten Plans

Baptist Members YWCA To Have Banquet For Missionary Union

Special Lenten services will mark Episcopal student activities at Ruge hall this week. Today at 4 o'clock the Rev. Ambler M Blackford will present the first Lenten program, showing moving pictures of recent Episcopal events in this diocese.

A waffle sreakfast will be served Sunday morning from 8:30 to 10:00 o'clock, in observance of Lent at Ruge hall. Sunday at 7:15 Professor Robert Miller of the department of Philosophy and Religion will present the first in a series of five lectures on the great philosophers, speaking first on Confucious.

Members of the college young women's association of the Baptist student group will be hostesses to members of the Tallahassee Women's Ministerial Union at a banquet tonight at the Baptist community hall. Miss Susan Adams, state young people's leader, and Miss Prarl Bourne, a member of the foreign mission board in Nashville, Tenn., will be guest speakers.

Dr. Sarah Parker White will present the fourth in a series of faculty talks on "What Religion Means to Me" at the regular Methodist Sunday school services Sunday morning at 9:40.

The regular league supper will be held at the Methodist student house Sunday evening at six, followed by the league meeting and program. Methodist students have begun rehearsals on a play with a peace theme which will be presented at the church one week from Sunday. Members of the cast include Dora Helen Baggott, Robert Bliss, Robert Parker, and Tom Humphries.

At their regular Sunday night

Religious Ambassadors Give Special, Economic Aspects of Own Lands

(Continued From Page One)

was evidenced by political as well as business dealings, he said, and efficiency was particularly emphasized by the workings of American corporations.

Dr. Torres spoke of what is going on in Cuba today. He told about the army's efforts to educate the rural populaces and the opposition given by different parties. He did not predict future events but stated that many reforms have yet to be completed.

The scene shifted at 8 o'clock Monday to Broward club room. There Miss Muriel Lester and Mr. Robinson gave informal discussions.

At the request of Miss Winnie Lee Davis, who presented the speakers, Miss Lester traced the high points of her career. Nineteen years old and fresh from a girls' school similar to Eton, Miss Lester chanced to go to a party in London where she met some of the London working girls. She was interested in what she saw. "Why those girls didn't know what it all was. They were humorless and miserable. They were realists facing life at rock bottom and being shy about it."

Her interest in this district caused her to take up her residence in the slums. There she founded Kingsley hall as a living memorial to her mother, Kingsley. Her work in the east side for over twenty years has been such that fellowship meeting the Presbyterian student league will hear about the Youth Conference held here last week-end from the members of their group who attended it. Brief resumes of the various speeches will be given, and a representative from each seminar will make a report of the activities of her group.

Tuesday at 8:15 p. m. in Bryan auditorium Mrs. Margaret Russell, of Mobile, Alabama, who is an assistant blind teacher from the Presbyterian assembly's training school at Richmond, will conduct a prayer service for members of the league council and anyone else who wishes to come.

Three Attend Dean Meeting

Dorman, Flowers, Byrd To Spend Four Days In New Orleans

Miss Maude Flowers, director of residence, Dr. Olivia Dorman, dean of students, and Miss Katherine Byrd, director of Gilchrist hall, left Tuesday morning for New Orleans to attend the meeting of the National Association of Deans of Women which is being held there from the sixteenth through the twentieth.

This association is one of the oldest personnel organizations in the United States and is being held in the south for the first time in many years. Representatives from colleges and universities all over the country will be present to discuss student problems and techniques involved in the general guidance and education of young women.

Miss Flowers, Dean Dorman, and Miss Byrd plan to spend Saturday at Baton Rouge at the Louisiana State University where all members of the conference will be entertained by tours of the campus, a dinner, and an opera before they return on Sunday.

today Muriel Lester is known as "the Jane Addams of London."

Mr. Robinson pictured the development of regimented youth in Germany by giving the contemporary German scene. When Hitler took into power as a dictator on the wave of unemployment he immediately saw that he must capture the youth of Germany. He suppressed, therefore, the boy scout and girl scout organizations and the Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A. The Vondertogel movement was his substitute. Under Hitler organization was the only thing the youth could join.

"Just as in the last German election," Mr. Robinson explained, "nobody had to vote for Hitler, but there was nobody else to vote for." The aim of the movement is that the German race is superior to all other races and that the sword is supreme. The youth of Germany is being trained in every aspect of their lives.

In conversation Tuesday morning Mr. Charles Hurrey emphasized the importance of exchange students, the group of "unofficial ambassadors." In furthering friendly relations and understanding among nations. In closing he flung down a challenge to his audience when he said, "Young people are significant factors in America's future. Will you be?"

At the last student session of the chain Mrs. Induk Pak and Dr. Kasper contrasted the economic conditions in Korea and the United States, respectively.

Conservation Agency Work Seen on Tour

(Continued From Page One)

demonstration in connection with it.

The principle feature was the raising of the Ackiawaha tower. These 80 to 100-foot steel towers were formerly assembled piece by piece from the ground, but it was discovered that they could be assembled lying on their side on the ground and tipped into place by means of a few pole and tractor. This was the method used in raising the Ackiawaha tower.

Faculty members of Florida State College for Women who attended this motorcade included: Dean Nathaniel M. Caller of the School of Education; Dean Ella Scott Agnew, dean of the School of Music; and Miss Mary Alice Eaton, of the geography department.

In the evening at 7 o'clock a dinner was held at the Woman's club building. Dr. Ralph L. Rogman, professor of education at the college, presided as toastmaster. Speakers for the evening were: Frank Albert Sampson, Florida National Forests; Collu Gunn, director, Florida Resettlement Project; I. N. Kennedy, executive secretary, Commission of Game and Fresh Water Fish; W. F. Jacobs, district forester, Florida Forest Service; Harry Lee Baker, state forester; Dr. R. M. Weeter, chief lecturer, United States Forestry Service.

Players Tell All To Girls Behind Scene

Quartet Members Discuss Hobbies, Vacations With Reporters

By ALMA WARREN
and MARTHA LUMPKIN

Just inside the entrance on the back stage, Jacques Gordon stood swaying slightly as he played his Stradivarius. Smiling, he directed the two reporters farther back on the stage to see William Lincer, another member of the group. Back stage, faint interrupted snatches from Debussey and Haydn pulsated through the wings.

William Lincer, who, beside playing the viola, is the press agent for the group, explained that the quartet had been formed in 1931 by Jacques Gordon. He was enthusiastic about the concert tour which the quartet had just completed.

"We have come from a southwestern tour, which took in Fort Wayne, Indiana; Austin, Texas; Shelby, North Carolina; and many other places." During this tour the quartet returned to New York, where it gave three concerts in two days at the Town hall.

"My hobby is ping-pong," Mr. Lincer said smiling, his white teeth flashing, as he changed the subject, "and I like horses."

"Mr. Sackson," he said, waving his hand toward the youngest member of the quartet, who at the moment was adjusting his white tie, "loves fine dogs as a hobby."

The Russian 'cellist, Mr. Benditsky, the only foreign member of the group, studies philosophy during his leisure time.

"Oh," he explained, nodding toward Mr. Gordon, "devotes all his leisure moments to music."

"Would you like to know where we are going to spend our vacations?" he inquired, raising his heavy dark eyebrows, and nervously shifting his viola to a more secure position on the piano.

"We go to a very beautiful re-

NSFA Will Discuss Large Court Plan

"Should President Roosevelt be allowed to increase the number of Supreme Court Justices?" will be the topic of the next N. S. F. A. forum which will be held next Tuesday night. Janice Norton is in charge of the program.

Coyle to Talk On Prosperity Planning

(Continued From Page One)

sineer by profession, has gone surveying into fields which the economists of only five years ago did not know existed. There is nothing partisan about him—one of the shrewdest thinkers of our time."

William Lincer, who, beside playing the viola, is the press agent for the group, explained that the quartet had been formed in 1931 by Jacques Gordon. He was enthusiastic about the concert tour which the quartet had just completed.

"We have come from a southwestern tour, which took in Fort Wayne, Indiana; Austin, Texas; Shelby, North Carolina; and many other places." During this tour the quartet returned to New York, where it gave three concerts in two days at the Town hall.

"My hobby is ping-pong," Mr. Lincer said smiling, his white teeth flashing, as he changed the subject, "and I like horses."

"Mr. Sackson," he said, waving his hand toward the youngest member of the quartet, who at the moment was adjusting his white tie, "loves fine dogs as a hobby."

The Russian 'cellist, Mr. Benditsky, the only foreign member of the group, studies philosophy during his leisure time.

"Oh," he explained, nodding toward Mr. Gordon, "devotes all his leisure moments to music."

"Would you like to know where we are going to spend our vacations?" he inquired, raising his heavy dark eyebrows, and nervously shifting his viola to a more secure position on the piano.

"We go to a very beautiful re-

Majority of Students Favor Peace Demonstration Plan

Widely Conducted Interview Reveals Opinion From Vigorous Approval to Extreme Criticism Held by Critics

By RUTH ATKINSON

Faculty and student opinions concerning the plans for a Peace Demonstration Day, as formulated on the Florida State campus and as offered for the consideration of 750 other colleges throughout the country, ranged from the most vigorous approval to the most extreme criticism.

However, the majority of the students interviewed seemed to favor the present plans for a Peace Demonstration Day.

A member of the faculty when approached on the question of peace day was very explicit. "I think that it would be a splendid thing for the college if every class were carried out intelligently and not emotionally. It should definitely be a matter of education and not babyhow."

Another member of the faculty stated she thought that if the demonstration were conducted as an educational day it would probably be of value in making the students conscious of the various methods as a means of settling disputes; and if the class discussions were handled well it might give the students some knowledge upon which to base their decisions of problems, and some foundation for future study."

There was no say that she questioned the fact as to whether or not the participants would have any immediate effects, but might well grow toward a longrange attitude. "I am inclined to think that some benefit to the students themselves will be derived. The cooperation in an activity that is of interest all over the world."

Another professor in expressing his idea of student activity concerning peace demonstration was more interest.

"The idea of a peace demonstration is, I think, a better idea than the anti-war strike under the present conditions," he said. "The strike should not be used until the situation is desperate enough to warrant extreme action. A strike is worth something only if the feeling is such that the students will not count the cost. I believe that a respectable number of students here are interested enough to make a demonstration worthwhile, and the interest is growing steadily."

"However," he continued, "I never will have faith in the true interest of the students until they show this faith by removing militarism from the schools. A beginning could be made here by the girls' refusing invitations to Military Ball. I am sure none of them feel that serious concerning their desire for peace." He also stated his belief that the attitude of ownership on the subject is of major importance.

One teacher was definitely in favor of the peace demonstration as a more effective method than the anti-war strike which is going to be used by various colleges. However, she stressed the fact that the peace demonstration must be preceded by a peace campaign, as the program should include the entire student body.

"It would be of no good whatever," she said, "if it reached only those students who are already interested."

Another professor stated that in her opinion anything that would analyze the factors which would lead to an understanding of national peace would be valuable.

"This peace demonstration can help towards that understanding," she said, "and the situation cannot be studied and discussed too much."

Another member of the faculty was not so optimistic, however, concerning the demonstration.

"I have seen student movements start off big before, and then not go places," he said, "and I believe them to be mostly a method of blowing off youthful enthusiasm."

"However," he continued, "I like to see the students interested in something worthwhile, and although some of the leaders are seriously considering the problem of peace, I believe that the majority of students know nothing about the real motive behind all the plans," he concluded.

In direct contrast to the opinion of this professor, a sophomore when approached on the subject, stated emphatically that she was in favor of the Peace Demonstration Day. She admitted that had favored the strike when subject of college participation first arisen on the campus but had changed her mind when she saw the points of the peace day program.

"Peace Day as planned is a catch-all," she said, "and the idea is splendid plan, I believe, will be big enough to satisfy all the students. The plans will include not only student discussions, which I give us the opportunity to adult advice, a parade which appeal to the spectator-like and demanded in the strike, and presentation of plays which appeal to the emotional class. A strike may well be misunderstood, while a peace day cannot be misunderstood."

On the other hand, a student who asked her opinion of peace demonstration plans, for her dignity for a moment and gave the question a thought offered her opinion that "Peace Day is a joke. It will practically pacifists are sincere men in wanting to work towards peace, but that the idea of such movement we will support," said.

"However, I would simply to point out that the program of Peace Day as Peace Day plan includes with the exception of the opening and all of peace program already suggested by the American Student Union. Within the last few years the has become synonomous with unofficial peace day on April," she continued, "and therefore predict, that unless a number isolated colleges will have heard of the ASU) respond Florida's plan, the plan will be effective on this campus. psychology of unity with other strained and already-recognized movement will be lacking."

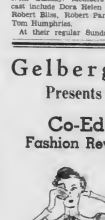
One junior who was approved declared that she was in favor the anti-war strike as a more effective method than Peace Day demonstration.

"I believe," she continued, the students would at least thinking concerning the peace while they were walking class, while they probably not attend peace day lecture all." She also believed that students would gain more from ract participation in a strike the passivity of an official peace day.

Another student in the class said, "I think that the will reach the majority of the dents through the different the problems which include a rade, class discussions, and

"I also believe," she continued, "that the education of students concerning peace will have a lasting effect than a strike that it will not cause such a commotion at present."

Of a group of freshmen questioned on the subject of a peace demonstration day, several refused to state an opinion due to the fact that they knew too little about the subject to come to an intelligent decision. One freshman, however, stated that she believed that the idea of a Peace Demonstration Day should be used unless it is on a national basis, as she does not believe would be effective if just scattered colleges followed out the plan. A number of other freshmen suggested of the demonstration day, but refused to offer either suggestions or criticisms.



A sophomore stated definitely that she thought no material good would be gained by any such demonstration, either peace day or strike.

"The opinion of the students in America will have no effect at all tention to the peace problem. I believe," she said, "girls should be interested in peace, because if the girls want they can influence the boys to do."

Gelberg's Presents

Co-Ed Fashion Revue

"Around the World in 24½ days!"

"IT WAS A BREATHLESS DASH," said Miss Dorothy Kilgallen, famous girl reporter, back at work (left) after finishing her assignment to circle the world by air in record-breaking time. (Right) Her exciting arrival at Newark Airport. "I snatched meals anywhere," she says, "ate all kinds of food. But Camels helped me keep my digestion tuned up. 'For digestion's sake—smoke Camels' meant a world of comfort to me. I'll have on them any time—for mildness and for that fine 'lift.' Camels set me right!"

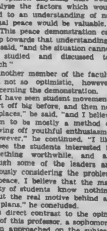
No. 1204—Four in one dress of Moriette silk printed paper taffeta with separate bolero jacket and separate skirt. This ensemble can be worn at four different occasions looking differently at each occasion.

Black, Navy and Brown.
Sizes 12 to 18.

Price $14.95

Gelberg's
Complete Store for Ladies
COLLEGE AVENUE

COSTLIER TOBACCOS
Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS—Turkish and Domestic—than any other popular brand.



"JACK OAKIE'S COLLEGE"
Full-hour gala show with Jack Oakie in person! Benny Goodman's "Swing" Band! Hollywood comedians and singing stars! Special college amateur talent every week! Tuesdays—9:30 pm E.S.T., 8:30 pm C.S.T., 7:30 pm M.S.T., 6:30 pm P.S.T., over WABC-Columbia Network.

"I GET MORE ENJOYMENT from Camels," says Arthur H. Walsh, Jr., College Class of '36. "I've found that Camels help offset the strain of long hours of study. Working out a tough assignment often can make me feel tense inside. So at mealtime, you'll see me enjoying my Camels." Yes, Camels speed up the flow of digestive fluids—increase alkalinity.

SHOOTING AN OIL-WELL with T.N.T. "My business makes me mighty careful about nerves and digestion," says B. C. Simpson. "Camels have what I like. They don't get on my nerves. And they put a heap more joy into eating."

FOR DIGESTION'S SAKE—SMOKE CAMELS

POWDER PUFF BEAUTY SHOP
Newest coiffures that become your personality. Haircut, Shampoo-Rinse and Wave . . . that's the formula for a new outlook on life. the best Spring tonic you can buy Make an appointment today.
108 S. Adams Phone 638

Sports Squints

By "FLIP" TURNER

Judging from comments coming in on the delegates, we imagine our trip to Texas on that physical education convention will be a—[illegible]ifying. The convention is to be co-educational, which makes the party sure a good beginning. And to say the least, the trip should be interesting.

The delegates from our school are attending the convention for the purpose of presenting syllabi of the modern dance.

Regrets and so forth are expressed to Mollie Parks, the fast and hard-hitting Chi Omega forward, who, disabled in the second game, was sincerely unable to play in the Odd-Even games.

Straw ratings, rambling dens, table parties, and refreshment stands were a few of the diversions offered as the programs were given by the Gym majors and minors. Especially clever was Ilgen Bond Dickenson, instructor in the department of physical education.

The various phases of fun took place in rooms of the different dormitories as the entertainment service.

Intermingled with Florida State's talent tenable players are the social amenities. One can tell them on Monday morning by the dancer expressions and manicures that stars wear the balls and bats and forth across the courts. A wash-'n-dry-wave of their hair after refreshing balls, nursing bumps that they made at balls, and making all sorts of comments about the ones they missed. Overheard on suburban grounds at last mutation of some of the star sports activities: "Couldn't seem to be confusion of the already perplexed players.

Kenning is the latest sport on the campus. Can they make it run the gym the other day two girls matched from the arms of a couple boy toy very forlorn [illegible] as they were on their way to watery wave, but at most modern [illegible] sethers are being used to raise long dogs in one of the off-campus houses, but the two casualties seem to be thriving under the bottle procedure.

In cooperation with the Tallahassee recreation bureau Betty Ireland Martin Weeks and Mabel Lesley refereed basketball games. They accompanied Mr. Ralph Carter and will go again next week. They referred games between Sophomore and Crawfordville and one in Carrabelle [illegible] for the experience.

Thirteen teams are entering the inter-mural archery, ping-pong and shuffleboard. The first game will be simple and double ping-pong Monday afternoon between Alpha Omicron Pi and the Seminan club and Alpha Chi Omega and Delta Zeta. Wednesday will be archery day. Scores for these events are to be furnished by each team.

Forty girls are enrolled in the first-floor leadership course held Tuesday and Thursday afternoons at 4:30 o'clock in the larix classroom of the gymnasium and led by the Tallahassee Scout director. In this class they go through the actual organization of planning a Scout patrol.

Juniors' Show Features Trip to Far Planet

(Continued From Page One)

ard, Jo Bunce; Janet Lockwood, Mary Jewett, Eleanor Bushnell, Mary Alice, Frances Slade, Dorothy Lee, Lorraine Orshin, Ann Lee; Martha Hogue, Phil Asher, Catherine Hogue, Ritchie Hanan, Ruth Fisher, Louise Fonsate, Marian Wynne, Jean Wynne, Martha Lee, Viola Brooks, Mary Brumbley, Ruth Atkinson, Sharon Brumbley, Jackie Gardner, Wiggins, and Dot Hill.

Running for Minstrel

Girls taking part as musicians are Carter Sanders, Jean Lee Bond, Sanchez, Marjorie Tullis, Jo Smith, Mary Jeanne McKay, Margaret Meister, Charlotte Veith, Margaret Tyler, (xylophone solo), Nancy Moore, (cornet solo), Mary Louise Strange ("companist"), Kathleen Grupper (accompanist), Frances Jane Mackey (organist), Betty Pemberton (song and dance), Ann Atkinson (banjo), Sharon Herbert (song), Patty Bellamy, Betty Bloodworth, and Nina Yacobian.

The chorus is composed of Margaret Courtie, Ellen McLeod, Genevieve Branan, Anita Leonard, Mildred Ewart, Mary Taylor Louise Bowery, and Sarah Page.

ADAMS STUDIO
119½ East College
"Photographs that Please"

Odds Conquer Evens In 1-0 Hockey Match

Lone Score Made in Last Half of See-Sawing Athletic Fray

By RUTH ATKINSON
and HAZEL ADAMS

The Odds scored a 1-0 victory over the Evens on the hockey field yesterday afternoon in a game which was marked by a fight for every inch of ground, and by the goal stands made by the Evens.

The lone score of the game was not made until the second half. Dianne Cook started the start toward the goal when Deane took a free hit. The ball was taken by Jewett and when she attempted to pass, Lytal intercepted and carried the ball down to within the driving circle where she passed to Kirby who drove the ball over the Even goal line.

After numerous exchanges in the first half neither team scored any great advantage, the Odds finally scoring in the second. Even territory when Beckem got control of the ball, dashed it on to Miller who carried it on down to the goal where it was stopped by Deane. Kirby passed to Smith. The Evens took the ball down to the 25 yard line in mid-field before the Odds once more started their drive, and this time when Makemson got the ball, passed to Beckins and took the ball down to the 10 yard line where she was stopped by Vaughn.

The play was evened up again when Moore took a long drive from mid-field to the circle in front of the field. The Evens were in front for a scrap and came up broken by Lytal. Thompson had regained the ball and passed to Hosier who in turn passed over the middle which brought the ball to a close.

Line-ups were as follows: Evens: Right wing-Moore, right inner-Deane, center forward-Jewett, left inner-Fisher, left wing-Allen, right fullback-Hosier, right halfback-Beckett-Rosser, right halfback-Daniels, right fullback-Jewett, left fullback-Rice, goalie-Rosser Smith.

Odds: Right wing-Miller, right inner-Deane, center-Dulle, left inner-Smith, left wing-Miller, left halfback-Beckins, center halfback-Vaughn, right halfback-Makemson, right fullback-Lytal, left fullback-Rice, goalie-Maxwell, and goalie-Ireland.

The Odd-Even games also represented the classes in the hockey series this year and due to the fact that there were not enough players out to make four complete teams.

The first of these games was played last Friday afternoon when the Evens defeated the Odds by a score of 1 to 0 in an unusually close match. The single score was made late in the last half after 25 minutes of exciting play which kept the ball in motion near mid-field the majority of the time. With neither team scoring any serious threats and with neither team able to hold the ball within the driving circle long enough to get any scoring position.

The line-ups were as follows: Evens: Left wing-McClain, left inner-Fisher, center forward-Thompson, right wing-Moore, right inner-Smith, left halfback-Stanbaugh, center halfback-Rosser, right halfback-Daniels, left fullback-Rice, right fullback-Jewett, and goalie-K. Smith.

Odds: Left wing-Miller, left inner-Kilian, center forward-Dulle, right wing-Wolcott, right inner-Deane, left halfback-Beckins, center halfback-Weeks, right halfback-Makemson, left fullback-Maxwell, right fullback-Lytal, and goalie-Ireland.

At the end of the second class hockey game the score was 6-0 after forty minutes of evenly matched play. Several scoring threats were made and during the first half both the Evens and the Odds managed to hit the ball across the goal, but both times were ruled out by the referee due to the fact that they were hit outside of the driving circle and were not hit again.

The first eight minutes of the game the Odds kept the ball in the Even end of the field when Moore broke up the play and took the ball into Odd territory. Two tries at goal were stopped by Miller. After an exchange near the Odd goal, Miller recovered the ball and carried it back into Even territory, finally sending it across the goal line. This goal was not counted since the ball was hit outside the driving circle.

The Evens retaliated with a sustained attack. Jewett carried the ball down the right side of the field and then passed to Smith, who drove the ball from outside the driving circle across the goal. This try ended any serious threats

Montgomery, Hurd To Attend Meeting

Miss Katherine W. Montgomery director of physical education, and Miss Eunice Hurd, instructor in physical education, department, will attend the meeting of the National Society of Directors of College Department, in New York during the month of April. Miss Montgomery will lead a panel discussion on "Training Education and Physical Education Programs."

Dance Groups Will Perform

Modern, Tap, Folk Types To Be Demonstrated On March First

A dance presentation arranged by Miss Nellie-Bond Dickinson will be one of the highlights of F. S. C. W. activities to be presented during the week of March 1-7.

The modern dance group will be the modern, tap, and folk dancing will be presented in the gymnasium at 4:30 p. m. on Monday, March 3. The dance groups have been working only one year and who have shown the marked progress in their work. The modern dances will include contributions by groups in the modern dancing class. Both the tap and folk dances will be contributed by the advance group will give the same dances they are planning to present at a dance recital to be presented in Tren later in the year. The program they will present is composed of the interpretative dances often are interesting from the standpoint that the dancers have taken an old form of dance and attempted through modern dancing to retain the old quality of the old forms of dance. This is an approach to the modern dance seldom used because of the difficulty of discovering the true old forms of dance.

The modern dance program to be presented during F. S. C. W. week furnishes somewhat of a background for Martha Graham, famous modern dance recital will be presented on April 23 as a feature of Artist Series.

John Martin's American Dancing, now in its second printing also is of interest to the layman who wants to enjoy modern dancing. Miss Dickinson announced recently. In American Dancing are chapters on the right and wrong way of looking at modern dancing, as well as a chapter about Martha Graham and Doris been substituted as eligible to standards of service for the editorship of the publications are: For the Flambeau: Dorothy Barclay, Mary Virginia Brooks, Evelyn Pollitzer, Arline Lockhart, Jane Gunn, Pearle Shepard, Sarah Straley, Elizabeth Turner, and Mary Massie; for the Datisff: Ermine Lawrence and Sarah Straley; for the Flastocoo: Anne Mizell, Mary Virginia Brooks, Evelyn Pollitzer, Mary Ellen Tiller and Elizabeth Turner.

Presidents, Editors To Start Elections

(Continued From Page One)

Students eligible for the position of business managers of the various publications include: For the Flambeau: Nan O'Shaughnessy to serve by either team, for although the ball was in play the whole length of the field most of the action was concentrated near mid-center, during the last half. At the end of the game the ball was in play in Even territory, and had just be [illegible] recovered by Rice of the Even team.

Line ups were as follows: Evens: Right wing-Moore, right inner-Thompson, left wing-McClain, left inner-Fisher, left-wing-Allen, left-wing-Lytal, left-half-Stanbaugh, center-half-Merryhew Rosser, right half-Daniels, right full-Jewett, left full-Rice, goalie-K. Smith, Odds: Right wing-Miller, right inner-Deane, center-Dulle, left inner-Killian, left wing-Miller, left halfback-Beckins, center-half-Weeks, right halfback-Makemson, right fullback-Lytal, left fullback-Maxwell, goalie-Ireland.

At the end of the second class hockey game the score was 6-0 after forty minutes of evenly matched play Several scoring threats were made and during the first half both the Evens and the Odds managed to hit the ball across the goal, but both times were ruled out by the referee due to the fact that they were hit outside of the driving circle and were not hit again.

The first eight minutes of the game the Odds kept the ball in the Even end of the field when Moore broke up the play and took the ball into Odd territory Two tries at goal were stopped by Miller. After an exchange near the Odd goal, Miller recovered the ball and carried it back into Even territory, finally sending it across the goal line. This goal was not counted since the ball was hit outside the driving circle.

The Evens retaliated with a sustained attack. Jewett carried the ball down the right side of the field and then passed to Smith, who drove the ball from outside the driving circle across the goal.

Soccer Score Wet Blankets Even Spirits

Final 8-1 Count Gives Odds Decisive Win In Annual Tilt.

By NANCY ROGERS

With a final score of 8-4 in the decisive battle played off yesterday afternoon, the Odds came out victorious over the Even soccer team after three hotly contested tilts. The game competing only as a class because of a lack of sufficient girls to make up the class teams, was played Friday to a 2-2 tie, and the second, also a class game, was fought on Tuesday to determine who the Odds defeating the Evens, 5-0.

Yesterday's battle cinched the victory for the Odds. With Hunt scoring the first goal after five minutes of play, the team rushed back for another attempted field goal, intercepted by Brown, Even goalie, who kicked the ball well into Odd territory. The Evens rallied toward the end of the first half, Perry kicked a goal during the last minute of play, leaving the score 2-2 at the end of the half.

Early in the second half the Evens carried the ball within three feet of the goal only to have it sent back by strong Odd kick outs, and carried on down the field for a second Odd goal by Anderson Three minutes later Corry scored a goal on a penalty. With six minutes left to play the Evens made a last attempt to sink another goal, leaving the score 5-4 in the Odd's favor. Already the Evens made only one the Odds, the team attempted to make this the deciding factor and point on a penalty kick. They made their final goal 2 seconds before the whistle blew, bringing the score to 8-4.

Many players playing defense for the Odds. Fay Corey playing offensive to the Odds and Polina West playing offensive for the Evens showed unusually fine technique and skill in all three games of this season.

Dated

Yesterday's line-ups were:

Evens:	Pos	Odds:
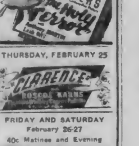
Polina West	f	Fay Corey
Louise Gehan	ro	Jackie Gates
Evelyn Perry	ri	Hunt
E. Fleischer	lo	Florence Gross



nessy, Jane Quinn, and Marguerite Brown for the Datsiff; Nell Calaway, Mary Ann Duffy Fisher, for the Flastocoo: Marjorie Horton, Sarah Nance, Sallie Burt Nunun and Margaret Stout.

STATE
FRIDAY AND SATURDAY
February 19-20
GRACE MOORE
in
"When You're in Love"
SUNDAY AND MONDAY
February 21-22

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 23

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 24

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 25

FRIDAY AND SATURDAY
February 26-27
40c Matinee and Evening

Running time 2 hours, 3 minutes

DUKE UNIVERSITY
SCHOOL OF NURSING
DURHAM, N. C.
The Diploma in Public Nurse is awarded after three years and the Degree of Bachelor of Science in Nursing for two additional years of approved collegiate work before or after the nursing course. The entrance requirements are unit in English, character and graduation from an acceptable high school; preference is given for one or more years of successful college work. The tuition is $100 per year which includes all cost of maintenance, uniforms, etc.
Catalogues and applications forms, which must be filed before August first for admission September [illegible], may be obtained from the Dean

Swimming Meet Planned For Freshmen Who Want Tournament Placements

A freshman swimming meet, will be held in the near future, the definite date of which will be announced soon.

Any member of the freshman class who had swimming as a part of her course last semester, or who is now a member of a swimming class is eligible to enter.

The purpose of the meet, which is a lead-up to the inter-class and intra-mural contests, is to determine the better swimmers who will participate in the tournaments of a water scope which will be held later in the year.

Among the events of the freshman swimming meet will be form swimming for speed, and diving. All freshmen who wish to enter the meet are asked to sign up on the aquatic bulletin in the lower floor of the gymnasium.

F. Waterhouse rt Sadie Anderson
Ruth Hollis lf M. E. Parker
Ruth Rogers lf Jean Gillete
Mary Pfeiffer ch Dot Mollar
Ann Brown rg Ruth Wilson
lg Mary Palmer
Eveo substitutions: Beckman for Fleischer; Fleischer for Beckman.

Odds substitutions: Beckman for Gross; Gross for Beckman.

The first game ended in a 2-2 tie was ta a most exciting class contest. Beginning with the kick-off by Corey of the Odds, fast play wavered back and forth, first in the Odd territory, then the Even. On the first play, the F ces were in possession of the ball until well with the driving circle, where they lost it to the Odds, only to recover it again for a penalty kick taken by Rogers. The kick failed, and a brisk scrimmage followed, ending in recovery of the ball for the Odds by Hunt, who carried it deep into Even territory, only to lose it to Waterhouse. The Evens managed to stay out of danger only a brief time; Gates of the Odds soon threatened their goal. Rogers took the ball from her, but lost it to

Continuedon Page Six

Students Find Gay Childish Play Painful In Great Age

Roller Skating Down Tallahassee Hills Too Often Ends in Unceremonious Descent to Hard, Unmerciful Concrete Pavements

With a thud another inmate of Florida State College for Women hits the sidewalk in one of the many and varied hectic attempts of the girls to amuse themselves—roller skating.

When some of the girls feel the need of recreation, they put on their skates and toil wearily to the top of a hill and coast hilariously down again to the bottom. That is if they don't meet with misfortune while in the act of blowing off excess steam. More often than not, unseen bumps appear in the sidewalk when it is too late for the unsuspecting girl to avoid it and she hits the ground accompanied by her own shrieks of consternation and amusement. But unclaunted, these devotees to the latest cult rise again in perfect unity on their way. Some, more unfortunate than others, break bones but still their spirits are not dampened.

But this is not the only hectic attempt of the girls to amuse themselves even if it is more strenuous. At times, when one enters a sorority house, girls are found in ludicrous positions in the act of playing hide-and-go-seek. With shushings and whisperings for implore you to be quiet and the game continues in full swing.

In the dormitories girls are found playing charades and rocking with gales of laughter. But more note they make, the more fun they have. Sometimes girls have a marvelously "hectic" time just yelling at the tops of their lungs and behaving like small children.

When things become especially dull and uneventful, several girls may get together, gather up a mirror, candle and sandwich and depart for the nearest graveyard in order to get a look at their intended husbands—according to superstition. This is especially nice for a dark night. One girl holds the candle over the head of another girl who is holding the mirror and eating the apple. At this moment the face of the boy who the girl is to marry will appear in the mirror. More often than not, before the experiment proceeds far, something will disturb the ghoulish scene and the girl will dissolve in terror. Just something else to tell the friends about.

Then there are the girls who go on shopping sprees. When things get to be too much for them, they gather their money together and descend on the town stores in a veritable storm of buying. They buy hats, evening dresses, street dresses, hats and what have you returning home broke.

Safety girls have been seen returning from town carrying dishes and coffee pots, tea pots and vacuum bottles with the utmost care. The forerunner of one of the most popular sports to originate on the campus. That before light flash snack with modern implements of war. Dubbed Cavagnero, Isabella Sands, Ruth Swisher, Janet Cook, Beth Deane, Viola Brooks, Betty Cadenhead, and Katherine Grupper, accompanist.

These are classes will be given by the dance group at a dance demonstration during F. S. C. W week.

A form of entertainment scorns and nothing seems to please. The picture show stops, she and forgetherself, go to sleep, laugh, cry, or just do nothing. Even the most hectic of the hectic amusement seekers is driven to this at times

Nine Students To Be Present At Convention

Physical Education Group Will Have National Assemblage

Nine students will accompany Miss Katherine Montgomery and Miss Nellie-Bond Dickinson to the Southern Association meeting, a branch of the National American Physical Education Association, which is to be held in Houston, Texas the first of March.

As the convention Miss Montgomery will give a lecture demonstration on "Valley Ball for High School Girls." Betty Cadlund, a member of the dance group will also talk.

Miss Dickinson will speak on "Pre-classic Form Approach to Modern Dance Composition," with the group of dancers demonstrating three of the pre-classic forms of dancing. The dances are: "Spring," "Fairy" and "Nature."

The trip is being planned so that students will see places of interest along the way. They plan to go by way of the Scenic Gulf Highway to the mouth of the Mississippi and then to New Orleans. Other plans include sight seeing in Mobile, Biloxi and Baton Rouge and the capitol of Louisiana.

Those girls who will represent Florida State college at the convention are: Mary Wolf, Dulois Cavagnero, Isabella Sands, Ruth Swisher, Janet Cook, Beth Deane, Viola Brooks, Betty Cadlund, and Katherine Grupper, accompanist.

These are classes will be given by the dance group at a dance demonstration during F. S. C. W week.

U. S. Senator Gerald P. Nye says:
"I enjoy the comfort a light smoke gives my throat"

"I have smoked Luckies off and on ever since my first term in the Senate 11 years ago, and I have always enjoyed their taste and the feeling of comfort and safety a light smoke gives my throat. I have done a great deal of public speaking, on the floor of the Senate, over the radio and at conferences. Necessarily this results in a strain on the voice. So naturally, in smoking, I have to think of my throat—and I have found that a light smoke is suitable to my throat."

HON. GERALD P. NYE
U. S. SENATOR FROM NORTH DAKOTA

THE FINEST TOBACCOS—
"THE CREAM OF THE CROP"

In a recent independent survey, an overwhelming majority of lawyers, doctors, lecturers, scientists, etc., who said they smoked cigarettes, expressed their personal preference for a light smoke.

Senator Nye's statement verifies the wisdom of this preference and so do leading artists of radio, stage, screen and opera, whose voices are their fortunes, and who choose Luckies, a light smoke. You, too, can have the throat protection of Luckies—a light smoke, free of certain harsh irritants removed by the exclusive process "It's Toasted". Luckies are gentle on your throat.

A Light Smoke
"It's Toasted"—Your Throat Protection
AGAINST IRRITATION—AGAINST COUGH

Copyright 1937, The American Tobacco Company

The Florida Flambeau

EDITORIAL STAFF

RAZEL BOWMAN ..... Editor
ELEANOR WILLIAMS ..... Associate Editor
MARTHA BAKER ..... Assistant Editor
ELIZABETH BLAND ..... Managing Editor
EVELYN FISHER ..... News Editor

Member National Scholastic Press association and Florida Intercollegiate Press association

DEPARTMENTS

Art, Sherry Glazier. Exchanges, Virginia Early Fantasies Artie Greer Lockhart and Helen Odell. Literary Sarah Beth Davis and Sarah Baker Chronicle News Editor Evelyn Fisher. Society, Mary Virginia Hall and Minnie Arline Barker. Sports, Special Reporting Allie Lee Lockhart Mary Lynn Massie. Sports Ella Virginia Brooks and Elizabeth Turner.

REPORTERS Razel Adams, Boyd, Attaberry, Dorothy Bailey, Mary Bell, Bennett, Bland, Bowman, Brigham, Brooks, Pereira Chisolm, Elizabeth Calvert Thomas Christen, Dorsey, Coarsey, Brooks, Conaway, Virginia Dale, Dorothy Dunn, Harriet Dunlap, Mary Dreher, Dorothy Dunn, Harriet Dunlap, Mary Dreher, Dorothy Dunn, Harriet Dunlap, Mary Dreher, Dorothy Dunn, Lore Kelly Ann Ladd Betty Lewis, Lois Lockwood, Anne Lockhart Mary Louise Baker Alma Massey, Mary Noble Alberta Patrick, Janet Pierce, Martha Parrish, Mary Pittman, Mary Ann Pittman, Sara Spalding, Elizabeth Stone, Mary Sullivan, Alma Warren, Frances Waterhouse

BUSINESS STAFF

LILLIE McCUTHEN ..... Business Manager
VON CONAWAY ..... Advertising Manager
MARGUERITE BROWN ..... Circulation Mgr.

Represented for National Advertising by NATIONAL ADVERTISING SERVICE INC. College Publishers Representative 20 W 40th St. New York City 420 Madison Ave. San Francisco 737 W Jackson Chicago 1 Boylston St. Boston Portland Seattle

Entered as second class mail matter January 30, 1925, the post office at Tallahassee, Fla. under act of congress of March 3 1879

Florida State College Owes a Debt

In twenty-seven years the physical features of this campus have changed completely, the handful of instructors has become a well-staffed faculty, hundreds of young Floridians have come and gone through the big front gates. During those twenty-seven years Edward Conradi has devoted himself to the job of making a first class institution of the Florida State College for Women.

We wish the very best for our president as he attains his sixty-eighth year. But as we congratulate him upon his achievement we must also congratulate Florida State college for having possessed in the deye of its infancy a man of the winning personality and mental integrity of President Conradi.

Political Pawn? No! Says Maryland University

The recent move of Dr. H. C. Byrd, president of the University of Maryland, to ask the legislature for an additional $2,322,145.34 from its general funds may set a precedent for other alert presidents of state schools to follow.

"If we get what we asked, it would take the University of Maryland out of politics and relieve us of the necessity of going to the legislature asking for more money year after year," Dr. Byrd explained to a Baltimore Sun reporter.

Further, "it would relieve anyone's mind of the suspicion that the university is going to grow rapaciously. It would give us an opportunity to plan education at long range, and spend our time developing educational projects instead of having to waste time in what might be termed political maneuvering."

It seems only just that a university should enjoy the position of planning "education at long range." If it must wait until public opinion through the voters' representatives, the legislature, sanctions a new educational project, our state university may find itself in the position of the monasteries during the Middle Ages.

We expect our state universities to initiate public opinion, not bow down to it.

"The Student Body" Has a Coming Out Party

One of the things that men fear most in the growth of a school from small college to university size is the loss of school spirit or appreciation for alma mater. As the school grows larger the opportunities for individual service decrease, leadership is concentrated in the hands of a few students, and these few determine what large majority of students shall become that unknown entity called "the student body."

Naturally the interest these people might have in school life becomes almost non-existent as far as service to the institution is concerned. Already, despite efforts to draw students into extra-curricular activities by creating more and better activities, the desire to participate is lacking for at least one-half of the school population.

Campus organizations, having long since come to accept the situation as final, make few attempts to contact the vast number of non-affiliated girls who might still be aweked to an interest in college activities if the proper contacts were once made.

For instance, in looking about for committee-members, general chairmen of student programs usually do one of two things: they select members from their sorority or own little clique or they pick girls who already have more work than they can attend to adequately. It seems to be a race to see how many campus positions can be foisted upon one girl, and should she have the common sense to refuse them, she immediately becomes one of the black sheep who "refuse to cooperate."

For several years a point system has been in operation upon the campus. Inadequate as it is, this mechanism has prevented girls from taking more than one large office in student affairs. Unfortunately it could have prevented several nervous breakdowns and failures in class work if it had also limited the number of minor offices and committee-memberships a student might hold.

The argument can be passed about that a girl is not fit to be a student leader if she does not know how to budget her time, how to select her activities. This is a fallacious idea as is proved by the fact that United Stetes presidents die from overwork, that the country's greatest executives have to retire occasionally for a six-month rest cure. A student may very easily be forced by a desire for progress in school projects to overload.

A simple solution is ready for the proper authorities if they wish to take advantage of it. This remedy will work in all three conditions, that is, that the point system is inadequate, a large percentage of the student body has no part in student affairs, shows no interest as a result, and that student officers have more than their share of campus responsibility.

The senate of the college government association should take some step toward putting the point system under observation immediately. We suggest a committee composed of three senate members, three members from students who hold no office on campus, and three faculty members, one of whom should be the director of personnel. The point system should be so revised that one girl would be allowed only one major office and only two to four minor offices (other as a committee-member or as an officer.

The work should not stop here, however. Senate should then make plans to furnish a list of students and their specific interests for the use of all campus organizations. This would be an inexpensive measure and would increase the chances of the unknown majority to participate in student affairs.

"Let Freedom Ring" Cries the Radio Each Monday

"Let Freedom Ring" will sound over our radios every Monday night at 10:30 o'clock on the WABC-Columbia network, we announce for the national office of education which will sponsor such an educational program, beginning next Monday night.

A series of dramatic sketches will be presented at that time to picture how each of our civil rights was written into the Bill of Rights after years, and in some cases, after centuries, of strife, bloodshed and bloodshed.

We would not ask for bloodshed, but we would ask how much effort we make today to maintain our civil rights. Our attitude of late has come to be, "I could not love liberty less, and I can't appreciate more."

We remind ourselves of Nevinson's lines: "For freedom, we know, is a thing that we have to conquer afresh for ourselves every day, like love; and we are always losing love, because, like liberty, we think we can now settle down and enjoy it without further struggle."

Perhaps some of the following dramatizations will make us more keenly aware of Nevinson's statement:

March 1—Trial by Jury
March 8—Freedom of Speech
March 15—Freedom of Press
March 22—Freedom of Assembly
March 29—Freedom of Petition
April 5—Freedom of Religion
April 12—Right of Suffrage
April 19—Women's and Children's Right
April 26—Patent Rights
May 3—Right of Habeas Corpus
May 10—Right of Freedom of Home
May 17—Right of Racial Equality

Reel Service to the college is still possible for organizations like sophomore council whose members, it would seem, are not adverse to putting physical effort into their service projects. The council is to be commended for improving the general looks of the campus by cleaning up the fountain on the administration building lawn.

Spirit of the Week . . . . . By Glazier

This Week

By CLOTILDE O'ROURKE

Debates in Congress this week on President Roosevelt's proposals drastically rearrange the Supreme Court personnel is causing one of the most spectacular legislative battles of recent years.

There is a strong opposition bloc in the House but the real fight on the reorganization plan is in the Senate. On Wednesday, Senator Walter George, Democrat of Georgia, added his name to the opposition group. This former now numbers thirty, while twenty-nine senators have spoken in favor of the proposal to empower Roosevelt to name a new justice for each of the six present justices over seventy who decline to retire.

The bill providing for the retirement of Supreme Court justices over seventy with full pay has passed the House. Borah is the only dissenter in the Senate concerning its acceptance there.

Letters raining down upon the White House reveal that the country is "two to one in favor of reorganization." The opposition, which includes former Nevada Senator Key Pittman is a move to "pack the bench" and destroy the independent status of the court as a branch of the government.

More Violent and unreasonable are those who state that it is a step toward dictatorship and "a threat to our liberties."

Three senators spoke to radio this week in an attempt to line up popular sentiment in favor of the plan. One was Senator Minton of Indiana who declared the balance of government had been thrown "woefully out of kilter" by five of the present justices. Others who made radio talks were Senator McAdoo of California and Senator Byrnes of South Carolina.

Trans-Atlantic air mail on regular schedule made a step forward this week with a recommendation from the House for a $750,000 appropriation to be set aside for an ocean mail contract.

The Post Office department has previously announced that it expects the first planes to be flying the route by November of this year. Pan-American Airways has already reached a reciprocal agreement with British Imperial Airways for bases in Bermuda, Nova Scotia, Newfoundland and Ireland. The Newfoundland - Ireland route, which is a distance of 2,416 miles, will be used in the summer months and the Bermuda-Azores route, 4,891 miles, in winter. Postage will cost patrons about $1.80 cents for a half ounce letter and so on upward according to the weight of the letter.

A recent survey in twenty-countries made by the International Labor Office of Business Professional Women shows that few women hold high positions in the field of government. More revealing is the fact that the situation is due to lack of ability or opportunity but to lack of interest. In the main, the compilations show that women the world over have made effectual use of the ballot. However, they show little desire for political preferment.

Norway is an example. The attitude toward women in the Scandinavian countries is notably liberal. Yet, although Norwegian women have had the ballot since 1913, there have never been more than three women at one time in a Parliament of 150 members until 1931 when Norway or America have a better showing. There are six women in the Parliament of Holland, nine in the British Parliament, two in the Parliament of Canada, one woman senator and five women representatives in the Congress of the United States.

Czechoslovakia heads the list with five women senators and nine representatives. Percentages of women voters are high.

While few British women hold Parliament posts there are 80,000 in the civil service and a woman is governor of the British Broadcasting Corporation.

University Editorials . . . .

And mooning back to our own campus and the controversy now so entertaining it many of the more thoughtful students see bring to your attention the comment of the Rollins Sandspur in reaction Student Union and its ideas: MORE BURNING QUESTIONS

The American Student Union, which met recently in Chicago, "mapped a militant program of action" for the coming year—and we think it's a honey.

The union pledged at its convention unanimous support of an April peace strike against war and war preparations, support of the October pledge vow to support an April peace strike against war and war preparations, support of the October pledge vow to support any war which the United States may become involved in and support for the abolition of the R. O. T. C. Then enunciated a "peace at any price program." They attacked war from every angle. They assailed immunerable "comprehensive campaigns," planned "militant extreme efforts" to secure peace—and then came absurdity.

The convention, after listening to a speech by Eugenio Imaz, young Spanish student, attacked President Roosevelt's neutrality proposal, "pointing out that such a measure was actually a blow at the democratically - elected Spanish government, and an aid to the fascist forces in Spain." Gone were ideas of peace—for the United States be drawn into war, but never let the hope of peace interfere with plans for aiding Spanish democracy. We wonder what would have been the result had the Spanish student been a fascist—our guess is that sentiment would have gone the other way, and the slogan would have been "fascism forever."

Influenced again by an address by Norman L. Lewis, leader of the Committee for Industrial Organization, more than fifty delegates at the convention acted as fire o'clock one morning and marched in front of the Atlantic Steel Corporation. Lewis stressed cooperation between employer and labor, but it is doubtful whether he anticipated such violent support—especially for which he might be meddling.

The entire resolution stated—not in so many words perhaps, but in essence—that the American Student Union would, during the coming year, force "freedom of expression upon every student in America, and upon every university administration. They want to make the American college campus a "closed shop," to make university officials accept "curriculum reforms" whether they like it or not, and to stifle all attempts at criticism of "revolutionary groups." All this is done in the name of "freedom of expression for faculty and students." In other words, the American Student Union declares it would be free to do anything it likes, but it does not wants them to express, and no more—individual thinking, unless it is radical, must go. For our part, we'd rather be "stifled" and be allowed to do and say what we please.

Ignoring entirely the fact that racial equality in the South is impossible if the social structure is to remain intact, the assembly composed largely of students who never saw the South, vigorously

Continued on Page Six

Fur Flies Concerning Supreme Court Change

Collegiate Comebacks

With all the men gone—those who so successfully improved the landscape on our campus for just a little while—we've fallen back into our usual slump of greasy tones and bendy-ec hair. To make the week complete comes a telegram from the boy-friend who has to work this week-end, so we say life is futile and:

Of all sad words of tongue and pen,
The saddest are these; "Can't make it this week-end."

* * * *

From the Johnsonian we learn that a sophomore at Biddle University, Cecil Earl Radford received a letter from Robert Taylor explaining that he would be unable to accept her invitation to attend her Cotillion Club dance since he was working on a picture. Following this, ex-King Edward will no doubt have to turn down numerous invitations to attend the prom here.

* * * *

The Blue Stocking observes that students danced so hard during the Charleston rage ten years ago that Indiana university officials were forced to put rubber tips on the student building for fear the hoofers would shake down the structure. We can sympathize with the authorities. One of our friends has a would-be Eleanor Powell living above her, who going through her daily routines, would force anyone to join an anti-lerpsichorean society.

* * * *

Also from the Blue Stocking we take the following:

I've never met a guy like him.
So sweet and yet so cold.
Either he's a gentleman
Or else I'm getting old.

* * * *

In the Auburn Plainsman we read that Professor Arthur Amiel Metcalf, of Michigan State Normal college, was once a con-puncher. He is now professor of Latin, no doubt, who recognizes the bull when he sees it on exam papers.

* * * *

Looking through the Loan-O we discover that more than 100,000 cases of tuna are canned annually in Hawaii. We don't can tuna here in Florida, but we have been told that such a process does occur at times particularly at this season of the year.

* * * *

The Loan-O also tells us that one of the rooms in a house at Wrens, Ga., is papered with canceled postage stamps. Right there, if any friends have been treating us lately we couldn't even paper an eye-cup with said cancelled stamps.

* * * *

"If you sleep on the floor, you can't fall out of bed," says Professor W. T. Smith of the University of Chicago. A professor makes such an inane statement and it gets published. If a student were to have the same one, we'll wager he'd be put in a psychopathic ward under close observation. It just only goes to show. . . . .

* * * *

When women graduates of Grinnell College marry, their husbands' names are recorded in the Columns. Statistics released from the alumni office show that only one divorce has occurred since 1893. Don't be worked up, girls. Just notice that they very carefully conceal the number of marriages. Evidently they haven't had much better luck than we.

* * * *

The best definition of the week comes from the Jewish Advocate: Lex—the delusion that one man differs from another.

Magazine Jotting

BY SARAH SEALEY
and
SARAH BETH DAVIS

The End of Socialism in Russia By Max Eastman

"To my mind there is not a hope left for classless society in present-day Russia," writes Mr. Max Eastman in the February Harper's. Inside of ten years, barring revolutionary changes, the Soviet Union will be just as reactionary as any country which has emerged from feudalism."

Since Lenin's death, ideology, a term of contempt adopted by Karl Marx from Napoleon Bonaparte which means the use of loose-limb ideas, has prevailed in the ruling circles of the controlled press of Soviet Russia to the practical exclusion of scientific straight-thinking about society and politics. The first reactionary decrees are being issued in the theory of a complete triumph of socialism in the political and economic spheres, and examples that what is oppressive in a capitalistic society is progressive under socialism that what is tyranny here is freedom there, that what is the decree to which critical thinking should submit has been supplanted by ideology and sanctified by crude deception.

No, a shadow is left of the communism heralded for a revolutionary policy and now put temper upon the promises of love of country patriotism. An absolute and final communism reign of freedom, justice and truth is the reference upon all questions relative to human family relations. Little more than a mockery is left of equalitarianism, woman's freedom and family, and the Soviet government is forced to stand in most vital relation to property rights and the future.

The abandonment of Lenin's policy of world international has been followed by the reorganization of the army on the basis of the Bolshevik of the Tsarist regime, the restoration of the titles ranks, and privileges of officers, the revival of the uniforms and special regalia of the Cossack troops. It has been followed by the decree to threaten "escape over the border" as high treason, punishable by death and confiscation of all property. A soldier of the Red army or the adult members of his family are deprived of citizenship and exiled for five years to a remote region. Children are imprisoned for from five to ten years with confiscation of their property.

Harshly an advanced capitalist country can be found where the difference in workers' wages is as great as at present in Russia. Warm the privileged layers of the working class receive twenty times higher than those of the lowest paid layers. The specialists are paid eighty to one hundred times as much as the unskilled workers. This along with a good deal other conditions, concludes Mr. Eastman, proves that the experiment in socialism in Russia is at an end.—S. D.

* * * *

Our New Islands Currently History

In the midst of the twentieth century United States has unexpectedly entered the business of acquisition and colonization. has come into possession of three new island groups lands, according to an article by William Herbert Hobbs in the February Current History. The three small islands, Jarvis, Howland and Baker, are on the equator very near the meridian of the 180th.

All three were discovered early in the nineteenth century and were claimed by both Great Britain and the United States but were permanently annexed by the latter in 1935. Jarvis's action became known in instantaneous fashion, later, quite a few days elapsed; Britain and Japan were protests registered.

Colonists for the new territory were by the Executive Council of Commerce from those American citizens living in Hawaii as a part of Polynesian descent. Four young men with good records in a Honolulu public high school were taken to each island. Their activities thus far have been concerned with erecting a radio station on each island and broadcasting communication, attempting to start vegetable farms and getting rid of the rats that have infested the islands.

The possession of these tiny islands is said to mark from the standpoint both of possible airplane lines and of protecting American interests in the Pacific. The author predicts that within a few years Pacific air transportation will be materially benefited by these new safe stopping places and more economical than sea planes. With this change, Jarvis, Howland and Baker will become important air bases, similar to that part of the Pacific where they are most needed.—E. S.

* * * *

Keep Your Convicts By Christopher Rollman

A direct indictment of our American prison system on the grounds of cruelty to the prisoner's initiative, pride, decency, and respect is made in the month's Forum in a business man writing under a pseudonym of independent employer, he says, cannot understand the responsibility for setting that an example "does stealing." It is the matter practically if it has fifteen him or nothing out other.

"I carried over 1,000 men," says the author, "and there isn't an ex-convict among them. I will not hire a man who has been in an American penitentiary and I do not care whose endorsements is behind him. . . . I learn that he has served a certain number of years in the packed, unhealthy plotting, hostile atmosphere of the pen, then I know that I do not want him in my shop. . . . I am too much

Continued on Page Six

The Social Week

Stardust Note To Feature Kappa Delta Formal Dance

Blue drapes, silver stars, crescents, and blue lighting will be combined to give a hazy atmosphere to the annual Kappa Delta formal dance which will carry out a Stardust theme this year. The affair will be held in the chapter house at 8 o'clock tomorrow night.

Throughout the rooms of the lower floor subdued lighting will be accentuated by blue drapery along the walls and over the doors and windows. Silver stars and blue crescents will be suspended from the ceiling. The punch bowl will be arranged on a large taffy-moon with the girl pouring being dressed as the "lady of the moon."

Guests Are Invited

Among the guests invited are Lester Caldwell, Thomas Harris, Jerry Sauer, Jerry Neil Mc-Miller, Franklin McCormick, Raymond Carballido, Monroe Baisden, Billy Chafin, Johnson Rodriguez, Oscar Davis, Billy Gunter, F. G. Byrd, Chaddie Andrews, Boyd Martin, Jackson Locan, Curry Stephenson, Francis Barnes, Julian Lane, Paul Brown, A. C. Cobb, Jess Ferrill, Charlie Lee, Bob Mercer, Dorothy Mc-Lean, Helen Ballenger, Jo Bonson, Sue Whitaker, Grace Whitaker, Lucy Jackson, Anne Mitchell, Erma Engle, Made Glenn, Jean Baughman, Lois Heller, Sara Thigman, Jane Crook, Jers Crook, Doug Dabney, Nell Robey Webb.

Frances LaMotte, Mae Anderson, Mary Jane Baillie, Petrea Callahan, Beauford Thrower, Barbara Moore, Dee Carroll, Martha Edwards, Lucrelle Patterson, Janet Lockwood, Becky Ashton, Virginia LaMotte, Caroline Edwards, Jeanetta Litchgi, Martha Ballenger, Peggy Ayala, Emma Kiebaih, Ina Margaret Robinson, Hilma Young, Jeanne Webber, June Quinsa, Bunny Turnbull, Vonella McCobby, Martha Van Brunt, Clifton Van Brunt, Lavier Voss, Harriet Kent, Helen Murphy, Martha Sue, and Anita Peak.

Annual Formal Dance Given by Sorority On Valentine Eve

Red hearts edged with white paper lace featured the Valentine decorations of the Delta Phi Epsilon formal dance which was held in the chapter house last week-end.

Punch and red candy hearts were served from a sully-decorated improvised bar. The dances were made in the shape of Valentines.

Those that left included Art Shandloss, Bob Levin, Lenny Greenbaht, Sidney Mendelson, Jack Hyman, Roy Benjamin, Buddy Benjamin, Louis Sneiman, Julius Goldberg, Irving Schiss and Lou Reinberg.

Sponsors for this affair were, Margaret Fisher, Edna Feinbery, Harriet Tobin, Florence Trauhih, Dorothy Benjamin, Rose Sandrack, Connie Lee, Judith Wilensky, Geraldine Rosenberg, Rose Levin, Edith Horowitz, Hannah Bisco w, Margaret Benjamin, Muriel Black, Pat Mac n, Rosalyn Silverberg, Alice Lippman, Kathryn Kaas, Rose Lee Feigenbaum, Rosalie Feinberg, Lillian Fisel, Frances Gold, Jeanette Kromenoff, Jeanette Lee, Mildred Sierksee, Marjet Tepper, Clara Trauhin, and Shirlie Kentz.

Grapevine Telegraph Changes Valentine's Day to Birthday

Miss Nellie Reed Dickinson was guest at a Valentine party last week at which birthday greetings came instead of Valentines. Directing the much decorated table drew many conclusions and wished her many happy returns. Miss Miss Dickinson accepted calmly but when a distinguished visitor of the dining-room introduced himself and offered his best. it was too much.

Miss Dickinson and her party went to the gym in hopes that the well wishers would be elsewhere but the grapevine system had done its work and she was again congratulated profusely. After a time she hereif began to wonder and finally decided to go home as the coast seemed clear.

As she got to the house she found her friends than it was over for the evening and that there would be no more greetings until next month when she could accepted them without a pang.

Then she went into the house and had almost forgotten the incident as the evening when the doorbell rang. It was a messenger with a package. She opened it and found a 10 pound box of candy. It was a box of candy and there was a card attached, a "Birthday Greetings to Miss Dickinson."

That night Miss Dickenson made a resolution never to deceive her public again, no matter how humorous it might seem at the moment.

Three Hundred Students Are Seen on Honor List

(Continued From Page One)

Ford, Mary Belle Ford, Frances Ford, Eleanor Hamilton Freer.

Mary Jane Gale, Louise Gehan, Doris Gentry, Mary Kathryn Gibson, Rita Lamis Gillaylen, Evelyn Gladney, Lora Glen Gray, Esther Goodwin, Betty Ann Graham, Katherine Graham, Ellen Green, Kathryn Grupps, Rose Shirley Guito, Mrs. Irene Gunn, Patricia Hamilton, Rosemary Haskell Hamly, Lillian Hayes, Mary Hazelwood Virginia Hill, Mildred E. Hill, Winifred S. Hill, Mary Ann Hill, Margaret Hinckley, Nancy Trotter Horney, Bella Eleanor Horseman, Elmer Virginia Horschel, Marjorie Durr Horton, Sarah Frances Howell, Ruth Howard, Martha Mae Hyer, Mary Eleanor Hutchison, Lila Ivey.

Henrietta Jacoby, Annie Jenkins, Marjorie Jessup, Mary Burnes Jetton, Janet Jewell, Elizabeth Jinks, Louise Dudley Johnson, Alice Wellis Jones, Ethel O. Jones, Jamie Louise Jones, Margery Eunice Jones, Harriet Kent, Gene Charlotte Kerns, Dorothy Kilgore, Mary Ruth Kimbrough, Mary Josephine Kloeppel, Elizabeth Louise Knapp, Elizabeth Kent, Bunnie Marie Lasche, Marina Lastra, Dawn Catharine Latham, Emmie Lawrence, Marie Lila Lee, Little Alma Lester, Martha Jackson Lester, Frances Lewis, Mary Josephine Lippincott, Clara Belle Lipsey, Arlene Gray Lockhart, Mary Virginia Lopez.

Rosemary McDonald, Mary Gertrude McGonagle, Grace Hiendenberg of the Kappa Alpha Theta sorority Wednesday afternoon, at which Dr. Raymond Bellamy spoke on religion.

The Theta Upsilon sorority entertained the patrons and patronesses of the sorority with a buffet supper Friday night. Members and pledges who were present included Anne Donnell, Frances Ellis, Lorraine Glyer, Jane Hodges, Mary Louise Hornsby, Mary Hughes, Elizabeth Leach, Margaret Neff, Olivia Sorensen, Gertrude Tomkies, Valeria Hunt, Eunice Moe, Nancy Rogers, and Agnes Schopke.

Informal Parties

Pledges of the Sigma Kappa sorority entertained the active members with an informal party Sunday night. During the evening skits were given and refreshments served.

An informal after dinner coffee was given by the pledges of Delta Zeta sorority Sunday night. Chapter members and friends were entertained with a series of skits.

On the refreshment committee were Kitty Patterson and Tulip Davis. Invitations were issued by Jean La Grande and Charlotte Cowart, and on the entertainment committee were Libby Compton and Julia Ramsay.

A tea honoring friends will be given by the Beta Phi Alpha sorority Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Scott, house mother of the Delta Delta Delta sorority entertained with an after-dinner coffee Tuesday night in the chapter house honoring her mother, Mrs. George Glenn, and Mrs. William Jenkins, Mrs. W. D. Senate, Mrs. Park Nicholson, and Mrs. Lawrence Murray, who are visiting here. Friends and members of other campus sororities were among those invited to attend.

Phi Alpha Theta Plans Pledging of Two Girls

Two new members will be added to the Phi Alpha Theta, national history honorary on this campus next Monday when Mary Emily Parker, assistant in the department Cameron, senior, will be pledged at the home of Dr. Caroll Mc-Donagh, sponsor.

Initiation will be held Wednesday at 5 o'clock and will be followed by a dinner at the Three Torches.

Walker, Helen Ruth Walde, Doris Marie Walker, Edna Louise Warren, Frances Watchorn, Lolly Watrous, Ruth Esther Weber, Petricia Weet, Margaret Wheeler, Grace Whitaker, Lucille Williams, Mildred Ida White, Frank Tarbox Willman, Lucille Williams, Martha Gray Wilson, Grace Winberly, Eleanor Bettie Young, Marie Adele Zacharias.

Dr. Conrad's Birthday Celebrated With Party

Celebration of Dr. Conrad's birthday at his home, for all students, immediately following dinner.

Wednesday

Dr. David Cushman Coyle, lecture, "Planning for Prosperity," Augusta Conrad theater, 7:45 p. m.

Nine Students Tapped By Chi Delta Phi For Literary Achievement

Because of their outstanding literary achievements, nine students were tapped this week by Chi Delta Phi, national literary. All of them have done notable work on the Flambeau or in the Data[illegible] within the past few months. Those who received bids include Mavis McMillian, Mary Ann Hall, Dorothy Shepard, Hazel Bowman, Evelyn Fisher, Martha Baker, Mrs. Edna Burbank, Phyllis Bowden and Ann Jolfra.

Chi Delta Phi fosters the literary interests of the campus and its members are expected to contribute to the college newspaper and the college magazine. They also have public meetings with noted authors, and discuss the literary work of other colleges.

A senior, Catherine Levy, is president of the chapter, and Nellie Lamar secretary. Faculty members are Elizabeth Becknell, Emma Lou Thornbrough, Caroll O'Rourke, and Daisy Parker. Miss Hazel Stevenson is the faculty sponsor.

Miss Nell Reed Dickinson was guest at a Valentine party last week at which birthday greetings came instead of Valentines. Directing the much decorated table drew many conclusions and wished her many happy returns. Miss Miss Dickinson accepted calmly but when a distinguished visitor of the dining-room introduced himself and offered his best. it was too much.

Miss Dickinson and her party went to the gym in hopes that the well wishers would be elsewhere but the grapevine system had done its work and she was again congratulated profusely. After a time she hereif began to wonder and finally decided to go home as the coast seemed clear.

As she got to the house she found her friends than it was over for the evening and that there would be no more greetings until next month when she could accepted them without a pang.

Then she went into the house and had almost forgotten the incident as the evening when the doorbell rang. It was a messenger with a package. She opened it and found a 10 pound box of candy. It was a box of candy and there was a card attached, a "Birthday Greetings to Miss Dickinson."

That night Miss Dickenson made a resolution never to deceive her public again, no matter how humorous it might seem at the moment.

Three Hundred Students Are Seen on Honor List

(Continued From Page One)

Ford, Mary Belle Ford, Frances Ford, Eleanor Hamilton Freer.

Mary Jane Gale, Louise Gehan, Doris Gentry, Mary Kathryn Gibson, Rita Lamis Gillaylen, Evelyn Gladney, Lora Glen Gray, Esther Goodwin, Betty Ann Graham, Katherine Graham, Ellen Green, Kathryn Grupps, Rose Shirley Guito, Mrs. Irene Gunn, Patricia Hamilton, Rosemary Haskell Hamly, Lillian Hayes, Mary Hazelwood Virginia Hill, Mildred E. Hill, Winifred S. Hill, Mary Ann Hill, Margaret Hinckley, Nancy Trotter Horney, Bella Eleanor Horseman, Elmer Virginia Horschel, Marjorie Durr Horton, Sarah Frances Howell, Ruth Howard, Martha Mae Hyer, Mary Eleanor Hutchison, Lila Ivey.

Henrietta Jacoby, Annie Jenkins, Marjorie Jessup, Mary Burnes Jetton, Janet Jewell, Elizabeth Jinks, Louise Dudley Johnson, Alice Wellis Jones, Ethel O. Jones, Jamie Louise Jones, Margery Eunice Jones, Harriet Kent, Gene Charlotte Kerns, Dorothy Kilgore, Mary Ruth Kimbrough, Mary Josephine Kloeppel, Elizabeth Louise Knapp, Elizabeth Kent, Bunnie Marie Lasche, Marina Lastra, Dawn Catharine Latham, Emmie Lawrence, Marie Lila Lee, Little Alma Lester, Martha Jackson Lester, Frances Lewis, Mary Josephine Lippincott, Clara Belle Lipsey, Arlene Gray Lockhart, Mary Virginia Lopez.

Rosemary McDonald, Mary Gertrude McGonagle, Grace Hiendenberg of the Kappa Alpha Theta sorority Wednesday afternoon, at which Dr. Raymond Bellamy spoke on religion.

The Theta Upsilon sorority entertained the patrons and patronesses of the sorority with a buffet supper Friday night. Members and pledges who were present included Anne Donnell, Frances Ellis, Lorraine Glyer, Jane Hodges, Mary Louise Hornsby, Mary Hughes, Elizabeth Leach, Margaret Neff, Olivia Sorensen, Gertrude Tomkies, Valeria Hunt, Eunice Moe, Nancy Rogers, and Agnes Schopke.

Informal Parties

Pledges of the Sigma Kappa sorority entertained the active members with an informal party Sunday night. During the evening skits were given and refreshments served.

An informal after dinner coffee was given by the pledges of Delta Zeta sorority Sunday night. Chapter members and friends were entertained with a series of skits.

On the refreshment committee were Kitty Patterson and Tulip Davis. Invitations were issued by Jean La Grande and Charlotte Cowart, and on the entertainment committee were Libby Compton and Julia Ramsay.

A tea honoring friends will be given by the Beta Phi Alpha sorority Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Scott, house mother of the Delta Delta Delta sorority entertained with an after-dinner coffee Tuesday night in the chapter house honoring her mother, Mrs. George Glenn, and Mrs. William Jenkins, Mrs. W. D. Senate, Mrs. Park Nicholson, and Mrs. Lawrence Murray, who are visiting here. Friends and members of other campus sororities were among those invited to attend.

Phi Alpha Theta Plans Pledging of Two Girls

Two new members will be added to the Phi Alpha Theta, national history honorary on this campus next Monday when Mary Emily Parker, assistant in the department Cameron, senior, will be pledged at the home of Dr. Caroll Mc-Donagh, sponsor.

Initiation will be held Wednesday at 5 o'clock and will be followed by a dinner at the Three Torches.

VARIED SOCIAL EVENTS ON CALENDAR OF ENTERTAINMENTS FOR SORORITIES

Weekly activities of the various sororities include a host of informal teas, coffees, and parties, honoring friends, faculty members and members of the sororities.

A spaghetti supper for the sisters and pledges of the Alpha Chi Omega sorority will be given at the chapter house tonight. The sorority members will also be hostesses at a bridge party honoring rushees Saturday night, at which time several skits will be presented.

Tonight chapter members and pledges of Alpha Gamma Delta will have an after-dinner coffee in honor of friends.

The Alpha Omicron Pi sorority will have a tea for faculty members, rushees, and friends Sunday afternoon from 4 until 6 o'clock in the chapter house.

A buffet supper will be given by the Alpha Xi Delta sorority Sunday afternoon from 6:30 to 8:00 o'clock. The weekly informal party for rushees and friends will follow the supper hour.

Kid Party

Dot Boston and Frances Lingle entertained members and pledges of the Zeta Tau Alpha sorority at the chapter house Tuesday night with a valentine kid party.

The house was decorated with red and white streamers and paper hearts. Ring around the rose, pinning the arrow on the heart, and other games were played. Refreshments consisted of cake, tea, and heart shaped mints.

The second of a series of cultural teas was given by the mem-

[illegible] Elizabeth Ranson, Elsie Renfroe, Mary Ola Reynolds, Predricca Robbins, Eileen Robinson, Mary Kathleen Robinson, Mabel Rogers, Mary Ruth Rogers, Alice Rogers, Ruth Fisher Rosen, Mercyday Rosser, Jmulia Rosser, Ruth Rubin, Ruth Sanders, Virginia Lee Sanders, Dorothy Durand, Dana Isabelle Sands, Dorothy Durand, Hazel Sangster, Mrs Ellen S Savage, Margaret Schmidt, Virginia Schneider, Shirley Screven, Sarah DuPont Seley, Marie Lucie Shaffer, Mary Ann Shepard, Virginia Sigman, Lillian Simmons, Marguerite Sizemore, Dr. Grace Slade, Dorothy W Smith, Elizabeth Smith, Marcia Wallace Smith, Edna Smith, Pauline Spencer, Agnes Hill Stigens, Gladys Silvester, Helen Stonecipher, Margaret Stout, Marianna Strand, Mary Elizabeth Sutley, Marie Swilley.

Lynette Thompson, Louise Thrasher, Mary Ellen Tiller, Marjorie Tilla, Dorothy Townsend, Julia Trammell, Beth Trimble, Edith Wilms Underhill, Julia K Vanderlyn, Mary Madine Vanpoorvelen, Linton Vitz, Margaret Rae Voght, Anna Marie Von Dohlen, Marian Wakefield, Holly Maude Walker, Helen Ruth Walde, Doris Marie Walker, Edna Louise Warren, Frances Watchorn, Lolly Watrous, Ruth Esther Weber, Petricia Weet, Margaret Wheeler, Grace Whitaker, Lucille Williams, Mildred Ida White, Frank Tarbox Willman, Lucille Williams, Martha Gray Wilson, Grace Winberly, Eleanor Bettie Young, Marie Adele Zacharias.

Prominent Educator Honored at Dinner By Dr. Heinlein

Dr. Grace Langdon, Washington, D. C., specialist in parent education and nursery schools, and professor of child care and training at Columbia university, was guest of honor at a dinner party given Monday night by Dr. Julia Hill Heinlein, who is in charge of the nursery school here.

Dr. Langdon, with Mrs. Hallne Spillman and Miss Nye Griffiths, state supervisors of nursery schools, and Mrs. W. S. Cecil, state supervisor of parent education, is making an official tour of nursery schools in Florida.

Those attending the dinner were President Edward Conradi, Mr. Edwin Ackerman, husband of Dr. Langdon, Miss Louise Conradi, Dr. Ruth Conner, Mrs. Spillman, Mrs. Coxey, Miss Griffiths, Dr. Langdon, and Mrs. Paul Pinner, Miss Fern Bean, Dr. Sarah Parker White, Dr. Katherine Abbey, Dr. Jennie Tilt, Miss Julia Venable, Dr. Anna Forbes Liddell, Mr. and Mrs. Heinlein, Miss Irene Collegs Park. Invited guests, besides members of the dinner party also included the college advisory council and the college supervisory committee of the nursery school. They were: Dean and Mrs. William Dodd, Dean Margaret Sanders, Dean Nathaniel Kelley, Dr. and Mrs. Paul Pinner, Miss Fern Bean, Dr. Sarah Parker White, Dr. Katherine Abbey, Dr. Jennie Tilt, Miss Julia Venable, Dr. Anna Forbes Liddell, Mr. and Mrs. Heinlein and Mrs. Stephen Sterk, Miss Myrtis Lee, Mr. J. W. Heil of Baltimore.

Dinner Meeting Held By AAUP Yesterday

The American Association of University Professors had a dinner meeting at the Three Torches last night at which Dr. F. Becker, professor of geography, reported on the recent joint meeting of the Florida State College chapter and the University of Florida chapter in Gainesville.

The report was in the nature of a round-table discussion of various proposals advanced at the Gainesville meeting for the furtherance of joint projects of the two chapters.

OUTDOORS! WITH SEARS

SPORTING EQUIPMENT

Red Ribbon Tennis Racquet

$4.49

Others $2.95 Up

- Diagonally strung—for even tension.
- Quality silk strings—moisture proofed.
- Full crescent 3-pc. laminated frame.

A "championship" racquet that lives up to its name! Perfectly balanced and low diagonal stringing puts that Zip in the game that you haven't been able to get with other racquets. Light, medium [illegible] weight.

TENNIS BALLS

3 for $1.00

Perfectly balanced, accurately inflated, heavy felt cover. Approved and used by U. S. L. T. A.

ALARM CLOCK

98c

Rise with the bell and play a game of golf before work. Thoroughly dependable clock. Others to $3.79.

TENNIS RACQUET

$5.95

Top flite construction. Diagonal stringing. Good and recommended by that outstanding champion A. I. Sears savings.

Just Imagine A 5-Piece GOLF SET for only $10.90

Winder Quality

An ideal set of all necessary clubs and bag to begin playing this healthful and fascinating game of golf. Light, balanced steel shaft construction to give you the desired precision stroke.

Visit Our Sporting Goods Department for anything in major or minor sports. We carry 4 complete lines!

MOHAWK IRONS

$2.49

Chrome plated heads, steel shaft. Flanged sole. Scotch quick face scoring. Right hand Nos. 1 through 9.

WINDSOR BALLS

19c

Tough cover golf ball with recess marking. Great resistance to abrasion. Others to 59c.

MOHAWK WOODS

$3.95

Latest design model with plain face, perfectly balanced steel shaft with leather grip. Driver, Brassie or Spoon.

SEARS, ROEBUCK AND CO.

Five Colleges Send Students to Convention

(Continued From Page One)

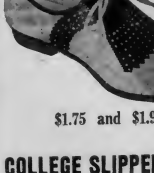
co-operative system and labor-saving rather than labor-displacing.

After the intermission, Miss Muriel Lester, of London, discussed "Creating a Warless World."

At the afternoon session Dr. Leroy P Robinson spoke on "The Unmerited Youth of Germany." He admonished American youth to be careful of losing their liberty by not appreciating it.

The rest of the afternoon was spent in the seminar groups on "Personal Religious Living" led by Miss Muriel Lester; "International Relations" led by Dr. Charles Boss; "Breaking Down Racial Barriers" led by Dr. Arthur Raper; "World Outreach of Christianity" led by Dr. Herrick Young; and "Discovering a New Patriotism" led by Dr. George Robinson.

A banquet was held on Saturday evening in the lower dining hall with Dr. Murrey as toastmaster. The speakers included Mrs. Julius Pak, of Korea; Rev. Brazton Case, of Burma; and Ezequiel Torres of Cuba. After the banquet the members of the conference were entertained at the Methodist student house at a Valentine party.



On Sunday morning Mrs. Indiah Pak spoke on "Worship." The reports on the various seminar discussions were then given by Marion Galbraith, Rollins; Marian Harrold, F. S. C. W.; Hudson Barr, Waldo Paraber, and Jimmy Byrne, all of the University of Florida.

The conference was closed by a devotional talk by Miss Muriel Lester on "The Practice of the Presence of God."

Try the New

Kedettes

In Blue and White, Red and White, Green and White . . . with the flat or college heel.

$1.75 and $1.95

COLLEGE SLIPPER SHOP

College Avenue

A pecks new fabric into the fashion picture via Masque

Fashion's favorite shoe. Made of Aqua-Sec fabric, water spot-proof and washable. Swung high in front. Cut out to let a silken instep peep through. Best of all, it's a Naturalizer made on the famous Plus-Fit Lasts.

Don't Spend Your Life Why feel from happiness wear Naturalizers

$6.75

Beige gabardine with trim of London tan.

Very smart when worn with navy, black or brown—try it!

VOGUE SHOE PARLOR

Tallahassee

"WE HAVE YOUR SIZE"

The very blouses you want to add a bright, crisp note to your Spring suit. Many exciting new styles to choose from . . . with tucks, pleats, patch-pockets, gay contrasting color buttons, flattering necklines. Made of fine imported handkerchief linen that launders so beautifully.

$1.98

P. W. Wilson Co.

Since 1857

Debate Teams Announced For Coming Meets

Three Contests Arranged For Local Speakers During This Year

Three debating teams which will meet other colleges and universities in contests during the remainder of the year were elected by members of the upper class debating council Wednesday afternoon.

Nell Colvin and Betty Wynn will meet William and Mary college debaters here March 8. Percy McMichael and Betty Oslund will debate against the Georgia State College for Women team and Paul Asher and Mary Jeanne McKay will represent the college in the last debate of the year with the University of Florida.

The second debate of the ladder tournament being held in the upperclass division, was given last week with Mary Noble and Peggy McMichael arguing the affirmative and Phil Asher and Emma Randolph Elebash taking the negative of the national debate question.

As first speaker for the affirmative Mary Noble defined the terms in the question "Resolved: that Congress should be empowered to provide for maximum hours and minimum wages for industry." She continued by offering an amendment to be passed by congress that would provide for adequate state regulations, pensions for those injured in industry, and for a competent committee to set wages and hours by sections of the country for a two-year period, subject to regulation at any time.

Continuing the affirmative case, Peggy pointed out that such legislation should be federal rather than state because, first, the inefficiency of state legislation; second, that if this state right were delegated to Congress that a more just law affecting all states could be passed and enforced; third, that centralized government was a necessity in order to insure the best in government for there must be specialization in governing as well as law, medicine, etc.; fourth, that government legislation passed by the Congress, such as the N. R. A., was good, and that we have reason to suppose that Congress will pass equally as good legislation in this case; and fifth, that other nations, notably Brazil, have passed such legislation with very satisfactory results.

Phil Asher opened the negative case by stating that conditions do not demand government control. The conditions are much improved since the bottom of the depression. The only industries in which there still remains great unemployment are those of construction, and a general recovery in business will be necessary to relieve them and not government regulation.

She continued by answering the current charge that machines have driven men out of work. Certainly, she stated, machines have and are making jobs.

Emma Elebash as second speaker for the side pointed out that a national law would not be as satisfactory as state law because living conditions are not the same in all states, and, therefore, uniform wages over the nation are not needed. She also said that national laws can not and will not be enforced.

In her second point she showed that the affirmative plan would be harmful because of the reduction of purchasing power and the rise in the cost of production. Thus foreign industries would either undersell our domestic industries or our already high tariff walls would have to be raised and this would cause a strain in our international relations. Her closing statement was that many business men would be bankrupt because a great deal of the capital for investment would be withdrawn as the investors see that profits are disappearing from business.

University Editorials

Continued from Page Four

to my workmen—and I owe too much to my own judgment. The man won't go."

Mr. Rollman maintains that the government must either keep its convicts or make citizens out of them. He suggests that during the last year before a prisoner's release he should be placed in a situation very much like that of normal society.

He should wear civilian clothes, do work in which he is interested, draw a pay check pay for his board and lodging, read books and attend lectures and concerts. Without such a training period, he will be thrown back into a society in which he is as much an alien as the roughest foreigner on Ellis Island.—S. S.

Management Expert Is Campus Visitor

Miss Frances Dunning, associate professor of institution management at the University of Minnesota, left yesterday after spending several days in Tallahassee. While here she visited the Florida State College dining hall department.

One of the students' directions here this year, Miss Shirley Emerson, is a former student of Miss Dunning.

Faculty Plans For FSC Week

Eighteen Speakers Will Meet Groups During Annual Program

Eighteen faculty members, headed by President Edward Conradi, were announced today by Miss Anna May Tracy, chairman, as speakers for the third annual Florida State College for Women week which will be held March 1-6. The speakers will visit alumnae groups, civic and women's clubs in addressing them on a variety of subjects.

The speakers and their subjects include: Dr. Conradi, "Education"; Dr. R. L. Eyman, professor of mathematics, "Mathematics Serve Our Natural Resources"; Dr. Kathryn T. Abbe, head of the history department; Dr. W. O. Dodd, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, "A New Approach in Education"; Dr. W. H. Rogers, professor of English, "Machine Age Education"; Miss Mary Krown, state home demonstration agent, "Home Demonstration Work"; Miss Ruth Comfort, director of the college, "Community Enrichment"; Miss Sadie Young, assistant professor of economics, "Educating the Community for Citizenship"; Dr. R. S. Cotterill, professor of history, "The Old South"; Dr. Herman Kurz, head of the botany department, "Collecting Indian Arrowheads as a Hobby".

Miss Louise Richardson, Y-Baran, "The Modern Book"; Earl L. Vance, associate professor of English and journalism, "Education and the Press"; Dr. Olivia Dorman, dear of students, "The Romance of Manuscripts"; Dr. Enda Devaney, assistant professor of zoology, "Bird Allies of the Gardener"; Dr. Paul F. Pinner, head of the psychology department, "Remaking the Individual"; Dr. Anna Forbes Liddell, professor of philosophy, "The Bible as Literature"; Dean Ella Scobie Opperman, of the School of Music; Dean Margaret Rector Hendrix of the School of Home Economics, "Factors Affecting Successful Family Living"; Dr. Ruth Connor, associate professor of home economics education, "The Modern Family in the Modern Home."

Alumnae appointed to have charge of the program for the week in their respective cities are Miss Natalie Lamb, Daytona Beach; Miss Anna Jane Anderson, Fort Lauderdale; Miss Margaret Pace Hallam, Miss Mary Blount, Sebring; Mrs. J. R. Benton, Gainesville; Miss Carlee Vinal, St. Petersburg; Mrs. Earl Walker, Bradenton; Miss Bertha Stallcup, Ft. Myers; Miss Roberta Anson, Pensacola; Mrs. Howard Overstreet, Starke; Mrs. Pallie Gunn, Lake Wales; Mrs. Rex Todd Wilson, Ocala; Miss Thelma Sumner, Tampa; Mrs. Alto Adams, Port Pierce.

Mrs. Browning Roach, Pahokee; Miss Marie Jelks, Pompano; Miss Mary Ann Rosen, Kissimmee; Mrs. Dee Weatherly, Havana; Mrs. David Nisbet, Cocoa; Miss Gertrude Kuhlin, Barlow; Mrs. Lee Pilcher, Crestview; Mrs. Epsten Tuten, Jasper; Mrs. Ben Bostick, Quincy; Miss Gladys Poison, Cross City; Miss Maud McCall, Clearwater; Miss Tobiah Levitz, Tarpon Springs; Miss Eunice Gwaltney, Lake Owl; Miss Lucy Beeson, Groveland; Miss Elsie McClure, St. Augustine; Miss Fanny Pleiman, Palatka; Mrs. Selwyn Chaffee, Lake City; Mrs. Hugh Middlebrooks, Marianna; Miss Virginia Earle, Sanford; and Miss Florence Tryon, Tallahassee.

Magazine Jottings

Continued from Page Four

form of government. It is obvious that a status quo, reactionary form of education cannot very well cope with the needs of a changing world.

The sooner we realize the necessity of freedom of discussion and a frank study of programs, even though they may not jibe with the views held by the majority, the sooner we will have made a definite step in the direction of meeting the social and ethical problems which now confront us.

Carnivorous trees that reach out and entwine their tendrils about man and beast, have been reported from every corner of the world, but no one ever has seen one.

Soccer Score Wet Blankets Even Spirits

Continued from Page Three

Hunt, and after several exchanges in front of the goal, Corey scored the first two points of the game for the Odds.

In the second half, the Evens again earned a free kick on the first play but they failed to score the point. Three times Tallahassee rushed the ball well within driving range of the Odds goal, but their her plays were blocked by the Odds. These attempts to score were followed by a close approach to the goal by Fleischer of the Evens. Utter two other failures by Gehan and one by Fletcher, Gehan finally retrieved the ball from Corey, and West shoved it over the goal, tying the score. The game ended a few minutes later with the ball deep in Even territory.

The line-ups for the game were as follows;

(Evens)	Pos	(Odds)
Felicia West	c	Sadie Anderson
E. Fleischer	ro	M. E. Parker
Evelyn Glazier	ri	Jackie Oates
Louise Gehan	lo	Fay Corey
Frances Fryer	li	Valerie Hunt
Ruth Weber	rh	Dot Molnar
Ruth Rogers	ch	Martha Baker
M. Makemson	l
F. Waterhouse	g	Jean Gillies
Mary Pfeiffer	cb	Mary Palmer
Helen Brown	gk	Ruth Wilson

Even substitutions: Marguerite Brown for Waterhouse,

Odds substitutions: Florence Gross for Anderson, Anderson for Gross, Gross for Parker, Julia Beckman for Oates, Gates for Beckman.

Second Soccer Game

The Odds were victorious to the tune of 5-0 when they met the Evens in the second game Tuesday. The kick off was taken by the Evens, and after a short scrimmage following it, Corey of the Odds scored the first point of the game when she successfully placed a penalty kick across the Even goal. The first half ended after several unsuccessful attempts of both teams to raise the score from 1-0.

In the second half of the game, most of the play was concentrated in Even territory. The ball changed hands time after time, but finally Corey retrieved it in the corner of the field and took it all the way to a point within the driving circle. After skillful pass-work at that point, Oates took the ball and carried it across the goal for the Odds, raising their score to 3.

The Corey-Oates combination scored again in the second half almost immediately, adding the final two points to the score.

The line-ups were as follows:

(Evens)	Pos	(Odds)
Felicia West	cf	Fay Corey
P. Waterhouse	ro	Jackie Oates
Evelyn Glazier	ri	Valerie Hunt
E. Fleischer	lo	M. E. Parker
Frances Fryer	li	Sadie Anderson
M. Browne	rf	Jean Gillies
E. Makemson	lh	Dot Molnar
Ruth Rogers	rf	Martha Baker
Ruth Weber	rh	Melba Parks
Mary Pfeiffer	ch	Mary Palmer
Helen Brown	gk	Ruth Wilson

Substitutes: Julia Beckman (Odds) for West, Gross (Even) for Parker.

Spanish Group Taps Students

Five Honored Recently By Sigma Delta Pi Of Tallahassee

Louise Doyle, Myrvin Everett, Mary Louise Merwether, Katherine Miles, and Elizabeth Preyer were elected new members of the Tallahassee chapter of Sigma Delta Pi, national Spanish honorary this week.

Membership requirements for Sigma Delta Pi are a 2.0 academic average, and a 2.3 average in Spanish. The new members will be initiated in the early part of April, and will be required to present a play in Spanish before initiation.

Sigma Delta Pi will also have its Friday afternoon for members and for all first and second year Spanish students having an "A" or a "B" average in Spanish.

Bernice Oliver is president of the local group, of which Virginia Early, Nellie Lamar, Charlotte Carlton, Daisy Parker, Anna Von Dohlen, and Dorothy Purse are members. Mrs. Dorothy Breen sponsors the organization.

Renaissance Art of Nameless Workman Brittle With Age Now Reposes in Library Display Case

By BLANTON BARRETT

In a bright but lonely corner of a monastery a young monk was seated on a high stool. Before him on a flat board lay a fair white sheet of parchment and at his side were displayed pots of the rich hues known only to the pre-renaissance artists. Slowly he dipped his brush. Slowly he traced his shade. Carefully he applied one stroke after another to the faintly etched illumination which he was engaged in completing.

It all happened hundreds of years ago. The young monk was one of an hundred who were employed in depicting scenes from the Bible. And today that white sheet on which he was working is unloved, the colors which were so vivid have taken on mellowness and depth with the passage of time.

Today that sheet of parchment lies in the display case of the college library—an example of the art of another year, an illustration from a book which holds interest for us only by virtue of its age. The Bible in which it first appeared was also written by hand in the best scroll of another set of monks. It is a dead thing and people passing fail to see the life behind it.

There it lies, the work of that forgotten, nameless artist, together with sheets from an ancient German Bible. Those sheets are covered with the careful script of an ancient amanuensis. What scenes are pictured there are shown with the subborn, broad strokes of a far less finished artist than he who labored over the first picture.

There, in the library, are other pages from "oldest books." Long before the days of our ninth and tenth edition copies, books were works of art which took years to complete. From the tombs of ancient Egypt have been brought tablets, sometimes of stone, sometimes of rich metals, which bore the stories of the ancients and pictured their modes of life.

In the books which the senior library students have sent out in conjunction with this display are records of trips taken far afield via tales of travel and stories of doughty deeds performed on pages of books. There also are stories of the homes of these volumes and the lines of their ancestry traced far back into the dim unknown.

A fitting display for the hall of a library, the new exhibit has been garnered from here and there and is explained by carefully chosen "parallel" books.

Personnel Interviews Of New Students Held

Interviews of all new students are being made by a group of upperclassmen selected by the Personnel office. These interviews like those for the beginning of the year, are for the purpose of making complete records of each student in school, the information being kept strictly confidential.

The interviewers include: Marion Conn, first vice-president of C. O. A.; Lillie McGuire, business manager of the Flambeau; Ann Norris, chairman of the personnel of Y. W. C. A.; and Marjorie Pederson.

Short Course Report Given

Becker Tells Experience At Camp Roosevelt In Past Week

Several days of looking at slides and pictures may sound like anything but an arduous task to a college girl, but Professor Henry F. Becker, who has just returned from a seven days' stay at Camp Roosevelt, guarantees that it is no child's play.

Visiting Camp Roosevelt for a visual education short course for geography and elementary science teachers, Mr. Becker acted as secretary for the elementary geography study group. This group inspected over one hundred slides and pictures while working out a system of evaluation of the films, and at the end of the meeting prepared a ten-page report on the relative value of the materials inspected.

The two purposes of the course were to evaluate this report and to accumulate a visual aids library at the camp, according to Mr. Becker. He further stated that the present condition of geographic aids was very poor when compared to the state of science visual aids.

Teachers from all over the state were present for this short course. Miss Frances Allen, of F.S.C.W. alumna, now teaching in Tuscaloosa, Ala., was the only Negro on teaching the use of visual aids. Mrs. Annice Davis Elkins, another alumna, who now teaches in Tarpon Springs, was also enrolled for the course.

From the top of the Brocken, highest peak of the Harz mountains in Germany, one can see his shadow against the eastern sky at sunset. The phenomenon is known as the Brockenspesnst, or Specter of the Brocken.

Conradi to Be Present At Modern Educational Seminar in Gainesville

Dr. Edward Conradi left yesterday to attend the session of the Seminar program being held this week at the University of Florida in Gainesville for leading educators of the United States to discuss modern trends of education.

Featured at the meeting are talks by Dr. Charles H. Judd, head of the Department of Education, University of Chicago; Chancellor Harry W. Chase, New York University; Dr. Alvin C. Eurich, [illegible] ty of Minnesota and President C. S. Boucher of the Univ ity of West Virginia.

Yesterday's program was opened by Colin English, state superintendent of public instruction, followed by an address by Dr. Judd on the objectives of general education. President Conradi was the principal speaker of last night's session.

Manford Heads Home Ec Society's Delegation

Nine student delegates from Florida State college will attend the state home economics convention in Jacksonville this week-end, Harriet P. Roach, field secretary for the American Home Economics association and visitor in this campus yesterday, will be a prominent member of the roster of speakers.

Dr. Margaret Sandels, dean of the Economics, Ar[illegible] Miss Mac McIntosh, instructor in this field, will represent the local staff of instructors. Students selected to go are Edith Manford, president of the Home Economics club, Margaret Delaney, Louise D. Johnson and Edith Adams, seniors; Irene Day and Margaret Stout, juniors; Margaret Walcott, Dot Brevard and Betty Harrison, sophomores.

Here's aroma for you

. . . a picture of Chesterfield tobacco just as it comes out of the 1000-pound wooden hogsheads after ageing for three years.

If you could be there when these hundreds of hogsheads are opened up . . . if you could see this mild ripe tobacco, prime and ready to be made into Chesterfield Cigarettes . . . see the golden color of the leaf . . . and get a whiff of that delightful aroma . . . you'd say . . .

"Delicious . . . makes me think of fruit cake."

Mild, ripe home-grown and aromatic Turkish tobaccos . . . aged three years . . . make Chesterfield an outstanding cigarette . . . give them a more pleasing taste and aroma.

Copyright 1937, Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co.

Don't Forget
Elections
All This Week

The Florida Flambeau

Published by the Students of Florida State College for Women

Third Annual
F. S. C. W.
Week Observance

VOLUME XXIV. Tallahassee, Florida, February 27, 1937 NUMBER EIGHTEEN

Students Plan Many Events For FSC Week

McKay Acts as Chairman of Student Observance On This Campus

VESPER SERVICE OPENS SCHEDULE

Janice Borton to Direct Local Radio Program Monday Evening

In celebration of the third annual Florida State College for Women Week, starting February 28 and continuing to March 6, a series of programs will be given on campus by the students, while in cities throughout the state special observances under the direction of chairmen selected by the Alumnae office will be given.

Faculty to Speak

Eminent members of the faculty, headed by President Edward Conrad, will speak at various alumnae meetings and luncheon clubs, addressing them on a variety of subjects, as announced by Miss Anna May Tracey, general chairman of this week. Mary Elmore McKay, president of the student body, is acting as chairman of the student observance.

Beginning the observance on Sunday, there will be a special F. S. C. W. Vesper at 5:30. A radio program, under the direction of Janice Borton, will be given Monday at 6:45 o'clock over WTAL. Mary Jennie McKay and Jesse Bowen will speak, and the glee club will give several selections on this program.

Program Planned for Tuesday

Several special features will be given at convocation held at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday night. Tableaux planned at that time will show the different phases of the life of the co-ed, from 1887 to 1937. Mary Bostor and Polly Hewlett are in charge of these tableaux. Miss Anna Tracey will talk at this time on "Some of the Things that Gave F. S. C. W. Its Identity," and later Beth Daade will award the prize for the best song of the campaign, which will be sung by a chosen quartet.

At the physical education program to be featured on Wednesday a demonstration of the clash work of the dancing classes will be presented, showing tap, folk, and modern dances. The group which will attend the physical education convention in Texas

Continued on page two

Game Presents Library Gift

Babylonian Tablets Show First Book Stages Of Development

Twenty-five ancient Babylonian clay tablets which show the first stage in the development of books so far back as 3,000 B. C. were presented this week to the college library by Mrs. Frank B. Gamewell, widow of the late Professor Gamewell, professor of general literature and archaeology of Florida S. C. college.

Professor Game used the tablets, which range from about one to three inches in length in his classes. The library now has them on display in the foyer of the building.

The oldest tablet from the Game collection is a list of sale of farm products which dates to 2400 B. C. A simple record from Jokha sealed with the royal seal of Ur-Lugal-Ki-Gi of the Children, dates about 2300 B. C., is among the latest pieces.

The complete collection includes: from Jokha, a tax bill from 2350 B. C.; from Senkereh, S. ancient, a memorandum, about 2200 B. C.; from Jokha, a tax bill from about 2350 B. C.; from Jokha, a list of cattle or a shepherd, from about 2300 B. C.; from Senkereh, list of sheep with a shepherd, from 2300 B. C.; from Senkereh, business contract from about 2200 B. C.; from Nippur, bill for 11 sheep for the city, 2300 B. C.; from Drehem, receipt for sheep, about 2200 B. C.; from Drehem, receipt for twenty-two sheep and goats, 2200 B. C.; from Telloh, butcher's bill for four sheep, 2150 B. C.; from Senkereh, list of sheep from about 2200 B. C.; from Senkereh, sun dried business

Continued on page two

Bookstore to Move Into New Quarters

The bookstore will be able to move into its new place of business within the next ten days, according to J. G. Kellum, business manager of Florida State College for Women.

Practically all the new offices and rooms in the Westcott Memorial building have become occupied with the exception of the bookstore. The completion of this room has been difficult due to the fact that a regular crew has not been employed. Janitors, carpenters and electricians of the college have had to divide their time between the new bookstore and their regular duties, thus slowing up completion.

Freshmen Plan Class Carnival To Close Week

Colorful Booths Will Be Featured in Foyer Of Gymnasium

The Freshman Carnival sponsored by members of the freshman class will be given next Saturday night in the gymnasium as a revent of F. S. C. W. week. From colorfully decorated booths in the foyer, such things as games, ice cream, peanuts, popcorn, hot dogs, and cold drinks will be sold. A skating rink, fortune tellers, dancing, and a floor show will also be features of the evening's entertainment.

Dorothy Bostor, president of the freshman class has announced the chairmen and members of committees. Games: candy and cookie booth: Jeanette Lischgi, chairman, Ann Bryan, Nell Lee Dudley Ramsey, Frances Milton, Betty Nicholson, Mary Georgia, Lillian Taylor, and Elenor Bushnell.

Hot dog and drink booth: Jean Jernigan, chairman, Mary Collins, Louise Rice, Catherine Which, Nevrie Powell, Mary Cochran, Bynell Oliver, Lucille Pyles, and Mary Vergyvoe. Fortune-telling booths: Gayle Johnson, chairman, Jane Simmons, Edna Warren, Marjorie Jessup, Frances Humphrey, Betty Vinson, and Jean Whitely.

Ice cream booth: Elaine Pleasant, chairman, and Mary Taylor, Evelyn King, Laura McCaughan, Natalie Hacker, Sara Jane Blankinship, Dorothy Hamilton, Josie Sharpiro and Jane Floyd. Peanut and popcorn booth: Alberta Lloyd, chairman, and Rosalyn Silverstein, Bernice Sherlock, Rosslyn Baer, Lillian Peet, Shirley Esarig, and Hazel Wilkerson.

Target practice booth: Janet Sweet, chairman, Edith Ott, and Martha Robbins. Skating rink: Dorothy Grinnell chairman, Dorothy Manning, and Sara Shannon. Fish pond: Ina Margaret Robinson, chairman, and Pat Stewart, Mary Elizabeth Shannon, Mary Lorraine Hollerbard, and Clifton Van Brunt.

Forum Debates Supreme Court Judge Problem

Vote to Allow President To Appoint Six New Men to Body

GIRLS SPEAKING DISCUSS POWERS

O'Rourke is Affirmative Talker; Pratt Has Negative Side

Discussion, debate, and rebuttal on the supreme court in U. S. P. A. forum tonight held to the passing of a resolution 21-10, resolved: That the president should be given the power to appoint six new judges to the supreme court.

Clotilde O'Rourke Speaks

Clotilde O'Rourke speaking for the affirmative brought out that the president's recommendation that the supreme court be enlarged to fifteen members was a step that the constitution needs. With the exception of Cardozo she said all the present justices were too conservative in the depression and its accompanying problems and the majority of the judges have shown no particular sympathy with those problems.

The speaker went on to say that the proposed issue is constitutional in that every right of the president, and if it achieves its aim the president will consider no constitutional objection to the powers of the court or the constitution. The speech was marked by the speaker, without precedent as Justices Black and Grant enlarged their courts.

Court Power Explained

Clotilde O'Rourke explained the court's power of judicial review to the audience. The New Deal legislation on extremely vague and indefinite words, and that the acts are to be construed. Defining these words in the constitution are few indeed.

The fact that two and sometimes three decisions have been handed down on one case indicates that the constitution should be interpreted several different ways on the same problem. Three of the justices have been always adverse to the New Deal seems to indicate that the movement of is out of harmony with the times, the speaker said.

Katherine Pratt, speaking for the negative, questioned the power of the president to appoint six new men to the supreme court, if this is done, she said, there will we prevent in the future, the usurpation of the legislative power of the supreme court. But new men in the court might in the future, they thought agree with the unjust use of the power, but so did the old members. The new men would be right in that they would be thinking in the present time and in the present.

The only fair way to make the court function as intended is by constitutional amendment. She pointed out that Roosevelt had to plan the next step in contacting other colleges.

The chairmen and their committees follow:

Publicity committee—Martha Baker and Hazel Bowman, chairmen; Pearle Shepherd, Evelyn Fluher, Frances Brunson, Clara Luke, Mary McCullough, and Genevieve Tomlinson.

Forum committee—Virginia Allen and Elizabeth Becknell, chairmen; Florence Evers, bulletin board; Pearle Shepherd, assistant.

Faculty - student discussions committee—Lois Cox, chairman; Gehan, chairmen; Louise Lingo, Eileen Robinson, Beryl Adkins, and Katherine Autrey.

Radio program committee—Elizabeth Hall, chairman; and Marjorie Rasleson, chairmen; Martha Baker, Mary Hall.

Parade committee—Winifred Scott and Margaret Waddell, chairmen; Helen Daniel, Mary Emily Parker, Dorothy Belamy, Maxine Ward, Kathryn Pratt, Sarah Sealey, Jean Gillis.

Peace plans committee—Betty Ostlund and Marjorie Tillis, chairmen; Marion Herbert and Elizabeth Ann Wells, seating; Blondell Pierce and Mary Lopez, properties; Elizabeth Hall, head of the table; Thompson, rehearsals; Nell Colvin, business manager.

Continued on page three

Composer Will Offer Illustrated Lecture

Dr. John Thompson, a composer of piano music for young people, will give an illustrated lecture to the Hall of the music annex tomorrow afternoon at 1:30

Governor Fred Cone Issues F. S. C. Week Proclamation

Governor Fred P. Cone this week issued a proclamation officially recognizing the third annual "F. S. C. W. Week" of Florida State College for Women from March 1st to 6th.

The governor asked that the "week" be observed by all the civic and service clubs and all other public spirited organizations in the state interested in promoting and supporting institutions of higher learning." The purpose of the special week is to acquaint people of Florida more fully with the Florida State College, a 31-year-old institution with an enrollment of approximately 1,800, the highest in the history of the college. The week will be observed in approximately 34 Florida cities where special programs will be carried out by local speakers.

The governor's proclamation follows:

"WHEREAS, the Florida State College for Women will observe its third annual Florida State College for Women Week March 1-6, with the cooperation of the Alumnae Association, college faculty, student body and interested Florida citizens, and

"WHERE, these observances have benefitted the college and our people by bringing them closer together in a proper understanding and appreciation of the Florida State College for Women, and

"WHEREAS, a large number of Florida's young women are now attending and will attend the Florida State College for Women, and

"WHEREAS, the Florida State College for Women should have the support of all of the citizens of the state,

"NOW, THEREFORE, I, Fred P. Cone, Governor of Florida, do hereby proclaim the week of March 1-6 as Florida State College for Women Week and ask that it be observed by all the civic and service clubs, and all other public and organizations of the state interested in promoting and supporting institutions of higher learning, and in aiding the college in acquainting Floridians with the Florida State College for Women."

Colleges Join Florida State Peace Program

McKay Names Committee To Head Movement For Campus

Plans which originated recently in the senate for the observance of a National Peace Day are developing rapidly while word colleges from all parts of the country are evidencing their willingness to accept the invitation to participate.

Among the first colleges to join with Florida State College for Women in the movement, as Vassar College, Poughkeepsie, New York; Colorado State College, Fort Collins, Colorado; Agnes Scott College, Atlion, Michigan; American University, Washington, D. C.; Pennsylvania College for Women, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania; University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania; Bryson College, Gainesville, Georgia; University of Florida, Gainesville, Florida; and State Normal and Industrial School, Blondale, N. Dakota.

According to Mary Jeanne McKay, president of the student body, "the support and response received show that the movement is both timely and worthwhile." The chairmen of the committees for the observance on this campus will meet tomorrow afternoon to pointed out, and to plan the next step in contacting other colleges.

The chairmen and their committees follow:

Publicity committee—Martha Baker and Hazel Bowman, chairmen; Pearle Shepherd, Evelyn Fluher, Frances Brunson, Clara Luke, Mary McCullough, and Genevieve Tomlinson.

Forum committee—Virginia Allen and Elizabeth Becknell, chairmen; Florence Evers, bulletin board; Pearle Shepherd, assistant.

Faculty - student discussions committee—Lois Cox, chairman; Gehan, chairmen; Louise Lingo, Eileen Robinson, Beryl Adkins, and Katherine Autrey.

Radio program committee—Elizabeth Hall, chairman; and Marjorie Rasleson, chairmen; Martha Baker, Mary Hall.

Parade committee—Winifred Scott and Margaret Waddell, chairmen; Helen Daniel, Mary Emily Parker, Dorothy Belamy, Maxine Ward, Kathryn Pratt, Sarah Sealey, Jean Gillis.

Peace plans committee—Betty Ostlund and Marjorie Tillis, chairmen; Marion Herbert and Elizabeth Ann Wells, seating; Blondell Pierce and Mary Lopez, properties; Elizabeth Hall, head of the table; Thompson, rehearsals; Nell Colvin, business manager.

Continued on page three

Eight Return From National NEA Meeting

Many Well-known Persons Speak at Convention Meeting In New Orleans

Representing Florida State college in the Alabama-Florida district cation held in New Orleans last week were President Edward Conrad; Dean Nathaniel Moore Mabry, Dr. Mark DeGraff and Dr. Marion Dorsey, Elizabeth Gordon Andrews, who attended the "Florida State College Women's Personnel Association; Dr. Olivia Cox Hollis, and Elizabeth Flowers and Miss Katherine Byrd who attended the National Association.

Many well known persons from all over the nation spoke at the convention on various aspects of youth and its problems.

Dr. Homer Price Rainey, president of the University of Louisville, Louisville, Ky., while speaking to the American council of guidance and per onnel associations on "Youth Problems and the Implications of the Youth Problem" said that the principal needs of youth today are employment and security.

Robert Hoppock, assistant to the director of the National Occupational Conference, New York, told the National Vocational association that thousands of young people graduated in the next few years to build the 6,000,000 jobs which the United States must have. Dr. Hoppock said that there is going to be a "serious shortage in the building trades crafts when the nation's building construction program becomes more accelerated. A new field of service advanced by Dr. Hoppock in training veterinarians. Although there are twice as many students in the profession there is one veterinary to thirteen doctors of medicine.

O. C. Pratt, president of the National Education association, in his address said that the nation must learn should not rest with chance development. Each state is richer than another state or that his section of the state is richer than another, with natural resources than another, advocated federal aid to the states on the basis of scholastic population, Mr. Pratt praised the free text book system.

Edwin A. Lee, director of the American association conference New York, declared in an address on a joint meeting of the national education and the national council of the American council of guidance, that the national conference of deans of women, that little is known of occupational trends and t at educators must base reliable information on the matter, before they can have a clear conception of their own courses. He said, "Youth must change its viewpoint about skilled labor because the recent trend toward white collar jobs has resulted in a shortage in

Continued on page two

Pictures Sent To University For Selection

Candidates for Queen Of Ball Submitted To Committee

TEN HOSTESSES WILL BE NAMED

Twenty-seven Sophomores And Freshmen Chosen By Students Here

Photographs of twenty-seven girls, one candidate representing each sorority and the other ten non-sorority members of the freshmen and sophomore classes, will be sent to the committee at the University of Gainesville in charge of the General College Queen's ball April 2.

Queen Will Be Chosen

From these photographs the committee will select by ballot the ten most beautiful to serve as hostesses at Friday night's function, During the course of the evening the ten hostesses will be presented as the queen. These boys, having had a chance to meet the potential queens, at the end of the evening will vote by ballot by ballot for the most charming and popular of the ten hostesses.

The ball selected will be formally presented on Saturday night at the Flying Queen's ball at the Queen's ball of the university. Under the leadership of the sophomore dance committee, with Ed Bond at its head, and the freshman dance committee, with Jeanette Hickett as president, plans are underway for a gala week-end which, it is hoped, will further unite the two lower division classes in their extra-curricular activities.

As there are 1,700 boys in the two classes there will be no trouble question as to how all are to be taken care of. The committee, however, realizes that many will not attend the dances. Six hundred tickets will be issued, which will be good for both the Friday and Saturday night dances. Tickets will be sold only to members of the general college.

Sophomore representatives are: Hazel Anderson, Julia Mullis, Peggy Markell, Thelma Mayhew, Ella Jane Brown, Lucy Grant, Mary Elizabeth Shannon, Ruth Brabard, Ruth Irvine, Katherine Graham, Virginia Sigman, and Eleanor Miller. Those nominated from the sororities are: Camille Mullen, Alpha Delta Pi; Gertrude Dowling, Alpha Delta Pi; Kathryn Patterson, Alpha Gamma Delta; Mary Brinson, Chi Omega; Pi Mildred Bronson, Alpha Xi Delta, Kendall Harris, Phi Phi Alpha; Frances Slade, Chi Omega; Charlotte Connell, Delta Zeta.

Other of the sorority candidates are Kathryn Kea, Delta Phi Epsilon; Julia Beckman, Theta Xeta; Ruth Kappel, Alpha Theta; Bebe Clifford, Kap-

Continued on page three

"Perfect Convocation" Ideas Proffered Faintly by Girls

Sophomores Are Emphatic in Their Suggestions; Majority of Juniors Say No Program; Seniors Vary in Opinions

By BETTY SPICER

Students, when asked their ideas of a perfect convocation, since convocations have been a subject of much discussion, are merely mumble. "I don't know," and shrug the question on to the next person. At least the majority of them go through this procedure. Some offer a few faint suggestions and then gently subside.

Sophomores are more prone to be emphatic about their ideas. One sophomore suggested that the perfect convocation program would include comfortable seats, a interesting thing to look around on, enough hymn books, head ushers to direct them and music.

Another sophomore followed up this suggestion with one of having a solid program of organ music because she could listen to it for a week and never become tired. Another sophomore said, "Student talent, because more people enjoy it."

One original girl said she would enjoy nothing more than a program put on by the faculty themselves in the way of entertaining, or anything that their faculty brains could concoct. Still another sophomore gave her idea of a Bible reading, a current event, some little entertainment, reports and "all of it very short and snappy".

A senior said "The perfect convocation for me would be to have Richard Halliburton speak for about two hours on anything that he wished."

Another senior said, "None at all. I have said that one knows the programs could be more interesting if they were but she was all out of suggestions.

"A perfect convocation would be one put on by the students themselves," was the suggestion of a senior. "Of course that would be interspersed with a few very good speakers," she added

One senior said that there was no such thing as a perfect convocation, "Somebody will be bound to find fault if there is not a pro-

Continued on page two

Two Major Offices Have One Nominee

Betty Ostlund Is Sole Student President Candidate

LOUISE GEHAN ONLY CHAIRMAN ASPIRANT

Primary Election Comes Tuesday and Finals On Thursday

For the first time in the history of student government on Florida State college campus candidates for the offices of president of the student body and chairman of judiciary are unopposed in the first stages of the annual election. Betty Ostlund is the sole nominee for the presidency, while Louise Gehan has no opponent for the office of chairman of judiciary. However, members of the student body will be given an opportunity to name other nominees on the special student body meeting Tuesday morning.

Yearbook Nominee Unopposed

The other major offices of college government, final election for which will take place Thursday, have two or more candidates in the primary Tuesday afternoon and evening. In the case of major publications the usual nominees for editor of the Flastacowe and Florida Flambeau have been near for that publication and also for the offices of business running alone. As in the case of president and chairman the student body will be invited to make nominations from the floor at the convocation Tuesday morning.

Running for freshman adviser is Phil Adams and Katherine Pratt. Frances Lewis and Elizabeth Pierce are supporting the two office of treasurer. Four scholarships are slated against each other in the final election. They include Evelyn Anderson, Becky Ashton, Winifred Bryant and Marian Purviance. Candidates for council of the president are Katherine Autrey, Peggy Boteler, Mary Frances Campbell, Betty Harrison and Ruth Welch. Six freshmen are in the running for secretary. They are Elaine Fleischer, Katherine Graham, Lucy Grant, Rive Lee Hemphill, Ina Margaret Robinson and Frances Slade.

Opposing Sarah Sealey for editor of the Flastacowe are Jane Hart. Pearle Shepard and Evelyn

Continued on page three

Waskom Writes Journal Study

Psychological Magazine Publishes Article By Professor

Dr. Hugh L. Waskom, professor of psychology in the college, has had article on the subject, "An Experimental Analysis of Inventive and Forced Application of Habit Effect upon Learning," which has appeared in American Journal of Psychology.

The article was among twenty-nine scientific publications issued during the past year from the Department of Psychology, Indiana University, where Dr. Waskom studied research under the direction of Professor George S. Snoddy.

The study, which has been published in pamphlet form, reveals that memory and habit formation instruction is greatly facilitated, whereas learning under forced application of habit is greatly hindered. The tabulated results of the rigid laboratory tests also show that when attention is directed too closely to the minute details of practice, the subject does not maintain as high efficiency as when attention is more diffuse.

The article includes, in addition to the explanations of the statistical procedures, quantitative analyses of data, descriptions of behavior, and interpretation of the results of the experiments.

Former Student Visits

Mr. and Mrs. Benno Bronnum Florence Holcstad '27) were visitors at Florida State College for Women this week. Mrs. Bronnum was a member of the New York F. S. C. W. alumnae club.

Bridges Talks of Things From Keats to the Climate

Lecturer Believes Much Has Been Accomplished Along Orthodox Lines; Remaining Work Includes Drives, Emotions

By DOROTHY BARCLAY

In a lecture delivered Tuesday which ranged from an appreciation of Florida climate to an analysis of the psychological interpretation of Keats' Endymion, Dr. Frederick Bridges, head of the professor of psychology at the medical college, McGill university, expressed the opinion that psychology will continue to take an ever more important part in human activity "a time goes on and the science makes itself more to life in all its phases.

Along the orthodox lines of psychology, memory and learning, Dr. Bridges said, much has been done in investigation, but that there is still a need for work on the subjects of drives, emotions, and feeling. Aside from these, however, in the esoteric fields of literary and artistic interpretation the subject is virtually untouched.

Quoting Edymion as a classic example, Dr. Bridges spoke of the poet's intuitive grasp of material which the scientist later brings forth as truth. Whether or not Keats "really read" the implications of his symbolism is difficult to determine, he said, but that there is still a definite emotional conflict and the way in which it is resolved is typical of the poet's ability for affective appreciation of basic truth before it is formulated by science.

Passing from their works to the poets themselves, Dr. Bridges held that a true understanding of a poet could be had only from a study of his work and its implications. Such complex characters as Byron, Shelley, Keats, "whose work—" a mixture of the devil and the saint"—whereas the works of Keats and Shelley are like their sult.rn more consistently, Dr. Bridges said, because the man's biography is not essential.

"We know Shakespeare," he said, "whether we know his life or not. And we know him through his works."

Dr. Bridges has a great personal interest in the art of the Indians of North and South America and believes that psychology has much to contribute to anthropology and archaeology, partly

Continued on page two

IRC Delegate Named Officer Of Conference

Recording Secretary For National Council Is Sophomore

Filled with new plans for club advancement on this campus and bringing with them one of the few nat. nal officers of the general council of the International Relations club, the eight Florida State college delegates to the I.R.C. conference at Auburn Polytechnic Institute returned this week. They were gone four days and were chaperoned by Miss Marian Irish.

Agnes Stiggins Elected

The office-holder, Agnes Stiggins, was elected recording secretary for next year's conference, which will be held at Vanderbilt university. Agnes, who is a sophomore, has been ever since her arrival on campus an active member of the local chapter of the organization.

Over 270 delegates from forty-five colleges and universities all over the country attended the conference which President L. N Duncan of Auburn opened with a welcoming address followed by a greeting from R. C. Boles, convention president.

Speakers, sent by the Carnegie Endowment fund, included Maj C. D. Booth, Miss Carol Riegelman who is connected with the International Labor organization: and Miss Amy Heminway Jones, International Relations club worker in New York. A program of lectures, round table groups for discussion, and debates filled Friday and Saturday. A dinner Friday night at which Major Booth was the principal speaker was followed by a dance honoring the delegates. International pictures were shown at the local theater on Saturday after which election of officers for next year's convention took place.

Summary Speeches Given

At the concluding luncheon summary speeches were given concerning work accomplished, and suggestions were made for the improvement of local chapters.

Delegates attending the convention from this campus were Mary Katherine Gibson, president of this organization: Agnes Stiggins, national convention secretary; Anna Marie Mitchell, Marguerite Browne, Irene Braverman, Ruth Rubin, Elizabeth Matheny, Darian Morrell.

Anna Marie Mitchell, program chairman of I R C, announces that the next club meeting will be held on the topic of this convention. Reports will be given and new ideas presented. The date will be posted on the I.R.C. bulletin board will present a dance which they will give there. Beth Daane has charge of this program, which will be held at 4.30 o'clock in the gymnasium.

Students Plan Many Events for F.S.C. Week

Continued from page one

The quarterly faculty dinner will be held Thursday night in the college dining room. Mary Katherine Gibson, chairman of the social committee, has charge of this.

Concluding and climaxing the special programs of the week will be the carnival to be held Saturday night. Mary Katherine Gibson has charge of this, while managing the freshman booths will be Katherine Graham, and in charge of the program to be given at this time will be Hilda Spradlin.

Features to be shown all during the week are the exhibits of various departments, under the direction of Myrvin Everett. The industrial arts exhibit under the head of Ann Sam., will show different work of all the industrial arts classes, such as jewelry displays, pottery, leather work, weaving, and modern designing. This exhibit will be displayed on the lower floor of the Administration building

The art exhibit will be under the direction of Mary McGunagle. The achievement exhibit, with Polly Eveleth in charge, will be displayed in the library, where medals, cups and other trophies which the school has won will be shown. The home economics' exhibit will be shown on the main floor of the Science building. Shirley Stevens has charge of this

The botany exhibit, with Helen DeVries in charge, will feature Olivia Embrey paintings of flowers, fossils owned by Dr. Kurz some rare pot flowers, and an aquarium. This will be held in the botany laboratory.

The Four-H club exhibit will be displayed in the extension office of the Science building. Margaret Walcott has charge of this. The library exhibit will feature pictures of the school, clippings about the school in years past, and various other relics of the college. These will be displayed in the main lobby of the library, with Katherine Autrey in charge.

Specially written for this Florida State College for Women Week will be the article by Hazel Bowmen, editor of the Flambeau, on the history of the college, to be issued in the Flambeau of that week.

Students serving on the student "Florida State College for Women Week" committee with Mary Jeanne McKay are: Janice Borton, president of the Young Women's Christian Association: Beth Daane, president of the Woman's Athletic Association; Mary McGunagle, president of Panhellenic; Dorothy Bellamy, president of the Day Students' organization; Myrvin Everett, chairman of the extra-curricular committee; Marjorie Tillis, president of Mortar Board, senior honorary society; Polly Eveleth, chairman of the local branch of the N. S. F. A., and the four class presidents, Mary Miller, senior Hilda Spradlin, junior Peggy Bottler sophomore, and Katherine Graham, freshman Student Agrees With Song After Visiting Annapolis

Writer Finds "There's Something About A Sailor" After She Participates In June Week At Naval Academy

By CLOTILDE O'ROURKE

"There's something about a sailor," an old song says, and I am sure there are not many girls who do not agree with the sentiment. However, I had never been able to decide what that something was until last year when I was invited to spend a week at the Naval academy.

June Week is a magic word to any girl who has participated in it. It is a week that every midshipman and every midshipman's sweetheart anticipates 358 days in advance. It is a week of dancing, and dining, and drilling, and dress parades. It is the heyday of news reel cameramen and amateur photographers. Most important of all, it is a time when the public can see wherein a large part of its taxes are invested.

Helen and I had been hearing about this notable event for two years before we arrived upon the scene. We knew a few of the rules regulating a midshipman's life and a lot of the slang. We knew it was a cardinal sin to wear bunny jackets because the furs came off on uniforms.

With this store of information, we drove into Annapolis one late afternoon, winding our way through narrow, cobblestone streets, and throngs of midshipmen.

I had never seen so many men who looked so much alike. They were dressed alike, walked alike, cut corners squarely, seldom looked to right or left. Later I was to discover that even their haircuts were alike. And, as I looked farther, I began to wonder if I was seeing double. Each house in sight was an exact duplicate of the other. They were four stories high, about four feet wide, with three little white steps leading up to the door. Fortunately, we knew the street and number we were looking for, so had nothing to worry about except our luggage.

"Let's ask one of these young automatons to help us get it inside," I suggested. We peered out the window at the men tramping by, but could not catch a single eye.

"Perhaps if we start carrying it in, someone will offer to help," said Helen. We dragged the bags out and started across the street. We carried them all the way to our rooms. One thing about midshipmen—they do not see timely opportunities for introductions.

Bob and Jack had made it clear that a Navy man expects his girl to be on time, so for once in our lives, Helen and I were ready and waiting when our dates arrived at 7:30 o'clock. They were in full dress, looking startlingly like bell boys in their short jackets with knobby brass buttons, white caps, and white gloves.

We set out for a restaurant—on foot, for midshipmen are not allowed to ride in "vehicles." Helen and I stumbled along as best we could on the cobblestones, making a mental note never to wear high heels again

Our spirits revived in the festive, smoky atmosphere of the restaurant where dozens of couples like ourselves were crammed into little booths along the wall.

I was in the middle of my dessert when Bob jumped up with the announcement: "Hey, it's 9:15 o'clock, and we have to be at the hop at 9:30 o'clock or we hit the pap!" Thereupon, the two boys collected the wraps, the hats and us in one sweep and we started on the run for Dahlgren hall. I felt rather silly until I saw other couples doing the same thing.

Then Bob explained that they would get demerits if we did not arrive on time. As we hurried through the Academy gates I was conscious of miles of high gray walls and two guards who checked us through. I had no opportunity to see the Yard, although I was dimly aware of a lot of white buildings, the statue of an Indian, and the dark water of the Severn in the background. The boys urged us on so as not to be a minute late. We arrived in a complete state of collapse with two minutes to spare. Helen and I retired to the dressing room to catch our breaths. We were rather annoyed at being so rushed around, as if a minute were a matter of life or death.

"June week," said Helen, "is apparently the equivalent of a cross country hike with a lot of dancing thrown in."

But our annoyance soon vanished as we were launched on the exciting three hours that followed.

The ball was so enormous it was only comfortably full with a thousand whirling couples on the floor a long line of Navy wives and visiting mothers sitting at one side, and an orchestra on the other. The midshipmen were rather an impressing sight en masse. With buttons gleaming, and the formality of white gloves, the men for once outshone the women. All of them were young and clear eyed and splendidly erect—and as formal as their gloves.

The balcony was crowded with plebes who did not rate dancing until the Farewell ball. In the balcony, too, were motion picture cameramen, shooting scenes for "Annapolis Farewell." The girls did not mind the occasional unflattering glare of Klieg lights when they knew they were to be in the movies.

The hop ended with the Star Spangled Banner, and a wild rush of girls to the dressing room. Bob refused to wait a minute for Helen and Jack. He fairly shoved me out of the door, and started running back to the house.

"What's the hurry?" I gasped.

"To get a place to sit," Bob answered briefly. "There are fifteen other girls staying at your place, and some of them are just ahead of us." We ended up by being the first arrivals, so got the sofa by itself in the parlor. Other couples came in and started lining up on the stairs. Helen and Jack came in last and retired to the telephone chair in the alcove—preferring privacy to comfort, Bob said.

Every couple in sight immediately became entwined, for third classmen only get forty minutes liberty after hops, and second classmen get fifty minutes. It was only a short time therefore, before Bob was snatching on his gloves and kissing me a hasty goodbye.

"Wish I could stay longer," he said, "but I only have four minutes and it's a long sprint back to the Yard."

Jack joined him and they slammed out of the door. We could hear their rapid footfalls dying on the pavement. With a kind of left-in-the-lurch feeling Helen and I retired to our room.

The kaleidescopic events of the next two days I remember but dimly. There were many dress parades with lines of uniformed men standing at attention as far as the eye could see. I was impressed, too, by the ambulances on the street behind the field waiting for them to faint. There was an exciting water polo game, a physical drill, and a navigation drill with fleets of white sailboats dotting the Severn. Helen and I were whisked from one event to the other until we were breathless not only from excitement but the constant hurry.

One day we made a tour of the Yard—although in most cases it was a question of viewing from afar. We could not go to the boys' rooms. Instead we saw "Joe Oish's room" a sample midshipman's room. We could not go to Smoke Park for only first classmen may take girls in, so we had a glimpse of it from Memorial hall. We could not go aboard the battleship Arkansas because the admiral was having a party.

However, we saw all of the class rooms, the chapel, and Tecumseh. This great Indian figure in front of Bancroft hall is the good luck charm of the regiment. He is depended upon for success in exams and for victory in the Army-Navy game. Tribute is paid him with a shower of pennies before all of these occasions.

We also saw John Paul Jones' tomb. He is buried on the Academy grounds. Indeed, he is not only buried, he is literally pickled in alcohol, for his casket is filled with it. The custom set a precedent for all the future Navy officers—only nowadays they don't wait until they die.

A few hours later, the boys left us, reminding us to be ready on the dot that night. It was the night of the Ring Dance, the most important event of the week. Was it not the night when every second classman received his senior class ring—the ring he had admired and worn for months in the privacy of his room?

The dance floor was encircled with dozens of gold cardboard rings equipped with colored lights for stones. In the center of the floor stood the largest one of all, its stone a brilliant red. As each couple filed through it, the girl slipped the ring on her midshipman's finger, and she, in turn, received a kiss.

I remember my breathless suspense, as I stood for an endless minute trying to get the ring on Bob's finger. It would not go over his knuckle. As I looked up at him beseechingly, he kissed me anyway and we departed under a battery of laughing eyes.

Graduation followed, with a thousand white caps flying in the air, and gold epaulets bobbing for the first time on a thousand pairs of shoulders.

Helen and I hurried out of the hall to meet Bob and Jack. It was over. We could walk leisurely homeward, have a quiet dinner, take a trip to Washington—by car. When we found the boys they were in white works, caps slightly awry, laundry bags full of clothes slung over their shoulders

"Goodbye, girls, it's been a swell week. See you at September leave," they said almost in unison. They set out on the run for the docks.

"Where are you going?" I called after them.

"We sail at noon. Have to get our bunks stowed,"—and they were gone.

"Now I know," said Helen ruefully, "why they say Navy men are fast. They get into the habit after running around up here for four years." And I more than half agreed with her.

Forum Debates Supreme Court Judge Problem

Continued from page one

last eleven amendments. Giving the president more control of the judiciary, she said, is not giving the law-making power to the branch of government to which it rightfully belongs and she attempted to show that if this plan materializes the president may become a dictator.

In the rebuttal Katherine stated that the greater number of judges would reduce their efficiency in acting, and Clotilde brought out that lawyers differ on this point and the assertion can not be proved.

ADAMS STUDIO

"Photographs that Please"

119½ E College Ave. Phone 297

Music School Plans Program

Organ Guild to Sponsor Pop Concert at Gym Saturday Night

A program of semi-classical music and a floor show will be features of the "pop concert" to be presented in the gymnasium tomorrow night at 7:45 o'clock by the college symphony orchestra, assisted by vocalists from the School of Music. Sponsored by the American Guild of Organists, this concert is completely under student management.

The floor show will include a specialty dance; a violin trio by Evelyn Patterson, Betty Parker, and Annabelle Larson; and a program of popular songs by Edna Jacobian. During the concert Jo Binion and Margaret Malser will sing.

Admission will be twenty-five cents, with a small additional charge for sandwiches and soft drinks, which will be served by members of the Guild be served by placed around in the gymnasium. The proceeds from this concert will be used to finance the tri-state Guild convention to be held at Florida State College next year. Tickets may be obtained from Margaret Melzer, Miss Margaret Whitney Dow, or any other members of the Guild.

Margaret Melzer, chairman of the concert committee, has asked all who attend to dress formally.

THE SWEET SHOP

707 W. Jefferson Phone 1091 Opposite Gilchrist We Deliver

—WEEKEND SPECIAL—

Try Our Salami and Swiss Cheese Sandwich 10c

Visit Our New Toiletries Department

Life Saving Class Held on Saturdays

Classes at which the requirements for passing life saving tests will be thought are being held Saturday morning from 11:30 to 12:30 o'clock under the direction of Frances Thill. Life saving tests will be given in the middle of March, and the classes of instruction are open to everybody.

"Perfect Convocation" Ideas Proffered Faculty by Girls

Continued from page one

on, no matter if it suits everybody else."

Juniors came next in the line of questioning. The majority of them were for not having any convocation at all. Nearly every girl when approached with this question on convocation said, "Not any at all." One broke the monotony by saying, "Postpone them indefinitely."

A few gave some suggestions, however. One said, "strictly musical. That is, classical and jazz music in the same program so as to please everyone. Music that students are acquainted with."

Another one said that the programs that are given now are all right.

One junior said, "Give me singing, dancing, and plays all rolled up in one program. And cut out all the announcements."

The freshman class was well represented in their percentage of replies and suggestions for the perfect convocation program. One freshman said that to her the perfect program would be to have entertainment put on by student talent that would be pleasing to all the students. She added that the programs given now are so dry and boring that "We need local talent."

Another freshman said that she would like to hear some noted authority speak on an interesting subject. One whose name would be recognized anywhere.

Still another freshman said "None at all." "Give us a free period. I could certainly use it."

Another one said that she would like a program of student talent that she wouldn't be compelled to attend. She said that the compulsion of attendance to the program would spoil all the enjoyment she might get out of it.

Another one added "Give us nothing but announcements and let us go." And still another—"Singing and dancing."

Eight Return From Meeting

Continued from page one

bricklayers and others of the skilled craft. There is a potential building boom ahead, and workers should be prepared for the jobs for this."

United States Senator Gerald P. Nye of North Dakota, in addressing a department of the national education association on "Preparedness for Peace," outlined the need of this country for uncompromised neutrality legislation that will take the profit out of war and that will be based on the acknowledgment that wars do not bring prosperity.

Fred C. Smith, dean of the University of Tennessee and executive secretary of the national vocational guidance association told the association that boys and girls should determine what career they wish to follow before they are sixteen years of age. "As to the selection of a life's work this should be left to the individual as a general rule," he said. "Give him the necessary information on which to make a sensible choice and let the child choose."

Miss Irma Voigt, dean of women at Ohio university and national president of the association of deans of women told the association that there is in the nation today enough idle, unhappy, defeated youth to cause a revolution. Of 15,000,000 youths between sixteen and twenty-five years of age who grew up with the assurance that education and hard work were the open sesame to respectable jobs, homes of their own, and honored places in the eyes of their fellow men, 3,000,000 are not in school and have no jobs through no fault of their own. Miss Voigt is in favor of continuing N.Y.A. because of the thousands of young people who would be deprived of their chance for an education if it ceased.

Picture Made Here Is Used By Newspaper

Telescopic Observation Shot Shows Activity Of FSC Students

On three recent occasions pictures from Florida State College for Women have been used in the national feature service. The most recent was a picture of Gladys Ware, Martha Lester, and Evelyn Hammond, members of the astronomy club observing the heavens through the club's large telescope. Although it will not be known for several weeks or more which papers have used the picture, Miss Rachel Pitchford of the publicity department has already received the clipping from the Boston Post where the picture was used through the Acme News service.

This picture was also used in the Times Union this week and it is reported that it has been printed in a St. Louis paper. The caption under the picture is: "A portable telescope, with a five and three-eighths inch-lens which magnifies from fifty to 350 times, permits the students of the Florida State College for Women as pictured above, to make their own astronomical observation. A polarised protective eyepiece allows them to study sun spots, in this picture."

A picture of Mary Jeanne McKay was used recently by the Associated Press feature service with the following caption: "Tallahassee—Mary Joanne McKay, president of the College Government Association of Florida State College for Women, has proposed a "National Peace Day" celebration April 17 in all American colleges and universities."

Several pictures of Katherine Rawls, Olympic star, were used by the national feature service during November.

Game Presents Library Gift

Continued from page one

contract, 2200 B. C.; from Senkerah, contract from about 2200 B. C.; from Senkereh, a sun dried exercise tablet from 2200 B. C.; from Babylon, a business contract in Nebuchadnezzar's reign; from Jokha, a temple record, sealed with the royal seal of the King of Ur of the Chaldees, dated about 2350 B. C.; from Jokha, temple record, sealed and dated 2350 B. C.; all from Jokha, temple records of the offerings, sealed and dated about 2350 B. C from Warka, the Biblical Erech of Genesis 10:10—a votive cone with the inscription "For Sin-ga-shid, the mighty hero, king of Erech, King of Amanu, in the temple of the Goddess Ishtar which he built the royal residence of his kingdom, from about 2100 B. C.; a votive tablet from Warka, with the same inscription as upon the cone.

Youthful

RIGHT DOWN TO YOUR TOES!

There's youthful swing to the new Naturalizers — and a youthful swing to your step when you wear these shoes made on the famous Fins-Fit Lasts. Even your budget feels gay about them...they cost only

$6.75

GARDWYN

Don't Spend Your Life

Two feet from happiness

wear

Naturalizers

Choice of . . . Navy Gabardine and Calf; Grey Gabardine and Calf; All Black Patent.

VOGUE SHOE PARLOR

Tallahassee

"We Have Your Size"

Bridges Talks of Things From Keats to Climate

Continued from page one

through an interpretation of the origin of artistic motifs in the minds of the people. In art appreciation some work has been done, but it has been for the most part on the simpler subjects of line and composition and not the aesthetic appreciation of whole paintings.

In the practical field of medicine, psychology has much to offer also, not only in the field of psychiatry but even in the study of organic diseases, many of which may have as contributing factors psychological upsets which affect bodily functions.

Dr. Bridges has traveled extensively and this is not his first trip to Florida. Considering the winter climate, he cannot understand why there is not a wholesale migration southward.

The buildings and equipment at this college impressed him very favorably. As to student regulation, Dr. Bridges finds McGill different from Florida State. Attendance at a certain percentage of lectures is required but there is no compulsory convocation or chapel. The university is a mixture of American and European, the Scotch influence predominating as it is modeled after the University of Edinburgh.

Dr. Bridges, who was the guest of the psychology department Monday afternoon and Tuesday besides being professor at McGill, is the author of four books, An Outline of Abnormal Psychology; Psychology, Normal and Abnormal, a work intended particularly for medical students and practitioners; Personality: Many in One, a study of intellect, temperment, and character; and The Meaning and Varieties of Love, a book coupling a philosophic appreciation with a scientific and poetic approach to the affect of love on man in all human relations.

Students Visit Camp

Students who attend Congregational churches at home are spending the week-end at Camp Flastacowo, where they will be joined tomorrow by Miss Lucy Eldridge and Miss Pattie Lee Coghill, state Congregational young people's secretary.

Salesmanship Fails to Get FSC Damsels

Florida Review Editors Receive No Material Gains on Campus

By RUTH ATKINSON

Using all of the arts of salesmanship, the powers of persuasion, and the influences of personality, two Gainesville boys last Saturday afternoon managed to extract one lone dollar from the students of F. S. C. W. The lone dollar, in the form of ten thin dimes, was exchanged for ten copies of the Florida Review, the University of Florida magazine that corresponds to the Distaff which is published on this campus.

In an attempt to bring the two state colleges closer together through interest in student literary efforts, two members of the editorial staff of the Florida Review brought 170 copies of the magazine to the F. S. C. W. campus. Their trip was practically useless, as far as any material result was concerned. Girls gathered around the two tables that had been converted into temporary booths; exchanged remarks with the two student salesmen; inveigled them to give sales talks; persuaded them to tell of the comparative value of the winter and fall issues; and then either with a mock seriousness or an apologetic giggle explained that they were "broke."

Girls on their way to the show, girls on their way to "Spic" and the Sweet shop; girls with money to put in the nickleodian, money to buy extra candy and extra "cokes," found it impossible to "spare a dime" for the literary publication of our brother institution.

"Florida Reviews—10 cents" was the optimistic sign tacked to the improvised booths. However, the modesty in price, the cleverness of the salesman, and the worthiness of the article for sale were all futile so far as the intellectuals of the campus were concerned. They enjoyed the company of the boys, and admired their efforts, but were careful not to be separated from a tenth part of a dollar.

Copies of the "Review" have been put on sale at the Sweet shop.

Mrs. Alice Hersey Wick, grand president of the Sigma Kappa sorority, is visiting the Omega chapter of Sigma Kappa until Sunday. She will assist in the initiation this week-end.

FROCKS WITH PRICE AND STYLE APPEAL

See these "darlings." New lines, new colors. Visualize yourself in these new modes!

COLORS:

Powder Thistle
Beige Navy
Chamois Grey
St. James Aqua

Also the Varigated Prints!

SIZES: 9 to 44.

Diana Shop

Sports Squints

By "JINKS" BROOKS

Intramurals are well under way after this week of playing. The tentative club carried off the honors in ping-pong, both doubles and singles the first of the week and archery is still in the process of being played for the players get keepin individual scores.

Next week-end will bring the once-wide basketball tournament to the campus. The tournament will be played in the gym, giving all the girls on campus a chance to see home-town favorites in action and to see a little competition in sports among the men . . . seldom seen on this campus.

The freshman carnival will provide much amusement next week with darting darts, target practice, and flash ponds supplementing over-popular fountains filled bottles and refreshment stands. All those girls who have ever resisted taking swimming will have a chance to show their skill to the rooters-on who will be trying to remember how they sat in a few years back.

We have been getting anonymous reports of a golf tournament to be plan-ning revived on the campus this year. Good enough, to be exact. And from said reports, we would say the Japanese wouldn't be able to recognize it.

The gym-major folk-dancing has danced again for the Florida Art Festival every year. The invitation demanded for performances recently and really do credit to that department.

Miss Montgomery and Miss Autrey recently were asked to re-port on the freshman orientation program in practice here in the physical education department, being a meeting of the National Society of Physical Education Directors, and at Wisconsin university. Even though the freshmen at present may think so much of the program, it has evidently gained much recognition from other institutions.

With the recent meeting of the athletic board, we remember that baseball, tennis, and swimming are the next sports for the season. Practices for all of them will begin right away. Diamond ball is displacing baseball this year in order to eliminate "pitchers' battles." The students will be with the faculty in a tennis tournament during the year. Both will prove interesting to all who remember the games played last year. And the swimming devotees will start next week. The freshmen will have their swimming meet on March 12.

The plunge periods during the hot warm spells have found many classes in the pool. Several have had rather sad experiences concerning the color of their bathing suits, for it seems no one can remember just what colors are allowed in the shallow end and which are not in the deep end.

To date we have heard of but one casualty in the pool — and that was during a swimming class. Two swimmers met in head-on collision, and while one is now sporting a beautiful "shiner" there are no reports on the other participant.

Our condolences to Helen Stowe, who missed goal-keeper in all three games of Odd-Even soccer and then ran down a ball and wrenched her ankle! That belongs in history as an instance of the "whanky of life."

Two Major Offices Have One Nominee

Continued from page one

Other co-candidates for the editorship of the Flambeau, Eileen Edmunds is the sole nominee for the editor position of the Flastlight.

Nell Colvin and Mary Emily Parker will oppose each other for business manager of the Flambeau, Alice Quinn is unopposed for business manager of the Flastlight, and Sallie Burt Nunnally is the only claimant to the position of business manager of the Flastlight staff.

Polling headquarters for the primary Tuesday will be open from 1:30 to 6 o'clock in the room of house chairmen of the dormitories and at the administration building for off-campus students. Previous records of attendance for executive council positions will be reviewed at the 11:30 student body meeting by Mary Jeanne McKay, chairman of the council. She will include officers for which there are more than two candidates.

Final candidates for college government and publication offices will make their campaign speeches at another special student body meeting Wednesday night at 7:3 o'clock. After these speeches the vote will be thrown open for questioning of candidates by members of student body.

The final elections for these offices will take place Thursday. On the following Tuesday the inauguration of college government officials will be held.

Swimming Meet Centers About Teaching Part

Delegates Attending Sum Up Highlights Given At Convention

Reports on the swimming convention held in Port Lauderdale were given Wednesday night before the Physical Education association by the students and faculty members who attended that meeting.

Miss Betty Washburn, in charge of the program, sketched a brief history of the convention's origin. The idea grew, she said, from Colgate's practice of training its swimmers in the south. The change to a Florida convention and students was completed by 1935 when the first of these conventions was held in Fort Lauderdale.

Miss Ray Fraser continued the program with a summary of Josephine Rathbone's talk on "The Art of Teaching Swimming Strokes Exercises." This speech, according to Miss Fraser, emphasized the care that treatment of infantile paralysis cases required. The beginning stroke, she said, and the amount of exercise must be carefully regulated for each.

The high points in Mr. MacMann's discussion of teaching beginning and advanced diving were recalled by Sarah Hethcox. For instructing a beginner, Mr. Mann said, the most important factor in learning from merely falling into the water to actually diving is to instead the beginner to think of diving as standing on his head on the water with his arms rather than his feet, and to hold his breath as he enters the water in the method of the waver.

Florence Ward next condensed Mr. Al Gordon's talks, "Fear of the Water" and "Teaching the Beginner." The first, Miss Ward said, fear under two heads: the fear of strangling and the fear of being unable to regain one's feet. The second defined swimming as the process of floating while the arms and legs propelled the body through the water. In teaching swimming, Florence said, kicking, breathing, and arm motions were practiced separately and then integrated into one style.

"Judging Diving," a talk given at Port Lauderdale by Mr. Sherry Ortland, was summarized by Janet Cook. Three aspects upon which to criticize dives were listed as the hurdle, the aerial appearance and the entry into the water. All these were to be judged in regard to control, grace, and finish, Janet added, and should be graded in relation to the ability of the group being judged. The officials too should be placed at various parts of the pool so as to see different angles of the dives.

Lastly, Marion Weeks reviewed the chief points of an informal talk given by Miss Gertrude Ossman of South college the first days of the new pool at Port Lauderdale and the swimming tower with slanes windows that enable the instructor to watch his pupil from under water. In respect to teaching large classes, Miss Ross stressed the importance of working most with the beginner. She also stated that no rigid methods of beginning or teaching should be used; instead the methods should be adapted to the individual.

Seven Reunions Slated For This Year Alumnae Office Records Show

Seven graduating classes are due for reunions at commencement this May, records in the alumnae office show. They are the classes of 1926, which is scheduled for a second-year reunion; 1922, fifth year; 1927, tenth year; 1922, fifteenth year; 1917, twentieth year; 1912, twenty-fifth year; and 1907, thirtieth year.

Up-to-date class lists are now being prepared in the alumnae office for use of the class presidents in informing their classmates about reunion plans.

Permanent class presidents of the reunioning classes are: 1925, Mrs. Jessie Rae Hall Conn; 1922, Miss Clementine Newman; 1922, Miss Helen Harris; 1917, Mrs. Hazel Grimes Core; 1912, Mrs. Acree Granberry Chalker; 1907, Mrs. Susie Hunt Bridges.

Information is being sought by the alumnae office as to who is president of each of these clubs. Anyone having this information is requested to notify the alumnae office immediately.

and Athletic association officials will be voted on. These include: one chairmen, off-campus committee members and all offices of the Athletic association.

Y.W.C.A. for the first time is holding its election within its own membership, rather than with other groups as has been done in the past.

Tarpon Club Meets After Convocation

The Tarpon club, a newly organized swimming club on the campus, will hold its first meeting Tuesday morning immediately after convocation to discuss the club's aims and organization and decide upon the dates and hours for practice and other meetings.

Anyone interested may attend the meeting.

All Students Can Be Poets From Opines

Recent Interviews Show Many Students Make Poetic Attempts

By Alicia Meacham

Every student of Florida State College is a potential poet.

One of the theories said so.

According to this informer, anyone who desires may be a poet. She has only to seclude herself and settle down her thoughts. The freshman confided that she herself sets up at 6 o'clock every morning—and almost every morning—for a period of meditating and composing verse.

In the course of recent interviews, a large percentage of the student body do attempt to write verse. They differ widely in their themes and in their methods.

A prominent senior likes to write when she's in bed. It follows quite naturally that she does all her writing there. And, it contrast, there is the sorority girl who writes when she is not in bed. As a result most of her poems are sad: how-er, on the whole, she is a cheerful person. As a letter, her works become happier.

An off-campus student, who has had several poems in the Opines, described her method of writing. When a new idea is presented to her, she considers it until she has thought it through. When her thoughts crystallize she transcribes her poem.

It is a matter of controversy among the students whether the life on this campus is conducive to writing verse or not. Some say that there are too many people and too much noise, while others insist that the new experiences, the contacts with all types of girls, and the wealth of good poetry that may be had here inspire them to compose every day.

Most of the would-be poets agree that it is much easier to have inspiration and then sit down and write than it is to attempt doggedly figuring out an idea and a rhyme scheme. These poetic gentle come at unexpected times and conform to no rule; however, it is generally conceded that a gloomy, rainy day is helpful as well as putting one in a despondent, melancholy frame of mind.

A literary junior tells of her experience with "inspiration" as a freshman. She had been reading in that time poems in the Distaff, the kind that no one understands. She became convinced that she would write a poem that no one could understand. She wrote feverishly until three o'clock and she had only begun. She opened the door of her room and, placing a chair in the doorway, wrote by the lamp in the hall. Much later she was interrupted and severely scolded by the night matron. This so frightened her that she is a little more rational and she now writes at a reasonable hour.

A four chairman is the only one who does all her writing without the aid of inspiration." She has composed various kinds of poems but her best one is a nature poem on Florida.

One of the most popular girls on campus likes to make character sketches of her poems. She is interested in studying human nature and usually scores her in centive to write while observing people.

A junior, who is always writing ditties and jingles, has an ambition to write a long poem in blank verse. Every time she hears a sentence or a phrase that reminds her of Edward Arlington Robinson she jots it down. She is going to use all of those expressions in her long narrative poem which she has an inclined to her life.

A freshman, after much urging, displayed an abstract poem. "Illustrable," which had been published in her high school paper and for which she had received a prize.

A. C. G. A. officer likes to write down all her emotional experience. She believes with Browning that everyone has "pinnacle moments," only, instead of waiting to die during one, she prefers to put it into words so that she may read it and relive it later.

Table Tennis Games Won By Newman Group

Minor Team Intramurals Tournaments Begun This Week

Intramurals in minor team sports began this week with table tennis games and the beginning of the archery shoots. Newman club won the first games played in singles and doubles of table tennis. Shuffleboard will begin next week.

Members of the teams participating are: Shuffleboard, Pat Cambell and Kitty Green; A.-A. T.: Lillian Simmons and Elspeth Griffin, Phi Mu; Carolyn Mills and Janet Mattern, Pi Phi; Mickey Conn and Ermine Lawrence, Everem; Helen Ballenger and Dot Benford, Kappa Delta; Lucille Hamelton and Margaret Thorpe Reynolds; Marion Purviance and Margaret Walcott, Sophomore council; Mary Jean McKay and Katharine Autrey, Spitroirs; Louise Brown and Joan Johnston, Chi Omega; Victoria Crisp and Mickey Brosnan, Alpha Xi Delta; Louise Price and Margaret Patterson, Z. T.A.

Table tennis singles. Valeria Hunt, Theta Upsilon; Marie Jeffries, Newman Club; Betty White, Episcopal; Jeanne Magnus, A. A. Pi; Julia Triplett, Alpha Xi Delta; Hilda Spradlin, Esterch; Pat Moon, Delta Zeta. Betty Dell, Chi Omega; Lynn Ray, Kappa Delta; Ernestine Makemson, Seminole; Nell Colvin, Sophomore council; Winifred Ewart, Spiroi; Esther Schowe, Z. T. A.; Marjorie Horton, K. A. T.; Doris Dyson, Phi Mu; Martha Robbins, Pi Phi. Tabby tennis doubles, Betty White and Sally Ratliffe, Episcopal; Jeanne Marmon and Betty Barry, A. O. Pi; Mary Kaney and Frances Fryer, Alpha Xi Delta; Jean Lykes and Ann Mimel, Esterian; Margaret Mickler and Sunny Dell, Chi Omega; Kay Harris and Pat Moore Delta Zeta. Erma Engle, Kappa Delta; Frances Douglas and Marion Purviance, Presbyterian.

Annual Statewide Boy's Basketball Tournament Will Be Played in Gym

Students of Florida High School will this year be hosts at the annual statewide boys' basketball tournament in which representatives from twenty-six districts throughout the state will participate. This is the largest number of teams ever to enroll in the contests.

The tournament will start Thursday, March 4 and will continue through Saturday, March 6 The games, which will be played in the college gymnasium will begin at 9:30 A. M. on Thursday and Friday, and will last through the afternoon and evening of those days. The final games will begin at 4:30 on Saturday morning, will continue through the afternoon, and the finals will be played on Saturday night.

Sophomore council: Virginia Makemson and Seminole allen, Seminole; Martha Makemson and Mary Miller, Spirotrs; Esther Schowe and Frances Waterhouse, Z. T. A.; Yvonne Marchesseau and Sidney Moore, Newman club; Annie Laurie Polk and Lillian Burford, K. A. T.; Betty Simmons and Elspeth Griffin, Phi Mu; Marjorie Stewart and Marie Anderson, Pi Phi.

Archery, Mary Ellen Lovelace, Helen Brown, and Fay Covey, Alpha Xi Delta; Frances Waterhouse, Z. T. A.; Sara Lytle, Beth Deane, and Betty Hatch, Spororita; Connie Wallace, Sophomore council; Julia Rosser, Virginia Makemson, Reynolds; Sara Moore and Jean Webster, K. D.; Louise Gehan and Betty Cotland, Esterm; Janet Jewett, Winifred Ewart, Polly Ann White, Betty Wynn, and Jane Taylor, Spiroi; Betty Booser and Lois Woodward, Pi Phi; Katherine Bacon, Betty Bernruter, Charlotte Kamper, and Sally Ratliffe, Episcopal; Dot Barr, Alpha Delta Pi; Jeanne Magnus, A. A. Pi; Frances Price, K. A. T.; Jackie Mayo Martin, Chi Omega; Wilda Finlayson, Chi Omega; Yvonne Marchesseau and Sidney Moore, Newman club; and Virginia Taylor and Martha Lester, Presbyterian.

F Club Takes Majors 21-16

Game is Official Rating Test for Outsid And Stevens

The P-Club was the winner in a basketball game with the gym-majors last night at play night, the primary purpose of which was to provide an opportunity for Betty Cotlund and Mrs. Hazel Stevens to referee a game for their official basketball rating test, which they passed.

At the end of the first half the P-Club was leading by a score of 11 to 10, while the final score was 21 to 16.

The gym-major team included: Loyal, Lowery, Moore (forward); Marchesseau, West, and Price (guards). Substitutes for the team are Simmons and McLain. Lewis, Covey, Glaster (forwards); Miller, Weeks, and Vierieil (guards) made up the P-Club team. West and Vierieil captained the teams.

For the P-Club Glaster scored seven points Covey six points and Lewis eight points. Lytal scored eight points. Marchesseau four points, and four points by each of the gym-majors.

The scores for the game were Valerie Hunt and Edith Deane, while Ruth Wilson and Betty Hammond served as timers. Irene Fender was the card official.

F Club Makes Changes In Goating Procedure

"F" club goating as changed by a revisory committee, is to be put on a "more personal basis" with more attention given to each girl as an individual. This change was necessitated by alterations in other rules and regulations that left the goating system outdated.

The committee making this change consisted of: Lonne Gehan, Betty Cotland, Frances Thill, Valerie Hunt and Miss Betty Washburn, faculty advisor.

Swimming Meeting Practice Scheduled

Practice for Odd and Even swimming teams begins Monday Girls going out for the teams will practice twice a week during the plunge periods, starting their names and class on a "make-up" card and listing their particular interest in swimming on the back of the cards each time they practice. Sara Hethcox, Janet Cook, Valerie Hunt, and S. J. Stambaugh are in charge of the teams and the practices.

Freshman Swim Meet Date is Set by Hunt For March 12 at Pool

The annual Freshman swimming meet, one of the more important events of the year for freshmen, is to be held March 12, at 4:00 o'clock in the new pool according to Valerie Hunt, in charge.

There will be events and features of the program which girls may enter in the "swim" and the fun of a contest will enjoy as well as some more advanced races and exhibitions for the best freshmen swimmers.

The regulations and requirements for the meet will be posted on the bulletin board in the Administration building, and all freshmen who want to enter may sign up there.

College Joins Florida State Peace Program

Continued from page one

Lykes, ushers, and have William programs; Barbsar and Jane Hubbard, lights; Eleanor Flint, costumes; and Miss Elizabeth Thompson, faculty advisor.

Kappa Alpha Theta held pledge service Monday night for Virginia Singletary of Coral Gables

Reports Asked On Plan Here

Autrey and Montgomery To Talk on Physical Orientation Here

Reports of the orientation program in physical education inaugurated this year at Florida State College for Women have been requested of two members of the faculty of the physical education department.

Miss Elizabeth Autrey, who is on leave of absence this year in order to study for a master's degree at Wisconsin University has been requested by Miss Ruth Grafton, National Education Director of physical education at Wisconsin, to give talks to the professional education classes at the university concerning the freshman orientation program used here this year.

Mrs Glasgow has also asked Miss Katherine Montgomery, director of the physical education department at Florida State College for Women to give a ten minute report on Florida State's orientation program at the meeting of the National Society of Directors of Physical Education for College Women in New York city on April 29.

Miss Montgomery's report will include the purpose of the course, an outline of each of the subdivisions of the department, the equipment to provide a basis for discussion of intelligent understanding, the contents of the course, something of the administration, and its relation to the rest of the program.

Pictures Sent To University

Continued from page one

Pi Del a Marjory Hart, Pi Beta Phi, Pearl Gay, Phi Mu; Esther Lee Lorrett, Theta Upsilon; Nell Woodham, Sigma Kappa; and Marie Thede, Zeta Tau Alpha.

"Why I Choose CAMELS"

"CAMELS HELP MAKE THE FEELING OF NERVOUS PRESSURE FADE OUT," Says Herbert Weast, Sophomore.

MENTAL WORK—especially long hours of incessive study—can slow up digestion. Herbert Weast, Class of 1939, says: "Camels are a real aid. They help make the feeling of nervous pressure fade out, and get me set for a hearty meal. I work better, too, since I've discovered I get a refreshing 'lift' in energy with a Camel. Camels set my right. Enjoy Camel's costlier tobaccos the whole day through. At mealtimes Camels are an aid to digestion—speeding up the flow of digestive fluids—increasing alkalinity—bringing a sense of ease and well-being. Steady smokers prefer Camels. They are so mild! They don't jangle the nerves, tire the taste, or irritate sensitive throats.

SMILING JIMMIE FOXX—hard hitting first baseman of Boston Red Sox, says: "I smoke Camels with meals and after for the help they give my digestion."

SIDNEY S. WESTCOTT, consulting engineer: "My work involves constant danger. That's why I always smoke Camels. Camels don't frazzle my nerves—ever."

"I'M A SECRETARY," says attractive Jaclyn Libby, "and often have to eat in hurry. That's why I smoke Camels at mealtimes. I feel on top of the world."

"CAMELS help me keep peppedup," writes Mrs. Thomas Hoxsey, Betty Steffen, says: "In my work I see many famous people. And most of them smoke Camels."

"I WANT A CIGARETTE that doesn't jangle my nerves," says master welder Joel Rafferty. "And Camels don't. They go fine with meals too."

CHIEF ENGINEER George S. Buckingham says: "It's a great train keeping tone-up high-powered machinery under control. Camels help ease the tension."

COSTLIER TOBACCOS

Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS—not more than any other popular brand.

"JACK OAKIE'S COLLEGE" stiff Jack's gang of show stars in person! Every Goodness! "Swing" Band! Hollywood romance and laughing-mad! Special college entertainment every week! Tuesdays 9:30 p.m. E.S.T., 8:30 p.m. C.S.T., 7:30 p.m. M.S.T., 6:30 p.m. P.S.T., WABC-CBS Network.

—for Digestion's Sake—smoke Camels!

The Florida Flambeau

EDITORIAL STAFF

HAZEL BOWMAN .... Editor
ELEANOR WILLIAMS .... Associate Editor
MARTHA BAKER .... Assistant Editor
PEARLE SHEPARD .... Managing Editor
EVELYN FISHER .... News Editor

Member National Scholastic Press association and Florida Intercollegiate Press association

DEPARTMENTS

Art, Evelyn Glazier. Exchanges Virginia Early; Features Arline Orey Lockhart and Jane Quinn. Literary Sarah Beth Davis and Sarah Sealey Outside News Clotilde O'Rourke Society Margaret Claire Lafferty and Minne Agress Assistant Special Reporting Arline Lockhart Mary Lynn Massie. Sports Ella Virginia Brooks and Elizabeth Turner
REPORTERS Hazel Adams Ruth Atkinson Dorothy Barclay Blanton Barrett Dorothy Bellamy Frances Brunson Petrea Cabaniss Elizabeth Causey Theresa Christel Glenn Coarsey Emory Coleman Virginia Davis Hazel Donnegan Maxine Fussate Mary Gober Margaret Gourlie Irene Howe Betty Lou Ingermann Lucy Kelly Ann Ladd Betty Leach Martha Lumpkin Anne Lydcane Mary Jeanne McKay Alicia Meacham Mary Noble Alberta Patrick Janet Pierce. Marion Purviance Nancy Rogero Jane Sharon Lavina Spaulding Elizabeth Spicer Mary Sullivan Alma Warren Frances Weterhouse

BUSINESS STAFF

LILLIE McGUIRE .... Business Manager
NAN O'SHAUGHNESSY .... Advertising Manager
MARGUERITE BROWN .... Circulation Mgr

Represented for National Advertising by
NATIONAL ADVERTISING SERVICE INC
College Publishers Representative
420 Madison Ave New York N Y
Chicago - Boston - San Francisco - Los Angeles
Portland - Seattle

Entered as second class mail matter January 30, 1915 at the post office at Tallahassee Fla under act of Congress of March 3 1879

U. of Fla. Student On the General College

Nursing our two-year "revised curriculum" along through its first year of infancy, we can hardly judge fairly as yet our "general education" plan on the basis of its stated objectives.

Perhaps, only through the reactions of some of its students, in their outlook on college and life and in their understanding of the philosophy underlying a general college plan, can we have any indication of how whole-heartedly professors themselves have embraced the general college philosophy in their methods of teaching.

As the General College at the University of Florida has had one year's experience more than our plan now in effect, we have chosen to print an editorial describing the University's General College from a student's point of view. This editorial is written by a second-year student in the General College of the university.

The Flambeau welcomes any comments from freshmen or others in response to this editorial.

In June nearly eight hundred men will receive, if they make application, the degree of Associate of Arts from the University of Florida. These men will be the first to have graduated from the General College of that institution, and their certificates will bear witness to the fact that they have passed six comprehensive examinations. The fields they have covered will be broad and varied, for the six-hour examinations given at the end of the school year cover the social, physical, and biological sciences as well as general mathematics, man and his thinking, and the humanities, which is a very inclusive subject embracing history, philosophy, literature, music and the visual arts.

The purpose of the General College is to broaden the basic training of its students in order that, on a foundation which has significance and meaning to the men, they will be able to add the special training of the colleges and professional schools of the upper division, or drop out of the university with something definite and helpful as they begin their lives as citizens.

In offering an opportunity for general education and providing the guidance needed by all new men the choice of professional work is postponed until the student knows better his capacity and disposition to undertake work that will be most profitable to himself and society. The General College accomplishes this by giving the students a broader base from which to work and therefore a much more inclusive group from which to choose their majors.

For those men who have only a limited time to give to college training this new educational plan is of utmost importance, for they are more concerned with general viewpoints and major undertakings than introductions to special subject matter fields which they may never enter. A man equipped to carry on a discussion of the basic principles of economics and the ability to write a good letter in case of need would seem to be of more value than one who has dabbled in a freshman French course or introductory psychology.

But the major function of the General College is to provide for the constant adjustments required in higher education incident to the changes and conditions of modern life and to prepare men to understand the world in which they are living. The subject matter of the various courses is constantly changed in order to awaken the interest of the students, to stimulate their intellectual curiosity, and to cultivate the attitudes necessary for enlighened citizenship.

Certainly, we cannot predict the results of this revolutionary system, but as we carry on under the guidance of invigorating instructors and stop occasionally to take stock of what has crept into our heads in the last year and a half, of how the General College is aiding us in the formation of plans for further study, and in broadening our outlook, we can only say that we feel fortunate to be enrolled in this new and interesting General College.—By Tony Harlow.

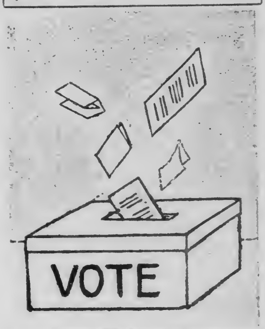
He Who Laughs Last Is Not Always Amused

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is not necessarily the opinion of any other member of the Flambeau staff.

One who has heard students blaming "the faculty" with all their real and imagined ills for three years naturally comes to believe that faculty members are to blame for student troubles. But when in the fourth year of hearing such complaints and at the same time seeing signs everywhere of student indifference and lack of cooperation the close observer cannot help but see that someone somewhere has made a mistake. Our point is this: how can the faculty be blamed for poor regulations and lack of progress when the students who voice their complaints in the loudest tones keep a mirthful silence when it comes time for action.

The reading public will want concrete examples with which to judge our opinion that the students on this campus are far too indifferent for their own good and that of society. Take for example then a recent student senate meeting to which all members had been invited to bring suggestions for changes in existing legislation on social regulations. Here was a rare opportunity for those who are so blatant in their judgments of "the faculty." Representatives should have called their constituents together, found out what suggestions these students had to offer. Then on their own they should have made a point of bringing to the meeting some ideas for group discussion.

At that meeting three suggested amendments for existing legislation were offered by two representatives. These suggestions were heard amid the whipering and giggling of assembled "campus leaders," supposedly on hand to do some serious thinking as student representatives. No one offered any discussion of an intelligient or adult nature. The only sounds were giggles of representatives choked with mirth over some insignificant detail.



If this thing happened only once during a year it would be a matter of slight importance. But when it happens at every senate meeting, even when a large delegation of visitors are present to hear senate's view on "peace day" and "anti-war strikes," when it happens in every senior class meeting, when the student body offers no suggestions in convocation meetings devoted to accepting new legislation, when students have to be forced by convocation fines to attend their own student body meetings, when few of them attend N. S. F. A. forums—the judgment cannot help but coincide with that of a sophomore who wrote two years ago, "students here are crassly indifferent."

We upperclassmen attempt to dictate to the freshmen during orientation what their proper demeanor on campus should be. We shout loudly and vociferously about "duty" and "cooperation," "programs" and "projects," 'the youth of America,' and so forth. But when it comes to the point of setting them an example to follow we fail so miserably that we ourselves should have to take the training course which we foist on first-yearmen.

Popularity does not come to one as the result of an expression of unadulterated opinion, and for that reason the few on campus who really understand why student government is failing have kept silence too long. But if the campus is to take advantage of the progress which the present college government administration has been able to achieve for students here, that silence must be broken. Every student must understand, whether she is a "leader" or not, that self-government is a responsibility which giggling will not make lighter. Student government will fail here as it has failed in many other institutions if those responsible for working out technicalities in senate do not soon grow up.

Signed Hazel Bowman.

Spirit of the Week . . . . By Glazier

This Week

Supreme Court Issue Spreads Over Nation

The Supreme Court issue, which has spread from the Senate in Washington to every political gathering and family fireside, continues to hold the spotlight in the nation's news.

The fight over the court promises to become one of the classic debates in history while the people of the United States are being given a lesson, by press and by radio, in constitutional history and theory of government.

Arguments in favor of the president's proposal may be summarized as follows: (1) the plan is constitutional; (2) it is not without precedent; (3) it is necessary for the enactment of needed social legislation; (4) it is the most direct and moderate of all the plans suggested for getting around the present court's opposition to such legislation; (5) ratification of a constitutional amendment would take too long to meet present difficulties.

The chief accusation of the opposition is that the plan is a move to "pack the bench." Other arguments include: (1) the control over court membership would tend to make the president a dictator; (2) the independence of the Supreme Court would be destroyed; (3) the "institution of liberty and democracy" would be endangered; (4) the court change was not submitted to the people in last November's election.

The civil war in Spain returned to the front pages this week with reports of a hard fought battle on Pingarron hill for the possession of the vital Madrid-Valencia highway. Indecisive battles continue throughout the west and north and from all reports Spain has become a nation pockmarked with gaping shell holes and battered buildings, and filled with refugees and wounded men.

A decision of the non-intervention committee—composed of the United States Great Britain, France, Italy, Russia and Germany—forbade further foreign reinforcements to Spain, effective this week. An international patrol of Spanish borders by all the nations was also decided upon, to begin March 9.

The sit-down strike has become the by-word in the industry of the nation. Demands for higher pay and union recognition have sent 25,000 laborers in forty industries into the ranks of "sit-downs" from New England to the Pacific coast. Production has been curtailed in textile and paper mills, cigarette and auto parts factories, laundries and ship yards, steel and iron foundries and a huge airplane factory.

The last is the Douglas Aircraft company in Santa Monica, California, where several hundred strikers refuse to leave the plant and refuse to continue the company's $24,000,000 construction work—$19,000,000 of which is in navy contracts.

In Waukegan, Illinois, 100 workers are "sitting" in two

Continued on Page Five

ARTICLE ATTACKED

Hoge Opposes Title of "Information" Given Loyalist Propaganda

This week's mail brought a letter from James C. Hoge, associate editor of the St. Bernard News, St. Bernard College, Alabama, in which he took issue with the writer's article entitled "War Information" in the Feb. 12 Flambeau.

The article referred to dealt with the information contained in seven small blue envelopes which the Spanish Information Service and the Ministerio de Propaganda sent to Dr. Margie Burks, associate professor of Spanish on this campus. Naturally this information given out by the government of Madrid, now located at Valencia, presented a picture of the civil war from the viewpoint of the Loyalists. At the outset of the article in the Flambeau, the writer, in stating "Inevitable with war is propaganda and the grim Spanish struggle now in its eighth month proves no exception," and, in revealing the source of the information, assumed that the material reviewed would be taken for what it was worth. It was not the intention of the writer to show partiality nor to have the quoted excerpts considered as accurate data, but, as a matter of general interest, merely to acquaint the reader with the type of information that is imparted by a waring faction aside from the medium of newspapers and magazines available to the public.

Mr. Hoge, in his letter, contends that the article should have been entitled "War Propaganda," since "It is simply the Communistic propaganda of a 'Red' Spain, backed by Russia; and, at best, it represents only a bare thread of the real truth behind the Spanish civil war." Asking that his letter be printed, either whole or in part, he added, "I rely upon your sense of fair play to prompt you to allow the opposite side an opportunity to be justified in the pages of your paper."

In presenting this opposite side Mr. Hoge has drawn upon information put out by the Nationalists which depicts their viewpoint of Spain's war. It is presupposed again that the so-called information will be taken for what it is worth, as the writer did not mean to imply either in the former Flambeau article or in this that she believes the information projected by either side may be relied upon as entire truth. The following is Mr. Hoge's letter in part:

"I would refer you to the statements of Gil Robles, Spanish patriot, and leader of the Accion Popular Party, largest single political party in Spain, which has aligned itself with the Nationalists and General Franco. In an open letter published in the London Universe, January 22, 1927, he says: 'The Accion Popular has never allowed itself to become impregnated with Fascist tendencies, for in this respect it has always evidenced decided doctrinal discrepancies with Fascism.'

He continues: "The name 'Rebels' as applied to the Spanish Nationalists is unjust. A rebel is one who unjustly fights against a lawful power. But the government of Madrid, at present in Valencia, is not a lawful government. In the elections of February of 1936, the victory belonged to the Rights by a majority of 400,000 votes over the Lefts.

"The Lefts, by brute force, with the help of the police, seized the ballots of the constituencies of Carruna, Pontevedra, Lugo, Carceres, Cardova, and Seville, and altered them in their own favor. In this way they managed to get a small majority in parliament. The first act of this majority was to annul totally or in part the elections in Granada, Cuenca, Salamanca, and Burgos, so that the Lefts obtained a fictitious majority, enabling them to form a government which was illegal from its very origin.

"From the assumption of office in February, 1936, to the outbreak of the revolution, the government of the Frente Popular was responsible for the following crimes: the burning of eighty-four churches, four newspaper offices, thirty-six political centers, and ninety-two private houses of persons of the Right. It killed 256 persons and injured more than 1,000. It seized without indemnifications 300 private properties and closed more than 800 Catholic colleges and schools. . . . Since the beginning

Continued on Page Seven

Collegiate Comebacks

Time marches on this week with all eyes focused on approaching elections, after a bang-up start yesterday. Here's hoping that the system of selecting several of last year's officers isn't employed this year even once: that is, having to vote against one candidate because she's so obviously unfit, even though her opponent is little better, rather than voting for one girl because her qualifications are so marked.

• • • •

An almost equally important election, in the eyes of some, centers about the choosing of Gainesville's freshman-sophomore queen. Which makes us laugh and laugh when we remember that candidates from the sorority groups are supposed to be pledges only. Gee, it must be awful to have only cute actives, so that a sorority has to be a bit underhanded and send in a picture of one of the dear initiated. Tsk! Tsk! Such ethics.

• • • •

While loftier minds struggle over the peace movement, we give our attention to one that will probably take the opposiet course. Why is it, we'd like to know, that a girl who has everything, gets only a telegram from her boy-friend both on Valentine's Day and her birthday? All we have to say is this: if her threats materialize, he won't need a fur coat for the climate for which he is bound.

• • • •

From the Inkwell we lift the following:

You made hay
While the sun was bright;
I sowed wild oats
By the moon at night.
Your hay is stacked in bundles neat,
But the lingering taste of oats is sweet.

• • • •

The Creightonian points out that because mail-boxes in England are painted red instead of green, an Englishman visiting in New York created quite a bit of excitement when she attempted to post a letter in a fire-alarm box. Judging from some of the love-letters our roommate writes to her boy-friend, we'd say that was a pretty appropriate place in which to mail certain letters.

• • • •

According to the Tower Times, there are a few snap courses in the colleges and universities of today, but they are few and far between. Any student wishing to debate this point would be welcomed by us except for the fact that we are sure the Flambeau office would not begin to hold the large number of dissenters.

• • • •

We read in the Santa Clara where three students at U. S. C. were kept awake for sixty-five hours by Professor Neil Warren of the psychology department in an experiment which he was conducting. We don't like to appear skeptical, but we can't imagine anyone being gullible enough to believe that a professor, of all people, could keep a student awake for even one hour, much less sixty-five.

• • • •

With a slight change we print the following from the Purple and White:

Sing a song of sixpence,
Pocket full of rye,
Dropped it on the sidewalk—
F. S. C., goodbye.

• • • •

Dr B Hemple and Dr. E L. Gibbs of Harvard university's medical school have discovered, according to the Rollins Sandspur, that the brain waves in a cat correspond closely to those found in man. Uh, the stock of cats, as far as intelligence is concerned, drops as we read this.

• • • •

THE WAIL OF THE CAMPUSED

We can't go any place
We can't show our face
People stop and stare
It's so hard to bear
Everybody knows we're campused
It's the talk of the town

We couldn't pay the fine
Didn't even have a dime
They won't listen to reason
Must not be the season
Everybody knows we're campused
It's the talk of the town

We can't leave the campus
Boys can't even vamp us
Others go to town
Others play around
But for us we're campused
It's the talk of the town.

Magazine Jottings

BY SARAH SEALEY and SARAH BETH DAVIS

Do Colleges Need a New Deal? By Donald A. Laird

The director of Colgate University's psychological laboratories presents in the winter issue of The Education Forum a discussion of a problem which every college student has doubtless thought about at some time: "applied science and the expanded inter-social relations of modern communication, transportation and commerce which dominate our world demand that the man who makes the mark college man used to make be almost a brain truster carving his own New Deal." Dr Laird maintains that the world has moved infinitely faster than the colleges have in the last few decades, and that college graduates are paying dearly for the inadequacy of higher education.

In 1905, says the author, a college student gained during his four years in school possibly fifteen per cent of the essentially useful knowledge in existence. Today a four-year course gives a student only a one or two per cent adjustment to his universe because "knowledge of the forces in the world has increased with tremendous rapidity in the intervening years."

Dr. Laird offers two suggestions to remedy a bad situation. Colleges need, first of all, to lengthen courses which have been intensified. His second plan is to add from two to four years to the curriculum for the bachelor's degree.—(S. S.)

• • • •

Will Women Enslave Men? By Elsa Gidlow

An interesting defense of an extreme viewpoint in regard to the future of women and marriage states that unless husbands are willing to "go fifty-fifty on the work and fun" in marriage they are setting the stage for their own actual enslavement.

The writer, in this month's Forum, names three factors which are tending to increase women's power over men: "(1) feminine control over the reproductive instinct, relieving women of the deadening burden of unwilling or excessive childbirth and thus giving them increased power to exploit men emotionally; (2) modern science and technology, which place the emphasis on intelligence rather than on brute strength; (3) enlightened morality." Having overcome, to a large degree, their biological handicap, women are beginning new to master the economics of the situation. It is ridiculous, the writer says, to expect a woman of intelligence and ability to squander her superior talents on trivial, socially useless domestic tasks. Industry, moreover, has taken over the hardest phases of the work of wives' of past generations—weaving, knitting, sewing, spinning, canning, baking, preserving, churning, and the like. Women as well as men need to express themselves through useful and interesting work. And modern industry cannot exist without women; its gigantic structure cannot be handled by men alone. Supporting large families of idle daughters, wives and mothers. In view of these facts, the author (unmarried) believes that the enslavement of men, if they persist in their reactionary tendencies, is possible and highly probable.—(S. S.)

• • • •

Who Wants Peace? By Dorothy Thompson

Numerous movements are organized in the United States today to promote peace, but their methods and philosophies are decidedly different. Is there any thread binding the various peace movements together? And have these movements achieved anything?

Both of these questions are answered by Miss Dorothy Thompson in the February Survey Graphic. There are points, she says, at which unity has been achieved not without a considerable influence on public opinion and public policy. Investigations have influenced demands for a more liberal trade policy, and progressive development toward a more just society.

The greatest contribution of all, she believes, has been the curbing and offsetting of militarism by the peace movements. The latter are committed to the belief in human reason which is the very basis and justification of a democratic government. They are bent on keeping America a country set against racial and class discrimination, jealous of its civil liberties, anti-imperialistic, cooperative, and non-aggressive, proudly free and robustly civilian.—(S. D.)

• • • •

The Mental Underworld By Upton Sinclair

We have not even the remotest idea how the subconscious mind can work nor what one is. Yet there is "something" besides our conscious mind, and through experimentation the laws by which it operates can be discovered.

In the current issue of Forum Mr. Sinclair advocates the study of the subconscious mind by scientific means. There should be tens of thousands of scientists working in this field, he believes, patiently collecting facts, measuring and comparing them and seeking the laws which govern such events as hypnotism, clairvoyance, prophecy, fortune-telling, faith healing, and such phenomena as the curing of shell shock and varicose veins by suggestion.

Those laws can be studied, and the knowledge can be applied, writes the author. We are not bodies alone, any more than we are minds alone, but a combination of minds and bodies, inseparably bound together and interacting at every moment of life. By understanding both we can accomplish things we cannot even imagine if we persist in believing in only one.—(S. D.)

FLORIDA STATE NEWSPAPER

Inside College Gates

By MAXINE FRUGIATE

Cornelia Otis Skinner, memoirist and writer, recently presented a series of her original dramatic monologues under the auspices of the artists' series committee. Her program included such selections as "Horse Work," a small boy being presented; a gangster satirical sketch; a grim drama titled "Miss Hotel Porch;" and "Times Are Hard," which ran the whole gamut of emotions. Daughter of the actor, Otis Skinner, Miss Skinner is well known in her own right as a dramatic artist.

The second issue of the Distaff, yearly magazine edited by the girls recently appeared. It contained an article "Prenuptials With the sub-title, "Can Be Our Dreams?"; a realistic sketch titled "Wish," and a story between Kruge Creek and Lake Ella, entitled "Murder." This last story was the prize offered for the piece of literature in each issue printed. Two articles, "How We Do Otherwise?" and "As We Mar," a character sketch, also ran. Like "Distaff," poems book reviews by the students appear in the magazine.

With the completion of the wing of the Administration this now known as the James Robert Jr., Memorial building, offices and classes have moved. The business office, registrar have moved into the rooms they occupied in reconstruction of the wing. The office of the registrar held only this past week. The new location is much closer to its old location. Classes and departmental offices will shifting

A senior class recently elected Emory Gice club of the university of Florida for second appearance here in history. The group have served as "The South's Sweetest Men," appeared at the college auditorium Wednesday night, in 1935 Florida tour.

Carrie Scandrett, former director at Florida State and Prof. B. of the home economics daughter, Mrs. Ben Walker, has been ill during the holidays at home ume. Mrs. Scandrett a social directress at Reynolds d one time and in Gilchrist She was also chaperone at Delta Delta Delta house at ume.

Dr Human Adventure,' a motion picture showing the development of civilization from its earliest was shown under the auspices of the local chapter of the A. U. W. for benefit of scholarship fund. The film under the supervision of the archaeological research of tion in the world. the Institute of Chicago visit. It was narrated by the famous James H. Breasted, archaeologist and author of books ves Breasted, directed and the pictures.

the fifth artist series program of the year, the Kedroff quartet gave a concert. The organization is composed of chamber music to an attentive group of students faculty members.

total of 1,619 students beginning of the second the quarter in all colleges Florida State College for reached its highest level ed to a survey of enrollment announced by Dr. Raymond Walters, president of University of Cincinnati, this is 10 largest woman's college ome Rapsody," the annual botanist musical comedy, featured a trip to the Venus aboard a rocket ship of experiences which follow, is presented to the college It was approved by a board and will be presented the University of Florida honored by the University Gice club.

le 1,766 students enrolled ida State College for the ester of fall year, three s girls made an average of ighter for the semester being on approbation. Of other three were only three to made all A's. The freshas led the approbation list members of the class and juniors were next with 84: ve had 79; and the sophomores had 59.

For the third year the Florida State of Missions brought to the campus from all parts of the globe missionary ambassadors who presented the religious and economic history of their respective lands. Among them Dr. Herrick Jr. of Iran; Miss Muriel Lester, Dr. Arthur Raper, George F. Miss Augusta Floer is president of the Town and Gown club which for the past eight weeks has sponsored a bridge tournament, the proceeds of which will be placed in the Student-Alumnae building fund.

Alumnae Group Plans Banquet

Tryon Announces Dinner; Conradi and Tracy Will Speak

Florida State College alumnae living in Tallahassee will have a banquet Monday night, March 1 at 7 o'clock at the Dutch Kitchen, according to Miss Florence Tryon, vice-chairman of the club. Mrs. Whitfield Henry, of the committee in charge of the event, announced this week in Tallahassee The dinner will be one of the leading events during "F. S. C. W. Week," March the 1st to the 5th.

President Edward Conradi of the college and Miss Anna May Tracy, chairman of "F. S. C. W. Week and also chairman of the faculty committee for cooperation with the alumnae, will be speakers at the dinner where Mrs. Bonnie Byers will be toastmistress.

Reservations for the dinner may be made with Mrs. Robert Taylor, chairman, or with any of the members of her committee which include Miss Mary Elizabeth Roberts, Miss Miller Walston, Mrs. C. B. Coulter, Mrs. Ruth Walker and Miss Gordon Lord.

Other committees assisting with the plans for the dinner are: Arrangements, Mrs. Lafe Culley chairman, Miss Helen Davis, Miss Julia Conklin; decorations, Mrs. F. P. Miller, chairman, Mrs. Velma Mann, Mrs. Ward Hendrick, Mrs. Robert Brown, and Mrs. Ralph Hodges; publicity, Mrs. Rachel Pitchford, and Mrs. Laura Leslie.

Head of Alumnae Names Committee Members For F. S. C. W. Week Program

Mrs. George Lewis, president of the newly formed Florida State College Alumnae Club, announced her standing committees for the coming week. They are as follows:

F. S. C. W. Week committee: Miss Florence Tryon, chairman, Mrs. Evelyn Whitfield Henry, secretary, members, Mrs. Frances Tippetts Johnston, Mrs. Mary Lindsey Cooke, Mrs. Dorothy Bellamy, Mrs. Eva Richardson, Mrs. Ruth Walker, Miss Julia Julia Gehan, Miss Helen Davis, Miss Barbara Ainsworth, Miss Ruth Gramling, Miss Ann Holloway, Mrs. Annie Belle Henderson, Miss Lou Whitfield, and Mrs. Myrtis Burr.

Ways and means committee: Mrs. Lafe Culley, chairman and Miss Madeline Duncan, co-chairman, members, Mrs. Marianna Kemp, Ruth Schoenherr; Miss Mary Schoenherr, Miss Ruth Walker, Miss Sarah Bell Palmer, Mrs. Margaret Dezon, Mrs. Gladys Pryor, Mrs. Ruth Gramling, Mrs. Wesson, Mrs. Polly Lively Carraway, Miss Emily Lively, Mrs. Ivan Norman, Mrs. Becky Lou Hopkins, Miss Eleanor Mizell, Mrs. Leonard Hendrick, and Mrs. Gordon Long. Miss Katherine Montgomery, Miss Sallie Nichols, ers.

Publicity committee: Mrs. Tyr-

Robinson; Mrs. Induk Pak Of Korea, Miss Yosko Saito of Tokyo, Japan; and Dr. Charles Cooper Jr., director of the state-wide youth conference

Eighteen faculty members headed by President Edward Conradi were announced today by Miss Anna May Tracy, chairman, as speakers for the third annual Florida State College for Women week which will be held March 1-6. The speakers will visit alumnae groups civic and women clubs, addressing them on a variety of subjects.

Date and Cast Announced For Annual Frolic

Members of Faculty Will Present Melodrama Of Olden Days

This year's faculty play, "Fashion," an old-fashioned melodrama, will be presented on the week-end of March 12-13 with an all-star faculty cast, Miss Raymond Thomson, general chairman announced this week. The play will be given in the Augusta Conrad Theater in the History Building, and will begin at 8:15 o'clock.

Directing the play is Miss Doris Terrell '34, who after graduation from Florida State College for Women received a master's degree in play production from northwestern university.

Faculty members having parts in the play include Miss Edna Richmond Bellamy, head of the sociology department, who has the role of Adam Trueman, a Quaker; Professor D Hendenhall, resident engineer, as Colonel Mordant; Owen Sellers, assistant professor of journalism, as Count Solomon; confidential clerk; Miss Elizabeth Thomson, instructor in speech, as Mrs. Mary Walter Rust Cowles, herself fashionable; Dr. Elisabeth Dickinson, professor of home economnel. Prudence, a maiden lady of a certain age; Miss Bernice Cawthon, dean of the industrial arts, Millinette, a French lady's maid; Miss Ruth Bryan, instructor in elocution, Gertrude, a governess, and Miss Elizabeth Sims, Saraphine Tiffany, a belle. Glenn Terrell will have the part of Jake, a country boy.

Among the Tallahassee alumnae assisting with various phases of the play are Mrs. Ruth Bass, Miss Rachel Pitchford. Costumes, Miss Mary Elizabeth Roberts, Miss Lucile Nicholson and Mrs. Lillian Cross Rundage; Posters, Miss Elizabeth Sims, Mrs. Miss Ruth Schoenherr; and Properties, Miss Eleanor Mizell.

An admission fee of 25 cents will be charged, and proceeds will go to defray publicity expenses of the Alumnae association.

Two Are Life Members; Others Make Payments For Annual Membership

Mrs. Ernest M. Powell (Maude Adams '25) of Brewster, Mrs. Ruth Bass Rayman '32 of Tallahassee, and Mrs. Roberta McCrimmon Baker of Tallahassee have become life members in the Alumnae association this month.

A second payment on a life membership was made by Mrs. Olin Shivers of Tallahassee. Five payments were made by Gladys Folsom of Cross City, Mrs. C. Lamar Helm Holden of Newberry, Mrs. P. B Calloway (Irene Mathews) of Tallahassee, and Clarissa Knight of Tallahassee.

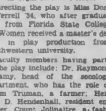
Annual membership was taken this month by Mrs. Dan Byrd (Willie Milton) Orlando, Mrs. Georgia Pruett Kenly, Jacksonville, Elisabeth Cole, New York city; Mrs. Verona Dixon Sapp, Tallahassee; Mary Pritch, Jacksonville; Florence Marie Bell, Miami; Mrs. Frances Jefferson, Ga. Isobel J. McNeill, Tampa, Frances Parks, Monticello, Mrs. Ruth Middlebrooks (Rachel McKinnon), Marianna; Mrs. Ruth Bennington, Gainesville; and Mrs. Fred Cubberly, Gainesville.

Mrs Myers, Miss Rachel Pitchford, and Mrs. Frances Eelly Giles.

Membership committee: Miss Ruth Schoenherr, Miss Ruth Walker, co-chairman; members, Miss Sarah Burwell, Mrs. Melvin Pope, Mrs. Margaret McCardle, Mrs. Helen Smith Hall, Miss Mary Newman, Miss Marian Gardner, Miss Mary Clair Kimbell, Mrs. Doudas Hopkins and Miss Sallie Nichols.

Undergraduate interests committee: Miss Ruth Schoenherr, chairman, Clarence Mapo, co-chairmen; members, Mrs. Beverly Ann Grimes, Mary Margaret Wilson, Jane Pain, and Mrs Mary B. Alfriend.

Alumnae college committee: Mrs. Belin Moor and Miss Katherine Warren, Co-chairmen; members, Miss Maude Flowers, Mrs. Clarence Mayo, Mrs. Bertha Owen, Mrs. Mary Megginnis, Mrs. Louise Hall, and Mrs. Mary B. Alfriend.



Constitution and by-laws committee: Miss Dorothy Dodd.

To Have Part in Play

Business Manager J. G. Kellom, left, and Dr. Raymond Bellamy, right, head of the sociology department, will have prominent parts in "Fashion," an old fashioned melodrama, the 1937 faculty play, sponsored by the College Alumnae Association. Mr. Kellom will enact the part of T. Tennyson Twinkle, a modern poet, and Dr. Bellamy that of Adam Trueman, a farmer.

"Tissie" Will Broadcast Over Radio Station WCOA

Former F. S. C. W. Dean Will Talk About This Campus

To hundreds of Florida State College graduates and former students March 1 at 7:45 o'clock will be a significant date. For on this day at 5 p. m. their beloved "Tissie" will broadcast over station WCOA in Pensacola on the subject, "Florida State College Then and Now."

"Tissie" is Mrs. Sara Landrum Cawthon, "dean of the college home" from 1911 to 1925 who during her 14 years at Florida State College for Women helped students solve their problems of sickness, affairs of the heart, and "flunks."

Before leaving Florida State College for Women Tissie has resided in Pensacola where she states she is "simply enjoying life in an old-fashioned cottage with one of my sisters—surrounded with all the beloved family relics, some 150 years old."

"I am still looking for 'my ship' to come in," Tissie writes, "and when I do, I shall trade it for a trailer, but the road, and visit my State College for Women and State."

When asked how she happened to the name of "Tissie," she said: "When one of my younger sisters was learning to talk she always called me 'Sister' but instead, lisped 'Tissie.' This name at the Florida State College for Women the first year I was there, and henceforth I was addressed often this pet name. They were not long in taking it up. I soon caught on to the fact that they were calling me 'Tissie' behind my back, or under their breath. 'If you love me, I do not mind your calling me that.' I said to a girl one day and must have passed this along. Before I left Tallahassee, even some of the mothers and daddies who visited the college were saying 'Tissie' as sweetly as my girls said it.

"I like it. It ties me to my college daughters. The young men who were sailors at the college named me 'Sis.' Another name was Letitia and that 'Tissie' was an abbreviation. Whether there will be a nickname as 'Miss Tiss' in an attempt to bring very dignity down to something more simple at the college I find out that students abroad rarely did not know I had any other name than that of 'Tissie.'

The things which I have enjoyed most in her experiences at Florida State College for Women was the home life in the college, and watching the development of character and poise in the girls. "I am still immune to any annoyance which may arise, if I choose to do so.

"I have no patience with a quitter. That used to say. And she has not changed. Tissie recalled the story of a student who prepared to return home because she found geometry most difficult. "When I found this out," she said "I told her I'd see her through. She would stick. After I had secured seven different vouches for her I helped her in geometry. She brought her final geometry examination papers to me, placed them on my hands and said: 'Tissie, you have as last surrender.' And she did. That's the whole attitude toward college activities was changed by that accomplishment."

Tissie's address in Pensacola is 114 W. Gadsden St. In that city she takes an active interest in civic and church work. In addition to her activities along those lines she says she is now collecting data for a book of memoirs which she intends to write about Florida State College for Women.

Alumnae Given Various Gifts

Contributions of Money Sent for Proposed New Building

February was a banner month for the Alumnae Association in receiving gifts for the various alumnae projects.

A gift of $50 was received from the Miami Alumnae club which is to be placed in the fund for the Student-Alumnae building. The president of the club is Carleen Vinal '34, a former college government association president.

The Tri Delta sorority group of Orlando, of which Mrs Edgar Cecil Nilson (Dorothy Johnson '19) is president, sent a gift of $25 which is placed in the student scholarship fund.

Four alumnae clubs contributed "birthday" money to be placed in the building fund. The clubs contributing were located in De Land, Clearwater, Key West, and Chipley. Last month alumnae groups in Crescent City, Kissimmee, and Cross City sent in monetary contributions. Alumnae sending contributions to the Student-Alumnae Building Fund were Agnes Edwards '16 of Lafayette, Louisiana, and Mrs. John Raymond '23 of Jacksonville.

Among the alumnae contributing to the Student-Alumnae Building fund through the "birthday" plan are the following: Mrs. Thelma Goodbread Flanagan, Tampa; Emma E. Higginbotham, Callahan; Ida Stewart, Gonzales; Elizabeth Cole, New York City; Mrs. Madison Adams Bryant, Perry; Annie L. Treadwell, Washington, D. C.; Mrs. Ethel Campbell Williams, Denver, Colo.; Helen D. Scott, Ft. Myers; Carda Briggs Bullard, B. McCall, Leon Sewell, Harriett Haney, Doris Lee, all of Clearwater; Mrs. Marguerite Woodall Knight, Largo; Florence Marie Hunt, Tampa; Marion Anderson, Pensacola; Dorothy Richardson, Gaffney, S. C.; Mrs. Ann Blough Pascuk, Olive Gardner, and Delpedo Brewster, all of Deland.

Elina Gardner, Susie Gardner, Pauline Logan, Mary Cummings, Clara Lankford, Mrs. Josephine Parks Doughty, Gladys Pruett Kenly, Mrs. Dorothy Connolly C. McCarthy, Lesta Gritton, Mary Falk, Mrs. Ruth Bennington, Mrs. Ruth Cher Knowles, Mary C. Milner, Mrs. Ruth Middlebrooks, Mrs. Wilkins, Mrs. Addah Johnson Ramsey, all of Key West; Mrs. Florence Bunger Miller, Mrs. Frances Frances Zarks, Monticello; Mrs. Ruth Bass Rayman, Gadsden; Mrs. Helen Barkstresser Middleton, Hawthorn; Lynda Hemingway, Bonifay; Ruth Durrenberger, Washington, D. C.; Lonny Leach, Rock Hill, S. C.;

Agnes Campbell, Mrs Kate Mc-Sween Palmer, Clara Bright, Evelyn Carmichael, Leona McDonald, Mrs. Irene Mollweon Calloway, Mrs. Ruth Whitaker, Mrs. Myrtis Mrs. Nella Wells Shivers, Mrs. Myrtle Powell Davis, Vera Barber, all of Chipley, and Mary Crooms Whitfield, Tallahassee.

This Week

Continued from page four

plants of the Pansteel Metallurgical corporation, impervious to acids and tear gas, because the firm refuses to recognize their union.

The C. I. O. encouraged by its "success" in the General Motors strike and the results it has fostered promises to launch an intense drive this spring in the oil fields and refineries.

Plans Moving Toward First Alum College

First Spring Homecoming Announced by Warren, Event Chairman

Plans are materializing rapidly for the first spring homecoming of alumnae, to be known as the "Alumnae College," Katherine Warren, chairman of the event, made known today.

Date for the week-end has been as set April 16-18, and according to the tentative program the alumnae will have a full schedule of academic and social events during the three-day period. The alumnae will stay in Byrnn Hall on the campus and will take their meals in the college dining hall. The only charge will be a registration fee of $1.00 which will be used to defray minor expenses.

The tentative program is as follows: Friday, April 16, registration, Byrnn Hall, 3:00-7:30 p.m.; dinner, college dining hall, 6:30 p.m.; lecture, 7:30 p. m. followed by a musical program by the faculty trio and a reception at the home of President Conradi.

Saturday, April 17: 6:30 a. m.-8:15 p. m., lectures by members of the faculty; 2:30-6:30 p. m. social events; formal dinner with main speaker; 8 p. m., entertained by an after dinner coffee in Old-fortune hall.

Sunday, April 18: Devotional program, 6 a. m.

According to Miss Warren, the Saturday morning lectures will be in the nature of "refresher" and will be given by representative faculty members from the different college departments. A complete program, giving speakers and subjects for the lectures, will be issued at an early date.

The committee in charge of the "Alumnae College" includes, in addition to Miss Warren, Miss Maude Flowers and Miss Katherine Byrd, who are in charge of academic arrangements; Miss Louise Conradi and Miss Julia Gehan, who have charge of entertainment; Miss Dorothy Dodd and Mrs. Guy Diffenbaugh, departmental meetings; Miss Elizabeth Dodd and Mrs. Paul Pinner and Miss Florence Tryon, housing.

Alumnae planning to attend the Alumnae College are asked to notify their respective club presidents or Miss Maude Flowers, Box 1041, F.S.C.W., Tallahassee.

Field Worker Advises Home Economics Clubs To Consider Purposes

The recent growing importance of club work as a part of the college curriculum and the contribution which club work makes to the present set-up was discussed by Miss Ruth Bryan, instructor of the American Home Economics association, in an address before the college club and audience of about two hundred.

Miss Bryan said that the modern confronting clubs is the administration of the work to the best advantage of the individual. Some of the general purposes of club work are training in leadership and the cultivation of hobbies. The speaker stressed the share which club members have in duties to enable each member to have a definite part in the organization.

Miss Bryan stressed the clubs are re-organized this spring they will consider these three purposes and that the work will be encouraged to the pupils, and secondly, to the community and national interests, she said.

In closing Miss Roach spoke of the 4-H clubs stating that they started this year through the combination of the boys' and girls' clubs sent in from various clubs throughout the country are published in this magazine.

The speaker who has spoken in Tallahassee on several occasions was introduced by Miss Edna Mae McIntosh of the Home Economics department. Miss Bryan is visiting members of the local club during her stay and is a reception in the Broward club rooms.

Executive Committee Of Leading Citizens Appointed by Beeson

Appointment of an executive committee of prominent Florida citizens to act in an advisory capacity with the Florida State College Alumnae association is its project to secure a student-alumnae building here was announced recently by Mrs. E. L. Beeson, alumnae president.

The committee includes E. P. Owen, Jr., Jacksonville, secretary of the Florida League of Municipalities; Mrs. John G. Kellum, Tallahassee, president of the Florida Federation of Women's Clubs; Fletcher Bertin, St. Petersburg; Pat Pierce, Daniel H. Redfearn, Miami attorneys; and K. D. Lamb right, editor of the Tampa Tribune.

The proposed student-alumnae building would serve as headquarters for student organizations and for the college Alumnae association. Its cost has been estimated as approximately $200,000.

President

Mrs. Isabel Avila Ball is pres dent of the Key West Alumnae club which sponsored a Valentine card party for the benefit of the Student-Alumnae building fund. Key West merchants gave several valuable gifts which were used as prizes.

Tissie Slated For Broadcast

"Dean of College Home" To Make Talk Over WCOA Wednesday

Nine Florida radio stations will carry programs or announcements of next week relative to F. S. C. W. week. Miss Florence Tryon, state chairman for F. S. C. W. week made known today.

The stations having F. S. C. W. programs are WTAL in Tallahassee, WJAX in Jacksonville, WFLA in Clearwater, WDBO in Orlando, WIOD and WQAM in Miami, WRUF in Gainesville, WDAE in Tampa, and WSUN in St. Petersburg.

Leading the F. S. C. W. radio speakers is Mrs. Sara Landrum Cawthon, better known as "Tissie," of Pensacola who will speak over station WCOA, Pensacola Wednesday afternoon, March 2, at 5 o'clock Mrs Cawthon was for fourteen years "dean of the college home" at F. S. C. W. retiring in June, 1925.

Other speakers are as follows: WTAL, Tallahassee, Mrs. Frank Moor Beth Walton, Wednesday, March 2, 6:46-7:00 p. m. WJAX, Jacksonville, Miss Betty Manning, Thursday, March 4, 8:35 p. m.; WFLA, Clearwater, Miss Virginia Dowling; WSUN, St. Petersburg, Miss Carleen Vinal, Tuesday, March 2, 1:45 p. m.; WDBO, Orlando, Mrs. Clifford Naughton and Mrs. Ralph Hodges, March 1, 7:15-7:25 p. m.; WIOD and WQAM, Miami, Mrs. Margaret Bailey Stanley, March 2; WRUF, Gainesville, Mrs. J. W. McCollum, Caroline LaFontisee, Saturday, March 6, 6:15-6:30 p. m. Dr. Gainesville Mrs. Russell McCaughan (Mary Hyatt) will assist on the program with several musical numbers.

On Monday afternoon, March 1, at 45 p. m. students of Florida State College for Women will have a fifteen minute radio program over WTAL.

Other alumnae assisting Miss Tryon in the radio phase of F. S. C. W. are: Mrs. Rose Parkhill (Martha Page), Jacksonville; Miss Mary Elizabeth Roberts, Mrs. Nilson (Dorothy Johnson), Orlando; and Miss Roberta Anne, Pensacola.

Library Exhibit Shows Classical Scrolls And Pictured Manuscripts

Representing the study of ancient inscriptions and modes of writing, a linen scroll and several pictures from the collection of Miss Ethel Alice Hickox, instructor in the glass case on the main floor of the library since last week.

Illustrated on the linen scroll are copies of ancient illuminated manuscripts. Included among them is the Vergil number of an Italian manuscript. The illuminated writing of these manuscripts was done on wax tablets with a stylus, the ancient writing instrument.

Other pictures illustrate the colorful Mandinga on old books that are now found in the British museum.

Barlow, Dr. Herman Kurz—Rotary Club, March 2, noon; Kiwanis club, March 3, noon.

Bradenton: Dr. R. S. Cotterill—F. T. A. meeting, Tuesday, March 2, 3 p. m.

Chipley: Mrs. Anna Forbes Lidell—High school, March 1, 7 p. m.; Alumnae Club, March 1, 6 p. m.

Clearwater: Dr. W. H. Rogers—Lions Club, March 2, noon; Woman's Club, March 2, 3:00 p. m.; Alumnae Club, March 3, 6:00 p. m.

Cocoa: Miss Anna May Sikes—Rotary Club, March 3, noon; Dr. Hugh Waskom—Kiwanis Club, March 3, noon.

Crestview: Dr. Anna Forbes Lidell—Alumnae club, March 2, Continued on page six

Schedule For Faculty Talks Is Announced

Speeches for FSCW Week To Be Made Through Entire State

Appearance of 26 faculty representatives before civic, and women's organizations in 35 Florida cities will mark the third annual F. S. C. W. Week which begins throughout the State Monday, March 1, and extends through Saturday, March 6.

The complete schedule for F. S. C. W. Week was released today by Miss Anna May Tracy, chairman of the faculty committee on cooperation with the alumnae. Designated by President Edward Conradi to plan and supervise all details of this year's F. S. C. W. Week.

This year F. S. C. W. Week speakers will talk on topics requested by the various clubs and organizations throughout the State, and not on topics strictly relative to college as has been the custom in former years. Faculty speakers will appear in cities as far south as Miami and St. Petersburg on the east and west coasts respectively, as far north as Jacksonville and Pensacola as far west as Pensacola.

Dean Bellamy of F. S. C. W. Week were handled in the various cities by alumnae chairmen appointed by Miss Tracy.

Faculty speakers during F. S. C. W. Week and some of the topics they will discuss are as follows: Dr. Kathryn T. Abbey, head of the education department, "The Age of the Alumna Today;" Dr. Ruth Cromer, head of the department of home economics education, The Modern Family in the Modern in Clearwater, WDBO in Orlando, WIOD and WQAM in Miami, WRUF in Gainesville, WDAE in Tampa, and WSUN in St. Petersburg.

Leading the F. S. C. W. radio speakers is Mrs. Sara Landrum Cawthon, better known as "Tissie," of Pensacola who will speak over station WCOA, Pensacola Wednesday afternoon, March 2, at 5 o'clock Mrs Cawthon was for fourteen years "dean of the college home" at F. S. C. W. retiring in June, 1925.

Other speakers are as follows: WTAL, Tallahassee, Mrs. Frank Moor Beth Walton, Wednesday, March 2, 6:46-7:00 p. m. WJAX, Jacksonville, Miss Betty Manning, Thursday, March 4, 8:35 p. m.; WFLA, Clearwater, Miss Virginia Dowling; WSUN, St. Petersburg, Miss Carleen Vinal, Tuesday, March 2, 1:45 p. m.; WDBO, Orlando, Mrs. Clifford Naughton and Mrs. Ralph Hodges, March 1, 7:15-7:25 p. m.; WIOD and WQAM, Miami, Mrs. Margaret Bailey Stanley, March 2; WRUF, Gainesville, Mrs. J. W. McCollum, Caroline LaFontisee, Saturday, March 6, 6:15-6:30 p. m. Dr. Gainesville Mrs. Russell McCaughan (Mary Hyatt) will assist on the program with several musical numbers.

On Monday afternoon, March 1, at 45 p. m. students of Florida State College for Women will have a fifteen minute radio program over WTAL.

Other alumnae assisting Miss Tryon in the radio phase of F. S. C. W. are: Mrs. Rose Parkhill (Martha Page), Jacksonville; Miss Mary Elizabeth Roberts, Mrs. Nilson (Dorothy Johnson), Orlando; and Miss Roberta Anne, Pensacola.

Library Exhibit Shows Classical Scrolls And Pictured Manuscripts

Representing the study of ancient inscriptions and modes of writing, a linen scroll and several pictures from the collection of Miss Ethel Alice Hickox, instructor in the glass case on the main floor of the library since last week.

Illustrated on the linen scroll are copies of ancient illuminated manuscripts. Included among them is the Vergil number of an Italian manuscript. The illuminated writing of these manuscripts was done on wax tablets with a stylus, the ancient writing instrument.

Other pictures illustrate the colorful Mandinga on old books that are now found in the British museum.

Fifty-Six New Volumes Added by Librarians

Two Month Period Brings Books of All Kinds To Shelves

In the first two months of the new year the Florida State College library has already added 56 of its shelves fifty six new volumes of diversified biography, short stories, travel and history. The economic basis of politics has branched bindings with Boston Symphony Orchestra sketches, and children and radio programs have appeared in beside Romantic Quebec in the estate of bi-coiling vines.

In the period from November, '36, to January, '37, one hundred three new books had made their way into the stacks, the reserve room shelves or, if they were particularly favored, into the cases of the browsing room. "Biographers," have been ordered along with tones that interest only the hobby lovers and kind.

Among the newest books that seem to have the most appeal for the student reading public are "The Earth Never Dies" by Ali-Bakr Sultan, "Life of Ex-Boss Christopher Illyes from Warner," which tells of the life of the world's several radios on opera afternoons and which is connected with Chaim Dalcin: "The Trade Queen," "News From Tartary" as reported by Christine Sinclair, "Notes" by Eilsberg: "The Gay Cruiser" by Nevin: "Ghosts and Goblins" by Harper; LaFevre's successor to Hamilton Bay "All the Young Men:" and Pamela's "Daughters by Utter."

The specialists in economics will find such volumes as "The Economic Basis of Politics," and "Investment Banking" of particular interest. And for the students of social research, history, and literature there are books on top of books that will prove fascinating.

Among these works appear: "The Colonial Period of American History in two volumes, "Andrews," "Edmund St. Vincent Millay and Her Times": Atkins, "Be Glad You're Neurotic": Bowers, "English Costume." Calthrop; "William Morris, Designer," Crow; "Speaking and Religion," Crow; "Ehil Ceasar," Darrish; "The Pursuit of Happy Davis; "The Development of the Peace Fiber Country," Dawson; "Ghallinger Pazzalo's: "Reading for Writing." Predrick; "In Quest of Contentment," Greenlee; "Adventure in Self-Life;" Grenfell; "Labrador Looks at the Soviet Grenfell; "The Expected Years," Houman; "Something Out of Africa," Howard; "Charles W Elliott" in two volumes, James; "Lafayette, A Life," Jones; also "British International Government After the Armistice Revolution, 1782-1820," Manning; "Men and Mountains," Marshall; "Among Men and Shades," Munroe; "The Old Puritan Boot Moore; "A Thatched Roof;" Nichols; "Curran, The Early Phase, 1919-1925," Nicholson; "American Fiction," Quinn; "Physics to Peasantry," Raper; "The Old House in the Country," Reed; "Three Plays Without Words," Rice; "Co-op," Sinclair; "The Tumult and the Shouting," Slocombe; "The Court of Pair Maidens," Spencer; "The Reformed Pirate," Stockton; "Two volumes of Essays" by Tanner; "Book of Things," Thayer; "Covering the Far East," Vaughn; "Mark Twain, The Man and Work," Wagenknecht; "The Round Tuner of Callaway," Wells; "The Criminal Room in Real Estate;" "A French-man Among the Victorians," Wey; and "The Medici, in two volumes," by Young.

Schedule for Faculty Talks is Announced

Continued from page five

noon; Woman's Club, March 3, 9 p. m.

Cross City: Dr. W. H. Rogers—Rotary Club, March 1, 12:30 a. m. Alumnae Club, March 1, 7:00 p. m.

Eustis: Dr. William G. Dodd—Lake County Alumnae Club, March 3, evening.

Fort Lauderdale: Dr. Ralph L. Eyman—P. T. A., March 2, 8 p. m. (tentative) Alumnae Group, March 2, evening. Rotary Club, March 3, noon; Pan Hellenic, March 3, 3:30 p. m.

Fort Myers: Dr. R. S. Cotterill —P. T. A. March 4, 2:15 p. m.; P. E. O. March 4 8 p. m.

Fort Pierce: Dr. Ralph L. Eyman—Alumnae Club, March 1, 8:00 p. m.

Gainesville: Miss Louise Richardson—Junior Chamber of Commerce, March 1, 6:30 p. m. Alumnae Club, March 2, afternoon; Dr. Ralph L. Eyman, Woman's Club, March 3, noon; Dr. Ralph L. Eyman, Woman's Club, March 3, noon; Dr. Ralph T. Alber—University of Florida Woman's Club, March 16, 3:30 p. m.; Junior Chamber of Commerce, March 15, 7:00 p. m. International Relations Group of A. A. U. W. and S and P. W. March 15, 8:00 p. m.

Greenland: Dr. Marjorie F. Woman's Club, March 5, 4:00 p. m.

Havana: Dr. Ruth Conner—P. T. A. and Alumnae Group, March 5, 4:00 p. m. Dr. Paul P. Finnell—Rotary Club, March 2, 12:30 p. m.

Jacksonville: Dean N. M. Bisbee—Engineering Professional Club, March 2, noon; Lauderdale Junior High School, March 3, 11 a. m.; Kiwanis Club, March 3, 12:30 p. m.; Junior Chamber of Commerce, March 3, evening; Army and Navy Club, March 4, noon; Alumnae Group, March 4, 6:00 p. m.; Rotary Club, March 5, 1 p. m.

Key West: Dr. Ralph L. Eyman—Alumnae Group, P. T. A., and Woman's Club, March 4, 3:00 p. m.

Kissimmee: Miss Lucy Belle Scribner—Junior Chamber of Commerce and Kiwanis, March 3, 12:30 p. m. Alumnae Club, Alumnae Group, March 4, 6:00 p. m.

Lake City: Dr. Ralph D. Vance —Junior Woman's Club and Alumnae Group, March 4, night. Lake Wales: Dr. Ralph L. Dodd—Alumnae Group, March 4, night.

Live Oak—Prof. Earl L. Vance —Woman's Club, March 2, noon; Kiwanis Club, March 5, noon; Dr. W. H. Rogers—Woman's Club, March 3, noon.

Marianna: Dr. M. R. Rinson—Rotary Club, March 2, noon; Dr. Enda May Dvinney—P. T. A. and Alumnae, March 4, 3:00 p. m.; Alumnae Group, March 4, 6:00 p. m. Woman's Club, March 5, 3:00 p. m.; Miss Louise Richardson—Alumnae Club, March 4, 3:00 p. m.; Miss Agnes Sasnett—Alumnae Club, March 4, 3:00 p. m.; Kiwanis Club, March 5, noon.

Miami: Dr. Kathryn T. Abbey—Woman's Club, March 2, 3:30 p. m.; Dr. William G. Dodd—Alumnae Group, March 8, evening.

Palmetto: Dr. William G. Dodd—Alumnae Group, March 8, evening.

Pahokee: Dr. Ralph L. Eyman—March 4, Rotary Club, noon; Woman's Club, March 2, afternoon; Dr. Ralph T. Alber—Woman's Club, March 2, afternoon; B. and P. W. Club and Alumnae Group, evening.

Palatka: Prof. Earl L. Vance—Rotary Club, March 2, noon.

Pensacola: Dr. Enda May Devinney—Junior Club, March 2, 6:30 p. m.; Alumnae Club, March 2, 6:30 p. m.; Kiwanis Club, March 3, 1 p. m.; Miss Sadie Young—Rotary Club, March 2, 12:30 p. m. Alumnae Club, March 2, 6:30 p. m.; Woman's Club, March 2, 8 p. m.; Dr. Ralph T. Alber—March 3, Pigs Club, March 3, 1 p. m.

Pompano: Dr. Ralph L. Eyman —March 5, Rotary Club, noon; Club house assembly, afternoon; Alumnae Club, evening.

Quincy: Dean Ella Scoble Opperman, Woman's Club, March 4.

Sanford: Dr. Margaret R. Sanderlin—Alumnae Club, March 4, noon; Dr. Verlia Shores, Rotary Club, March 3, noon.

Sebring: Dr. Kathryn T. Abbey —Alumnae Club, March 2, evening.

St. Augustine: Prof. Earl L. Vance, Rotary Club, March 1; Miss Kiwanis Club, March 2, noon; Pilot Club, March 3, 7 p. m. St. Petersburg: Dr. R. S. Cotterill—Optimist Club, March 1, noon; Kiwanis Club, March 2, noon; Lions Club, March 3, noon; Dr. William G. Dodd—Junior Club, March 3, noon; Exchange Club, March 4, noon; Dr. Olivia Dorman—Alumnae Club, March 5; evening.

Tallahassee: Miss Louise Richardson—Junior Chamber of Commerce, March 1, 1 p. m.; Kiwanis Club, March 2, 1 p. m.; Dr. Edward Conradi and Miss Anna May Tracy—Alumnae Club, March 1, 7 p. m.; Mr. John G. Kellum—Rotary Club, March 2, noon; Dr. Ralph L. Eyman, Woman's Club, March 3, 1 p. m.; Miss Sachett Pitchford —Alumnae Club, March 3, 1 p. m.; Miss Elizabeth Lynn—Exchange Club, March 3, 1:10 p. m.; Rotary Club, March 10, 1:15 p. m.

Tampa: Dr. Olivia Dorman—Alumnae Club, March 6, noon.

Tarpon Springs: Dr. William H. Evans—Lions Club, March 2, 6:30 p. m.

Alumnae chairmen assisting with P. E. O. Week are as follows: Miss Gertrude Kuhn Barber; Mrs. Earl Wells, Manatee; Mrs. Olin Silvers, Chipley; Miss Maud McCall, Live Oak; Miss Ethel Nisbet, Cocoa Mrs. Gene Pilcher, Crestview; Miss Gladys Folsom, Cross City; Mrs. Howard Gamble, Bustis; Miss Anna Jane Pearce, Miami; Miss Elizabeth Bertha Stulpner, Ft. Myers; Miss Jacquelin Hucks, Ft. Pierce; Mrs. J. W. Wilson, Gainesville; Mrs. E. L. Beeson, Groveland; Mrs. Dee Young, Greenland; Mrs. Jessie Tuten, Jasper; Miss Eleanor Robinson, Jacksonville; Miss Ruth Pearson, Lake City; Mrs. Pallas Gunn, Lake Wales; Miss Eunice Grady, Live Oak; Miss Ruth Middlebrooks, Marianna; Miss Margaret Ann Bell, New Smyrna; Mrs. Tootie Withers, Ocala; Mrs. Browning Roach, Pahokee; Miss Fanny Pete Wells, Palatka; Miss Roberta Anson, Pensacola; Miss Marie Jelks Johnson, Mrs. Ida Mae Bostick, Quincy; Miss Virginia Earle, Sanford; Miss Louise Houck, Sebring; Miss Enis McCoire, St. Augustine; Miss Dorothy Neal, St. Petersburg; Miss Tobiah Lozitz, Tarpon Springs; and Miss Florence Tyson, Tallahassee.

For Expert
ALTERATIONS AND TAILORING
CALL—MRS. J. E. WILLIAMS—410-K
Located at P. W. Wilson Company

Song Competition To Close Tonight

All poets and tune writers have until light flash tonight to turn in their original Florida State songs to Beth Dasne, in 321 Broward.

This contest is an annual affair, conducted as a part of the activities of Florida State College for Women's Week. This year the winning song and lyrics will be presented in convocation Tuesday, March 9, when Marion Conn, Betty Parker, and Frances Perth, there in the limit to the number of people composing a song or the number of songs submitted by one person or group.

Tallahassee Cemetery Holds Grave of Royal Foreigner

Story of Romance, Adventure and Ambition Lies Behind Simple White Spires Carrying Murat Family Coat-of-Arms

BY PETRREA CABANISS

When the girls who like to spend their Sunday afternoons wandering through the cemetery on Park avenue come upon two small white spires placed side by side and surrounded by a low stone wall inlaid with a rusty bronze coat of arms bearing the name Murat, have they ever wondered how they lyres behind there two silent mountants?

For there is a very definite story—of romance and adventure and ambition—connects with the two people buried there. These two people were Prince Achille Murat and his wife, Catherine Willis.

Born in Paris in 1801, Achille Murat, a lieutenant-colonel in the French army and Achille Murat, the younger son of Napoleon, Achille was soon taken by fate as he father had but been given the crown of the Two Sicilies. When his father was executed by the family driven into exile by the English and the Austrians, he came to come to America.

Prince Murat first settled at Portenoe, near St. Augustine, but as this land was too poor for cultivation, he moved to Tallahassee. The next year he married Catherine Willis Gerfield Willis, of Virginia, a great-grandniece of George Washington. They had very little money, for the prince had used up all his funds in the agricultural venture, and for the first few years of their life the land yielded was invested in the plantation. Murat's ambition was to establish a home in which his children could live and which would be worthy of his title.

Marianna: Dr. M. R. Rinson—Rotary Club, March 2, noon; Dr. Enda May Dvinney—P. T. A. and Alumnae, March 4, 3:00 p. m.; Alumnae Group, March 4, 6:00 p. m. Woman's Club, March 5, 3:00 p. m.; Miss Louise Richardson—Alumnae Club, March 4, 3:00 p. m.; Miss Agnes Sasnett—Alumnae Club, March 4, 3:00 p. m.; Kiwanis Club, March 5, noon.

Miami: Dr. Kathryn T. Abbey—Woman's Club, March 2, 3:30 p. m.; Dr. William G. Dodd—Alumnae Group, March 8, evening.

Palmetto: Dr. William G. Dodd—Alumnae Group, March 8, evening.

Pahokee: Dr. Ralph L. Eyman—March 4, Rotary Club, noon; Woman's Club, March 2, afternoon; Dr. Ralph T. Alber—Woman's Club, March 2, afternoon; B. and P. W. Club and Alumnae Group, evening.

Palatka: Prof. Earl L. Vance—Rotary Club, March 2, noon.

Pensacola: Dr. Enda May Devinney—Junior Club, March 2, 6:30 p. m.; Alumnae Club, March 2, 6:30 p. m.; Kiwanis Club, March 3, 1 p. m.; Miss Sadie Young—Rotary Club, March 2, 12:30 p. m. Alumnae Club, March 2, 6:30 p. m.; Woman's Club, March 2, 8 p. m.; Dr. Ralph T. Alber—March 3, Pigs Club, March 3, 1 p. m.

Pompano: Dr. Ralph L. Eyman —March 5, Rotary Club, noon; Club house assembly, afternoon; Alumnae Club, evening.

Quincy: Dean Ella Scoble Opperman, Woman's Club, March 4.

Sanford: Dr. Margaret R. Sanderlin—Alumnae Club, March 4, noon; Dr. Verlia Shores, Rotary Club, March 3, noon.

Sebring: Dr. Kathryn T. Abbey —Alumnae Club, March 2, evening.

St. Augustine: Prof. Earl L. Vance, Rotary Club, March 1; Miss Kiwanis Club, March 2, noon; Pilot Club, March 3, 7 p. m.

St. Petersburg: Dr. R. S. Cotterill—Optimist Club, March 1, noon; Kiwanis Club, March 2, noon; Lions Club, March 3, noon; Dr. William G. Dodd—Junior Club, March 3, noon; Exchange Club, March 4, noon; Dr. Olivia Dorman—Alumnae Club, March 5; evening.

Tallahassee: Miss Louise Richardson—Junior Chamber of Commerce, March 1, 1 p. m.; Kiwanis Club, March 2, 1 p. m.; Dr. Edward Conradi and Miss Anna May Tracy—Alumnae Club, March 1, 7 p. m.; Mr. John G. Kellum—Rotary Club, March 2, noon; Dr. Ralph L. Eyman, Woman's Club, March 3, 1 p. m.; Miss Sachett Pitchford —Alumnae Club, March 3, 1 p. m.; Miss Elizabeth Lynn—Exchange Club, March 3, 1:10 p. m.; Rotary Club, March 10, 1:15 p. m.

Tampa: Dr. Olivia Dorman—Alumnae Club, March 6, noon.

Tarpon Springs: Dr. William H. Evans—Lions Club, March 2, 6:30 p. m.

Alumnae chairmen assisting with P. E. O. Week are as follows: Miss Gertrude Kuhn Barber; Mrs. Earl Wells, Manatee; Mrs. Olin Silvers, Chipley; Miss Maud McCall, Live Oak; Miss Ethel Nisbet, Cocoa Mrs. Gene Pilcher, Crestview; Miss Gladys Folsom, Cross City; Mrs. Howard Gamble, Bustis; Miss Anna Jane Pearce, Miami; Miss Elizabeth Bertha Stulpner, Ft. Myers; Miss Jacquelin Hucks, Ft. Pierce; Mrs. J. W. Wilson, Gainesville; Mrs. E. L. Beeson, Groveland; Mrs. Dee Young, Greenland; Mrs. Jessie Tuten, Jasper; Miss Eleanor Robinson, Jacksonville; Miss Ruth Pearson, Lake City; Mrs. Pallas Gunn, Lake Wales; Miss Eunice Grady, Live Oak; Miss Ruth Middlebrooks, Marianna; Miss Margaret Ann Bell, New Smyrna; Mrs. Tootie Withers, Ocala; Mrs. Browning Roach, Pahokee; Miss Fanny Pete Wells, Palatka; Miss Roberta Anson, Pensacola; Miss Marie Jelks Johnson, Mrs. Ida Mae Bostick, Quincy; Miss Virginia Earle, Sanford; Miss Louise Houck, Sebring; Miss Enis McCoire, St. Augustine; Miss Dorothy Neal, St. Petersburg; Miss Tobiah Lozitz, Tarpon Springs; and Miss Florence Tyson, Tallahassee.

For Expert
ALTERATIONS AND TAILORING
CALL—MRS. J. E. WILLIAMS—410-K
Located at P. W. Wilson Company

Improved Wing Is Up-To-Date

Campus Telephone System Installed With One For Public Use

The offices that have moved into the new wing of the James Westcott Wing Memorial building are enjoying new equipment and up-to-date conveniences that the old building lacked. These modern appliances and materials make for more pleasant working conditions as well as a greater degree of efficiency.

Acoustic tile ceilings and linoleum floors on concrete will help to silence the noise from the hall and the overhead classrooms.

An improved electric lighting system has been installed in the new wing, and all offices are equipped with Venetian blinds.

For the first time the college will have a campus telephone exchange system. It will soon be installed in the small room at the right of the top of the main entrance stairs, and since it has a central position it will be used also as a general information office.

An improvement over the old system of receiving and storing freight is made possible by the freight room in the basement of the new wing and the special driveway which comes from the main driveway to the store room. By entering the freight at the door of the store room much trafficking will be eliminated. The freight will also be safer than when it was stored along the sides of the main hall as it has been and there will be more room conveniently provided for each office.

Another new feature of the building is the drinking fountain public use installed opposite the postoffice.

The dictorilogy laboratory has been supplied also with modern equipment and is now prepared from fire than the old laboratory. Five new rooms, to be used eventually as classrooms, have been built in the attic. At present the W. C. and the Dental offices are occupying two of the rooms.

The postoffice, book store and the bursar's department have all been enlarged and newly equipped. Also, a room, to be furnished as a lounge, has been provided opposite the postoffice for the use of the faculty members. Here they may relax.

Nell Carroll's Tower Light Challenges Campus Quitters

Changing College Aims In Nineteen Years Noted by Senior

By Mary Jeanne McKay

The light that early morning risers and late returning weekenders sometimes see swinging in the East Tower of Bryan Hall should be as much of a challenge to the modern world as was that light in the Old North Church Tower to the world of Paul Revere, for it, too, speaks of a kind of revolution. The story of the symbol is that Nell Carroll is burning the midnight oil in her singular home and castle.

Nell is a senior of the class of 1937, but it has been 19 years since she was a freshman. This does not mean, as it would seem to indicate, that she has had to have her head bumped the grade, but that she waited fifteen summers to enter the college as a full time junior year. Nor does she look like the customary late decrepit student, for she has left her man to be a scholarly grind of a freshman. That is, she has her wife she cams back at all, she will reply with characteristic frankness, "I was a fool then. Now I found myself about to take advantage of a college education opportunities, and the fly in the ointment was always my lack of a college degree. So I'm going to get one!"

And it isn't as easy as it sounds. Nell declares, even if she doesn't have the usual problems of the older person living among college girls. A sense of humor and too friendly a disposition endeared to younger girls has made a barrier impossible, but there is one dark divide, and that is a matter of temper.

Each first years in college were spent during a period when it was not fully understood that each an institution was for intellectual pursuit alone, and the life at such a place was not complete through such a tenet on a comparatively small scale. Nell believes her education however, in a period depending entirely upon everything but intellectual attainment.

After asking students and faculty what is the most outstanding thing a girl should get from college, Nell believes relatively few of them would answer intelligently as such. Today the stress is on the development of personality, responsibility, social adjustment, personality development, cultural polish, and the development of each such participation in recreational pursuits and social activities. The need frenzy of the rush seasons Nell, the Dean's office strained to keep up, and does not understand how other students do not feel the same need for a result of knowledge.

The student says Nell, "is not on studying. It is on the quantity of things you do instead of the quality." She would point out that this is true both of the college administration and of the students themselves. Nell believes that the college should be run by the faculty assisted by the students.

Besides the fundamental change in college atmosphere, Nell finds one other striking physical changes on the campus, such as the Seminole building which has replaced the Old East hall. When she left in 1919, the Education building was in its last stages of completion. When she returned in 1936 it was in approximately the same stage of completion. During the period and rose to greet her like a memorial plaque to the past. Nell will recount many changes in the social regulations, too.

"No dancing with men then," she explained, "—and that's why I don't enjoy ballroom dancing today. I had to learn it again!"

Parts of the campus remain much the same, though, in spite of the change in the physical appearance, and social regulations. The personnel of the student body has a similar nature. The same old problems are talked about—politics and rushing—and girls still will be girls.

"You get more things done now perhaps," Nell says, "but we seemed to have as much, or more fun." That intends to use her hard-won education in teaching. However, her first great effort upon graduation will be to foster her ambition for a "bar-the-Bachelors' Bill." Although Nell is single, she would like very much to adopt or take a foster child or child. She feels that she could give these children all the advantages of a home and mother except Financia support. Nell's characteristic of her humorous and sincere mind that she would not only the situation in this way. All the children, she says, with no family responsibilities shall be taxed, and that money shall be used to support single women, who wish, but cannot afford to marry.

Nell's good level head and sincere desire to help others seem to carry her through any situation, even if it's one in which she finds herself in the minority. She consistentiously trying to fulfill requirements of an academic nature, in a world that stands for attitude as old-fashioned. So she will get her degree in June, you can tell that by her determinations, and by the number of times her lights burn on into the night.

With it all, she senses what perhaps younger students do not—that an old career is opening, perhaps all may n.t be well seen the new. What for instance of the Bachelor's Bill? Perhaps tomorrow, built on the foundations of the present, will be the people who wish to follow their intellectual life? The thing is still pointed out, and it is hoped and that is why the scientific people in her wishes to be a symbol of a challenge to a new college student.

Relations Club Brings Speaker

Sponsored by the International Relations club, Sir Hervert Ames, distinguished Canadian Carnegie speaker, will speak here April 5 and 6, on the work of the League of Nations and the current European situation.

Sir Ames was from 1919 to 1928 first treasurer of the League of Nations, and is now a well-known lecturer in Canadian and American colleges.

Come to McCRORY'S Five and Ten

Easter Greeting Cards, Paper Supplies

Branch of AAUW Honors All Seniors on Friday

The seniors were honored last night at a dinner party given by the Tallahassee branch of the American Association of University Women.

A fifteen-minute play on school problems, directed by the dramatic department, under the direction of Miss Kenner Moore, and a reception in honor of the seniors preceding were the members of the association's program for which includes Mrs. C. P. Reiss, hist, Mrs. Cecil Moore, Dr. Anna Pearl Keene, Mrs. Lucile Campbell, Dr. Annie M. Pooser, Dr. Ruth Bryan Owen, Dr. Kathryn T. Abbey, Dr. Ruth Conner, and Miss Sara Mae Lee Patterson in charge of arrangements, was chairman of the party.

Award Deadline Set

March 20 is the deadline for entering manuscripts for the Adrian Award of Honor. All manuscripts should include a completed copy of the student's record at the graduation and be sent to Mrs. Ruth Wilson, Box 1068, Orlando, Florida.

a better follower and kinder leader.

Dr. Paul Pinner will speak on the same subject—"The Psychology of Christian Experience."

PHONE 800
Fast Delivery!

DENTAL NEEDS
60c Butler Tooth Brush ..39c
50c Pyorrhoe Brush ..39c
35c Mason Brush ..21c
50c Ipana Tooth Paste ..39c
50c Sensodyne, 3 for ..98c
50c Pepsodent ..39c
75c Arden's, 3 for ..1.06

SOAP SPECIALS
10c Woodbury's, 3 for ..22c
10c Lifebuoy ..7c

KOTEX 12s, 18c—2 for 37c
KOTEX 36s, 54c—2 for 1.06
KOTEX 72s, 87c—2 for 1.39
KOTEX BELTS ..18c, 22c
PINS ..29c
MODESS 12s ..18c
MODESS 36s ..47c

KLEENEX 300s (FOR 25c) ..15c
KLEENEX 500s (TWO FOR 51c) ..31c

Meeting Plans Of Pilot Club Announced

Annual District Meeting Will Be Held Here March 13 and 14

Plans for the annual district meeting of Pilot Club International which will convene here March 13 and 14, have just been announced by Miss Katherine Ferguson, secretary to the dean of students.

Pilot Clubs from Jacksonville, Ocala, Orlando, Panama City, Pensacola, St. Augustine, Tallahassee, Tampa, West Palm Beach, and Winter Haven will be represented at the meeting.

The Cherokee hotel, where registration will take place on Saturday afternoon, will be the headquarters for the convention. Here the registration there will be a get-together tea which will begin with a tea at the college from 5 to 6 o'clock. At the hotel, at 7 o'clock there will be a banquet which Dr. Kathryn Abbey, president of the Miami club, will be speaker. On Sunday morning there will be a breakfast meeting with a business meeting at Dutch Kitchen.

Pilot members who belong to the Pilot club include Miss Anna May Tracy, district director and assistant professor of institution economics and home economics; Miss Agnes Sasnett, assistant professor of speech, and Elizabeth Lynn, instructor in physics. Miss Sasnett is also president of the Tallahassee Pilot club.

STATE
Sun. Mon.—Feb. 28 Mar. 1
ERROL FLYNN
GREEN LIGHT
Tues. Only, March 2
MURIEL HERTH AND MATHSON'S
SMART BLONDE
Wed only, March 3
THEY'RE OUT! . . . BUT NOT OF SIGHT!
OUTCAST
WARREN WILLIAM
JOAN BLONDELL
Thurs. Only, March 4
ANNABELLE'S AFFAIRS
ROMANCE . . . HOPE . . . DESPAIR
GIRLS ON PROBATION
Stage Show: 3-5-7-9 p. m.
Sollie Child's "PARISIAN FOLLIES"
Midnite Show, Friday 9th
Jaclara Spook Show
11:45 p. m.

Swing into Spring in a dashing manner in these ... cotton frocks! Adroit adaptations of brilliant style successes .... they accent saucy, youthful lines ... swing skirts .... the Princess silhouette and other fashion whims that present a flowing sense of grace that is definitely 1937.

P. W. Wilson Company
SINCE 1837

Board Starts Spring Plans

Hockey, Soccer Managers Are Appointed For 1937-1938 Term

With the selection of leaders for next year, Odd and Even soccer and hockey were placed in the background and arrangements were made by the athletic board for spring activities. These include diamond ball, tennis and swimming.

The girls chosen for 1937-1938 managers were: Frances Fryer, head soccer; Ruth Wilson, Odd soccer; Jane Jewett, head hockey; and Sarah Lyrell, Odd hockey.

The change from baseball to diamond ball was made in the hope of correlating college sports more with the summer pastimes of the students. It was also done in the desire to get rid of the rubber bullets that occur so frequently in baseball. Dates for practice will be set later.

The annual student-faculty tennis tournament is to be arranged by Evelyn Fisher and Valerie Hart. Swimming, starting next week, is under the supervision of Jan Rethow, Janet Cook, Valera Hunt, and Sarah Jane Stansbury.

Article Attacked

Continued from page four

of the military uprising. The government has murdered, or permitted the murder of hundreds of thousands of defenseless citizens, has burned thousands of churches, has killed the children and violated women, has destroyed artistic treasures, and, in short, has committed such acts of unspeakable horror that I am sure, when the hideous truth becomes fully known, the voice of the whole of mankind will cry out against and condemn those responsible for the greatest disaster in the world's history.

General Franco, leader of the Fascist army, who has repeatedly stated being a Fascist, broadcast his Nationalist's plans for a new Spain upon the opening of a powerful new radio station at Salamanca a few days ago. He said: "Our soldiers are fighting as the servants of Communism — fighting for a new Spain; fighting for peace and happiness in town and country; for just laws; improving the condition of the working and middle classes; for real liberty of thought; for respect for religion and tradition; for the peace and happiness of his home; for our overwhelming civilization; for the prestige of our flag; for the independence of our country."

Furthermore, he stated: "Those who either by conviction or through being deceived by others are fighting against us have my heart of honor that, despite everything, to them if they surrender to my troops, will be the work of the courts of justice to punish only those who have committed crimes or acts punishable under ordinary law."

Quite interesting in this connection is the testimony of Bert Hall, ex-American aviator in Spain. In an article published in the London Daily Express, Feb. 1, recently returned from service as an aviator in the Madrid forces, he revealed that in New York he had three friends had been offered $1,000 to fly for the Madrid government. $1,000 for every enemy plane they brought down. The faith was not what Hall was described to us in New York as a struggle of democracy against fascism, and Hall left the store the Russians arrived. He feels he is fighting for supremacy of the air and General Franco's "arm and navy-handed." He also revealed that there were over 300 Soviet planes and pilots fighting for the Madrid government, then not at Spain.

"Are the anti-Communistic people of Spain expected to be murdered in their beds while the Reds loot and burn their homes and churches, and then arrogantly claim for their lives? As to the use of foreign troops, I would remind you that there are approximately 50,000 foreign volunteers, including the International Brigade — comprising the Tenth, Eleventh and Twelfth Battalions, fighting the government side. They are mostly Russians but include Poles, Germans, Austrians, Italians, and anti-Fascist Italians, according to Foreign Policy Report.

"No one will deny that the cause of the innocent and deserving section of property accompanied by France's beaugarment of Madrid's colonade, but what other course is he to take? The conduct in Spain is WAR, and as in all other wars, the innocent must suffer. True, the suffering in Spain is excessive, but the Reds are mostly to blame. Madrid has, by no power been cut off from any access to the rest of the world. To-date this fact, the Communist government refuses to allow any countrymen to evacuate the 42,000-odd Spaniards who are forced to defend Madrid. Those caught deserting are shot without mercy."

Writer Looks At Flambeau Of Yesterday

Ten Years Ago Appeal Made for Elections Of Today

By DOROTHY BARCLAY

How will this copy of the Flambeau look to students ten years from now? The obvious answer would be, "Just as it looks now on a little yellow, perhaps, but that's all." Yet, is it?

Look sometime at the bound copies of the paper to be found in the library.

In 1927 the Flambeau was a small publication, fourteen by nine-and-a-half inches, the usual issues contained eight pages of four columns each. The first was given over to general news, the second, editorials; third, Y. W. C. A.; fourth, society; fifth, exchange; sixth, sports; seventh, continued stories; eighth, jokes.

The amount of humor appearing in the paper at that time was amazing. Besides filling that part of page eight which was not already used for advertising, jokes were used to fill in any gaps which might appear elsewhere throughout the issue. There is an item beginning, "Getting out a paper is no lark. If we print jokes, people say we're silly; if we don't print them, we're too serious." Be that as it may, its sterling qualities brought it up for publication three times in the year.

From this vantage point in time it is amusing to look back at the bobbed-hair controversy which was ragging on campus in January, 1924. At that time there was a column on the editorial page discussing the matter and presenting definite statistics. When 784 of the 1,000 girls on campus were questioned, it was learned that 69.2 per cent had bobbed hair, that forty excuses listed by those refusing to fall in line ranged all the way from one which stated "A lady should have long hair" to one which frankly predicted "bobbed hair will soon be just a novelty." The keynote seemed to be "if don't have the nerve—afraid it's too flapperish."

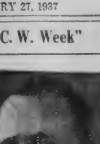
But the Flambeau was an organ of education as well as of amusement. Every week during this period there appeared a series of "Questions" statements to be corrected by the reader with "answers next week." There seemed to be, also, some unrest among the editors as to the general mental tone of the student body and editorials appeared querying. "Are we Flappers?" "Are we?" in a series three-quarters of a column long inquiring "In What Are We Interested?" tended to light the fact that a work by one of the foremost American writers on European history, Henry C. Lea's History of the Church of Middle Ages, had been in the library for twenty years and still had its pages uncut.

College traditions, too, were being questioned. Why was it necessary to be staunch in their behalf, claiming that they serve to draw the student body closer and to bind him strongly after he's gone? It is their belief, the answer to such a profound ceremony as commencement is the graduate in years to come.

When the Y.W.C.A was not above inquiry, although it performed the essential service of maintaining vacation machines and pressing rooms. An investigation showed that the Association was a one of the most beautiful of its kind, the small dormitories which were furnished with a bath to each two rooms, the student union building and the large swimming pool. The visitors were also interested in the French house where all the exchange students live with those students who are majoring in French, separate buildings devoted to music and dramatics and studios for broadcasting.

The quaint city of New Orleans with its gutted iron lacework and its haunting atmosphere of age formed an interesting background for the convention. Delegates from Florida State dined one night at the famous French restaurant Antoines' established in 1840. There also visited the famous doll house of Colleen Moore which is said to have cost a quarter of a million dollars and is a veritable fairy land. Each article was an exact reproduction of one of its normal size. Gold dishes adorned the banquet table while a miniature organ which really played was a masterpiece of miniature art.

Members of Faculty Who Will Tour State During "F. S. C. W. Week"



DR. W. H. ROGERS

DR. R. S. COTTERILL

DR. PAUL PINNER

DR. R. L. EYMAN

DR. HERMAN KURZ

MISS SADIE YOUNG

EARL L. VANCE

DEAN ELLA S. OPPERMAN

DEAN WILLIAM G. DODD

DEAN NATHANIEL M. SALLEY

DEAN OLIVIA N. DORMAN

DEAN MARGARET R. SANDELS

Pictured above are twelve of the twenty-five members of the faculty of Florida College who will travel throughout the state next week to appear before various organizations as part of the observance of "F. S. C. W. Week." Those whose pictures do not appear, but who will also make speaking tours are Miss Ezda Mae Dewbery, Dr. Kathryn Abbey, Miss Ruth Conner, Miss Rose Dee, Miss Anna Forbes, Hardell, Dr. Hugh L. Waskens, Miss Louise Richardson, Dr. Roy Hinson and Dr. Vonda L. Shores. Miss Elizabeth Lynn, J. G. Kellum, Miss Anna May Tracey and Dr. Edward Conradi.

Dean Meeting Is Discussed By Delegates

Flowers Outlines Series Of Entertainments And Talks Given

Bringing back ideas of the contrast between Florida State College for Women and other colleges, Miss Maud Flowers, director of residence halls, discussed her recent trip to the National Association of Deans of Women convention in New Orleans.

The trip, which many general college problems showed the delegates from Florida State that the problems of their college are also theirs met in other colleges of the country. Miss Flowers especially found the talk of Dean Baldwin from Duke university on "Co-Curricular Activities" interesting. Copies of Dean Baldwin's talk will be printed in pamphlet form and distributed by the Four-H club in Florida.

Visiting Sophie Newcombe college and also the Louisiana State university, Miss Flowers was impressed by the largeness and beauty of the institutions.

Special features of the campuses which stood out in the visitor's inspection were the college Greek theater, which is used for convocations and graduation and is one of the most beautiful of its kind, the small dormitories which were furnished with a bath to each two rooms, the student union building and the large swimming pool. The visitors were also interested in the French house where all the exchange students live with those students who are majoring in French, separate buildings devoted to music and dramatics and studios for broadcasting.

The quaint city of New Orleans with its gutted iron lacework and its haunting atmosphere of age formed an interesting background for the convention. Delegates from Florida State dined one night at the famous French restaurant Antoines' established in 1840. There also visited the famous doll house of Colleen Moore which is said to have cost a quarter of a million dollars and is a veritable fairy land. Each article was an exact reproduction of one of its normal size. Gold dishes adorned the banquet table while a miniature organ which really played was a masterpiece of miniature art.

Flastacowo Editors' Plan for Feature Section Of Annual Causes Much Comment Among Students

By PETREA CABANISS

The new policy of the Flastacowo editors, to have the feature section consist of the most outstanding on campus instead of those girls which represent superlatives is one field, such as intellect, sport, or beauty, is causing much comment.

One member of the student body declared that she is highly in favor of the new policy, because in former years there have been many outstanding girls who did not fit any special type and thus were denied recognition in the feature section.

Another girl likes the new method because she feels it is more democratic, where formerly she felt that the editors merely picked their own friends to represent the different types.

One student thinks the new policy a good one, believing that more credit is due a girl who has been elected outstanding than one who was lucky enough to be born beautiful or intellectual.

However another student thinks that the various types should have some recognition, as outstanding girls get enough notice in other ways.

"There is no change in this year's policy," one girl stated. "Always the girls in the feature section have been those people before the public eye, and it will be the same way this year. Many of the really outstanding girls will be left out because they do not often come into contact with the student body as a whole."

One girl said she likes this plan.

Andrews Gives Lecture

A talk on vocational guidance concerning employment for next year for seniors and two year students will be given at a meeting Monday night at 7:30 o'clock in the Augusta Conradi theater. Dr. Elizabeth Gordon Andrews will be the speaker. Everyone including those not planning to teach, is urged to be present.

Semi-Annual Scrub Given to Fountain

Late one afternoon recently, anyone who chanced to pass the fountain in front of the Ad building, might have been somewhat amazed to see members of the Sophomore Council, clad in shorts and barefooted, climbing in and out of the fountain and chasing the fish in the basin. Some spectators thought the scene so unusual that cameras were brought out and several snapshots taken.

The reason for such activity on the part of the Sophomore Council had to be explained to several curious onlookers. The girls were preparing to clean the fountain because—well, because they got tired of looking at it as it was and their pride or something drove them to action.

There was some difficulty involved in installing the weary small fish but as soon as the fish were captured and swimming in the upper basin the solemn task of giving the fountain one of its semi-annual baths started.

Specialist in Nursery School Work, Parental Education Visits Here

Dr. Grace Langdon, specialist in nursery school work and parental education for the W. P. A. and professor of child care and training at Columbia university, visited the campus on Monday and Tuesday. She is on a tour of the W. P. A. schools, accompanied by Mrs. Hazel Stillman, state supervisor of parent education.

During her stay Dr. Langdon was entertained by Dr. Julia Heinlein, head of the nursery school here, with a tour of the campus followed by dinner in the college dining room and an after dinner coffee at Dr. Heinlein's home. Tuesday morning she visited the nursery school.

Dr. Langdon is the author of Home Guidance of Young Children, the text used by the home economics department in the child care and training course.

Alpha Chi Alpha Holds Initiation and Dinner

Three students, Evelyn Fisher, Wade Shepard, and Sarah Pennington were initiated Thursday night into Alpha Chi Alpha honorary journalistic society. After the ceremony, a dinner was given in the Dutch Kitchen.

The present members of Alpha Chi Alpha are Raren Bowman, Martha Baker, Virginia Early, Sarah Beth Davis, Margaret Claire Lafferty, Arline Gray Lockhart, and Lillie McQuire.

Students Try Unique Poses For Contest

Amateur Photographers Hunt Prize-Winning Snap-shots

By FRANCES BRUNSON

With the Flastacowo picture contest ending in less than a month, the campus is glowing with originality. Students may be seen assuming grotesque poses and wearing clothes that one might mistake for costumes to be worn to a tacky party, as they pose to have their pictures taken for the original, girls' toothpaste ads and give hearty laughter while breaking your neck.

To make anybody's mind up is a difficult task.

While the theme of picking is centered on the there still remain those to take pictures for their own use. Sunday afternoon the campus is covered with Cheating the most picturesque spots as a background, they dig themselves in posed positions for grin from ear to ear as the camera clicks. These are the studes who always manage to be in the line-light looking their sweetest when pictures for the annual are taking salem of social functions. They also insist on posing with that "boy friend" when he comes up.

Then there are the students who want really portrayed in pictures. Dressed in school girls' clothes and sucking their thumb or behind the kitchen and find a wheelbarrow on which to recline. A horse also lends reality to it as they can discover some garbage can to stand by, the picture is complete.

Adolph Hitler Wins Vote of Students as Most Important Man in World with Roosevelt Second

By BLANTON BARRETT

Adolph Hitler is the most important man in the world today, according to a straw vote taken this morning of 77 out of 128 students questioned on campus. Roosevelt came in second with 21 votes. Other candidates for the honor ranged from Benito Mussolini to Robert Taylor. Public acts of the men and personal nominations of Georges, Bill's, and Fred's.

Many students decided. "I believe that Hitler is the most important man in the world until I begin thinking about Mussolini," she stated. "After all Mussolini was the first of the two and it would seem that he would be a good deal to the state of preparedness to insure his importance. I simply couldn't say."

Martha Thomas, French student, believes that Hitler is

Nature About Grounds Irks Girl and Date

Campus Flora and Fauna Heckle Two Nearly To Distraction

The girl and her date seated themselves gingerly on a bench in the open air theatre, said "Beau" to the kitten which had followed them there from the dining room, watched two half-grown squirrels scamper up a tree-trunk, said "shoo—go way," to the black and tan puppy who nipped at John's trouser cuffs, and prepared themselves for a good heart-to-heart talk of things and people back home; how it was when John left, how many months it would be until Mary would be back, and what John thought of Florida, et. al.

There was a great fanning of wings. Approximately five hundred members of the fowl family flocked from within the foliage. John felt foolish. Mary suggested that they stroll about the campus a bit, but regretted the thought immediately as she saw a large, happy collie bounding towards them joyfully. Horrible thought of being followed by the animal assailed her, and she quickly ushered John through the portals of the science building. "So show you the lab," she explained. The bewildered male followed her somewhat blindly, unaccustomed to the darker surroundings after the bright glare of the open, and stumbled up the stairs leading to the landing of the second floor. Hesitating a moment before following Mary into the laboratory, he doffed his new felt, placing it on what he thought was a table for that purpose. Suddenly unprintemanly vocalization followed.

"What th' . . . Say, what is this place, anyway, a zoo or museum? First it's cats. Then dogs. Birds and squirrels. And now, an alligator!"

"Oh John, I'm so sorry. That's the taxidermy department's pet. He's really very mild."

"I'm not afraid of him. It's just the idea of the thing. I suppose they keep snakes around this place, too!" (Edged sarcasm.)

"Well, only one. In the zoology department. But he's dead."

"And I guess they show lunch pictures in town every Saturday. Come on. Let's leave the menagerie to the animal lovers."

So Mary and John withdrew, leaving the flora and fauna of the campus to be enjoyed by the botanists, zoologists, kitten-lovers, bird fanciers, and the dog-owners of the sorority house.

Astronomy Club Sees Moon with Telescope

Despite the shifting clouds, many of the members of the Astronomy club were able to observe the moon through the portable telescope last Wednesday night.

Dr. Hugh L. Waskens, Dr. E. C. Caldwell of the Presbyterian church, Tallahassee, talked to members of the Astronomy club on "Heights Among the Stars." Next month another telescopic observation of the moon will be held when weather conditions are more favorable, according to Gladys Ward, president of the organization.

Eat Protection

ST COUGH

Copyright 1937, The American Tobacco Company

Fifty-Six New Volumes Added By Librarians

Two Month Period Brings Books of All Kinds To Shelves

In the first two months of the new year the Florida State College library has already added to the shelves fifty six new volumes of fiction, biography, short stories, travel and history. The combined basis of politics has brushed bindings with Boston Symphony Orchestra sketches, and children and radio programs have squeezed in Emile Zumanlic Quebec in the crates of in-coming volumes.

In the period from November, '36 to January, '37, one hundred three new books had made their way into the stacks, the records soon shelves or, if they very particularly forced into the recesses of the browsing room. These 56 here have been ordered along with tones that interest only the highly specialized mind.

Among the newest books that seem to have the most appeal for the student reading public are "The Fault Never Dies" by Alexander Woollcott; "Tales of Basque Country" by Rose Wilder Lane; "Without Hits from Warner," which has been observed beneath seven inch on open alphabetical and which was compiled by Charles Jack; "The Pirate's Queen;" "News From Tartary" as reported by Fleming; Spanish Symbols" by Ellsberg; "The Gay Cavaliers" by Gordon; "Ghosts and Goblins" by Harper; "Alice" the successor to Laughing Boy, "All the Young Men;" and Pamela's "Daughters by Utter."

The specialist in economics will find such volumes as "Why Commercial Banks of Politics," and "Investment Banking" of particular interest. And for the students of social conditions, history, and literature there are books on all of books that will prove fascinating.

Among these works appear: "The Colonial Period of American History in two volumes, Andrews;" "Edna St. Vincent Millay and Her Times," Atkins; "Am Glad You're Neurotic," Bach; "English Costume," Cunnington; "William Morris, Designer," Crow; "Speaking of Religion," Curry; "Hail Creole" Darrah; "Pilgrim Journal of Music," Davis; "The Setting-Immersed of the Peace Pilgrim," Dewey; "Dawson; "Challange," Fergis; "Reading for Writing," Gerich; "In Quest of Contentment," Grenfell; "The Adventure of Life," Grenfell; "Labrador Labor at the Orient," Grenfell; "The Unexpected Years," Hancock; "Something New Out of Africa," Howard; "Charles W. Eliot," in two volumes, James; "Lafayette: A Life," Latzko; also "British Colonial Government After the American Revolution, 1762-1820," Manning; "Arts and Mountain," Marbak; "Mansion in the Carolinas," Munroe, "The Old Pirate Book" Moore; "A Thatched Roof" Nicholson; "Curran, The Early Phase, 1919-1925," Nicholson; "American Plebian," Quinn; "Preface to Peasantry," Raper; "The Old House in the Country," Reece; "Rhetoric" Rice; "Co-op," Sinclair; "The Tumult and the Shooting," Slocombe; "The Count of Pair Maidens," Speyer; "The Reformed Pirate," Stockton; "Two volumes of Essays" by Sumner; "Ends of Things," Thayer; "Covering the Far East," Vaughn; "Mark Twain, The Man and His Work," Weaver; Knecht; "The Hound Tuner of Callaway;" Wecks; "The Coming Boom in Real Estate;" "A French-man Among the Victorians," Wey; and "The Medici, in two volumes," by Young.

Schedule for Faculty Talks is Announced

Continued from page Nine

noon; Woman's Club, March 2, 3 p. m.

Cross City: Dr. W. H. Rogers—High school, March 1, 10:30 a. m; Woman's Club, March 1, 4:00 p. m.

Starke: Dr. William G. Dodd—Lake County Alumnae Club, March 4, evening.

Fort Lauderdale: Dr. Ralph L. Eyman—R. T. A. March 2, 3 p. m. Entertainer: Alumnae Club, March 2, evening; Rotary March 3, noon; Pan Hellenic, March 3, 3:30 p. m.

Fort Myers: Dr. R. S. Cotterill—P. T. A. March 4, 2:15 p. m.; P. E. O. March 4, 8:00 p. m.

Fort Pierce: Dr. Ralph L. Eyman—Alumnae Club, March 1, 6:00 p. m.

Gainesville: Mrs. Louise Richardson—Alumnae Club, March 6 afternoon; Dr. Ralph L. Eyman—Alumnae Club, March 8, noon; Rotary Club, March 8, noon; Dr. Newton P. Stallings—Alumnae Club, March 9, noon; Dr. Newton P. Stallings—University of Florida Woman's Club, March 15, 3:30 p. m. Junior Chamber of Commerce, March 15, 7:00 p. m.; International Relations Group of A. A. U. W. and B and P. W. March 15, 8:00 p. m.

Greenland: Dr. Margaret B. Fowler, Woman's Club, March 5, 4:00 p. m.

Havana: Dr. Ruth Comer—P. T. A. and Alumnae Group, March 4, 8:00 p. m.

Jacksonville: Dean N. M. Bellamy—Entertaining Professors' Club, March 2, noon; Ladies' Senior High school, March 3, 11 a. m.; Kwanis Club, March 3, noon; Landon P. T. A. Father's Night, March 3, 8:00 p. m.; Army and Navy Club, March 4, noon; San Antonio Branch of Y. W. C. A. Open Club, March 4, 1 p. m.

Jasper: Dr. Anna Forbes Lad—Alumnae Group, March 5, 4:00 and Woman's Club, March 5, 4:00 p. m.

Kissimmee: Miss Lucy Belle Hall—Rotary Club, Chamber of Commerce and Kiwanis, March 3, 7:00; Dr. Ralph L. Eyman—Alumnae Group, March 3, 8:00 p. m.

Lake City: Prof. Earl L. Vance—Rotary Club and Alumnae Group March 4, night.

Lake Wales: Dr. William G. Dodd—Alumnae Group, March 4, night.

Live Oak—Prof. Earl L. Vance—High school, March 5, 9:30 a. m.; Garden Club, March 5, noon; Dr. W. H. Rogers—Woman's Club, March 5, noon.

Madison: Dr. M. R. Rinaon—Rotary Club, March 3, noon; Dr. Ralph L. Eyman—R. T. A. and Alumnae March 4, 3:00 p. m.; Garden Department of Woman's Club, March 5, 3:00 p. m.; Miss Sadie Young—P. T. A. and Alumnae Group, March 5, 8:00 p. m.; Kiwanis Club, March 5, noon.

Miami: Dr. Ralph L. Eyman—Rotary Club, March 3, noon; Dr. Frank Dyer—Woman's Club, March 3, afternoon; B. and P. W. Club and Alumnae Group, evening.

Miami Beach: Dr. Ralph L. Eyman—Kiwanis Club, March 5, noon.

Pensacola: Dr. Ralph L. Eyman—Rotary Club, March 4, noon; Woman's Club of Pensacola, March 4, afternoon; B. and P. W. Club and Alumnae Group, evening.

Perry: Dr. Ralph L. Eyman—Kiwanis Club, March 5, noon.

Plant City: Dr. Ralph L. Eyman—Lions Club, March 2, p. m.; Alumnae Club, March 2, 8:30 p. m.; Garden Club, March 3, 3:00 p. m.; Garden Club, March 3, 3:30 p. m.; Alumnae Club, March 3, 8:00 p. m.; Rotary Club, March 4, 6:30 p. m.; Woman's Club, March 4, 8 p. m.; High school, March 3, Pipe Club, March 3, 1 p. m.

Pompano: Dr. Ralph L. Eyman—Rotary, March 3, Rotary Club, noon; High school assembly, afternoon; Woman's Club, evening.

Quincy: Dean Ella Scobie Opperman, Woman's Club, March 4.

Sanford: Dr. Margaret B. Sanders—Alumnae Club, March 6, noon; Dr. Venila Sheres, Rotary Club, March 8, noon.

Sarasota: Dr. Kathryn T. Abbey —Alumnae Club, March 2, evening.

St. Augustine: Prof. Earl L. Vance, Rotary Club, March 1, 1 p. m.; Kiwanis Club, March 2, noon; Pilot Club, March 3, 7 p. m. St. Petersburg: Dr. R. S. Cotterill—Optimist Club, March 1, noon; Kiwanis Club, March 2 noon; Lions Club, March 5, noon; Dr. William H. Rogers—Civitan Club, March 3, noon; Exchange Club, March 4, noon; Dr. Olivia Dorman—Alumnae Club, March 1, evening.

Tallahassee: Miss Louise Richardson—Junior Chamber of Commerce, March 1, 1 p. m.; Kiwanis Club, March 2, 1 p. m.; Dr. Edward Conrad and Mrs. Anna May Wong—Alumnae Club, March 1, 7 p. m.; Mr. John G. Kellum—American Legion Auxiliary, March 2, 8:00 p. m.; Mrs. Isabel Pickford —Lions Club, March 4, 1 p. m.; Dr. Ralph L. Eyman—Exchange Club, March 5, 1:10 p. m.; Rotary Club, March 5, 1:10 p. m.

Tampa: Dr. Olivia Dorman—Alumnae Club, March 4, noon.

Tarpon Springs: Dr. William H. Rogers—Lions Club, March 2, 6:30 p. m.

Alumnae chairmen assisting with A. C. W. Week are as follows: Miss Gertrude Kuhn, Barlow; Mrs. Earl Walker, Manatee; Mrs. Glen Shipley; Miss Mildred McCall, Clearwater; Mrs. David Nisbet, Cocoa Mrs. Gene Pilcher, Crestview; Miss Gladys Polson, Cross City Mrs. Howard

For Expert
ALTERATIONS AND TAILORING
CALL—MRS. J. F. WILLIAMS—670-K
Located at P. W. Wilson Company

Song Competition To Close Tonight

All poets and tune writers have until light flash tonight to turn in their original Florida State songs to Beth Dame, in 211 Broward.

This contest is an annual affair, originated as a part of the activities of Florida State College for Women. This year the winning song and prize will be announced Tuesday. The judges are Marian Cross, Betty Parker, and Frances Forth. There is no limit to the number of people composing and a over the number of songs compared by one person or group.

Tallahassee Cemetery Holds Grave of Royal Foreigner

Story of Romance, Adventure and Ambition Lies Behind Simple White Spires Carrying Murat Family Coat-of-Arms

By PETREA CABANISS

Those girls who like to spend their Sunday afternoons sandering through the cemetery on Park avenue come upon the small white spires placed side by side and surrounded by a low stone wall inlaid with a pink marble cast of arms bearing the name Murat, have they ever wondered what story lies behind those two silent monuments?

For there is a very definite story—of romance and adventure and an"—ion—colorful with the two people buried there. These two people were Prince Achille Murat and his wife, Catherine Willis.

Born in Paris in 1801 Lachum Murat, a lieutenant-general in the French army and Caroline Murat, the younger sister of Napoleon Achille was taken to Naples, as his father was the crown of the two Sicilies. When his father as killing and his family driven into exile by Napoleon and the Austrians, he decided to come America.

Prince Murat first settled at Point Breeze, St. Augustine, but as this land was too poor for farming, he soon moved to Waccasassa, near Cedar Keys. The next year he married Catherine Daingerfield Willis, of Virginia, great-grandniece of George Washington. The had very little income after he left Europe and he sold all his income for his agricultural experiments. For the first few years all the money the land produced was put back into cultivation. Murat's ambiti was to build up a fortune on which his children and their children would enable him to take up a political career in the United States. He said, "You have no right to be privatior I would endure for this."

Achille was very eccentric. One story told about him was that one day he asked his wife to spend the afternoon with friends, which she came home she found that he had planted a garden of lettuce in a large boiler and dyed them pink to test the coloring properties of vegetables.

Murat at one time practiced law in Tallahassee, but his profession never very profitable, as his clients usually took most of his time. He wrote many political articles which reveal his admiration for the institutions of the United States. "They govern well here and badly in Europe," he said.

When the Bourbons were ousted from France and Louis Philippe was put on the throne Murat and his wife went to Europe, hoping that the new regime would help them regain their royalty position. However, he met with no success on this issue, and a year or so returned to Tallahassee to live. Once more in America, the prince was made colonel in the United States militia, and became postmaster of Wacissa, where his cousin Louis Napoleon later Napoleon III, came to see him. Murat was also at different times a judge, a probate judge, and manager of a bank, and an inspector of West Point military academy.

He spent the last years of his life as a private individual, but he never found tranquility. Once he wrote to his sister: "You are envious, you want to withdraw from the bustle of affairs. I am just the opposite. It is only in the midst of vicissitudes that I am happy. My activity has to be something upon which to feed."

He made his will in March, 1847, leaving to his wife his land, houses, and plantation, situated in Jefferson and Madison counties, his slaves and his personal property. His estate should be left. Twenty years later his wife died and was buried by his side.

Three Local Students Will Enter Historical Essays About Pioneer

Girls who have an eye to their intension of winning in competition for the fifty dollar prize to be given by D. H. Redfern, of Miami, for the best historical essay on the topic, "Her rietta Mary Brickell," as the life of Mary Pendleton, and Mary Emily Parkhurst Brickell, by Kathryn T. Abbey, head of the history department.

Each year Mr. Redfern awards several prizes to students of various colleges in Florida in historical essays.

Miss Brickell Croom, about whom he essay is to be written, was the daughter of the well known con federate soldier Gen. Fitzhugh during territorial times. Mrs. Brickell and Miss Croom were drowned in their steamboat home, Out of this catastrophe came two of the most interesting and involved law suits ever recorded in Florida history, concerning the property.

The date of the contest were announced by Dr. Abbey last spring. The contest is open to any undergraduate or graduate student who is taking or has taken a course in Florida history in addition to the college requirement. Students must also submit an adequate bibliography are required. The essays are to be handed in by April 15 to the committee of the history department which will select the best prizes to send to Mr. Redfern who will select th winner.

Flowers Gives Lecture As Part of Y. W. Series

Discussing "Some Factors Which Have Helped Christian Growth," Miss Maude Flowers gave the third talk in a series of discussions at the Vesper service sponsored by Young Women's Christian Association in Broward clubroom last night.

Believing that the underlying foundation that makes for Christian growth is the "golden rule," Miss Flowers gave illustrations which she considered the twelve factors of the plan.

She brought to the foreground of fact that the golden rule is unselfish, and is not confined to the "golden rule" was cheerfulness. Real cheerfulness, she said, is not merely religion but let it carry them. It is not a weight but wings to lift them over the hard places and make the universe seem friendly and life purposeful and cheerful.

One must be patient, understanding, and charitable to be a better follower of the golden rule. Humility, kindness, and dependability are an integral part of the christian follower, Their service, courage, faith in humanity and lov. of mankind makes them

Come to McCRORY'S
Five and Ten
Easter Greeting Cards,
Paper Supplies

Improved Wing Is Up-To-Date

Campus Telephone System Installed With One For Public Use

The offices that have moved into the new wing of the James Westcott, Jr. Memorial building are enjoying new equipment and up-to-date conveniences that the old offices lacked. These modern appliances and materials make for more comfortable working conditions as well as a greater degree of efficiency.

Acoustic tile ceilings and linoleum floors on concrete will help to silence the noise from the hall and the verbose classrooms.

An improved electric lighting system has been installed in the new wing, and all offices are equipped with Venetian blinds.

For the first time the college will have a campus telephone exchange system. It will soon be installed in the small room at the right of the top of the main entrance, and since it has a central position, it will be used also as a general information office.

An improvement over the old system of mailing and storing freight is made possible by the addition of a basement to the new wing and the special freight elevator which will run from the main driveway to the store room. By bringing the freight up to the first floor in this much trafic confusion will be eliminated. Heretofore it has been the case when it was stored along the side of the south wing lower hallway and has caused much concussemently for passage in the hall.

Another feature of the new building is the pay telephone for public use installed opposite the postoffice.

The bacteriology laboratory has been moved, and with it has come equipment and is more protected from dirty flies than the old laboratory. Five new rooms, to be used for class room purposes, have been built in the attic. At present the Y. W. C. A. and the Distaff Council are occupying these rooms.

The postoffice, book store and the multigraph department have all been enlarged and newly equipped. Also, a room, to be furnished as a lounge, has been provided opposite the postoffice for the use of day students. Here they may study, read, and eat their lunches.

Branch of AAUW Honors All Seniors on Friday

The seniors were honored last night at a party in Gilchrist parlors by the Tallahassee branch of the American Association of University Women.

A full-length play on school sraibhs was given by the speech department under the direction of Miss Kemmer Moore, and a recreation was held at 8:15 o'clock. Miss Ruth Bryan, president of the association's executive board of Florida, was Mrs. C. P. Baldwin, Mrs. Cryle Moore, Mrs. Jean Riddell, Miss Mary Campbell, Dr. Annie M. Pooser, Mrs. Dorothy Breen, Dr. Kathryn T. Abbey, Ruth Cromartie, and Miss Julia Graham. Miss Sara Barker, instructor in textile clothing, was chairman of the party.

Award Deadline Set

March 20 is the deadline for entire nominations for the Alumnae Achievement Award, Miss Louise Richardson, president of the Alumnae association announced today. Nominations should include a complete list of qualifications for the award and be sent to Mrs. Edgar Cecil Nixon, Box 1066, Orlando, Florida.

a better follower and kinder leader.

Dr. Paul Pinner will speak March 3 on the subject: "The Psychology of Christian Experience."

The personnel of the student

Nell Carroll's Tower Light Challenges Campus Quitters

Changing College Aims In Nineteen Years Noted by Senior

By Mary Jeanne McKay

The light that early morning risers and late returning weekenders sometimes are swinging in the East Tower of Bryan Hall should be a matter of challenge to the modern world as was that light in the Old North Church Tower in the world of Paul Revere, for it, too, bespeaks of a kind of revolution. The story of the symbol is that Nell Carroll is burning the midnight oil in her singular home and cabin.

Nell is a senior of the class of 1937, but it has been 19 years since she was a freshman. This does not mean, as it would seem to the casual eye, that she has taken that long to make the grade, but that she sailed fifteen summers to enter the winter term of her junior year. She does she took the customary late departure. Nell seems much too human to be a symbol of a credit collector. If you ask her why she came back she will reply with characteristic frankness, "I was forced to come back. I found myself lacking the advantage of a half dozen opportunities, and the fifth commitment was always my lack of a college degree. So I just came back to get one!"

But it isn't as easy as it sounds. Nell's return to the campus to face the usual problems of the older woman living among college girls, as well as to adjust to the friendly a nature to condescend to younger folk seems to her rather impossible. But there is one great divide, and that is a matter of money.

Nell's first years in college were in the days when the attitude was it was pretty well understood that such an institution as college existed to pursuit alone, and the life at such a place was organized around that idea. Even the freshmen had simple basis. She is finishing her education however, in a period demanding almost everything but intellectual attainment.

After asking students and faculty what is the most important thing a college does, some points out, Nell believes relatively few of them would mention knowledge as the first. Others would say the development of a social responsibility, social enthusiasm, social maturity development, cultural polish, social freedom and moral participation in recreational pursuits and earn-curricular activities. Nell has a frenzy of push and amazes Nell. She finds herself hard to keep up, and does not understand how such a person can do it—and also follow the pursuit of knowledge.

"The emphasis," says Nell, "is not on knowledge. I do not the immaturity of things you do instead of the quality;" she is quick to point out that she is true both of the work the students choose and the kind of work the faculty assigns to be done.

Besides this fundamental change in college atmosphere, Nell can cite a great many physical changes. The auditorium, such as the Science building which has replaced the Old East hall. When the left in 1915, the Science building was in its last stages of completion. Then it entertained in 1935 it was in approximately same stage of repair as a building period and rose to greet her with a monumental ghost from the past. Such are the many changes in the social regulations, too.

"No dancing with men then," she explained, "and that's why I don't enjoy ballroom dancing today. I had to lead too much!"

Nell's ambition remain much the same, though, in spite of the change in tempo, physical environment and social regulations. The personnel of the student

PHONE 800
Fast Delivery!
DENTAL NEEDS
10c Bulbrite Tooth Brush .. 29c
10c Pro-phy-lac-tic Brush .. 71c
25c Mason Brush 21c
10c Ipana Tooth Paste 29c
10c Sen-Sen, 2 for 15c
10c Forhan's 34c
10c Colgate's, 2 for 15c
SOAP SPECIALS
10c Woodbury's, 2 for 15c
10c Palmolive, 3 for 25c
KOTEX
KOTEX 18c, 19c—2 for 37c
KOTEX 35c—2 for 1.00
KOTEX 50c, 57c—2 for 1.10
KOTEX SUPPLIES 19c, 29c
FIBS 23c
Rubbing Alcohol . 13c
Bromo Quinine .. 24c
Milk Magnesia .. 29c
Milk Magnesia .. 34c
50-gal. H-natica . 49c
$1.00 Lysol 79c
25c Ex-Lax 17c
Lotion 39c
$1.00 Ingram's
Milkweed Cream . 69c
Packer's Shampoo 89c
50c Marchand's
Golden Wash 39c
50c Lysol
Dusting Powder . 34c

Meeting Plans Of Pilot Club Announced

Annual District Meeting Will Be Held Here March 13 and 14

Plans for the annual district meeting of Pilot Club International which will convene here March 13 and 14, have just been announced by Miss Katherine Wynn, secretary to the dean of students.

Pilot Clubs from Jacksonville, Ocala, Orlando, Panama City, Pensacola, St. Augustine, St. Petersburg, Tampa, West Palm Beach, and Miami will be represented at the meeting.

The Cherokee hotel, where registration will take place on the order afternoon, will be the headquarters for the convention. Also the registration desk will be the tour of Tallahassee which will start with a tea at the college from 5 to 8 o'clock. At the banquet o'clock there will be a banquet which Dr. Kathryn Abbey, professor of history, will be the main speaker. On Sunday morning there will be a breakfast conference and business meeting in the Dutch Kitchen.

Faculty members who belong to the Pilot club include Miss Ruth May Tracy, dietitian and assistant professor of institutional economics; Miss Sadie Young, assistant professor of speech, Miss Ethel Lynn, instructor in physical education; Miss Maude Flowers, director of the science halls, and Miss Marion Wells.

wish, but cannot afford to raise orphan families.

The annual feval head and well-known sense of humor are assured every year's speech, Miss Elliott says, even if it's one in which she finds herself a college student remembrancing days of a half-dozen requirements of an academic attitude, in a wonderful attitude as old-fashioned. She will get what she came for, she says, if you can tell from her determination, and by the number of times her lights turn on into the night.

With it all, she senses what you young younger people feel, that an old order is changing and changes all may not be well with the new. What, for instance can be expected of the college of tomorrow, built on the foundations of the present day? Where will people go when they want to find intellectual life? The changes will point out, is a weighty one, and that is why the students are in her window is a symbol of challenge to a new college era.

STATE
Sun.-Mon.—Feb. 28 Mar. 1
ROYAL FLYNN
GREEN LIGHT
Tues. Only, March 2
SMART BLONDE
Glenda Farrell
Wed only March 3
THIEF OF DARK, BUT HOT OF SUSPICION OUTCAST
WARREN HULL
KAREN MORLEY
Thurs. Only, March 4
Swing into Spring in a dashing manner in these gay cotton frocks! Great assortations of brilliant style successes they accent saucy, youthful flares . . . . swing skirts . . . the Princess silhouette and other fashion whims that present a flowing sense of grace that is definitely 1937.
P. W. Wilson Company
SINCE 1837
Stage Show: 3-5-7-9 p. m.
Bollie Child's
"PARISIAN FOLIES"
Midnite Show, Friday 9th
Jaclars Spook Show
11:45 p. m.

Board Starts Spring Plans

Hockey, Soccer Managers Are Appointed For 1937-1938 Term

With the selection of leaders for next year, Odd and Even soccer and hockey were placed in the background, and arrangements were made by the athletic board for spring activities. These include diamond ball, tennis, and swimming.

The girls chosen for 1937-1938 managers were: Frances Pryer, Even soccer; Ruth Wilson, Odd soccer; Janet Jewett, Even hockey, and Sarah Lytell, Odd hockey.

The change from baseball to diamond ball was made in the hope of correlating college sports better with the summer pastimes of the students. It was also done in the desire to get rid of the pitchers' battles that occur so frequently in baseball. Dates for practices will be set later.

The annual student-faculty tennis tournament is to be arranged by Evelyn Fisher and Valerie Hunt. Swimming, starting next week, is under the supervision of Sara Hethcox, Janet Cook, Valerie Hunt, and Sarah Jane Stambaugh.

Article Attacked

Continued from page four

of the military uprising, the government has murdered, or permitted the murder of hundreds of thousands of defenseless citizens, has burned thousands of churches, has killed the children and violated women, has destroyed artistic treasures, and, in short, has committed such acts of unspeakable horror that I am sure, when the hideous truth becomes fully known, the voices of the whole of mankind will cry out against and condemn those responsible for the greatest disaster in the world's history.

"General Franco, leader of the White army, who has repeatedly denied being a Fascist, broadcast the Nationalist's plans for a new Spain upon the opening of a powerful new radio station at Salamanca a few days ago. He said: 'Our soldiers are fighting an invasion of Communism — fighting for a new Spain; fighting for peace and happiness in town and country, for just laws improving the condition of the working and middle classes; for real liberty of thought, for respect for religion and tradition; for the peace and happiness of the home; for our threatening civilization; for the prestige of our flag; for the independence of our country.'

"Furthermore, he stated: 'Those who either by conviction or through being deceived by others are fighting against us have my word of honor that nothing will happen to them if they surrender to our troops. It will be the work of the courts of justice to punish only those who have committed crimes or acts punishable under ordinary law.'

"Quite interesting in this connection is the testimony of Bert Acosta, well-known American pilot, in an article published in the London Daily Express, Feb. 1. Recently returned from service as an aviator in the Madrid forces, he revealed that in New York he and three friends had been offered $1,500 to fly for the Madrid government and $1,000 for every enemy plane they brought down. He says, 'The fight was not what it was described to us in New York — a struggle of democracy against dictatorship,' and that ever since the Russians arrived, the Reds have had the supremacy in the air and General Franco's flyers are outclassed.' He estimated that there were over 200 Russian planes and pilots fighting for the Madrid government when he left Spain.

"Are the anti-Communistic people of Spain expected to lie submissively on their backs while the Reds loot and burn their homes and churches, and then arrogantly snuff out their lives? As to the use of foreign troops, I would remind you that there are approximately 30,000 foreign volunteers, including the International Brigade — comprising the Tenth, Eleventh and Twelfth Battalions, fighting the government side. They are mostly Russians but include Poles, Germans, Austrians, Frenchmen, and anti-Fascist Italians according to Foreign Policy Reports magazine.

"No one will deny that the death of the innocent and destruction of property accompanying Franco's besiegement of Madrid is deplorable, but what other course is he to take? The conflict in Spain is WAR! and, as in all other wars, the innocent must suffer. True, the suffering in Madrid is excessive, but the Reds are mostly to blame. Madrid has, as yet, never been cut off from safe access to the rest of the world. Despite this fact, the Communist government refuses to allow countrymen to evacuate the city. All able-bodied Spaniards are forced to defend Madrid. Those caught deserting are shot without mercy."

Writer Looks At Flambeau Of Yesterday

Ten Years Ago Appeal Made for Elections Of Today

By DOROTHY BARCLAY

How will this copy of the Flambeau look to students ten years from now? The obvious answer would be, "Just as it looks now — a little yellow, perhaps, but that's all." Yet, is it?

Look sometime at the bound copies of the paper to be found in the library.

In 1927 the Flambeau was a small publication, fourteen by nine-and-a-half inches. The usual issues contained eight pages of four columns each. The first was given over to general news, the second, editorials; third, Y. W. C. A.; fourth, society; fifth, exchange; sixth, sports; seventh, continued stories; eighth, jokes.

The amount of humor appearing in the paper at that time was amazing; besides filling that part of page eight which was not already used for advertising, jokes were used to fill in any gaps which might appear elsewhere throughout the issue. There is an item beginning, "Getting out a paper in no lark. If we print jokes, people say we're silly; if we don't print them, we're too serious." Be that as it may, its sterling qualities brought it up for publication three times in four years.

From this vantage point in time it is amusing to look back at the bobbed-hair controversy which was raging on campus in January, 1924. At that time there was a column on the editorial page discussing the matter and presenting definite statistics. When 758 of the 830 girls on campus were questioned, it was learned that 69.3 per cent had bobbed hair. The forty excuses listed by those refusing to fall in line ranged all the way from one which stated "A lady should have long hair" to one which predicted "bobbed hair will soon be just a novelty." The keynote seemed to be "I don't have the nerve—afraid it's too flapperish."

But the Flambeau was an organ of education as well as of amusement. Every week during this period there appeared a series of ten incorrect sentences to be corrected by the reader with "answers next week." There seemed to be, also, some unrest among the editors as to the general mental tone of the student body and editorials appeared querying, "Are You Thinking?" while an article three-quarters of a column long inquiring "In What Are We Interested?" brought to light the fact that a work by one of the foremost American writers on European history, Henry C. Lea's History of the Inquisition of the Middle Ages, had been in the library for twenty years and still had many pages uncut.

College traditions, too, were being questioned, and an article came out, staunch in their behalf, claiming that they serve to draw the student into college life and bind him strongly after he's gone. It is, they hold, the memory of such a profound ceremony as commencement that quickens the heart of the graduate in years to come.

Even the Y.W.C.A. was not above inquiry, although it performed the essential services of maintaining sewing machines and pressing rooms. An investigation showed that although only about twenty-five per cent of the students apparently felt a definite need for the Y. W. as a religious force, surely fifty per cent would miss it if it were withdrawn.

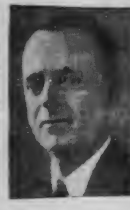
Some of the present campus activities, which seem so entirely new, are reminiscent of Kipling's "The Files." "Every question man can raise, Every phrase of every phase Of that question is on record in the files." Ten years ago this March a plea was made for the type of campus politics which was finally instituted last year. The fact that no one knew the identities of the candidates until election day was believed to have an effect on the vote.

It was at this time also that a campaign for a Phi Beta Kappa chapter was begun, a campaign which reached its objective in 1935. Several other ideas which are regarded as essentially present-day had their counterparts then. At this time anti-war strikes are requiring much attention; in January, 1924, the Y. W. services were given over to a discussion of peace plans. Faculty-student forums were even then being conducted on the youth movement, war, and race problems. The French tables in the dining room last semester had their forerunners in December, 1926. Our recent community sing may have seemed an innovation but they were being held here as early as 1927.

Exam week brought forth advice against too late hours and an item, which may have prematurely lit a flame of hope in the cramming student's breast, was concerned with the fact that no final examinations were to be given at the University of Nebraska and that during the last week no professor was to give an examination heavier than that given during any other week.

Indeed, there is nothing new under the sun. What could have happened to the attempts undertaken in 1927 to regulate traffic at the postoffice at 9:30? But even more to the point, perhaps, who may be the "Abracadabra Dum," who ten years ago wrote in her own inimitable way "A Defense of the Luscious Prune Whip"?

Members of Faculty Who Will Tour State During "F. S. C. W. Week"



DR. W. H. ROGERS

DR. R. S. COTTERILL

DR. PAUL FINNER

DR. R. L. EYMAN

DR. HERMAN KURZ

MISS SADIE YOUNG

EARL L. VANCE

DEAN ELLA S. OPPERMAN

DEAN WILLIAM G. DODD

DEAN NATHANIEL M. SALLEY

DEAN OLIVIA N. DORMAN

DEAN MARGARET R. SANDELS

Pictured above are twelve of the twenty-five members of the faculty of Florida State college who will travel throughout the state next week to appear before various organizations as part of the observance of "F. S. C. W. Week." Those whose pictures do not appear, but who will also make speaking tours are Miss Ezda Mae Deviney, Dr. Kathryn Abbey, Miss Ruth Connor, Miss Keon, Dr. Anna Forbes Liddell, Dr. Hugh L. Waskom, Miss Louise Richardson, Dr. Roy Hinson and Dr. Venila L. Shores, Miss Elizabeth Lyne, J. G. Kellum, Miss Anna May Tracey and Dr. Edward Conradi.

Dean Meeting Is Discussed By Delegates

Flowers Outlines Series Of Entertainments And Talks Given

Bringing back ideas of the contrast between Florida State College for Women and other colleges, Miss Maud Flowers, director of residence halls, discussed her recent trip to the National Association of Deans of Women convention in New Orleans.

Talks which discussed general college problems showed the delegates from Florida State that the problems of this college are also being met in other colleges of the country. Miss Flowers especially found the talk of Dean Baldwin from Duke university on "The Rural Girl" enlightening. Copies of Dean Baldwin's talk will be printed in pamphlet form and distributed by the Four-H club in Florida.

Visiting Sophie Newcombe college and also the Louisiana State university, Miss Flowers was impressed by the largeness and beauty of the institutions.

Special features of the campuses which stood out in the visitor's inspection were the large Greek theater, which is used for convocations and graduations and is one of the most beautiful of its kind, the small dormitories which were well furnished with a bath to each two rooms, the student activity building and the large swimming pool. The visitors were also interested in the French house where all the exchange students live with those students who are majoring in French, separate buildings devoted to music and dramatics and studios for broadcasting.

The quaint city of New Orleans with its grilled iron balconies and its haunting atmosphere of age formed an interesting background for the convention. Delegates from Florida State dined one night at the famous French restaurant Antoine's" established in 1840. They also visited the famous doll house of Colleen Moore which is said to have cost a quarter of a million dollars and is a veritable fairy land. Each article was an exact reproduction of one of its normal size. Gold dishes adorned the banquet table while a miniature organ which really played was a masterpiece of miniature art.

Flastacowo Editors' Plan for Feature Section Of Annual Causes Much Comment Among Students

By PETREA CABANISS

The new policy of the Flastacowo editors, to have the feature section consist of the eight girls voted most generally outstanding on campus instead of those girls which represent superlatives in one field, such as intellect, sport, or beauty, is causing much comment.

One member of the student body declared that she is highly in favor of the new policy, because in former years there have been many outstanding girls who did not fit any special type and thus were denied recognition in the feature section.

Another girl likes the new method because she feels it is more democratic, where formerly she felt that the editors merely picked their own friends to represent the different types.

One student thinks the new policy a good one, believing that more credit is due a girl who has made herself outstanding than one who was lucky enough to be born beautiful or intellectual.

However another student thinks that the various types should have some recognition, as the outstanding girls get enough notice in other ways.

"There is no change in this year's policy," one girl stated. "Always the girls in the feature section have been those people before the public eye, and it will be the same way this year. Many of the really outstanding girls will be left out because they do not often come into contact with the student body as a whole."

One girl said she likes this year's policy because she feels that the beauties have their chance at May Day, but the annual should represent the outstanding girls in college.

Andrews Gives Lecture

A talk on vocational guidance concerning employment for next year for seniors and two year students will be given at a meeting Monday night at 7:30 o'clock in the Augusta Conradi theater. Dr. Elizabeth Gordon Andrews will be the speaker. Everyone, including those not planning to teach, is urged to be present.

Students Try Unique Poses For Contest

Amateur Photographers Hunt Prize-Winning Snap-shots

By FRANCES BRUNSON

A cow in the background, a silly sign, a barrel, and us — and we have our pictures in the annual.

With the Flastacowo picture contest ending in less than a month, the campus is glowing with originality. Students may be seen assuming grotesque positions, wearing clothes that one might mistake for costumes to be worn to a tacky party, as they pose to have their picture taken. "Anything original, girls. Forget the toothpaste ads and give us some hearty laughter while you try breaking your neck. That ought to take anybody's prize."

While the theme of picture-taking is centered on the contest, there still remain those girls who take pictures for their own pleasure. The girl who received for Christmas a new kodak that takes indoor pictures amuses herself by snapping her roommate.

In direct contrast there are those who make a special point of dressing up to go out to take pictures. Sunday afternoons the campus is covered with them. Choosing the most picturesque spots as a background, they drape themselves in posed positions and grin from ear to ear as the camera clicks. These are the students who always manage to be in the lime-light looking their sweetest when pictures for the annual are being taken of social functions. They also insist on posing with the "boy friend" when he comes up.

Then there are the students who want reality portrayed in pictures. Dressed in school prints, oxfords and anklets, they go out behind the kitchen and find a wheelbarrow on which to recline. A horse also lends reality; or if they can discover some garbage can to stand by, the picture is complete.

Semi-Annual Scrub Given to Fountain

Late one afternoon recently, anyone who chanced to pass the fountain in front of the Ad building, might have been somewhat amazed to see members of the Sophomore Council, clad in shorts and barefooted, climbing in and out of the fountain and chasing the fish in the basin. Some spectators thought the scene so unusual that cameras were brought out and several snapshots taken.

The reason for such activity on the part of the Sophomore Council had to be explained to several curious onlookers. The girls were preparing to clean the fountain because—well, because they got tired of looking at it as it was and their pride or something drove them to action.

There was some difficulty involved in catching the wary, small fish but as soon as the fish were captured and swimming in the upper basin the solemn task of giving the fountain one of its semi-annual baths started.

Specialist in Nursery School Work, Parental Education Visits Here

Dr Grace Langdon, specialist in nursery school work and parent education for the W P A and professor of child care and training at Columbia university, visited the campus on Monday and Tuesday. She is on a tour of all W. P. A. schools, accompanied by Mrs Halline Spillman, state supervisor of parent education.

During her stay Dr. Langdon was entertained by Dr. Julia Heinlein, head of the nursery school here, with a tour of the campus followed by dinner in the college dining room and an after dinner coffee at Dr. Heinlein's home. Tuesday morning she visited the nursery school.

Dr. Langdon is the author of Home Guidance of Young Children, the text used by the home economics department in the child care and training course.

Alpha Chi Alpha Holds Initiation and Dinner

Three students, Evelyn Fisher, Pearle Shepard, and Sarah Sealey, were initiated Thursday night into Alpha Chi Alpha, honorary journalistic society. After the ceremony, a dinner was given in the Dutch Kitchen.

The present members of Alpha Chi Alpha are: Hazen Bowman, Martha Baker, Virginia Early, Sarah Beth Davis, Margaret Claire Lafferty, Arline Gray Lockhart, and Lillie McGuire.

Nature About Grounds Irks Girl and Date

Campus Flora and Fauna Heckle Two Nearly To Distraction

The girl and her date seated themselves gingerly on a bench in the open air theatre, said "Scat!" to the kitten which had followed them there from the dining room, watched two half-grown squirrels scamper up a tree-trunk, said "Shoo—go 'way," to the black and tan puppy who nipped at John's trouser cuffs, and prepared themselves for a good heart-to-heart talk of things and people back home: how it was when John left, how many months it would be until Mary would be back, and what John thought of Florida St e.

There was a great flopping of wings. Approximately five hundred members of the fowl family fluttered from within the foliage. John felt foolish. Mary suggested that they stroll about the campus a bit, but regretted the thought immediately as she saw a large, happy collie bounding towards them joyfully. Horrible thoughts of being followed by the animal assailed her, and she quickly ushered John through the portals of the science building, "to show you the lab," she explained. The bewildered male followed her somewhat blindly, unaccustomed to the darker surroundings after the bright glare of the open, and stumbled up the stairs leading to the landing of the second floor. Hesitating a moment before following Mary into the laboratory, he doffed his new felt, placing it on what he thought was a table for that purpose. Suddenly ungentlemanly vocalization followed.

"What th' . . . Say, what is this place, anyway—a game preserve? First it's cats. Then dogs. Birds and squirrels. And now, an Alligator!"

"Oh John, I'm so sorry. That's the chemistry department's pet. He's really very mild."

"I'm not afraid of him. It's just the idea of the thing. I suppose they keep snakes around this place, too." (Edged sarcasm.)

"Well, only one. In the zoology department. But he's dead."

"And I guess they show jungle pictures in town every Saturday. Come on. Let's leave the menageria to the animal lovers."

So Mary and ohn withdrew, leaving the flora and fauna of the campus to be enjoyed by the botanists, zoologists, kitten-lovers, bird enthusiasts, and the dog-owners of the sorority houses.

Astronomy Club Sees Moon with Telescope

Despite the shifting clouds, many of the members of the Astronomy club were able to observe the moon through the portable telescope last Wednesday night.

This coming Wednesday, Dr E N Caldwell of the Presbyterian church, Tallahassee, will speak to members of the Astronomy club on "Religion Among the Stars." Next month another telescopic observation of the moon will be held when weather conditions are more favorable, according to Gladys Ware, president of the organization.

Adolph Hitler Wins Vote of Students as Most Important Man in World with Roosevelt Second

By BLANTON BARRETT

Adolph Hitler is the most important man in the world today.

That is, at least in the opinion of 77 out of 125 students questioned on campus. Roosevelt came in second in the "importance poll," with 21 votes. Other candidates for the position ranged from Benito Mussolini to Robert Taylor, Clark Gable and a few personal nominations of Georges, Bill's, and Fred's.

Many students refused to answer, saying that they had no opinion or that they believed too many men were eligible for the post.

Catherine O'Marra, sophomore, admitted that she could not choose. "There are too many determining factors," she stated. "With a turn of the wheel almost any of the big men of today could be the most important world citizen."

Roosevelt supporters made up in confidence what they lacked in numbers.

Mabry Sumner, junior, gave as her opinion that "Roosevelt is the only really active force for international good as well as national improvement. He is the only one of the great leaders who is not preparing his country for conquest. He gets my unqualified support."

"The fact that he's the only president of the United States makes him the most powerful man in the world. The absolute confidence of the people in him strengthens him even in that position."

Mary Lopez, junior, was undecided. "I believe that Hitler is the most important man in the world until I begin thinking about Mussolini," she stated. "After all Mussolini was the first of the two and it would seem that he would have Italy in a greater state of preparedness to insure his importance. I simply couldn't say."

Marthe Thomas, French special student, believes that Hitler is the most important. "All Europe is waiting to see what he intends to do. Everyone is watching Herr Hitler."

Elizabeth Pierce also believes in the power of Hitler. "Other men make a great deal of noise and attract much attention but Hitler is the hub of the wheel around which they're all revolving."

Other votes were turned in without comment or with the statement "I hear most about him" or "I like him best, he has such a pleasant smile."

The most novel reason for a vote was presented by a member of the freshman class. "I believe Hitler must be most important," she declared. "Nobody could make faces like he does and get away with it unless he were a world power."

Stalin received only two votes. Mussolini was mentioned seven times, while King Edward polled five. Other votes were distributed among actors and beaux.

One of the personal nominations declared "He's by far the most important man in the world so far as I'm concerned no matter whether you've heard of him or not."

NOMINEES STATE POLICIES

Student Union Building Work To Begin Soon

Episcopalians Announce Waffle Breakfasts Through Lent

Erection of the new Baptist student union building will probably be begun within sixty days, according to plans for the construction of the building which were completed this week by Baptist leaders. Members of the committee formulating the plans are Dr. Dean Adcock of Orlando; Dr. Thomas McCall of Gainesville; Dr. L. R. Christie and Mr. Allphonse Pechard of Tallahassee; and Dr. Vernon C. Gregory.

Members of the college Baptist Young Women's auxiliary will join the Women's Missionary union of Tallahassee in their annual week of prayer for mission work to be held this week Y. W. A. members will be in charge of the program to be presented at the church next Thursday afternoon. 2:30 Students on the program will be invited to lunch with members of the Missionary union.

Dr. Roy Hinson will present the fifth in a series of faculty talks on What Education Means to Me at the regular Sunday school meeting of Methodist students, 9:30 Sunday morning at the Methodist student headquarters League supper will be served directly after the student hour at 5:30, followed by the regular league meeting at 6:30 At 7:30 league members will present a peace play "Operation Peace" at the Methodist church. The play is a story of present-day Italy, showing the triumph of peace and how over nations are stirred. Players are the doctor, Olin Hamilton; assistant, Ruth Barker; head nurse, Sara Lewis; Italian mother, Mary Buchanan; her son, Robert Blue, the doctor's wife, Dora Helen Baggett, leader the communist group, Robert Parker principle of a boys' school, Larry Gray.

Members of the entire student body are invited to attend the Wesley Foundation served each Sunday morning during Lent at Rage Hall. Breakfast consists of cereal from 8:30 to 10:00. Grapefruit, coffee, sausage and waffles are served for the price of 20 cents with proceeds going to the Lenten budget offering.

Tonight at 7:30 in Rage hall Professor Robert D. Miller will present the second in his series of lectures on the great philosophers, speaking this week on Spinoza—"The Way of Works." Everyone is invited to attend.

Charlotte Kramer is in charge the program at Rage hall Sunday evening at 7:15. The Affirmation Negro first in a series of studies on racial problems, will be presented.

Students from the day of many of the southern Presbyterian church services in the local Presbyterian church on the day are devoted to programs about student activities at Florida State college and the University of Florida.

At the evening church services is Reverend Clark Dean, pastor of the Panama City Presbyterian church and an alumnus of the university of Florida, and his wife, Mary Cooper Waterfield Dean, a former president of the student league here. They will speak about student work. Others taking part in this program are Sara Methodony. We must seek to interpret the life of Christ in terms of service is essential in student work," said Miss Methodony, win or lose, I hope this is furthered."

—Evelyn Anderson

FIRST VICE-PRESIDENT

If I am elected I pledge myself to the office of first vice president of college government. I am mindful of the responsibilities entailed in that office.

If I am elected I pledge myself to preside effectively at senate meetings in accordance with the other members of the executive council. I am unified with the government, and to express that opinion so far as I am able.

—Winifred Lyon

FIRST VICE-PRESIDENT

If I should be elected first vice president of C. G. A. I should endeavor to give the best that I could to the office. I would strive to be ready aide of the president. In all the stances I will work toward the best interests of the student body.

—Anne Lee Hemphill.

SECRETARY

If I am elected secretary of the college government association, I will endeavor to cooperate with the college government association to the best interests of the student body.

—Anne Lee Hemphill.

SECRETARY

If I am elected secretary of the college government association, I will endeavor to cooperate with the college government association to the best interests of the student body.

—Mary Louise Lewis.

SECRETARY

If I should be chosen as secretary of C. G. A., I would assume all the responsibilities pertaining to this office and would endeavor to keep the records accurately and clearly, to the best of my ability.

—Virginia Slade

TREASURER

After carefully considering the duties and responsibilities of treasurer of the student government association I accept the nomination with the determination to carry them out to the best of my ability should I be elected.

—Mary Elizabeth Lewis.

TREASURER

I hereby announce my candidacy for the office of treasurer of the college government association.

Should I be elected to that office I promise to fulfill to the best of my ability the duties of that office.

I should endeavor to keep exact account of the funds entrusted to me, and to make out the budget in balance. As a member of the executive council and senate I should do my best, to uphold the ideals and to further the advancement of the college government association.

—Mary Elizabeth A. Pierce

FRESHMAN ADVISER

Realizing well that the freshman class is the very foundation of the college, I feel strongly that if this group is poorly oriented in the start, its progress in future will crash. I will do all in my power to make the orientation program for the freshmen of 1937-1938 the best possible.

I feel that my previous experience as a 'goor chairman in charge of freshman orientation, and being pledge supervisor for my chapter, and as an orientation leader will be beneficial to me. As a member of college council, with other council parties, I will act, to the best of my ability in the interests entrusted to the advantage of the interests of the student body as a whole. It will be my duty to act in accordance unhindredly of my time and energy to the duties of such an approved orientation program if I am elected.

—Phil Asher

FRESHMAN ADVISER

In accepting the nomination for freshman adviser, I feel that I contain considerable these two factors, first, ability to organize an adequate and complete plan of orientation, and second, willingness to work. With the responsibility of office and to cooperate with the government in carrying out this work.

If elected I will try to fulfill these qualifications.

—Kathryn Pratt.

PUBLICATIONS

EDITOR

In considering the policy that I would follow if elected to the editorship of the Flambeau I realize that the policy of any publication must be moulded by the group that is responsible for it. And the Flambeau I would attempt to reflect and crystallize the ideas, opinions, and movements of the student body as a whole.

I believe that the campus newspaper should assume active leadership in the constructive student movements especially those that have a bearing on the student activity in contact with the actual problems of the student body.

I would try to maintain the editorial columns of the paper loyal to student interest and to the campus, and up to the high journalistic standards set forth in the past.

—Evelyn Fuller.

EDITOR

If I should be elected editor of the Flambeau I would endeavor to follow the precedent set by previous editors of the college paper and would attempt to add something of interest to the members of the editorial staff.

It would be my aim, if elected, to give all departments and organizations a thorough and representative amount of news coverage and to so doing to endeavor to stimulate student interest in those phases of campus activity.

It would be my endeavor to be to make the Flambeau through its news forms and the several departments represent Florida State college in a creditable manner. I have had some knowledge the best journalistic principles.

—Mary Elizabeth Shepard.

BUSINESS MANAGER

The office of business manager of the Flambeau is a responsible one, requiring not only the technical knowledge of bookkeeping, typing and budgeting but the ability to meet and deal with people.

My experience in the type of work is an asset, and I feel that I am qualified for the position on both scores, since I have made practical use of my knowledge of these subjects daily, and also have had actual contact with the public as advertising manager for our canning factory.

Therefore, I make one promise, that I will do my best, because to act in the capacity of business manager of the Flambeau, I consider a privilege.

—Jane Quinn.

EDITOR

At a time when youth is spotlighted in the nation's attention and leadership in student activities side should more than ever be a medium of youth's ideals and beliefs. I will be willing to devote time, effort and energy in trying to live up to the high standards of the position of editor.

—Jane Quinn.

EDITOR

I am a candidate for the office of editor of the Daniel Baker college magazine of the students by the students, for the students of this campus, always with the aim of meeting the highest of literary standards.

I shall try to encourage more creative writing among students by all forms—articles, plays, poetry, short stories—to provide and stimulate student thought; to maintain an impartial and unprejudiced attitude toward all material submitted, to uphold a high standard of literature; and to be open to all suggestions and criticisms for the betterment of the magazine.

I believe in judged to a great extent by the material that is attempting to make the Datalf a real part of student organization. I shall be striving to make it a magazine of which my fellow students have done.

—Lucy Lockhart.

EDITOR

The function of a college magazine, I think, should be to express the student thought and creative composition of as many students as are willing to give time and effort towards effective writing.

To consider with equal fairness all material submitted, regardless of the personality of the author, student writers by constructive criticism, to maintain impartiality and appreciation, to make the magazine a medium of student expression with variety in subject matter, style, and make-up—these I think are the duties of the editor of the Datalf should hold.

—Sarah Sealey.

BUSINESS MANAGER

The business manager of the Datalf should handle the financial affairs of the magazine in order and economy. He should see that while way with the other members of the staff and all she can to facilitate their work

She must take an active part in the drive for subscriptions of the business staff and aid in the sale of advertising contracts and exchanges. She should make special effort to cooperate with the budget committee. If I am elected business manager of the Datalf I shall endeavor to fulfill the duties of that position to the best of my ability.

—Nell Colere.

BUSINESS MANAGER

If I am elected business manager of the Flambeau I shall endeavor to fulfill all the requirements. I shall be interested in the best interests of the magazine.

—Mary Emily Parker.

EDITOR

A over the state of Florida in various scattered states and even in other countries the Florida College for Women is mainly judged by its annual publication the Florida Flambeau. I realize the truth in this statement. After having worked on the annual staff for two years, I feel qualified to accept the nomination of editor, and hereby announce that if I am elected by the student body I will try to the best of my ability and in my sincere interest, to have the next year's annual the most complete and representative Flambeau.

My policy would be one of commonness of our present set-up with such changes as I think more suitable would be actively carried and interested in the work by which contract agreements would be definitely stipulated.

In conclusion the Flatacowan reflect the college as it was yesterday and the college as it is today—the 1936 Flatacowan waits to picture F.S.C.W

—Eileen Robertson.

BUSINESS MANAGER

In accepting the nomination for business manager of the Flatacowan I wish to state, if elected, I would endeavor to carry out the responsibilities of this office to the best of my ability.

I have had one year's experience in working with the annual in the capacity of assistant business manager of the 1936-1937 Flatacowan.

—Sallie Bert Nunnn.

1925 Student Returns Cook Book, Letter

Oxford Convent Sends Package as Matter Of Principle

BY BETTY LOU INGERMAN

Miss Louise Richardson, college librarian, opened the package as curiously and eagerly as her colleagues any other ordinary parcel, but its contents proved to be much more startling than the brown surface had portrayed. Having been borrowed from a man at an old, dilapidated cook book yellow with age, the book, a paperback soft from its pages thus held ink splotches, pencil marks, greasy finger prints and other recipes scrawled in the margins.

What this strange package came this letter which its unique way explained all:

Feb. 16, 1937

To the Librarian:

I am returning to the library a Boston Cooking School Cook Book by Fannie Merritt Farmer, 1918. I took from the library, I believe it was in 1925. I have used all these years with only a few pages, until I came in contact with the Oxford group just recently.

One of the principles of the Oxford group is honesty. I am a God Guided Life. In turning my life over to God in Control and Use for His Purpose, it came to me one morning in Quiet Time that I must return this book. Hence this letter and the book. Please find it for me, after, will be doing charity.

Guidedly Yours,

This is only one of the many unusual things that come to the attention of librarians. Few days go by that some reader, disconcerted students that are asked the librarians, that are late books, or the strange incidents that often occur in the library.

Many books are often given strange, startling titles by the readers.

One girl came to the circulation desk and in all seriousness asked if she had looked all over the library for the book entitled Bullit Surprise by Winers.

Another student asked at the desk for Wiser Reeves' address in the magazine "Scientific American." Another, from Goldsboro to Cosmic Rays" has been asked for under the title of "Cosmetic Rays."

Another absent-minded student once asked for "Greasy Spoon Experiments in Psychology" chapter. We were not certain she meant simply that she wanted a book by "Greasy Spoon" or "Studies in the Seat," and the librarians suggestion that it must be "Studies in Deceit" would not be accepted.

Library Gets Portrait Of Head of Foundation

The college library has just received a portrait of Thomas W. McGregor, head of the McGregor Foundation which has cooperated with different colleges in buying books. The portrait is framed books on American history and literature. The picture will be hung in the library within the next few days.

The college library was one of eight college libraries and the only one in Florida invited to participate in buying these books through the McGregor foundation. Among the original books the library secured in this way are Thomas Jefferson's "Notes on the State of Virginia"; John Bartram's "Description of East Florida"; and Captain John Smith's "History of the American Indians."

English Student Tells Many Exciting Family Adventures

Educational Life in Mother Country and Frequent Trips to Germany Have Put Much Color Into Youth of Annie Jennings

By DOROTHY BARCLAY

The things that happened to my family before I was born must be a great deal more stirring than anything that ever happened to me." Annie Jennings, a member of the sophomore class at this college, sat at a table in the Spick and Span, energetically stirring her coffee.

Before the war daddy was an agent for a British firm in Germany, but when trouble broke he was put in a prison camp and there he stayed till peace was declared. I don't like to brag about it, but it was pretty hard for him and mother. Although she was a German citizen, she watched the Huns the same and during the whole war she had to live on Sister's savings. Well, everything's all right now, though and after the armistice they came to England.

Annie was born in London a little less than a year after peace had been declared. She has one other person's, her early memories of the war. "I remember it again early. When she was only a year and half old she made her first trip to Germany to see her maternal grandparents at Godesberg on the Rhine. Annie says that she spent at least four weeks every summer in that country, visiting relatives in Cologne, Munich and Bremen. Her last trip to Germany was in the summer of 1930, the year in which her family left England permanently.

Annie learned to speak German naturally along with English, but here the charm of wisdom ended. When she went to school she had to go to school. Of the "infants' school" she remembers only at the age of five, she remembers that the first thing she did every day in America," she said bitterly, "was to go to the bathroom and science and, although I don't know whether there was any opportunity here than in England the field of work that is open to her is certainly much wider."

Campaign Promotes Travelers' Safety

Two more and seven years ago, our Highway Department on this continent a new investigation concerning road improvements, research, and much needed effort, decided on the proposition that all men would rather ride than walk. Now we have engaged in a new scientific testing whether the ground-hugged cow is being replaced and so persecuted by the new Highway Cow, can long endure.

We have an opportunity to observe the progress of this invention by attending the numerous cow shows. These cows" which may be classified as the Holstein, the Jersey, the Guernsey, the Ayrshire, the Brown Swiss, the Milking Shorthorn, the Red Poll, and the Dairy Shorthorn, are clearly cowlike; that we do not allow our brothers at the Horticultural Hall to exhibit. They are clearly cowlike; than we do.

The brave man, maimed or dead, who have been writing of the highway, is the real record breast. The world, truly, will listen to the tale that Bunyan told of his pilgrim who ran here, but never forget what they did not record on the highway. It is for us, the youth, rather to be educated how to take the measure of the Highway Cow for the safety of the traveler and for posterity—that from these honorable documents, we take increased devotion to the highway. We are here highly receive that there shall not be a highway without this invention—that there is a branch of freedom of this state, and that branches of the people, by the people, for the people shall remain forever safe.

Florence Cameron, Mary Emily Parker Initiates

Wednesday afternoon the outstanding work of two students of history was recognized by the local chapter of the national honorary history society, Phi Alpha Theta. Florence Cameron and Florence Cameron were initiated into Phi Alpha Theta.

The addition of the two new members brings the number of active to six. Rosalyn Dunn, secretary of Mary Emily Parker, and Anna Marie Mikell are already members.

The initiation followed the service decorations followed the theme Dear Professor as it is not a philosophy." Tables, left at the Three Tortoises, were decorated with sketches showing the development of American history from 1492 to 1937.

Dr. Annie Marie Popper, Dr. Thomas Frazer Dunbar, Dr. Abbey Dr. and Mrs. E. S. Cotten. The Florence Three were

Dance Group Performs Again for Girl Scouts

The members of the physical education dance club will present a dance program last Thursday night for Girls Scout troops at a banquet honoring the organization's birthday at the orchestra.

The group gave three numbers, a Norwegian folk-dance and two Spanish folk-dances.

The class danced for the Florida Girl Scouts on February 3 at the annual scout Council banquet at the Woman's Club. The Girls Scouts present were Girl Scouts Carol Cook, Dorothy Mosher, Martha Weeks, Ruth Agnew, Jeffrey, Fatima Weir, and Seth Deane.

The Social Week

tudents Will Entertain Faculty Members Thursday

In connection with P. S. C. Winter celebrations in honor of the college are being given throughout the state, the honor faculty-student dinner of the year will be held Thursday, March 4, at 6 o'clock in the Mary Ann Cafeteria. Invitations are announced by the social committee for the purpose of meeting closer and more friendly relations between members of the faculty and the student body. Dinners have been given in the past two years.

At least the dining room will be appropriately decorated with one of seasonal flowers in vases, host for this dinner. Two members of the faculty will be invited by students to attend this affair.

Dinner and Faculty Guests

Faculty members and their hosts and guests will be: Dr. and Mrs. Conrad and Miss Louise Conrad, Dr. and Mrs. Leon Johnson and Miss Kay Johnson, Dr. and Mrs. Percival Roberts; Dr. and Mrs. Gordon Andrews, Mar-Cole; Miss Maude Powell and Miss Charlotte Stevens; Miss Rosemon, Miss Mildred Ann Bell, Miss Virginia Mae Virginia Makemson; Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Heinlein, Viola Mae Hall; Mr. and Mrs. Sawyer Gibson, Miss Margaret Ann Cobbin; Dr. and Mrs. F. P. Pinner, Kathryn Mae Dempsey; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Reed Powell and Mrs. Powell, Miss Margaret Sadler; Mr. and Mrs. Lee Matthews, Miss Dr. Sarah Gwinn Haney; Mrs. Ada Belle Cawthon and Miss Irene Bostick, Jo Miss Lucile Lester, Betty Wells Graham, Ruth Jeanie Thi, Kay Virginia Bond; Dr. and Mrs. Lindsay; Miss Myrtle Mae Asbury T. Abbey; Miss Sadie Phipps, Miss Bessie Mae Gaitskell.

Guests to Attend

Dr. and Mrs. Frank Wells; Mrs. Gladys Fidler; Julia Mae Bagley, Myrtle Lilly Mae Cawthon, Miss. Christine Scarborough, Jessie Miss Mary Lou Wik; Miss Mae Dudley, Miss Dot Margaret Powell, Mary H. Buford, Frances Richardson, Miss Virginia Miss Mary Alice Miss Margaret Ruth Mortimer Moore, Martha A. Bell Seymour, Jane Dorothy Breen, Miss Mary P. Miller, Martha Ann Thompson Priest, Nell Grace Fox; Mrs. Miss Gladys Burdine, Miss Gertrude Miss Ruth Lewis; Dr. and Mrs. Swain and Miss Isabel Sullivan, Mamie Pland; Dr. and Mrs. Montgomery, Mary Martha Jones; Miss Mary Lou Dixon; Miss Betty Leach; Mr. and Mrs. Cowles, Eleanor Gladys Pawley; Dr. Anna Porter, Marie Mitchell; Mrs. Ella Thistlethwaite, Miss Ruth Lorraine Beasley.

Mrs. Thomas Wing, Sara Beth Barnes, Hugh Weakom, Miss Sadie Young, Mrs. W. William Jones, Miss Bess Virginia; Miss Betty Nell Clark; Dr. and Mrs. Bernie Kurz, Jane Dowdell; Mr. and Mrs. Mark DeGraff, Betty Gail Godbold; Dr. Ruth Convert

dition Service
ld by sorority
ly Evening

pledges of Delta Phi Epsilon sorority, were initiated into the organization yesterday at 5 o'clock at the home of the sponsor. Following this a banquet was given at the Dutch Kitchen.

The new members are Jeannette Kromer, Betty Jane Rowley, Judith Willinsky, Jeannette Kromer, Betty Jane Rowley, Mary and Lillian Fiset.

The motif was used in decoration of the banquet table and the colors of purple and green in evidence. Each of the members was presented with an initiation pin.

The new members of the sorority are: Miss Edna Pauline Harriet Tobin, Florence Hannah Biscow, and Lena Belle Lewis.

Mrs. Ruth Convert, Mrs. Wahnish, Miss Cecelia Mrs. Kronenfeld of Miami, Mrs. Sam Mendelson, Mrs. Julia J. Johnson, Miss Pearl Fiset of Oak, Miss Dorothy Fehrenbach, and Miss Ruth Pelsof Lake Wales.

Night Matron Shames Timid Fellow Women

Watchman Gives Stirring Example of Courage In "Weaker" Sex

By RUTH ATKINSON

One of the unusual jobs at P. S. C. W. is held by Miss Iris Bellinger, who has the title of night matron and the duties of a general over-seer.

Below medium height, Miss Bellinger looks anything but expressive and lovely. She is definitely a job which would not be at all acceptable to many timid women. Her duty begins at second light flash at ten-thirty, and ends at seven o'clock in the morning. During this time she inspects all of the dormitories, inside and outside.

She begins her rounds in Reynolds, approaching each floor, and then continues to Jennie Murphree Hall, finally, to Gilchrist. Eight halls are noted in each dormitory; all outside doors are checked; and all smoking rooms and downstairs bathrooms are inspected for anything out of the usual such as burning and running faucets. The dormitories are also inspected from the outside. Miss Bellinger usually arrives at Byran office at midnight, where she, Mrs. Barnes, second night matron, is on duty to answer phone calls and admit late students. At this time the positions are reversed, and Miss Bellinger leaves Mrs. Barnes in charge while Mrs. Rivers inspects Brevard, and Gilchrist, following a similar procedure as in the other dormitories. All outside doors are closed and locked. Mrs. Rivers usually completes her rounds by one o'clock.

Then, while students are sleeping soundly, Miss Bellinger is busy at her desk in the middle of their working hours and at their "lunch" which is sent to her by the kitchen.

At three o'clock the night-watchman reports outside conditions, and this is included in the final night report turned in at Byran office. A little after three, the quietest and spookiest of the early morning hours, Miss Bellinger starts again on their rounds. This time, however, Miss Bellinger begins Brevard and Gilchrist, while Mrs. Rivers inspects Byran, Jennie Murphree, and Reynolds.

At six o'clock, they begin taking down the doors and opening the outside doors, and at seven their duty is finished until night comes again.

Any off-campus students who have been out at night are checked by Miss Bellinger either to the bus or train.

When asked whether or not she felt a little flutery during the working hours, when all the lights are quiet and the lights were dim Miss Bellinger answered with a decided "no," saying that she guessed she "just wasn't made that way."

At seven o'clock when the gong gives the signal for students to start reluctantly and very comfortable beds, Miss Bellinger begins her hours of rest. She tells proudly of her protection against the light of day and the noisiness of the students. Light is excluded by means of a black blindfold, and noise becomes almost quiet by the use of Flents, or Anti-noise ear stoppies. These wax plugs are a sad way with some notes. Miss Bellinger considers them a great blessing. When asked if daytime sleep rested her as well as night-time sleep, she answered that she had been used to it, and no longer noticed any difference.

After eight hours of sleep, Miss Bellinger arises at three o'clock, uses her afternoon and early evenings for pleasure, and is ready to begin her duties again by second night flash. She is careful to explain that her "working time is normal." She has eight regular hours of sleep, and two meals a day, hours at one-thirty while on duty and dinner at six-thirty in the college dining room.

And so Miss Bellinger, night matron at P. S. C. W., the lady of darkness who walks halls and inspects the dormitories during the average person's sleeping hours, closed the conversation concerning herself. In three more hours the schedule of her work would begin again, and quiet would have settled down over P. S. C. W. ing forward to the time when they shall be the directors and tell their sagging memoers how, when and where they wish their riders to be carried out.

REMEMBER YOUR FAMILY AND FRIENDS AT EASTER TIME WITH YOUR PHOTOGRAPH—

PIKE STUDIO

COLLEGE AVENUE

SIGMA KAPPA SORORITY ENTERTAINS GUESTS AT ANNUAL DANCE IN HOUSE

The Sigma Kappa sorority held its annual formal dance last Saturday night at the chapter house in a flower garden of wisteria, roses and dogwood.

A trellis bound with large bunches of wisteria faced the entrance while the house was transformed into an arbor of wisteria and varied colors which decorated the walls and overhung the lights and doors. Punch was served from a bowl surrounded by fresh wisteria.

Those invited included: Billy Cooper, George Mitchell, Bill Cockrell, Mack Gallrath, Ed Thomas, Billy Corn, Jack Green, Elton Bowen, Ben Liddon, Hilton Cooper, Blake Clark, Baxter Waldrop, Emmett Lewis, Ed Hughes, John Whittemore, Bob King, Dick King, Jeff Davis, Alton Gibson, Leonard Burns, Mr. Green, Mr. Halsey, Billy Thornton, Mr. Chittendon, Fay Shuford, Douglas Hopkins, F. G. Bryan, Sam Deahl, Godfrey Smith, Bill Hood, Chesy Griffin, Victor Anderson, Alfred Barnhill, Jack Bowen, Nelson Guy, Jr., Charles Barringer, Jr., Craig Newsome, Lamar Parrish, George Millon, Moss Maley, Robert Dills, Red Fuller, Beach Clark, Lonnie Hattis, Stanley Parent, Nathan McGoogan, Vail Chiff, John Kilby, Gwynn Parker, Donald Lonkin, Stanley Grosvenor, Harold Hobbs, Walter Liddell, Wallace Montgomery, Keith Wright, Charles Hudson, W. T. Thorn, Davy Jones, Allison Warren, Uhna Moore.

Visitors were: Beacom Knight, Fenton Woodward, Janet Cook, Vivian Marshall, Margaret Kay Anderson, Mary Hoffman, Margie Tiffer.

The hostesses were the members of the Sigma Kappa sorority and included: Anna Glen, Sue Trotter, Dawn Latham, Martha Wiafin, Kitty Bonner, Nell Woodham, Elizabeth Spencer, Lucille Ham, Margie Weems, Rima Guth, Millicent Hurst, Jean McMullen, Beatrice Effinger, Edith Hayes Effinger, Verd Ramage, Mary Callaway Smith, Betty Allan, Priscilla Riffey, Virginia Sullivan, Pat Hastings, Patty Sams, Jeanette Robinson, Elizabeth Jenks, Jane Cage, Adelaide Bells, Mary Hammon, Sarah Mae Davis, Aida Lybarker, Mona McLeod, Annette Courtney, Phyllis Parramore, Hazel Donegan.

PHI MUS HOLD TRADITIONAL FORMAL GEORGE WASHINGTON DANCE TONIGHT

The annual Phi Mu formal George Washington dance will be held tonight at 8 o'clock in an appropriate and gay setting for the sorority house on West Jefferson Street.

Red, white, and blue crepe paper streamers will be suspended from ceiling to floor in the center of each of the downstairs rooms and will be used to decorate the chandeliers and windows. An interesting feature of the decorations will be a silhouette of George Washington, effectively set off by red lights, which will be placed on favors of "Uncle Sam" hats and hatchet bapel pins will be distributed as favors.

During the dancing punch and cookies will be served.

Chaperones for this affair will be Miss Eula Mcinroy and Miss K. Marshall.

Invited guests are Mr. and Mrs. Mark Pierson, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Check, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Martin, Mr. and Mrs. Scarborough, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Henderson, Mr. and Mrs. Wyatt Walker, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lawrence, Mr. and Mrs. Purdon Lake, Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Hamilton, Jr, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Duval, Mines Mary Laura Tilley, Marion Mixon, Frances Parks, Jackie Jones, Lorraine Halsrid, Elizabeth Homer, Alaida Cummings.

Bob McCann, Cecil Parker, Ben Ash, Dwight Rogers, Jerry E ...e, Phil Crocker, Morris Van Wyk, Orris Bevin, Gaudens Cook, Dick Cheatham, Stuart Harford, Lee Worsham, Charles Cannon, E. S. Bevis, Bob Murray, Ira McCollum, O. T. Cason, Cal Hicks, Bob Mickler, Edgar Gilmore, Clarence Parramore, Bill Hood, Winslow Sullivan, Bob Mitchell, Frank Pepper, James Wiltshire, Eldridge Glover, George Grosby, Hugh Williams, James Kendrick, Ben Smith, Rolf Wedding, Bill Bell, Ben VonDoben, Hunt Holmes, George Milligan, Moon Mullins, Bill Hooser, Tod McGrath, Bob McKeehan, Bob Reevis, Bill Dykstra, Murrel Lanick, Walter Sanders, Chester Loomis, Leonard Coles, Godfrey Smith, John Stevens, Ed Gelzer, Lamar Parrish, Ben McClean, Bill Burch, Bob Lowry, Roger Sessoms, Bill Schofield, Gray Ramsaur, Dan Stonecipher, Bill Yoxen, William Mauer, Bob Reed, Tom Knotts, Leon Howard, Frank Inman, J. B. Cox, W. C. Allen, Bill Cooper.

Theta Kappa Pledges Honored at Dinner

Theta Kappa, local French honorary, entertained three new pledges Tuesday night with a dinner in the dining room of the new pledges, Dot Marsh, Eloise Andrews and Frank Wildman, were pledged Thursday afternoon.

Present at the dinner tables which were decorated in red, white and blue were Dr. Arthur Seymour, Miss Margaret Cunningham, Miss Dorothy Breen, Miss Hutt, Miss Lucy Lester, Miss Mildred Pinnegan, Miss Marie Mitchell, professor, and members of Theta Kappa.

Dean Plans Tampa Trip

Miss Ella Scoble Opperman, dean of the school of music, will attend the third annual convention of the State Music Teachers' association to be held in Tampa March 5 and 6. Miss Opperman will act as toastmistress at the luncheon Saturday sand, in her capacity as assistant secretary of the National Music Teachers' association, will talk on "Highlights of the National Music Teachers convention."

Survey of Grades Made On Semester Indicates Favorability of Dorms

In support of the argument that dormitory life has a definite influence on scholarship—for its good—the report of the study made on the last semester grades. This report shows that out of the seventy-six girls who left school at the semester because of failure to meet academic requirements, fifteen were off-campus students.

Off-campus students may be defined as being those girls who live in the sorority houses, private homes or with their parents, in which case they are called day students. Since the dormitories are able to accomodate only 1,166 girls, the remaining seven hundred thirteen approximately (or 800 girls enrolled) must room off campus.

By a ruling made by the state board of control, any girl who fails half of her college work is dropped at the semester—a process known as "flunking out" by the girls. The 23 girls who failed at the semester constituted a little more than one percent of the entire enrollment. This is considered to be a small percent of failures according to the college authorities.

The scholastic standards of Florida State are among the highest in the country as evidenced by the fact that in 1935, Florida State became the first educational institution in Florida to receive an independent chapter of Phi Beta Kappa, most standard honorary society in the country.

Grace Mary Webster Married February 7

Miss Grace Mary Webster '36 of Lakeland was married to Mr. Joseph Edward Keefe of Winter Haven on February 7 in the Catholic church at Lakeland. The couple will make their home in Winter Haven.

Five students of Florida State College for Women attended the wedding. They were Misses Margaret Lafferty, Clotilde O'Rourke, Van O'Shaughnessy, Mary Sullivan, and Jahe Quinn.

Effect of Life In College Revealed by Students Here

Social as Well as Religious Phase of Thinking Is Changed for Many Girls by Residence at Educational Institutions

By LEONA HOWE

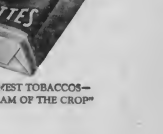
When questioned individually as to what effects college had produced upon them, fifty students gave, for the most part, similar opinions in regard to the changes brought about in their religious, social, and moral views on life.

On being asked whether their personal religion had been affected by the influence of college life, all save two students answered in the affirmative. The two dissenters declared they had been warned in advance that their religion would be tested, and therefore had been careful not to listen to any conversations which might swerve them away from their beliefs. "Bull sessions do more harm than good," they said. "In order to get a better opinion of myself since I've been to college," she said. "I see so many people around me that it's most confusing." After reflecting for a moment, she then made the thoughtful statement that school had not affected her religious sentiment, because after being with a crowd, then, hated to be alone. Another student, an ex high school class president said ruefully, "The college has made me realize how relatively insignificant I am. I used to feel important, but now I just sit in a corner—and watch."

When asked whether they missed the "men in their lives," the answers were unanimously in the affirmative. A statement from one of the dormitories stated that two years of a girl's school would be an excellent training school for a laundress, but as a preparation for life, of absolutely no value. "I forget what me are like," one girl said, "and that they are human beings like myself." Another added, "I appreciate men more

Continued on page two

Cary Grant says: "a light smoke rates aces high with my throat"



"Luckies have been my cigarette for five years now. I rate them a 4-star cigarette. They're always good to the throat, and taste so much better than other cigarettes that it seems to me this 'Toasting' process is a swell idea. Yes, a light smoke like Luckies rates aces high with both my throat and taste."

AFFEARING IN THE NEW COLUMBIA PICTURE, "WHEN YOU'RE IN LOVE"

An independent survey was made recently among professional men and women—lawyers, doctors, lecturers, scientists, etc. Of those who said they smoke cigarettes, more than 87% stated they personally prefer a light smoke.

Mr. Grant verifies the wisdom of this preference, and so do other leading artists of the radio, stage, screen and opera. Their voices are their fortunes. That's why so many of them smoke Luckies. You, too, can have the throat protection of Luckies—a light smoke, free of certain harsh irritants removed by the exclusive process "It's Toasted". Luckies are gentle on the throat.

THE FINEST TOBACCOS— "THE CREAM OF THE CROP"

A Light Smoke

"It's Toasted"—Your Throat Protection

AGAINST IRRITATION—AGAINST COUGH

Copyright 1937 The American Tobacco Company

YWCA Sponsors College Dress Exchange Shop

Fashion Show is Planned To Display Evening And Class Wear

The Young Women's Christian Association is sponsoring a College Cooperative Exchange Dress Shop which will be open on Tuesdays only for purchase of goods.

At the first formal opening of the cooperative, which will be announced at a later date, students will be invited to a fashion show in which will be demonstrated the latest frocks for both class and evening wear.

Everyone who has dresses of any kind, which they are tired of wearing and which are only taking up room in the closet may take them to the Cooperative Dress Shop, at 118 Reynolds. Here they will be remodeled, altered, mended, cleaned dyed and pressed, after which they are guaranteed to look like new.

A group of home economics majors will place what they consider to be the true value of the finished product which will then be sold for approximately half that price. Money made on the sale of dresses will be used for thread, needles, and other expenses for fixing over the merchandise.

As in many cooperatives all over the country, the employees in this store will be paid in credit toward the purchase of goods in the store. Wages will be paid at the regular National Youth Administration rate of thirty cents per hour to be taken out in store. Applicants for a position at this shop call at the office Tuesday 'uths. It is not necessary that applicants be able to sew

All of the student body are members of this Cooperative, and if they wish to contribute to the capital stock of the shop they may do so by bringing dresses to 119 Reynolds at any time.

Their slogan is: "Promote Home Industry and Buy at the College Cooperative Exchange Dress Shop."

Virginia Schreiber Tells Of Sugar Plantation Life

Most Exciting Moment in Life of Cuban Student Came During Revolution of Four Years Ago Watching Rebel Massacre

By BETTY LOU INGERMAN

She was sitting in the middle of her bed, her knees crossed in squaw-like fashion, with papers scattered all around her, when I found her in her off-campus house.

After talking to her for over an hour, it was quite easy to realize that Virginia Schreiber has lived an extremely interesting and unusual life. She was born in St. Augustine, May 18, 1917, but moved to Cuba at the age of five months. For nineteen years she has lived in Palubonco, a large sugar plantation managed by her father.

When asked what she thought the most exciting incident in her life, Virginia quickly said the happening that had stayed most vividly in her mind had occured during the time of the revolution in 1933. She and that the rebel bands fighting right around her home were the strongest and the ones most feared by the president of the republic, Machado. Machado sent one his most faithful men, Ortiz, down to Jatibonico to check up on the rebels. Mr. Ortiz arrived a band of rebels descended upon the sugar mill and took guns belonging to three of the men. When Ortiz heard of this he ordered the men to be placed in prison for having given aid to the rebels. Three days later the bodies of the poor men were found in a field, where they had been thrown by Ortiz after having been cut to pieces.

All the American families were then sent to the United States, but Virginia's father stayed with the mill. Two months later Mrs. Schreiber read in the paper that Jatibonico had been hurried to the ground; and having not heard from her husband she feared that he had been caught in the fire—but news was finally given that he had survived.

Virginia told me that she had been tutored from the first grade to her junior year in high school. She took her senior year and two years of junior college work at Gulf Park College in Gulfport, Miss.

When asked about the manner of dress of the Cuban people, she said that the average Cuban dressed very poorly compared with the average American. The Cuban wears the same type of clothes as the American save for a shirt called a "guayabera," which is worn on the outside of the trousers. The women often wear a lace "mantilla" to church, and the poor natives wear "alpargata" or canvas shoes with rope soles.

When asked about Cuban food, Virginia immediately turned up her little Grecian nose. "It is terrible; everything is so greasy and full of garlic—why haven't you heard?" It's said that the nation's al air of Cuba is garlic".

She then described one Cuban meal; the first course consisted of chicken soup highly seasoned; this was followed by boiled potatoes served with creamed sauce; the next course was roast beef, beans and onions, rice, mashed potatoes, bread without butter; and more chicken; the dessert was preserved fruit and crackers. From this one gathers that the Cubans love to eat.

It is quite a complicated affair when a Cuban boy and girl desire to have dates; they are not permitted to be seen in public without a chaperon. Two girls may go out on the street together, but a young girl is very seldom seen by herself.

When a couple want to go to a dance, the young man, either his mother, aunt, or another girl go along. And rather than go through the procedure the couple usually meet at the dance.

The Cuban dances are called "Danzon" and "Danzon". The orchestras as described by Virginia are "wonderful". The musicians beat time with small sticks. They are very fond of several American jazz numbers; their favorites being "Hotcha-cha-cha" and "The Music Goes Round and Round." They are so fond of the latter piece that they have written the tune to Spanish words.

The average Cuban home is built after the style of the Spanish house, but the home of Virginia is built on a foundation of poles; the purpose of these poles is to support the house up above the ground so as to keep the damp ground from making the house cold. It is rainy in Cuba in April, May, and June—it has sometimes rained so hard that the river has risen as high as fifty feet. It is necessary for the natives to move out of their grass homes at this time.

Virginia and her sister, Jane, who is two years younger than Virginia, are the only American girls in that section of the country; and the Cuban boys, being very fond of American girls, naturally go out of their way to be polite to the girls, who are hated by the Cuban "Muchachas" for this reason.

Jones, Lewis Will Give Joint Recital of One Act Plays Next Friday

The first of a series of junior speech recitals will be presented by Marjorie Jones and Frances Lewis in a joint recital of one act plays, March 5 of P. E. C. W., week at 7:45 o'clock in the Augusta Conradi theater.

Other speech recitals to follow in this series will be given by Sallie Burt Nuuum and Rachel Sapp, Beverly Brown and Shirley Pemberton will present the last recital of this series.

Following this series will be three senior recitals given by Frances Lingo, Betty Peck, and Mary Berryhill. The date of these presentations will be announced later.

College Girl Has Flexible Table Habits

Students Dislike Prigs And Gluttons About Equally at Meals

By FRANCES WATERHOUSE

A paradox.

Florida State girls do not like either good or bad table manners.

Even extreme politeness is thought annoying by many. One objected to the incongruity between Fifth avenue etiquette and lunch wagon utensils. Another said it made her squirm to have a person take five minutes to eat one piece of meat. A third resented meticulous manners because they showed up her own doubtful methods; while a fourth very fond of bread, detested girls who watched her disapprovingly as she took an extra piece.

Often, although students did not dislike perfect manners in their entirety, they did mind certain of their aspects. Some were bothered if a girl sang every word of the blessing and frowned on those who did not. Others felt uncomfortable if a companion glared at them for sneaking an olive or a pickle, too soon. The most disfavored, however, was the prude who refused to pass the biscuits until everyone had received a plate.

Another objection to careful eaters was their slowness. If a girl wanted to go to the library early or had lessons to do, it was maddening to sit waiting. One said it got on her nerves to watch another person eat when she had finished. "It won't do all right," she added, "if we could smoke while waiting."

Students were often annoyed by the bored diner who pretended not to notice eating. "They take away all pleasure in food," complained. "Sometimes I would like to stick a pin in them to see if they are human or not."

The exponents of bad table manners had even more enemies. The disgusting habit of talking with the mouth full was denounced by a large number of students. Girls who lounged all over the table and propped up an elbow or second and third helpings were equally rep ing. Loud talking, noisy chewing, and spearing the food also annoyed the fastidious diners.

Students who could not wait to sit down particularly offended one upper-classman. "They grasp the back of their chair during the blessing," she said, "and then sit out on the 'A ' and sit down on the ' ."

Girls also complained about those who had to have everything at once. Start bread, please, they would say; "Ask so-and-so to pass the butter"; "Mary, will you pour the water now?" One girl demanded a law against a person reaching across the table for a plate of cookies in order to start on her side first.

There were numerous signs of peevishness that irritated students. Looking carefully through a dish for the biggest piece of fruit got under one sophomore's skin. Monopolizing extra desserts and scouting for left-overs on other tables were equally condemned. Even the sandwich-makers who saved their snacks for study hours found disfavor.

And last among the disagreeable habits came haste and fidgets. A girl or teacher who hurried herself and hurried everybody else was labored. Meals, a junior argued, should be eaten with relaxation and should not be a race between two tables to get dessert first.

Spring Returns Early This Year to Brighten The Hearts of Florida State College Students

BY ELANTON BARRETT

Along with Browning's "Pippa," Florida State students may well sing "The year's at the Spring," for the early return of balmy breezes from their winter vacation has caused the campus to be overflowed with unseasonable but welcome flowers.

Dogwood trees that usually wait until late March or early April to spread their flower-like bracts have burst out into a white glory. Banks of azalea blossoms remind one of the "flower-strewn lawns" on which the princesses of fairy tales used to stroll. Wordsworth would have revealed in the host of golden daffodils" that are gathered in clumps in the front yards of Tallahassee homes.

Altogether it is a time when the most staid blue-stocking is apt to spend a morning coaxing a fruiting squirrel to accept some dainty from her out-stretched hand. Instead of herself wooing illusive feets in dry text books.

The "return to nature movement" is seen in more than a few scattered cases. Already student thought has turned to Camp Flastacowo, and the book in which one signs up for a trip to that inviting retreat is becoming frayed with constant thumbings. The invitation to "take a long walk this afternoon" is being more and more rarely refused. And the arbitrators of campus fashions are gnawing their nails as they refurbish last year's spring clothes and plan for new wardrobe.

The Sunday fashion parade into the dining hall has, for the last few Sabbaths, displayed a motley show, for some students look at the calendar and put on their winter velveta and satins and others look out the window and don their more summer-ey dress. It would seem, however, from last week's variety, that the summer clothes were going to win out in the struggle.

Whether clad in wool or linen, students are united in welcoming the mild days reminding of vacation time.

for the biggest peace of fruit got under one sophomore's skin. Monopolizing extra desserts and scouting for left-overs on other tables were equally condemned. Even the sandwich-makers who saved their snacks for study hours found disfavor.

And last among the disagreeable habits came haste and fidgets. A girl or teacher who hurried herself and hurried everybody else was labored. Meals, a junior argued, should be eaten with relaxation and should not be a race between two tables to get dessert first.

Walcott Head... State Home E... Club for Ye...

Group Elects Offi... At Jacksonville ... Convention

Margaret Walcott, sophomore ... the Florida State College for ... men, was elected president of ... State Home Economics ... ation at a meeting in Jack... last week end. Other ... elected were: vice presidents ... ie Crosby, San Mateo; secr... Ann Elizabeth Lavier, Lak... and Edith Manford, clairv... the program committee.

The organization of ... nomics clubs in various ... the state under the direc... the Florida Home Economics ... tion was done for the ... of this two-day meeting ... representatives of the various ... and state and national ... present. Mrs. Margaret Bus... Butterfield, of Jacksonville ... the organizer of the state ... with the assistance of Mis... Roach, Washington, D. C.

State and national officers ... ent at this meeting were ... Roach, field secretary of ... American Home Economics ... ciation, Washington, D. C.; ... Margaret Sandels, a dean o... nomics at Florida State co... Tallahassee, and vice presiden... the A. H. E. S.; Gertrude Pe... son, Jacksonville, president o... Florida Home Economics ... ciation; and Boletha Pruitt ... supervisor of home educat... Tallahassee.

Representatives of the Flo... State College for Women pa... at this meeting were: Miss ... Mae McIntosh, of the home ... nomics department; Betty Ba... son, Margaret Walcott, ... Manford, Betty Bow, Ke... Buff, Dorothy Broward, Irene ... Hazel Myrick, Elizabeth Bow... Ennie Johnson, Janet Cha... and Margaret Delaney.

It was decided at this me... ing that the association all ... meetings annually in ... parts of the state.

Dorman, Flowers, Byrd Go to Dean of Women Association Meeting

Dean Olivia N. Dorman, Miss Maude Flowers, and Miss Kathryn Byrd attended the meeting of the National Association of Deans of Women held February 16-20 at the Roosevelt hotel in New Orleans. The theme of the convention was better integration of guidance for students.

Dean Dorman served on the membership committee as chairman for the South Atlantic district. Her field covered all the eastern states south of Maryland.

A former assistant to the dean of students here, Miss Agnes Edwards, was one of the hostesses for the association. Miss Edwards, who was also a head of the dormitories while at Florida State, is now dean of women in a Louisiana college.

The most important affairs of the convention were listed by Dean Dorman. At the University luncheon, Miss Ross, of the psychiatry department of Chicago university spoke on "Mental Hygiene for Deans and Students," explaining the use of psychiatry in guidance work.

The after-dinner speaker at the formal banquet was Dr. Comstock, president of Radcliffe college. Her speech, entitled "Not Yet Twenty," compared the problems of today's teens with those of two decades ago. It also contrasted the changing ideals and objectives of these two periods.

Among the reports made by the association was one by six committees pertaining to the functions and responsibilities of deans. This report was prepared for publication. A similar document was written by the Southern delegates on the problems of the rural girl and may be incorporated into the N. Y. A. survey.

Effect of Life in College Revealed by Students

Continued from page nine

since I've been in here, but I'm not at ease the few times I'm with them."

Other opinions on this subject ran along the same line, revealing that the object of marriage plays an important part in the conversations and thoughts of the students.

Many believe that going to a girl's college has made them more critical of men, and they have raised their standards for the man they hope some day to marry. However, they state that the social requirements of the men they date while in school are much too low. "We take what we can get up here," several stated, adding: "We have no chance to become acquainted with any men, much less to judge them in regard to character, so when we do have dates we often go with boys

..festoons of FRAGRANCE

...sun-cured in the tobacco fields of Turkey and Greece

...these are the spicy leaves that help make Chesterfields an outstanding cigarette.

It takes good things to make good things...and there is no mistaking the fine quality of these costly Turkish tobaccos in Chesterfield cigarettes.

...FRAGRANCE
...MILDNESS
...TASTE

These are the good things you want in a cigarette... You find them in Chesterfields

Copyright 1937, Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co.

LIBRARY
FLORIDA STATE COLLEGE FOR WOMEN
TALLAHASSEE, FLA.

Congratulations to Electron Wranglers

The Florida Flambeau

Published by the Students of Florida State College for Women

VOLUME XXIV. Tallahassee, Florida, March 5, 1937 NUMBER NINETEEN

Condolences to Also-Runners

Concert Star Will Present Program Here

Blonde Grete Stueckgold To Sing Thursday In Auditorium

FORMER SOPRANO OF METROPOLITAN

Prima Donna Has Taken Out Papers For Citizenship

Golden-haired and golden-voiced Grete Stueckgold, former prima donna soprano of the Metropolitan Opera company and now a concert, recital, and radio star, will give a program here Thursday night at 7:45 o'clock in the college auditorium under the auspices of the artist series committee.

Speaks Two Languages

Born in London of an English mother and a German father, Miss Stueckgold speaks English or German with equal ease. She made her concert debut in Bremerhaven at the age of sixteen, and was just past eighteen when her first operatic engagement came from Hamburg. Subsequent engagements in concert and opera led to a contract with the Staatsoche opera of Berlin, where she appeared under Bruno Walter. For several seasons the soprano was one of the stars of the Metropolitan favorite roles there included Elsa in "Lohengrin" the Wagnerian opera of Elsa's Elisabeth, Eva, and Sieglinde and also such Italian parts as Aida.

"Opera," Miss Stueckgold states, is at last coming into its own. Its more is understood, and with can now find a place in it where beauties only a miracle could give emotion such a result. Young and good-looking singers attract young and eager audiences, with the result that opera is again fashionable. Today it is as smart for a young couple to go to hear Wagner as to see a polo game, whereas a few years ago, I remember, the average age of the regular operagoer was at least fifty."

Looks for Operas in English

Miss Stueckgold thinks the next step in operatic advancement must be the translations of the basic operas into singable and intelligent English. "However, I abhor that dire infliction of the time from the outside, from Hollywood," she says.

The grand opera picture comprises will do all the great operas and do them well. And that will be the beginning of a permanent Opera-in-English tradition. After all, in Germany operas are sung in the German language, Italy in Italian, and in Russia in Russian.

Continued On Page Five

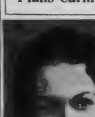
Meyers Writes Best FSC Song

Beth Duane Makes Award At Special Chapel Tuesday Night

In the fourth annual song contest which is held each F. S. C. W. Week, "March of the Torches" by Beatrice Meyers was awarded first prize Tuesday night at the special convocation held in honor of the week. She was presented with a box of candy by Beth Duane, Isabelle Sands and song contest.

Honorable mention was awarded to "A Pledge to F. S. C.", by Margaret Claire Lafferty and Clorinde Bourey.

In 1934 Sally Walder was the winner of this contest and in 1935 Belle Brashaw and Beth Deane were winners. During the past two years Isabelle Sands and Hazel Bowman have been prize contributors.



Judges in the contest, this year were Marion Cothran, Betty Parker, and Frances Porth.

March of the Torches" is a stirring marching song as its title suggests. The words are as follows:

Marching onward, spirits free,
Together holding high the Torches Three,
Because we'll love her forever,
We'll always aim high and never sever;
Hail the Garnet and the Gold,
And pledge to her your loyalty;
Then here's a toast to praise our Alma Mater.

Here is to F. S. C. W.

Plans Carnival

Katherine Graham, freshman, who has charge of the freshman carnival which brings to a close tomorrow night a campus observance of "F. S. C. W. Week." Katherine is also the new secretary of College Government association, and at the same time president of the freshman class.

Dr. Conradi And Daughter To Entertain

Governor and Mrs. Cone Will Be Honored At Reception

To meet Mrs. Ernest Cone, the Governor and Mrs. Fred Cone, Dr. Edward Conradi and Miss Louise Conradi will entertain students throughout Florida to a reception honoring the governor next Tuesday evening at 8:30 o'clock in the social auditorium of Florida State College for Women.

Guests at the reception will be the presidents and secretaries of the civic clubs in Tallahassee, the senators and legislators of Leon county, those invited members of Council, the presidents of colleges and universities in Florida, the members of the governor's cabinet, the members of the Supreme Court, the principals of the city schools, the ministers in Tallahassee, the members of the faculty and staff of the Florida State College for Women, student secretaries, members of the governor's staff, and state officials.

On the guest list are: Mr and Mrs. Alphonse Pichard, Mr W. T. Cash, Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Stone, Mr. B. A. Mergrimon, Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Collins, Mr. John Ausley Mr. and Mrs. Lester Moon, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Mr. and Mrs. Julius Alford, Mr. Clyde Gregory, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Proctor, Mr and Mrs. Thomas P. Turner, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Parker, Mr. C. W. Hunter, Mr and Mrs. H. H. Bobler, Mrs. Lissie McCormick, Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Sensabaugh, Miss Dorothy Dodd, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Wesson.

Senator and Mrs. W. C. Hodges, Mrs. J. J. Hodges, Hon. and Mrs. Walter McLin, Hon. Walter Moore, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Diamond, Hon. and Mrs. George Baldwin, Hon. and Mrs. O. J. Semmes, Hon. and Mrs. Thomas W. Brown, Hon. and Mrs. Harry Duncan, Hon. and Mrs. R. P. Terry.

Dr. Hamilton Holt, Dr. and Mrs. John J. Tigert, Dr. and Mrs. R. B. Hutchins, Dr. and Mrs. W. S. Allen, Dr. and Mrs. Lodd Spivey, Dr. and Mrs. Chapman Revenel, Hon. and Mrs. R. A. Gray, Hon. and Mrs. W. V. Knott, Hon. and Mrs. Doyle Carlton, Hon. and Mrs. Nathan Mayo, Hon. and Mrs. Colin Englis, Hon. and Mrs. J. B. Hodges, Hon. Hon Branch and Mrs. Conrad Judge and Mrs. J. B. Judge, Hon. and Mrs. Glen Terrell, Judge and Mrs. Armstead Brown, Judge and Mrs. W. H. Ellis, Judge and Mrs. Fred Davis, Judge and Mrs. Rivers Buford, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Perry, Rev. and Mrs. E. R. Christian, Rev. and Mrs. J. R. Chiles, Rev. and Mrs. E. N. Caldwell, Rev. and Mrs. Waldo Wood, Rev. and Mrs. Gerald Culberson, Rev. William J. Carroll, Rev. and Mrs. Jeffery Allfriend.

Dr. and Mrs. Mark P. Bord, Dr. and Mrs. F. F. Kitchen, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Hall, Miss Lurlie Logan, Mrs. Ruth Whitehard, Dr. William Kupper, Mr. Robert Mickler, Dr. and Mrs. John E. Kinsler, Miss Winnie Lee Davis, Miss Billie Ruth Curtis, Miss Rachel Wylie, Miss Julia Gehan, Mrs. Ethel Peck, Mr. and Mrs. B. Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Scarborough, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin C.

Continued on Page Two

Speaker Gives Way To Help Economic Ills

Talk Given Last Night By David C. Coyle On Prosperity

GIVES EXAMPLES OF NATIONAL POLICIES

Open Discussion is Led By New York Engineer After Speech

Although in the opinion of most people "Dollars are good money "paid out," a tax system may be planned, according to Dr. David Cushman Coyle, in a way to make the government collection better for the American people. Every tax changes the price. It is up to those who plan the taxes to see that prices are changed in a way to make most people prosperious.

"A handout from the unemployment situation is to get people jobs, not give them shorter hours," explained Mr. Coyle, who is consulting engineer from New York, in his talk here last night. Labor" handle for the situation is to give to those whose morale won't be destroyed. Give the money to old people; they will employ younger ones and thus distribute the wealth."

In supporting his observations, Mr. Coyle gave three examples of great national policies. These three plans included the national budget, the capitalistic system and an arrangement for distributing income.

"Taxing," stated Mr. Coyle, amounts to one fifth of the cost of the national income, which is forty billion dollars. The capitalistic of the Federal budget is to make the budget balanced and that it must be balanced by the government changing its income and expenditure. If there are more than a few million people unemployed, as there are today, the budget is too small."

Discussing the issue of capitalism, Mr. Coyle defined capitalism as what is called small or medium business. He explained that holding companies and trusts can be aptly classified as finance capitalism in that the business dictators the little man.

Expressing hearty disapproval of sales taxes in general and particular, Mr. Coyle said that a sales tax is a way of soaking the people who can least afford it." This according to his belief, an economic fallacy, much cherished by the administration. He think the "little home" should be sacred and exempt from vulgar taxation. Actually, Mr. Coyle stated, taxes that "little home" and placing an extra charge for it and there over various commodities, is to cut down purchasing power, one example by about one-half more than the real sales volume.

In an open discussion after the talk the lecturer expressed it as his opinion that America must go for the next 100 or so years "attempting to support herself self-sufficient."

"It would be the ideal plan economically to have each country manufacturing only those items which it could produce the

Continued on Page Two

Heads of Three Major C. G. A. Offices

Shown here are the students who hold the major offices of College Government Association. At left is Louise Gehan, chairman of judiciary; at the right Betty Outland, president of the student body, and below Marjorie Rauleson, freshman adviser.

Opdyke Elects Pictorial Art Lecture Topic

Picture Pattern Tracing Discussed in Talk By Speaker

In an illustrated lecture here Wednesday evening Dr. George Howard Opdyke showed how a great many pictures can be resolved into patterns, explaining that pictorial art calls for a two-fold interest of subject matter and decoration.

"If you look for a pattern in pictures, art will mean more to you," said Dr. Opdyke. The difference, he explained, between "design" and "pattern" is that the design of a picture is the inspiration of all the parts, that the pattern is only what one sees on the surface of the picture.

Dr. Opdyke illustrated his talk by showing fifteen types of pictures upon which, he said an artist bases his pictures. The pictures were flashed, some in color and some unlighted, on a large white screen set up on the stage of the Auguste Conrad Theater. The speaker showed ten types of patterns used in art.

Agenor's "Crucifixion" illustrated the symetrical plan. Two copies of Rubens brought out the "S" curve pattern. Michelangelo was represented by his "Sibo Boy", which brings out a diagonal pate pattern. To show the use of diagonals, especially in landscapes, Dr. Opdyke showed Hoener's "Northeaster." Using Da Vinci's "The Last Supper," Rossetti's "Dante's Dream," "Sunset in Fontainbleau Forest," he pointed out how the oblong pattern, applied lines, vertical and horizontals and circular effects have prominent places in art.

Dr. Opdyke concluded his discussion by saying that it is worthwhile to visualize these patterns either in collecting or painting pictures.

The lecture studied at Wellesley University at Middletown, Connecticut and obtained his post-graduate M. A. and Ph.D. at Columbia University.

Having finished his travels throughout the state of Florida, Dr. Opdyke intends to travel through Georgia, North Carolina, and Virginia.

Wright Leads Peace Study For Campaign

E. P. C. Field Secretary Has Last Conference With Local Group

Seeking to enlist Florida State college students in the campaign to promote peace and take the profits out of war, Stuart Wright, field secretary of the Emergency Peace Campaign has been spending some time on this campus in conferences with faculty members and student leaders.

Mr. Wright is a graduate of the University of Vermont and has been working toward his master's degree in sociology at Columbia. Since last April when he began working on the "guinea pig team" of E. P. C. he has traveled over most of the nation carrying on an active campaign against war. He has been a field secretary since October.

At present Mr. Wright is one of seventy-five young college graduates sent out by the E. P. C. to cover all the colleges in the country in an effort to promote peace sentiment and to organize student groups interested in peace work. A number of such groups have been organized. He has visited every campus in Florida except that of Miami university, and has worked in Georgia, Alabama, Louisiana and seven in Alabama. From this campus he has gone to Rollins, Stetson and Iowa although he plans to keep an active correspondence with the groups and with his many friends in Florida.

"This is the first time in history that such a group of people have organized to try to end war," Mr. Wright said, and continued: "Unless we can find students on this campus and other campuses throughout America who are willing to go at the business of preventing war in the same sacrifical spirit they would go to a war, preparation out into the trenches of the World War, we can be sure

Continued on Page Two

Freshman Fete Will Conclude Special Week

Guests to Wear Costumes For "Chinatown" Carnival

Climaxing and concluding a period of three days' programs, lectures, demonstrations and displays the freshman carnival will take place in back of Gilchrist tomorrow night at 8 o'clock. The theme will be "Chinatown" and those attending are requested to wear costumes, prizes to be awarded for the best.

Candy, cookies, ice cream, peanuts, popcorn, hot dogs, and cold drinks will be sold at colorful booths around the Gilchrist grounds. Features will include fortune tellers' booths, fish ponds, and Mary Pauline's Infernal Saturday evening dancing will be held in the Gilchrist parlor.

The third annual F. S. C. W. Week observance, which began with a special V. W. C. A. vesper service Sunday night, featured speeches at alumnae, civic, and women's clubs throughout the state, given by various members of the large practice. Informal Saturday evening dancing will be held in the Gilchrist parlor.

The third annual F. S. C. W. Week observance, which began with a special V. W. C. A. vesper service Sunday night, featured speeches at alumnae, civic, and women's clubs throughout the state, given by various members of the large practice. Informal Saturday evening dancing will be held in the Gilchrist parlor.

The theme of the convention for this year is "Education — the Foundation for Social Organization." Among the speakers who will appear on the program are Dr. Mida Cline, president of Sweet Briar college and president of the American Association of University Women; Dr. Mary R. Beard, historian and national leader in women's educational groups; Dr. Harold Laswell, professor of political science, University of Chicago; Dr. Katherine J. Gallagher, professor of history, Goucher college; and the effect of the fellowship awards committee of the national organization of university women; Dr. William Ernest Hocking, professor of philosophy, Harvard university; Mrs. Helen M. Lynd, social science faculty, Sarah Lawrence college; and Lester D. Vasey college; Morse Cartwright, director of the American Association for Adult Education; and Dr. William O. Carr, director of research, Educational Policies Commission of the National Education association.

The convention will bring together representatives of the associations of 1,000,000 women organized into 7456 local branches throughout the States, and in Alaska, Hawaii, the Philippine Islands, Puerto Rico, China, Japan, and Argentina.

Education being the center of the association's activities, convention reports will include the story of the fight of local branches and state division on behalf of schools and libraries during the depression, the association's work in improving educational opportunities for women in colleges and universities, and in securing equal recognition of women with men on faculties and in student bodies.

The members of this association carry on an extensive study program, and in response to current interest in economic and governmental problems the association has undertaken a special experiment in social studies. Other departments of study include education and standards and child welfare, child development and education for family life, international relations, and the arts. As the association also provides opportunities for gifted women through the award of research fellowships, the Savannah convention will celebrate progress in raising a million-dollar endowment fund for purpose Contributions bringing

Continued on Page Two

Exhibits In Library, Botany, and Art Department Show Development of College and Demonstrate Students' Work

In connection with the F. S. C. W. Week program classes and organizing exhibits are being given in different buildings on campus in which the library, botany department, and the botany department are represented.

Several of the best pieces from the various art classes make up the art exhibit which has been on display this week in the art room on the third floor of the Administration building. This exhibit is under the management of Mary McGonagle.

Friends of freshmen and sophomore dressing classes are four designs for bow jackets, design for a dress of "Cotton Prints" for trade marks, and for furniture.

Beverly Conn exhibits the four toy designs—of a green grasshopper, a red and gray donkey, a green frog, and a red, yellow, black and white nameless animal—are done in tempera.

From the stage craft class are page set designs for Shakespeare's plays, King Lear and Twelfth Night.

The interior decorating class contributed water colors of a dining room, a study, and a child's bedroom.

Also from the freshmen classes are charcoals of scenes and colored chalks of fruit, vegetables and other objects in table arrangements.

There is one neo-impressionistic picture in which lots of complementary colors are placed close together to give the effect of gray from a distance, and two water color scenes.

From another class are two figure sketches, one of a stout woman sitting stiffly in her chair and the other of a slender, young negro girl.

Fourteen illustrations are included in the exhibit. Some are done in charcoal and some in colored chalk, while one is a cut-out design of children's clothes in which every thing in the picture has been cut out of colored paper and pasted together.

Two designs of Adam and Eve are contrasting. One is done entirely in various shades of the complementary colors red and green, while the other, merely suggested by lines and a large red apple, would appear rather symbolistic.

Abstract designs, "blown on," are exhibited. In these, of which there are two, the paint has been blown on after the part that is to be left white has been covered with paper.

The second year design class has contributed a water color of an owl and two pieces of temprs. One shows a corner of a valley ball game, and the other is a symbol of Pacism.

The figure sketching class contributed two charcoals and two colored chalk sketches, and the head-like class of seniors, four heads and drawings.

One bright colored decorative design is a study in color and was derived from a banana plant, and two larger all-over designs on linoleum, one of black and red and the other of yellow and brown were done by seniors.

Three glass windows in the lower hallway of the Education building hold the industrial arts exhibit which has been on display all F. S. C. W. Week Due to lack the space, this exhibit, under the management of Ann Sasna, could not be as large and fabulous as the annual May exhibit, but it is representative, nevertheless, of the progress made in the industrial art classes.

Articles for review the jewelry, pottery and weaving display. Here are two Indian toby jugs with glazed finishes, some Mexicans and early Indian painted pottery. Built up by coil method, and a piece of cracked ware, pottery break-outs and smaller pieces of pottery ornaments

A lunchroon set of green and yellow plaid, edged in green, is displayed and a blue and white fine linen luncheon runner were woven on hand looms.

The second window contains the basket exhibit with a black and white heavy, cotton cord rug hung in the background.

The baskets are of various shapes and materials. Some are made of reed; some of pine needles. Some are dyed; some painted in designs and a glass with a pine cone for a handle. All

Continued on page two

Marjorie Rauleson Defeats Phil Asher

Final Ballot

Executive Council of C. G. A. and Publications
Freshman Adviser

Phil Asher 139
Marjorie Rauleson 789

Treasurer

Frances Lewis 495
Elisabeth Perry 344

First Vice President

Rebecca Ashton 275
Winifred Ewart 589

Second Vice President

Katherine Autrey 488
Betty Hatch 411

Secretary

Katherine Graham 847
Frances Slade 321

Editor of Flambeau

Evelyn Fisher 512
Pearle Bradford 221

Editor of Distaff

Arline Lockhart 203
Sarah Sealey 646
Business Manager of Distaff

Nell Colvin 446
Mary Elizabeth Parker 374

Tenth Annual AAUW Session Is Scheduled

Dr. Julia Heil Heinlein And Dr. Tilt to Be Local Delegates

The tenth national convention of the American Association of University Women will meet in Savannah, Georgia, March 18-18, by Julia Heil Heinlein, president of the Tallahassee branch has just announced. Dr. Heinlein, Dr. Jennie Tilt and Dr. Annie Popper are the delegates from the local branch.

The theme of the convention for this year is "Education — the Foundation for Social Organization." Among the speakers who will appear on the program are Dr. Mida Cline, president of Sweet Briar college and president of the American Association of University Women; Dr. Mary R. Beard, historian and national leader in women's educational groups; Dr. Harold Laswell, professor of political science, University of Chicago; Dr. Katherine J. Gallagher, professor of history, Goucher college; and the effect of the fellowship awards committee of the national organization of university women; Dr. William Ernest Hocking, professor of philosophy, Harvard university; Mrs. Helen M. Lynd, social science faculty, Sarah Lawrence college; and Lester D. Vasey college; Morse Cartwright, director of the American Association for Adult Education; and Dr. William O. Carr, director of research, Educational Policies Commission of the National Education association.

The convention will bring together representatives of the associations of 1,000,000 women organized into 7456 local branches throughout the States, and in Alaska, Hawaii, the Philippine Islands, Puerto Rico, China, Japan, and Argentina.

Education being the center of the association's activities, convention reports will include the story of the fight of local branches and state division on behalf of schools and libraries during the depression, the association's work in improving educational opportunities for women in colleges and universities, and in securing equal recognition of women with men on faculties and in student bodies.

The members of this association carry on an extensive study program, and in response to current interest in economic and governmental problems the association has undertaken a special experiment in social studies. Other departments of study include education and standards and child welfare, child development and education for family life, international relations, and the arts. As the association also provides opportunities for gifted women through the award of research fellowships, the Savannah convention will celebrate progress in raising a million-dollar endowment fund for purpose Contributions bringing

Continued on Page Two

Lewis, Ewart, Autrey And Graham Chosen C. G. A. Officers

FISHER, SEALEY ARE NEW EDITORS

Nell Colvin is Elected Business Manager Flastacowo

Defeating Phil Asher, by a vote of 789 to 139, for the position of freshman advisor, Marjorie Rauleson won the most important office of College Government association in the final balloting of major officers and positions which came to a close last night. Betty Outland and Louise Gehan were elected earlier in the week by unanimous vote for the positions of president of student body and chairman of judiciary, respectively.

Lewis Defeats Pierce

In the other contests for college government offices Frances Lewis defeated Elisabeth Pierce for the treasurership by a vote of 495 to 344; Winifred Ewart won over Rebecca Ashton for vice president by a poll of 589 to 275; Katherine Autrey won over Betty Hatch for second vice president by a slight margin of 488 to 411, and Katherine Graham defeated Frances Slade for position of secretary by a vote of 847 to 321.

Evelyn Fisher triumphed over Pearle Bradford in the race for editorship of the Flambeau, by a vote of 512 to 221, for editorship of the Flambeau. Sarah Sealey will be the next editor of the Distaff, defeating Arline Lockhart by a vote of 646 to 203. In the only other publications' contest Nell Colvin won over Mary Elizabeth Parker for editorship of the Distaff from Mary Emily Parker, the vote being 446 to 374. Mary Colvin had been unanimously elected earlier business manager of the Flambeau, while both Eileen Robinson as editor and Sallie Burt Thomas as business manager had been given a unanimous vote for their offices on the Flastacowo.

Follow Week's Activity

These elections followed more than a week of activity in the nominations having taken place a week ago Wednesday in a special convocation program. However, these elections concerned only the major offices, the final polling for minor positions to take place next week Last Tuesday the names of nominees appeared in the Flambeau, accompanied by certain policies and Tuesday the primary voting took place.

Never before in the history of the college have the two major offices, those of president of student body and chairmen of judiciary been unopposed. Sunday morning's convocation was marked by the unanimous election of these two officers to office by the addition of Marjorie Rauleson's

Continued on Page Two

Inter-College Debaters Meet

William and Mary College Group Will Compete With Local Team

The first inter-collegiate debate in the history of Florida State College for Women will be held tomorrow night when a team composed of Betty Wynn and Nell Colvin will meet the girls' debating team from William and Mary college at 7:45 o'clock in the Augusta Conradi Little Theater.

The question to be debated at this time is "Resolved: That Congress should be empowered to provide for minimum wages and maximum hours." This debate will climax weeks of extensive study on the part of the Florida debate team which includes the formation of a plan whereby such legislation may be successfully worked out. The chairman of the team is Phil Asher.

William and Mary's team, composed of Miss Betty Bartell and Miss Edna Howell, will arrive on the campus Saturday morning Saturday afternoon the members of the visiting team will be entertained with an informal tea at the Kappa Alpha house with members of the home team acting as hostesses.

Rulings About Summer School Housing Made

Gilchrist, Broward And Bryan Dormitories Will Be Used

Three halls, Bryan, Broward, and Gilchrist will be open for this year's Summer School session, according to information issued from the president's office.

Bryan Hall has been reserved for graduates and mature students. Graduate students will be placed on the main floor of Bryan Hall and mature students on the first and third floors. Special privileges will be granted those living in this hall.

Broward and Gilchrist Halls have been reserved for undergraduates. Other students may live here, however, if they wish, but students living in these halls must conform to all college regulations.

Twenty-three single rooms are available in Broward and Gilchrist Halls at the same price as a double room, that is $4.00 for this session.

Other rooms in these halls will be available for students who wish to occupy a larger room alone, at the price of $14.00 for the session.

Students reserving space in the residence halls for Summer School must deposit $3.00 as a guarantee that the space will be occupied. When the room reserved is occupied by the student, her account is credited with the amount of the fee. If after paying the $3.00 deposit for room reservation, the student finds it impossible to attend Summer School, the amount will be refunded after Mar 15.

Students who are in college now, the second semester of 1936-37, and remain in Broward Hall or Gilchrist Hall, may retain their present rooms for the 1937 Summer School.

The $4.00 is payable in the college bank, 209 Westcott building. Upon payment of the $3.00 the student is given a card to take to the definite room assignment to Miss Jessie McKinney, secretary to the president, room 212 Westcott building.

Tenth Annual AAUW Session Is Scheduled

Continued from Page One

the conference to cover a total of that sum will be reported at the meeting.

Historical Savannah, with its famous old squares and institutions, the ante-bellum plantations of the country estate, and the old slave huts, would supply opportunities for sight-seeing. At Charleston, South Carolina, only a short distance from Savannah, are the Magnolia gardens and the Middleton gardens, famous for their azales and magnolia gardens.

Wright Leads Peace Study for Campaign

Continued from Page One

that another such disaster will face us in the very near future, and that no really effective educational work will be carried out this year."

Mr. Wright has been re-organizing the local E. P. C. group to be started on this campus in December. During his stay here he supervised student discussion groups and worked with faculty members. In the student group he has set up what he calls a "three point program:" first, the group will meet once a week for a period of study of present problems and situations; second, a period of work in the group and with students on campus directly concerned with legislative action and study, and third, work with off-campus and town people.

The business of the Campaign he explained is to work particularly with "X" which stands for mass ignorance, mass fear, mass selfishness, and mass lack of imagination."

This 'X' factor is a tremendously alarming thing, and it makes it impossible for us to sit still physically or mentally." was Mr. Wright's reply when asked when he planned to return to Columbia to complete his master's degree.

"Somebody has got to do this job. If certain elements in Europe continue to follow-out their present path, and if certain elements we have been watching for make their appearance in this country—of Europe and Asia were again really on the brink of a far reaching conflict—I suppose I'd be foolish enough to speed another year in it. A degree won't do me any good if I'm dead."

"It certainly is true," he went on, "that one of the reasons situations have always resulted in war is that no one realized it until it happened and then it was too late to do anything. The chances are we are going to have another one. Six thousand years of recorded history have proved that. But I think we can stop it—or at least hold it off until some

Vernacular of Shakespeare Has Struck Campus As "Zounds" and "Go to" Replace Modern Slang

BY NANCY ROGERO

"Zounds, sweet, What Was it not a fine performance!"

"Yes, Cor. Sirrah, methinks never fairer flower of Verona bloomed than Norma Shearer And Foxcroft, is she not a great actress?"

"Go to, friend, Mercutio stole the show."

"Young Romeo did betake his part in filting manner, think ye not?"

"True. In all, as eruthwie said, 'twas a splendid performance."

The vernacular of the great bard of Stratford has struck campus. "Zounds" has replaced "shucks" as a mild epithet. Students declare their reclations in interrogations, attempting to explain the emotional response, the perception or light, or the development of the present-day educational system in terms now obsolete. Professors, too, have been infected. Even the radio waves have been spiced with a Shakespearean flavor.

And all because "Romeo and Juliet" was shown over the week-end! Yes, it was a meaningful event it was for many. Shakespearian teachers and students revived in the joy of watching their beloved characters speak the lines which have meant so much to lovers since the Bard of Avon first wrote of the struggles of the son of the house of Montague and the daughter of the house of Capulet.

Sorority sisters were seen sobbing unashamedly in sympathetic shoulders.

"Isn't it beautiful?" they whispered to one another, shining copiously. Some stayed through spelled "Wreck."

Allowances were made even for the "Hollywoodisms," whose members trooped joyfully into town for the day. Only the imaginary producer was left on campus to bemoan the fact they would have to await a return showing of "The great love story of the ages."

The library reports an increase in the number of borrowers cards. Both before and after seeing the movie, students have asked for "Romeo and Juliet," "Romeo and Juliet," "Shakespeare's Romeo and Juliet."

"Wherefore art thou, Romeo?" "Parting is such sweet sorrow," "A rose by any other name would smell as sweet" are more oftteachers and students reveled in the joy of watching their beloved

Co-Ed Campus Would Demand Many Changes

Girls Would Play Second Fiddle if G-Men Joined Them

BY MARY NOBLE

Let your imagination run riot for a few minutes and picture if you can Florida State College as it would be if made co-ed and the opposite sex were to be suddenly moved en masse to Tallahassee.

Instead of a girl-filled campus where man is a strange sight, there would be a campus filled with boys, many of whom would be wearing the famed rat-cage. Classes would be full of men. Half of them would outshine us in recitation, and the other half might spend their time responding to the impressing nearly all of the girls would be trying to impress them. Some few girls would be so absorbed in their studies that they would be unaware of the male talent around.

The campus would have a very different aspect from its present one. The fraternity houses would stretch to the north of Jennie Murphree. All of them would seem so far away because of the distance to the students. The law college would be tucked in behind the education building, and the old science building would perhaps be beside it. The three fraternities, Sigma and Sparr, and the Sweet Shop would probably have more competition and a business.

The dining room would be a problem. With boys in every place the girls wouldn't have a chance, except the fortunate ones with a chivalrous brute-lover to save them some. Then, too, the boys' appetites would be greater than ours, and we would either have to fight for what we got or starve.

The Odd-Even games would be placed in the background by intercollegiate sports, particularly football. Girls' athletics would of subordinated to masculine sports.

In politics we would also play second fiddle. No doubt the men would run the campus and due to the time-honored belief in the superiority, and thereby much feminine ability would remain hidden. Most girls would not develop the independence by which Florida State College students are now characterized, leaving the important males to take care of them.

Fraternity houses would be scattered between the seventeen sorority houses. There are two nice lots on south Copeland street

Dr. Conradi And Daughter to Entertain

Continued from Page One

White, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Register, Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Brooks.

The members of the faculty and staff of the Florida State College for Women, Mrs. J. N. Boles, Rockefeller Gilliland, Mrs. T. R. Crosier, Mrs. Nina Horne, Mrs. Peace Palmer, Mrs. C. S. Lanier, Mrs. B. I. Scott, Mrs. Julia Johnson, Mrs. Laura P. McMullen, Mrs. Agnes Perkins, Mrs. B. K. Marshall, Mrs. Edna E. Clough, Mrs. Pauline Grant, Mrs. Kate DeMilly, Mrs. Grace Gibson, and Mrs. Elizabeth Timberlake.

really effective education has taken place. The object of the campaign is to establish a concerted public opinion against participation in war and to adopt preventive legislation before it is too late.

Exhibits in Library, Botany, Art Department Show Growth of College

Continued from page one

have either Indian or original designs.

Metal work and dyed scarfs are exhibited in the third window. The two balds have their original designs made by covering the parts not to be dyed with wax each time the article is plunged into the dye.

The metal works displayed include a beaten out pewter plate with a cut design, two metal boxes with sorority seals designed on the covers, and two silver bracelets, one with a Greek design, the other with a beaten design.

The leather exhibit, placed in the botany laboratory, shows in a case a number of fossils, while on the wall are several specimens of the plants of different types. On one side are numerous pictures of fossil and other potted growing plants. On the back wall hangs Gloria Embrey's paintings of flowers.

For the library exhibit, in the main lobby of the library, pictures are shown a number of pictures of the paintings of former years. Here are shown the original water-color. College avenue before 1915, when the Carnegie Science building is now located, the old Westcott building, Doyle and Old West Hall, situated on the grounds as it presently appears.

In the center case are many momentos of former years. "The Florida Flambeau" dated 1907, Distaff, and an issue of the Argo, the literary magazine of that period. In the center is featured an old diploma as given in 1887. An old catalogue of the college is presented, with other phampiets and a business section of the Flambeau.

In the back case are pictures of groups of former years, such as old snapshots of students, of the faculty, some about the campus, and various club organizations.

Marjorie Rauleson Defeats Phil Asher

Continued from Page One

name to the list of nominees for freshman advisor.

Wednesday night the other unopposed candidates were given a unanimous vote. At this time candidates for the final voting were selected and allowed to give short campaign speeches, following which questions concerning their qualifications and policies were asked by members of the student body.

Candidates, the names of which will be declared this week-end to be considered for the minor elections Tuesday will be presented in convocation that day. These offices include those of representative to judicious board chairman, of-campus committee, chairman of off-campus committee and officers of the Athletic association. There will be no primary election for the offices.

Polling Places Same

The polls will be situated in the same places as those of the other elections. Polls will be open for voting from 1:30 to 8 o'clock in the afternoon and from 7:30 to 8:30 o'clock at night.

Another important election to be carried on that day is for several orfices of Y. W. C. A. Martha on which the A. T. O.'s could move their bones around. Tallahassee itself would benefit from the addition of 2,000 boys. Public life State and Ritz would have midnight shows, but no doubt we girls would still have to be in by second light flash, and would thereby not be able to attend.

At any rate, with the incorporation of the University of Florida and Florida State College, it is probable that the enrollment of girls would increase, and the size of grades decrease.

Aches, Pains Originate In Rec's Dances

Many Girls Are Wrecked By Nightly Sessions At Rough Sport

BY RUTH ATKINSON

"Rec" should rightfully spelled "Wreck."

That's what we are when we come out. We go in to dance; we stay to be trampled on; and we leave to save our lives.

Rights after we finish dinner (if the desert is prune whip, we usually skip that) we proceed to the recreation hall to hop, skip, and jump until our stomach's are thrown into a state of confusion. We take punishment: our pet corns are trampled upon; our bad cases of "Tallahassee Heel" and "Calmeville feet" are ruthlessly mistreated; our headaches are increased by the pounding of the piano and shouted conversation of the students: our chins, eyes, and noses get hit with elbows or scrabbled by fingernails. Nothing is sacred to the dancers.

We stand in a daze while couples whirl by us. We're gratified if they don't run without colliding with us. Orlando sharp, Miami lurch, and Columbia bow are all represented. They hit us, rebound, and hit us again. Excuses are mumbled, or smiles loosed back over shoulders. Everything is "fine" everyone enjoying into the spirit of "taking it" and "dishing it out."

Slowly we wear that blissful look with their eyes closed (that's where they danced two steps without being hit); some girls grit their teeth (that's when they were being stepped on); some girls have that worn-out look (that's their arm is being pumped up and down in time to the music); one girls merely looks bored (these are the ones we can't do anything about it).

The floor is crowded it is practically impossible to move without hitting some part of somebody. On the other hand, we don't dare stand still or we're in danger of all three and four sides at once. A favorite game at "Rec" is to see how close two couples can be without hitting one another. Usually there is a miscalculation by someone and bang! —we're together again.

Some dancers believe in the strangle-hold; this is brought about by the leader placing her right arm under the left arm of her partner and then grasping her by the back of the neck. Others believe in the touch system of dancing: this is the system by which the leader places the tip of the fingers of her right hand in the middle of her partner's back. Some say that her partner will understand that pressure by the second finger means stop." Still others believe in the pika-sack method; this is accomplished by standing way over in a far corner of the room, preferably behind a bench, and tapping the left foot gently in time to the music. Any of these methods are ways to dance are all illustrated.

Some of us become quite adept at the art of dodging others. We grin and bear it. Afterwards we always ask ourselves "why" we went—and yet the next night we go again.

Strained arm muscles from playing tennis, tired backs from rowing, and sore extremeties from horse-back riding are as nothing when compared to the bruises and tired muscles acquired during one night of becoming "wrecks" at "Rec."

Party and Faculty Ball Game Planned

On Friday, March 12 at 7:45 o'clock a party will be held in the big gymnasium under the auspices of the W. A. A.

Students are invited to attend and are asked to bring faculty members and visitors. There will be games and dancing throughout the evening and plans are being made for a faculty volley ball game.

New Language Club Informal Program With French Songs, Games

The newly organized French club held its regular meeting last Wednesday at 4:30 o'clock in Broward Lounge. A program of French songs was presented and several French games were played.

The purpose of the club is to give students an opportunity to use the French language in other ways besides classroom conversation. First year students as well as those more advanced in the study of the language are invited to attend.

No special programs will be arranged, but at each meeting new French songs and games will be learned. Whether or not officers will be elected is to be decided at the next meeting which will be held at 4:30 Wednesday afternoon. The place of meeting will be posted later on the French bulletin board in the Honors building and the lower floor of the Administration building. Miss Marie de Davis is sponsor of the group.

David Cushman Coyle Speaks Of Building for Prosperity

Says Supreme Skepticism Ought to Be Taught By Professors

By BLANTON BARRETT

"I am delighted," said David Cushman Coyle, who last night lectured in the Augusta Conradi Little theater on the topic, "Building for Prosperity," "to see the students of America thrashing out national problems while they are still in college. They must try out their minds before they are launched into society and are presented with the actual problems of government to masticate."

Mr. Coyle, who is the author of the book "Brass Tacks", an economic work for college students, and of "Uncommon Sense," which contains the same information as "Brass Tacks" but is written in "plain American," believes that the ancient platitude, "The hope of the future lies in the children of the country" is absolutely correct.

"You see," he explained, "if we older fellows get the world into anything remotely resembling a working condition, if we can get it to moving along without hitches, that are too great, the work of the civilization of America can really be begun by those who are in college now."

"The Scandinavian countries are those nearest to an actual economic civilization," he said. "Those people are more socially sentimental than we are that they will let go of their traditions if they are made to see that the latter interfere with their social well-being But then, they've been at this economic re-adjustment for a thousand years, while we've had only a few centuries of progress."

The only thing that the college professors of economics can teach their pupils of today that will be of use to them tomorrow is, according to Mr. Coyle, a supreme skepticism of everything they read and are taught. Inadequacies are being disproved every day, and it is impossible to say what the economic world of tomorrow will be.

While writing his book "Uncommon Sense" Mr Coyle visited a village on the Maine coast. "I was writing a book on a technical subject for a lay public, so I thought it wisest to go where I could find a typical American audience. Niehi about as village people would come to the house and I spent the time listening to the new chapters of the book. It was most interesting to hear their comments on how much some parts of the book resembled the principles set forth in the New or Old Testaments," he declared. "Those New Englanders may be ignorant of a few subjects, but they certainly are acute churchgoers, and from their comments on the book, they certainly know what is supposed to have gone on during Biblical times."

Freshman Fete Will Conclude Special Week

Continued from Page One

Kay, Janice Borton, Beth Deane, Mary Carr Strickland, Dorothy Ramsey, Myrvin Everett, MarJorie Tillis, Polly Eveleth, Mary Miller, Hilda Sowells, Nancy Bodell and Katherine Graham.

LINDEN'S WEEK END VALUE SCOOP!

—FRIDAY AND SATURDAY—

SPRING FASHION LEADERS

Smart New COATS and SUITS

$8.95

Made to Sell Up to $14.90.

CASUAL AND DRESS TYPE COATS.

Jigger and Mannish Tailored Suits The kind boy you will get this season. SIZES 12 TO 44.

Use Our Convenient LAY-AWAY PLAN.

Linden's FASHION SHOPPE

Distaff Plans Are Announced

Special Freshman Section To Offer Awards For Class Writers

The deadline for contributions to the third issue of the Distaff is Monday, March 8, according to Daisy Parker, editor. The magazine will be released at the end of the third quarter.

In an effort to further literary exchange between the University of Florida and Florida State College, there will appear in the next issue an editorial by a Gainesville student.

Miss Parker also announced that the issue will contain a freshman feature section for the first time. Any type of writting may be contributed.

The award for the best writing in the freshman section will be in honor of O. K. Chesterton's "mini-biography," besides the regular prizes awarded each quarter.

Astronomy Group Hears Caldwell on Religion, Stars at Club Meeting

"Religion Among the Stars" was discussed by Dr. Edward Caldwell at the Economics club meeting Wednesday night.

Dr. Caldwell's talk was based on a review of the book "Cosmos" by Alex Haley, in which the author, Joseph Seiss, traces the story of the Bible through interpreting the meaning of the names of some of the stars and constellations named by the Arabs 6000 years ago.

Next Wednesday night in Administration building, the Astronomy club will hold its next meeting, which will be a group meeting followed by radio observations.

Club Meets Wednesday To Discuss Heidelberg

The old town of Heidelberg with its famous castle and university formed the nucleus of the German club program held Wednesday afternoon at 5:30.

The speakers on this topic were: Anita Ragan, who described the castle; Mary Margaret Pfeiffer, who talked on the university; and Mr. Rosenthal who discussed student prints.

Faculty Senate to Meet

The faculty senate's monthly meeting, which was postponed this week because several faculty members were out-of-town giving talks in connection with F. S. C. W. Week, will meet next Wednesday.

Speaker Gives Way To Help Economic Ill

Continued from Page One

least, expect and hope that we have a great world market, but I sincerely as we try that some foreign power will get into a war, cut off trade routes and eventually embroil us into strife. For this reason I advocate American production for the American people."

"What will be the effects of national action?" was asked the lecturer. If we are intelligent we will arrive at methods which will make democracy work. A democracy need to look abroad to find out how to run a democracy. For 150 years of experience the United States should know more than to get its high powered technological system. Mr. Coyle believes that, with the growth of public understanding and interest, the country may be able to get a clear and effective plan for prosperity

Sports Squints

By RUTH ATKINSON

The convocation program Tuesday night gave us a good idea in moving pictures of what the school athletes of by-gone days looked like. Anyway we've come up a step in these times by doing away with dumb-bells (at least of the wooden kind) in favor of basket balls and such.

In that same convocation we learned that the girls had a hockey team in those days, but the school wouldn't give them any grass for the field. How times have changed! Now we have grass for the field, but find it impossible to get enough girls out for the sport to make up four full class teams.

Looks like we'll be getting some of that good old spirit from the "F" club pretty soon now and a chance for them to try out their new system of initiation on a "more personal basis." Yesterday a group of the club members wearing their white sweaters with the gold "F" letters marched in the dining room during lunch and tapped two sophomores and four freshmen for club membership. Anytime now we can expect some queer stunts to be pulled by the goats at the demands of the esteemed members, unless the new goating system has changed the methods used in the past. Congratulations, anyway to the six goats.

The exhibition of class work in dancing presented as part of F. S. C. W. Week Wednesday afternoon, was really enjoyable. Even though the girls had a hard time keeping their huge straw hats on their heads and out of their faces, during the American numbers, they put their dances across in a big way, and caused a lot of laughs by their frantic clutches at their former head-gear.

Charlotte Kamper shooting for the Episcopal team hit the high mark in the intra-mural archery tournament this week with a total of 360. When she sets her mark she must be pretty sure she can make a hit, and that's a blessed thing to know in any man's language.

Florida State has been asked by Rollins College to participate in a play day for the university women of Florida. The tentative date has been set for March 13, pending the approval of Southern, Stetson, Tampa, and Miami. Although the plans are indefinite as yet, Miss Montgomery has said that the five senior gym majors will be Florida State's representatives at Rollins, if the plans are carried out.

Once more Odd-Even spirit is going on a rampage. This time diamond ball is the sport that will allow girls to let off excess energy and air their team feeling. Even team practices are Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays at 4:30; and Odd team practices are Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays at 4:30. And while we're on the subject of Odd-Even rivalry, we might add that the team swimming practices are also going right along in the way they should go. You would-be Katie Rawls' watch the Flambeau for announcement of the practice periods.

With warm weather sneaking up on us and almost a feeling of Spring in the air, we're expecting any time now for the orgy of sun baths to start again as they do every year. That's the time when we have to step carefully every time we go out for fear of steping on one of our best friends who's trying to get a sun tan.

Freshman Aquatic Meet To Be Held Next Week; Regulations Announced

The swimming regulations for the freshman swimming meet to be held March 12, at 8 o'clock are as follows: the general pool regulations; no academic requirements except all passing grades; "A" or "B" health for speed events and "A," "B" or "C" health for form events, and four practices. The pool is open for practice from 4:30 until 5:30 o'clock Monday through Friday and from 11:30 until 12:30 Saturday. An entrant may sign a regular swim make-up card stating that it is a freshman swimming meet practice. Any regular freshman swimming class may count as a practice and it is signed for in the same way. A girl may enter only two speed events and three form events.

The list and order of events are as follows: (1) 25 yard free style-speed, (2) side stroke-form, (3) 25 yard back crawl-speed, (4) back stroke-form, (5) 25 yard English racing-speed, (6) single overarm-form, (7) diving-required run front, run back and three optional-form; (8) apple race-speed.

Students Form Swimming Club, Set Requisites

Scholastic Average And Tests Are Required For Membership

The purpose of the Tarpon club, a new organization formed for the benefit of girls interested in swimming, is to teach the protection of self and others, to develop in the individual an interest in swimming which will continue through college and afterwards, to make students realize through knowledge and mastery of skills and techniques the social and moral values inherent in activity, to add enjoyment through attracting the swimmers together in promoting better swimming and in doing research work in water stunts and games.

A meeting was held Wednesday afternon to explain to girls interested in the Tarpon club, its purpose and the entrance requirements.

These requirements will be: a "C" average on the semester, "A" or "B" health, to pass either the swimming or diving tests, and a two-thirds vote of the active members.

Swimming test requirements are: crawl, grade-9, endurance-20 lengths of any stroke; advance side stroke, grade-9, endurance-4 lengths; back crawl, grade-8 endurance-4 lengths; breast stroke, grade-9, endurance-4 length; sculling, ability to do; edge of pool dive, grade 9; surface dive,grade-9; standing front dive, and running dive, ability to do. Five of the deep water handstand, shadow swimming, log rolling, submarine swimming, porpoise swimming, twin roll, and back roll.

Requirements for the diving test are: standing front dive, running front dive or swan dive, jack knife dive, back dive, and surface dive. Any two of the following with a grade of 5 or 6 are required: front flip, back flip, pike, half twist, back jack, and front one and a half. The swimming requirements to accompany the divng requirements with a grade of 9 are: front crawl, side stroke, and either a back stroke or breast stroke.

The pool is open to girls who wish to practice for these requirements in order to become members. Tests will be given the week following Easter vacation. The first ten girls having the highest scores will be the charter members. Instructors in the Physical Education department will grade the girls who wish to become members.

Mexico Class Distinction More Evident

Lewis Tells Experiences He Encountered During Trip

By JANET PIERCE

There is great deal more class distinction in Mexico than in America, according to Dr. Leland Lewis, who with Mrs. Lewis, Miss Issel McKinnell and Miss Helen Lastra spent some time in Mexico last summer.

The contrast between the rich and poor is striking and is much more extreme than in our own country. Really rich people live most luxuriously and exclusively, whereas the poorest class, the peons, barely exist in destitution. Some of these people live in cave-like dwellings made from pieces of tin and are desperate for food enough to live. They can be help- but not supported by the lottery system of the government.

Most of the Mexican people can be put into one of four classes: the sxtremely rich, the professionall or upper middle class, the laborers, and the poverty stricken peons. The lower classes seem to make a desperate effort for a living. They sell their farm products and wares to whomever they may at any chance they can make. Carried over from the old Aztec tribes is their custom of aathering in market places to sell their wares.

Mexican girls our own age, if they are not already married, lead quite a sheltered lifa. The Mexican people have a wonderful way of withdrawing from the outside world behind their barred windows and closed courts. There is in the old Mexican families an exclusiveness and reserve, a clinging to the old way of life, but yet there is curiosity and a desire to know of the changing system and to taste a newer way of living.

Dr. Lewis tells of inviting to go to dinner and tha theatre with their party Senorita Carmen, a Mexican lady of about thirty-five, yet unmarried, at whose home they had been for about two weeks. He waived aside her protestations, and although very hesitant Senorita Carmen seemed happy to go. The program at the theatre was from 10 'till 12 o'clock, and on their return some time later Senorita Carmen's elder brother, who had been waiting for them, seemed quite perturbed and disapproving.

Only a short time ago Mexican girls were extremely sheltered and protected. Courting used to be done with the girl on a balcony and her suitor in the court-yard, but authorities say now that these customs are breaking down. The Mexican girl has a little more freedom now and it looks as if this fredom would increase.

The proprietor of the leading hotel at Pachuca, Mexico, the city containing the largest silver mine in the world, in reply to Dr. Lewis' inquiry as to where to park their car, said he would have it driven into the dining room after 9 o'clock.

Another example of the extreme courtesy of these people occurred on their arrival at Mexico City. After getting some money exchanged at the largest national bank in the city, Helen Lastra, who was a former Spanish major at this college, asked the bank president for directions to Escula de Verano. He volunteered to escort them to the school himself, and the surprise of the Lewis party was even greater when an hour later, having finished enrolling, they were met at the door by this same genial man, who suggested that he help Dr. Lewis secure a driver's license.

At the Escuela de Verano, which is part of the National University, the four took work of varied character. One of the outstanding men they had the privilege of studying under was Dr. Beteta, who corresponds to our secretary of state. Dr. Beteta, a sociologist, educated at the University of Texas, typifies the modern social system in Mexico. His views seem extreme at first glance but are convincing and logical after explanation and study. According to the opinion of many circles in Mexico City, Dr. Beteta will in all probability be the next president of the Republic.

The new order in Mexico is extremely socialistic. An incident such as the president's choice of a home will suggest to what extent some of the conventional aristocratic practices are giving way to newer democratic ones. The presidents of the Republic have always lived in tha magnificent castle of Chautepultepec heights, built by the great Maximillian, bnt Cardena, the first president refusing to live in this luxurious dwelling, has choosen a modest home.

In the hotel at Pachuca the lack of servants was evidenced. The proprietor explained that the law allows workers of this character to be absent at least two days a week on full pay, and that they may return and take back their jobs after as long an absence as twenty-nine days. It was evident that this privilege at least in some places was being abused.

The Lewis party was among the first to travel the great national highway to Mexico City. Bridges had been decorated and the road swept free of pebbles in honor of President Cardena and his party, who were going north to meet an American motorcade at Loreda and escort them to Mexico City. At Baila the Lewises met the president's party going north to Loredo, and President Cardena, seeing Miss McKinnell was trying to get a picture waived aside his aides and posed for a close up, with the remark "That's certainly sweet of you."

While waiting the arrival of the president's party they enjoyed exchanging English for Spanish words with girls of the Baila High school basketball team. These girls showed great interest m the Americans, especially one young thing who would take hold of Dr. Lewis' ear, nose, or necktie saying in Spanish, "How do you say this in English?"

Sports Practices Are Progressing

Can you run with the speed of an antelope?

If you can, then you're just the person that is needed out on the field. Diamond ball is taking the place of baseball this year. The odd team practices Monday, Wednesday, and Friday at 3:30, and the Even's practice Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday at the same time. The leaders of the two teams are: Hilda Spradlin, Even, and Hasel Viertel, Odd.

Swimming practice has also begun, swimming being one of the major sports at this time of the year. Girls are to swim at any plunge period from 4:30 to 5:15 any afternoon. Each girl is to sign up the same as she would for any regular make-up work. On the card she is to designate whether she is Odd or Even, and she should list the events in which she plans to participate. The captains of the two teams are: Janet Cook, Even, and Sara Hethcox, Odd.

Kamper Takes Archery Match

Shuffleboard, Ping Pong Matches to Be Held In Near Future

With Charlotte Kamper of the Episcopal team as high scorer, the intra-mural archery tournament ended Wednesday afternoon, leaving table tennis and shuffleboard matches still to be played.

Charlottee took first honors with a score of 360. Second place was captured by Mary Ellen Lovelace, member of Alpha Xi Delta, with 315 points. Next to her came Annie Laurie Polk, Kappa Alpha Theta, with a total of 298.

The tournament was played off Friday, Monday, and Wednesday afternoons. Organizations entered as many participants as they wished, each girl shooting one Columbia round.

Those competing included: Mary Ellen Lovelace, Helen Brown, and Fay Corey, Alpha Xi Delta; Sara Lytle, Beth Daane, and Betty Hatch, Spirogira; Connie Wallis, Sophomore council; Julia Rosser, Virginia Makemson, Reynolds; Barbara Moore and Jeanne Webster, Kappa Delta; Louise Gehan and Betty Ostlund, Esteren; Janet Jewett, Winifred Ewart, Polly Anna White, Betty Wynn, and Lillian Taylor, Phi Phi; Betty Booser and Lois Woodward, Phi Mu; Katherine Bacon, Betty Bernreuter, Charlotte, Kamper, and Sally Ratliff, Episcopal; Dot Barr, Lillian Burford, Margaret Schmidli, Frances Price, Kappa Alpha Theta; Anita Jaekel, Mary Manning, Wilda Finlayson, Chi Omega; Yvonne Marchesseau and Sidney Moore, Newman club; and Virginia Taylor and Martha Lester, Presbyterian.

Some Say Girls Spend Half of Lives Powdering Noses But This Happens Here Only on Week-ends

Someone once asid that a girl spends at least half of her life powdering her nose.

However, we'll venture to say that this applies to the girls on our campus only during the week-ends. With the approach of Friday nights, girls can be seen hurrying back and forth from beauty shops with their hair plastered closely about their ears. Best dresses are dug out of the back of the closet, high heels swing into view, and powder boxes reign.

Cars line the streets and the whole campus is alive with the chatter of week-end plans. Deep throated masculine laughter mingles with feminine giggles to add to the noise and excitement. Even the social directors have their share of the confusion answering telephones and seeing that messages are delivered promptly.

If there happens to be a sorority or class dance Saturday night, programs flutter from hand to hand with imploring speeches of "do dance with him—he's the cutest thing."

Sunday morning finds her dressing rapidly to attend church, and during the sermon she wonders whether she will eat as usual in the dining room or might he ask her out to dinner.

The picture shows are crowded and girls and their dates saunter up and down the hill to town.

But as lightflash bids adieu to the week-end, books again come into the limelight. The library is filled with those who are trying to catch up with their neglected week-end assignments, and dances and shows are pushed into the background.

The high heels find their way into the darkest recesses of the closet and are replaced by the old brown oxfords, while the new spring dress gives way to the weekly uniform of skirt and blouse.

Forum to Discuss Peace

N. S. F. A. forum program Tuesday night will be based on discussion of "honor." The meeting which begins at 7:45 o'clock will be held in 203 Administration building.

Dance Program Displays Work Done In Classes

Demonstration is Given As Campus Activity For FSC Week

Members of the folk, modern, and tap dance groups gave their presentation of classwork, as a part of campus F. S. C. W. activities Wednesday afternoon to the gymnasium.

The program was arranged by Miss Nellie Bond Dickinson, instructor of the modern and tap dance groups.

Several members of the folk dancing class, under the direction of Miss Eunice Hurd, contributed to the first part of the program. They gave three Danish dances: "Vippen," "Napoleon," and "Little Man in a Fix," and two American dances: "Soldides Joy," and "Pop Goes to Weasel."

Members of the beginning class in Modern Dance gave a study in accent using distorted walks, and two dance techniques put into dance form. The extra curricular class also gave a dance technique put into dance form.

The advanced class, composed of the group of dancers that are are to attend the convention in Texas the last of March, presented the pre-classic dance forms in three dances.

The "Gavotte' was a brisk lively dance that originated among the peasants of France. It was introduced at the French Court in the sixteenth century where it lost most of its rustic character and became formal and artificial.

The second dance was called the "Pavane." It was a dance of gravity, splendor, pride and ceremonious dignity whose origin was in the austere court life of Spain. The "Gigue" was a direct contrast to the "Pavene;" it was extremely light, airy, and fantastic.

The beginner's class in tap dancing gave original compositions to "Pop Goes the Weasel." The advanced class presented dances b ythe titles of: 'Loafin'," "On Parade,' and "Whiskbroom Blues.'

Expenses Cut By Existence Of Tool Shop

Psychology Department Constructs Own Material

By MARIAN PURVIANCE

A cross between a modern machine shop and the old family tool room is what the psychology tool shop looks like to a person visiting it for the first time.

The tool shop, whose existence is unknown to the majority of F. S. C. W. students, is located on the top floor of the Education building, and it is here that most of the material used in psychology experiments is constructed. The forbidding locked door leads into a large airy room, where, on closer inspection can be seen materials arranged in a system worthy of the neatest of us.

A long table on which most of the sawing and nailing is done holds a vise, and occupies the center of the room. Around the walls are shelves on which are planes, files, and both electric and hand drills. Drawers under the shelves contain hammers, saws, files, and other tools, and are labeled according to their contents.

One of the most interesting features of the room is the revolving cabinet in which are kept the nails, screws, brads, and various small tools. The square cabinet which stands about five feet tall revolves upon a small base, and contains drawers from top to bottom. The drawers are arranged in vertical rows in the cabinet, according to the tool which they contain. The tools are then arranged by size in the rows, with screws ranging from those the size of a tiny watch screw to those three inches long, and nails ranging from the smallest tacks to nails almost as large as railroad spikes.

The tool shop which is not yet completed, now contains an electric outlet, and in the near future another outlet is to be installed. An extra table to facilitate the drilling of large boards is soon to be added, as well as several cabinets.

Accordiag to Dr. Christian Paul Heinlein, professor of experimental psychology, the making of the equipment for psychology labs is a great economy for the school. Although in some of the experiments it would probably be cheaper to order the equipment already constructed, the money saved on other apparatus more than balances the expenditures.

"F" Club Taps Six New Goats

Athletic Group Honors Girls Achieving Membership

Dot Molnar, and Ruth Wilson, sophomores, Sarah Jane Stanbaugh, Lynette Thompson, Frances Fryer, and Louise Rice, freshmen were tapped for F Club membership Thursday in the dining hall.

These students have earned their F by participating in at least two Odd-Even games and two class games, and by earning at least twenty practice points during this past year.

Special dinner tables in the dining hall have been arranged for tomorrow night in honor of the "goats."

Active members of the F Club are: Hasel Viertel, president, Louise Gehan, Martha Baker, Elise Barett, Janice Borton, Viola Brooks, Janet Cook, Audrey Cooper, Beth Daane, Sarah Beth Davis, Sara Hethcox, Marie Joffre, Frances Lewis, Dorothea Marsh, Martha Makemson, Margaret Maxwell, Mary Miller, Anna Marie Mitchell, Sallie Burt Nuzum, Betty Ostlund, Kathryn Pratt, Eileen Robinson, Mildred Seekins, Ruth Snyder, Shirley Stevens, Marie Taylor, Marion Weeks, Felecia West, Fay Corey, Frances Thill, Hilda Spradlin, Valerie Hunt, Bunny Lowry, Marjorie Horton, and Evelyn Glazier.

The Florida Flambeau

EDITORIAL STAFF

RAZAN HOWARD WILLIAMS ..... Editor
MARTHA BAKER ..... Associate Editor
PEARLE SHEPARD ..... Managing Editor
EVELYN FISHER ..... News Editor

Member National Scholastic Press association and Florida Intercollegiate Press association.

DEPARTMENTS

Art, Evelyn Glanzer; Exchanges, Virginia Saxby; Features, Sarah Beth Davis; Music, Ann Hall; Society, Mary Ann Smith; Sports, Gerald Mann and Harry Beasley; Dramatic News, Christine O'Rourke; Society, Margaret Clare LaFarry and Minnie Alfreo Arnold; Assistant, Special Reporting, Arline Lockhart; Mary Lynn Mason; Sports, Ella Virginia Hunter and Mary Ann Hall.

REPORTERS: Hazel Adams Sisk, Adrienne Dorsey, Barclay Blanton Barrett, Dorothy Bellamy Pinson, Brunson, Celestine Cubadon, Kimberly, Calvary Theresa Carlisle, Glenn, Courter, Bruce Chesnutt, Virginia Hall, Margaret Gunnels, Lorena Howe, Betty Lou Ingemann, Margaret Gunnels, Lorena Howe, Betty Lou Ingemann, Lucy Kelly, Ann Ladd, Betty Leech, Martha Longshih, Anne Lubelma, Mary Frances McKay, Mary Jo Mahan, Mary Nobis, Alberta Patrick, Janet Pierce, Marion Pierce, Ann Rogers, Ann Rogers, Mary Ann Smith, Josephine Sanford, Edna Mae Stanley, Virginia Sims, Ann Warren, Frances Wesselhoeft.

BUSINESS STAFF

JULIA MOOTHER ..... Business Manager
MARY SULLIVAN ..... Circulation Mgr
MARGUERITE BROWN ..... Circulation Mgr

Represented for National Advertising by
NATIONAL ADVERTISING SERVICE, INC.
College Publishers Representative
420 Madison Ave New York, N. Y.
Chicago Boston San Francisco Los Angeles
Portland Seattle

Entered as second class mail matter January 20, 1915, at the post office at Tallahassee, Fla. under act of Congress of March 3, 1879

The Electorate Must Make a Choice

In an election yesterday when set a precedent for lack of excitement the student body elected its officers for the coming year. Earlier in the week at a student body meeting the unanimous election of unopposed candidates for the two major campus offices took place. To those who wanted the election to run smoothly the lack of squabbling over candidates was welcome. But throughout the entire election, campaign issues were particularly prominent—by their absence.

In the candidates' letters printed in the Flambeau last week only three or four people made any mention of issues other than their personal integrity and willingness to hold office, facts which the student body had considered when casting their nominations votes. In the Wednesday night speeches candidates merely emphasized statements already made in the Flambeau and failed again to mention anything which might indicate an understanding of fundamental campus problems or an interest in solving these problems.

It is true that the present system of campaigning has been in effect only for two years and that students have not had time as yet to estimate its possibilities as a piece of democratic machinery. But at the same time it is possible that student candidates may never have to present policies in order to be elected if the student body does not demand this. So far selection has been more a matter of choice of personality than of choosing the group who will work for and at the bidding of her constituents. Why this lack of campaign issues?

A brief survey of last year's election shows that those candidates who presented definite policies were in general the leaders among the defeated. This year's candidates are not to be blamed therefore for not presenting a program of procedure to be followed if elected. It is good politics here to refer to matters of past service, character, willingness, and so forth and to shy from any mention of possible action once in office.

But this point of view must and will change as the campus electorate becomes more and more conscious of its place in the governmental system. It must change if student government is to represent the majority opinion. It will change because a minority will not belief in the system if system is steadily growing as was proved by the interest evinced last year and this year in getting out a voter campus vote.

Peace Campaign To Stimulate Action

Embracing a program of education and political action, the local council of the Emergency Peace Campaign has received added impetus with the visit this week of one of the field secretaries, Stuart Wright.

In connection with National Peace Day on April 22, a series of study forums will be held weekly with delegates from various campus organizations to impart the information received at these study forums back to the respective organizations, desiring to support National Peace Day and Emergency Peace Campaign also.

As to political action, the council members will seek to discuss with students and these persons beyond the college gates the need of neutrality legislation and the necessity of making their Congressmen form a definite policy in regard to the various neutrality bills before the Senate and House. Writing letters to Congressmen and "lobbying," if possible, are among the first practical steps to be taken in forming a strong united opinion against the United States' entering war.

A third point in the program of the Emergency Peace Campaign is the formation of peace patrols in communities throughout the United States. College students, especially, who feel obligated in attempting to prevent war, are sent to various communities during the summer where they may hope to stimulate voters to political action.

With men in general coming to believe the greatest danger confronting civilization today is the impending world struggle between Fascism and Communism, it seems indeed sane to call the Peace caupaign an emergency. If men are to believe the whole world will eventually be drawn into the Fascist-Communist vortex, as Alice Beal Parsons points out, the world catastrophe will come about only because of the servility and backwardness of political thinking. For neither the Fascist states of Europe nor communistic state in the world today are what they proposed to be. Fascism was to preserve property rights while Communism was to preserve human rights and neither stands today for anything but political dictatorships.

What Fascism and Communism have fundamentally changed we must within the framework of our democratic constitutional government make changes which will help to insure us against war and the dangers of Fascism. That seems to be the purpose of the Emergency Peace Campaign and as an amateur one would be failing in duty were not only influence political thinking by finding out the facts and applying them in line with democratic principles of government.

Judiciary Comes of Age

For years judiciary of the College Government association threatened to collect convocation fines or impose penalties upon students neglecting to pay such fines.

Until this year, however, few notices were sent members of the student body who chose to remain away from convocation. All those receiving notices did not wish to do so no fines were paid, and judiciary, in splendid cooperation with this laxness, did nothing.

Last week several students received notices that in view of the fact that their convocation fines had not been paid, even after several official reminders had been sent out, they would be confined to the campus for a period of one week. A terrific howl from the campused students.

Our faith in self-government has gone up by "leaps and bounds" since this radical action of last week. For the benefit of members of the student body who are still in doubt about the matter we have investigated the validity of this action by judiciary and can find nothing that makes it illegal.

Repeal Shows Less Drinking

The recent Literary Digest poll on student drinking tallies in with the prevailing idea that youth today is more serious and religious in its attitude than the youth of last generations.

Officials at the Anti-Saloon League convention this week admitted college drinking "no special problem of their." In the Digest poll 438 colleges forbade drinking, 105 restricted drinking, and 40 colleges had no rules. College presidents, student editors, and student leaders interviewed, declared drinking was on the increase although drunkenness appeared relatively less. Most student favored federal education for drinking, however, not against it, as a solution of the problem.

On the other hand the Treasury Department figures reveal the per capita consumption of spirituous, malt, and wine has declined from the period of 1910-14 to the year 1935, almost 50 per cent. We who profess democratic principles may learn from figures such as this that we cannot legislate morals. Sociologists have been telling us this all along, but in the instance of drinking, it is taking twenty years at least to prove to us this social law.

The novels "Arrowsmith" by Sinclair Lewis and "Les Miserables" by Victor Hugo are among a group of books taken out of general circulation by a New York high school principal and reserved for senior reading only.

If such an attempt at censorship is known to the students, the effects may be far more painful eventually than the principal imagined.

Spirit of the Week . . . By Scott

This Week

Another Precedent Broken in Congress

By CLOTILDE O'ROURKE

Another precedent is broken.

In a rousing battle Wednesday, the Senate overrode the traditional United States policy of "freedom of the seas" and in its place is the Pittman neutrality bill which would put our commerce with belligerents on a "cash and carry" basis. The bill now goes to the House for its ratification.

The so-called 'cash and carry" plan places a mandatory embargo not only on shipments of arms and ammunition to belligerent nations but also on all raw materials and other commodities necessary for waging war. To the president is reserved the right to list such articles and materials. It also prohibits advancement of loans or credit to belligerents, and bans American vessels on ships of nations at war.

Senator Borah, the "Lion of Idaho," and Senator Johnson, workers in the recent successful fight that kept the United States out of the League of Nations, teamed in vigorous opposition to the bill.

Said Johnson, "I believe a nation's commerce is its life's blood, and that we should insist upon our rights under international law." In urging that limitations on war trade be struck out he concluded that "we are writing the entire history of a nation off the books by this peace at any price."

Senator Homer T. Bone of Washington replied that "Every body knows international law didn't amount to a damn in the last war. I am tired of splitting hairs—I am interested in peace even more than in neutrality." He proclaimed our "sacred right to war time" as "the greatest fraud and fake on the face of the earth."

The underlying significance of the bill is this; by provision three any nation may come to American ports and buy supplies in unrestricted amounts, paying cash and transporting them under its own flag. As Senator Borah pointed out this practically insures our alliance with Great Britain and Japan since they are the only nations with sufficient sea power to obtain the supplies they would need.

In time of war with the American navy off the Atlantic the ocean would be under the control of the British fleet for no other navy or combination of navies could possibly match it. Therefore no nation could come to American ports to buy goods unless the British permitted it. The same would be true of Japan in the Pacific. At present time, however, Britain is the only nation in the world that could pay cash for our supplies anyway.

The ranks of the opposition, which include Cordell Hull, object to the bill on still another point. It will bind, perhaps cut out entirely, any possible reciprocal trade agreement with another nation even at the present time, according to Hull. Last week, Congress completely threw off the president to make reciprocal trade agreement for three years and a half. The passage of the Pittman bill means that we can expect no trade pacts with countries abroad who are surrounded by enemies or who have no alliance with a strong sea power. Otherwise, they could not depend on getting supplies in the

Continued on Page Six

University Editorials . . . .

From the editorial column of The Apostle, the college weekly paper published by students of Agnes Scott College, we find the following discussion topic of student versus student activities.

"Our college life is a balanced-scale wheel has student activities on the one side and studies on the other. If balanced skillfully, the pans of the scale will swing in harmony; but if one pan is overheaped, one side of the scale will become too heavy for the other. We have favored neither balance by pans skillfully. We wish to establish the harmonious relationship between studies and extra-curricular activity. Therefore, realizing that our college students are not to be tampered with, we must leave them free to work out their own salvation. Students are to demand our interest and develop our talents but which will at the same time not outbalance our studies in value.

If we could thoroughly understand the aim of each organization on the campus, if we could judge, somewhat, the benefits of its success in realizing this aim, if we were able to intelligently consider the part each organization might play in the development of our own interest, if we could determine to some extent, the relationship that would exist between each activity and our studies, then we could come nearer to determining that ideal balance between studies and extra-curricular activities. Therefore, we must first study each one for the most desirable college experience.

The University Hatchet after an hour or two thought in regard to receiving a well balanced education in the following "More Music."

"The series of Sunday musicales which began last year in Strong Hall last week gives evidence of that interest in cultural entertainment which should be fostered among university students.

The affair was attended by concert goers and others who were enthusiastic about such Sunday evening programs, and undoubtedly pleased by the University talent which such a series will bring about.

So much of extra-curricular effort is directed toward grasping the new and inspiring the novel, seeking out the truth about that which specifically concerns the world today. It is well that we stop now and then to appreciate the old that will always be timely, the things that time cannot efface."

The Hatchet seems to be the current topic of discussion since most of the colleges are interested in expressing their opinions either for or against war. Naturally into this discussion must enter the question of relative importance in our colleges and universities. The Brown and White, from Lehigh University gives a means of compromise to those who object to military training.

"Objectors to military training in colleges and secondary schools fall generally into three groups: 1, lazy individuals who object to the work involved; 2, those who feel that R O T C is wasted effort, and that their time could more profitably be invested in other studies; 3, those who have conscientious objectors" on religious or ethical grounds.

The Massachusetts Institute of Technology has put into operation a practical solution to the problem. The student with honest religious or ethical objections to military drill and study is now excused from it, but he must take the same number of credit hours in a course of international law, diplomacy, the causes of war, and post-war peace. By offering the student an alternative diametrically opposed to the militaristic theme, this plan satisfactorily solves the problem of the strong, "the conscientious objectors," and at the same time cancels out the objection of the lazy individual and provides an incentive for the student and for the student who objects to the waste of his time.

Much can be said for military training and study as an aid in discipline, physical fitness, and self reliance. "Conscientious objectors," are bothered by the development of the military point of view with its consequent cheapening of human and ethical concepts, and the installation of the idea of narrow nationalism. They distrust the emphasis upon war itself, and upon armament as the only road to world peace.

The M. I. T. plan offers a wise compromise. It sets you to an intelligent study of war prevention. Such study would be of benefit even to the most enthusiastic of the students of war.

time could more profitably be invested in other studies; 3, those who take "conscientious objectors" on religious or ethical grounds.

The Massachusetts Institute of Technology has put into operation a practical solution to the problem. The student with honest religious or ethical objections to military drill and study is now excused from it, but he must take the same number of credit hours in a course of international law, diplomacy, the causes of war, and post-war peace. By offering the student an alternative diametrically opposed to the militaristic theme, this plan satisfactorily solves the problem of the strong, "the conscientious objectors," and at the same time cancels out the objection of the lazy individual and provides an incentive for the student and for the student who objects to the waste of his time.

Much can be said for military training and study as an aid in discipline, physical fitness, and self reliance. "Conscientious objectors," are bothered by the development of the military point of view with its consequent cheapening of human and ethical concepts, and the installation of the idea of narrow nationalism. They distrust the emphasis upon war itself, and upon armament as the only road to world peace.

The M. I. T. plan offers a wise compromise. It sets you to an intelligent study of war prevention. Such study would be of benefit even to the most enthusiastic of the students of war.

Collegiate Comebacks

Mary Sullivan, guest columnist, proves ones and for all that Winchell's Girl Friday is just a female Rip Van Winkle.

• • • •

The military ball is here once more and with half the campus Gainesville-bound, we stay-at-homes begin to wonder if there might not be something to the ads after all. Pink tooth brush? Or maybe a touch of athlete's foot?

• • • •

The nominations of last Tuesday caused quite a stir. The hecklers had more fun than they've had in years. They should realize that there are other less annoying ways of making themselves known.

• • • •

And convocation continues to be held, despite the vague murmurs of the student body. Maybe it's all for the best. There's nothing like a little cat-nap before lunch—and what would mother do without her weekly letter?

• • • •

A sophomore is not allowed to ride with a man at night, even if she brings along two or three girl friends and a few acquaintances. It would seem safe enough. Perhaps the idea is the protection of the few males that venture near the campus.

• • • •

Doctors recommend eight hours sleep out of every twenty-four. The person who has the habit have a radio, their neighbors are aspirant Ellsworth Powells, and the girls upstairs move furniture in eight-hour shifts. Never a dull moment!

• • • •

Rinses to the stooges that, all without encouragement, explain to Teacher just how or and so felt when he wrote such and such a work. If they're such mines of information, why don't they start classes of their own?

• • • •

From an exchange we get the story of a professor who always locks the door to his philosophy class when the bell rings and will not admit any students after that time. The worm turned one day, though, when the professor arrived and found that the class had locked him out. It might have been a better idea to lock him in and do away with the key.

• • • •

Quarter exams are not for long and the following advice is not out of place:

We always laugh at the prof's jokes
No matter what they be,
Not because theyre funny,
But it's darn good policy.
—Phoenix.

• • • •

From the Junior Collegian we find out a bit about our professors:

It maintains that an M. D. is a person who is moderately dull; a D. D. is a person who is definitely dull; a Ph. D. is a person who is phenominally dull. The truth will out!

• • • •

The following bit just goes to show the futility of it all:

I put my trust and faith in you
I thought I'd be allowed,
But now I'm disillusioned
I wish that I might die.
I made you my ideal, you see,
And so I copied you.
I should have copied someons else
Now I'm flunking, too.
—Yellow Jacket.

• • • •

The Wheaton News defines a snap course as one in which there is no theme, no check roll, make assignments, or give failing grades. Personally we wouldn't know.

• • • •

An exchange has it that co-eds at Wilson university voted on the following as the requisites for a successful blind date; conversational ability, personality, originality, sense of humor, good manners, height, and dancing ability. Utopia, eh? We girls of P. S. C. are not as "choosy" and Jimmy Boggs and Bobby Burns that "A man's a man for a' that."

Magazine Jottings

BY SARAH SEALEY and SARAH BETH DAVIS

Magazine Jottings this week has been written by guest contributors, Petrea Cousens and Martha Lampkin.

College President

By John R. Tunis

The struggle and final defeat of a young reform president who tried to make his university a real intellectual center and to loosen the hold of football and extra-curricular activities is set forth by John R. Tunis in the February issue of Harper's.

Henry Kirk Browne, the thirty-eight year old president of Mammoth university, soon found that the changes he proposed in the college curriculum—such as two-year courses for students who come to college for lack of anything else to do and a four-year course for the more serious students, the abolition of probation and of compulsory class attendance—met with mild opposition from the older and more conservative members of the faculty, as did his refusal to accept funds from the college, his attempt to reform the football situation, and his consenting to a Communist's lecture on university grounds.

But when he refused to recommend one of his deans to the presidency of another college because he believed the dean too limited in outlook and incapable of educating young men, the governing body of the university, believing Browne directly responsible for the dean's resigning suicide, rose against him and fired him. —P. C.)

• • • •

Our Backward Thinkers

By Alice Beal Parsons

The present-day intellectuals generally believe the civilized nations now stand in great danger of a world struggle between Fascism and Communism.

Possibly this danger is imminent, states Alice Beal Parsons in the current issue of Harper's, but the world catastrophe will come about only because of the backwardness of political thinking. Fascism and Communism have been turned out as failures. Fascism and Communism were first launched; therefore the combatants in the impending struggle who insist on pulling down the state in order to make their own victorious will be pulling it down for a cause that no longer exists.

To justify her contention, Mrs. Parsons states that the one indisputable result of the Communist and Fascist systems is that they have both ruined dictatorship. These dictatorships threaten world war, which in turn threatens both the welfare of the worker—the Communist goal, and private property—the Fascist principle.

To prevent a struggle between these two systems, Mrs. Parsons advocates that the majority of the world population, who are not on either side, to organize and adopt a third philosophy which offers a cure for both Fascism and Communism are attempting to redress, without making necessary a war of extermination. The Popular Front government in France and the citizens who voted for Roosevelt in America have already gone a short distance toward organization for such a philosophy, and they need now is to clarify their objectives and see that the attainment of their desires does not lead to a new despotism.—(P. C.)

• • • •

Our Native Humor

By Sculley Bradley

An interesting discussion of the humor of our native land is presented in the current North American Review by Sculley Bradley. He states that the true nature of an individual is revealed by what he considers humor, as in what he finds revealing their most secret qualities. Perhaps that humor is an important factor in our nation's character. Mr. Bradley explains that American attitudes are thus revealed towards more serious aspects of their lives.

Because of their common origin, the American and the Englishman have similarities in some humorous points of view. Both are prevailing ironists" and Jimmy Boggs and Bobby Burns that "A man's a man for a' that."

Our greatest humorists, Mr. Bradley says, are the frontiersmen, who, in their tall tales, "were not only creating a literature, but were also creating a new attitude toward life." Mr. Bradley says that Mark Twain, Bret Harte, and Artemus Ward are the only humorists who have made a permanent contribution to literature. Mr. Bradley says that Mark Twain, Bret Harte, and Artemus Ward are the only humorists who have made a permanent contribution to literature.

• • • •

War in a Collectivism World

By Walter Lippman

Once again, because of the plight of three nations whose population is greatly increased while their production is restricted, and who feel that they have been denied their fair share of opportunities, they are ready to fight for supreme power, hoping to improve their standard of living.

Walter Lippman describes in the current Atlantic Monthly how collectivism in such nations has reached its climax. Nationalism, formerly invoked by political unions which developed into a strong national feeling, now is looked on as existing only when people have a strong national feeling first. Thus people are being divided into smaller and more concentrated communities. The idea of international socialism is being forced back by collectivist

Continued on Page Six

Essay Contest Offers Awards In Cash, Trip

Newspaper Will Present Prize to Best Work On Advertising

A free trip to New York this summer and $1000 in cash prizes will be offered by "Advertising Age" to students writing the best essays on the subject, "How Advertising Benefits the Consumer." Three essays, limited to 1000 words, must be mailed by midnight May 1, 1937.

The first award includes both a all-expense trip to New York during June in the city and $500 cash. Second prize is $100; third $50; and the next ten, $10 each. In case of a tie, duplicate prizes will be granted.

The contest is sponsored by the national Newspaper of Advertising in order to call undergraduate students in colleges and universities There is no entry fee nor obligation to buy, the purpose of the competition is to arouse interest among students in the functions and values of advertising in our national life.

In preparing the paper, personal opinion is preferred to extensive research. Students should be written or typed on one side of the paper only with the contestant's name, college course, class, and home address given on a separate sheet. The articles should be mailed to Contest Secretary, International Ad Club, 435 East Ohio Street, Chicago, and should state on the envelope "College" to distinguish them from "High School" entries.

The judges for this competition represent both consumer and educational interests. They are: Dr. Robert W. Hess, professor of marketing, Wharton School of Finance and Commerce, University of Pennsylvania; Mrs. Roberta Campbell Lawson, president, National Federation of Women's Clubs, Washington, D. C.; Thomas Cochran, manager, Sales Promotion Division, National Retail Dry Goods Association, New York; and O. B. Crain, Jr., publisher of "Advertising Age."

Nine Students Present Weekly Music Recital Wednesday Afternoon

With nine students participating, student recital was given Wednesday afternoon in the college auditorium.

The program was opened with Mozart's Scherzo," played by Frances Grahn. Following this Evelyn Etheridge Patterson, accompanied by Jessica Jane Mercer sang Speak's "In the End of the Sabbath." Eleanor Daniels played several violin selections, and Misses Jane MacKey pre-sented Bach's "Duetz Toccata" which was followed by the piano numbers, Beethoven's "Sonata" Opus 79 by Frances Hobbs and Gail Kennedy's rendition of Rachmaninoff's "Humoresque." The next number was a violin solo, "Chanson" by Louis XIII et Pavane," by Marvin and Kreisler, played by Annabelle Larsen. Dorothy Leach closed the program by playing an organ the "Finale of the Second Symphony" by Widor.

The next student recital will be presented until Wednesday afternoon at 4.30

Concert Star Will Present Program Here

Continued from page one

ne are sung in Italian, even longer So it does seem rather for English speaking people ng us to listen to the sense of a song. It is nothing but sound in their ears."

Although she and her husband, Artur Schnetzendorf, an operatic tenor, spend each summer at a villa in Italy, their permanent winter home is in New York. The prima donna is going to become an American citizen and has given out first papers already.

"I like American styles and ...mestics. Paris can't compare to America in fashions," she declares. "Another thing is that there is the country for women. They are wealthy that prevails here so far advanced from Europe in their career is proof of this. Here a woman has freedom of expression denied to her in other lands. This attitude is bound to help artists and has certainly helped me here. I do not feel barred in any way."

Likes Schubert Best

In music the composer closest to her heart is Schubert. Her favorite opera is Mozart's "Marriage of Pisaro" and her favorite role is Aida. The most difficult role in her repertoire, in her opinion, are Aida and Donna Anna because here "the singer must have the technique of a coloratura, a lyric, and a dramatic soprano all at once."

The hardest type of song to sing she claims, is one like "Du bist die Ruh" of Schubert because of "the line and phrasing of the music." The most beautiful and popular Lieder in her experience are the songs of Richard Strauss. She likes jazz very much, too, she admits.

She offers a simple recipe for success: talent plus hard work. But she will confess under pressure to formulae less scientific. She has per superstitions . . . but she refuses to divulge what they are. And she always carries a little charm . . . "You must not ask me what it is." begs Grete Stueckgold. "For that would spoil my luck."

C. G. A. Records Show Social Life In Former Campus Days

"Improper Conduct With a Young Man" Considered Serious Offense Reports Early C. G. A. Book, Reveals Sentences

By LUCY KELLY

After reading the C. G. A. records for the early years of this college one would believe Pennins Dobbs' portrayal of yesterday was practically a saint although she couldn't call her soul her own.

"Pet course, many moons ago, student body couldn't be classed as "Pet Courses," according to these same records. However, those guilty of committing the most common offense, that of cutting their room after light flash, were not usually punished unless they were guilty of breaking the rule several times in succession or their attitude was bad.

Another common offense was visiting during "study period." During this period students had to have permits from the head chairman to go to another girl's room. Visiting was said to that without permits usually being restricted for a short time. Two girls were restricted for two weeks because they played the ukelele and sang during study period. Another girl was punished for whistling during study period.

Improper conduct with a young man" resulted in confinement for a period of one week for a senior who had taken her cousin into one of the practice rooms in the Administration building to play a certain song for him. In spite of her protests that she left immediately when she saw there was no piano in the room she was penalized.

Five girls were campused for one month because they danced at the gym with a boy. The usual form of punishment was given to one of the five because she talked to a young man without permission on Saturday night. Similar to this case was the one in which a girl given full restrictions for a month for dancing with a University band boy at a sorority house.

In 1914 some of the restrictions were removed from dancing. It was decided at this time that although the girls would be fined 10c to "rag" only on Saturday nights they could dance the two-step and waltz any other night.

Riding was also a problem in the early days. Girls were not visited in town for a day were campused because their gracious hostesses took them riding during the day.

One cold rainy day two students, one of them sick with a cold, were walking home from church. When someone offered them a ride they took it. Unfortunately a student government girl saw them, and as a result they were restricted from town for a period of two weeks.

Tuesday days picture shows were evidently good but better if taken in small doses. Girls who went to the show more than twice in two weeks were restricted from town. Those who repeatedly attended the show more than once a month were campused.

Smoking too has had its day in making trouble for the students of Florida State. Very early two girls were campused indefinitely because they were caught smoking. They were restricted for three days in 1926.

In 1926 two girls were put on probation for the remainder of the school term for smoking. Two years later full restrictions were given to two girls for an indefinite period for the same offense. In 1927 a girl was asked to withdraw from school because she was caught smoking while she was campused for breaking the study hour rule. In 1928 a group of girls were restricted indefinitely for smoking.

When the pre-war students didn't like a certain rule they did not just too bad—they went anyway. One girl was given full restrictions for five days because she was late to breakfast. If a student cut breakfast over three times she was campused.

Two Councils For Students Meet Tonight

Methodist and Baptist Groups to Gather For Sessions

Both Methodist and Baptist student groups will hold council meetings at the student headquarters tonight, members of the Methodist council will meet at the Methodist student house at 7:30 o'clock for the regular business session, and office holders of the three Baptist unit organizations will meet in the music annex at 7:45 o'clock.

Following the meeting of the officers of the Baptist Young People's union, the Young Women's auxiliary, and the Baptist Sunday school group, all Baptist students are invited to hear Mrs. L. L. Forrester, who will speak to the group in the music annex at 7:15 o'clock.

Miss Billie Ruth Currin, Baptist student secretary, is in Gainesville this week directing a course for Baptist students at the University of Florida.

Dr. Raymond Bellamy will be faculty speaker at the regular Methodist vesper service on next Sunday morning at 9:30 o'clock.

Bellamy is to speak on the sixth in a series of faculty discussions on "What Religion Means to Me." Regular league supper will be served at the Methodist student house following the 5:30 o'clock followed by the league program at 6:30 o'clock.

In place of the regular business meeting of the Methodist hall chairmen Tuesday afternoon members will meet at the student house for a hike to a spring in the woods. Mary Cia Reynolds is in charge. Miss Ruth Hendrix is outdoor worship service, led by Martha Lucas.

Third in a series of talks by Professor Robert D. Miller on the life of Christ tomorrow will be given tonight at 7:30 o'clock in Rupe Hall. "Jesus" will be the topic of tonight's discussion. The Friday night discussion meetings are being held in Rupe Hall in place of the regular after-dinner coffee. All students are invited to attend.

Members of the Episcopal student choir are notified the choir practice hour has been changed to 2:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon. The regular meeting of the student auxiliary will be held Monday night at 7:15 o'clock with Mildred Sexton in charge. The second discussion in the series of studies on racial problems, "The African Negro," will be considered.

Beginning Wednesday night at 6 o'clock a series of special services to which college students are invited will be held at the Presbyterian church with John Williams, of Atlanta, as speaker.

The Presbyterian choir, of Bartow, will have charge of the music and will be led by the two students sing in the choir. These meetings will be held every night until March 21.

At their regular Sunday night fellowship meeting the Presbyterian student league will continue discussions on the topic "Christian Youth Building a New World." The third council prayer meeting will take place Monday at 5:30 o'clock, with the Reverend Ted Jones in charge.

College Exhibit Features Relics

Ghosts of college years past are resurrected in the library exhibit for Florida State College Week.

A diploma made out in a fine Spencerian script belonging to Sallie Hulse Sandrum, is a faded relic of 1897. The hand book of 1918 in which girls are granted permission to cut breakfast on class will be examined to entertain one gentleman caller per week during the year of the Talisman, the ancestress of the Distaff. While the Argo, an early-day college publication, is proud central position in the display.

Pictures of Old East Hall, the Administration building—previous to the nineteen-ten dining hall, and the literary society hall attached to it—are shared to bring back gay flocks of memories. Programs which dictated classes here even before the days when the "bobbed-hair" controversy was head on the campus.

Katherine Autrey, in charge of the display, sponsored by C. G. A., has delved into the files to bring forth memory-provoking scenes and relics belonging to yesteryear and has arranged them with an eye to showing the progress of Florida State college, the outgrowth of Florida Female Seminary, west of the Suwannee

Balmy Politics Disappoint Cynics and Stump Speakers

Absence of Avid Campaigning Arouses Pessimism Of Hardened Politickers and Apathy In Uncaring Constituents

By BETTY SPICER

The very elements themselves have banded together to laugh up their sleeves at Florida State College for Women's political efforts. Crisp air, brisk breezes, and now and then a scattering of rain in this year's political weather in contrast to last year's balmy breezes and smiling skies of fast-approaching summer.

Last year's election was hard contested and all the cynics, forecasters, born politicians, and other prevelection species were revival in the ascendant. This year's elections have taken the sesi for life right out of the political band and wagon's grasping reach. The forecaster has no leg left upon which to stand. Her thunder has been stolen because—for the first time in the history of Florida State College for Women the candidates for the two major offices have been unopposed. Since this prophet has nothing left to prophesy she gently subsides into a corner and says nothing.

The cynic too is having troubles. Now that she has nothing to be cynical about she has been hunting around for new material. Hence the cause of the alarmed whisperings and worrying of the timorous who are afraid that the new officers will disrupt the safe and sane methods of the officers before them.

But the most hard hit in this suspiciously peaceful and gentle electioneering atmosphere is the born "politicer." Come are the stump speeches of yesteryear and the avid campaigning for her roommate and best friend. No more can she shout across the campus to the luckless candidate that she has another vote for her.

No more can she tease those unfortunate enough to cross her path that if she is elected, no more will she be able to go to town without signing up, or enjoy the bliss of a life unobserved by the majority. All this has been decided before she could do her bit.

However, the loyal and enthusiastic college inmate has been waxing enthusiastic in her efforts to aid her fellow boy and girl candidates in the good of herself and her college. Some, in most heart-rending efforts to get girls to the polls, have carried said girls in their arms up stairs to the near-est polling place protesting all the while that they did not have a political chestnut in the fire. Others have paid visits after visit to rooms in an effort to get their inmates to "take just a few minutes off to vote."

We find, too, the pessimist who can always find something wrong with anything. This time she is directing her venom on the fact that politics on this campus are not hot enough. She gives as example that on the University of Florida campus the boys pass out cards, stump speeches, and regular political parties. "Why doesn't F. S. C. W. the same?" is her wail.

In addition to this political re-linue, we find the politician herself who can always be spotted by her determined "I am - your-friend - no-matter - what" smile. She figures best in the political atmosphere. Her best side is presented, nothing irritates her, she knows everybody, and when the atmosphere has blown away she reverts back to type.

This gently, peaceful, unimpassioned political atmosphere may be punctured by a few fire works. The backwoods bestia itself and he wonders what will happen now.

COMPARATIVE FIGURES OF PRIMARY ELECTION VOTING

Percent of student body voting	97%
Alpha Chi Omega	76
Alpha Delta Pi	84
Alpha Gamma Delta	94
Alpha Omicron Pi	88
Alpha Xi Delta	78
Beta Phi Alpha	100
Broward	76
Bryan	76
Chi Omega	93
Delta Delta Delta	88
Delta Phi Epsilon	0
Gilchrist	76
Jennie Murphee	76
Kappa Alpha Theta	94
Phi Mu	86
Pi Beta Phi	78
Reynolds	76
Sigma Kappa	84
Theta Upsilon	90
Zeta Tau Alpha	92

Voting for Day students and off-campus house council not be tabulated because of incomplete checking lists.

Ames Will Speak About International Affairs

Sir Herbert Ames, who is being sent by the Florida State College for Women by the Carnegie Endowment for International Education, will speak Monday and Tuesday April 5 and 6, on international topics, Sir Herbert is an Englishman and well versed on international affairs.

He will give a talk in the Augusta Conradi theater Monday night and a talk in convocation Tuesday. He will also speak on some of the social science classes. A reception will be given for him Monday night after his talk.

New Officers Excited Over Year's Task

President and Chairman Feel Mixed Thrills And Anxieties

Even a new president of C. G. A and a new chairman of the judiciary can remain human Betty Oetlund, recently elected head of the students' body, continues to use "college dialect," to wear hair ribbons, and to admit that she is scared as well as thrilled. Louise Cohan, new judiciary chairman, is still bubbling over with excitement and nervousness.

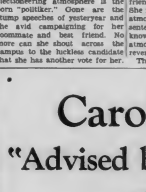
Betty was somewhat dubious in regard to the vesrs' intellect, "Personally, I think they are a little off," she said, "and I am afraid they will come to after April '. However, I'll do my best to prevent that."

When she learned of her election, the new president did not do anything dramatic like writing her father. Instead, she and her roommate became excited over the prospect of living in the 'White House'."

"It won't be a model White House," she hastened to add, and laughed around her words. "Miss Brown came up to congratulate me yesterday and told me I had one fault—that is, procrastinating one." Betty again looked away from the head on which she was putting a 'Femina Perfecta' hair set, to the heavily loaded clothes line.



"I do hope this position will at least make me a little serious," she ended, "nothing ever has."

Louise, when she found breath to talk, exclaimed, "I'm thinkn that I used to idealize girls who held such an office and here I am in that very position. It really isn't so marvelous, and yet it is."

"And I can't realize," she concluded, "that now it is I who have to set the example for all those students."

Carole Lombard says:

"Advised by my singing coach, I changed to Luckies"

"In my new picture 'Swing High, Swing Low' I sing a song for the first time since I have been on the screen. To do this, I spent months taking singing lessons. And with this added strain, my throat was not in good shape. My singing coach suggested that when choosing cigarettes, I select a light smoke. And so I changed to Luckies. Since then I've found that a light smoke and my throat get along together just fine."

Carole Lombard

CURRENTLY STARRING IN PARAMOUNT PICTURE "SWING HIGH, SWING LOW"

An independent survey was made recently among professional men and women—lawyers, doctors, lecturers, scientists, etc. Of those who said they smoke cigarettes, more than 87% stated they personally prefer a light smoke.

Miss Lombard verifies the wisdom of this preference, and so do other leading artists of the radio, stage, screen and opera. Their voices are their fortunes. That's why so many of them smoke Luckies. You, too, can have the throat protection of Luckies—a light smoke, free of certain harsh irritants removed by the exclusive process "It's Toasted". Luckies are gentle on the throat.

THE FINEST TOBACCOS—
"THE CREAM OF THE CROP"

A Light Smoke "It's Toasted"—Your Throat Protection

AGAINST IRRITATION—AGAINST COUGH

Copyright 1937, The American Tobacco Company

Try our Broiled Steak Sandwich With Fried Potatoes 20c

SPLENDID LUNCH
205 SOUTH ADAMS

Hay Announces Itinerary For European Tour

'Economy Tour' Features Five-Week Vacation Through Europe

Dr. Marion J. Hay has announced the itinerary of her personally conducted tour of Europe for this summer. This trip will mark the seventh consecutive summer that Dr. Hay has traveled abroad, and this will be her ninth trip. At one time she and Mr. Hay remained in Europeon countries for the duration of a year.

Dr. Hay's itinerary for this year composes an "Economy Tour" of Europe, which is a five-weeks vacation trip featuring leisurely visits to five European countries: Scotland, England, Holland, Belguim, and France, and an extension tour into Italy, Switzerland, and Germany.

It is expected that a number of Florida State college girls will be in the group this year as in former years. Among Florida State college alumnae in the party will be Anna Groover, Ruth Persons, Anna Niblack, and Hazel Long, Lake City; Lorell Tait, Jacksonville; and Robbye Estes, ay.

The party will sail from New York on the SS Transylvania on June 18. Return sailing will be aboard the SS Manhattan on July .

Dr. Hay will also direct a French Residential tour this summer which includes six weeks of study at the Sorbonne.

Mr. Hay will personally conduct a "Grand Tour" of Europe for the sixth consecutive summer. Travel in this tour is by automobile and the countries visited are: France, Switzerland, Italy, Austria, Hungary, Germany, Belgium, Holland; and Denmark, Sweden, England, Scotland; or England and Scotland; or England.

Present Florida State college students who have accompanied Mr. and Dr. Hay on their tours abroad are Anna Glen, Nellie Lamar, and Betsy Anderson.

Concert Artist to Be Here Thursday

Grete Stueckgold, soprano and former Metropolitan opera singer, who will appear here in an Artist Series concert Thursday night. Miss Stueckgold is now a concert and radio star.

Hair Designs Are Hobby of Student Head

Betty Ostlund Creates New Personalities With Coiffures

By RUTH ATKINSON

Betty Ostlund's hobby depends upon inspiration, willingness of the subject, and lots of good old-fashioned elbow grease and patience. Her object is to create new personalities through a change in hair arrangement; her success is sometimes questionable, but her satisfaction is complete, even though her subject is not always so easily satisfied.

Although she has many requests from girls who want to aspire to new heights of feminine beauty, and are willing to take a chance, Betty insists upon accepting only the requests which inspire her to use all of her creative genius. She is not very definite as to just how the inspiration comes to her, and refused to make any statements as "to whether it was signified by a buzzing in the eardrums or simply by a sudden desire to grab a handful of some certain girl's hair and create an unusual coiffure.

Betty declares that her roommate, Kitty Pratt, is her favorite subject, and she tries to catch her in weak moments when she is willing to take a chance for the sake of the increased beauty of womanhood. Kitty has evidently been through the trials of one who is true to the cause. She told of the time she went home for the week-end with her hair done in a "Dishpan set" in which her hair was waved from the center of her head in circles all the way to the last row which was done in rosette curls about her face. When she got home and tried to comb it herself, away from the advice and guidance of the master of the situation, she managed to keep the top of her hear fairly in order, but the bottom row stood out all the way around like a hula girl's skirt, or like Julius Ceaser's hair arrangement. Such is the life of one who plays guinea pig for the sake of posterity.

"Debutante's Delight" was the coiffure which changed a demure junior into a dashing Juliet. Betty admitted that it only looked good form the back and sides, and that it rather resembled a stage with open curtains due to the part all the way down the back of the head with the hair drawn back on each side. However that far from discouraged her, even though the subject was not particularly happy.

The fame of the young experimeter has spread so that even a teacher requested one of her new hair styles. She evidently liked the result, too, for she came back the other day for another one.

Betty has been setting hair ever since she came here to school three years ago. However, she just started her creative work about a month ago when she decided that "the scenery needed changing. She admits that she can set hair "just plain when she's not inspired," but that being inspired is much more fun.

The line forms on the right, girls, and maybe your peculiar type of beauty may be the next to cause Betty to soar to new heights of artistic fervor and creative genius.

Nominating Committee's Reinstatement Action Is Drawn Up in Report

Editors Note: Due to a misunderstanding on the part of some members of the student body concerning the action taken by the nominations committee in the case of the reinstatement of Marjorie Raulerson on the primary ballot the committee has drawn up the following report which we print here for the benefit of those who have made inquiry concerning this case.

Case: The action of the nominating committee in voting to include the name of Marjorie Raulerson for freshman adviser on a primary ballot.

Facts: Seven girls, Phil Asher, Hilda Spradlin, Marjorie Raulerson, Betty Ostlund, Marion Conn, Louise Gehan, and Frances Lewis were nominated for the office of freshman advisor in the nomination meeting of the student body held Wednesday, Feb. 24, at 5 o'clock in the main auditorium. These candidates were notified of their nomination and also notified that their decision, with a statement of their policy for publication in the Flambeau, should be turned in to 439 Gilchrist before 12:30 p. m. of Friday, Feb. 26. Of these candidates, Phil Asher accepted. The nominating committee acting by virtue of the powers invested in it by the action of the Senate and the Executive council (recorded in minutes of Executive Council for Feb. 11, 1936, Senate for Feb. 13, 1836, and nominating committee for Feb 18, 1936) and following the precedent of former nominating committees, added to the list of nominees the name of Kathryn Pratt, who received two under the required amount for nomination. Kathryn Pratt accepted the nomination by 10:30 Friday night in accordance with a ruling by the nominating committee which took into consideration the fact that she was not notified until after 12 noon of Friday. On Tuesday, March 2, at 10 o'clock, the chairman of the nominating committee was notified by Phil Asher that in the event of the chairman's receipt of a petition to include the name of Marjorie Raulerson for freshman adviser she, Phil Asher, would withdraw. At 10:30 of the same morning the chairman of the nominating committee was presented with a petition to re-include the name of Marjorie Raulerson for freshman adviser.

Cause for reopening consideration of the nomination was given as follows: Marjorie Raulerson's financial considerations had kept her from accepting the nomination at first and since satisfactory arrangements had been made later to take care of this, it was felt she should be allowed to accept the nomination. The matter was referred to the nominating committee at a meeting called at 11:30 of the same morning, immediately preceding a student body meeting. The committee debating the issue considered the fact that Phil Asher's withdrawal would leave an unopposed candidate for the office and by previous action of the committee concerning unopposed candidates, there would be an opportunity for nominations from the floor. Marjorie Raulerson was asked whether, in the event she were allowed to be re-nominated, she would accept. She signified "yes." The pettiion was held invalid by a nominating committee vote of 6-3. A decision was then reached to state the entire case to the student body, to find out their opinion, and to refer the question again to the committee for reconsideration at a meeting to be held immediately after the student body meeting. After discussion a motion was made by Janice Borton and seconded by Josephine Binion that names of the three candidates should appear on the primary ballot. The prospective candidates were asked if they would consent to this, and they signified that they were willing to do so. The motion was carried by a majority vote. This motion was referred to the nomination committee for a decision.

Argument: The case was argued that since a definite policy had been set to conclude nominations acceptances at a specfied time, any nominations occurring later than that hour were illegal and therefore void.

The opposing argument was that the case was an unusual emergency and the evident wish of the electorate.

Decision: The note to accept the student body's motion to include the names of the three candidates to appear on the primary ballot resulted in a 5-5 tie, thus empowering the chairman to break the tie. The chairman, as president of the student body, cast her vote to maintain student body opinion. Appended is a detailed report of the majority and minority opinions, signed by the members of the committee voting with each opinion.

Majority opinion: The case of the majority for considering Marjorie Raulerson as a candidate for freshman adviser of College Government association is the following: First, Marjorie Ralerson was duly and legally nominated as freshman adviser and refused to run because of circumsta ces entirely out of her control at that time. Those circumstances being removed and the student body very definitely showing its desire to have her run for freshman adviser the majority opinoin felt that she should run due to the unusual circumstances involved and the obvious desire of the student body.

Second, it was definitely realized that a precedent was being set by the nominations committee and that charges of usurpation of power and of favoritism would arise. It was felt, however, that this was a peculiar and emergency situation and that the action taken should be considered as emergency action peculiar to the situation in question and in no way an invitation to future nominations committees to change election procedures at whim.

Third, if the nominations committee had refused to allow Marjorie Raulerson's name to appear on the ballot it would have been legally possible to have elected her by writing in her name on the ballot (see Robert's Parliamentary Law). Therefore, it appears that nothing would have been gained by keeping her name on the ballot.

Signed: Mary Jeanne McKay, Martha Makemson, Daisy Parker, Julia Vanderipe, Alma Butler, Marie Taylor.

Minority opinion: Five members of the nominations committee voted against considering Marjorie Raulerson as a candidate for freshman adviser of College Government association. The dissenting opinion came to a decision for the following reasons:

First, Marjorie Raulerson was nominated for the positions of president of College Government association, chairman of judiciary, and freshman adviser. She refused all three nominations giving as her reasons scholastic average and finances. However, Marjorie's grades had been approved by the registrar and she knew the possibilities of a scholarship in time to accept a nomination if she so desired.

The dissenting group deducted from this that Marjorie refused for personal reasons. She refused her candidacy for freshman adviser three times. The dissenting group did not feel that Marjorie should be obliged to run for the office, even at the demand of the student body when she had shown her disinclination to do so.

Second, Marjorie's final acceptance was four days too late to be considered legal. In accordance with the nominations system recommended by senate and executive council of 1935-1936 and adopted by the nominations committee of that year, Friday, Feb. 26 at 12:30 p. m. was set as a deadline for a candidate's acceptance. The two candidates, Phil Asher and Kathryn Pratt, announced their acceptance before the specified times and were, therefore, the only legal candidates for the office.

Third, the petition of the student body to enter Marjorie as a candidate was held invalid by a 6-3 decision of the nominations committee so that there were no grounds for reopening the case.

Fourth, the two legal candidates accepted their nominatons only after being informed that Marjorie would not run for the office. One of these candidates, Phil Asher, had also been nominated for treasurer of College association. She made her selection after learning that Marjorie would not run for the office of freshman adviser. In view of these circumstances, the dissenting group felt that the two legal candidates would be put at a disadvantage if Marjorie was recognized as a candidate at so late a date.

Fifth, the nominations committee is recognized as the policy-forming body on election procedure. By disrupting its established procedure, as has been done in this case, it may establish an unfortunate precedent in some future election leading to confusion and misunderstanding of the actions of the student administration.

Signed: Winona Ireland, Beth Daane, Clotilde O'Rourke, Hazel Bowman, Frances Forth.

Securing Jobs Is Discussion At Class Meet

Professional Ethics And Placement is Topic Of Andrews' Talk

Dr. Elizabeth Andrews, director of personnel, discussed methods of securing positions at the senior class meeting Monday night after which was held an open forum.

"Applications in the home county should be in by April," said Miss Andrews, who explained that it is useless to apply for positions in the large cities unless you are a resident of that city or have had experience. "Sometimes," she continued, "girls without experience are placed in larger towns because there is a shortage in teachers prepared to teach certain subjects, such as music, commerce, and home economics."

The placement bureau has been quite successful, having placed 96% of the girls graduating last year, so it is not worthwhile for a student to go to a commercial placement agency unless she wants to go out of the state to work. The usual charge of a commercial agency is two or three dollars plus the first month's salary while the only charge made by the personnel office is that students pay for any special notices sent them in the summer. If more than six recommendations are desired students must furnish more than six pictures.

Miss Andrews said that it is very important that the placement bureau know the summer address of each person who is enrolled, and she asked that each graduate comply with this request. It is also necessary that the bureau is informed when a position is accepted.

"Some girls receive more notices than others," explained Miss Andrews, "because there is more demand for the subjects they teach while comparatively few are prepared to teach them."

It is important for a girl to keep a contract she has made, oral or written. Breaking of the contract is against the professional ethics and undermines the reputation of both the girl herself and the agency, which found the position for her. When a girl accepts a position it is advisable for her to stay there for at least two years for to leave would suggest failure and might make it harder to secure a position later.

Miss Andrews advised that when new teachers go into a community it is wise for them to go slowly about advancing their own ideas. "Wait until you are well established and then introduce your own ideas," she said. The new teacher should also find out what is acceptable conduct in the new community because as long as the public pays the teacher's salary the public feels that it has a right to request the teacher to live according to established standards.

The placement bureau will register alumni of the college although preference is given to the graduating class unless the position definitely calls for experience.

Marriage Courses Should Be Included In Liberal College

Student Believes Knowledge of Domestic Living Important to Future Happiness of Graduates and Mothers

By ELEANOR WILLIAMS

The current vogue of the term, Liberal Education, is amazing, considering how lightly we pass over the word "liberal."

Disregarding that for the moment, though, we see that numerous periodicals today are delegating more and more columns to this idea of liberal education. Somebody somewhere conceived the notion that the economic paradox we are now facing and our peculiar inability to cope with the situation might be partly due to the type of education America inflicts on its youth. Whatever the particular brand, critics say, America's far-reaching state institutionalized education has produced skilled individuals without the one chief skill of thinking. It has produced well-trained engineers, trained well in the technical sense of the words but sadly lacking in social responsibility and the fundamental attitudes that term a man educated. It has produced men and women whose lives have been guided mainly by their desire for "materialistic advancement" and whose lives necessarily in a country whose economic system is characterized by periodic breakdowns have become directionless and insecure.

Hence, with critics shouting vociferously "Education to the Rescue," and meaning by education a more general—a more "liberal" one than that offered in the past, I suppose it is sheer heresy for a student who is trying to get a liberal education, to come out and demand more of the supposedly mentally degrading "training" courses. For liberal education is the aim, as I understand its current interpretation of the general college whose first two years are devoted to introducing the student to the broad fields of knowledge, usually called "the humanities," the physical and biological sciences, and the social sciences, with the last two years for the student's specialization.

I am willing to grant these critics that a general education may result in more liberal-minded individuals, but I am suddenly finding myself resentful of all the scathing remarks made on including so-called "training" courses in the college curriculum. I believe cultural education comes first, but I am also convinced that there might be several "training" courses offered to woman students in general that might improve the status of the American family and add to the happiness of the human lot.

Not that I would have these training courses replace any of the broader fields of knowledge—that would be ridiculous and the negative of educational ideals. Few subjects, if any even in "training" courses, can be entirely divorced from the humanities or the sciences. Yet it seems rather tragic to me, when amidst all this drastic curricular-revision in the interests of a more "liberal" education, one phase of our living is almost completely ignored by most of our curricula-reformers. That is our domestic life and service; the primary part of most women's lives, a secondary part of men's.

Perhaps we women students are to place blame on the feminist movement for the colleges' failing to offer us much training for domestic living. We choose or are advised to choose courses that relate almost wholly to that "job" we want and seldom to that part of our lives which will be spent as wives and mothers.

Although the majority of college graduates marry and about half thet number become parents, few colleges offer courses that the average student can elect "on the side" besides his vocational and cultural subjects. Off hand I can think of only two such colleges, Vassar, which offers a course in euthenics at summer school, and Dalton School, New York, which has instituted a course in baby and child care.

Probably a number of colleges offer sociological courses, such as "Marriage and the Family," but these do not give the specific training that so many intelligent mothers are now confessing anonymously in our "quality" periodicals as requisite to a successful marriage and family life. Probably specific training courses are included in the home economics department or nursing school of many colleges but these courses are usually planned for the specialist in the field who regards the subject matter more from the angle of getting a job than from making a satisfactory home life.

Especially may this attitude become prevalent in women's colleges which are likely to be oversexed, only perceiving men and women in the world, not human beings. If this attitude is held by our parents, faculty members, and associates, we women students, when we finally decide on our major course, are likely to become egotists, thinking we have made the initial choice between marriage and a career. Unless someone just happens along who means ten times more than the career, we plan to devote our academic hours to studying for thet career. Then if marriage should come along, (like most of us hope but are afraid to count on too deeply, and perhaps with it, motherhood), we are almost sure to find ourselves grossly inadequate to assume our part of the responsibilities. Not that housekeeping is much more more than an occupation when capable servants and electric gadgets can be found, but motherhood to the college graduate, should mean a great deal more. If behavioristic psychology had any meaning at all for us in college, it should have made us realize the importance of considering motherhood as profession. And the profession requires, we are told, time, energy, patience, resourcefulness, a knowledge of the human mechanism and the scientific way of teaching it to live and grow.

Therefore, for those who have the desire, the ambition, the hope and the dream of becoming mothers, colleges, especially women's colleges, should consider the needs of this group of students which, statisticians tell us, is slowly but surely diminishing. And it is no wonder. With colleges offering only cultural and vocational subjects as though women students were planning to lead "gentlemen's lives, it is not surprising, if disheartening that students are beginning to look on motherhood as only for those who are incapable of anything else. We conceitedly kidd ourselves into thinking, if we do marry we shan't worry; domesticity will come to us naturally.

So while the "liberal" idea has hold of faculty-curricular-revision committees, they might consider preparation for the primary funtion in woman's life, motherhood, which the first exponents of feminism so boldly put on the shelf, as a contemporary need of colleges that has been consistently overlooked regardless of all the highly specialized courses included in our bunglesome college curricula. Only then may a "liberal" education approach liberality.

THIS WEEK'S CALENDAR

FRIDAY

Emergency Peace meeting, 203 Administration building, 5 P. M.

SATURDAY

Debate between F. S. C. W. and William and Mary college, Augusta Conradi theater, 7:30 p. m.

Freshman carnival in back of Gilchrist, 8 to 11 p. m.

MONDAY

A. A. U. W. meeting, Dutch Kitchen, followed by election of officers.

TUESDAY

Reception for Governor and Mrs. Fred Cone and Mrs. Cone, given by Dr. Edward Conradi and Miss Conradi, college gymnasium, 8:30 p. m.

Election of minor student government officers and Y. W. C. A officers.

N. S. F. A. forum on "honor," 203 Administration building, 7:45 p. m.

WEDNESDAY

Student music recital, college auditorium, 4:30 p. m.

French club meeting, 4:30 p. m.

Astronomy club group meeting, 203 Administration building.

THURSDAY

Grete Stueckgold, soprano, college auditorium, 7:45 p. m.

Day students board meeting, Dr. Raymond Bellamy's house, 5:30 p. m.

Freshman swimming meet, gymnasium, 8 p. m.

Magazine Jottings

Continued from Page Four

whose goal is "the isolated and self-contained commuulty."

Nations such as Germany and Italy after the war first turned to Socialism, hoping for a redisribution of the wealth of their country, but found that it was not the privileged classes of their country but the privileged nations abroad that had the means they wanted. Thus they turned to Fascist dictators who would lead against these nations.

No longer is the concept of war that of one for some limited objective of tangible stake, but of a total war, one in which the issue is complete supremacy. This truth holds, Mr. Lippman says, "When supremacy is the issue—and when it exists, peace is only an armed truce during which the warriors prepare for the next battle,' which is not to be concluded until the extinction of one of the antagonists as power in world affairs.—(M. L.)

Eddy to Speak Here March 17

Present World Situation Will Be Subject Of Lecture

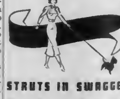
Dr. Sherwood Eddy, world known author, lecturer, and traveler will speak here on "The Meaning of the Present World Situation" March 17, in the auditorium at 7:45.

Dr. Eddy, who is the author of twenty volumes on international economic, social, and religious questions, has just returned from making a fresh study of the situation in Europe. Twelve times he has visited Russia, Poland, Germany, Austria, Frnace, Great Britain, and the League of Nations at Geneva. In intimate conferences and personal interviews he has constantly met many of the statesmen of Europe, economists, government officials, and students at well as men in the streets.

On Dr. Eddy's last visit to Russia with his group of writers and speakers he tried to study the situation, government, industry and collective agriculture. He was lucky in accomplishing this because his was the only party admitted to the Kremlin.

Graduated from Yale in 189, Dr. Eddy went to India in 18 where he worked for fifteen years among the students of India. Since then he has come to know the leaders in various nations, including the prime minister of Great Britain, the Viceroys of India, Mahatma Ghandi, and Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek of China.

Dr. Eddy is speaking constantly before many types of audiences in all sections of the country. He has spoken in several hundred colleges in all parts of the United States, Europe, and Asia and has addressed countless clubs, conferences, and conventions.



This Week

Continued from Page Four

American market in time of war. The category includes Russia, Italy, Spain and France (lacking a British alliance).

The fight over the bill will devolve into a struggle between the strong commercial interests of the Atlantic seaboard and those people who are interested not merely in neutrality but in "peace at any price."

Young America

STRUTS IN SWAGGER

RED CROSS COBBIES

Heigh ho—and away you go. There's zip and there's zest in these sporting Red Cross Cobbies. And they team up so very smartly with your dashingest outdoor outfits. Come see. Still only $6.50.

$6.50

White Boardelay Calf. (Unlined) walled last. Solid leather heels.

VOGUE SHOE PARLOR

Tallahassee

"We Have Your Size"

This month ONLY!

TRADE-IN your old watch —and get a new BULOVA

AMBASSADOR . . $29.75

LADY BULOVA . . $39.75 with two diamonds

These Bulova Watches are the greatest values we have seen in a long time. To make it still easier to buy we will accept your old watch as part payment—and give you a liberal allowance.

MOON JEWELRY COMPANY

Popcorn - Peanuts - Fruits - Candy
Ice Cream Sandwich

NIK-NAK

301 West College Avenue

The Social Week

Many Students Will Attend University Military Ball

This week-end promises to hold a round of gay dances and entertainment for many students of Florida State College for Women who are planning to attend the Military Ball in Gainesville.

Military Ball week-end will be officially opened at 5 o'clock this afternoon at the University of Florida, when the R.O.T.C. Brigade will pass in review before the senior officers of the brigade and their sponsors.

Social Activities

Then follows a whirl of social events beginning at 7 o'clock this evening in the university gymnasium, where Jan Garber's orchestra in a one-hour concert. At 9 o'clock in the gymnasium, the curtain on the week-end will take over the Military Ball, which is one of the most advanced military affairs and their guests.

The high-light of the evening will be the grand march headed by Colonel Raymond Carrabell and his sponsor, Miss Dee Carroll. Other sponsors for the ball include Laurie Kirkman, Frances Jane Rice, Lillian Burford and Valeria Hunt.

Saturday afternoon the first of the two inter-fraternity dances will be held. At this time it will be open to the entire student body. Saturday night at 10 o'clock, at the end of the Inter-fraternity Conference dances will be held. This, too, will be open to the entire student body.

Both the freshmen will hold dances from 8 to 1 at the Legion Hall. Music will be furnished by the Cavaliers. Between the time of the review and the ball tonight there will be a military organization, will hold their annual dinner dance at the Hotel Floridan.

Saturday night from 7 until 9 o'clock the Cavaliers, non-fraternity dance society, will hold their annual dance in the American Legion Hall. Music will be furnished by Rabbit Robbins and his Floridians. This affair will be exceptional for members of the Cavaliers and their guests.

Aside from this planned program, many fraternities and clubs are having other social events to fill the program of the week-end.

F. S. C. Attends

Those girls from Florida State College attending the social functions in Gainesville this week-end are: Dorothy Leach, Charlotte Heath, Cora Cheney, Sara Moore, Jenna Howe, Vennette Herren, Florence Mayfield, Virginia Dowlin, Jane Shriester, Virginia Shriester, Victoria Crisp, Muriel McCracken, Sara Frances Blackwell, Marian Henderson, Jane Cole, Jean Lykes, Jean Johnson, Hilda Spratlin, Nelwyn Brooks, Sunny Joe Betty Cashen, Mary Shackleford, Winifred Hill, Sara Moore, Betty Harrison, Belva Sutton, Bobbie Wilson, Frances Slade, Marian Hussey, Evelyn Hussey, Jane Townsend, Martha Baxter, Sue Bryant, Wilda Finlayson, Martha Rogers, Camille Mullen, Dorothy Carruthers, Marion Vale, Mary McGahill.

Mary Lou Bell, Eleanor Rickson, Ann Dixon, Janie Gallemore, Willie Daniel, Kathryn Patterson, Dorothy Borden, Natalie Herlong, Mary Manning, Mary Swearingen, Martha Wright, Sue Trussler, Jean McMullen, Mary Katherine Smith, Adelaide Sewell, Patsy Sands, Nell Woodham, Libby Spencer, Elizabeth Jinks, Dee Carroll, Martha Edwards, Virginia Sayre, Ann Eastham, Jo Taylor, Emma Stewart, Frances Thomas, Lois Reiter, Sara Tillman, Jane Orr, Jean Baughman, Helen Murphy, Jane Jackson, Pearl Mitchell, Lucretia Patterson, Frances Lamotte, Myrtle Chilford, Mary Jane Bayless, Inas Seabrook, Martha Kennedy, Helen Glenn Merryday, Emelie Lockwood, June Quina, Peggy McMichael, Alice Burnam, Dorothy Hill, Lucille Reed, Jane Thomas, Madge Glenn, Lou Adkins, Eloise Frink, Dagner Baker, Shirley Pemberton.

Phyllis Frink, Louise Fosgate, Janet Masters, Betty Blalock, Eugenia Cannon, Margery Stewart, Peggy Jackson, Anne Ladd, Mabel Bennett, Betty Davis, Peggy Johnson, Mary Taylor, Lucile Smoak, Joan Miller, Martha Robbins, Betty Curtis, Mary Susan Bowley, Mary Ellen Dewyler, Carolyn Hare, Julia Burnette, Elizabeth Turner, Margery Anderson, Kathryn Kass, Mary Benjamin, Valeria Hunt, Ellen Greer, Lorraine Giles, Margaret Nuff, Nancy Rogers, Mary Sumner, Barbara Hendry, Pat Milteer, Gertrude Rogers, Lillian Simmons, Lucy Grant, Mildred Stovall, Dot Barr, Lovina Spaulding, Mary Frances Campbell, Myrtle Burta, Lillian Burford, Betty Spicer, Annie Laurie Polk, Ella Faye Price, Marjorie Morrison.

Sororities Announce Social Events For Week's Calendar

Informals given by the sororities this week include an afternoon dinner coffee, a studio party, and a dinner roast.

Wednesday evening Mrs. J. N. Sikes, Alpha Delta Pi housemother, entertained the pledges of the sorority with a wiener roast at the chapter house on Jefferson street. Other guests invited were Betty Jane Lewis, Sue Johnson and Mary Ellen Beach. Old and new pledges who were honor guests are Nancy Rou, Mary Belle Rogers, Mary Isabel Harden, Jane Lee, and Dorothy Parker.

There will be an after-dinner coffee in the Alpha Omicron Pi house honoring actives and friends of the sorority Sunday evening. The hostess will serve. The sorority will also hold "post court" tonight at 9:30 o'clock at which time all the present pledges will be brought before the court.

A Chinese motif will be the theme of the studio party to be given tonight by the members and pledges of the Alpha Chi Omega sorority in honor of rushees. The house will be decorated with lanterns and the hostesses will wear Chinese pajamas.

Beach Party Given For Esteren Club

Sixteen members of Esteren, Even organization, were entertained Sunday at the beach home of Frances Lewis in St. Teresa at a dinner which was followed by a business meeting of that organization. Frances Lewis and Louise Gehan, acted as hostesses.

Those members present included: Miss Betty Washburn, Miss Nelle Bond Dickinson, Miss Hazel Stevenson, and Miss Louise Richardson of the faculty, and Frances Lewis, Hilde Spradlin, Evelyn Robinson, Dorthea Marsh, Marian Conn, Marjorie Rauleson, Louise Gehan, Viola Brooks, Madge Glenn, Phil Asher, Betty Oetlund, and Erminie Lawrence.

The Pi Beta Phi sorority will have a tea on Saturday night in honor of the debating team from William and Mary college.

NEW INITIATES OF THREE SORORITIES ARE HONORED AT CHAPTERS' BANQUETS

The initiation banquet given in honor of the new initiates of Alpha Chi Omega was held last Saturday evening at the Dutch Kitchen. The theme, which centered around the number seven, was carried out in the sorority colors of scarlet and olive green. The honor guests, including Dulcie Cavaness, Marian Carson, Jane Upton, Evalyn Patterson, Ruth Unland, Ruth Weber, and Melba Parks, received recognition pins of the sorority as initiation gifts.

Recent initiates of Alpha Xi Delta were honored last Saturday evening with the annual Rose Banquet of the sorority. Pink Killarney roses, the sorority flower, and double bliss and gold, its colors, were used in the decorations. Mr. and Mrs. Earl L. Vance, patron and patroness of the chapter, and Dr. Sara White, faculty adviser, were among the guests. Chapter alumnae who were present were Virginia Alger, Monica Wiley, and Caroline Garvin.

The initiates are Fay Corey, Frances Fryer, Murray Lou Andrews, Dolly Purchase, and Judy Triplett. They were given recognition pins as favors at the banquet.

Alpha Gamma Delta entertained its new initiates last Saturday evening at a "rose feast" given at the Floridan Hotel. Red and buff roses were featured in the decorations of red, buff, and green, the sorority colors. The place cards and menus, which were written in Greek, were decorated with the sorority crest.

A crested plaque was awarded to the initiate having the best scholarship record, and a diamond set in her sorority pin was given to the initiate having the most activity points. Both awards were won by Elaine Fleischer.

Recognition pins and boxes of crushed sorority stationery were given to the honor guests, who were Jessie Cochanour, Isabel Satterfield, Helen Lana, Flo Bozard, Nancy Williamson, Edith Underhill, Jane Floyd, Elaine Fleischer, Laura Cola Trawick, Willeyne Gaines, and Peggy Haines.

Personals

Bishop and Mrs. Frank A. Juhan spent last Sunday night at Stage Hall leaving Monday morning for Pensacola.

Jean Brown and Dorothy Burford are s pending the week-end in Lakeland.

Helen Turnbull will visit in Jacksonville this week-end.

Dorothy McLean is spending the week-end in Tampa.

Mrs. Perkins, house mother of the Kappa Delta sorority, will spend several days in South Carolina.

Marjorie Noggle is spending the week-end in Winter Haven.

Mary Benjamin's mother is visiting in Tallahassee this week-end.

Richards' Entertain For Mortar Board

Dr. and Mrs. Harold F. Richards entertained at their home in the Country Club estates with an informal coffee honoring Mortar Board, Friday, Feb 26. After the A. A. U. reception.

Among the guests invited were: Mrs Sade Young, Dr. Annie Marie Pepper, Miss Mary Helen McKean, Miss Elisabeth Lyrin and Miss Peggy McMichael. The members of Mortar Board present were: Mary Katherine Gibson, Daley Parker, Eleanor Brown Williams, Frances Jeanne McKay, Josephine Binion, Martha Makemson, Marjorie Tillis and Shirley Stevens.

State Welfare Board Are Visitors Here

Conrad Van Hyning, state commissioner of social welfare, and members of the state board of social welfare were luncheon guests Tuesday at the college.

Mr. Van Hyning composing the party were James Dunn, Miami, chairman of the state board of social welfare; Mrs. Basil Kenny, Clearville; Dr. Coyle Moore; Mrs J. W. McCollum, Gainesville; Selwyn Jacobs, Jacksonville; Dr. Raymond Bellamy; Miss Helen Dunn; and Mrs. Moore.

Eta Sigma Phi Pledges Initiated at Ceremony

The initiation of new members of Eta Sigma Phi, classical honorary society, took place Wednesday night at the home of Miss Olivia Dorman.

After the ceremony a program on archeology was presented under the direction of Molly Walker and Kathleen Robinson.

Members initiated were Mary Greene and Marcia Smith.

Phi Mu Banquet Will Be Held Observing Day of Founding

Members of the Phi Mu sorority will recognize their Founders' Day with a banquet Saturday, March 6 in the Franklin Room of the Roosevelt Hotel in Jacksonville, which will be attended by several members from this campus.

Miss Mary B. Merritt, national president and Dean of Women at University of Miami, and Mrs. Fred Leuder, president of District 1, will be honor guests at the banquet.

Members of the Alpha Omega chapter from Rollins College; those of the Miami Alumni club and the members of the Jacksonville Alumni club will also attend.

Members of the chapter on this campus that are planning to attend the banquet are: Barbara Hendry, Pat Milteer, Mary Sumner, Catherine O'Meara, Mary Ann Wilson, Lillian Lukens, Elspeth Griffin, Lillian Lukens, Elspeth Griffin, Lillian Burford, Mary Isabel Bissell, Mary Earle Berry Claire Wells, Betty Brown, Lucy Grant, Marion Purviance, Elizabeth Pierce, Mildred Stovall, Doris Cahoon, Mary Chandler, Elinor Jones, Edith Adams, and Virginia Walls.

TALLAHASSEE ALUMNAE GIVE DINNER HONORING FACULTY, STATE OFFICERS

Among the seventy-nine guests attending the Tallahassee alumnae dinner at the Dutch Kitchen Monday night were members of the F. S. C. W. faculty, staff and state alumnae officials.

The dinner which represented the first meeting of the Tallahassee Alumnae club since its organization a short time ago was one of the opening events of the annual "FSCW Week" observance here.

Japonicas and asparagus ferns were interspersed down the center of the banquet table, and with low bowls of calendulas formed the decorations for this affair.

Mrs. Velma Keen was toastmistress for this banquet and during the course of the evening she introduced the following who spoke to the club on various phases of the college life and on alumnae activities: Dr. Edward Conradi, Miss Anna May Tracy, Mrs E L. Bessent of Crestview, Miss Mary Etta Thatchwhite, and Mrs George Lewis.

Prominent guests introduced were: J. G. Kellum, college business manager; Mrs. Kellum, president of the Florida Federation of Women's clubs; Mrs. J. W. McCollum, Gainesville former president of the Alumnae Association; Mrs. R. H. Leslie, executive secretary of the Alumnae Association; Walter Moore and LeRoy Collins, Leon county representatives.

Others present were: Mrs. Myrta Anderson, Mrs. Lula B. Keith Appleyard, Mrs. Dot Price Alford, Mrs Mary B. Alfriend, Mrs. Mary Reed Bellamy, Mrs. Lima Bledsoe, Miss Claire Bowen, Miss Maud Britt, Miss Sara Burwell, Mrs. Blanche Cornell Brown, Miss Clarine Belcher, Miss Etta Burleson, Miss Olivia Lewis Collins, Miss Margaret Campbell, Mrs. Eva Richardson Culley, Mrs. Sara Embrey Coulter, Miss Adeline Clough, Miss Mattie Chapman, Mrs. George I. Davis, Miss Madeline Duncan, Miss Helen Davis, Mrs. G. L. Diffenbaugh, Mrs. Louise Clark Fain, Miss Mary Lois Gill, Mrs. Bessie Richardson Gramling, Mrs. Helen Smith Hall, Miss Annabel Hopkins, Mrs. Evelyn Whitfield Henry, Mrs. Myra Sue Brinson Harris, Mrs. Mabel B. B. Hodgson, Miss Ethel Holloway, Mrs. Anna Lee Coles Hopkins, Mrs. Frances Tippette Johnston, Miss Mary Krown, Miss Rowena Longmire, Mrs. Laura Hopkins Long, Mrs. J. S. Mackrey, Mrs. Tom Moore, Mrs. Robert Moore, Miss Edna Mae McIntosh, Mrs. Beth Walton Moor, Miss Katherine Montgomery, Miss Margaret Evelyn Mullikin, Miss Sue Manning, Miss Mary Newman, Miss Mary Eleanor Nicholson, Mrs. Bertha Meginnis Oven, Mrs. Rosa Yawn Procter, Miss Sue Pitchford, Miss Rachel Pitchford.

Mrs. Katie Udell Parker, Miss Mary Schoenherz, Miss Ruth Schonherz, Mrs. Dora Sikes Skipper, Mrs. Charles D. Stevens, Mrs Ben Stevens, Mrs. Ida Mae Stripling, Miss Josephine Thrype, Miss Florence Tryon, Mrs. Doris Lamp Temple, Mrs. Elizabeth Boyd Taylor, Mrs. Julia Mickan Walker, Mrs. Caroline Poisett Whitley, Miss Cecilia Wahnish, Miss Bessie Wells, Mrs. LeRoy Collins, Miss Louise Conradi.

Sigma Kappas Honor National Officer

Mrs Alice Mersey Wick, grand national president of the Sigma Kappa sorority, received friends and alumnae at an informal coffee in the Sigma Kappa house Thursday night, February 25.

The alumnae present were: Miss Sue Pitchford, Miss Lelia Venable, Miss Jeanne Compton, Miss Mary Lois Gill, Miss Clarine Parker, Miss Miriam Terrell, Miss Rachel Pitchford, Miss Beth Barnes, Miss Iris Scorre, Mrs Willard Lamb, Mrs Helen Bury, Mrs Ralph Proctor, Mrs. Clyde Atkinson, Mrs. Loomis Anderson.

AAUW to Meet Monday

The regular monthly meeting of the American Association of University Women will be held Monday night at 6:30 o'clock at the Dutch Kitchen. After dinner there will be a business meeting for the purpose of electing officers for the coming year.

Day Students' Group Plans for Weekend At College Camp

The Day Student's Organization is spending its annual week-end at camp this Saturday and Sunday. Margaret Maxwell, with Ann Moon assisting, has been in charge of signing up for the camp and arranging for the meals and other details in connection with the week-end trip.

The girls expect to enjoy the usual camp activities of swimming, canoeing, hiking, rifling and games.

Those who are going are: Jean McCord, Emma Bradford, Margaret Green, Mary Von Pal Bulkley, Louise Schwadelel, Lois Milton, Ruth Elkins, Elizabeth Ann Moon, Gladys Bedsole, Meta Helms, Irene Foster, Fred Maxwell, Loraine Smith, Alice Royster, Dot Parker, Enis Magil, Edith Grayson, Frances Jackson, Margaret Maxwell and Dorothy Bellamy.

Kappa Alpha Thetas Attend Convention In Athens, Ga.

In assist in installing a chapter of Kappa Alpha Theta on the campus of the University of Georgia nine members of the local chapter will leave this afternoon for Athens, Ga. At the same time, they will attend the district convention of the sorority, also being held in Athens.

Girls who will attend from this campus are Clarice Sanchez, Helen Dunn, Annie Laurie Sanchez, Ruth Stanley, Mary Emmis, Marjorie Horton, Martha Hague, Patsy Hamilton, Betty Hamilton, and Miss Edna May McIntosh.

Humming right along

All over the country, you hear more people mention the refreshing mildness and the pleasing taste and aroma of Chesterfield cigarettes.

You hear somebody compliment Chesterfields at a party. Another time, the grocer tells you it's a darn good cigarette. Or you see a group of men on a street corner, most of 'em smoking Chesterfields.

Because they have what smokers like, Chesterfields are humming right along . . .

Copyright 1937, Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co.

Writer Says It's Not Safe To Be Different From Crowd

There Are Two Types of People in United States She Believes—Business Men and All The Rest of Populace

By MARGARET C. LAFFERTY

A person in America today who was developed his own thinking owers and tastes so that they do not conform with those of the rest f the country had better watch out if he wishes to be a success. t isn't safe or wise to differ with he "crowd."

There are, more or less, two broad types of people in the United States, the business man and he rest of the people. This latter group is almost completely made up of the ordinary, everyday, American who has had inbred in him a strong belief in democracy, equality, and we might add, fraternity. He has learned to like commonplaceness and to resent anything that smacks of superiority. The business man is the one who has to conform to this liking if he is to be successful.

Although a person has been brought up to speak correct English, to be courteous without being too deferential, to enjoy good literature and art, he has to walk warily and modify these tastes if he does not wish to offend those with whom he associates. The average American is not very tolerant of a few opinion or idea, or of one that does not jibe with his and he is not reluctant in revealing his intolerance.

"High-hatting" is one thing that we don't stand for. Ever since the American Revolution we have shrunk from anything that has a suggestion of aristocracy or superiority, and the average American considers above-the-average tastes as an indication of conscious superiority or smugness, and the person exhibiting these tastes is branded as a "high-hatter."

There are many things included among those that it is considered "high-hatting" to do, but they may be summed up as anything that deviates from what the normal person in your locality thinks. A northern accent spoken in a southern town is one example.

If a man uses perfectly good English, spoken with the proper accent, he is looked at, first with amazement, then perhaps he is laughed at, viewed with alarm, and finally treated with scorn. He doesn't perhaps ever realize that it is only his accent and vocabulary that have put him in a class with the abominable "snobs" or "high-hats." Or perhaps if he does realize it he isn't willing to change what he knows to be the right mode of speech because the majority of the populace think he is "putting-on." In this case he has to sacrifice his own success, financial or otherwise, for the sake of his convictions and is forced practically to live the life of a hermit.

Slang has come to be referred to as the American language and many of us have heard it said that few Englishmen can understand us when we talk, due to our abuse of the Queen's English. And we look upon the person who does not use our language (or should I say "lingo") as a stuffed shirt. However if that person is willing to learn and use our language he will find himself accepted by the gang and his offense finally forgotten.

The same thing holds for literature and arts. It is always safer when expressing an opinion which you are not sure will conform with everyone else's to "sound out" these to whom you are talking and then agree with them. We are prone not to understand why a thing which we think is atrocious can be regarded as a classic. Nor do we try to understand when a person expresses a favorable opinion about it. In fact our general remark in such a case is "I don't see anything in it, but perhaps your judgment is better than mine." We may put up with such a difference for a few times, but when it becomes regular we avoid the person having such opinions.

As for literature the majority of us favor the popular five cent novelettes and gaze with wonderment at those who choose to read what we call "radical" and intellectual magazines. We can't see how anyone can amuse himself with such heavy stuff.

Religion has always been a point on which the person who wishes to be a success has to conform. One would think that a person would be allowed to choose unmolested, his own method of saving his soul, for in doing so he is hurting no one but himself. But no, we Americans are so fond of each other that we can even wish to take over the responsibility of the salvation of our neighbor's soul, and his religion, if it does not agree with ours, is the thing about him that will merit the greatest criticism.

Religion is, I believe, taken more into consideration when some people are judging others than any other factor. In my home town I know of several prominent business men who switched churches because of the damage their own religion was doing to their business. Since that time they have been extremely successful and they attribute that success to the church which they are now attending. A person is safe as long as he belongs to any of the better known sects but when he dares go beyond . . . he has to look out.

In conforming in this day and age one of the most important things one should do is seek membership in one or all of the better known clubs and civic organizations. It always helps when people know you as a "swell fellow" who gives his all for the public good. Refusal to join such organizations when asked is equivalent to signing one's own form of "high-hatting" because it implies that the club isn't good enough for one.

Opinions on current problems and political affairs which don't conform with those holding away at the present moment are considered as smacking of the radical, and every American hates a radical. It is wise when one is going to inform his friends of any such thoughts that he first find out just how far they will stand by him, or he may find himself ostracized.

For a progressive, intelligent, thinking person who airs his opinions will be referred to as "queer," a terminology which sets him off from the crowd and puts him in a class with the moron, the insane, and the delinquent. Some may view him with awe, others with pity, but none look at him with any idea of a desire to associate with him. It doesn't do to show the rest of the world that some of us know what to do with the craniums that we were given when there isn't a new Easter bonnet to adorn it. The best we can do is to get in with the group, agree with them, and then gradually and gently, very gently so that they don't suspect, lead them forward.

We read the same books dress in the same fashion, appreciate, or pretend to, the same things in the field of art, think alike and talk alike, and we don't like anyone who does anything different. We don't trust him. It isn't safe. It isn't wise to be different. The mediocre person is the one who can get the farthest with us. He is the one whom we call the "swell guy" and it is he that makes a success of anything he undertakes in the line of business.

Emergency Peace Body Will Meet Today For Study of Literature

This afternoon at 5 o'clock the Emergency Peace campaign will have a meeting in 203 Administration building. This session will be devoted to the first in a series of student-led studies of peace and its furtherance.

"Why an Emergency?" is the topic for this discussion and will be developed from the political, economical and psychological aspects. Those who will take part in this session are Arline Lockhart, Elwood Williams and Virginia Alford, chairman.

Stuart Wright, field secretary for the campaign, who has been visiting the campus this week will be present and will participate in the program. This meeting as all other of the Emergency Peace campaign gatherings is open to all students and faculty interested in this movement.

Continuing through the rest of the week Wright will hold conferences with those desiring more information concerning the campaign.

C. G. A. Officials Work on Birthday

There is no time in the life of a college government leader or trivial social occasions, not even for the celebration of one of the biggest five-days of her life, her birthday.

The president of College Government association will tell you so. The chairman of judiciary will vouch for her statement. The freshman advisor will back them both up. And surely these three should know, for Martha Makemson celebrated her birthday Wednesday to the tune of campaign speeches; Jo Binion made merry amid the excitement of final elections on Thursday; and Mary Jeanne McKay breathed a sigh of relief on this, her natal day, at the realization that next year's officers have been chosen.

Though numerous birthday greetings have cheered the triumvirate there has been no time for actually settling down to a bona-fide party le-ke, or taking a few hours off duty to attend a movie.

Friends of the celebrants declare that they haven't dared to plan anything special. The three are much too absorbed in the election of candidates to fill their offices; to cease dashing from poll to poll for anything so slight as an "occasion."

Pitfalls And Byways Beset Student Path

Approbation Eludes Many Who Cannot Resist Temptations

The average student finds her path of study very rugged, full of pit-falls and enticing by-ways which tempt her always from the straight and narrow road that leads to approbation. In fact, she finds herself so busy keeping up with her college life that only to the strong one is given the will power to set her face to the front and look neither to the left nor right.

Surely not in her room is she immune to temptation. How can she settle down with Shakespeare and keep her mind on the campaign of one Richard III, when her roommate is describing the joys of eating dinner (oyster dinner at that) down town that night? The painful struggle to be strong is useless.

The library is a place seemingly devoid of temptation, verily a sanctuary of learning, but it takes strength to pass the fiction stacks while looking for sociology parallel. If she does manage to pass the fiction, then she meets her "waterloo" in the poetry. In the periodical room the average student is most likely to become enamored with a copy of "Life" or "Vogue" or, perhaps, the funny papers rather than the article on child training she came to read.

She goes into the smoking room for just a hurried cigarette before studying that chemistry and finds herself engulfed in a haze of tobacco smoke and a hot discussion of the Spanish situation. It is just so happens that she has had to listen to a lecture about the present condition of Europe, and she feels called upon to aid her bit to the hub-hub. Somehow the talk takes a turn, and someone is speaking in disrespectful terms of Russia. Russia is a subject near and dear to her heart, so it is vital that she set them right on a few things. She can't possibly tear herself away until there is no one left to listen to her.

On her way back to the room she meets temptation in the form of a friend who lures her over to a nearby tea room to cool her ardency with a "dope." The afternoon is gone and she is in no condition to do chemistry.

In her room after dinner, the room mate shooed off to the library, she puts on the study sign, clears the desk and prepares to write that term paper. While waiting for inspiration to come, she can't help noticing that the room is in an awful state. It wouldn't take a moment to straighten it up a bit In the process of cleaning house, she finds Johnny's last letter, Gee, but it was sweet. What was that he said about how much he missed her? She re-reads it, and then reads all his letters over. She really must read Helen some of the juicy passages. Helen just didn't appreciate how nice Johnny was, or she would like him. Some girls can't see how swell boys like Johnny are—even if they aren't patterned after Greek gods. There goes first light flash, here is the roommate, and it is time to go to bed.

Smoking in Belgium after lunch with a friend, she is suddenly struck with the thought that it is a wonderful day. There is no earthly excuse for studying with the weather so like spring that it arouses a feeling quite leaffy in their blood. There go two girls in riding breeches toward the stables. Horse-back riding is not their sport, but perhaps they can rent bicycles somewhere. They do, and study is forgotten as they pedal along trying to find a road that doesn't lead up-hill. After two hours of up-hill work they stagger back to their rooms and have to go to bed.

At dinner the student finds out that Robert Taylor is in a picture showing at the State theater that night. All the gang is going, so she decides to study Spanish during her free period the next morning. She couldn't stand it if they went to the show and left her to study alone.

To the average student it seems that no one ever has to study except herself. Every free hour temptation is thrown in her way. Someone is begging her to make a fourth at bridge, go to town with them, play tennis, go to the show. She finds it hard enough to keep her own personal flights from study under control without some one else suggesting nice things she could be doing instead of burying her nose in a book. If she safely resists one temptation, there is another, bigger and better, lying in wait for her. If no person tempts her from her work there is the sweater she is knitting, letters to write, the room to clean, and the hardest to resist—sleep. Most of the time the average student in the collegiate world of self-analysis realizes that she is more, much more, mouse than man! With so much to turn her away from her work it is a constant wonder that she gets by at all!

Spring brings Slant on fashion

Nelly Don's new

A sedan, a finder and a giver of fashion is Nelly Don, America's famed designer. First now with the new print vogue of lively colors and bold patterns on linens, Nellaspuns, piques, forms on Nellaspuns, piques, showing of sheers that you can wear Nelda Crepes and Nellaspuns. Early with her fabric sheers that you can wear when it's cold or when it's not.

• With the Nelly Don name stitched into every frock to tell you there's more for the money in these well fit, well made fashions.

3.95 to 10.95

(a) Dotted Swiss in Black, Jade Green, Red, Wine, Navy, Empire Blue, 12-44 . . . $3.95

(b) Nelda Crepe, 12-44. Aqua, Black, Gray, Empire Blue . . . $5.95

(c) Daisy print Lanella sheer, Black, Garnet, Navy, 14-44 . . . $7.95

(d) Nellaspun, 12-40, in Bright Blue, Wine, or Green on white ground . . . $5.95

(e) Woven check crepe in Navy, Tan or Green, 12-40 . . . $7.95

(f) Exotic print linen, Navy, Wine, Beige, 12-40 . . . $10.95

Nelly Don

THE VOGUE

Basketball Officials Announce Committees At Meeting Thursday

At the regular meeting of the Tallahassee Board of Basketball officials held Thursday afternoon several committees were appointed.

The new nominating committee consists of Miss Ray Frazier, Miss Nellie Bond Dickinson, chairman, and Marian Weeks. Betty Cottund, Miss Ruth Lehmen, and Frances Thill were placed on the rules and grading committee.

At the close of the business meeting, the new members were formally welcomed. The new members attending the meeting were: Miss Lehman, Betty Cottund, and Fay Corry.

ADAMS STUDIO

"Photographs that Please"

119½ E. College Ave. Phone 297

Pi Beta Phi sorority will entertain Thursday night with an informal after-dinner coffee for invited faculty guests, Eugenia Cannon and Marjorie Stewart are in charge of arrangements for the party which will be held from 7:30 to 8:30 o'clock

Learn to Fly
Via WPA And The Ground

The Florida Flambeau

Published by the Students of Florida State College for Women

See Display Tonight, Tomorrow Night Of Faculty "Fashions"

VOLUME XXIV. Tallahassee, Florida, March 12, 1937 NUMBER TWENTY

ddy to Speak About Present World Affairs

ecture Will Be Offered On Tuesday Evening In Auditorium

ALSO WRITER OF MANY BOOKS

o Traveled Widely; Seen Many Unusual Occurrences

Dr Sherwood Eddy, author of ty volumes on international, economic, social and political questions, will speak here ursday, March 16, on the bject of "The Present World Situation." The lecture previously scheduled for March 15, to be delivered in the large orium at 7:45 p. m.

Addressed Parliament

Dr Eddy, who is a world traveler, and who has worked among ents in Japan, Korea, China, and Russia, addressed the me parliament by request. In addition to having spoken before ions of trade, government, industrial and lik e specialized ups. A graduate of Yale university in 1891, Dr. Eddy began world travelling by a trip to ia. Later he was educated to in connection with Y.M.C.A. k.

Through the whole of his caer, Dr. Eddy has been present ferent of student activity. In Mahatma Ghandi Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, and other the "history makers" of the ersion he has recently published widely read book, Page, pamphlet, "what Shall We Do Next War?"

Mortar Board Plans Meeting

Leadership Conference To Include About 150 Students

Approximately 150 students will participate in the Mortar Board leadership conference which will be held April 2-4 on that campus for the purpose of giving training to the various organizations. All officers of the College Government association, honor societies, social sororities, and clubs will be asked to attend.

At the first session to be held on the evening of April 2 the members of the Tallahassee Council of Parent-Teacher associations will speak at a round table number one for Florida's crippled and handicapped children, and a round table number five for social legislation. From 4:30 until 5:30 p. m. an informal lecture on "Social Planning in Europe" will be shown at the Woman's Club. Following there will be an informal dinner followed by conference groups.

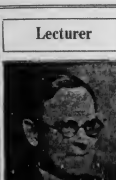
Tuesday, March 16, will be "Pan-Hellenic Social Day." At

Continued on page two

Amine Youssef Bey Visits Campus During State Tour

Egyptian Minister Believes Girls Best Students And Comments on Lack of Young Men At Florida State College

By ANN LADD



Amine Youssef Bey, Egyptian minister to the United States who took up his post in Washington last fall, is visiting in Tallahassee and will be the guest of honor at a group of students at 10:30 this morning in the Augusta Conrad Club theater.

Youssef who is on a three months' good will tour has spent several weeks in Florida gathering data on the state's agricultural system, commerce and send to the Egyptian agriculture office. He believes that the knowledge gained from American methods of agriculture will be extremely useful to the Egyptians in solving some of their agricultural problems.

A pioneer in the cooperative movement in Egypt, Youssef has done much in that country toward cutting down the high interest rates of the farmers and show them ex-

Continued on page two

Lecturer

Sherwood Eddy, traveler and well-known lecturer, who will speak before the student body Tuesday evening in the auditorium at 7:45 o'clock. Mr. Eddy has written many books on economic conditions and is especially interested in problems of the southern rural farmer and the sharecropper.

FEA Meeting Will Draw 16 From Faculty

Hinson, Eyman Will Lead Panel Discussions On Education

Not only will the group of sixteen faculty members, headed by Dr. Edwin Mullins, attend the Florida Education association annual convention in Gainesville, March 18-20, but many of them will also take part in the program scheduled for the convention.

Dr. M. R. Hinson will appear in two panel discussions on elementary and secondary education, and Dr. L. Ermon will head another such discussion. Miss Florence Eyman, who holds the office of chairman of the social studies group, will preside at the session of that group at which H. F. Becker of the geography department will speak. Miss Gladys Fawley, instructor of geography, will address the Council of Teachers of Geography.

Several other of the faculty members from this campus hold offices in the F. E. A. Among those are Dr. Margaret Hector Sandels who is state councilor for the Florida Home Economics association meeting here; and Dr. Nathaniel Moss Salley, who is a member of the board of directors.

The remainder of the delegation will include Dr. Ruth Connor, Miss Lelia Venable, Dr. Mark DeGraff, Miss Grace Fox, Miss Emily Wilburn, Dr. R. B. Saunders and Miss Parmele Hartsfield, Dr. Marion Hay.

Dr. Hay has called a meeting of the Florida chapter of the American Association of Spanish teachers of which she is president, to be during this convention, on March 18, that the annual alum-

Continued on page two

Andrews Affirms NYA Assertion that Only Half Students Applying to Them Can Be Given Help

Word from Washington headquarters of the National Youth Administration to the effect that unassisted applications for student aid in American colleges and universities numbered more than twice as many as those which were able to be answered was confirmed on this campus by Dean Elizabeth Gordon Andrews, who is in charge of the NYA work on the campus.

"Although we have no definite statistics on the subject," she said, "I believe that we have had about three applicants for each place."

Aubrey Williams, Executive Director of the Administration, declared recently, "We cannot be certain what happens to those who have to be turned down, but it goes without saying that many of them either had to leave college entirely or resort to the most dire economies in order to attend. The situation is particularly true of graduate students under the NYA's program of student aid are confined to part time employment.

Word from Washington headquarters of the National Youth Administration to the effect that unassisted applications for student aid in American colleges and universities numbered more than twice as many as those which were able to be answered was confirmed on this campus by Dean Elizabeth Gordon Andrews, who is in charge of the NYA work on the campus.

"Although we have no definite statistics on the subject," she said, "I believe that we have had about three applicants for each place."

Aubrey Williams, Executive Director of the Administration, declared recently, "We cannot be certain what happens to those who have to be turned down, but it goes without saying that many of them either had to leave college entirely or resort to the most dire economies in order to attend. The situation is particularly true of graduate students under the NYA's program of student aid are confined to part time employment.

set at $15 and $25 a month respectively. Dr. Andrews expressed it as her opinion that the schools might beneficially be increased even though by so doing the number of applications filled might not be increased.

"Experience has shown us that relatively few young people ask for student aid unless they actually need it," stated Williams. "Those who accept it are almost always the sons and daughters of low-income families for whom a college education would otherwise be impossible."

He also pointed out that the NYA is extended help to approximately ten per cent of the nation's collegiate population this year at an average monthly cost of about $1,869,000. Figures released above will be of aid to the 616 undergraduate and graduate students enrolled under the student aid program in 1,686 colleges and universities throughout the country.

Moore to Head State Welfare Board Meeting

Social Work Conference Will Convene Next Week in Ocala

The Florida State Conference of Social Work, an organization of which Miss Mabel Moore of Tallahassee is president, will hold its twenty-first session March 14-17. It is being held for the benefit of social workers, board members, and all others interested in social work.

Dr. Moore will preside at the opening session at 1:30 p. m. at the Phoenix hotel in Ocala. The opening remarks will be made by Governor Cone. Appointments of the local committee on arrangements, Dr. J. A. Bullock, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce, and Reverend L. M. Brories, D.D., pastor of th Ocala Methodist church, will be of the evening. "The Church and the Social Work" will be discussed by Rt - Rev. Albert J. Kissling, pastor of the Riverside Presbyterian church in Gainesville. This will be a union service of several of the larger Ocala churches, including the state conference.

Monday, March 15, will be "Church Day," emphasizing Florida's health needs. Monday morning's topic will be "Social Work Today" from 9:30 till 12:30. Monday afternoon from 2:30 to 4 o'clock, round table number one for Florida's crippled and handicapped will be presided as round table number two for public health units, round table number three for nursing service, round table number four for public health units, round table number five for social legislation. From 4:30 till 5:30 p. m. an informal lecture on "Social Planning in Europe" will be shown at the Woman's Club. Following there will be an informal dinner followed by conference groups.

Tuesday, March 16, will be "Pan-Hellenic Social Day." At

Continued on page two

Students Hear Adviser Speak On Activities

Incoming Freshman Head Also Addresses CGA Group

At a meeting of the College Government association yesterday morning, Jo Rudasill, head of Freshman adviser, and Marjorie Baldwin, incoming president addressed the students on the subject of Freshman activities and gave a resume of the activities throughout the past year.

Jo Rudasill said, in the purposes of the College Government association is to foster and direct intelligent interest in all phases of college life and to develop in students some form of education for citizenship and the logical place to start this development, she seem to be with the freshman. Therefore a program was worked out whereby the freshman could become acquainted with the various organizations of the college and would because of this take a greater interest in it.

The freshman adviser works out the freshman week and of the orientation leaders and a training course of four weeks is give: for the girls who have been selected. Jo hip as freshman leaders for the coming session.

Next Jo told of the work that had been done in the way of the freshman orientation this year.

Three weeks after school opened tea, ssarizations, and on the rules of the College Government association, the freshman leaders turned in reports on their interviews with freshmen. These reports were made only more observations from every-day contacts with the freshmen girls.

Orientation period ended with the Pesky party on October 6, when elections were held in December. This year, for th first time a "slate-up" system was carried out. Groups were formed representing various organizations, students' in various extra-curricular activities.

Marjorie Baldwin gave a short talk on the history of the Sophomore Cotillion Club, which was formed by the combining of th Freshman Cabinet and Freshman Commission. She explained that the girls chosen for Sophomore Cotillion will serve the Junior year system, and these girls are tapped in the Spring. In concluding her talk Margie said that although the fellowship idea in had not had a chance to show its real merit this year it will be continued next year and she is sure, will be of very much assistance to freshmen.

Plans for New Honor System Are Explained

Committee Appointed to Set Up Local NSFA Meeting

At the discussion on honor at the regular N.S.F.A. forum last Tuesday night, Martha Masterson explained the plan for a new honor system which will be presented to the student body in the near future.

Three other representative students spoke on various phases of honor, on the campus. Bernice Clifton gave special emphasis on the value of truthfulness; Phil Acher talked on being honest with self as well as with others; and Betty Hatch discussed honor and its relation to citizenship.

Polly Eveleth, chairman of N.S.F.A., presided over the forum where several questions concerning the local, white list, and reporting fellow students were brought up.

Free Classes In Aviation Offered Here

WPA Project Will Inform Students on Flying Fundamentals

REGISTRATIONS DUE THIS WEEK

Physics Department Acts As Host for Seven Week Course

Florida's first all college aviation ground course will be offered to students of Florida State College for Women in a seven-week program opening March 16.

Similar classes will also be offered to the townspeople of Tallahassee. They are both under the supervision of the education division of the Florida Works Progress administration and are being sponsored locally by the junior chamber of commerce. The physics department of the college is acting as host for instruction there. Classes are free.

College Classes to be Taught

Registrations will be taken all week at the chamber of commerce and blanks will be made available to students through Dr. Harold F. Richards and Miss Elizabeth Lyon, in the physics department. The college classes will be taught from 1:30 to 2:30 o'clock Tuesday and Thursday nights. - Town classes will be taught at the same hours and Monday nights at the same hours and will be held in the high school.

Subjects Announced

Instruction will include information about different types of aeroplanes, engines, navigation, meteorology, department of commerce regulations, and air traffic. Subjects will be: airport operation, instruments, inspections, radio, parachutes, civil regulations and aerial photography.

The primary purpose of this course is not to train pilots, necessarily, but to inform the public with aviation," says P. Herbert Coune, the chief instructor for Tallahassee.

According to Mr. Coune, Pitri-

Continued on page two

Allen Reviews Peace Policy

Lockhart, Williams Talk In Many Aspects Of Emergency

Florida State college student action seems to carry no definite campus boundaries and into other student groups most often when world affairs are concerned, declares Virginia Allen, chairman of the Emergency Peace Campaign, stated recently that one of the three-point policy of the campaign was to inform students of the attitude from here to other campuses in regard to the various movements just how much they could do in the way of furthering the hopes of the campaign.

At the meeting held in Broward club last week Arline Gray Lockhart and Eleanor Williams spoke on the economic and political aspects of the present emergency, the topic of the whole meeting being "War and Economics."

In addition to sending out student peace campaigners, the organization has also undertaken to sponsor forums on this campus that will present various aspects of political action in the student body.

The explanation of the latter point, Virginia declared ,that members would write to our congressmen and senators outlining of them just what their ideas were on the maintenance of world peace and how they proposed to carry out these ideas.

At the next meeting, to be he: on the subject, reciprocal trade agreements, will be held Dowland club room Monday from 5 to 6 o'clock.

Barr Elected President

Dorothy Barr was elected president of the Colliton club for the coming year at a meeting held Wednesday night March 10 in Bryan Atrium. Dorothy Olmstead was elected vice-president. Those elected for the other offices were, secretary, Jane Sharon, treasurer, Irene Pack.

New Publication Editors

Eileen Robinson, above left, is the new editor of the Floatacowa. At the upper right is Sarah Sealey, editor of Dixie Debate. Below is Evelyn Flaker, editor of the Flambeau. These new officials will take over their jobs during the latter part of the term.

Old Fashioned "Melodrammer" To Be Offered

Faculty to Present Show Tonight, Tomorrow; Announce Cast

"Fashion" or "Life in New York" is the title of the annual faculty play, an old-fashioned melodrama, in five acts, to be presented tonight and tomorrow night in the Augusta Conrad club theater.

The characters are as follows: Adam Truman, a farmer from Connecticut, Dr. Ralph Hemingway; Count Johnallire, a foreign importation, Mr. Herbert Mendenhall; Mr. Tiffany, a New York merchant, Mr. Walter R. Cowles; T. Tennyson Twinkle, a modern poet, Mr. J. G. Kellum; Col. Howard, an officer in the U. S. army, Mr. Donald Loucks; Snobson, a rare species of confidential clerk, Mr. Owen Kinsley; Snobina, a colored servant, Glenn Terrill, Jr.; Prudence, a modern lady of a certain age, Dr. Elizabeth Andrews; Miss Tiffany, a lady who imagines herself fashionable, Miss Elisabeth Thomson; Seraphina Tiffany, a belle, Miss Elisabeth Lynin; Gertrude, a governess, Miss Rachel Wylie Millinder; a French lady's maid, Miss Bernice Deetz.

The time of the play is in 1850. Characters will wear costumes of the period, and between acts the Little Theater orchestra, directed by Hazel Bowman, will play pieces appropriate at that time.

Directing the play is Miss Doris Terrill, a graduate of the class of '34 who has since received her Master's Degree in play production from Northwestern university.

Tickets are on sale in the bookstore for 25 cents, and the proceeds will be used to defray the general operating expenses of the Alumnae association.

Continued on page two

Appropriation For Next Year Still Unknown

Increased Support For College Is Considered By Budget Board

No nearer agreement than they were weeks ago, Governor Fred P. Cone and the members of the state budget commission confirmed to discuss the recommended governmental budget to be sent to the 1937 legislature Holding that to make any increases in state expenses was to act in opposition to his campaign pledge, the governor refused to approve the proposed budget which provides for an annual expenditure of $12,005,188 for each of the next two years. The increase according to Secretary of State Gray, is due to proposals to raise the state hospital appropriation by $308,000 annually, Florida State College for Women by $123,000, the health department by $140,000, and the University of Florida by $187,000. With the other members of the board refusing to agree to any decreases in these recommendations the situation had reached an apparent deadlock on March 10.

Governor Cone told commission members he wanted to hold the state disbursements to what they were in 1934, so that there would be enough money to provide about $5,000,000 annually for each

Continued on page two

Grete Stueckgold Believes Future for Opera Is Bright

Tells of Progress Being Made In Popularizing This Type of Art Through Radio and Moving Picture Performances

By DOROTHY BARCLAY

"The future for popular-priced opera is very bright indeed," is the opinion of Grete Stueckgold, former prima donna soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Association, who gave an artist series concert in the college auditorium last night.

The greater emphasis placed on dramatic singing by radio artists and the outstanding popularity of this type of art in the moving picture field is a great, ideal of influence in popularizing it with the general public, she believes. Cutting the "dollar-top" performances at the New York Hippodrome and the spring series at the Metropolitan, Miss Stueckgold spoke of the definite progress being made along this line.

"The W.P.A.? What is that?" she asked when queried as to her opinion of the effect of its opera presentations. "Oh, yes," she said when it was explained, "I think it is excellent."

Miss Stueckgold found it hard to choose her favorite opera. "When one is singing in one's one loves them all. Nevertheless, she decided the role to which she was suited best is Isolde and her assignment is that of Eva in Wagner's Lohengrin. Although trained for concert, she has played dramatic roles and cannot say which she prefers "There are some artists, she says, who cannot adjust to both but she has never had this trouble The importance of the conductor cannot be underestimated, but Miss Stueckgold declined to say whose work she admired most.

How much influence the reorganization of the Metropolitan Opera association has had on the present improved financial condition of that group is a debatable point in which the company

Continued on page two

Brooks Named To Head WAA For Next Year

Conn and Spradlin Win In Race for Senior Representative

LINGO WILL LEAD HOUSE CHAIRMEN

Barbara Hendry Captures Post as Off-Campus Group Officer

In the last campus-wide election of the year, fifty-seven per cent of the student body cast their ballots Tuesday for the minor officers of the College Government association.

Defeating Kathleen Gruppe, and Dorothea Marsh in the race for senior representative to the Judiciary, Marion Conn and Hilda Spradlin polled 437 and 459 votes respectively.

With 560, 496, and 450 votes respectively, Mary Ashton, Jean Gillies, and Betty Hatch triumphed over Frances Dunlap, Betty Harrison, and Margaret Wolcott to become the new junior representatives to judiciary.

Elaine Fleischer, with 544 votes, and Frances Slade, with 670 votes, won over Reva Rumpell and Marjorie Jessup to represent the sophomore class on the judiciary next year.

Barbara Hendry was chosen new off-campus committee chairman, defeating Eleanor Hutchinson by a vote of 600 to 449. The personnel of the off-campus committee for the coming year will be Betty Bary, Beverly Brown, Eloise Frink, Marjorie Hinton, Alice Lee, and Anne Lucas.

In the contest for chairmen of house chairmen, Louise Lingo polled 533 votes as against 461 votes as against Viola's 530. Bunny Lowry will fur-ther the athletic organization's vice-president, with a total of 573 as the 417 rant for Sara Lytle. Valerie Hunt defeated Melba Parks to become secretary, and Sarah Jane

Continued on page two

Exhibit Shows Watercoloring

Contemporary Art Show To Be Accompanied By Explanations

A wide variety of watercoloring chnique and design is featured in the current art exhibit, "A Decade in Water Colors," which is now on display in room 307 Art building.

The exhibition which shows the transparent, gouche, and opaque types of watercolor, with the contrasting naturalistic and abstract designs, will be augmented with the aid of Mrs Gilbert Lucas and contemporary explanations of the outstanding modern watercolors.

Some of the most famous and well known of the painters and their works on exhibition are, Charles Burchfield's "Rain of Afternoon," Clarence Carter's "The at Hopper," Charles Demuth's "Buildings and Lite Forms," Ray Fish's "The Herb Doctor," Edward Hopper's noted especially for his lighthouse paintings: "Rock Pedgic," Georgia Eliffrey's "Negglie," Reginald Marsh's "Grain Elevator," John Marin's "Fishing Smacks," and John Wheel's "Sundown."

Miss Amy Ferris Briggs, an instructor in the art department, will give talks during the exhibition on the various watercolorists next Tuesday and Thursday at 4:30 in room 203.

Walker Will Speak Here

This coming Tuesday the Hon. Curtis Walker of Tallahassee will speak for the American Legion on national defense at the convocation program. He is a leading lawyer in the state and several years ago was a legislator from Leon county.

Church Worker To Speak Here All Next Week

Many Activities Crowd Religious Calendar For Students

J. Roy Robinson, state Baptist student secretary and director of the Baptist student group at Gainesville, will arrive here Monday to lead a group of student discussions on "Investments in Christian Living," speaking in the Administration building each afternoon from 4 to 5 o'clock and each evening from 7:30 to 8:15 o'clock, Monday through Friday. The student body is invited to attend.

Mr. Robinson is a recent graduate of Furman University, activity interested in student affairs. He visited the campus earlier this year with William Hall Preston, associate southern Baptist student secretary, with whom he held a series of short student conferences here in January.

Members of the Baptist Young Women's Auxiliary will meet at 7:30 o'clock tonight in Broward lounge. Sadie Anderson will be in charge of the program.

Approximately seventy - five Methodist students met at the student house on Tuesday afternoon to attend the hike and outdoor worship service held in place of the regular business meeting this week. Mary Ola Reynolds and Martha Lester were in charge.

Miss Sadie Young will present the seventh of a series of faculty discussions on "What Religion Means To Me" at the regular Methodist Student school session Sunday morning. League supper will be served at the student house at 1:30 o'clock, followed by the regular league meeting Sunday evening at 6:30 o'clock. Katherine Lowe will lead a special program on "Our Bible."

Tonight at 7:30 o'clock Professor Robert B. Miller will continue his series of lenten lectures at Rose hall, speaking this week on "Mohammed—the Way of Fate." All students are invited to attend. Waffle breakfast will be served again on Sunday morning at Rose hall from 8:30 to 10:00 o'clock with the price of 20 cents per person being used for the student lenten offering. Sunday night members of the Episcopal Young Lary will meet at 7:15 o'clock for the fourth in a series of programs on racial problems. Sallie Rasliff is in charge of this week's study which will be "The Negro in America."

The confirmation class will meet Tuesday afternoon at Rose hall from 4:30 o'clock for a lecture on the "Book of Common Prayer." Anyone interested is invited to attend. On Thursday night at 10 o'clock a compline service will be held, and a communion celebration of the holy communion for members of the student vestry will be given each Friday morning at 7:15 o'clock.

At the regular Sunday night fellowship meeting of the Presbyterian student league a play, "The Whirlwind," will be presented by

HOTTEST YET STRONGEST!

Kotex 12s 19c; 2 for 37c
Kotex 36s 51c; 2 for 1.00
Kotex 48s 67c; 2 for 1.29
Kotex Belts 19c, 29c
Fibs 23c

BENNETT'S
College Inn Pharmacy
PHONE 800

Your hair, your skin, your hands . . . all must be perfectly groomed to complement your beauty this Spring. That means expert attention to every detail . . . a wave in harmony with the Spring mode . . . a manicure that will do justice to the quality of fine fabrics . . . a complexion that gives no hint of being winter-worn.

MAKE AN APPOINTMENT TODAY
POWDER PUFF BEAUTY SHOP
108 S. Adams St. Phone 656

FINAL BALLOTING
In Minor Elections

Representatives to Judiciary

Senior

Marion Cone	537
Kathleen Griffin	187
Dorothea Smith	186
Hilda Spradley	337

Junior

Becky Ashford	560
Frances Douglas	778
Joan Gibbins	488
Betty Hartman	330
Betty Hatch	630
Margaret Wilcox	460

Sophomore

Elaine Fischer	344
Betty Hamilton	317
Margie Jones	392
Ann Sullivan	470

Off-Campus Committee
Chairman

Barbara Bentley	625
Eleanor Hutchinson	315

Members

Betty Barr	566
Mary Ola Brown	1,000
Elsie Frost	562
Marjorie Horton	764
Jean Hunt	1,000
Jack Ellis	451
Jack Rose	651

Chairman of House Committee

Louise Lingle	327
Katherine Lowe	625

Chairman Athletic Association
Vice-President

Viola Brooks	520
Sara Lowe	417

Vice-President

Sunny Lowe	372
Ann Sullivan	417

Secretary

Valerie Hall	613
Stella Park	337

Treasurer

Martha Mathews	337
Sarah Jane Stambaugh	616

Social Chairman Manager

Erma Hunt	476
Marie Jolly	1,000

Free Classes In Aviation Offered Here

Continued from page one

ded Monday and Tuesday only two nights pursuing an aviation program of this nature under the WPA, and Florida is far in the lead of the nation. More than 2000 "students" have taken this WPA course in Florida and about one-third of these are women, Mr. Coune said. Classes are open to the general public of both sexes over 18 years of age. Regular matriculation is not necessary, and no examinations will be given.

Mr. Coune is one of seven instructors with the WPA in Florida and was one of the first students of the state's aviation ground course given by the FERA in Tampa. He has added to the organization of the Floridair club in Tampa, which is open to its own plane and has thirty-two members. Mr. Coune, who has opened an information booth at the chamber of commerce in the municipal airport building, will have office hours from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m.

The curriculum for the Tallahassee aviation ground school is as follows:

First week: Monday and Tuesday, March 15 and 16, 7:30 to 8:30 p. m., brief history of flight, different types of airplanes, advantages and disadvantages of each; 8:30-8:30 p. m., engines, different types of airplane engines, their construction and disadvantages, various methods of cooling engines. Wednesday and Thursday, March 17-18, 7:30-8:30 p. m., principles of aeronautics, nomenclature, structure of the airplane 8:30-8:30 p. m., engines, principle of internal combustion engine, general principle of lubrication.

Second week: Monday and Tuesday, March 22-23, 7:30-8:30 p. m., airplanes, the area of an airplane, forces that act upon an airplane, 8:30-8:30 p. m., engines, theory of carburetion, fuels. Wednesday and Thursday, March 24-25, 7:30-8:30 p. m., how planes are covered, doped and finished, how planes are assembled; 8:30-8:30 p. m., engines, principle of high tension magneto, spark plugs, and starters.

Third week: Monday and Tuesday, March 29-30, 7:30-8:30 p. m., airplanes, different types of a group of Methodist students. During their worship service Sunday morning the Rev. John Williams, who is conducting special services at the Presbyterian church every night this week and next week, will talk to the students, and Rev. Ted Jones, who has charge of the music at these services, will sing.

The Presbyterian students are planning a hike for Saturday afternoon honoring Reverend Jones. All those wishing to go are requested to sign on the Presbyterian bulletin board and to meet in back of Bryan hall at 2:30 o'clock Saturday.

The fourth in a series of prayer services sponsored by the Presbyterian council will be held at 5:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon in the Y. W. C. A. room on the third floor of the Administration building.

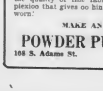
YWCA Sponsors Co-op Project

Dress Shop Opening Has Fashion Show, Music, Refreshments

Tuesday night marked an event in the history of Florida State College for Women with the opening of the first Cooperative Dress Shop, being financed by the Young Women's Christian Association.

Following a program of piano music by Kathleen Gruppe and tap dancing by Vera Brooks, Dallie Bert Nussum introduced each model in the fashion show describing the garment and giving the price. The models were, Bessie Syrett, Rosalind Baer, Donna Mabry, Arline Ford, and Martha Robbins.

At the close of the hour refreshments were served by the hostesses, members of the executive cabinet of Y. W. C. A.



propellors, 8:30-8:30 p. m., engines, warming up, operation of throttle, proper procedure in stopping engine, general principles of taking off. Wednesday and Thursday, March 31, April 1, 7:30-8:20 p. m., navigation, value of aviation, first aid; 8:30-9:30 p. m., meteorology, definition of, importance of aviation, elements of meteorology.

Fourth week: Monday and Tuesday, April 5-6, 7:30 to 8:30 p. m., navigation, the magnetic compass and its errors deviation and variation; 8:30-8:30 p. m., navigation, the compass, cyclones, cloud classification. Wednesday and Thursday, April 7-8, 7:30-8:30 p. m., Department drill, full explanation of difference between ground and air formation, 8:30-8:30 p. m., navigation, how weather data is obtained, and for making daily weather map, full explanation of meaning of symbols as used on weather map.

Fifth week: Monday and Tuesday, April 12-13, 7:30-8:30 p. m., Department drill, sequence regulations, various types of pilot license, learning of mechanics 8:30-9:30 p. m., instruments, navigation, clock, altimeter, air speed indicator, bank and turn indicator; Wednesday and Thursday, April 14-15, 7:30-8:30 p. m., Department of Commerce regulations, licensing of airplanes, marking of airplanes, 8:30-8:30 p. m., instruments, engine, tachometer, fuel gauge, temperature gauge, pressure gauge.

Sixth week: Monday and Tuesday, April 19-20, 7:30-8:30 p. m., air traffic rules, passing, crossing overtaking, landing and takeoff, minimum altitude acrobatics; 8:30-8:30 p. m., inspections, Department drill, Department of Commerce; Wednesday and Thursday, April 21-22, 7:30-8:30 p. m., radio, beacon operations, homing, compass, traffic control towers; 8:30-8:30 p. m., parachutes, different types and construction.

Seventh week: Monday and Tuesday, April 26-27, 7:30-8:30 p. m., air marking, different types of air markings, value to aviation and safety, 8:30-8:30 p. m., airport operation, how traffic is controlled at large airports, value of reasonable and courteous service to local and transient pilots; Wednesday and Thursday, April 28-29, 7:30-8:30 p. m., civil air ways, general description of different types of landing fields and light beacon operation; 8:30-8:30 p. m., airplane engines, explanation of commercial uses and military uses.

Free, open stretches of heather or country meadow . . . the playful fling of wind . . . the friendly sun . . . a crisp fang in the air . . . a joy in living! Of such is the essence of Tweed, perfum esquis by

Lentheric
Paris
$1.25 to $40.00
BENNETT'S
College Inn Pharmacy
PHONE 800

Youth Working On Problems Of School, Country Viewed

Intelligent and Thoughtful Discussion Features Comment of Delegates to Convention Of Nation's College Students

BY MARY JEANNE McKAY

This is the plenary session of a national student convention, and there are present the representatives of college youth from almost every state in the union, as well as observers from foreign countries. The delegates sit at large round tables in a too-spacious hotel dining room, so that the contrast in the size of the room and the people present make the group seem smaller than it really is. At the front of the room, on a raised platform, sits the chairman, a young fellow with a consistent look and an air of mastery concerning the affairs of parliamentary law. Hist, on a balcony at the back of the delegates, are the newsmen, the only ones not at ease, at best with a detached air, to see what the youth of the nation thinks.

The atmosphere about these delegates is somewhat tense. They are going into action today to express their approval or disapproval of the subjects they have been discussing for the past three days, which include everything in the student world from honor systems to the place of the automobile. They seem to know, too, what they are doing.

Waiting for the proceeding to begin at one table in the center sits a Japanese observer, a boyish boy and a girl from a large middle-western college and a Scandinavian chap who is a representative of a British student organization, and two girls from the far eastern women's college. This group is talking earnestly and seriously about racial prejudice and what the students of the United States should pass, but they quiet quickly when the chairman raps for order. After the roll call and the voting procedure has been decided, the chairman asks if any special committee takes charge. She is a mature looking young lawyer studying at a city school, and has a well modulated voice, she begins to read the resolutions handed to her during the convention.

During the discussions from the floor, there is no room for demagogic attracts attention. She is an earnest, red-headed girl from a New England girl's school, and she pleads principally for the cause of anti-War action. She maintains that the world needs drama and force in the call for peace education. As she finishes, the delegates applaud her fervently. Quickly the chairman rises to speak in opposition to her motion, asking for peace demonstrations rather than strikes, to be staged in accordance with the most effective means of obtaining results in the individual community. Another delegate asks for a peace education program, rather than display of anti-War feeling. She is seconded and the chairman is hard pressed to maintain order without calling names.

Following this discussion, an even more heated controversy is raised when one group presents a charter of student rights. The discussion centers on how far a part in shaping the curriculum of their colleges, to handle their own disciplinary problems, and to academic freedom.

When the group motions unanimously to denounce the malpractice of a certain notorious newspaper chain, the balcony sits with renewed interest. The group leans forward to hear itself discussed.

A tall, slim blonde girl with a soft catch to her voice rises to plead the cause of more adequate philosophy and religious opportunity in the colleges. One of the officers of the organization who has been present at other meetings leans forward and says to her companion:

"This is the first time in recent years that religion has even been mentioned."

As the resolution is passed by the group, she turns again to her friend: "Listen! and says, "I'm really moved!" And they begin to discuss in whispers the new trend evidenced.

Throughout the session the comment of the delegates is intelligent and thoughtful. They seem to have eliminated by popular disapproval the feeble attempts at showmanship. They are not without fault, however. At times they disagree, but they seem to avoid deciding what they are going to cast their vote on, and they handle the problems of international relations in half hints. But they are earnest; they are thoughtful, and sincere. They seem rather well-informed and are not without a keen impression of their opinion. They give evidence of possessing a healthy set of ideals. One of the more impressed observers remarks, "Perhaps this is the generation that is going to make the world safe for democracy."

Brooks Named To Head AAW For Next Year

Continued from page one

Stambaugh will be the association's treasurer.

Running the closest race of the entire election memories, Erma Engel, with 476 votes, won over Marie Joffre by a total of fifty-three votes the post of senior historian-reporter.

Although no primary election was held for the election of minor officials, at convocation Tuesday several names were added to the list of the candidates running for house chairmen. Also at this time the candidates were presented to the student body, and a resume of their campus activities was read by Mary Jeanne McKay.

Sometime in April, the date to be announced later, the new officers will take over their positions.

Amine Youssef Bey Visits Campus During Last Tour

Continued from page one

ary possible kindness. "Our climate is just like yours," he said, "except that we have sunshine in our climate. Anyone who comes and takes a drink of water from the Nile will come again."

Youssef is very fond of Florida and is especially attracted by the hospitality that has been shown him here. He has visited in Jacksonville, Palm Beach, Miami, Tampa and Ocala, and from here will go to New Orleans, Texas, and the west coast.

PHOENIX
BOBBED HOSIES
"Budget"

79c

So lovely . . . so stylish . . . so feminine. These Bobbed Hosies, in 4-thread chiffons, do a lot of nice things for your legs—they keep them cool and comfortable, fit superbly and eliminate unsightly garter bulges under your lighter frocks. Lustex bands hold them up securely.

Fashion Pace Colors:
Vogue . . . Sketch . . . Silhouette

LINDEN'S FASHION SHOPPE

Receipt Blanks Replace Checks

Receipt blanks will take the place of the check forms now used in the college Business Office it was announced this week.

Under the banking rules of Florida, checks made out to the college bank can no longer be cashed by stores in Tallahassee. Due to this change the receipts which are to take the place of all checks can be cashed only in the college Business Office.

Grete Stueckgold Believes Future for Opera Is Bright

Continued from page one

found itself was caused by the general depression, and that consequently any betterment might be a result of the general recovery.

Blonde and stately, the London born singer responded gracefully as she talked. "Always before a concert," she said, speaking with a slight German accent.

"Now what is that? A little animal?" Her eyes flashed round on a small insect. "No, no. Don't kill it. He will bring good luck." Then she continued the program with "Des Abends" by Schumann, and "To the Sea," by MacDowell.

A violin solo was played next by Betty Parker. This was "Andante from Concerto No. 7" by De Beriot, which was followed by Brahms' "Ballade, G Minor," played by Eloise Daniels. "The White Peacock," by Griffes, was played next by Catherine Gray Bell.

The program was concluded with an organ solo, Bach's "Prelude and Fugue in D. Minor," played by Evelyn Bayless.

Appropriation For Next Year Still Unknown

Continued from page one

age pensions without enactive any new taxes. The governor has replaced to sign a sales tax, and a tax on gasoline. The passage of these bills would be necessary if the income is to be held from that source.

"A large part of the increase we have proposed is due to actual increases in the cost of living in institutions and certainly we can't cut down on the necessary appropriations," Governor Lee said.

The budget commission deals only with actual state department and institution operations. It has nothing to do with amounts collected by the state and returned to counties for bonds or schools or disbursed by the state road department. These are small matters items directly under control of the legislature, totaled about $32,000,000 last year. Action by the legislature is necessary before any recommendation by the budget commission is effective.

Falling Plaster Halts Discourse

Things were moving along peacefully in Dr. Diffenbaugh's class last Saturday until one of the students noticed that the plaster was beginning to crack due to the hammering in the room above. Word got around and within a few minutes the whole class was in a state of jitters.

Dr. Diffenbaugh continued his discourse on the merits of Galsworthy, attempting to ignore the loud hammering, the cracking plaster and the murmuring students.

After fifteen minutes of this h realized that the odds were against him, sighed meekly and suggested that they move to the next room.

When all were settled he ruminated aloud about the advisability of checking out again to see how many students had taken advantage of the situation, decided against it and went on with the class.

Music Students Perform

Another in a series of student recitals was given last Wednesday afternoon in the college auditorium with an interesting program by seven music students.

Those initiated were: Gerald Albritton, Beatrice Arnold, Rebecca Roberts, Bruce Bryan, Louise De Vore, Dorothy Hamilton, Mary Jane Haney, Lucille Hudson, Ruth ing, Luella Kistler, Laura Cannon, Beatrice Mercer, Mary Lillian McDonald, Jean Pitts, Ruth Sanderson, Grace Shaw, Mary Francis Tanner, Jean Vincent, Marilyn Wolff, Lorraine Burroughs, Essie Hall, Edna Browning, Avalee Austin, Shirley Bess and Edna Sims.

Faculty Teams to Play Volleyball As Part Of Entertainment Tonight

Tonight is Faculty night at the gymnasium. At 8 o'clock the entertainment will begin. Tonight's program is the first volleyball game by faculty players and dancing among the staff will be furnished by the college orchestra.

Students have been asked to invite their favorite professor and he will be followed by the faculty.

The volleyball team will be composed of teams having four members each. The players will include Miss Jewel Graham, Miss Marie Davis, Miss Grace Hayes, Ray Fraser, Miss Kathleen Montgomery, Miss Elsie Mae Mae Derbyshire Hamilton, Robert Miller, William Joubert, Stanley Johnston and Mr. Fletcher Lee.

FEA Meeting Will Draw 16 From Faculty

Continued from page one

ner dinner for Florida state college graduates will take place at 6:30 o'clock, will be at the Anna hotel.

CLARK'S
STATE
PHONE 180
FRIDAY AND SATURDAY
TYRONE POWER
Loretta Young
DON ARECHE
THE GAYEST NEWSPAPER STORY OF THE SEASON
Love Is News
SUNDAY AND MONDAY
March 14 - 15
JUST ONE WORD FOR IT READY WILLING ABLE
TUESDAY, MARCH 16
ONCE A DOCTOR
JEAN MUIR
DONALD WOODS
WEDNESDAY, MARCH 17
GLEAM OF GLAMOUR
THURSDAY, MARCH 18
Humphrey Bogart
in
BLACK LEGION

Sports Squints

By RUTH ATKINSON

Well, the elections are all over and the Women's Athletic Association has a set of new officers. They will really have their hands full, especially the social chairman for the next year. Congratulations to Viola Brooks for her election to the executive position and bouquets to Bunny Dewey, Valerie Hunt, Sara Johnson, Ann Gray and Erma Engel for their honors.

It won't be long now before new representatives from here will be taking that advice about the "rest" for the chosen sorority sisters in Texas at just before getting underway, and some southerners from Florida State are going to be there in full force. One of the field trips that Sunday morning and the second cabaret party were Tuesday morning. Houston here they come!

Tonight is really going to be a big night due to the fact that the faculty volleyball game and the freshman basketball game are coming off at the gym as a part of our big night. That's really going promises to be plenty of fun and excitement, so do so all next week. The intra-mural shuffleboard tournament is in full swing and every afternoon at 4:00 o'clock will come in to hear tales of prominence when they do their chance to shove that disk around.

Predictions made last week concerning "F" club excitement are justified today when the "pins" were found in the dining room arcades running aboveshins for the benefit of the service. Those goals really could have, too! From what we hear, not as though blue Mondays were a thing of the past and blue Fridays have come to take their place—at least for the "F" club set.

Horse-back riding is still one of the most popular sports around here and every Sunday groups of girls can be seen struggling with the art of posting or trying to learn how to attain comfort and ease on the back of a jiggling animal. One freshman was complaining the other night that the muscles in her legs have developed so much from the unaccustomed exercise of walking up and down those hills that she can't get her riding boots on or rather she can get them on but it stops the circulation in her feet. That's real martyrdom for the sake of a sport.

Then there's the girl who got spring fever so badly last Sunday that she put on her bathing suit and stretched out on a blanket back of the dorm to take a sunbath. It wasn't long however, before the chill of the March wind cooled her spring fever and she ran back inside. It won't be long now though, girls, before sunbaths will be the most popular form of recreation on campus.

The gym took on a very sophisticated appearance Tuesday night when it was used for the President's reception.

Loftin Will Speak At Commencement

Scott Loftin, former senator of Jacksonville, will be the commencement speaker at the exercises in May, according to Dr. Edward Conradi, president.

Mr. Loftin was a state representative in 1906, fifteenth president of the American Bar association, former president of the Jacksonville Bar association, Florida chairman of the American Counsel association and emisser from Florida.

Freshmen Hold Swimming Meet At Play-Night

Speed and Form Events To Feature Sport At Gym Tonight

Twenty-one freshmen will churn the water of the college pool tonight as the annual freshman swimming meet, featuring a variety of events for speed and form, gets under way at eight o'clock.

The list of events include, 25 yard free style—speed, side stroke form, 25 yard back crawl-speed, elementary back-form, 25 yard English racing-speed, crawl over-arm-form, diving: Required, running front and back—three optional dives, and apple race-speed.

The general pool regulations will be included in the requirements for participation in the meet. The entrant must have all passing grades and an "A or B" or "C heads for form events, and must have been out for at least four practices. Each entrant is allowed to take part in only speed events and three form events.

Swimmers include: Doris Jones, Evelyn Sleet, Yvonne Matthews, Marjorie Harwick, Mary Collins, Martha Robbins, Virginia Makemson, Genevieve Makemson, Gladys Peacock, Carolyn Collins, Ruth Stonecipher, Kitty Ford, Marryday Rosser, Connie Ash, Sarah Jane Stambaugh, Isabelle Ramsay, Jane Bishop, Betty Youngs, Marjorie Benson, Janet Lewis, and Joan Miller.

Officials will be: Referee, Valerie Hunt; assistant referee, Frances Thill; scorer, Dot White; announcer, Janet Cook; starter, Pelicia West; clerk of course, Nan Clark; diving judges, Miss Fraser, Miss Fox and Miss Lehmann; form judges, Ruth Agnes McClain, Florence Ward and Margaret Maxwell; timers, Mildred Seskins, Jean Cowart, Dot Coburn, Bunny Lowry, and Sarah Lytal; announcers, Betty White, and Viola Brooks.

Shuffleboard Contests Scheduled Immediately On Intramural Program

With the maker intra-murals a thing of the past, the minor intra-murals are now holding the sport spotlight. This week and next have been set aside for shuffleboard tournaments. Games have played every afternoon this week and will be played every afternoon of next week at 4:30 o'clock. The finals will be played at playnight next week.

Tournaments are open to any organization, and those which have entered teams include: Sphynga, Esteven, Kappa Delta, Phi Mu, Alpha Omicron Pi, Zeta Tau Alpha, Pi Beta Phi Kappa Alpha Theta, Theta Upsilon, New Club, Episcopal students, Alpha Chi Omega, Alpha Xi Delta, and others.

Telephone Hogs Prove To Be Dominant Species On Campus

Life's Minor Tragedies Transpire in Long Lines Of Girls "Who Only Stand and Wait" In Vain for Use of Phone

By NANCY ROGERO

"Wait just a minute. I can't hear you. I said wait just a minute. Yes. No, there're people going by and I can't hear you. What? Yeyah. Friday night? Gee, I'd love to, honest. What time did you say Friday night? Wait! I wish these people would quit crowding around the phone. You still there, honey? Oh, I'm sorry. I didn't mean it, really? No kiddin'. . ."

Several of the people crowd up, and in the throes of the annoyed expressions on their faces reveals their impatience. Others stared ominously at the back and occasionally shrugged their shoulders at the speaker, who continued muttering sweet nothings to an unheeding audience. Others with infinitely varying intensities.

"Uh huh Do you really think so? Yeah, I know (sarcastic how.) Well, what do you think? (giggling laugh intended to be very appealing.) What? (somewhat peeved.) Why, of course, Huh? I didn't hear. I—I—I—I—I—I—I—I said I can't hear with so many people around. Well, there isn't any use to talk to phone."

Someone in the crowd of waiting girls muttered something about certainly wishing there were, and two others left the crowd in undisguised disgust.

"Johnny, still wishing. . . I think maybe you'd like to talk to use the phone now. Yeyah. I'll remember. Uh huh. Bye, now, Bye."

She walked away unmindful of the angry stares of the waiting would-be phone-users. The next in line advanced to the position of conversationalist.

"Hello, what are you going to wear? What? I don't know. Is everyone else going to be wearing sports. I'm certainly not going to appear in a street dress. Really? The last time? I've even heard that it might be formal this time. What? I can't hear you. Oh. No. I don't think so. Well, my sapa crepe hasn't come back from the cleaners yet, and Jean hasn't returned my blue silk. I haven't a clean pair of stockings to my name. What? No, that's all right. Betty has some I can borrow. I said, never mind. I can get some. Yeah, that's all right. By the way, is anybody from the house saving places? I said, is anyone saving places for dinner? Oh, well tell her we'd like three, please. Three. O. K. Thatkaint. G'bye."

The line advanced one person to the phone. She had been twitching a yellow slip in her hand impatiently, somewhat nervously.

"210, please, e'y. . . . Hello? Hello . . . this is Betty Ann Jones. Betty Ann Jones. I got a notice to call this number a little while ago. Yes. 210. No. I don't know who it could be. Yes, I'm sure that's the number. I—says so here on the paper. Isn't there anyone there who wanted to speak to someone at Ice college? Betty Ann Jones. No? Well, that all right. Yes, thank you. Thank you." She hung up the receiver rather unhappily as the line waited all that time, she thought to herself.

One more "waiter" reached the coveted post. Hers was an important call.

"Hello, Jane? Jane, this is Mary. Do we have a parallel for tomorrow? I know it. She never fails. You don't know what it is, though? Well, what do you think . . . are you going to read the first 50 pages as usual? Oh yes, we have a regular assignment, too. Didn't you get it? Well, wait just a minute . . . I've not my book right here. I said wait just a minute. . . . Hello? Jane? Oh, I thought you'd hung up. Here it is. Lits 18 on page 343 to line 26 on page 351. That's right. 15 on 343 to 19 on 351. Do you remember what we were supposed to read for psych today? or never? Oh, you've already done it. D'ya think she'll pop another quiz? I know it . . . that simply slayed me. Why, no one was prepared. Yeah. Uh huh. Well girls' dormitory.

"Line, I think that's the dinner bell. Yeah, the dinner bell. Bye now. Goodbye. See you at dinner."

She smiled sweetly at the one remaining person—the girl whose sole object had been to make a brief call for a place at dinner. The latter's shoulders sagged somewhat as she picked up the receiver and said quietly.

"Hello. Hello? Please send one hamburger and a lime doge to Bryan. Yes . . . That's all. Thank yr."

Did someone say read hogs were the evil of society? Perhaps they never tried to place a call from a girls' dormitory.

Goats Black Boots Of Actives Friday

The dining hall arcades have been turned into shoe shine parlors today with "F" club goats as bootblacks and actives as customers.

This is part of the goating plans arranged at the meeting of the club Tuesday night. Every Friday, from now until the excursion to camp, will be set aside for special goating. All the girls will wear their letters and will sit at reserved tables in the dining hall.

Players Begin Ball Practice

Leaders of Diamond Ball Teams Are Viertel And Spradlin

Forty-nine girls have reported so far for Odd-Even diamond ball practices which were begun last week.

No date has been set for the ending of the season. And it is not too late for others who are interested to report for these practices. Odd practice is held Monday, Wednesday and Friday afternoon. Even is held Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday afternoons.

Hazel Viertele is in charge of the Odd practice. Those girls who have begun practice for the Odd team are: Ruth Magnus, Mary Jane Cone, Mary Emily Parker, Marion Leslie Bunny Lowry, Ruth Williamson, Ruth Ann Sadie Anderson, Mary Palmer, Fay Covey, Louise Bryan, Nancy Williamson, Jean Collins, Jackie Oates, Dot Meinar, Marion Webb, Harriet Duke, Doi Colburn, Mary Lou O'Haver, Ruth Barington, Betty White, Merle Dickson.

Hilda Spradlin is in charge of the Even practice. Those girls who have reported for Even practice are: Essie Nell Black, Helen Brown, Nan Clark, Mary Ruth Clayton, Frances Fryer, Meta Meinar, Yvonne Matthewson, Mary Moor, Fern Robertson, Ruth Rogers, Judy Triplet, Pelicia West, Frances Waterhouse, Kate Barret, Marjorie Rasberson, Ruth Wheeler, Charlie Prescott, Lillian Douglas, Louise Prine, Catherine Kirby-Smith, Marjorie Brewer, Audrey Cooper, Pat Mack, Lynett Thompson, Elaine Felker.

Member of "Campused Club" Deserts License-Tag Poker and Novels to Pass Time Playing Bridge

"I sat on the corner and played a little poker with license tags last time I was campused," piped up one annoyed soul as she sat at the bridge table. "But I just don't seem to have time for card anymore We members of the Campused Club spend most of our time playing bridge. Every once in a while we take time out to go to Roo or to play-ouch but bridge seems to be our only interest these days.

"Somehow I used to get caught up on my studying everytime I was campused, and I read every magazine I could lay my hands on. I even went to the browsing room once But I just can't seem to get interested in anything anymore.

"My campused colleagues always sit on the corner and wait for the mail or for an order from the office. They spend more and more time sitting on the corner and they eat more junk. Some of them actually sit there and read, and they stop everyone that passes to see if they can strike up a little conversation or learn some new gossip. Can you imagine that? When they could just as well be playing bridge. They spend half their time in the kitchen cooking strange concoctions, or in the smoking room gossiping. But somehow with my bridge I just don't seem to have time to waste like that.

"You know, I used to enjoy a game of tennis or an hour or two of knitting or reading when I was campused. And of course I attended all the artist series and belonged to all the organizations on campus. But really, it's all I can do to find enough time for my bridge these days.

"Bored? I should say not. With my bridge to keep me interested; I think it would be a marvelous idea if there was a school rule to the effect that everyone is required to be campused for a certain length of time every semester. So much more work could be accomplished and just think of the bridge tournaments we could have!"

Swimming Leaders Plan Odd-Even Competitions

There will be a meeting tonight of the Odd-Even swimming leaders to make arrangements for meets.

At this meeting it will be decided how many meets will be held, what the dates will be, when the teams will be picked, rules for the meets and what events will be included in the competition.

Those who will be present to-night are Miss Betty Washburn, Jo Hethcox, Sara Jane Stambaugh, Dorothy Marwick, Winnona Ireland, and Viola Brooks.

Twelve Attend Texas Meeting

Girls Will Demonstrate Pre-Classic Dance Form in Houston

Two carloads of representatives from Florida State will leave the first of next week to attend the meeting of the Southern Division of the American Physical Education Association in Houston, Texas. The eight students from Florida State will appear in a dance demonstration of the pre-classic form of approach. The demonstration will include Pavane, Gigue, and Gavotte.

Accompanying the students will be Miss Katherine Montgomery, head of the physical education department. Miss Nellie Bond Dickinson, and Miss Kay Pearce, instructors in physical education. The students are: Pelicia West, Dulcie Cavagnero, Isabelle Sands, Ruth Fraver, Janet Cook, Ruth Deane, Viola Brooks, Betty Cellund. Katherine Gruppe will accompany the dancers as musician.

Miss Dickinson will give a lecture at the meeting on the "Pre-classic Dance Approach to Dance Composition."

Costumes of the period are being furnished by the Home Economics and Dramatic departments of Florida State.

THE SWEET SHOP

703 West Jefferson — Opposite Gilchrist
Phone 1091 — We Deliver

WEEKEND SPECIALS

Bar-B-Q with Potato Chips 15c
15c Ice Cream Soda 10c

TRY OUR 25c PLATE

Evelyn Chandler . . . . Daring . . . . . Lovely . . . . . Wing-footed . . . . . Skating Marvel

HELLO! Evelyn Chandler—America's Queen of Figure Skating! She's the only one in the world who can do a complete circle inverted without touching the ice. It's called—

THE ARABIAN CART-WHEEL. Yes, it takes beauty to do it! She's the only one in the world who can do a complete circle inverted without touching the ice. It's called—

INTO A SPIRAL. Evelyn's balance and stamina are proof of good physical condition. About smoking, she says: "Camels never interfere with my physical condition. They're mild!

"ACROBATIC SKATING at breakneck speed is strenuous and exciting," continues Evelyn. "It takes a digestion to match. I always light up Camels at mealtimes and afterwards. They help me enjoy my food and give me a sense of well-being."

19 DIZZY SPINS in rapid succession are a thrilling accomplishment in working digestion stands Evelyn in good stead. "Camels set me right," she says. "They never tire my nerves."

WHY HEADLINERS IN WINTER SPORTS MAKE IT CAMELS

COSTLIER TOBACCOS

Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS—Turkish and Domestic—than any other popular brand

SPARK-PLUG of the Detroit Red Wings is Herb Lewis. Herb says: "Camels always top off a good meal to perfection."

"STREAKING DOWN a hole-in-one demands nerves of steel," says Raymond F. Stevens. "Camels never bother my nerves."

BIG BUCHMAYR, internationally famous ski expert, says: "I smoke Camels with my meals and after meals, for digestion's sake! Camels speed up the flow of digestive fluids—alkaline digestive fluids. Camels are mild—easy on the throat.

EVERY TUESDAY NIGHT!—Jack Oakie's College

DO YOU ALL AT HOME ENJOY CAMELS?

Irrepressible Jack Oakie leads you through a full hour's gala entertainment. Imagine Jack Oakie running a college! Don't miss him or his supporting cast! Benny Goodman's "Swing" Band! Hollywood comedians and singing stars! Special college amateur talent every week! Tuesdays—9:30 pm E.S.T., 8:30 pm C.S.T., 7:30 pm M.S.T., 6:30 pm P.S.T., WABC-CBS.

FOR DIGESTION'S SAKE—SMOKE CAMELS

CHOOSE YOUR EASTER OUTFIT at

GELBERG'S

MIRACLE

Dresses
$5.95 to $10.95

Shoes
$2.95 to $6.00

ACCESSORIES TO MATCH

• A true miracle wrought in fragrance. As stirring to the soul as deep-throated church entery bells chiming in the mysterious silence of the night. The splendour of the opus is in Miracle—perfum enjoi by

Lentheric
$1.25 to $40.00

BENNETTS
College Inn Pharmacy
PHONE 800

GELBERG'S
"Complete Store for Ladies"
COLLEGE AVENUE

The Florida Flambeau

Entered as second class mail matter January 20, 1915 at the post office at Tallahassee, Fla. under act of Congress of March 3, 1879

Why? Why Not? Compulsory Convocation—

Sixteen senate exhibited unmistakable signs of life Wednesday afternoon when several enterprising members put up student problems for discussion.

Most important among these at the moment seems to be the matter of compulsory convocation. Members gave this topic a good going-over but deferred concrete action until objective data tabulated on the recent College Government questionaire in connection with student opinion on the matter could be brought before the group. The next senate meeting, scheduled for two weeks from Wednesday of this week, will be devoted to further discussion of the problem.

As a result of the Wednesday meeting, however, it seems advisable to present the following facts as given by senate members for and against compulsory convocation.

In the first place, why compulsory? The college runs under the plan of student self-government which in turn depends, theoretically, upon the "yess" and "nays" of students. Convocation is devoted to the (infrequent) voicing of such opinions, to interpreting college regulations, to devotional services (not mentioned in senate by compulsory convocation speakers, however), to ont-of-town and local speakers, and to student body announcements. College government officials and administrative officers of the college no doubt feel that the weekly convocation is the one gathering-fete that all students will hear all announcements. Many groups also feel that the weekly devotional is a necessary thing in the lives of maturing young people. Therefore, to make sure that all students attend this weekly meeting it became an administrative ruling with College Government responsible for its enforcement.

Why not compulsory convocation? Is the weekly meeting really necessary? It is undeniably true that no one bothers to express an opinion in student body meetings. The convocation devotionals have always been objectionable to several groups of students not of the faiths represented by these services. Out-of-town speakers are few and far between, and students are not very interested in hearing the same local speakers over again year after year.

As for the announcements, nearly all organizations which pretend to aggressive programs throughout the year make their announcements either by way of bulletin boards or through the campus mail. Convocation announcements as well as dining room announcements would be unnecessary in most cases if organization leaders had advance planning for their programs. (The Flambeau runs a calendar each week to which, in the several years of its existence, no campus organizations have bothered to contribute.)

Further, advocates of non-compulsory convocation said, a weekly bulletin similar to the one published at the University of Florida and distributed to all students could be used for making announcements. (This might be financed with the funds now used for sending out seating appointments and absence notices and through advertising from local merchants.) One speaker moreover voiced the opinion that broken seats and the lack of proper acoustics were enough to disgust anyone with the idea of attending convocation, and her suggestion was that those who wished to go to a weekly devotional in the auditorium be appointed to good seats and that those who did not wish to attend regularly be left to shift for themselves as far as both seating and spiritual problems are concerned.

Since the Thursday morning hour, formerly set aside for emergency convocations, has been put to good use as a class period, said another senate representative, the Tuesday hour might be just as valuable for this purpose. Her suggestion was that upon the occasion of a special convocation an hour out of the regular schedule be used as is done at Gainesville.

No doubt many other arguments for and against compulsory convocation will be brought to the next senate discussion. It seems, however, that as long as compulsory convocation is in the form of an administrative ruling it is the duty of College Government to see that it is enforced. At the same time students will continue to chafe under the idea of compulsion and no doubt will achieve the removal of the present ruling. For that reason the only sensible thing is to look at the problem in as unprejudiced a manner as possible and as soon as possible.

It is true that the University of Florida has few convocations. Students there say that they have almost a one hundred per cent turn out on convocation days because this student get-together has become a distinct privilege. The psychology of getting convocation attendance seems to center upon the removal of compulsion, certainly at least with men. University officials are no doubt as much concerned about the spiritual life of students as the local groups. It seems only fair to say though that spiritual matters are not usually looked upon as requiring compulsion. Within a year two outstanding ministers have told Florida State students that they did not favor such an attitude, and many people believe that all spiritual value is lost the minute one group attempts to force its program upon another group.

On the behalf of present convocation programs it is only fair to say that they surpass anything present students have known for interest and value. If the present idea of student programs is continued and developed it may well be that without compulsion Florida State students will realize convocation attendance as a privilege and not as a period of weekly boredom.

Those Change Who Change Themselves—

With the second semester barely started, you find yourself disgruntled; college has not done all you expected. Somewhere you had gotten the notion that college was an ideal stage of life; that it, of itself, would develope you into a "first example of womanhood." You had supposed it capable, by its own efforts of bringing out your native ability, teaching you at the same time group cooperation, making you a lady, strengthening your character, building up your health, and increasing your intellectual interests. But can college, by itself, do all these things!

Can it, first, bring out your native ability? No, unless you force it to, it cannot. The machine is impersonal; that is, special aptitudes are buried for the good of the herd. Also, in a desire for well-rounded personalities, the college drags the musician to the library; the classicist to daily newspapers; the artist to the hockey field. Through its inexplicable curriculum, it requires courses of no practical value to the student and sends her out passively "educated" but with the development of her talent delayed.

Does not this submission to general welfare then insure training in group cooperation, you ask. As Gilbert said, "Hardly ever." It may openly injure native bent but not your native egotism. In a desire to "be somebody," you learn to kow-tow to the leaders when you are the underdog; to cater to public opinion when you are the leader. You become, nearly always, either a boss or a hypocrite, not a cooperating member of the group.

Nor does college naturally make you a young lady. Your time is sometimes unconously suffer. Your courtesy diminishes — can hardly do otherwise when you stoop to saying, "Hey," to a professor. Your social poise is lost through lack of practice: if you are lucky, you may remember how to talk to a man.

Neither can you say that college improves your moral character as a matter of course. Surrounded by rules, you become acustomed to breaking them. Through a false sense of student loyalty, you ignore cheating in examinations. Through the collector mania, you steal souvenirs, often valuable. And through a desire to be with everyone else, you smoke, kiteh-hike, and do other things, your mother has forbidden you.

Your health, which the regularity of hours and meals should be supposed to improve, is not bettered. It is true that light flashes were created to send you to bed, but bed does not mean sleep. Meals likewise are theoretically regular, but you are free to skip them or to eat between them. And there are no regulations as to what you feed your stomach.

Lastly, you had expected a natural improvement in your cultural interests. It does seem, to tell the truth, that you must gain something from your contact with good thought. Your tests show that you have acquired vocabulary, but sometimes, however—your movies, cheap novels, everfrivolous conversation—still show a school girl mentality. As yet, you attend lectures only if the speaker is young, handsome, and a bachelor.

Yet you grumble and blame college for not making you a better person. College itself cannot do it. College furnishes you the means; whether you use them detrimentaly or beneficially depends on you. You can make college lose you, or find you.

—By Frances Waterhouse.

Spirit of the Week . . . . . By Scott

This Week

Supreme Court Issue Opened by President

BY CLOUDE O'HOURKE

President Roosevelt opened fire for the first time this week by taking his appeal for a revision of the Supreme Court direct to the people. His "fireside chat" broadcasted Tuesday night devolved into the most vigorous plea he has made since the 1936 campaign.

In outspoken fashion, the chief executive declared that the high tribunal had "improperly set itself up" as a "super-legislature" and had read into the constitution "words and implications which were never intended to be there." In view of this fact, he called for swift enactment of his court reorganization bill to "save the constitution from the court and the court from itself."

The contempt he has cut across party lines more jaggedly than anything since the beginning of the New Deal. Many Democrats oppose the President's plan on the ground that it is a direct blow to democratic government. They feel that the diminution of the power of the third branch of government will destroy our republican structure, and that no state will have any rights except those permitted by a politburo congress and a political executive.

Jeffrey vs. Hamilton. Calhoun vs. Clay. States rights vs. strong central government. The issue is still with us.

The most drastic wave of sitdown strikes that the automobile industry has experienced began in Detroit Monday in the midst of collective bargaining conferences between Chrysler Corporation and the United Automobile Workers union.

Following the rejection of a demand by U. A. W. for exclusive collective bargaining privileges, sit-down strikes developed in all major Detroit plants of the Chrysler Corporation and the Hudson Motor Company, affecting 70,000 workmen.

Richard Frankenstein, labor representative, is demanding that collective bargaining rights for the U. A. W. despite the fact that all automobile workers are not members of the union. Walter P. Hutchinson, Chrysler director, says, "We are willing to bargain collectively with them for their own members. Beyond that we do not agree to go. We also wish to work in our plant will be responsible for holding it open and to do so." The deadlock held throughout the week.

Expenditures for world rearmament have reached such proportions that they no longer have any significance. When money is expressed in terms of millions it is beyond the scope of imagination. Continued on Page Five

University Editorials . . . . .

Fortunate indeed are those who are granted the opportunity to "see themselves as others see them" and get a chance to improve further. From the Florida Alligator at the University we get a glimpse of an editor's opinion of our cherished campus plans.

Anti-war! Who isn't interested in preserving his neck?

Peace, however, on an international scale will never come as the result of a few fraternity students shouting from soapboxes on campuses all over the country. It will never come after many years of collective effort by every age group in every nation of the world.

And this effort—in what direction is it being expended? The most effective approach to any problem is that positive action. Then, shouldn't the move be toward peace rather than against war? Have you assured peace for the world when you shout down those determined to by the world today?

No! There are few moments, events taking place everyday in every city which tend toward universality, development of a more permanent nature than war does. Squabbles over petty economic and political problems, greed, selfishness and lack of consideration for the next-door neighbor build up a greater obstacle to world peace peace than the bombing of an entire fleet of battleships.

This idea could be carried to great lengths. Books have been written, theories even read, which expound these ideas. But the immature student continues to lambast the ROTC, discredit the Army and Navy, and sign the Oxford pledge.

They have not studied the psychology of the period just prior to and including the entrance of the United States into the World War. They cannot see that propaganda, of a slightly different types than that, which is getting small groups, as the Emergency Peace Commission would have these same groups to change their names and begin to shout from the house tops for the scrap of the foreign nation which has tried to destroy the ships or citizens of our country tree peace or death to and about belligerent territory.

No the problem is not being alone in peaceful ways. Anyone is only being tossed into the sea. Forget your pet theory of the Hall of Wars. Then do all you can to spread the true feeling of brotherhood throughout the universe which would solve or at least minimize the ever-present danger of world disharmony.

The Tulane Hullabaloo offers an encouraging pat on the back" to prospective graduates in its recent editorial "Opportunity Knocks". It's cheering to hear that times are better on the outside.

It isn't so long ago that everyone was worried about the boy stepping out of college into a depression-ridden world. There wasn't much opportunity for the young graduate; seeing into a field of struggling businesses, and industries, and in general, he had no lead forward to either working at a meager salary or not working at all.

Things have changed a bit since then, however. The young college graduate now has pretty good possibilities for finding worth-while employment in almost any field he chooses.

In fact, it's quite possible that just the position you're looking for is waiting for you right here at the University. Nowadays, modern businesses have their own ideas about the type of man they want, and rather than wait for him to come to them, they go to considerable trouble to look him up before somebody else gets him. It's a proposition mutually beneficial.

All of which leads up to the fact that business firms all over the country are training their own executives, and choose their raw material from the top classes of our nation's universities and colleges.

Personnel crews make a practice of contacting representatives of these institutions at regular intervals to discover the existence of capable, desirable men. Perhaps you're just the man they want.

Merely because you're not interested in a professional college incidentally, doesn't eliminate you. It merely means that the field of business men with business or commercial degrees, which isn't true in numerous instances, where is generally educated, broadly intellectual journalism is all that's required.

These opportunities are being offered right now, and probably the dean of your college can furnish the necessary information. If you're graduating in June and believe you have the qualifications, there may be an interesting career awaiting you right inside the door of the dean's office.

That our campus problems are strictly our own is an illustration deer to some of those persons who read publications of other student groups. In two editorials, one from the Blue Stocking, publication of the Presbyterian College, Clinton, S. C., the other from the Hastings Collegian, Hastings College, Nebraska, we find that similar faults expound.

From the Blue Stocking we get the plea to "Vote Tomorrow."

Once again an election draws nigh. Tomorrow you will have the opportunity and privilege of choosing men whom you think are most capable or fulfilling the duties of their respective offices. At the same time also you will have the opportunity of being indifferent, or worse still, of letting someone else do your voting for you via the false optimism of that bogey-bear

Continued on Page Five

Collegiate Comebacks

With Pan-Hellenic dance coming off next week-end, we suggest that with the speed of four antelopes you discover which of your sorority sisters has a brother of the danceable age in a position to afford an orchid corsage and of the disposition to accept invitations from strange women. In other words, you'd better grab off anything you can set as a substitute for an escort to Pan-Hellenic hop.

* * * *

Casual observation: When the candidates for minor C. O. A. offices were introduced in convocation Tuesday, we couldn't help noticing that the latter names trimped across the stage in heels, while upperclassmen stamped over it minus said heels. All of which probably goes to show that upperclassmen are nearer to nature than freshmen, or are we getting Wordsworthian?

* * * *

From the Log we print the following entitled Disrestived Lament:

I've washed my undies every night
For nights of countless number;
I've drunk the coffee that is right
To drink, if I would slumber:
I've eaten fish many a meal and meal
From an evening or tedium
By scrubbing down my coat of tan
With B. O.-destroying medium:
I tint my nails to different shades
To suit my different dresses:
I've left it to the barber's blades
To deftly trim my tresses;
I've rinsed my mouth with burning scurf
To ward off halitosis;
I'd hate to have my fond Hello's
Offend my best friends' noses!
In short, I've scrubbed and rubbed and rinsed
Until my soul is harsred.
But advertisements still do bunk
Because I'm STILL not married!

* * * *

Keenly observant, the Rollins Sandspur points out that Helen of Troy was the first woman to get her gowns from Paris. Yeah, but like the rest of us, she wound up by patronizing the home industry.

* * * *

From the Campus Chat we learn that a student at S. M. U. was tested for such. He grew. Intoxicates grasshoppers un alcoholized lettuce and observes that, human-like, they are stunned and pass out, reviving later. Unhuman-like, however, they do not hiccough nor do they apparently have a hangover, although they have been as prone to imbibing as we. What, no hiccoughs no hangovers? Line forms to the right for those human guinea pigs wishing to devote their lives to science.

* * * *

The Auburn Plainsman tells us of the Washington, State bachelorhood which has decided that the present outbreak of colds and flu among college students following the week-end can probably be attributed to the increase in promiscuous kissing which occurs on the week-end. Things have certainly come to a pretty pass when our only solace is in the knowledge their colds before us poor unfortunates who never have any.

A static die in the Rayzean is directed toward the feminine sex in general:

Her body is a shrivelled deep—
Thinner I would say;
When a little soap and water
Will wash it all away.

According to the Creightonian, Kilen Glasgow, famous novelist, asserts that "many well-to-do students spend around an hour and if they had issued from mere windy emptiness." We print this to console those freshmen who are struggling along nobly with impossible themes.

* * * *

Magazine Jottin

BY SARAH SEALEY
and
SARAH BETH DAVIS

I Thought I Knew My France By Andre Vaillant

In this lively little satire a native Parisian upsets any number of the myths that Americans who "think they know their France" foolishly accept as truths.

Take, for example, that song about fifty million Frenchmen. After counting and recounting and finally consulting the "World Almanac," the best that Mr. Vaillac can do is 41,834,973, even including Lily Pons, Maurice Chevalier, and Charles Boyer.

Although the population myth is more or less to the point of full million Mona Lisa women, this suave Frenchman has a field day with the phrase—"very; stimulating"—for American movies and American war songs. On the latter he looks askance at the tendency to "make love-making" attractive and irresistible to readers that, incidentally, hate it.

French scholars knocking around Europe in Paris a city of Wine, Women, and Song? The city of luxury, depravity, and pleasure? Not in this native's nature. Rather, comes the morning the Parisiennes, wearing old clothes and often shabby clothes, scurry off to work in factories and offices, struggle to get to work and the butcher, baker, and candlestick maker, and as a rule are about in bed by 10 P. M.

A few lesser myths Mr. Vaillac proceeds to destroy in this revelation written for the American Mercury. "French women" are not "French toast" aren't French complexions at all. Moreover, Frenchmen aren't "French kissing," but they do like "American pressing." Incidentally, in France there is no equivalent to a half-cup.

There is one thing that American women have that they like the correct thing in Paris. In real life, the Folies Bergere and such like are not interesting to learn from the author that Folies do retain their reputation, but have rapidly falling away had to begin to put on burlesques in the Broadway manner.

Finally, 5 million Frenchmen can't be wrong. Evidently 127,541,000 Americans can't either.

Careers In Government By Leonard D. White

From a United States Civil Service Commissioner in Washington comes this information young men and women, particularly those of college-bred, to follow careers in government service.

Writing in the March Scribners M. White shows that the possibilities which the civil service examinations open to the young college graduate are bright. This examination leads to appointments in almost every department of the federal administration.

Granted that the applicant has received sufficient to pass this examination, there are opportunities demanding a greater facility in training after the first job has been secured. Realizing this need, the big wigs in the public administration have required a system of yearly official programs designed to create efficient employees.

Prior given in 1934, the examinations made more than 1200 young graduates eligible for junior positions since that time. Requiring practical experience, the junior professional administrative are based on a college record with a student majoring in bacteriology is eligible to take the examination for junior bacteriologist. If he passes, he has an opportunity to work with the United States Bureau of Health.

The civil service does not offer a spectacular or a money-making career. Instead, it offers that which is holds out are personally satisfying. Those who "are content to work with ordinary tools, to develop the professional interest of our national life."—A. W

Conflict on the Campus By J. C. Long

The demands of vocational career-hunting and the decline of authoritative teaching are the cause of great confusion in higher education according to J. C. Long in the March issue of Scribners. As related to this much-discussed problem, Mr. Long points out that there is no certainty, his unpreparedness for life. His ability to think clearly and independently.

Mr. Long claims that the specific course is good for the majority of undergraduates, but that its flexibility makes less grounding for a vocational training. Aside the art faculties the relaxed their sovereignty, he says, and the so-called carpet-joggers have boldly moved in. He finds that the old-time grade techniques are very well but they should come after the higher education which consists of history, the culture writings of the masters, and the sciences.

The article continues by showing the relationship of general education, which includes the training and development of the mind, which come from the small college which is ready to be equipped for this since a general course is only preparatory. It differentiates the immediate course of study and offers the student satisfaction, guidance, and the right to choose.

Careful analysis will reveal that many of traditions of today are still of great value because current problems are not essentially different from the difficulties of any other generation. "Each individual college can achieve power and validity for the undergraduate only by building on the traditions and strength the from of education in which it has faith"—A. M.

The Social Week

Week-End Will See Close Of Sorority Initiations

This week-end will bring to a close the series of sorority initiations which have been held for three week-ends in the sorority houses on campus. New initiates are being honored at attractive initiation banquets and breakfasts.

Alpha Delta Pi

Alpha Delta Pi pledges to be initiated tonight will be honored at a breakfast Sunday morning by the Dutch Kitchen. Favors are to be recognition pins and decorations will be the scheme of yellow, blue and white. Corsages will be presented to the new initiates who are: Mary Bell Rogers, Nancy Rio, Ethel Youngs, Mary Isabel Harden, Betty Bostain, Maxine Hopkins, Grace Elizabeth Anderson, Eileen Gill, Virginia Dowling, Jane Schreiber, Virginia Schreiber, Gail Gallbright, Frances Milton, Mary Ann Noland, Riva Hemphill, Betty Graves, and Betty Nicholson.

Alumnae members who will attend the initiation are: Mrs. Jim Dowling, Florence Pierce Fairchild, Tampa; Louise Lasserre, Fernandina; Frances Gray Thomas, Quincy; Peggy Milton, Audrey Smith, and Susan Palmer, Jacksonville.

Alpha Omicron Pi

Those initiated into Alpha Omicron Pi Sunday night were: Janet Cook, Mary Pinney, Betty Ann McMullen, and Angela Gray. Following the ceremony, the initiates were honored at a formal banquet in the Dutch Kitchen.

Chi Omega

The annual initiation breakfast given by Chi Omega members in honor of its new initiates will be given Sunday morning in the Floridan hotel. The centerpiece of the table will be a replica of the sorority pin made of flowers in the sorority colors, cardinal and straw. The honor guests will be given corsages of the sorority flowers, carnations, tied with cardinal and straw ribbons. The new initiates are:

Bess Bolton, Anitta Peacock, Marjorie Rader, Frances Slade, Marion Massey, Isabel Ramsey, Amelia Gordy, Martha Baxter, Evelyn Nunley, Anna Towson, Margaret Salley, Jean McCord, Nancy Horney, Martha Lee, Mary Swearingen, Margaret Adkins, and Jackie Teasdale.

Delta Delta

The Delta Tau initiation was held Saturday afternoon when Tutsy Davis, Julia Beckman, Mary B Smith, and Jeanette Nordman, were initiated. A formal banquet honoring the new members was given in the Dutch Kitchen Saturday night. The table was attractively decorated with Killarney Roses, the sorority flower, and rose and green, the sorority colors, were further used in other decorations. The honor guests were presented with gifts.

Kappa Delta

Girls who will be initiated into Kappa Delta tonight in the sorority house are: Dot Benford, Dot Hill, Adelaide Raleigh Kaufman, Myrtle Alice Clifford, Anita Peek, Jeanne Webster, Emma Randolph Elebash, Ina Margaret Robinson, Pearl Turnbull, Martha Balconnier, Mary Elizabeth Julia Collins, Tilton Van Brunt, Martha Van Brunt, Harriet Kent, Jeannette Litschgi, Lavine Voss, Jane Thomas and Helen Murphy. These new members will be honor guests at a banquet to be given tomorrow night in the Dutch Kitchen. Decorations will be in the sorority colors, green and white and presents will be given to the guests by their big sisters.

Pi Beta Phi

Pi Beta Phi initiates were honored at a breakfast Sunday morning in the Floridan, also in the Florida hotel. The theme of the breakfast, "In a Pi Phi Kitchen, Decorations" was carried out in the decorations of tris, roses, and tulips, in the sorority colors wine and blue. The honour guests were presented with wooden aprons bearing the Greek letters Pi Beta Phi.

New members are: Olive Alderman, Sara Bell Bedell, Margie Anderson, Marian Bedell, Mabel Bennett, Dorothy Bennett, Mary Estelle, Mary Ellen Doetwyler, Betty Davis, Louise Fougate, Mary Hollester, Jane Gray Thomas, Jane Johnson, Peggy Johnstone, Mary Alice Lester, Carolyn Lyon, Ida Marsh, Janet Maitern, Catherine McCready, Joan Miller, Carolyn Mills, Frances Moss, Mary Susan Berley, Martha Robbins, Lucille Sampson, Katherine Stevens, Mary Taylor, Marjorie Tillis, Barbara Tyler, Betty Virginia, Virginia Wiggins, Frances Woodward, and Eleanor Zimmerman.

Conradi's Entertain At Reception For Governor Cone

More than 400 invitations were issued to the members of the supreme court, the board of control the Governor and Mrs. Fred P. Cone in the ball room in the college gymnasium.

Beside Governor and Mrs. Cone those invited were

The Honorable and Mrs. Branch Cone, Tallahassee; Mr. and Mrs. Mark Byron, Miami Senator and Mrs. W. C. Hodges, Mrs. J. J. Hodges, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lee Walter McLin, and Honorable Walter Moore of Tallahassee.

Honorable and Mrs. R. A. Gray, Honorable and Mrs. W. V. Knott, Honorable and Mrs. Cary Landis, Honorable and Mrs. Nathan Mayo, Honorable and Mrs. Colin English Honorable and Mrs. J. M. Lee, all of Tallahassee.

Judge and Mrs. J. B Whitfield, Judge and Mrs. Glen Terrell, Judge and Mrs. Armwed Brown, Judge and Mrs. W. H. Ellis, Judge and Mrs. Fred Davis, of Tallahassee.

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Diamond, Tallahassee; Honorable and Mrs. George Baldwin, Jacksonville; Honorable and Mrs. O. J. Semmes, Pensacola; Honorable and Mrs. Thos. W. Bryant, Lakeland; Honorable and Mrs. Harry C. Crews, Tavares; Honorable and Mrs. R. P. Terry, Miami.

Dr. Hamilton Holt, Winter Park; Dr. and Mrs. John G. Tigert, Gainesville. Dr. and Mrs. F. B. Ashe, Miami; Dr. and Mrs. W. S. Rainsford, Orlando; and Mrs. Lodd M. Spivey, Lakeland; Dr. and Mrs. Clarence J. Smith, Dr. Augustine M. and Mrs. Alphonse Pichard, Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Stone, Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Collins, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Moon, Mr. and Mrs. Julian Alford, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Parker, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Bobier, Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Semple, Joseph Mr. and Mrs. Paul Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Wenson, all of Tallahassee.

Rev. and Mrs. L. R. Christie Rev. and Mrs. J. H. Daniel, Rev. and Mrs. E. N. Caldwell, Rev. and Mrs. Waldo Wood, Rev. and Mrs. Gerald Culbertson, Rev. W. J. Carroll of Tallahassee; Miss Winnie Lee Davis, Miss Billie Ruth Curran, Miss Rachel Wylie, Mrs. Wylie, Miss Julia Gehan, Tallahassee.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Moon, Mr. Fred Gehan, Mrs. Ethel Peck, Mr. and Mrs. B. Lewis Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Register, Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Brooks, Tallahassee.

Dr. and Mrs. Mark F. Boyd, Dr. and Mrs. F. S. Kitchen, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Mahan, Lucille Lopez, Mrs. Ruth Wichard, Dr. William Kupper, Mr. Robert Mickler, Dr. and Mrs. John E. Rimendorf, of Tallahassee, as well as the college faculty and staff.

THE DUTCH KITCHEN

"Where You Will Find the Best Food"

Private Dining Rooms for Parties and Banquets

THIS WEEK'S CALENDAR

Friday

Amine Youssef Bey, speech, Augusta Conradi theater, 10:30 a. m.

Play Night for faculty and students, gymnasium, 7 p. m.

"Fashion," faculty play, Augusta Conradi theater, 7:45 p. m.

Baptist Young Women's auxiliary, Broward lounge, 7:30 p. m.

Lenten lecture for Episcopal students, Ruge hall, 7:30 p. m.

Saturday

"Fashion," faculty play, Augusta Conradi theater, 7:45 p. m.

Presbyterian hike in honor of the Rev. Mr. Jones, meet in back of Bryan, 2:30 p. m.

Sunday

Y.W.C.A. vesper service, in charge of the Rev. Mr. Denney of Florida, 7:45 p. m.

Monday

Emergency Peace campaign meeting, 304 Education building, 8 p. m.

Tuesday

Major Charles L. Waller, speaker in convocation, auditorium, 11:30 a. m.

Sherwood Eddy lecture, "The meaning of the Present World Situation," auditorium, 7:45 p. m.

Wednesday

Reynolds Hall formal tea, 5 to 6 p. m.

Student recital, auditorium, 4:30 p. m.

Astronomy club, 303 Administration building, 8 p. m.

Thursday

Senior speech recital, Mary Berryhill, Augusta Conradi theater, 7:45 p. m.

Skater Takes Spill At Campus Carnival

"Try our new skating rink! Try our new skating rink!" cried the barker at the Pressure Control, "Try our new skating rink!" And the amateur did.

She knelt by the library steps to buckle on her borrowed Rollfasts and to stamp firmly for testing their fastenings. She straightened up cautiously and moved out into the street stepping side-wise like a crab.

Then she glanced ahead at the dark incline; then gave a timid push with her left foot. Her right foot began to move. Panicky, she tried to stop it but only started the other following it. Near, for a moment, she was rolling down the street.

The air began to breeze by: now it was whizzing past her ear. Exhilarated by her sudden speed she struck up a song, "O-oh, the darling man . . ."

Something caught her skates; they stopped. Farther up—over Governor and Mrs. Fred P. Cone in the ball room in the college gymnasium.

Beside Governor and Mrs. Cone those invited were

The Honorable and Mrs. Branch Cone, Tallahassee; Mr. and Mrs. Mark Byron, Miami Senator and Mrs. W. C. Hodges, Mrs. J. J. Hodges, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lee Walter McLin, and Honorable Walter Moore of Tallahassee.

Honorable and Mrs. R. A. Gray, Honorable and Mrs. W. V. Knott, Honorable and Mrs. Cary Landis, Honorable and Mrs. Nathan Mayo, Honorable and Mrs. Colin English Honorable and Mrs. J. M. Lee, all of Tallahassee.

Judge and Mrs. J. B Whitfield, Judge and Mrs. Glen Terrell, Judge and Mrs. Armwed Brown, Judge and Mrs. W. H. Ellis, Judge and Mrs. Fred Davis, of Tallahassee.

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Diamond, Tallahassee; Honorable and Mrs. George Baldwin, Jacksonville; Honorable and Mrs. O. J. Semmes, Pensacola; Honorable and Mrs. Thos. W. Bryant, Lakeland; Honorable and Mrs. Harry C. Crews, Tavares; Honorable and Mrs. R. P. Terry, Miami.

Dr. Hamilton Holt, Winter Park; Dr. and Mrs. John G. Tigert, Gainesville. Dr. and Mrs. F. B. Ashe, Miami; Dr. and Mrs. W. S. Rainsford, Orlando; and Mrs. Lodd M. Spivey, Lakeland; Dr. and Mrs. Clarence J. Smith, Dr. Augustine M. and Mrs. Alphonse Pichard, Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Stone, Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Collins, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Moon, Mr. and Mrs. Julian Alford, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Parker, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Bobier, Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Semple, Joseph Mr. and Mrs. Paul Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Wenson, all of Tallahassee.

Rev. and Mrs. L. R. Christie Rev. and Mrs. J. H. Daniel, Rev. and Mrs. E. N. Caldwell, Rev. and Mrs. Waldo Wood, Rev. and Mrs. Gerald Culbertson, Rev. W. J. Carroll of Tallahassee; Miss Winnie Lee Davis, Miss Billie Ruth Curran, Miss Rachel Wylie, Mrs. Wylie, Miss Julia Gehan, Tallahassee.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Moon, Mr. Fred Gehan, Mrs. Ethel Peck, Mr. and Mrs. B. Lewis Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Register, Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Brooks, Tallahassee.

Dr. and Mrs. Mark F. Boyd, Dr. and Mrs. F. S. Kitchen, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Mahan, Lucille Lopez, Mrs. Ruth Wichard, Dr. William Kupper, Mr. Robert Mickler, Dr. and Mrs. John E. Rimendorf, of Tallahassee, as well as the college faculty and staff.

FACULTY MEMBERS WILL BE HONORED AT SORORITY TEAS THIS WEEK-END

Sorority parties being held this week-end include numerous faculty teas and rush parties.

The Alpha Gamma Delta members will have the first in a series of Lenten teas on Sunday afternoon in the sorority house. Faculty members invited include: Dr. Kathryn T Abbey. Miss Ruth Conway Dr. Anna Pierce Liddell, Miss Lelia Venable, Dr. and Mrs. C. P. Heinlein, Miss Grace Fox, Dr. and Mrs. Ralph E. Ryman, Miss Lucile Bass, Dr. Briley, Miss Eaton, and Mrs. Smith.

Tri Delta members will entertain Sunday afternoon in the sorority house with one of their weekly teas honoring friends and faculty members.

Saturday night Alpha Omicron Pi members will entertain pledges and rushees in the sorority house with a spaghetti supper.

The members and pledges of Phi Beta Phi will entertain with an after dinner coffee Monday night in honor of faculty members and friends. The sorority house will be decorated with spring flowers.

Pledges of Sigma Kappa will entertain Sunday night in the sorority house with a kitchen shower. Hostesses for the affair will be Kitty Benson, Adelaide Belle Mary Catherine Smith. Virginia Sullivan, Mary Wallace, and Betty Allen. Mrs Roy Schneider president of the Miami chapter of Sigma Kappa alumnae, who is spending a few days visiting in the Sigma Kappa house will also be present.

REYNOLDS' DIRECTORS AND STUDENTS WILL ENTERTAIN ST. PATRICK'S DAY

A formal tea celebrating St. Patrick's day will be given in Reynold's parlors by the directors and students of this hall Wednesday from 5 to 6 o'clock. All faculty members, off-campus friends, and residents of Tallahassee.

In keeping with the day, the refreshments will be coffee, iced cakes topped with shamrocks and green and white mints.

The guests will be met at the door by the senior floor chairmun, Ann Norris and Mariam Harrold. The formal receiving line will consist of the house chairman.

Sara Rutledge; Dean Olivia N. Dorman, Miss Maude A. Flowers, Miss E. R. Keown, Dr. E. G. Farrers, Mrs. Josephine M. Levey, and Miss Fern O. Bone.

Miss Charlotte Stevens and Miss Mary E. Thistlethwaite will pour. Assisting them will be the serving committee made up of the following students: Marjorie Marwick, Margaret Alford, Ruth Nesbitt, Ruth Stonecipher, Mary Henry, Charlotte Bartlett, Mary Swearingen, Lucille Flow, Linnea Lundberg, Elleanor Haecker, Marjorie Smith, Lucille Hamilton, Miss McKelvey, Jane Flood, and Elaine Fletcher.

The remaining chairmen will act as a general committee. They are: Lela Bowen, Janet Borden, Betty Outland, Kathryn Pratt, Frances Lewis, Eileen Robinson, and Mary Anderson.

In preparation for this tea, Miss Sara Meador spoke to the girls this past Wednesday on the nature if formal and informal teas. She described the difference in the service, in dress, and in other details of etiquette pertaining to these two.

New French Club Learns Country's Riddles And Songs at Last Meeting

Riddles and guessing games in French were the program feature at the meeting of the French club in Broward Lounge Wednesday afternoon at 4:30. Three French songs, "Sur Le Pont D'Avignon," "Au Claire de la Lune," and "Le Savez si Bergere" were rendered, several other songs were sung.

The purpose of the club which is sponsored by Miss Marie Davis is to facilitate the use of the French language in everyday conversation. First year French students as well as those more advanced in the study of the language are invited to attend the meetings of the club.

The next meeting will be held Wednesday afternoon and a notice of the place will be posted on the French bulletin board in the history building and in the lower floor of the Administration building.

Kamper and Ramage Are Chosen YWCA Officers;

With the election of Charlotte Kamper as vice-president and Carol Ramage as secretary of the Y. W. C. A. Tuesday the roster of officers for this organization was completed.

Previous to this election, Martha Lester and Esther O'Byrne had been unanimously elected president and treasurer of the organization respectively.

Wednesday night members and officers of the Y. W. met in their new club room in the Wescott building to hear Dr. Paul Pinner speak on the "Psychology of Christianity." Dr. Paul Pinner stressed the thought that as students and citizens we should live our religion everyday and not just put it on as much occasions. Quoting from the prophet Amous, Dr. Pinner stated that the basic element of religion are justice honor, and righteousness.

University Editorials

Continued from Page Four

of all elections—insincere politics.

First of all we urge you to vote. There is no need for us to tell you of the importance of your individual vote. You know that. But at the same time, it is impossible for us to remember too strongly the importance of taking advantage of that privilege.

Now, how should you vote? That is simple. First, listen to anyone who has anything to say to you about the election; but be sure that you have heard both representatives of both sides. Next, find out from the candidates themselves why they want to be elected to their respective offices, and then go to the polls on election day and write your ballot with the hand of sincerity while conscience holds the paper—and we don't believe you will go wrong.

Flowers Announces Regulations Same

Miss Maude Flowers, director of residence halls, announced that there would be no changes in the regulations for the Easter holidays, which will begin March 25 and last till March 30.

All students must sign up in their residence hall before leaving and those taking night buses or trains must make arrangements in Bryan hall before 10:30 that evening.

The dormitories will remain open and all sorority houses in which students are spending the holidays will also be open.

Social events will be planned for those who are staying and the dining room will serve all meals during the holidays.

International Travel Bureau Sponsored Here Arranges Trips Abroad

Open Road, an International travel bureau which arranges tours in the interests of international understanding and good will, is now being sponsored on the campus by S.F.A. The tours planned for this summer should be of especial interest to students although they are open to anyone.

Open Road is a non-profit organization, thereby making the tours very inexpensive. S.F.A. is encouraging students who plan to travel abroad to tour by Open Road because of the ideals of that organization and the advantages which it offers.

Three tours are being offered this summer, which, however, are composed of six or seven trips, allowing the individual traveler to choose his own itinerary. Parties are small, being limited to twelve persons, and are accompanied by American and native guides. Travelers stay not only at hotels, but at student houses, clubs, and in private homes thereby having the opportunity to know people in each country.

Aside from the Open Road, S.F.A. is selling identity cards which are valuable to anyone traveling abroad whether with a party or independently. These cards sell for one dollar, but may save the traveler sixty or seventy dollars in tickets, entrance fees, or recognition.

Own up—no matter how tailored you may be as a rule, aren't there times when you like a bit of lace about? This side-fastening bras and panties of pure silk millanese with frosting of fine lace are made for softer moods. In fact, they'd soften any mood!

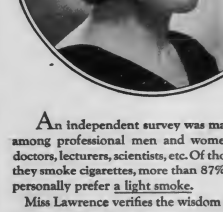
BRAS Sizes 32 to 36

PANTIE Sizes 4 to 8

"because you love nice things"

The Vogue

Noted Metropolitan Opera Star



finds Luckies easy on her precious throat—

Marjorie Lawrence says:

"You must have a big voice to sing Wagner. My favorite role of 'Brunnhilde' in Wagner's 'Gotterdammerung' is a very exacting one. Yet—when I am back in my dressing room after I have finished singing, there is nothing I enjoy more than lighting up a Lucky. It is a light smoke—so gentle—so smooth—that it does not irritate my throat in the least. I agree with the others at the Metropolitan that a light smoke is a wise choice."

Marjie Lawrence

BRILLIANT SOPRANO OF THE METROPOLITAN OPERA COMPANY

An independent survey was made recently among professional men and women—lawyers, doctors, lecturers, scientists, etc. Of those who said they smoke cigarettes, more than 87% stated they personally prefer a light smoke.

Miss Lawrence verifies the wisdom of this preference, and so do other leading artists of the radio, stage, screen and opera. Their voices are their fortunes. That's why so many of them smoke Luckies. You, too, can have the throat protection of Luckies—a light smoke, free of certain harsh irritants removed by the exclusive process "It's Toasted". Luckies are gentle on the throat.

THE FINEST TOBACCOS—
"THE CREAM OF THE CROP"

A Light Smoke
"It's Toasted"—Your Throat Protection

AGAINST IRRITATION—AGAINST COUGH

Copyright 1937, The American Tobacco Company

ADAMS STUDIO

"Photographs that Please"

119½ E College Ave. Phone 297

Students of History Are Guests at Tea

More than forty freshmen and sophomores will be the honored guests at the annual Phi Alpha Theta tea for students doing outstanding work in beginning history courses. The tea, which will be from 5 to 9 o'clock this afternoon in Broward clubroom, is given by the active members of the history honorary.

Bouquets of sweet peas will be used in decoration, and punch, cookies, and mints will be served.

Faculty members and alumnae of the organization who will be present are Miss Florence Tyron, Miss Mattie Lou Tyler, Miss Annie Marie Popper, Miss Venila Lorgia Johnson, Mrs. Simone, Miss Mary Alice Eaton, Miss Louise Conradi, Miss Dorothy Dodd, Miss Olivia Dorman, Dr. and Mrs. Robert Cotterill, and Dr. and Mrs. Arthur Williams.

Among the students honored will be Marian Bedell, Kathryn Eckles, Anita Jaeckel, Marjorie Jessup, Eleanor Miller, June Quina, Marjorie Rader, Mary Susan Rowley, Lucia Shahann, Dorothy Smith, Barbara Tyler, Deonna Haney, Irene Hutchinson, Doris Lee Mathews, Lindburg, Gertrude Merbler, Janet Ross, Doris Strozier, Edith Underhill, Rose Marie Calderon, Sonie Bennett, Frances Gregory, Margaret Lingo, Janet Mathern, Isabel Ramsey, Martell Tepper Janice Wheatley, Pauline Arnold, Mary Frances Campbell, Lucille Gates, Doris Goodent, Helen Overy, Mary Hammond, Jean Johnston, Evelyn Murphy, Elizabeth Ransom, Martha Lillian Lee, Fern Roberts, Virginia Allen, and Edith Brown.

Tenth Annual AAUW Meet Will Be Held

Convention Will Be In Savannah, Georgia, March 15-18

Members of the American Association of University Women, numbering more than 54,000 women, will gather in Savannah, Ga., March 15-18 to attend the tenth national convention of their organization. Dr. Julia Heil Hamlin, past president of the Tallahassee branch, Dr. Annie Popper, new president and Dr. Anna Forbes Liddell, past second vice president are local delegates to this meeting. Miss Mary Croom Whitfield and Miss Marie David have been chosen as pages for the convention.

With nationally recognized speakers and educational authorities lined for the various sessions, unusual significance will be lent to the section meetings and round tables to be featured throughout Tuesday afternoon and all day Wednesday. The problems of art education, international relations, and social studies are some of the topics that will be discussed at this time.

Social high-lights of the convention will be the evening program Monday evening when the Georgia State division will be hostesses to the delegates at a reception, to be followed by a presentation of "Heaven Bound," an authentic dramatization of the Negro's idea of God and heaven and his final triumph through trial and trouble with old folk songs and spirituals by a choir of 200 Negro voices.

Other evening programs will include the ceremony on Tuesday celebrating the growth of the association's million dollar fellowship fund, a concert and demonstration by the Dora Humphrey-Charles Weidman group of dancers of "The Dance as an Art" on Wednesday evening, and informal dinners for the various section delegates and representatives on Tuesday evening.

The sectional dinners will precede an evening address by Dr. Katharine J. Gallagher, professor of history, Goucher college, whose subject will be "Women in the Renaissance." Dr. Gallagher is chairman of the American Association of University Women's fellowship awards committee.

Through its support of research fellowships for gifted women scholars, the American Association of University Women does a unique work, one that has been maintained throughout the fifty-five years of the association's activity in the educational field.

Clinic on Mimeograph Process Will Be Held By Jacksonville Men

A clinic on the Mimeograph process open to students and faculty members will be held on campus for two days, next Tuesday and Wednesday, according to an announcement from the business office.

The H. and W. Drew company, of Jacksonville, will sponsor the clinic and will exhibit displays, source material, and necessary equipment Monday in the Administration building.

The display will be of special interest to students in the School of Education and students in the commercial department.

Skit Night Plans Set Date March 19

The date for Skit Night has been changed from Friday, March 12, to March 19, at 7:45 o'clock.

Skits will be given in the large auditorium, and there will be a cash award for the one judged the best. Organizations participating are: Kappa Alpha Theta, Sophomore Council, Mortar Board, Spirograa, Pi Beta Phi, and the Dining Room Girls.

Negative Side Gets Decision To Win Debate

Visiting Team Wins Over Two FSCW Speakers On Affirmative

Florida State's first intercollegiate debate last Saturday night on the question, 'Resolved: That Congress Should Be Empowered to Fix Minimum Wages and Maximum Hours for Industry" resulted in a 2-1 victory for the visiting team from William and Mary college, Williamsburg, Va.

The visitors, Betty Bartell, of Richmond, Indiana, and Edna Howell, of Maplewood, N. J., had the negative side of the argument. Betty Wynn and Nell Colvin composed the affirmative team and Mary Jeanne McKay, president of college government, presided.

In the argument the visiting team agreed with the affirmative side that maximum hours and minimum wages should be provided by legislation but it is a problem to be settled by the states and not by Congress, the visitors argued. They declared greater bureaucracy and more red tape would result with congressional legislation.

Betty Wynn, second speaker on the affirmative, predicted that from a sociological standpoint state legislation would bring about the ruin of the United States. She pointed out that a man working under a $10 minimum week wage in one state would have no incentive to remain there if he saw a neighboring state with a $15 minimum wage. In answer to this the negative side said the states would "fall in line" with each other, once they realized such differences existed. The negative side also held that in congressional legislation local boards would be necessary and if states handled their own problems, delays could be avoided.

Justice Glenn Terrell, of the state supreme court, Dr. Beulah Birley, head of the college commerce department, and Mrs Harold P. Richards formed the judging committee.

Other debates scheduled for this spring include one with Georgia State College for Women and one with the University of Florida.

Help Build Now By Weighing Yourself

It will now be possible for girls to check upon their waistlines fluctuations, but how much they are profiting by their diets and at the same time do their share toward helping to have an Alumnae building placed on this campus, it was stated by John G Kellum business manager.

The members of the Alumnae Association have purchased a penny scale, which is to be put in the bookstore for the convenience of the college girls. The funds derived from the scales are to go toward the Alumnae building.

Ancient Superstitions Are Discussed by Club

Superstitions, modern and ancient, were studied at the Classical club meeting Tuesday night in Rowang club room.

Ruth Howard spoke on "Superstitions of the Romans." Gladys Ware told of "Superstitions in Relation to Caesar's Death," and Marcia Smith dealt with the classical background of modern superstitions.

Following the program a short business session was held and plans were made for the annual Classical club beat trip.

Article Writer, Former FSC Student is Visitor

A former F. S. C. W. student, Mrs. Alexander M. Foreman, who was Frances Beck, visited on campus last week-end. Mrs. Foreman, who is now doing free lance writing is a frequent contributor to the Atlanta Journal.

Recently in the magazine section of the Atlanta Journal there appeared on the page opposite an article written by Mrs. Foreman, one written by another former student of Florida State, Miss Dora Byron. Miss Byron is also doing free lance writing, her articles appearing in many newspapers such as the New York Times and the Atlanta Journal.

Interest is Revived in Bulletin Board When Application Letters Are Posted for Students

The 9:30 line near the post office window seems to be denser than usual. On closer inspection we find the bulletin board next to the window to be the attraction. We haven't seen so much interest taken in a bulletin board since convocation absences were posted.

One girl wildly pushes through the crowd, muttering to herself, "I must have that. I must have that. Pardon me, but would you please—" as she shoves another girl out of the way. Tearing a sheet from her notebook she leans against the wall and begins dashing off something while she reads from the board, firmly holding her ground against the mob of stamp buyers and package slip bearers, as well as others interested in the bulletin board as she, invulnerable to the glares and signs of impatience around her

"Th- is just what I've been needing," one girl whispers confidentially in the ear of her companion. "I really had no idea how to do it." Another, "—and it will help me out too, even though I'm not going to teach."

The cause of all this flurry and excitement is a sample letter of application for prospective school teachers, whose a long list of suggestions are also posted giving advice on aspiring for jobs through letters. Incidentally there are posted pamphlets on graduate work and scholarships at other higher schools of learning, but these are hardly noticed by the majority. Even in the dullest part of the afternoon there are usually one o. two scribbling at the bulletin board.

Astronomy Club Groups Meet to Work Projects And Hold Observations

At the Astronomy club meeting which was held in 203 Administration building last Wednesday night, some of the members worked on their group projects, collecting material on astrology, comets, the moon, etc., while another group with Gladys Ware in charge went out in back of Jennie Murphree to make naked eye observations of some of the constellations.

Among the constellations observed by the latter group were: the "Horseshoe," Arcturus and Sickle. Big Dipper, Little Dipper, Cassopea, and the planet Venus. Three sky markers used for finding Polaris, the North star, are now excellent for observation.

The next meeting of the Astronomy club will be held in 209 Westcott building, Wednesday night. There will be both naked eye observations, and observations with the field glasses. All members are requested to bring sky maps.

Sick Chimes Diagnosed by RCA Delegate

"Too Much Current Burns The Cones Out," Says Visitor

It's an ill wave length that brings only static.

Take, for example the recent visit of the R. C. A. truck to the campus, which visit sent radio owners of dormitory and sorority houses alike flocking to telephones to call the radio repair shop. And the interference of the truck's broadcasting system was the cause of all the static.

That very truck visit may be the means of curing the erratic chimes of their hiccups.

For, though the college "chime specialists" have failed to lay the evil spirit which has been causing the bells to ring out merrily for several days, lay off for several more, and balk and stutter for the remainder of that particular week, it took only a minute for the RCA delegate to diagnose the trouble.

"Too much current," he announced cryptically. "It burns the cones out."

New college electricians are experimenting on their own and writing numerous dispatches to the chime factory to find out whether or not that single diagnosis will leave the campus in a timely state.

Camping Details Asked

Spring brings more week-ends at camp.

Miss Flowers requests that every detail for the arrangements be complete and in her office before 11:30 on the Friday of the week the camp is to be used. If this is not done the trip will be cancelled and the group will not be notified.

These precautions are necessary in order that the schedule for truck can be made, and in order that the schedule not be upset.

First of YWCA Talks Planned

W. H. Denney of Rollins Will Speak Sunday Night Here

The first of a series of three talks given by ministers throughout the state, and sponsored by the Y. W. C. A., will be given Sunday night by the Rev. William Henry Denney, chaplain of the Knowles Memorial Chapel, Rollins college, at 7:30 o'clock in the Augusta Conradi Little Theater.

Mr. Denney has announced for his topic at this time the subject "Youth Paces the World Tomorrow." He is a graduate of Union college, Princeton Theological university He has done additional graduate work in history, anthropology, and theology at Columbia and the University of Pennsylvania.

Other speakers in the series include the Rev. U. S. Gordon of the Presbyterian church at Gainesville April 11, and the Rev. Albert Kissling of the Riverside Presbyterian church at Jacksonville May 2. The Rev Kissling conducted Religious Emphasis Week on this campus two years ago.

The purpose of these services is to bring to the campus outstanding ministers in the state - be an interested in young people and their problems.

Circumstance Conspires To Prevent Sleep

Dooms Attempts Before Light Flash, After Breakfast Bell

Notice: No sleep allowed before light flash or after breakfast bell. Signed, Circumstances.

Probably you too have tried to get in a few winks right after dinner; you too have reasoned that quiet enough for sleep mean quiet enough for sleep. So you took your shower and snuggled under the covers.

You had just started dreaming about that last party when, "Bang!"... something struck the ceiling above your head. John's countenance disappeared abruptly and was replaced by your own startled one in the mirror. "Oh, that's Ginny again, using her dictionary," you muttered and pulled the bed clothes back over your shoulders.

You returned to your castles in Spain; let that new tune run through your head. All at once you noticed that its beat was much too fast; something was jarring its rhythm. You sat and listened; it was that freshman tap-dancing up stairs.

When your room-mate came in, you surrendered and decided to make up your sleep by not going to breakfast the next morning. The bell woke you at 7:00, but you resolutely paid it no attention. You had almost begun to doze again when you heard a voice arguing with itself.

"Where did I put that book? I know it was right on the desk. Maybe it is in Virginia's drawer."

You jumped up with a start, "Oh, no it isn't. You lent it to June, don't you remember?"

Ten minutes later you are pouring coffee in the dining hall.

Modern factories . . .

spotlessly clean like your living room at home . . . that's where Chesterfields are made.

The Champagne Cigarette Paper is pure . . . burns without taste or odor . . . you can't buy any better paper.

The mild ripe tobaccos are aged two years or more...like fine wines are aged.

Refreshingly milder . . . more pleasing taste and aroma . . . and best of all They Satisfy.

Chesterfield

a milder better-tasting cigarette

Copyright 1937, Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co.

MISS VELMA COTEN.
% LIBRARY - F.S.C.W.,
TALLAHASSEE, FLA.

Watch Skitters Caper Tonight

The Florida Flambeau

Published by the Students of Florida State College for Women

VOLUME XXIV. | Tallahassee, Florida, March 19, 1937 | NUMBER TWENTY-ONE

Hear Glee Club Sing Wednesday

Eddy Approves Plans For Day Of Peace Here

Speaker to Send Various Pamphlets Intended For Students

MANY COLLEGES WILL COOPERATE

Committee is Preparing Letters Presenting Program Basis

Approval of the Peace day plans formulated on this campus for a nation-wide observance April 22 was given by Dr. Sherwood Eddy who spoke this week at the college. As an expression of his approval he is planning to send a number of copies of his pamphlet, "Peace or war" to Dr. Elizabeth Gordon Andrews for distribution among the students.

16 Added to List

Sixteen colleges have been added to the list of institutions cooperating with the college's program. The new additions to the list of nine colleges previously announcing their intentions to join with the plans are: Wayne university in Michigan, Wesleyan college in Connecticut, Hillsdale college in Michigan, Rutgers in New Jersey, Skidmore in New York, Hendrix college in Arkansas, Agnes Scott in Georgia, University of Midlands in California, Knox college in Illinois, North Adams State Teachers' college in Massachusetts, Bethany Peniel college in Oklahoma, Stanford university in California, Lawrence college in Wisconsin, Lake Erie college in Ohio, Williams college in Massachusetts, and University of Tulsa in Oklahoma.

Others Joining

Colleges previously agreeing to join in the movement are: Vassar college, in Poughkeepsie, New York; Colorado State college, in Fort Collins, Col.; Albion college, in Albion, Mich.; American university, in Washington, D. C.; Pennsylvania State College for Women in Pittsburgh, Pa.; University of Pennsylvania, in Philadelphia; Brenau college, in Gainesville, Ga.; University of Florida, in Gainesville; and State

Continued on page two

Lecturer

Sir Herbert Ames, "World Treasurer" and a former member of the Canadian Parliament, who will come to the college Monday, April 5, to give two lectures. Dr. Ames will speak on "Does German Rearmament Necessarily Mean War?" and "The Bubbling Cauldron of Central Europe." Dr. Ames will be sponsored by the International Relations club.

Mercer Chorus Will Present Program Here

College Orchestra Makes Appearance Soon With Men's Glee Club

The Mercer University glee club will present a program in Tallahassee at the Florida State College auditorium on April 3, which will include chorus and soloist selection, the Mercer Collegians "swing-band," a chalk talk artist, and a magician.

The glee club of twenty-four voices will sing six numbers on the program and the quartet and octet groups will give numerous other selections. The directors of the Mercer organisation this year have selected the program from both the classical and popular fields in order to please a representative audience. Both choral and orchestral selections and novelty numbers will comprise the two-hour program.

The Mercer Collegians, for many years having the name of one of the most popular glee club orchestras in the Southeast, are a featured attraction with the singers. Will Johnson, from Cuthbert, is the director for the orchestra and a special trombone soloist, while Bill Cutts, from Calhoun, is a special soloist for the band. Their part on the program will include novel arrangements of "Organ Grinder's Swing," "Midnight Blue," "In a Sentimental Mood," and "Twelfth Street Rag."

Also featured with the glee club will be Will Johnson, noted college cartoonist, as the chalk talk artist, and Charles Hearn as the magician.

The Mercer glee club, under

Continued on page two

Annual Skits Will be Given By Six Groups

Presentation Scheduled By Flastacowo Staff In Auditorium

THEMES CENTER AROUND COLLEGE

Performance to Benefit Yearly Publication Expenses

With their themes centering around various phases of the college and "college life," six skits will be presented in the auditorium tonight at the annual Flastacowo skit night.

The Kappa Alpha Theta sorority will present a skit entitled "Beginner's Luck" written by Dot Barr and Margaret Reedy. The principal parts will be played by Lilian Burford, Margaret Schmidli, Patty Barringer, Doreen Mellin, Marjorie Horton, Patty Hamilton, Clarice Sanchez, Myrtle Butts, Mary Enneis. The rest of the chapter will be in the choruses.

Council Has Skit

"Femina Perfecta Follias," written by Eloise Trott, with Becky Ashton in charge, is the title of the Sophomore Council's skit. Those taking part are Beauford Thrower, Nell Colvin, Mary Emily Parker, Betty Russek, Katherine Bacon, Harriet Duke, Cornie Wallis, Janet Lockwood, Frances Williams, Peggy Boteler, Dot Marwick, Marian Purviance, and Frances Douglas.

"A Mock Convocation" is the title of the Pi Beta Phi's contribution to the skit program. It was written by Marjorie Tillis and Frances Moss and will be enacted by Eleanor Williams, Catherine McCready, Katherine Stevens, Frances Moss and Marjorie Tillis, with the rest of the chapter furnishing the "background."

Dining Room Goes Dramatic

Evelyn Hammond and Nell Carol are in charge of the dining-room girls' skit, "The Latest Concoction." Those taking part are Dot Barclay, Frances Clements, Holly Waker, Dorothy Kamiya, Katherine Lowrie, Annette Brewer, Mary Palmer, Margaret Melzer, Mary Porter, Kay Van White, Twilah Taylor, Betty Reed, Mary Ensign, Margery Coley, Dorothy White, Sadie Anderson, Addie Bledsoe, Mary Burgoon, Mary Higgens, Bonnie Smith, Katherine Pittman, Louise Boone, Louise Bowery, Helen DeVries, Barbara Womack, Edwinola Jardin, Hasel Eliot, Marie Wagner, Ruby Shaw, Nell Carol.

"The Short and Simple Flannels of the Poor" is the skit to be presented by the Y.W.C.A. Miriam Herold, Lola Werson, Martha Lester, Sara Nance, Kathryn Todd, Patty Barranger and others will take the parts.

"Ring Out Wild Bells," the Spirogira skit, was managed and directed by Daisy Farker and Betty Hatch. Those who will take

Continued on page two

Faculty Members Write and Publish Non-Fiction Books

One Author Has Won Record Equal to Mitchell's With Publication Product of Ten Years' Intensive Study and Work

By ALMA WARREN

Contrary to the accepted belief that the faculty has little or no leisure time, there are a number of professors on campus who do find time to write and publish books. In respect to time spent in writing, one faculty member has a record equal to Margaret Mitchell's. As is the case with Miss Mitchell's "Gone With the Wind," this professor's manuscript is a product of ten years' work.

A variety of subjects has been treated by the faculty authors. In the main, the chosen writing fields are history, physics, chemistry, journalism, foreign languages, and English.

In the autumn of this year Miss Etta Lons Matthews, assistant professor of library science, completed a narrative history of the Mississippi valley entitled "Over the Blue Wall." The book, which gets its name from the Blue Ridge mountains, is a volume of approximately 450 pages with appropriate illustrations. The University of North Carolina Press had charge of the book's publication. "Over the Blue Wall" was written to be used as a supplementary reader in the schools from the fifth grade and higher.

In 1932 Prof. Earl Lynn Vance, associate professor of English and journalism, edited and wrote an introduction for "Articles from the Classroom." In this book are articles written by students in journalism. Mr. Vance has also edited two books for other authors.

"The Old South," by Dr. Robert S. Cotterill of the history department, the result of ten years' work and said to be the only book

Continued on page two

Nine Sorority Members Plan Atlanta Trip

Panhellenic Convention Scheduled This Week For Colleges

Nine girls from eight different sororities will represent Florida State College for Women at the Panhellenic convention to be held in Atlanta, Georgia, this weekend.

Representatives from this college are: Elizabeth Filer, Alpha Xi Delta; Mary Nell Pinckard and Midelle Moore, Alpha Gamma Delta; Betty Peck, Delta Delta Delta; Mary Frances Campbell, Kappa Alpha Theta; Frances Thomas, Kappa Delta; Marjorie Beisel, Phi Mu; and Betty Wynn, Pi Beta Phi; Frances Waterhouse, Zeta Tau Alpha.

The convention opens tonight with a formal dinner at the Atlanta Biltmore hotel, the convention headquarters. Delegates will be presented and an address will be delivered at this time. Tomorrow morning will be taken up with addresses and discussions concerning various sorority problems, following which a luncheon will be given. After the addresses and discussions to be held Saturday afternoon the convention will close with a tea given by the Atlanta Panhellenic association.

The delegates to this convention will be sorority girls from colleges throughout the southeastern states. Formerly a Panhellenic national convention for delegates from colleges all over the United States was held once a year, but this year the United States has been divided into different provinces, each of which will hold a convention.

Major Curtis L. Waller Speaks in Convocation Regarding War Defense

Speaking in connection with the National Defense Week program which is held throughout the United States every year for the purpose of promoting proper defense of the country, Major Curtis L. Waller, officer in the Reserved Officers Corps of the United States, and a Tallahassee lawyer, was guest speaker in convocation Tuesday morning.

The text of Major Waller's speech was in support of his statement that a reasonable sort of preparedness is the best means to prevent the loss of life and the shed of blood.

Major Waller pointed out the innumerable mistakes, the unnecessary bloodshed and loss of life, the strife, and the terrible situations which have been the results in our country of unpreparedness in all wars from the American Revolution through the recent World War. Had we not failed to provide for the common defense, Major Waller believes we could have ended any of these wars in a much smaller length of time.

He further pointed out that in every war thousands die who never see a gun fired. Sickness claims thousands. We call out untrained and undiciplined men, he said and even those who are not physically able and give them millions of dollars worth of food, clothing, transportation, and guns and send them out to die unpre-

Continued on page two

Drs. Liddell, Heinlein Will Go to Meeting

Faculty Members to Take Active Part During Session Program

Dr. Anna Forbes Liddell, professor of philosophy and Dr. Christian Paul Heinlein, professor of experimental psychology, will take an active part in the program of the thirty-second annual meeting of the Southern Society for Philosophy and Psychology to be held next Friday and Saturday at the University of South Carolina.

"God and the Cosmos in the Philosophy of Nicholas Cusa" will be the subject which Dr. Liddell, who was formerly the president of the association for the year 1933 and a member of the executive council, will present at the Friday morning session of Philosophy.

Dr. Heinlein will address the joint session of philosophy and psychology Saturday morning on the nature and extent of statistical abuses in experimental psychology. He will describe the function and significance of the various philosophic premises on which statistical techniques are based. It is Dr. Heinlein's contention that experimental psychologists are slowly evolving into numerologists and that they are weaving mathematical tapestries of a static character wholly misleading and inadequate to interprete correctly the complex dynamics of human personality. Psychologists might easily avoid the fabrication of numerous fictitious mental faculties by studying the history and philosophy of Mathematics. After a description of the philosophy of correlational technique so widely used in experimental psychology, Dr. Heinlein concludes his paper by pointing out that the mechanical theory of probablity is inapplicable to a conscious organism that thinks, reasons, wills, and acts purposefully. To be adequate, the mathematics of experimental psychology must include the fourth dimension of time and its integrated function in behaviour and consciousness.

Last year Dr. Heinlein was appointed to the executive council to serve for a period of three years. This year he will act as chairman of the psychology section dealing with the papers and topics of thought and perception.

The Southern Society is unique in the sense that it combines both philosophy and psychology. Here philosophers help review the assumptions of psychologists, and they combine their efforts to get a more comprehensive view of the universe and human nature.

Theta Kappa Initiates Three Girls Thursday

Theta Kappa, French honorary society initiated the following girls at camp Thursday afternoon: Dorothea Marsh, Frank Wildman, and Eloise Andrews. Faculty members of the language department and active members attended.

After initiation supper was cooked over a campfire. Pearle Overhultz was in charge with Jo Binion, Geneva Nelson, and Genelle Perry assisting.

Lecturer Sees Changed Order As Inevitable

Sherwood Eddy Declares Real Justice Exists In U. S. S. R.

DESCRIBES NEW CO-OP MOVEMENT

Believes America Should Stay Out of All Foreign Wars

"We are nearing the end of an epoch, the beginning of a new era beside which the renaissance, the reformation, the French revolution, will pale into insignificance. The old order must crash within the next thirty or forty years. The old system of heterogenous policies of gain and slaughter must give place to the new planned economy. We are the ones who will witness the greatest crisis of all history," declared Sherwood Eddy, world traveler, student, and lecturer, in his talk Tuesday night in the auditorium.

Russia Makes Progress

Mr. Eddy, who believes that no person can understand the present world situation without understanding the Russian situation, stated that, in his judgment, Russia "is growing slowly but surely in agricultural and industrial development and much more rapidly in social reform. There, with the aid of the free cumpulsory educative system, nine-tenths of the people can read and write. This is a greater percent of literate people than we have in America, where free educational advantages have been a part of the very make up of the government for over a century."

"There are," he continued, "some evils so deeply rooted that they would prevent by ever adopting them to obtain the great social good undoubtedly emanated by the planned justice. The first of these evils I consider the denial and civil liberties; the second, the violence of continued revolution that never ends until the last enemy is dead; and the third, the harsh dogmatism, the dogmatic atheism which holds the whole country to such an extent that, although the churches, mosques, and synagogues are opened regularly for services, only the old people attend those services."

Calls Youth Gullible

Stressing the fact that the youth of today is moulded in thought by its environment, Mr Eddy cited the example of the children of Germany who practically worship Hitler, the children of Italy who are brought up believing in the right and justice of the re-expansion of the empire to the boundaries of the former Roman dominion, the children of Russia who are fanitical athiests. "The youth of today is gullible," he stormed. "It will accept the tenets which it seems most often displayed. It has not the experience, the perspective, the chance

Continued on page two

Directs Singers

Miss Etta Robertson, director of the glee club, planned the program which will be presented in the college auditorium next Wednesday night. The twenty-sixth spring concert to be presented by the club, the program is divided into three major parts.

Kurz Requests Applications For Next Year

Chairman Honors Work Committee Calls For Candidate List

Dr. Herman Kurz, chairman of the committee on honors work, announces that sophomores wishing to begin honors work in the fall of 1937 must apply before April 1.

Eligibility for honors work is based on a combined grade average of 2.0 for the last semester of the freshman year and the first semester of the sophomore year, and evidence of ability to work independently. In addition, the candidate must have the approval of the major professor of the department concerned and the committee on honors. If and when the candidate is accepted, the privilege of continuing honors work is contingent upon the maintenance of a high quality of work.

Students wishing to apply for honors must secure a signed statement of permission from the major professor directing the study. This statement must then be approved by the chairman of the honors committee and presented for application to the secretary to the registrar before April 1.

Students wishing further information concerning the details of application should consult the chairman of the honors committee.

Senior Breakfast Set

Date for the senior breakfast given annually by the Alumnae association honoring members of the senior class has been set as May 9. The breakfast was inaugurated last year. Miss Edna May McIntosh is general chairman of the breakfast.

College Glee Club To Give Concert Here

Annual Spring Recital Scheduled March 24 In Auditorium

ROBERTSON WILL DIRECT SINGERS

Program is Announced; Group's Names Are Made Known

Featuring a three-part program the college glee club under the direction of Miss Etta Robertson will present its twenty-sixth spring concert in the college auditorium Wednesday night at 8 o'clock.

Students to Take Leads

The first of the three-part program will be opened with the entire club singing "May No Rash Intruder" from Handel's Solomon. The rest of the first part of the program will include "Eia Mater" from "Stabat Mater" by Debussy, one of the best-known of the Latin hymns in honor of the Blessed Virgin, with Margaret Melzer singing the solo lead; "The Chime" by Debussy; Schubert's "The Music" with Evalyn Patterson taking the lead; Schubert's "To Be Sung on the Water" by a double trio, and Schumann's "To Earth May Wings Are Bringing."

Folk Songs Featured

The second part of the program will consist of "Folk Songs": "The Seasons" (Swedish); "Mountain Song" (Norwegian) with Marion Carson having the lead in a double trio; "A Song of Toil" (Russian); "Gypsy Drums" (Ukranian), and "Lauterbach" (German) sung by Margaret Melzer and the glee club.

"Maples" by Gena Branscombe will be sung by Josephine Binion and the glee club, after which the entire club will sing "American Lullaby" by Rich; "A Spirit Flower" by Campbell, Tipton, and Treharne, and "The Rocket" by Harris. "Garnet and Gold" will be the last number. Eleanor Daniels and Marjorie Stump will accompany at the pianos and Jessica Jane Mackey at the organ.

Girls Who Will Sing

Of the girls singing in the concert the first sopranos are Josephine Binion, Sara Hethcox, Edna Moon, Margaret Gourlie, Marion Carson, Margaret Melzer, Louise Thrasher, Charlotte Kamper, and Marjorie Benson. Second sopranos are Lois Bowen.

Continued on page two

Hinson, Tryon Speak to FEA

Eleven Faculty Members Attend Convention In Orlando

While attending the Florida Educational association annual convention in Orlando this weekend, sixteen of the Florida State college faculty members are taking part in forums, group meetings, and panel discussions, and several of them have part in the program.

Dr M. R. Hinson will appear this afternoon in a panel discussion on "What Should We Strive to Achieve in Four-Year Program for Education of Secondary Teachers?" and tonight he will lead another on the topic "The Problem of Handling the Great Mass of Adolescents Who Are Not Academically Inclined."

Miss Florence Tryon will preside this afternoon as chairman of the social studies group at which Dr. H. F. Becker will speak on "Distinct Contributions of Geography to the Social Studies."

Miss Gladys Fawley, instructor in geography, will address the Council of Teachers of Geography Saturday morning on "Adjustments, Maladjustments, and Readjustments in Geography Teaching."

The remainder of the delegation include Dr. Ruth Connor, Miss Leila Venable, Dr. Mark DeGraff, Miss Grace Fox, Miss Emily Wilburn, Dr. R. B. Parsons, Oval S. Harrison, and Dr. Marion Hay.

Dr Hay has called a meeting of the Florida chapter of the American Association of Spanish Teachers of which she is president for this afternoon. Preliminary reports of progress will be made by members of the test examination committee.

Tonight the annual alumnae dinner for Florida State College graduates will be given at the Angebilt hotel.

Speaker Advises Americans Not To Enter European War

Sherwood Eddy Warns Against Propaganda About Making World Safe for Democracy In Event of New Conflict

By MARY SULLIVAN

In the event of a European war, Dr. Sherwood Eddy, lecturer and traveler, who addressed the students here last Tuesday night, thinks that America should do all in her power to keep out of it. To his judgment there is no good to be done by it. "I hope America will not swallow the old propaganda of making the world safe for democracy," he said. "Since the last war in which we set out to do that, Mussolini has, within ten years, been able to establish seventeen dictatorships."

Asked if he thought that the American colleges of today are educating our students against war Dr. Eddy replied that they are doing so slightly but not adequately. "There is too much mass education, you see. We are not teaching our students how to think but what to think." In his opinion the fact that we have compulsory military education in some colleges and even high schools certainly shows that we are not educating for peace.

According to Dr. Eddy the youth of America is not as serious as the youth of foreign countries. These others have had problems of war and justice thrust upon them. Many of them are involved in class war; naturally they are more mature. The young people of our country, to quote Dr. Eddy, are "sheltered in the backwaters of life."

When queried as to his opinion of Max Eastman's recent article on "The End of Socialism in Russia," in which the author states that socialism has seen its day in Russia and that the educational system is retrogressing, the lecturer stated that he does not agree with Mr. Eastman. "Although I do deplore," he said, "Russia's denial of liberty, illustrated in recent inhuman trials, and its violence and dogmatic atheism. However, the great experiment is not over. They are carrying on an experiment in justice just as we have done in liberty."

Turning to the negro question, in which he is very much interested, Dr. Eddy thought for a few moments before stating that he

Continued on page two

Students, Pedestrians Left Shaking by Careening Autos

Motor Vehicles Accounted for 36,400 Fatalities In 1935 While 105,000 Permanently Disabled During This Time

By ARLINE GRAY LOCKHART

When a car whizzes up College avenue through the college gates and careens crazily around the corner, it leaves the student standing shakily on the curb and gasping, "Whew! That was a close shave."

Pedestrians on other street corners usually have the occasion to feel the same as the college girl. But all of them are not so lucky. There is the time when the squeal of the brakes of a car jerked to a studden stop and the thud of a falling body may be heard. Or a car roaring along a highway attempts to pass another car on a hill only to collide wtih an oncoming automobile. The next morning's paper carries the story . . . "three men were killed and a woman and child suffering from fatal injuries are in the city hospital."

Life and Death, and Death's boon companion, Maimed, crouch over the highways and city streets of the nation playing a game of dice. The winner's prize is a human being.

Death and Maimed are frequently and unnecessarily the winners. According to the accident list of 1935 motor vehicles accounted for 36,400 fatalities, 105,000 permanently disabling injuries and 1,180,000 temporary disabilities. Of the 36,400 fatalities pedestrian deaths are estimated at approximately 44% of the total. The collisions between two motor vehicles accounted for 9,650 deaths or 26% of the total.

Florence Nelson, editor of Safety Education Magazine, writes in the March issue of Hygeia, that elementary school children are injured most frequently in traffic while they are on foot. In this age group pedestrian deaths amount to 77 percent of the total. Most traffic injuries occur to high school students while driving or riding in automobiles.

Facts such as these are responsible for the existence of the National Five Year Traffic Campaign, which aims to reduce mo-

Continued on page two

Dr. Heinlein Talks on War

International Relations Club Has Meeting Last Night

In a talk before the International Relations club last night Dr. C. P. Heinlein declared that "wars are not natural but artificial phenomena. War is social degeneration."

Discussing ways of propagating war, Dr. Heinlein emphasized the power of music, particularly military marches, as an instrument used for war stimulus. Giving as an example the hackneyed phrase "adequate defense," the speaker developed the idea that verbal tricks are often employed by newspapers and pro-war speakers in their militaristic campaigns.

While the militaristic cleverly camouflages his belligerent devices, the pacifist, on the other hand, uses straightforward cartoons and pictures to get his ideas across.

As methods to preserve international peace Dr. Heinlein advocated fewer naval reviews, fewer military parades, and more movies in the vein of "All Quiet on the Western Front."

"We will have war as long as we make preparation for war lawful," Dr. Heinlein told his audience.

Hinson Attends Meeting

Dr. M. R. Hinson, associate professor of education at Florida State College for Women, attended a meeting of the executive committee of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, of which he is a member, last week-end in Birmingham.

Students Take Over Democrat For April 4th.

Eleanor Williams to Act As Editor of Annual Edition of Paper

Headed by Eleanor Williams, the Flambeau staff will put out its annual edition of the Daily Democrat April 4. This paper will summarize the past two years' work of the state government, sketch the work to be done, and give a picture of the present legislature which convenes here April 9.

The editorial staff of the college paper will serve as editors for this publication. They are: Martha Baker and Arline Lockhart, associate editors; Pearle Shepard, managing editor; Evelyn Fisher, city editor; Hazel Bowman, telegraph editor; Clotilde O'Rourke, feature editor; Margaret Claire Lafferty and Mary Lynn Massie, society desk; Ella Virginia Brooks and Elizabeth Turner, sports desk; and Jane Quinn, advertising manager.

The repertorial staff, made up of the sophomore journalism class, includes: Hazel Adams, Ruth Atkinson, Dorothy Barclay, Blanton Barrett, Dorothy Bellamy, Frances Brunson, Petrea Cabaniss, Elizabeth Causey, Theresa Christel, Honor Coleman, Virginia Davis, Hazel Donnegan, Maxine Fugate, Mary Gober, Margaret Gourlie, Leona Howe, Betty Lou Ingermann, Lucy Kelly, Ann Ladd, Betty Leach, Martha Lumpkin, Mary Jeanne McKay, Alicia Meacham, Mary Noble, Alberta Patrick, Janet Pierce, Marion Purviance, Nancy Rogero, Jane Sharon, Lavina Spaulding, Elizabeth Spicer, Mary Sullivan, Alma Warren, and Frances Waterhouse.

Dean Opperman Introduces Self

When Dean Opperman was toastmistress of the Saturday luncheon at the Florida State Music Teachers' association's third annual convention in Tampa, she introduced the sole speaker of the occasion, Miss Ella Scoble Opperman.

She led up to the introduction of the speaker by quoting a humor magazine's statement of the speaker's birth, "The Opperman's have bought a brand new family organ." The magazine became something of a prophet when the infant in question later became an organist. Dean Opperman continued in a more serious vein by giving the highlights of the National Music Teachers convention, held at Chicago in December. As the national convention devoted an entire day to Musicology, she stressed this subject, which is a graduate study and might be said to deal with everything in music except the actual composition and performance.

Dean Opperman was elected second vice president of the state association.

Faculty Members Write And Publish Books

Continued from page one
of its kind on the subject of Southern nationalism and unity, was published recently. His history is being used as a supplementary textbook on this campus and as a text at the University of Virginia, Louisiana State University, and other educational institutions. Several years ago Dr. Cotterill wrote, "A History of Kentucky."

Dr. Arthur Romeyn Seymour, head of the department of modern languages, has collaborated on two Spanish grammars. One, for use in the first year of college Spanish, is entitled "Practical Spanish Grammar." The other, "Short Spanish Review Grammar," is used by students in their second year of college Spanish. Both books are widely used throughout the country.

Chaucer and Gower are the principals of Dr. William George Dodd's "Courtly Love in Chaucer and Gower."

For college and university students Dr. Leland Judson Lewis, who is head of the chemistry department, has collaborated in a "General Chemistry."

Dr. Harold Frederic Richards is author of an "Introduction to Our Physical Environment."

Eddy Approves Plans For Day of Peace Here

Continued from page one
Normal and Industrial School, in Ellendale, North Dakota.

The committee on plans is preparing to send out a second set of letters containing a complete account of the program planned here. Since so many messages have been received from the presidents of various colleges expressing approval of the faculty-student discussions carried on here, it has been decided to send letters containing Peace Day plans to the college presidents as well as to the student body presidents.

The Day Student's Organization at Florida State will cooperate with the Peace day committee by helping with the public address of the day and by encouraging the attendance of the residents of Tallahassee. The date and speaker will be announced in the near future.

Library Schedules Hours for Easter

If the Easter bunny comes hopping up to the campus during next week-end he will be able to find a welcome in at least one of the "public institutions" hereabout, for the library, declares Miss Louise Richardson, will be open for business.

On Thursday the morning hours will be as usual, from 9:18 to 12 o'clock noon; the afternoon hours, from 1:30 to 4 o'clock. On Friday, Saturday, and Monday mornings the stacks and browsing room will be open from 9:30 to 12:30 o'clock, and on Friday evening the books of both will be available from 7:30 to 9:30.

The reserve room will be open only from 8:30 to 10:30 o'clock after Thursday morning. Books may be borrowed for use at this time and must be returned at the same time the following morning. Books borrowed Monday morning will be due Tuesday morning by 9 a. m.

Learning Art Has Approval Of Mrs. Cone

Governor's Wife Stands For Much Training Of Women Today

By MARY SULLIVAN

Mrs. Fred P. Cone believes heartily in higher education for women. "Of course there are many notable successes today that are not college graduates, but they are the exceptions. A college education is a great asset. Especially at the present time a diploma means so much in the business world."

A petite brunette whose informal charm was emphasized by the old fashioned grandeur of the reception room at the governor's mansion, Mrs Cone settled herself more comfortably before continuing.

"I have not come in contact with any of the students at the college," she said, "but I think the campus itself is delightful and the grounds are such that you can well be proud of them. I feel as though I know a good deal about the school," she smiled. "You see, several of my friends graduated from there." She herself attended summer school in Gainesville a few years ago but declined to draw any comparison between the schools.

"I do know," she said, "that Florida State ranks very high scholastically among the schools of the country."

As for politics, Mrs. Cone takes no active part in them herself but has watched with interest woman's progress in the field. In the last eight years and especially during Roosevelt's administration, women have achieved a great deal. "Of course it is slow work but then we waited many years for the right to vote—and finally obtained it." She pointed out the fact that Ruth Bryan Owen, of Florida, was the first woman ambassador to a foreign country.

Speaking of books Mrs Cone said that since she has been in Tallahassee she has had very little time for reading, but she does get great enjoyment out of the works of Lloyd Douglas.

"I travel around a good deal with the governor," she said, "and the time I spend here is well taken up, every minute of it. There are receptions, teas, and dinners to keep me busy. There are also visitors coming and going all day long."

Even as she spoke other visitors were announced. As the interview came to an end she smiled her good-bye and hurried out to greet them.

Baptist Have Speech Series

Miller Will Give Final Talk at Ruge Hall On March 19

Mr. J. Roy Robinson, state Baptist student secretary of Gainesville will speak on this campus during the week of March 15-20 each day from 9 to 6 o'clock and in the evening from 7:30 until 8:10 in 203 Administration building. Mr. Robinson's topic for the week will be "Investments in Christian Living."

Professor Robert Miller will give the last of a series of Latin addresses on "Jesus Christ, the Way of Love" on March 18 at 7:30 in Ruge Hall.

Sunday night, March 21, at 9:15 the Episcopal Student Auxiliary will present a program discussing "The American Negro." Miss Louise Starr, student worker from the University of Georgia will be the guest speaker.

Holy Week services will be held Monday through Friday of next week at hte Methodist Student House, led by Reverend Allfriend.

On March 21, at 7:30 p. m., the Methodist student choir and dramatic group will present "The Terrible Meek," a one-act play.

Students, Pedestrians Left Shaking by Careening Autos

Continued from page one
tor vehicle accidents at least 35% by the end of the year 1940. A drive for safety is on.

The state committee on public safety of which former Governor David Sholtz was chairman published a manuel of Safety Instruction for the Elementary Grades. The purpose of the manuel is to educate children in the study of safety so that they may be better equipped to protect themselves against the hazards of the complex life of an American community.

The book is dedicated to the teachers of Florida who submitted the material from which it is compiled. The plans were chosen from thousands of contributions offering practical suggestions for the teaching of safety to the young children of the state from the day they start to school on through the grades. Each plan selected has been tried and found satisfactory. Among the various methods employed in these instructions are included informal discussion and study of literature pertaining to safety, the observation of traffic and teaching of safety rules for traveling, the dramatization of safety plays, and the making of posters, notebooks, and sand table projects.

The committee also endorsed the "Not Over 50 Club" organized by the Lumbermens Mutual Casualty Company in September 1935. The company declares that this is a not-for-profit organization of public-spirited citizens who are pledged to reduce the killing and maiming of human beings on our streets and highways by driving their cars safely at all times and by limiting their maximum speed on open roads to fifty miles an hour. Any man or woman, son or daughter who is willing to drive safely at all times is eligible for membership.

Some of the rules of the club's creed are: knowing and observing the traffic laws of my city and state; reducing my speed in bad weather, at night, in congested areas and where road conditions warrant; using hand signals when turning or stopping; passing other cars only on straight level stretches when I have ample room; never "jumping" the light; watching out for children; always remembering that drinking and driving do not mix and that a slow reaction due to two drinks may mean someone's death.

The National Safety Council in making studies of the 1935 accidents estimated that 15% were due to the vehicle itself, but that these could have been reduced through careful driving. Other causes for accidents are due to the physical defects of the driver or the ignorance of traffic rules on the part of the driver. The council found that the greatest number of drivers who have accidents, however are neither physically defective, nor ignorant of traffic rules.

Most motorists believe they drive safely. Few realize how often they violate the simple common sense rules necessary to prevent accidents and fatalities. Will motorists continue to let Death and Maimed be the winner, or will they adhere to common sense rules in driving to protect themselves and their fellowmen?

Faculty Play Gets Hisses And Ovations

Crowd Cheers Melodrama As Heroine Flees Villain's Grasp

Hisses and ovations, brickbats and bouquets! Melodrama of the ten-twenty-and-thirty cent variety makes its debut at Florida State college.

Apparently sedate faculty members, throwing their inhibitions to the wind, put on the sock and buskin, took up the mask of Thespis, let themselves go, and presented Anna Cora Mowatt's thrilling work "Fashion" or "Life in New York."

From the homely, home-spun philosophy of Adam Truman of Cateraugus county to the superficial pretension of Count Jolimaitre, impersonator of nobility and general scoundrel from France; from the shy retiring nature of Gertrude to the self-assertive boldness of Prudence, the play was a study in contrasts—the simple and the complex.

The ladies rustled about in the costume of the period; between the acts the musicians—all true geniuses, judging from their artistic hair cuts and flowing ties—played appropriate music of an uncertain vintage with a skill that was only exceeded by the heart-rending quality of the melody it produced.

The audience, entering into the spirit of the evening, displayed the proper and appropriate response to each turn in the plot, hissing the villian with his diabolical plans, applauding the brave heroine who dared all to foil him, only to fail in the attempt and so very nearly cause her downfall. But her honesty and virtue of necessity triumphed and at last she was cleared in the eyes of her lover and grandfather—to the accompaniment of a great ovation from the cash customers.

Lecturer Sees Changed Order As Inevitable

Continued from page one
to look about and then accept or reject."

He further emphasized the fundamental inconsistancies of the operation of Russian government, which, though based on atheistic principles, is the first and only nation of the world to share production with other nations, and which has no un-employment; the only nation to insist on social justice, the abolishment of slums and unlivable yet habited tenaments; the first country in which there are no rich and poor, no black and white, in short, no class distinction. He contrasted it with the United States in which we practice Christian principles and where there is absolutely no justice.

"In Russia," he said, "the people are treated with absolute justice but are granted no liberty. In the United States we have liberty—but very little justice. Neither of such governments can endure. The institutions of the next century must combine them."

It may be that they will be united by violent communism, by non-violent socialism, or by the "middle way" as in Sweden, but that union of justice and liberty is coming, and shortly, he maintains.

At the conclusion of his speech Mr Eddy spoke of the condition of the share croppers in the south-eastern portion of our country, and of the co-operative farm which he and some friends bought and started as an experiment on the bank of the Mississippi. There, social equality in regard to housing, gain, schooling and such other common necessities is practiced.

"It is by the institution of such movements that America can work out her own salvation, in my opinion," concluded the speaker.

Theta's Pay Piper For Special Note

Are your boy friends generous with their specials, long distance calls, or telegrams? The girls of the Kappa Alpha Theta sorority have to pay for such devotion.

Every girl must pay a one cent tax for every special, a two cent tax for every telegram, and a three-cent tax for every long distance telephone call received. This money is being used to start a library in the house, and also to contribute to the national friendship fund which enables Theta's to continue with advanced work in their fields.

Speaker Advises Americans Not to Enter European War

Continued from page one
does not find any essential difference in the attitude toward negroes in the north and the south. "We are all a product of our environment. Wherever the races exist there is the problem." He smiled and said, "You might express it this way, 'The north loves the race and hates the individual. The south loves the individual and hates the race'." He thinks that before the position of the negro is changed we must have reeducation with the idea of racial equality in mind. "Why is it," he asks, "that the people of Russia have solved the question so well and we Christians of America have not yet done so?"

Dr. Eddy expressed the opinion that the economic depression is nearing an end in some ways. We have had recovery in production and profits, he said, but we have not succeeded in giving employment to the eight millions of unemployed and the million more that are on relief, directly or indirectly. Each year the high schools and colleges turn out vast numbers of people that have never worked and the labor saving machines turn experienced worker out of their jobs.

Dr. Eddy does not paint the future altogether black, however. He thinks that as the capitalistic system which cannot give employment disintegrates and falls away will be replaced by a socialized planned system.

Major Curtis L. Waller Speaks in Convocation

Continued from page one
pared as they are on the front. It is a tremendous undertaking to put thousands of men into action unless the question of preparing has been considered.

Very few of the trained men are lost said the speaker and to prevent further disastrous situations similar to those we have experienced in the past, he emphasized the necessity of training in order that soldiers might not have to be trained in front of the enemy and that victory and a short fight will be theirs.

Plenty "Whistling In Dark" When Lights Fade Out In Gym

Old-Fashioned Methods Reverted to When Candles Take Place of Electricity During Play Night Activities

By RUTH ATKINSON

There was plenty of "whistling in the dark" last Friday night at the gym when the good old, supposedly reliable electric light system went on the blink and stayed that way for half an hour.

Old-fashioned methods were reverted to when candles took the place of electricity, and even though the huge gym swallowed the small light thrown out by the tiny flames, at least they were some help.

The lights failed immediately after the completion of the swimming meet, and that meant that freshman swim champs and alsorans were left stranded in the dark with wet bathing suits clinging to equally wet skins, and with no chance of doing anything about it. What was the use of struggling into clothes only to find out later when there was more light on the subject that the wrong dress had been put on or the skirt was on backwards?

Tales are told of the touch system which prevailed as a method of changing location. Wild stabs in the dark, hopeful lunges in what was hoped to be the right direction and futile efforts to remember just how many steps led down from the balcony to the main floor were tried by everyone. One blessing was that no one else could see the foolish expression on your face when you tried to take an extra step down the stairs only to find that your leg was doing some kind of a German goose-step and hitting the floor on the same level from which you started.

Ping-pong and dancing were enjoyed by means of the wavering light of the candles. It mattered very little that it was impossible to see the ball and that hits were made due to luck rather than skill. It mattered very little either that the faces of dancing partners could barely be distinguished in the dim light. It was rather romantic, too, 'cause many pairs of eyes closed while the girls thought dreamily of other times and greener pastures.

One group of girls tell gleefully of the package of cigarettes they found that some poor soul had evidently lost in the excitement, and it is also rumored that the men's faculty volleyball team took the opportunity of the light failure to put on a disappearing act.

Light flash really came early and stayed late Friday night and we were more in the dark than we've ever been before.

College Glee Club to Give Concert Here

Continued from page one
Virginia Pinney, Anita Leonard, Marshlea Cottingham, Margaret Peacock, Mary Eagle, Jean Zacharias, Evelyn Fisher, Marguerite Branos, Gertrude Rodgers, Charlotte Veith, Sarah Martin, Catherine Pinner, Ina Margaret Robinson, Zulienne Russell, Edna Warren, Sara Adams, Maxine Ward, Winifred Ewart, Riva Hemphill, Janet Cook, Julia Rosser, Dorothy Scott, Dorothy Sanford, Eunice Moe, Margaret Rinck, Madelaine Weeks, Ruth Porter, Elizabeth Jett, Eleanor Daniells, Kathryne Kyle, and Doris Cahoon.

First altos are Betty Bartholf, Ella Gene Bivans, Bette Bernreuter, May Belle Ford, Alicia Meachem, Mary Taylor, Elizabeth Ranson, Ruth Eyman, Ruth Knight, Jane Hubbard, Barbara Hubbard, Evelyn Bayless, Eleanor Mullens, Ruth Terrell, and Marjorie Stump. The second altos are Madeline Duncan, Margaret Endsley, Louise Bowery, Pearl Shepard, Esther O'Byrne, Evalyn Patterson, Amelia Avant, Frances Moss, Betty Reed, Jeannette Wickham, Helen Shepherd, and Sarah Sealey.

Betty Boggs Announces Marriage in Augustine

Miss Betty Boggs and Mr. Vergil M. Perry, both of Jacksonville, were married February 27 in the Flagler Presbyterian Church of St. Augustine. The couple will make their home in Jacksonville.

Mrs. Perry was born in Newark, N. J., and moved to Jacksonville fifteen years ago. She was graduated last May from Florida State College for Women where she specialized in dramatics and took an active part in many plays. A member of Pi Beta Phi sorority, she served as its president last year and is vice president of the Pi Beta Phi alumnae club in Jacksonville. She studied dramatics at the Pasadena School of the Theatre in California last summer, and has participated in radio performances over Jacksonville stations. She is a member of the Jacksonville Little Theatre and has appeared in that organization's plays this season.

Mr. Perry is connected with the traffic departmen of the Mobile and Ohio rail. He attended the University of Florida and the University of Missouri at Columbia, Missouri.

Recommendations Made For Sophomore Council

Josephine Binion, freshman adviser, presided at the freshman class meeting held Thursday morning at 11:30 in the auditorium. The meeting was for the purpose of suggesting the names of girls to be tapped for Sophomore council.

Josephine explained that while suggesting a name did not mean that that girl will necessarialy be tapped, the names suggested at the meeting will be submitted for consideration.

Mercer Chorus Will Present Program Here

Continued from page one
the direction of Dr. Burt P. Richardson, is carrying thirty-five members on its thirty-second annual tour. The itinerary for the present tour includes performances in Americus March 29, Albany March 30, Tifton March 31, Valdosta April 1, Bainbridge April 2, and Tallahassee April 3.

International Group to Have Noted Speake[r]

Ames, "World Treasure[r]" To Feature Annual Lecture Forum

Sponsored by the Internatio[nal] Relations club as a feature of [its] annual lecture forum, Sir Herbe[rt] Brown Ames, first "World Trea[s]urer" and a former member of [the] Canadian parliament, will com[e] to the college on Monday, Apr[il] 5, to give two lectures.

Monday evening at 9 p. m. [in] the Augusta Conradi theater D[r.] Ames will deal with the subje[ct] "Does German Rearmament ne[c]essarily Mean War?" "The Bu[b]bling Cauldron of Centr[al] Europe" will be the topic of D[r.] Ames' discussion in convocat[ion] the following day.

Although Canada is his nat[ive] land, Dr. Ames at present spe[nds] most of the year in the Un[ited] States. After eight years in [the] Montreal city council, he repre[]sented his native city, Montre[al] in the dominion parliament [] seventeen years. For a period [of] nine years Sir Herbert was cha[ir]man of the select standing com[]mittee on banking and commer[ce] of the parliament.

As honorary secretary-gene[ral] of the Canadian Patriotic Fu[nd] during the World War, it was [his] job to manage the raising a[nd] distributing of nearly $50,000,0[00] for the support of the wives a[nd] dependent relatives of Canad[ian] soldiers. In 1919 Sir Herbert w[as] invited to become financial dire[c]tor of the League of Nations S[ec]retariat, then being organized [in] London. From 1919 to 1926 [he] filled this post, living for six yea[rs] in Geneva.

During the past eight years [he] has revisited Geneva four tim[es] thus keeping up-to-date on [] the activities of the League. V[is]iting Germany, Poland, a[nd] Geneva, he had an opportu[nity] to study the situation in n[] central Europe from vanta[ge] points. Two years ago Sir He[r]bert interviewed many of [the] leading statesmen in Aus[tria-]Hungary, Roumania, and Yu[go]slavia.

All the Canadian colleges ha[ve] heard him lecture, and more tha[n] one hundred and fifty Amer[ican] educational institutions have [in]vited him to their campus [to] speak. Cooperating with the Ca[r]negie Endowment every year si[nce] 1929, Sir Herbert is well know[n] to International Relations Clu[bs] throughout the continent.

Annual Skits Will be Given by Six Group[s]

Continued from page one
part in the skit are Winifre[d] Ewart, Margaret Walcott, Be[] Hetch, Lutrelle Patterson, S[] Lytle, Daisy Parker, Betty P[] Mary Catherine Gibson, Ma[] Taylor, Josephine Binion, Jan[] Borton, Beth Daane, Betty Mac[] [M]artha Makemson, Mary Jean[] McKay, Mary Miller, and Pe[] [M]ichael.

THE DUTCH KICHEN

Specializes in the Best Foods.

PRIVATE DINING ROOM FOR PARTIES

Phone for Reservations

The FRENCH SHOP

The very newest in footwear to harmonize with your Easter clothes. . . . Flattering designs . . . smartly styled patterns make these shoes every bit as important as your Easter bonnet.

Come to The FRENCH SHOP

20% Discount

Helena Rubinstein Beauty Preparations

The world-famous Helena Rubinstein beauty preparations at a 20% saving. Scientific beauty-builders, glamorous make-up—everything your skin needs to stay young and beautiful.

Check the preparations you want and bring in or send in the list before Saturday. Miss Helsley from New York salon is here to consult with you.

1.00 Pasteurized Face Cream—4 oz. ...... .80	10.00 Special Throat and Neck Cream 8 oz. 8.00
2.00 Pasteurized Face Cream—8 oz. 1.60	18.00 Special Throat and Neck Crm. 18 oz 14.40
3.50 Pasteurized Face Cream—16 oz. 2.80	5.00 Novena Night Cream—3 oz. 4.00
1.00 Beauty Grains—6 oz. ...... .80	12.00 Novena Night Cream—8 oz. 9.60
3.00 Eau Verte—1¼ oz. 2.40	21.50 Novena Night Cream—16 oz. 17.20
1.25 Skin Toning Lotion—4 oz. 1.00	1.00 Eyelash Grower and Darkener ...... .80
2.50 Skin Toning Lotion—8 oz. 2.00	2.00 "715" Lipstick 1.60
5.00 Skin Toning Lotion—16 oz. 4.00	1.50 Town and Country Lipstick 1.20
1.50 Herbal Cleansing Cream Special 2 oz 1.20	1.00 Compact Rouge ...... .80
2.50 Herbal Cleansing Cream Special 5 oz 3.20	1.00 Rouge en Creme .. .80
7.00 Herbal Cleansing Crm. Special 16 oz. 5.50	2.00 Rouge en Creme .. 1.60
2.00 Special Eye Cream—½ oz. 1.60	2.00 Youthifying Herbal Masque 1.60
3.50 Special Eye Cream—1 oz. 2.80	5.00 Youthifying Herbal Masque 4.00
6.00 Special Throat and Neck Cream—4 oz. 4.80	1.50 Water Lily Pow. .. 1.20
	3.00 Enchante Pow. .. 2.40
	1.50 Town and Country Make-up Film 1.20
	10.00 Hormone Twin Youthifiers 8.00

Bennett's College Inn Pharmacy

Phone 300 — Motorcycle Delivery

117 South Monroe St.—Phone 181

Depot Office: S. A. L. Ry Passenger Station—Phone 425-R Tallahassee, Florida

RAILWAY EXPRESS AGENCY INC.

NATION-WIDE RAIL-AIR SERVICE

Managers Hear Rules Stated For Swimming

Interclass and Odd-Even Meets Regulations Are Announced

Regulations for the Interclass and Odd-Even swimming meets which will take place the latter part of next month were announced at the meeting of the managers held last Friday night.

Rules of the pool must be upheld both during practice periods and the meets. Each swimmer must have a health grade of "A" or "B" to swim in speed events and a health grade of "A," "B," or "C" to enter form events. She may not have more than eight hours of unsatisfactory in her gymnastic work.

For the interclass meet four practice periods are required, with one practice periods if an "F" is desired. The Odd-Even meet requires six practices with ten for each "F." The practice periods will be held every day at 4:30 and at 11:30 on Saturday. After Easter vacation additional practice periods will be scheduled at 5:30-6 o'clock on Tuesday and Thursday. Each student is to sign a practice and make-up card at the beginning of the practice, stating whether she is in Odd or Even, and giving her name, the class, and the event for which she is practicing. The card will be signed by a life guard and filed. From these cards the managers will check individuals for conformity to the day's number the meet. One thirty minute practice or two fifteen minute practices will count as one practice point.

A swimmer may enter two speed and two relay events of two form or one form and diving events. Each team is allowed to enter only two swimmers in each event except in the interclass meet and three swimmers in each event for the Odd-Even meet.

The order of events is as follows:

If yard free style, speed; elementary back, form; break stroke, speed; side stroke, form; back crawl, speed; breast stroke, form; medley, English racing and front crawl for 75 yards, speed, diving, two required running front and back; and two optional; and four-man relay, 100 yards, free style, speed.

Managers for the Odd team are Mary Bethcel, Winona Ireland, and Dr. Maswick. Even managers are Janet Cook, Viola Brooks, and Mrs. Jane Stambaugh.

Miss Betty Washburn urges all students who can swim to come out to practice.

Sports Squints

By HAZEL ADAMS

At least we found out that we have some wicked dodgers on our faculty after seeing the faculty-student volley ball game last Friday at play night. But in spite of the fact that the students were victorious, the faculty team showed some real spirit.

Popeia seem to be able to "take it" for boys leaving F Club members on a hike this afternoon—or maybe there's method in their madness.

From the looks of things diamon ball practice is turning into a good old tumbling game. One enthusiastic freshman succeeded in making a graceful back slide while she was fielding third base. Others have been seen rolling from the backs "on the way to play diamond ball."

Odd-Even swimming practice is getting under way this week. From now on there'll probably be plenty of water splashing for the skills of weary horses and Even sprits.

March winds seemed to have called a few cases of sun-tan fever that may be becoming an epidemic on campus. But perhaps spring is just around the corner.

Guess we'll make another stab at showing our "track" and "muscular" ability about Thursday noon when the mad dash with crammed suitcases for the holiday home takes place.

A water-lily to Yvonne Marcheseau for taking first place in the annual freshman swimming meet held last Friday evening.

Perhaps by now our dance desiates to the Physical Education Convention out in Texas are ridding bucking broncos and dancing with the wild and wooly cowboys.

Sun Bathers Start Training With Arrival of Spring Air

Pet Blisters Pop After Tender Hides Have Been Exposed

Jennie Murphree—

"Well, sport, this is a funny time of the week to be going to camp. What's the score?"

"Don't be funny, sweetie. I'm going out behind the dorm to take a sun bath. I've got to get rid of this pale, wan complexion before Easter. I'd be ashamed to go home with this rose petal skin. When I came up here in September I was so brown they thought I was in the wrong college."

"You must be planning to spend the week out there. Why all the baskets and the suitcase?"

"Well, you know, those are blankets to put on the ground for me to park on and this suitcase contains books, the latest yes case contains books, the latest yes tery, and sunscreen, the kind you write letters on."

"Oh, I see. I'll write a letter and tell me about the atmosphere. Don't get blistered, dearie."

Reynolds—

"Yank off your duds and pull on your bathing suit, roomie, we're going to take a sunbath. Everybody's doing it. I've borrowed back from gym and honest, out behind the dorm is the best place to get a tan in Palm Beach. Babes stretched out on blankets all over the place. I got in a swell spot where I can get right in a patch of clover. I can understand now why they haven't had a frost since the last couple of years. They're preserving the clover for the unfortunate students to take sun baths on."

Richardson—

"Ouch! Quit! Stop! That's enough! I'll say I'm through with this because I asked you to put some Noxema on my shoulders and you've got to pop my pet blister. Now how am I going to prove I'm authorized? I'm losing out loud. It does look like you could be a little more considerate. First you have to go spill half my bottle of sun tan oil all over the grass and then you pop my blister. Whata pal. Am I bitter?"

Broward—

"Come on, Linie. We're going to get a little exercise with our sunburn. I haven't been on a tennis court since I was a freshman and tennis was a required course. I haven't even been down to the gym since I was a sophomore and took folk dancing. And furthermore, I haven't had any exercise all year. So therefore put on your shorts and bandanas and come on cause here's where we get exercise and sunburn plus."

Gilchrist—

"I'm not going to wait for you much longer, scum. Why don't you hurry up and come on?"

"I told you fifty times I can't take a sunbath on an empty stomach and my order hasn't come yet. So if you're so impatient go on and start smoking. That's all you ever do out there anyway and you know I detest smoke. And furthermore I've got a good mind not to come because you always pick out the hottest spot you can find and you know I'm always in danger of sun stroke. Why can't we put the blanket under a tree sometime like the rest of the sunbathers do?"

Gilchrist—

"I'm not going to wait for you much longer, scum. Why don't you hurry up and come on?"

Shuffleboard Games Started

Preliminaries and One Semi-Final Match Are Played

The preliminary games of the intra-mural shuffle-board tournament and one of the semi-final games have been played.

In the first semi-final games Virginia Mae Hall defeated Mary Chalker and Bertha Oven, won from Dot Mollner and Lib Lounds who were playing for the Catholics. The next semi-final game will be played between Elizabeth Theta team, Pat Campbell and Kitty Cramer, and Mary Catherine Mills and Janet Masters, Pi Beta Phi team.

Virginia Mae Hall defeated Mickey Conn and Ermine Lawrence in the semi-finals of the preliminary game. Reynolds ball team, Virginia Hall and Marjorie Thorpe, recently defeated the Kappa Delta team of Helen Ballenger and Betty Mack.

The Episcopal students lost to the Methodists last week as Marian Purviance and Margaret Walcott, this week, Mary Chalker and Bertha Oven, Chi Omegas, won over the Spirogyra team of Mary Jeanne McKay and Kathrine Autrey, also played this week. The Catholic team of Dot Mollner and Lib Lounds defeated the Pi Mus. Lillian Simons and Elspeth Grigsby, while Anita Leonard and Mildred Seekins won for the Alpha Chi Omegas from Victoria Crisp and Mickey Broseon of Alpha Xi Delta. The Theta Upsilon team was defeated by Margaret Patterson and Louise Rice of Zeta Tau Alpha.

Arrangements Finished For Testing Students For New Swim Club

Arrangements for testing prospective life-savers and prospective members of the Tarpon club were completed by the Life Saving Corps at its meeting Tuesday night. Further plans for spring activities were also made.

The members of the corps were chosen to help test the swimming classes training for life-saving and to serve as victims during the examinations. These tests will take place Monday and Tuesday of next week.

Tryouts for the Tarpon club will be the Wednesday and Thursday after Easter. To all those taking part, at least one life-saver will be in the pool every afternoon during those periods.

Janet Cooke was named as chairman of the swimming part of Play Day to be held on April 17. This is an annual event sponsored by the Physical Education association for high school girls.

Marian Weeks and Polly Flint were selected as a committee for nominating next year's officers.

Trail-Blazing Is Malicious Sport

Humming a catchy song, she trips gaily down the center of the street in front of the History building. Brakes groan and screech as passing cars slam to a sudden stop in order to let Miss Campus pass, because she is in a hurry to get home and manicure her nails.

There she goes, still humming and tripping along until she come to a bridge. Rapid mathematical calculations take place in her mind as she wonders whether it will take longer to go around the tree on the right or on the left. The decision made, she backs carefully through the hedge so as not to tear her second-best hose, lifts one foot and then the other over an annoying sign, and proceeds across the grass.

She makes a mental note to read what's written on the sign the next time she goes home. It was something about making trails. Oh, well. It's probably just in urking some historical spot, like an Indian trail or something.

Swimming Meet Winner Totals 17 Point Score

Marcheseaus Takes First Place in Saturday Aquatic Events

Yvonne Marcheseau took first place in the freshman swimming meet last Saturday night with a total score of 17 points. Marjorie Marwick was a close runner-up with a total of 13 points, and Virginia and Ernestine Makemson tied with 11½ points.

First and second place winners in the different events were as follows: 20 yard free style speed; Ernestine Makemson first place and Marjorie Marwick second; side stroke-form, Ernestine Makemson first with Betty Young, Marjorie Marwick and Yvonne Marcheseau tying for second; 25 yard back crawl-speed, Virginia Makemson first and Connie Ash second; elementary backstroke, Merryday Rosser first, Yvonne Marcheseau second; 25 yard English racing-speed, Yvonne Marcheseau first, Marjorie Marwick second; single over-arm form, Yvonne Marcheseau first with Evelyn Steel, Marjorie Marwick and Virginia Makemson tying for second place; apple race-speed Kitty Pryor first, Virginia Makemson second; diving, Kitty Pord first place and Marjorie Marwick second.

Freshmen who participated in the meet were: Yvonne Marcheseau, Marjorie Marwick, Marbra Robbins, Kitty Ford, Ernestine Makemson, Virginia Makemson, Betty Young, Janet Jewett, Joan Miller, Connie Ash, Evelyn Steel, Mary Collins, Merryday Rosser.

Officials were: referee, Valeria Hunt; scorer, Dot White, announcer, Janet Cook; starter, Polica West; clerk of course, Nan Clark; timing judges, Miss Grace Proctor, Miss Ray Fraser, and Miss Ruth Lehmann; form judges, Ruth Annie McClain, Florence Ward, and Valeria Hunt; speed judges, Beth Deans, Florence Ward, Ruth Agnes McClain, Valeria Hunt, and

President

Vinia Brooks, who was elected last week president of the Women's Athletic association. Vinia is of the group of students attending the meeting of the American Physical Education association in Houston, Texas.

Brown Chosen to Head IRC for Coming Year

Marguerite Brown was elected president of the International Relations club, Wednesday afternoon.

Unanimously elected vice-president was Agnes Stiggins, as was Barbara Moore for secretary-treasurer. Elizabeth Pinch was elected librarian for next year. Miss Marion Irish, professor of political science, will continue as sponsor of the organization.

Magazine Wants Artist

All students who are interested in doing either editorial or art work on the Datel/ are asked to see Sarah Sealey in 218 Broward, Saturday or Sunday afternoon.

Hazel Viertel; timers, Mildred Seekins, Dot Colburn, Bunny Lowery, Betsy Lytle, Joan Magnus, and Kathryn Pratt.

Student Horse Show Planned

Riding Groups Take Part With Trophy Offered To High Scorer

Tentative plans for a student horse show have been made by Marie Taylor, instructor of extra-curricular riding, to be held the Saturday following the Tuesday students return from Easter vacation.

All the students in Marie's riding class will participate. Events will be divided into two sections—the beginners and the advanced riders. Marie plans to give a trophy to the one scoring the most events. Blue ribbons will be given to the winner of each event. When all the events have been ridden, the blue ribbon holders will compete against each other to determine the champion.

The show will be held in the Leon county jail colleges stables and all the students are invited to come. There will be three judges who have not been selected as yet.

Faculty Trio Presents Program in Lynn Haven

The faculty instrumental trio will present a concert in Lynn Haven Friday evening, March 19, under the auspices of the Woman's Literary club.

It will be one of the many recitals by the music faculty at which contributions are received for the music scholarship fund. Miss Augusta Murphy, violinist; Owen Sellers, 'cellist, and Miss Mary Esther Wisdom, pianist, are the faculty members of the trio.

Council Has Breakfast

The members of Sophomore Council will entertain at a "get-together" in the form of a waffle breakfast Sunday morning at the Dutch Kitchen. Waffles will be decorated with cut flowers.

Members of Faculty And Students Attend Conclave in Orlando

Yesterday several faculty members and students of the home economics department went to Orlando to attend the annual meeting of the Florida State Home Economics group held in connection with the convention of the Florida Education Association.

Dean Margaret Rector Sandels, Miss Lelia Venable, Miss Ruth Connor, and Miss Helen Heilor, of the faculty, Caroline Meiber, Carolyn Garvin, graduate assistants, and Marsvres Delaney, Miss Whitten, Louise Johnson, Alice Jones and Jean Willis, seniors left yesterday to attend the meet.

Last night they attended the annual Florida State College Alumna dinner which was held at the Angebult hotel.

Chaplain of Rollins Is Speaker for YWCA Monthly Devotional

At the regular monthly church service last Sunday the Young Women's Christian Association had as its speaker, the Rev. William Henry Lewis, chaplain of Rollins college at Winter Park.

The Rev. Lewis spoke on the subject, "Youth Faces the World of Tomorrow," stressing the need for clear and open minded conception of Christ and His principles. Emphasizing also the fact that it is the present youth who faces the world of tomorrow, he said that youth especially needs Christ.

He mentioned the strife and bloodshed in Spain and the present-day situations in Germany and Italy and insisted that they should have a better conception of Christ.

After the lecture an open forum was held at Rose Hall at which the students were at liberty to ask questions.

The Rev. Denny was a teacher of religious education and attended the University of Pennsylvania, Ursinus College in Pennsylvania, and Columbia University in New York City; his home, however, is in Pittsburgh.

Practices For Tennis Events To Begin Soon

Faculty-Student Meet To Be Played Off In Near Future

Immediately after the Easter holidays, tennis balls will begin to fly furiously across the nets of the colleges tennis courts as Odd and Even tennis practices are under way and the faculty-student tennis tournament looms up as an event of the near future.

Odd practices under the leadership of Valeria Hunt will be held every Tuesday, Thursday and Friday at 4:30. All interested Odd tennis players should report to the tennis courts the first Thursday after the holidays.

Even practices with Evelyn Fisher as leader will be held every Monday and Wednesday at 4:30 and Saturday at 5:30. All interested Even players should report to the tennis courts the first Wednesday after the holidays.

Both Odds and Evens will have at least four weeks of practice before actual tournament play and the annual Odd-Even contests will be played these weeks of practice work on strokes, court technique, and team-work strategy will be featured and all interested players are eligible for practices.

The faculty-student tennis tournament is an innovation of last year, will again furnish amusement and tennis practice for a large number of faculty members and students beginning the second week after Easter. Students wishing to participate in the tournament will ask some member of the faculty to be their partner and sign up on a notice that will be placed in the lower floor of the Administration building. The tournament schedule will be made out as soon as enough teams have signed up and tournament play will begin immediately after that.

The Florida Flambeau

EDITORIAL STAFF

HAZEL BOWMAN — Editor
ELEANOR WILLIAMS — Associate Editor
MARTHA BAKER — Assistant Editor
PEARLE SHEPARD — Managing Editor
EVELYN FISHER — News Editor

Member National Scholastic Press association and Florida Intercollegiate Press association.

DEPARTMENTS

Art, Evelyn Glazier; Exchanges Virginia Early; Features Arline Grey Lockhart and Jane Quinn; Literary, Sarah Beth Davis and Sarah Sealey; Outside News, Clotilde O'Rourke; Society Margaret Claire Lafferty and Minna Agress Assistant; Special Reporting, Arline Lockhart Mary Lynn Massie; Sports, Ella Virginia Brooks and Elizabeth Turner.
REPORTERS: Hazel Adams Ruth Atkinson Dorothy Barcley Blanton Barrett Dorothy Bellamy Frances Brunson Petrea Cabaniss Elizabeth Causey Theresa Christel Glenn Coarsey, Honor Coleman, Virginia Davis Hazel Donnegan Maxine Fugate Mary Gober Margaret Gourlie, Leona Howe, Betty Lou Ingermann, Lucy Kelly Ann Ladd, Betty Leach Martha Lumpkin Anne Lyddane Mary Jeanne McKay Alicia Meacham, Mary Noble Alberta Patrick Janet Pierce, Marion Purviance Nancy Rogero, Jane Sharon, Lavina Spaulding, Elizabeth Spicer, Mary Sullivan Alma Warren Frances Waterhouse.

BUSINESS STAFF

LILLIE McGUIRE — Business Manager
MARY SULLIVAN — Advertising Manager
MARGUERITE BROWN — Circulation Mgr.

Represented for National Advertising by
NATIONAL ADVERTISING SERVICE, INC.
College Publishers Representative
420 Madison Ave. New York, N. Y.
Chicago - Boston - San Francisco - Los Angeles
Portland - Seattle

Entered as second class mail matter January 30, 1915, at the post office at Tallahassee, Fla., under act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

Christian Realist Has Answer to "So What?"

Judging from the reception of his talks, we believe Sherwood Eddy's visit to the campus was a definite educational force. The number of students who wished to ask questions, the number of students who appeared at both talks, and the comments afterward were indicative that for the moment at least Dr. Eddy had stimulated our thinking.

It often takes an "outsider" to make us stop and realize we may be absorbing a lot of facts in the classrooms without punctuating them with the all-important "So What?" or "What can I do about it?"

Dr. Eddy's reference to his founding, with some friends a co-operative for the share croppers was one of several proofs that here was a man who was attempting to answer the all-important "So What?" Here was a man who had embraced a religion which was "realistic" because it was based on realism—those facts which we prefer to ignore or accept with resignation. Here was a man who could no longer preach to "heathens" the Christian doctrines when his own supposedly Christian country was crying out for action and leadership against economic injustice. Even in dogmatically atheistic Russia he found more of the teachings of Jesus actually lived than in his own country.

Such a man makes us look inwardly to examine our own personal conception of religion. We may find that what we call our "personal religion" is satisfactory to our own little selves but it leaves in "selfish content a world in neglect." We must not only inform ourselves of the facts but also find a practical mode of expression for them. How can the truth alone make us free when we keep it quietly to ourselves and do nothing about it?

Campus Beautiful!

Ours is a beautiful campus. Perhaps during this past fall and winter you have thought it a barren place with its leafless trees and bushes and its apparent lack of flowers. Now in the spring you will find many lovely things flowering and leafing on every side.

Before all its red winter berries have dropped off its leafless branches the dogwood is sending out pale green leaves, and swelling buds indicate that soon these slender little trees will be a mass of dainty white blossoms.

The azaleas have been brightening the campus with their riot of colors: rose, pink, white, orchid. The delicate blooms with their small dark green leaves splash the campus with loveliness. From their beds of many old brown leaves they rise as surprisingly beautiful as the pale, etherial water-lily rising from her muck bed. Even the newly transplanted bushes are budding and flowering.

Along the walk in front of Bryan, Reynolds, and Gilchrist halls the queer, colorful faces of the little pansies have been nodding for several weeks. Each little face is velvet soft, tinted deepest purple, orchid, lavender, golden, palest yellow, white. There, too, the great orange and golden heads of the brilliant calendulas are swelling. A few have even burst into full bloom. Soon each soft leaved plant will be holding up many proud blooms.

Even the shrubs which stayed green during fall and winter are sending out new shoots. One is sending out new red leaves, splashing the dark green with spots of color.

Soon the vines will continue their climbs over the brick buildings. By summer each building will have a cool green covering.

The pecan trees, which have been barren of leaves all winter, will send out tender young green leaves. These will cover the gray branches with long cool green leaves which turn darker and darker till they fall in the fall.

The oak trees, tiring of their winter leaves, will drop them so gradually that one scarcely notices the transformation. Then one day you will note the lovely new green leaves of those trees. The dark green of the pines grows lighter as the new needles take the place of old. Their cones and needles fall down into the grass.

The grass, too, is filled with new growth. Patches of bright green clover dot the brown of the winter grass. These dots spread until the brown becomes the dots and then fades away.

The brave young hedges guarding the new grass against intruding feet that make brown paths across the new green send out defiant shoots to increase their weight.

Ours is a beautiful campus. Look at it. Watch its new spring loveliness. Mark the appearance of new blossoms and shrubs. Next spring you'll watch again for their reappearance and greet them like old campus friends. —By Maxine Fugate.

Public Service Offers New Frontier

A new field to conquer? Is there one left for college graduates?

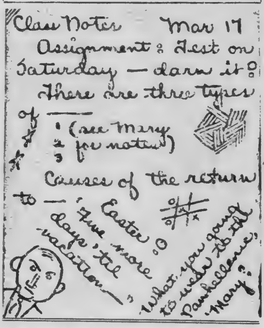
Yes. The field of public service is opening up a choice market for the talents of young people, particularly those college-bred.

The reality of a merit system to be a policy of the federal administration promises bright opportunities for careers in government. Since 1934 the Civil Service Commission has been offering annually one examination that requires no special experience. This examination is known as the junior civil service examiner. Designed to give non-specialized college graduates as well as chemistry, bacteriology, or accounting "majors" a chance to enter public service, it holds forth to those who pass it, jobs usually paying $1440 or $1620 a year. Since 1924 more than 1200 eligibles have been placed. And the positions are interesting.

Where would the successful applicant be placed? He might get to work as a student fingerprint expert with the nation's chief G-man, J. Edgar Hoover. The Bureau of Labor Statistics, the Central Statistical Board, the Tariff Commission, the Census Bureau, and the Civil Service Commission itself can always take on a few competent young people. Success on the examination may lead to an appointment with the United States Public Health Service, the Department of Agriculture, or the Veteran's Administration.

The examination system is well adapted both to the needs of the service and to our educational system. The average liberal colleges prepares its students so that they would be able to pass the junior civil service examiner. In England young people are encouraged to enter public service. Besides making for efficiency in democracy, this career avenue opens up an entirely new vocation to graduates throughout the country who are asking, "What is left for us to do?"

In June of this year the junior civil service examiner will again be given. Public service is not a money-making or spectacular field, but the jobs it offers are personally satisfying. How many June graduates will go forth into this new field and conquer? —By Alma Warren.



Another Squib Concerning Convocation

Says a Gainesville reader of the Flambeau in regard to the matter of compulsory convocation as discussed in the editorial columns last week:

"Convocation is compulsory for freshmen and they occupy at least three-fourths of the seats. It is true, however, that the 'once a month' meeting usually fills the auditorium and leaves more than half the students to enjoy an hour to do whatever they wish."

The same correspondent says in regard to the news bulletin issued at the university that said bulletin is printed tri-weekly instead of weekly and that this bulletin is posted at prominent places throughout the university. Printing, apparently, is taken care of by university funds.

Spirit of the Week . . . . By Glazier

This Week

Conferences Held On Settlement of Strike

Mary Sullivan is guest columnist this week.

The sit-down strikers have continued this week to create a great deal of turmoil in various parts of the country.

Circuit court Judge Allan Campbell issued a mandatory injunction last Monday ordering union officials, organizers and all strikers out of the eight Chrysler plants they seized a week ago.

Mr. Martin and Richard T. Frankensteen, Detroit organizational directors for the auto union, left a union meeting in Cleveland and returned to Detroit for a conference with Governor Murphy on the Chrysler situation.

Governor Murphy was reported as being much concerned with raports thet 6000 strikers intend to follow the precedent of the strikers in the General Motors plants, who refused to obey the order last month to evacuate the plant.

A somewhat grim aspect was given the situation of the sit-downs last Monday afternoon when a strike crippled the service of the Hotel Statler, where Governor Murphy was to have held a conference with his civic committee in an effort to stop the constantly increasing epidemic of sit-downs.

Guests waited on themselves while the employees made merry and helped themselves to food from the hotel pantry. The Statler is one of the largest hotels in the middle west, having 1,100 rooms.

While the average cost per pupil in New York state for the year 1934 was about $137, the highest in the country, New York and Pennsylvania were the only schools to have a public school enrollment of more than two million for that year, according to a report from the office of education.

Eight states had public elementary and high school student bodies totalling fewer than 100,000.

In 1932 to 1934, although there was a decrease in the enrollment in the elementary schools, there was a very large increase in the second-year high school enrollment and in tha number of persons taking post-graduate courses.

Wisconsin, Washington, Utah, Massachusetts, Montana, Oregon, New York, California, Idaho, Indiana and Wyoming reported a twenty-five per cent increase in their total enrollment for high schools. States having less than fifteen per cent of their total enrollment in high school were Kentucky, New Mexico, Tennessee, Georgia, South Carolina, Arkansas, Alabama and Mississippi.

In contrast with tha "very

Continued on Page Eight

University Editorials . . . . .

The Haverford News offers a straight-forward comment on the ever important question of the effectiveness of peace movements. Looks as though tha final decision is being left up to us students.

EFFCETIVENESS

Peace meetings are not much good if they do not make people do something about war; or rather, if people do not understand that they can and must do something, if only to save their own necks. Before the world war, peace movements were widespread; there was a twelve million dollar Carnegie fund being used to promote peace, they were looking around for some other evil to efface from the world, now that they had about rid it of war. That was 1914.

Today, as then, there are national peace organizations. And today, as then, peace organizations can turn and back a war because they believe that the only way to get peace is to win the war.

Starting a peace movement isn't going to stop a war just because the movement builds up in its national office a list of names; a coast-to-coast hook-up or a pyramid of peace organizations resembling the Insull arrangement won't assure peace at all. The only way a U. S. citizen can keep himself out of war is to convince himself that to support a war is one thing ha will never do.

This is tha purpose of the forthcoming, and now annual, anti-war demonstrations. Only if U. S. students are convinced of their position will national organizations and telegrams to Congress do any good.

The Fairmont State Teachers College present an editorial which may serve to discourage you, to a press your own thoughts on the subject, or to make you definitely sure that you are going to hang on to the ideals that you brought to college with you.

ABOUT ATTITUDES

When the average high school graduate contemplates coming to college, he is filled with an eager straight-forward outlook and a noble resolution that he will use what intelligence he has to the greatest advantage; that he will do the best work of which he is capable in order to obtain the fullest benefit of a college education.

As sad as it is, however, there is a definite change in the attitude of the beginning student in an institution and the person he becomes later on in college life; for some reason, the would-be-seeker of education loses his eager searching interest in classes and devotes more and more of his valuable time to the social and other affairs connected with college life. Soon he is lost. He finds himself in a rut so deep and so difficult to climb out of, that he thinks it hardly worthwhile to make the effort. By this time, having lost all desire to do something about his predicament he continues on through his college years, shrouding himself with a definite air of boredom and sophistication to cover up the fact that he regrets having made a mess of things.

The sad part of the situation is thet not only is the student of this kind a detriment to himself, but so prevalent and so contagious are his methods that the novice soon enlists in the ranks and the cycle begins once more.

Why must this transformation take place? Why should an eager student be changed into a docile pupil? How do the means

Continued on Page Six

Collegiate Comebacks

Honors this week go to Alicia Meacham, who acts as guest columnist.

• • • •

If the professors have noticed a slump in studying lately they can blame it on the weather. Its fickleness causes us to waste all of our time changing to appropriate clothes. There's only one thing you can definitely be sure of: If you send your heavy suit to be dry-cleaned (in preparation for packing it away in moth balls) you'll wake up the next morning to find the radiators groaning and a biting wind blowing through the window.

We've heard a lot of excuses when we've tried to pull Roommate out of bed in time to get her breakfast, but the Banner offers us—

Wake up!
I can't!
Why?
I ain't asleep!

• • • •

One of those cute little blue-jacket girls has certainly been dishing out a lot of advice about not going shopping on Saturday. It's something about a struggle she had with one of the dusky matrons (who elbow you around so nonchalantly in our local five and ten cent stores) over a shiny elusive little dime. Just ask our red-headed friend—she'll love telling you all about it.

• • •

And now we have another to add to our long list of reasons to be thankful that Easter is almost here—gleaned from the following remark overheard in the dining room—" . . . and while I'm home Dick will give me some more gum. He gave me this I'm chewing now at Military Ball and it's beginning to lose its flavor a little."

• • • •

The Colonnade contributes—

A senior stood on the railroad track,
The train was coming fast;
The train got off the railroad track,
And let the senior pass.

The rest of us around here would like to inform the seniors that we're not trains—and this isn't a railroad track either!

• • • •

Just listen to what one co-ed had to say in the Lasso—

"The instinct for conquest is considerably intensified in a girls' school. . . . Being popular is a matter of the survival of the fittest. . . . and a girl must always be mentally and physically fit if she is to retain her popularity . . . . Girls' schools train one most thoroughly in this highly specialized vocation of catching a man. The graduate of a co-educational school certainly has not had the advantages of her more fortunate sister from the girls' school."

It just goes to show—people never know when they're well off.

• • • •

And again we quote from the Colonnade a more or less idealistic slant on this marriage-and-a-family business—" Marriage is a mutual friendship—with tha husband as the mute."

• • • •

And may we add one to your favorite collection of similes—as dumb as the freshman who washed her hair in Lifebuoy to make it red.

• • • •

When you live near the arcade
silly girls stop to yell and play and to tell stale jokes over and over and they shriek, too, and they yell for you to come to the window and you never get to study.
Now that quarterlies are here you ought to get a machine gun or some tear-gas bombs or put some limburger cheese
in the window or—you could spend your evenings in the library.

The Reader Writes

Opinions expressed herein are those of the writer or writers and are not necessarily those of the Flambeau staff. All students are invited to contribute to "Pro and Con."

To those students who may wonder what happened to the Veterans of Future Wars and to its affiliated branch, the ladies' auxiliary, of last year and also to the half of their twenty-five cents membership fee which became the local treasury, I take this means to make the following announcement public:

The local treasury of seven dollars was turned over several months ago to the local council of the Emergency Peace Campaign for the purpose of buying peace literature.

Since I have been unable to contact all the members personally about the V. W. F., I feel I should clarify my line of action to them by explaining it frankly in an open letter.

Last fall as commander of the local post I received a letter from the national V. F. W. headquarters informing me that our local charter along with several hundred charters at other college posts was being temporarily suspended. I published an editorial in the Flambeau to that effect shortly afterward and with the suggestion that the seven dollars in the local treasury be donated to a more stable peace movement.

As no repercussions were heard on this editorial and as no other suggestions were made to me, by the last of December, I consulted several members of the former V. F. W. at that time and they confirmed me in the opinion that the money might well be spent on literature for the local Emergency Peace council which was then being formed here. I promptly

Continued on Page Six

Magazine Jottings

BY SARAH SEALEY and SARAH BETH DAVIS

Guest writers of the column this week are Lucy Kelly and Virginia Davis.

The Vanishing American Male
By Stewart H. Holbrook

Although the early American male was a resolute two-legged rugged individual who had hair on his chest and who dominated all the institutions of this country from the White House to the home, the present-day American male, according to Stewart Holbrook in the March American Murcury, is a groveling, anemic, and pitiful caricature of his former self.

Here and there the supine and pansy he-Americano stirs feebly, but to no purpose. His women have come to control his sources of income, and presently they will nominate as well as elect his public officers. They have driven him from the barber shop, the saloon, and the smoking car. They have made him shave his beard and they have taken away his brass cuspidor.

Most of his daily newspaper is taken up with their doings of one kind or another. He would like to hear an all male quartet sing "In The Baggage Car Ahead," but his women vote Bing Crosby the most popular singer so he gets Mr. Crosby. He yearns for male poker and they give him mixed bridge. In his cocktail in lieu of straight whiskey he is likely to find anything from a slice of pineapple to a dab of whipped cream, vanilla flavor.

Whereas he used to see a prize fight last until one fighter was dead or done and layed out he now sees in the ring two gentlemen who, after their gentle cuffing is over, neck Hollywood cuties in the movies or commune with Shakespeare's ghost.—(L. K.)

• • • •

The World of the Phonograph
By Aaron Copland

The phonograph, after almost having been eclipsed by the radio, has gradually staged a comeback in a new and more highly developed form, says Mr. Copland in the March edition of the American Scholar.

The musical problem from the maker's standpoint is production of a machine which will faithfully record the living tone equality of the various instruments. The recording is of almost equal importance with the instrument used. A good recording is a combination of an excellent interpretive talent plus a clever manipulation of the scientific parapharnalia involved by those in charge of the recording studio.

The stringed instruments, in Mr. Copland's opinion, record best of all instruments at the present time. Possibly the least satisfactory of all recording combinations is that of the chorus with an orchestra.

The greatest limitation of the phonograph, the "break" caused by the necessity of changing records at the end of approximately every four and one-half minutes, is being eliminated by three methods, automatic changing devices, fading the music out at the end of one record and fading it in at the beginning of another, and repeating of several measures at the end of one record at the beginning of another to help the mind make the necessary leap. The long playing record entirely eliminates the fault, but this record can not be played on the ordinary machine.

Mr. Copland places more confidence in the musical fidelity of the phonograph than the radio. Recordings are made of familiar music, very old music, very new music, primitive and folk music, educational music and improvised or "swing," music. Improvised music will be preserved for posterity only on the disc, it is believed by Mr. Copland.—(L. K.)

• • • •

England's Weakspot
By Elmer Davis

In an articles in the March issue of Harpers, Mr. Elmer Davis presents the idea that England's greatest weakness lies in the fact that too much of England is concentrated in London itself.

One fourth of England's industry and most of her wealth are concentrated in London, and England has now awakened to the fact, Mr. Davis says, that London, situated as she is in the southeastern corner of the island, is just two-hour's flight from Germany and within gun range of the continent.

Mr. Davis takes it for granted that the danger in case of war is to come from the air. Of the twenty English aircraft factories, twelve of them are in London and five in the southeast. If the factories could be kept open in war-time, it would be impossible to bring in raw materials. Electricity and cold storage equipment for most of England must come from London, and without them the nation could not fight for long.

The greatest danger, he think, lies in the size of the city, for there are 9,000,000 people in an area 25 miles square. Nowhere else in the world could the destruction of one metropolis so cripple a whole nation.

Action has been taken for preparation for air attacks and gas raids, but hunger and panic of the people cannot be prepared for.

The only answer Mr. Davis can give for England's problem is decentralization. He does not know how the factories already there can be moved out of London, but ha suggests that the government refuse to insure from air-raids any new factories wishing to come in. Lloyd's has already refused to insure any more against these raids.

Mr. Davis concludes by saying that England's problem may be ours when air-craft science becomes so advanced that the Atlantic ocean is no greater protection than the English channel is now.—(V. D.)

FLORIDA STATE ALUMNAE NEWS

By LAURA STRUNK LESLIE
Alumnae Secretary

Alumnae Plan Week-End Here From April 16-18

Program Includes Talks By Faculty Members, Social Events

On the week-end of April 16-18, the Alumnae association of Florida State College for Women will present its program of activities as alumnae week-end designed largely for educational purposes for graduates of the college. The week-end will be known as "Alumnae Week-End" and will be held at Florida State College for Women.

The purpose of the week-end, which is replacing the annual alumnae homecoming in the fall, is to provide some form of activity which will be of interest to every alumnae of Florida State College for Women. The program for the alumnae college this year will include lectures by members of the faculty, musicales, social events, and other allied activities.

The alumnae college at Florida State College for Women, which is thought to be the first of its kind sponsored by any Florida college, may be classed as a "back to school" movement. The alumnae association of F S C W.

During the week-end the alumnae will be guests of the college and headquarters at Bryan hall. Any one desiring to spend the week-end will be a registration fee of $2.50.

The Alumnae college will open Friday afternoon, April 16, with a luncheon in Bryan Hall from 2 to 4 o'clock. At 6:30 o'clock the alumnae will be guests of the college at dinner in the lower dining hall.

At 8 o'clock a fine art program will be given in the Augusta Conrad Theatre. The program will include Poetry, Dr. William G. Bell, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences; Art, Mrs. Amy Hogan Baldwin assistant professor of art; Music, College Faculty Trio, Owen Sellers, assistant professor of violin, Miss Augusta Murray, associate professor of violin, and Miss Mary Esther Winslow, lecturer in piano; Dance, modern dance class, directed by Miss Nelle Bond Dickinson, instructor in physical education.

At 9:30 o'clock, immediately following the fine arts program, a reception for the alumnae will be given at the home of Dr. Edward Conrad, and his daughter, Miss Louise Conrad.

Saturday morning from 8:30 to 10 o'clock classes will be held in the Alumnae in the Augusta Conrad theatre during the hour 8:30-9:30. Dr. aKthryn T. Abbey, head of the history department, will discuss "Political Responsibilities of Women," and Dr. Vernita Davis, head of the history department, will lecture on "European Trends Away from Democracy."

From 9:30-10:30 Miss Etta Mae Matthews, assistant professor of library science, will talk on "Children's Literature." During the 10:30-11:30 hour, the topic under discussion will be "Adjusting the Strain of Modern Living," by F. P. Turner, head of the psychology department will discuss "Psychological Aspect," and Sarah Parker White, associate professor of hygiene, the "Physical Aspect." From 11:30-12:30 Dr Margaret R. Sandels, dean of the School of Home Economics, and Miss Lelia Venable, assistant professor of home economics, will lead topics dealing in the field of home economics.

Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock, there will be an alumnae get-together in the Augusta Conrad theatre. From 3 to 6 o'clock a group of alumnae, including members of the campus, swimming in the college pool, trips to camp, and hikes with faculty members, have been planned for those in attendance at the Alumnae college.

At 6:30 o'clock Saturday evening a formal dinner will be held in the lower dining hall. Guest speaker for this occasion will be Gloria Dorman, dean of students, Miss Mamie Bennett, dean of men, J. L. Benson, alumnae president, Dr. Edward Conrad, college president, will give a word of welcome to the alumnae. The dinner will be followed at 8:30 o'clock by after dinner coffee for alumnae and faculty in Oldcheat hall.

The final event on the Alumnae college program will take place Sunday morning at 10 o'clock when a devotional service will be held in the college auditorium. At this time President Conrad will speak. Music will be furnished by the college Glee club under the direction of Miss Rita Robertson, associate professor of music.

General chairman of the Alumnae college is Miss Katherine Brown. Assisting her are Miss Annie Flowers and Miss Katherine Byrd, who are in charge of registration and housing; Miss Louise Conradi and Miss Julia Cleveland, social affairs; Miss Dorothy Dodd and Mrs Guy Diffenbaugh, entertainment meetings and banquet program; and Mrs. Paul Pinner

Alumnae News Reports Made

Office Gives Information On Business, Study Being Pursued

News Items of alumnae from a number of Florida cities and several other states reached the Alumnae office this month.

Miss Anna Trousdell, who was graduated in Florida State College for Women with the A.B. degree in 1913 and the A.M. degree in 1914, is now an attorney in the Department of Justice in Washington, D. C. She has been admitted to practice law before the District of Columbia bar and the Supreme Court of the United States. Last fall Miss Trousdell paid a short visit to Tallahassee, en route to Mexico City, Mexico, where she spent her vacation. She resides at the George Washington Inn, Washington, D. C.

Ruth Durrenberger, B S Home Economics '30, writes: "I am in Washington, D. C. this year studying Law in the Department of Agriculture as the Payne Fellowship student. My course will run through the summer of June, 1937. I am finding my work very interesting and am taking several courses in the graduate school of the U. S. N. A. and at the University of Maryland. Next year I am making a survey of the work of the Home Economists in Agriculture." Ruth's address is 1420 M Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

Marion C. Phillips, '32, writes: "After teaching in DeLand high school for two years I am taking a Belong ambition and entered training at Presbyterian Hospital school of nursing in Philadelphia. I completed my training in September, 1936, and received my graduate staff of this hospital. I am now doing graduate nursing. I am in the dispensary or out-patient department, having charge of the surgical and gynecological clinics. I also assist in the operating room and ward." Her address is 51 N. 39th St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Mrs. Genevieve C. Kenly, '36, is a member of the faculty of Riverside Park school in Jacksonville. Her address is 2121 Oak St., Jacksonville.

Florence Marie Hunt, '34, is teaching English in Sulphur Springs junior high school. Her address is 520 Hollywood St., Tampa.

Virginia Earle, '35, is teacher of English in the seventh grade in Sanford high school.

Eugenia Boone, '31, is home demonstration agent in Bradford County, Fla.

Mrs. J. C. Rogers (Helen Nilder), '31, is teacher of Home Economics in Newberry high school.

Irene Dillard, '30, is a teacher in the Robert E. Lee elementary school in Tampa. Her address is 6017 Orange Blossom Ave., Tampa.

Joyce Reed is connected with the district board of social welfare in Wewahitchka in the capacity of a "visitor" for District two.

Virginia Schimmel is teaching in Pensacola high school. Her address is 1218 E. Romana St.

Mrs. E. M. Willis (Laura Crow), '31, is teaching in the elementary grades at South Bay. She is also a girl scout captain.

Wes Bristol, '28, wrote recently: "I have given up private dancing work and am going to Columbia Teachers' College in New York to complete my master's degree by July 1."

Martha Lee Segui is secretary to the state engineer responsible public works administration, in Jacksonville. She and her husband live at 1860 Barnett National Bank building.

Nina Allen, '25, received the B. A. E. degree from the University of Florida this year. She plans to work on the master's degree at the University of California at Los Angeles She is to her of the sixth grade at Robert E Lee grammar school in Tampa.

Mrs. Keathley Bowden (Berry Lovvorn), '24, of Clewiston, has two sons, ages five and one.

Angela L. Romano has been teaching at MacFarlane School in Tampa since graduation from F. S. C. W. During the summer she works on the master's degree at Columbia University.

Mrs. Harold McNabb (Betty Todd), '26, has a three-fold job that of house-wife, supply teacher and Girl Scout leader.

and Miss Florence Tryon, publicity.

Alumnae planning to attend the Alumnae college are asked to place their reservations as early as possible with Miss Maude Flowers, Bryan hall, F. S. C. W., Tallahassee.

Inside College Gates

By FRANCES BRUNSON

The third annual Florida State College for Women Week which was held March 1-6. was marked with the appearance of twenty-six faculty representatives before ninety-nine alumnae, civic, and women's organizations in thirty-five Florida cities. The speakers talked on subjects requested by the various clubs and not on the subjects selected by the college, as has been the custom in former years.

On the campus a series of programs presented the Week which was held in celebration of the week.

* * *

For the first time in the history of student government on the campus, candidates for the offices of president of the student body and chairman of the judiciary were unopposed in the first stages of the campaign which Betty Outland was the sole nominee for the presidency and Louise Gehan had no opponent for the office of chairman of judiciary.

* * *

Colleges from all parts of the country have joined Florida State colleges in the Correspondence which originated recently at the campus which will be known as a National Peace Day.

According to Mary Jeanne McKay, chairman of the student body, the support and response from students for the movement is both timely and worthwhile."

* * *

Twenty-five ancient Babylonians today talked which they call the first stages in the development of democracy in the A. D. 2,500 A. D. were presented recently to the college library by Mrs. Josiah B. Game, widow of the late Professor Game, former professor of Assyrian literature and archeology of the college.

* * *

The Tarpon club, a new organization on campus, has been formed for those students interested in swimming. The purpose of the club is to teach the beginners of self and others to the water, to develop in the individual an interest in swimming to make the student realize the social and recreational value thereof to society, and to add enjoyment to the sport.

A given scholastic average and swimming tests are the requirements for membership.

* * *

In the sixth artists series presentation of the Greta Stueckgold, former prima donna soprano of the Metropolitan opera company, and now a concert, recital, and radio star, gave a program in the college auditorium. The singer, who is returning to New York announced that her visit to Florida has been an enjoyable one, and she hopes to return soon.

* * *

More than 14,000 women gathered in Savannah, Ga., this week to attend the 53rd annual national convention of the American Association of University Women. Representing Florida State college were Dr. Julia Heilbronim, past president of the branch, Dr. Annie Popper, new president, and Dr. Anna Forbes Lodwick, second vice president.

Nationally recognized speakers and educational authorities presided at the various meetings with special publications being given to the section meetings and round tables which were featured Tuesday and Wednesday.

* * *

Amine Youssef Bey, Egyptian minister to the United States, was a visitor on the campus last week-end. Taking up his post in Washington last fall, Youssef has spent the last three months on a good will tour of the country. While in Florida he has been entertaining data on the state's agriculture which he intends to send to the Egyptian agriculture office.

* * *

Florida's first all-college aviation ground course will be offered this week to students of Florida State college. The course, which will consist of a seven week program, is also offered to the townspeople of Tallahassee. It is under the supervision of the education division of the Florida Works Progress Administration and is being sponsored locally by the junior chamber of commerce Classes are free.

* * *

Two carloads of representatives from the college left this week to attend the meeting of the Southern Division of the American Physical Education association in Houston, Texas. Eight students from the college will appear in a dance demonstration of the pre-classic form of approach. The demonstration will include Pavane, Gigue, and Gavotte.

* * *

With five taking part in the program scheduled for the convention, sixteen faculty members, headed by President Edward Conradi, attended the Florida Education Association annual convention which met last week-end.

Dr. M. R. Hinson appeared in two panel discussions on administration and secondary education, and Dr. R. L. Eyman headed another such discussion. Miss Florence Tyron, who holds the office of chairman of the social studies group, presided at the session of that group at which H. P. Becker of the county superintendent spoke. Miss Gladys Pawley, instructor of geography addressed the Council of Teachers of Geography.

Enthusiastic Audience Sees Faculty Play

Old Fashioned Melodrama Gets Hisses, Carrots And Applause

Hisses for the villian, applause for the heroine, and carrots tossed upon the stage showed a responsive audience at the presentations of the Faculty Play of 1937, "Fashion," an old time melodrama, given Friday and Saturday nights of last week for the benefit of the college Alumnae association.

Dr. Raymond Bellamy, head of the Sociology department, who has appeared in a number of other plays here, gave an admirable performance as Adam Trueman, a farmer. Miss Elisabeth Thomson, of the college speech department, was splendid in her role of the "jimpy" Mrs. Tiffany, a lion of society ambitious mother who wanted to marry off her daughter Seraphina (Miss Elisabeth Lyon of the physics department) to a count.

Herbert D. Hinton, Florida State engineer, in the role of the count who later was proved a fake, drew scorn of his audience, legitimate enough of the success with which he handled his part. Owen P. Sellers of the music department was the Uriah Heep of the play.

* * *

Business Manager Kelium of the college put the finishing touch, part of T. Tennyson Twinkel, a poet. Miss Bernice Deeds, industrial arts instructor, played the part. French maid, and Miss Rachel Wells, Presbyterian pastor's secretary, aroused the sympathy and praise of the entire audience by her portrayal of the wronged heroine.

Many a laugh was furnished by Dr. Elizabeth Gordon Andrews, college personnel director, "a maiden lady of a certain age," who tried to romance with Farmer Trueman. Miss Andrews' daughters, Mrs. Tiffany's husband; Glenn Terrell, Jr., a negro servant. The "asides" and epilogue were interesting features also.

Favorite old tunes such as "Annie Laurie," "In the Gloaming," and others were played before the curtain opening by members of the college Blue Devils orchestra, dressed in men's clothes and false mustaches.

Costumes of the 1850 period were obtained for the production which was directed by Miss Doris Terrell, Florida State college and Northwestern university graduate.

General chairman of the play was Miss Elizabeth Thomson. Other alumnae assisting were: Publicity, Miss Rachel Pritchford; costumes, Miss Pauline Peeler; tickets, Miss Sallie Nicholson and Mrs. Lillian Cross Rueffert; properties, Mrs Sallie Williams; ushers, Miss Ruth Rutherford; and reporters, Miss Eleanor Mizelle. Mrs. Evelyn Whitfield Henry served with Miss Thomson and Miss Mizelle as the general play committee.

Outgoing Officer

Mrs. J. B. Benton (Maybelle Williams) is the outgoing president of the Gainesville alumnae club. She is succeeded by Miss Jean Hazelton, formerly of Eustis, who is connected with the library at the University of Florida.

D. I. Carlton, Deland; Luella Williams, L. I. '31—Mrs H. A. Cooper, Ft. Myers; Audrey Miller Johnson, L. I. '26—Mrs. Earp W. Dennard, Plant City; Eleanor Curry, L. I. '29—Mrs William Porter Grace, Jr., Memphis, Tenn.; Margaret Ramsey, B. S. '26—Mrs. W. D. Crawford, Montgomery, Ala.

Carolyn Hamilton, B. S. '34—Mrs. Eugene Williams, Auburndale; Mary Agnes McCreary, L. I. '26—Mrs. Roy Bullock, Dothan, Ala.; Amelia Rose Lariginard, L. I. '23—Mrs. Evelio Cabot, Key West; Annie Estelle Black, L. I. '25—Mrs. Finis Milton, Cork; Helen Day, A. B. '34—Mrs. Stanley Ball Cooper, Coconut Grove; Lucy Jane Houser, B. S. '36—Mrs. Gordon Lane, Tallahassee; Lucille Parr, L. I. '26—

Marriages Recently Recorded in Office

The following marriages have recently been recorded in the alumnae office:

Lady Jane Looders, B. S. '34—Mrs William Kelley Pope, Sanford; Mildred Clarice Howell, A. B. '34—Mrs. Harris Van Goldwin, Lake Worth; Cornelia Morford, L. I. '36—Mrs. Fred Hagerty, Maxine; Helen Frances Miller, B. S. '36—Mrs George M. Smith, Cairo, Ga.; Dorothy Burnett, L. I. '33—Mrs. Malcolm C. Hartsfield, Tallahassee; Nina Anderson, A. B. '28—Mrs. Milton C Gardner, Crom City; Mary Ellen Hamilton, B. S. '36—Mrs Roscoe George Fleetwood, Montezuma, Ga.; Ruth Sturgis Meriwether, L. I. '33—Mrs L. P. Clements, Jr., Annville, Pa.; Alma Elizabeth Cyzana, A. B. '34—Mrs.

Birth Notices Reported Here

Many Alumnae Have New Arrivals in Past Couple Years

A number of notices of "new arrivals" have recently reached the alumnae office. Although some of the "arrivals" arrived as long as one and two years ago, the information has not been heretofore used in the Flambeau, and accordingly is being used at this time.

Mr. and Mrs Mark M. Richardson of Evinston announce the arrival of a daughter, Charlotte, on Tuesday, October 20 Mrs. Richardson prior to her marriage was Miss Flora Yon of Gainesville. This is their second child.

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Rodgers of Cedar Key, announce the arrival of a baby son, Eugene Randolph, Monday, November 23, in Gainesville. Mrs. Hodges was the former Miss Mildred Yeatty of Otter Creek.

Mr and Mrs James Whitehurst of Rockville announce the recent arrival of a second son, Harry Fenwick. Mrs. Whitehurst was formerly Miss Amelia Ellis of Tallahassee.

Becky Ann Tribble, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Tribble, of Simpsonville Ohio, celebrated her first birthday on December 13. Mrs Tribble was formerly Miss Marion Stanner of Tallahassee.

Darl Reward Cord, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry R. Cord of Wichita, Kansas, will have a second

Mrs. W. B. Hill, LaGrange Lucille Brown, L. I. '28—Mrs. George B. Pinder, Miami; Jean Gillis, B. S. '36—Mrs. Asbury McMillan, Tallahassee; Olga White, B. S. '35—Mrs. Richard L. Wood, Bartow.

Club Prepares to Meet University of Florida In Debate on April 3

Members of the debating club now are preparing for debates with teams from three other colleges, according to Phil Asher. The first of these debates will be April 6 with a team from the University of Florida.

Mary Jean McKay and Phil Asher are to represent Florida State college in this debate.

Two other debates with college teams will be held later. These will be with Georgia State College for Women and Alabama College. In the former, this college will be represented by Peggy McMillan and Emma Randolf Elebash and in the latter by Betty Wynn and Phil Asher.

* * *

Birthday on April 12. Mrs. Cord will be remembered as Elisabeth Stenburg.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Roy Clifford, of Cincinnati, Ohio, announces the birth of a daughter, Phyllis Ann, on November 15, 1936. Mrs. Clifford is the former Miss Phyllis Marcellus of Daytona Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Baker, Jr., of Hamilton have a daughter, Pasaricia Anne, born August 6, 1936 in Gainesville. Mrs. Baker was formerly Miss Anne Helms of Chipley.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Miller of Sarasota announce the arrival of a daughter, Barbara Ann, on February 8, 1937. Mrs. Miller was formerly Miss Irene Brunson of Sarasota.

Mr. and Mrs. William A. Trusdow of Bronx, New Jersey, have a daughter, Jane, age five, and twin sons, William and Robert, age one year. Mrs. Trusdow was formerly Miss Ruth Lee.

Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Williams of Denver, Colorado, announce the arrival of a son, Robert Lee, February 19, 1937. Mrs. Williams was formerly Miss Ethel Campbell of Ft. Lauderdale.

Eyman Speaks At Gathering Of Graduates

Annual Dinner is Held During FEA Meeting In Orlando

A plan to revise the old educational program in the schools and to submit a new one was discussed last night by Dr Ralph Lee Eyman, professor of education, in an address before members of the Florida State College for Women Alumnae association at their annual dinner during the meeting of the Florida Education association in Orlando.

Taking as his topic, "Your Responsibility for Leadership in Education in Florida," Dr Eyman told the alumnae that "your responsibility is to change the old lock-step tradition in education and to strike out on new paths that lead to doing better."

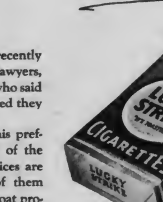
According to Dr Eyman, the old system is obsolete and there is no use for cluttering up the minds of children with "facts" which they have no use in later life.

"Children now are being half educated to do a few narrow fundamental skills without giving them experience in making life rich," he said. "The school child needs a program consisting of arts, crafts, music, industrial processes, social science, English, and natural science. Through such a program they would be able to understand the fundamentals of our social life and the commodities and goods of our everyday affairs," he stated.

Dr Eyman stressed the importance of teaching the children the industrial processes of business. "They more intelligent we are, the

Continued on Page Eight

Leslie Howard says Luckies are "tops" with his throat



"Years ago, as an ambitious young actor, I was impressed how well my throat liked Luckies and how well they suited my idea of a perfect cigarette. That impression still stands. In my recent tour of 'Hamlet', with its many performances each week and the attendant tax on my throat, I have been convinced anew that this light smoke is both delightful to my taste and the 'top' cigarette for an actor's throat."

Leslie Howard

An independent survey was made recently among professional men and women—lawyers, doctors, lecturers, scientists, etc. Of those who said they smoke cigarettes, more than 87% stated they personally prefer a light smoke.

Mr. Howard verifies the wisdom of this preference, and so do other leading artists of the radio, stage, screen and opera. Their voices are their fortunes. That's why so many of them smoke Luckies. You, too, can have the throat protection of Luckies—a light smoke, free of certain harsh irritants removed by the exclusive process "It's Toasted". Luckies are gentle on the throat.

THE FINEST TOBACCOS—
"THE CREAM OF THE CROP"

A Light Smoke
"It's Toasted"—Your Protection Throat
AGAINST IRRITATION—AGAINST COUGH

Copyright 1937, The American Tobacco Company

Flying Course Attracts Many Students Here

Ground Aviation Class Begins for Period Seven Weeks

With an enrolment of over a hundred students the aviation ground school course was begun this week. This course, which is under the direction of the division of education of the Florida Works Progress Administration, covers twenty-eight hours of work in this field and will extend over a period of seven weeks.

The curriculum includes lectures on airplanes, engines, instruments, aero-dynamics, meteorology, navigation, and operation. No exams will be given and regular attendance is not required.

Monday night, the lecture by Mr. Herbert Coune, the instructor, covered a short history of flight and something of the advantages and disadvantages of different types of airplanes. On Tuesday night, Mr. Coune spoke about different types of airplane engines, their advantages and disadvantages, and about different methods of cooling, their advantages and disadvantages.

Wednesday he continued with a lecture on something of the nomenclature and structure of airplanes. In his lecture on engines which he gave on Thursday night, he spoke concerning the principle of the four-stroke cycle and general principles of lubrication.

During this next week and the one following, Mr. Coune will continue to lecture about airplanes and engines.

The list of students now registered for this course includes: Connie Ash, Katherine Autrey, Mary Beach, Betty Bartholf, Katherine Bacon, Maud Bishop, Addie Bledsoe, Hazel Bowman, Dorothy Broward, Mildred Browning, Roberta Brown, Eleanor Bushnell, Jane Byrd, Nell Carroll, Nan Clarke, Margery Coiee, Honor Coleman, Nell Colvin, Jean Cooper, Dorothy Mae Dorman, Virginia Davis, Edith Daniel, Florence Evers, Erma Engel, Ann Eastthan, Elaine Fleischer, Jane Floyd, Sylvia Feiga, Eleanor Freer, Jane Gage, Margaret Gallatin, Mary Green, Jewell Groover, Camilla Gillette, Rosemary Hamly, Georgena Hart, Donna Haney, Amy Harris, Patricia Hastings, Riva Leif Hemphill, Helen Hickerson, Beatrice Highsmith, Melissa Holman, Virginia Holmes, Beverly Horn, Edith Horswitz.

Barbara Hubbard, Jane Hubbard, Irene Hutchinson, Jane Jackson, Annie Jennings, Elizabeth Jinks, Marie Joffre, Alice Nelle Jones, Martha Jean Jones, Florence Kanarch, Catherine Kirby-Smith, Elizabeth Knapp, Anita Leonard, Rachel Leonardy, Catherine Levey, Evelyn Lightsey, Emilia Mae Lockwood, Lorena Lorenz, Virgiina Makemson, Dorothea Marsh, Helen Menneken, Geraldine Meyers, Sarah Moore, Anne Mizell, Margaret Neff, Thelma Norin, Clotilde O'Rourke, Sandra Peckham, Betty Phay, Margaret Pierson, Mary Poliand, Mrs. Charles Race, Helen Randle, Sallie Ratliff, Rosalind Reid, Mary Ola Reynolds, Louise Rice, Nancy Rogero, Jean Root, Lillian Schulte, Mary Scott, Lorena Simms, Virginia Singletary, Marguerite Sjostrom, Jean Steffee, Inez Shellhorse, Virginia Sullivan, Harriette Tobin, Marion Usher, Gladys Ware, Frances Waterhouse, Marion Weeks, Catherine Welch, Mildred West, Janice Wheatley, Grace Whitaker, Sue Whitaker, Eleanor Williams, Mary Williamson, Jean Willis, and Jean Zavharias.

The Reader Writes

Continued from Page Four

withdrew the seven dollars from the college bank and cancelled the account of the V. F. W. Here I should stop.

To those former members of the V. F. W. auxiliary, I should like to suggest, however, if they are still sincerely interested in trying to keep the United States out of war, that they seek a niche in the Emergency Peace Campaign. The campaign seeks to unite all individuals and organizations into a drive for peace. The local forum group studies the various means of helping to prevent war and by writing letters to their Congressmen hope to influence political action on various neutrality bills and other bills which may effect international relations. It is hardly necessary to state that the more students sending letters the more impressive the letters will be.

The forums which meet every Monday afternoon at 5 o'clock are for the purpose of informing ourselves on these bills and the events taking place in the world today. All members of the now defunct V. F. W. as well as other students interested, will be especially welcomed, I am sure. If they feel personally obligated to do something for peace, they may find a place on the local organizing board, the council, which will be formed soon.

Signed: Eleanor Williams.

President

Mary McGunaige, president of Pan-Hellenic organization on this campus, will head the receiving line at the Pan-Hellenic hop tomorrow night. Others in the line will probably be Ruth Garcia, secretary and treasurer of the organization and member of Beta Phi Alpha; Ruth Sadler, Tri-Delta representative; Pat Foster, Alpha Chi Omega; Kay Harris, Delta Zeta, and Mary Ennis, Kappa Alpha Theta, and Dean Olivia Dorman.

University Editorials

Continued from Page Four

of getting an education defeat its purpose?

The leading editorial of the week in The Creightonian from Creighton University discusses the problem of the president vs. the Supreme Court, which seems proper enough since that is proving to be the most discussed subject in the country these days. You may agree with this editorial or not, but undoubtedly, you will at least find it to be good reading on an interesting subject.

WHO SHALL RULE?

Beginning next Monday the congress of the United States will open hearings on the president's proposal to reform the federal judiciary, or more simply, his plan to retire six of the nine old men. With the main body of his proposal there is little opposition. The 70 year retirement age, the increase in number of judges in the lower courts, the speeding up of government cases are recognized as worthy and needed reforms.

But with the part of his plan in which he asks power to appoint as many as six new judges to the supreme court to fill in for justices over 70, the president unleashed a savage horde of opposition.

Let's stop for a moment and consider the proposal. Throw out of consideration the talk of new appointments being made to aid the already over-burdened court. The issue is simply whether or not six old men shall continue to stand above the president and the congress of the United States.

The constitution never meant that they should. A diligent perusal of its text fails to reveal a single line expresing or implying that the supreme court has the power to declare acts of congress unconstitutional. That power has been gradually assumed and traditionally upheld by the supreme court since John Marshall. Thomas Jefferson objected to their use of the veto over the executive and legislative branch of the government. So did Andrew Jackson, Abraham Lincoln and Theodore Roosevelt. But none of these men were able to break the power of the court. And what opponent of the administration today would call them "usurpers of power" because they tried.

The case against the court is a heavy one. Forgetting for the moment a supreme court which years ago declared that a man by the name of Dred Scott was not entitled to any right under the law simply because he was born with a black skin, let's think of the court which declared within the past year that neither states nor federal government have the power to set minimum wages or maximum working hours, of the court that forbid the government to aid stricken farmers.

In 1932 the American People by an overwhelming vote kicked reaction out of the executive chambers of government and told Franklin Roosevelt to go to work. And all the nation, republican and democrat, co-operated loyally — except six old men. And they have so construed the laws before them as to cripple and harass the entire progress of the New Deal. They have challenged its right to operate, its right to seek a better day for the average American. They have challenged America's right to "seek a more abundant life" for itself.

Again in 1936 by an even more enormous majority the people reaffirmed their faith in the New Deal. But the court still says the New Deal and its objectives must be scrapped. What will be the result?

Are six old men going to rule, or do the American people still have the right through the ballot box to point the way that the nation will go?

Students and Faculty Reveal Opinions on General College

Complaining Freshmen Have Definite Ideas About Courses, Others Are Undecided; Many Upperclasmen Favor Plan

By MARY MASSIE

Although the two year plan of integrated courses at Florida State college is still young on this campus, having been adopted from the Oberlin plan and put into practice only in September, 1936, comments are being made both for and against it by students and faculty.

Some freshmen do not have the slightest idea what they want to take, but others have definite ideas on the subject. The latter are the ones who complain the loudest about this new plan.

"I know what I want to take; why should I be made to "dible" around and waste my time with all these integrated courses? Why should I have to wait so long before getting down to business? I am not interested in all of these required courses, and I would work twice as hard and be happier if they would only let me take what I want to."

A more rational student, who said she wanted to be an English major, admitted she hated having to take some of the integrated courses, but said she realized she probably needed rounding out and figured she was "getting off easy" by being able to take her sciences all in one lump sum; she only has to take one semester of biological and one of physical sciences, instead of having to take a year of chemistry or physics besides botany and zoology.

I've already had a chance in high school to find out what I would like to take; most of this is old stuff to me, mere repetition of what I have already had," was the comment of a student taking the integrated survey in biological sciences. "I was never particularly interested in this field and did not bother to cram very much of it into my head so that I did not feel I could pass the comprehensive examination."

As it was necessary although it has been changed now, for commerce students to take three of these integrated courses their freshman year, and as there is a definite trend for this year for students to eventually major in this field, several complaints were heard from them. "I had to drop my elective, French, right in the middle of the year," wailed a prospective secretary, "as I have to take another of those integrated courses. I will have forgotten all the French I ever knew by next year." Another one was harping about having to drop journalism to take social studies.

Several other students who are planning to transfer next year to smaller colleges where this general college plan has not yet been established were afraid these courses would not fit into the requirements, and would cause them to get all bawled up so that they would have to start practically all over again. But Mr. Doyle reaffirmed his statement that all the credits for the integrated courses will be accepted by these colleges as electives and full credit will be given by other colleges under the general plan so that their work will not be disrupted. It seems most of the trouble lies in the fact that students want to take what they have picked out to take, and only those subjects.

Many of the upperclassmen bemoan the fact the general college plan was not in existence here when they were freshmen. An outstanding officer of our student body frankly admits that she will always regret having spent a year taking chemistry when she detested any science and was forced to choose between physics, which was a beginning course for majors in this field, and chemistry. "It was a nightmare to me, and consequently I ended up not knowing much more than when I started. Now my senior year, having selected political science as an elective, I find I am more interested in this field than in my major, English. If only I had known how fascinating it was my first year, I would have majored in it, but I was not given this chance to find out. I am certainly in favor of the general college plan, and it shows our school is following the modern trend in education."

One of the freshmen advisors thinks the majority of freshmen like the new system, although as yet they don't know whether they are coming or going, especially those who intend to major in commerce. By the time they are ready to graduate, they will undoubtedly be glad the change was made.

A member of the Flambeau staff said the adoption of this plan showed the first forward movement which has been taken in many years in education. "At least it indicates our college does not intend to remain in any "rut." "It seems to me," she continued, "in this new plan, the subjects are not so isolated. We used to take one subject such as chemistry, and over here in another field, we took English, and perhaps we took zoology along with other widely differentiated subjects. We regarded each as separate courses without seeing any connection between them. With this new presentation, the relationship of one to another is more obvious. For instance, under humanities is taught literature, art and philosophy. And I agree with Mickeljohn that the purpose of an education is to give the student an insight into the past and present; give her a stock of ideas and scientific principles upon which to build; make her wake up to the issues and interests of the world."

A junior was in favor of the new plan because she believed it rounded out a person. "We do not want to be sandpapered down so that we will be on the same plane with the average, but we desire to have our sharp edges smoothed, rounded, and our entire surface polished." Girls who enter college knowing what they want to do and are perplexed because they cannot begin specializing their first year, might benefit by an idea Woodrow Wilson expressed. "New inventions, fresh discoveries, alterations in the markets of the world throw accustomed methods and the men who are accustomed to them, out of date and use without pause or pit. The man of special skill may be changed into an unskilled laborer over night.

"But I think, she continued, with a broad, rounded education, a person possesses faculties of adjustment and adaptation as well as precise execution. Education, like a meal is not meant to be dished out in individual courses without the cook's first having taken into consideration whether or not it will contain too much starch, or not enough protein, so that each dish will contribute toward a balanced meal, in order that the person having eaten of it will be well nourished and may digest his food at ease."

A teacher of the biological sciences, who readily commented upon the merits of this plan, said that the subject matter presented in this fashion allows the relationship between one science and another to be better shown. It is a more integrated course he thinks. Too, one teacher knows what the other has said, which avoids over-lapping and repetition. In this survey, there is not much lecture work as actual illustrations whereby the students may get first-hand knowledge. "I believe our students are getting more than just a few smattering facts, and it is something I have looked forward to presenting, as it is a good practical survey course."

Another teacher of the same survey said that although it was hard to tell the results of this plan yet, she certainly favored the change. She does, however, object to the one hour laboratory period and would rather have two consecutive periods together rather than split them up.

"The integrated courses, being entirely different from anything the students had in high school, tend to confuse many, and especially put at a loss the slower students, who have been used to dragging through one course the entire year. They do not know yet how to study for these courses, said a teacher of social sciences. "One advantage of this survey is that it gives the student an insight into sociology, economics, political science and geography, whereas under the old regime, the students were only required to take one of these, which left the others not touched upon at all. It is true we are not able to dwell upon one subject any length of time, yet the students are given references for parallel reading, and know where to obtain more information later when they do have more time. The half of knowledge is to know where to find knowledge."

"As the subjects in this field are closely knitted together, there is no wide gap to be bridged, but teachers need to organise and plan their material. With time this plan should certainly be most beneficial," she thought.

The teachers of the English department who feel their courses ware slighted, point out reasons to justify this feeling. One professor emphatically stated that the integrated courses favor the physical and natural sciences, but do not give humanities a fair chance. This course is supposed to cover all the art, philosophy and literature of the world in five hours a week for one semester which is impossible. Literature is given three hours, art appreciation one, and philosophy one. Students may graduate from here without ever having heard of Marlow, Dryden or Gray; they are only given the "highlights." For instance, it could almost be said the whole field of drama is represented by Shakespeare; the whole field of essays by Lamb, et cetera. The students are not given a chance to really feel and understand the philosophy the English poets have to give to the world."

One of the teachers in this department warned me not to get her started on this subject because she might "blow up." However, she did point out that at Gainesville the boys are required to take just twice as much literature as are the girls at Tallahassee. "If a girl is willing for her brother to know more about literature than she, all right."

A teacher, who has taught here for a number of years, said there were several points to make for and against these integrated courses. In humanities, which she teaches, the relation is shown between literature, philosophy and art, which the students would otherwise miss, as she would probably take only the required literature. There is a variety of material given, but the greatest drawback, she believes, is the lack of connection; it does not show any logical development in literature through the ages—how man's thoughts were crudely formulated in the beginning, and how they improved in beauty of expression and clearness of thought through the various periods. "It is hard to show that Tennyson was one of the greatest humanitarians in the world through just one of his poems."

The language requirement was criticised by several faculty members. It is true, they admitted, that students are given a chance to take the placement test, but even then, why is it necessary, they argue, for a student to be required to have a reading knowledge in a foreign language. How many students taking French could converse with a Frenchman if they were to go abroad, they ask, and would one out of a hundred ever have the chance to go abroad?

One of the professors went so far as to state that he did not believe students should be forced to take any subject he did not desire to take. "Let them mill around in college; nothing they can take can particularly hurt them," was his philosophy. However, he thought the general college plan was a good way to absorb students who have no intention of earning a living, and who want to come to college for only one or two years before marrying.

In fulfillment of the requirements for a general education each student is expected to make a reasonable progress toward the following objectives: to achieve and maintain a state of health that will contribute to successful living; to develop the ability to express her ideas clearly and correctly in both spoken and written English; to have a reading knowledge of one foreign language; to have an acquaintance with the historic and contemporary organization of society; to have a reasonable understanding of her physical and biological environment; to understand and appreciate the factors that enter into effective family life; to have an appreciation of literature and other forms of art; to gain an introduction to the best philosophical thought as it relates to successful living; to have an understanding of her mental make-up and the personality of those with whom she must live. There is divided opinion both among the students and faculty as to whether or not these are the most desirable objectives to strive for in our educational system, and whether our college is living up to these standards, but the majority seem to be in sympathy with the general college plan.

Members of Astronomy Club to Observe Venus During Next Few Weeks

Members of the Astronomy club will have an opportunity to observe the planet Venus as it is now appering in the western sky in the cresent phase during the next few weeks.

At the meeting held Wednesday night, limited naked eye observations were made. Preceeding the observations, a discussion of the constelations now visible was lead by Gladys Ware.

Club members are planning a trip to camp during the first weeks of April. At this time the small telescope will be taken out for use. The next meeting of the club will be Wednesday night at a time to be announced on the bulletin board in the lower hall of the Westcott building.

Social Study Group Brings Taxation Talk

Professor of Economics Appears on First Speech Series

As the first in a series of three convocation programs featuring speakers on fundamental problems facing society, the social studies departments will present Dr. Truman Bighan, professor of economics at the University of Florida. Dr. Bighan, who has done extensive work in problems relating to taxation, will address the student body Tuesday on "Taxation as a Social Agent."

Tuesday night, as a follow-up on the morning lecture, Dr. Bighan will lead an open forum discussion in the Augusta Conradi theater. Both meetings have been declared open to the public.

The second program sponsored by the social studies departments includes a convocation talk and open forum by Dr. Conrad Vanhyning, chairman of state social welfare board, on March 30. The subject under discussion will be "Social Security as a Problem of Contemporary Society," and the speaker will cover several phases of the social security problem.

The social studies committee is composed of Miss Sadie Gertrude Young, Mrs. John Gabriel Kellum, Dr. Coyle Ellis Moore, and Dr. Kathryn Abbey, chairman.

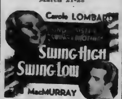
ADAMS STUDIO

"Photographs that Please"

119½ E· College Ave. Phone 297

Bring Your Date to the Three Torches This Weekend!

Good Service .... Delicious Food.



Thee Three Torches Tea Room

SPARKS STATE PHONE 180.

FRIDAY AND SATURDAY March 19-20

SUNDAY AND MONDAY March 21-22

TUESDAY, MARCH 23

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 24

THURSDAY, MARCH 25

LINDEN'S SPRING PARADE!

Spring on Parade is really YOU at your loveliest . . . that's why we take such delight in it! It's the perfect background for YOU to flaunt your finery . . . to step right up and take those admiring glances . . . those envied second looks. You'll do all that if you see Linden's Spring Parade first.

BONNETS On Parade

Be the proudest lady in the Easter Parade in one of these bonnets! Lively and gay with veil or flower trim, there are tiny toques, smart brims and young off-face bonnets to crown your curls. Straw and ribbon types. All sizes. All popular colors.

$1.95 and $2.95

BLOUSES On Parade

$1.00 and $1.95

Give your suit that different look . . . that utterly fresh look with a crisp, new blouse! Soft frilly styles in organdies, nets . . . vivid prints . . . and frolicsome little Tyrolean types. Sizes for misses, women. White and bright shades to wear with new suits.

Shop at Linden's and Save!

PHOENIX HOSIERY

"Budget Sheer"

A friendly stocking . . . kind to your legs and purse. 4-thread chiffon, sheer enough to look well, sturdy enough to wear well. Famous Phoenix style and wear features throughout . . . thus an exceptional value at the price. In the new Fashion Page Colors.

85c

LINDEN'S FASHION SHOPPE

The Social Week

Greek Sororities Celebrate With Annual Dance Saturday

In an atmosphere of Grecial columns, active members of Greek letter sororities on this campus and their dates will dance at the annual Panhellenic hop to be held tomorrow night in the gymnasium.

Laurel wreaths and sorority emblems will be placed at intervals around the balcony, and over a thousand balloons will be used around the lights. A feature of this temporary Greek city will be the transformation of the orchestra pit into a Greek temple.

Popular Orchestra

Music for dancing will be furnished by Dean Hudson's Florida Clubmen, an orchestra which has been very popular with students on this campus as well as thorughout the south. Frances Colwell, the orchestra's blues singer, will vocalize many of the numbers.

The program to be presented between dances will include: vocal solo, "Trust in Me," Marian Herbert; tap dance, Peggy Meredith; vocal trio, "The Martins and the Coys," Amelia Avant, Anna Laurie Sanchez, and Dorothy Barr.

During intermission members of Mortar Board will have a garden on the lawn of the gymnasium and tables in the foyer where soft drinks, cigarets, candy, and sandwiches will be sold. A pledge from each sorority will assist in serving Both boys and girls will be allowed to smoke in the garden.

Committee Chairmen

Chairmen of committees for the dance are: Mary McGunagle, Alpha Xi Delta, president of Panhellenic, general chairman; Patricia Foster, Alpha Chi Omega, invitations; Ruth Sadler, Delta Delta Delta, programs; Mary Ennes, Kapa Alpha Theta, program; Virginia Peyton, Chi Omega, orchestra; Ruth Garcia, Beta Phi Alpha finances; Kay Harris, Delta Zeta, decorations.

Invited Guests

Guests invited include: John Love, M N. Stow, Charles Brown, George Palmer, Frank Morgan, Grady Williams, Billy Goza, Pete Johnson, Charlie Montgomery, Lee Messer, Clifford Beasley, Pete Ott, Billy Cooper, Tolly Whitfield, Edgar Skipper, Ned Love, Richard Allen, George Rogers, Frank Coles, Mattauer Griffen, James Dowling, Billy Reahbaum, Robert Gill, Finley Cannon, Ken Smith, Oglesby Shaw, Charlie Farmer, Walker Pendleton, Tolbert Rou, G. Waverley, Charles Henry, Wallace Seawell, Charles Caldwell, Bob Robertson, George Boydston, Duncan Hager, Tom Murray, Billy Norris, Chester Maple, Wilmer Bassett, Herschell House, Frank Carter, James Spurlock, Bob Lovett, Allen Jones, Walter Hillman, Ed Parkinson, Chuck Hill, Tommy Clements, Cecil Bernard, Jimmy Toffaletti Carlton Beckley, Bob Wilson, Dick Merill, Dwight Johnston, Lloyd Griffith, Bob Cates, Randall Slaughter, Allison Banks, George Mitchell, Jack Blake, Anthony Drexel, III, Bernard Cheshire, Kermit Thomas, Ed Hicks Jr., Fred Walker, Clayton Jones, John Walter Clark, Jack Stewart, John Sullivan, George Grimes, Ham Mathis, James Underhill, Robert Cox, Ed Wells, Dub Dekle, Charles Quina, Walter Griffin, Tom Humphries, Joe A. Brian, Willard Paske, Jimmy Clendinnen, Meridith Gilbert.

Floyd Baker, Richard Blain, Wilton Rowe, Davis Jones, Jeff Davis, Tooey Young, Lt. Bob Galer Orin Ballou, Jack Whiddon, Crawford Soloman, Ed Thomas, Boyd Harris, Frank Bowes, Richard Long, Sam Beety, Carl Preer, Cheever Lewis, Arthur Webb, Bobby Freeman, Billy Mason, Norman Brown, Francis Kearney, Bill Lester Roy Echols, Harold Copeland, Bowling Powell, Franklin McCormick, Neal Wellman, George Curtis, Bob Brown, Bob Milton, Finley Cannon, Billy Long, John Hare, Gilbert Forbes, Dwight Gillies, Charles Betts, Blakly Clark, James A. Booehm, Jr., Carlton Phillips, Michael Therris, Frank Brannan, Bill Ingram, Ray Cole, Ollie Whitman, Harold Brady, Henry Pridgen, Ben Skinner, Keenan Morissey, Harold Fox, Victor Griley, Keith Rennie, Ben Stewart, Earl Powers, Bill Hamilton, Wallace Covington, L. O. Newsome, Jr., Paul Bouton, Billy Wadsworth, Sidney Stilley, Bobby Collins, David Kerns, Dwight Rogers, Billy Norwood.

Also Attending

Ralph Greene, Graham Moore, Meyer Sigal, Robert Gordon, Robbie Robbins, Rubey Dayeu, Roy Benjamin, Erwin Ghelerter Abie Gaffin, William Grimes, Jr., Jack Watson, Harold Hobbs, Lewis Riggsbee, Walter Dancer, Perry Edwards, Win De Neefe, Charlie Crag, Elgin Von Beulow, Ken Thompson, Leslie Baker, Ed Thomas, Allan Vik, Ralph Jones, Dwight Rogers, Peter Hughes, Jim Porter, R B. Goehagen, Willie Lines, Doug Brown, Idus Wicker, Frank Baker, Clarence Parramore, Horton Hobbs, Mitchell Sealey, John Howards, John DeMilly, Roy Williams, Robert Zellner, Raymond Carrabello, Jere Bevel, George Palmer, Jess Farrill, George Simpson, Julian Lane, George Bales, Willis Fogate, Ralph Melton, Neil McMullen, Billy Mason, Billy Maize, Thomas Harrison, Oscar Davis, Maynard Ramsey, Wesley McCrae, Billy Norwood, Wallace Joplin, Hayward Messer, F. G. Byrd, A. V. Clark, Louise Voss, Steve O'Connell, Guyte McCord, Lewis, Bill Fuller, Freeman Balt, Bob Jensen, Reade Tilley, Jr., Leonard Coles, Rolf Weideling Bob Mitchell Edward Morrison, Ben Hill, Cecil Parker, Slater Smith, Herbert Schute, Bob McCreary, Billy Mayo.

Other Dates

Glen Boring, H. H. Parish, Russ Christy, Al Parker, Sammy Goethe, Billy Cook, Walter Pope, Johnny Courier, Jack Anderson, Victor Mettles, John Hiles, Doc Johnson, Neil Faircloth, Skeets Cobb, Wilbur Conn, Norman Brown, Bob Schwin, Mac Williams, Downer Renshaw, Pinkey Peters, Nuit Edgeton, Ed Allen, Harry Smith, D. O. Chestnut, Bill Castle, Tommy Shands, Jim Moody, Jack Pinkerton, Johnny Burroughs, Pat Johnson, Henry Baynard, Ike Stevens, Ralph Williams, Marion McDonald, Fuller Davis, Red Gage, Tar Baby Boyd, Dick Rogers, Bill Duncan, John Brown, Johnny Stewart, Joe Teague, Bill McCormick, George Mitchell, George Milton, Bob Beezley, Bill Hamilton, Moss Mabry, Lucius Battle, Stanley Pryatt, Hilton Cooper, Sam Lidiel, Billy Weeks, Wallace Montgomery, Speedy Thomas, Hayward Ellis, Isham Byron, Carl Essig, Alfred Ormston, Maurice Langberg, John Morrison, Dick Leullen, Rob Haney, Greely Palmer, Chuck Lamb, Harold Gooding, Norris Whitlock, Alton Lloyd, Francis Williams, John Witherspoon, Lanky Myrick, Charles Taylor, Clyde Turner, Al Green, John Simms.

THIS WEEKS CALENDAR

Friday
Flastacowo skit night, auditorium, 7:45 p. m.
Saturday
Panhellenic dance, gymnasium, 8 p. m.
Sunday
Sophomore council, waffle breakfast, Dutch Kitchen.
Monday
Emergency Peace meeting on "Neutrality," 304 History building, 5 p. m.
Tuesday
Dr. Truman Bigham, speaker on "Taxation as a Social Agent," convocation program, 11:30 p. m.
Wednesday
Glee club spring concert, auditorium, 8 p. m.
Thursday
Easter vacation begins 11:30 a m.

Village Vamps Dates To Be Entertained With Breakfast

The Village Vamps club will entertain Sunday morning at 10 o'clock with a breakfast at the Floridan hotel for members and their dates for Panhellenic week-end. The table will be attractively decorated with Easter bunnies which will contain verses about the dates. The black and white colors of the club will also be used.

The members and their dates that will attend are as follows: Peggy Van Dyke, Jess Ferrill; Helen Murphy, Steve O'Connel; Margaret Mickler, Bookie Cooper; Betty Cashen, Boyd Harris; Nelewyn Brooks, Malcolm McCrory; Sunny Dell, Guy Marvin, jr.; Dot Hill, Floyd Christian; Mary Elizabeth Daugherty, John Sullivan; Danner Baker, Bob McCrary; Frances La Motte, Julian Lane; Virginia Dowling, Godfrey Smith; Rosie Evans, Wilbur Conn; Leona Howe, Frank Morgan; Ann Towson, Bill Long; Mary Ann Noland, Walker Pendleton; and Virginia La Motte, John Burnstead.

Eleven Girls Attend St. Patrick Party

Eleven Florida State College students attended the annual St Patrick's day party held at the McClay estates just outside of Tallahassee Wednesday evening, and presented a program of entertainment for the guests.

The numbers presented, taken from the Junior Minstrels, included a violin number by Pat Patterson and Betty Parker, with Mickey Conn at the piano; a vocal trio by Marjorie Tillis, Mary Jeanne McKay, and Ella Mae McAnly; two dances by Jo Binlon and Janet Lockwood; and a vocal trio by Clarice Sanches, Annie Laurie Sanchez, and Pat Campbell.

Personals

Spending Saturday and Sunday at the college camp this week-end are Marsha Ricker, Virle Crawford, Lucy Mikell, Joan Tolar, Catherine Kirby-Smith, Peggy Boteler, Bennie Syfrett and Iris Bell.

Dr. Herman Kurz has just returned from Cedar Rapids, Iowa, where he attended the funeral of his father.

Mary Enneis entertained the members and pledges of the Kappa Alpha Theta sorority with an after dinner coffee at the Kappa Alpha Theta house Tuesday night.

Mrs. Addie Weltch Crosby, national vice-president, was a guest at the Alpha Chi Omega house this week.

Miss Frances Parker was guest at the Phi Mu house last week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Simmons are visiting their daughter, Lilian, this week-end.

Sigma Kappa president of the Miami alumnae, Dot Snyder, was a visitor at the Sigma Kappa house this week.

Jean Willis will attend the state education meeting in Orlando this week-end.

There will be a J. W. O. reception for town people on Friday night at the Delta Phi Epsilon house.

Mrs Evelyn Carruthers visited her daughter, Dot, at the Delta Delta Delta house last week-end.

Sororities to Honor Members, Guests Over Weekend Hop

This week-end will be filled with numerous sorority parties and tea dances for the members of the different sororities and their dates for the Panhellenic Hop Saturday night.

Tomorrow afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock open house and informal dancing will be held at the Sigma Kappa house, the Alpha Xi Delta house, the Delta Delta Delta house, the Delta Phi Epsilon house, the Kappa Delta house, and the Theta Upsilon house.

Tea dances followed by buffet suppers will be given by the Alpha Chi Omega, Alpha Delta Pi, Alpha Omicron Pi, Delta Zeta, and Pi Beta Phi sororities.

The Phi Mu sorority will entertain its members and their dates with a tea dance Saturday afternoon and an after-dinner coffee Sunday night.

The Alpha Omicron Pi and the Delta Zeta sororities will have an Easter egg hunt together Friday afternoon from 4:30 to 8:30 o'clock for their members, rushees, and pledges, while the Zeta Tau Alpha sorority will give its members and dates a picnic Sunday afternoon.

Reynolds Hall Gives Patrick's Tea For Faculty Guests

Carrying out a green Saint Patrick's theme a tea was given Wednesday afternoon in Reynolds hall parlors by the students and social directors of the dormitory honoring faculty members and off campus guests of the students.

Reynolds parlor was decorated appropriately with spring flowers, greenery, and lighted green candles. Standing in the receiving line were Sarah Rutledge, Miss Olivia N. Dorman, Miss Meude Flowers, Miss Ida Rowan, Miss Mamie Andrews, Mrs. Josephine Levy, and Mrs. Edna R. Burhans.

The guests included Miss Wilburn, Miss Helen McKean, Mr. and Mrs. Colin English, Mrs. McMillan, Miss Shores, Mrs. Shores, Miss Annie Popper, Miss Conway, Mrs. Robert Leslie, Miss Campbell, Miss Currin, Miss Stevenson, Miss Sara Meador, Dr. and Mrs. Ralph Eyman, Mrs. Glenn, Miss MacIntosh, Miss Lent, Mr. and Mrs. Diamond, Miss Fox, Miss Singletary, Miss Nall, Mr. and Mrs. Earl H. Vance, Mr. and Mrs. Miller, Miss Ada Le Barker, Miss Schoenhurst, Dr. and Mrs. Richards, Miss Rowena Longmire, Dr. and Mrs. Christie, Mrs. Horne, Miss Chapman, Mrs. Willie Lanier, Dr. Paul Finner, Miss McKinnel, Miss Henry, Mrs. Breen, Mrs. Ely, Mrs. Johnson, Miss Etta Burleson, Mrs. Cravatt, Mrs. Kate Demilly, Mrs. Allen, Mrs. Covart, Miss Winnie Lee Davis, Mrs Gibson, Mrs. Marshall, Mrs. Timberlake, Mrs. Palmer, Mrs. Sikes, Miss Rachel Wylie, Miss Wylie, Miss Murphy, Father Carroll, Rev. and Mrs. Allfriend, Miss Katherine Warren, Mrs. Scott, Mrs. Gililand, Mrs. Perkins, Miss Clough, Mrs. Lanier, Miss Lula

DORMITORY DIRECTORS TO ENTERTAIN GIRLS REMAINING ON CAMPUS EASTER

For those students who will be unable to go home or visit elsewhere during the Easter holidays the directors in each dormitory will entertain the students living in their halls with several social functions.

Mrs. Margaret Saynor, director in Bryan hall will entertain with an Easter egg hunt in Bryan parlor Sunday night at 8:30 o'clock, while Mrs. Lollie Wimberly will have a marshmallow roast in Bryan parlor Friday night at 9:30 o'clock.

The students in Reynolds hall will be entertained by Mrs. Rebecca Rowan with a candy Easter egg hunt Sunday afternoon at 3.30 to 5:00 o'clock in the courtyard between the dining room and the back of Reynolds. The students will also be given informal candy-making parties Monday.

Miss Mary Etta Thistlethwaite will entertain the Reynolds students with a "game" party, including monoply, bridge, and ouija boards Saturday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

Freshmen in Jennie Murphree will be entertained Saturday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock by Miss Rose Denham and Mrs. Flossie Curry, directors of Jennie Murphree, with an Easter egg hunt.

Mrs. Melanie Turner and Miss Katherine Bird, directors of Gilchrist, will entertain the students in Gilchrist with an informal tea and dance in Gilchrist parlor Saturday night at 9 o'clock. Refreshments and entertainment such as skits, songs and special dances, are included on the program.

FOUR SORORITIES HOLD INITIATIONS OF NEW MEMBERS AND HAVE BANQUETS

Among the other sororties initiating last week and later entertaining the new initiates were Zeta Tau Alpha, Delta Delta Delta, Phi Mu, and Kappa Alpha Theta.

The Phi Mu service was held on Saturday night when Edith Brown, Helen Stewart, Mary Earl Berry, Betty Booser, Mary Chapman, Mildred Stovall, Lucy Grant, and Virginia Wells were initiated.

The initiation ceremony was followed by a banquet at the Dutch Kitchen. Decorations were in rose and white, the colors of the sorority, and the favors bore the sorority seal. Recognition pins were presented to the honor guests.

New initiates of Zeta Tau Alpha were honored last Sunday morning at an initiation breakfast given in the Dutch Kitchen. The decorations and program centered around the theme of white violets, the sorority flower. Louise Rice received as this year's award for the best all-round pledge, a ring bearing the sorority coat of arms.

The honor guests received as favors old fashioned nosegays of white, tied with the sorority colors of steel-gray and turquoise blue. New members of Zeta Tau Alpha are Louise Rice, Anna Marie Mitchell, Dolly Reed, Esther Schowe, and Ena Faye Jett.

Those initiated into Delta Delta Delta Saturday were: Charlotte Bartless, Jamie Brown, Dorothy Carruthers, Mary Collins, Carolyn Collins, Mollie Scales, Jean Charlotte Kerns, Eugenia Glass, Marian Valz, Charlotte Connell, Mary Louise Merriweather, Mary McCahill, Martha McAndrew, Mary Noble, Margery Jessup, and Dot Smith.

The service was followed by a dinner at the sorority house honoring the new initiates. The serving table was overlaid with a lace cloth and centered with a delta-shaped holder containing pansies and baby breath. Recognition pins were presented to the new initiates.

J. W. C. Organiaztion Has Annual Dance

The Jewish Women's Organization held its annual dance Saturday night at the Delta Phi Epsilon house.

A blue and white color scheme was carried out in decorations of streamers and spring flowers. Punch and cookies were served during the evening from a table overlaid with lace.

Chaperons were Mrs. Julia Johnson and Mrs. Sara Levy. Guests included, Irving Klepper, Phily Seiber, Bob Richter, Louis Seitlen, Bob Lenen, Herbert Cohn, Herbert Kay, Louis Sneitman, Manny Levenson, Sanford Swerdling, Arnold Rubin, Willie Myers, Julius Goldberg, Irving Sheff, Irving Wahnish, Harry Rushe, Simon Hershbeeg, Leste Rose, Lou Feinberg, Sidney Mendelsohn, Chester Cassel, Fred Leven, Harold Mendelsohn.

Hostesses were, Irene Braverman, Maxine Braverman, Ruth Rubin, Ruby Bronstein, Jeanne Mankes, Rose Levin, Muriel Liebman, Hannah Bisco, Katherine Kass, Judith Wilensky, Jeanette Kronenfeld, Idella Baumstein, Alice Liffman, Roslyn Silverberg, Frances Gold, Pat Hachel, Shirley Esrig, Margaret Benjamin, Muriel Black, Jerry Rosenberg, Gertrude Hech, Roslyn Daum, Edith Harowitz, Florence Karac, Sylvia Feiga, Rose Appel, Margaret Fishler, Estelle Rubin.

Margaret Wyly, Miss Burke, Dorothy Tacker, Dorothy Atkinson, Sophie Draughan, Lucy Lee Entzminger, Camilla Gillette, Faye Adams, Mamye Oleman, Jean Cooper, and Mary Catherine Gibson.

Horton is Elected Theta President

The new officers recently installed by Beta Nu chapter of Kappa Alpha Theta for the coming year were as follows: President, Marjorie Horton; vice-president, Patty Hamilton; pledge chairman, Dot Barr; corresponding secretary, Margaret Schmidli; recording secretary, Lavina Spaulding; treasurer, Mary Frances Campbell; house chairman, Betty Hamilton; marshall, Kitty Craney; assistant marshall, Anna Laurie Sanchez; social chairman, Martha Hague; panhellenic delegate, Edythe Stanley; rush chairman, Helen Donn.... archivist, Helen Hall; alumnae secretary, Ruth Fisher; editor and historian, Betty Spicer; activities chairman, Virginia Eager; chaplain, Myrtle Butts; and librarian, Ella Faye Price.

The Sigma Kappa sorority held elections Tuesday night at which time Nellie Woodham was elected president. Other officers chosen were: vice-president, Mona McLean; treasurer, Margery Weems; and secretary, Susanna Trusler.

Gorgeous New Easter Styles Just Unpacked!

If your Easter outfit is tailored, it will need the trim, square-toe step-in of gabardine ... in black, blue, brown, white with brown on gray. If you're going to be 'dressy' choose the saucy gabardine bow pump in lilac or marine blue. All shoes specially priced for Easter ...

A pair of shoes given away free each week ... come in and sign up today!

WILSON'S Shoe Department

Yes, we know you're getting all ready to leave for Home for the Easter Holidays—

But aren't there certain things that you may need — that you can purchase to advantage here in Tallahassee?

—Frinstance
—Beach Wear
—Bathing Suits
—Blouse
—Bags
—Hankies
—Underwear
—Evening Gowns
—Wraps
—Hosiery

The Vogue
feminine wearables
TALLAHASSEE, FLORIDA

Presbyterians Plan Retreat During April

Thirty Council Members To Attend Meeting At Camp O'Lena

Approximately thirty members of the Presbyterian student council will attend a retreat to be held at Camp O'Lena on the Suwannee river, near Lake City, April 2-4, in conjunction with the members of the Presbyterian student session at the University of Florida.

The retreat will begin Friday night with a social hour directed h. the Rev. Edward Montgomery, pastor of the Lake City Presbyterian church. Saturday morning Bert Bassett, from the University of Florida, will preside over a discussion, and committees will be appointed then to work out ways Christian youth can build a new world.

Saturday afternoon the Rev. Albert Kisling, pastor of the Riverside Presbyterian church in Jacksonville will make an address. Saturday night the Rev. Mr Montgomery will talk to the students in an open-air service. The retreat will close Sunday morning with a worship service and meeting from the different committee.

In addition to the students, those attending the retreat will be Dr. H. S. Gordon, pastor of the Presbyterian church in Gainesville, Dr. E. M. Caldwell, pastor of the Tallahassee Presbyterian church, Mr. Kisling, Mrs. J. M. Satenfield, president of the Florida synodical; Miss Lena Smith, director of religious education in the Presbyterian church, U. S. A.; Miss Anna Van Fossen, director of religious education in the Presbyterian church, U. S.; Mr. Montgomery, and Miss Rachael Wylie, Presbyterian student secretary in Tallahassee.

Tomorrow night Miss Rachael Wylie will be "open-house" for all Presbyterian students and their friends. Mr. John Williams and Mr. Ted Jones, who have been conducting special services at the Presbyterian church, will be present at this time.

F Goats Offer Actives Food and Hike Tonight And Added Attractions

F. Club goats wore clothes backwards this week, ate with the most inconvenient utensils, continued to black boots in the dining room areas, and are even giving the members a dinner trip tonight.

The goats, gym teachers, and active members, which will include Miss Margaret Campbell and Miss Helen Davis faculty members, will leave from the gym at 4:30 o'clock Friday for Game's woods. There will be games and perhaps an impromptu ski given by the goats, and wieners and marshmallows are on the menu. They plan to get back by 7:30 so everyone can attend ski night.

At the last F Club meeting at 4 o'clock Friday the goats were introduced to their goat mamas. Goats how to F Club members, wear little lavender goats, and have been seen eating cereal with forks, desert with serving spoons, and spreading bread with teaspoons. After a vain attempt at eating soup with a knife one goat was at last allowed to drink it. The goats wore their coats backwards Tuesday from noon till sundown.

This Week

Continued from page four

earnest regret" expressed by Secretary Hull in the attack on Adolph Hitler by Mayor La Guardia. Germany has refused either to apologize or to express similar regret, for recent German press attacks on American government, American institutions, and American womanhood.

Instead of the usual formality of expressing regrets in such circumstances, Baron Constantin von Neurath, foreign minister, offered Ambassador William E. Dodd merely an "explanation."

He stated that the insult to the American nation was by no means intended. For the rest, the assumption is justified that the American diplomat's attention was called to the continuous malicious attitude in the part of the American press in connection with German affairs.

With this explanation, which attributes the German press outbreak to "Germany's heroic anger" caused by America's own actions, the government considers the incident closed.

Thomson is Speaker

Last Wednesday morning at 7:45 in upper Byran atrium Miss Elizabeth Thomson of the speech department was guest speaker for the Y. W. C. A. worship service. Miss Thomson gave a story entitled "In the Desert of Waiting."

Heads Club

Marina Carson, who is president of the Florida State college glee club, will sing a solo part in the annual club concert next Wednesday night.

Mary Berryhill Gives Senior Speech Recital

Mary Berryhill gave her senior speech recital "Bury the Dead" by Irwin Shaw last night in the Augusta Conradi theater.

The play of one act was a plea for peace. The setting was a battlefield where soldiers were preparing to bury some of their mates who had been killed. A supernatural play, it was possible for the soldiers to arise and refuse to be buried. Each of six corpses gave reasons for not wanting to be buried. In short, the play shows the futility of war.

The New York Times has said of the play: 'Bury the Dead' is a savage and ironic poem, etched in scorn and passion . . . Mr Shaw sounds a clarion cry to the dead and living alike."

Music Recital Is Presented In Auditorium

Voice, Organ and Piano Selections Offered By Student Group

A wide variety of student talent was featured in the Wednesday afternoon music recital which included piano, vocal, organ, and 'cello numbers.

Evelyn Bayless opened the program with a number on the organ, "Prelude and Fugue in d Minor" by Bach, after which Vivienne Rainey sang "I Cannot Help Loving Thee" by Clayton Johns. "Chopin" by Godard was played next by Jane Meredith. Continuing the program Pauline Morrow played "Gullriandes" by Goddard. Haydn's "Sonata, D Major allegro" was next played by Jean Kerns. Two organ selections were played next by Dorothy Leach. They were, "Vivace from Sixth Sonata" by Bach and "Scherzini" by Dupre, which was followed by "Cello-Variations Symphoniques" by Boellman, played by Gorden Epperson. A selection from "Memories of Childhood" by Celiano Pinto which included "Rum Rum," "Rung Around the Roxy," "March," "Little Soldier," "Sleeping Time", and "Hooby Horse" was played next by Betty Graves.

Catherine Gray Pruner continued the program by playing "Nocturne, Op. 19, No. 2 by Chopin, followed by another collection "Pictures at An Exhibition," by Moussorgsky which included "Promenade," "The Gnome," "The Troubador," played by Louise Doyle. "A Night in Seville" by Neumann was heard next, played by Marjorie Stump, followed by a duet, "Calm as the Night," by Bohm, sung by Evelyn Bayless and Louise Bowery, accompanied by Edna Warren. A piano solo was played next by Emma Lee Godwin. This was "Concertstuck," Introduction-Allegro appassionato, by Schumann.

The program was concluded three organ selections, "Dour Toccata" by Bach, "Fugue in G Minor" by Bach and "Jazzed Peaks in the Starlight" by Mendlessohn played by Jessica Jane Mackey.

Former FSCW Graduate Talks Before Personnel Gathering

Beatrice Candee is Supervising Psychologist In New York Employment Service; Gives Advice Concerning Jobs

Beatrice Candee, '28, made Associated Press front page copy last month when she spoke before the American Council of Guidance and Personnel Associations which were holding meetings in New Orleans Miss Candee is supervising psychologist of the consultant division of the New York state employment service.

The AP write-up concerning Miss Candee's talk follows:

"She applied you the 'type' for a job, it's surprising the aims the boss will overlook in your work.

"The employment idea of a typical employee was presented to the council by Miss Beatrice Candee, supervising psychologist of the consultation division, New York state employment service.

"Here's the way Miss Candee summed up the kind of worker ar employer desires:

"Someone whom I like and who likes me, who will support and not injure my image of myself and my conception of what I am trying to do.

"Someone who will fit in with the people already on my staff, so that the delicate balance of forces and interplay of personalities, which an under the heading of group morale, will move more smoothly rather than be interfered with by his presence.

"Someone whom I, and the rest of the staff like to have outside people know as one of us.

"All of this, of course, in addition to someone who can do the work. It is surprising, however, how much will sometimes be allowed on the work side, depending upon the nature of the job—if the 'type' is satisfactory."

Miss Candee received the A.B degree from Florida State College for Women in 1928, and the M.A. degree from the University of Chicago that same year. From 1928-1927 she served as instructor in psychology at the Carnegie Institute of Technology. Since 1927 she has been psychologist with the vocational service for juniors in New York. In January of this year Miss Candee had an article published in the Journal of Adult Education.

According to Miss Candee, the Vocational Service for Juniors is a demonstration organization for vocational guidance. The duties of its staff vary according to the projects carried by the organization. It carried a demonstration of junior placement work until this was taken over by the state employment service, and a demonstration of vocational counsellors in the schools until the board of education took charge of this.

During the last three years the work of the organization has been with a somewhat older group, from 16 to 25. In this time it has conducted a consultation service in connunc on with the New York state employment service. The private agency furnishes the supervisors, a fund for grants and scholarships, and a flexibility which would be difficult to attain in an agency entirely under public funds. The state furnishes space, telephone, supplies and most of the staff. Part of the staff is also furnished by the N.Y.A.

The state employment service recently adopted the service more or less formally and designated it as the consultation division of the New York state employment service. Ultimately it is expected that the consultation division will be given a civil service ranking and the vocational service for juniors will then withdraw and enter upon another project.

Fifteen Clubs Hear Speakers

Number Alumnae Groups Throughout Florida Celebrate Week

Fifteen different types of organizations, totalling 111 in all, heard addresses given by Florida State college faculty members during "F. S. C. W. Week."

The men's civic clubs led all other groups in having "F. S. C. W. Week" speakers. Next in line were 27 Florida State college alumnae groups. Sixteen of the alumnae groups had individual meetings, while 11 combined with other organizations to have a speaker.

Thirteen women's clubs of the Florida Federation, 13 high school groups and seven Parent-Teacher Associations had "F. S. C. W. Week" programs. Other organizations participating in "F. S. C. W. Week" activities were Kiwanis Clubs, Business and Professional Women's Clubs, Rotary Clubs, garden clubs, Junior Women's Clubs, Panhellenic, P. E. O., Quota, Forward, Margaret Dy, Delaney, and Louise Johnson.

Eyman Speaks At Gathering of Graduates

Continued from page five

more gracefully if we can come out of the next depression."

Other speakers on the dinner program were President Edward Conradi of Florida State College for Women, and Mrs. Edward L. Beeson, president of the college Alumnae association. President Conradi gave a greeting to the alumnae while Mrs. Beeson told of plans for securing funds for a student-alumnae building at Florida State College for Women. She also reminded the graduates of the home-coming for Alumnae, known as the "Alumnae College" which will be held on the campus the week-end of April 16-18.

Mrs Dan Byrd (Wilma Milton) of Orlando was chairman of the dinner. Toast-mistress was Mrs Edgar Cecil Wilson (Dorothy Johnson) of Orlando.

National President Will Preside at Initiation Omicron Nu Members

Omicron Nu will hold its initiation March 23 for the five members tapped March 16, at which time Dr. Marie Dye, the national president of Omicron Nu will officiate.

Seniors being initiated are Marjorie Beach, and Mrs. Irene Gunn, Juniors are Lucile Williams, Geraldine Meyers, and Irene Day. The initiation will be at the home of Dean Sandels.

Dr. Dye, who is head of the home economic department at Michigan State College, will talk here, Tuesday at 7:30, after which there will be a short reception. She will be Miss Krown's guest. The two women have been schoolmates at Stetson where Dr. Dye was spending part of her time at University of Chicago and part at Stetson.

This home economics honor society has for its purpose the promotion of scholarship, leadership, research, and the furtherance of a world-wide movement in home economics. Only seniors and second semester juniors may be elected to membership. Other members on campus are Shirley Stevens, president of the chapter, Gladys Howard, Margaret Delaney, and Louise Johnson.

American Legion Auxiliary, A. A. U. W. groups, and girl scouts.

The largest number of groups will be in Pensacola and Gainesville, eight organizations in each city participating in "F. S. C. W. Week."

Cities in which alumnae groups had meetings and participating in "F. S. C. W. Week" are as follows: Chipley, Clearwater, Crestview, Cross City, Bustis, Ft. Lauderdale, Lake Wales, Miami, Ocala, Pensacola, Pompano, Quincy, Sebring, St. Petersburg, Tampa, Tallahassee, Bradenton, Ft. Myers, Havana, Marianna, Gainesville, Kissimmee, Lake City, Jasper, Pahokee, Panama City, and St Augustine.

Directing activities of "F. S. C. W. Week" was Miss Anna May Tracy, chairman of the faculty committee on cooperation with the alumnae, which was in charge of the 1927 Week.

Mason Speaks On Movements To Aid Labor

Conscience of Consumer Is Discussion Topic Of League Worker

Speaking on the subject "Consumers' Conscience" Miss Lucy Mason, General Secretary of the Consumer League, appeared yesterday afternoon in the Augusta Conradi Theatre. The National Consumers' League is an educational movement formed in 1900 to awaken consumers' interest in their responsibility for conditions under which goods are made and distributed.

In 1891, although the Consumers' League was started by a group of socially minded people, many of them college professors, there was still little labor legislation. The league organized in order to help women and children working under unsatisfactory conditions in the New York stores at that time.

Florence Kelley the first women factory inspector in America, was made general secretary of the National Consumers' League, the position which Miss Mason now holds. Miss Kelley began working for laws for the laboring people, for labor legislature to shorten the working hours, raise the wages, and better the conditions under which they worked.

Continuing her talks, Miss Mason discussed some of the evils of the wasting of natural resources and of human resources. Much of the labor legislation for better conditions of working people, including their living conditions, wages working hours, etc., has not yet been passed. Miss Mason explained the young people in college today who will soon be voting to do something about such conditions, also of the power of the faculty of the colleges to mold the minds of youth in the right direction.

Miss Mason spoke again at 4:30 in the Chemistry lecture room this morning at 10:30, and will hold another discussion this afternoon at 2:30 in 208 Administration building.

THE CASE OF THE

...full measure of everything you want in a cigarette.

At every stage . . . from tobacco farm to shipping room . . . Chesterfield's job is to give you the refreshing mildness and delightful flavor that makes smoking a great pleasure.

Experienced buyers see that Chesterfield tobaccos are MILD and RIPE . . . careful manufacturers see that they are blended to the exact Chesterfield formula.

And they see that the cigarettes are made right . . . round, firm, just right to smoke.

. . . for the full measure of the good things you want in a cigarette we invite you to enjoy Chesterfields.

Copyright 1937, Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co.

Become Music-Conscious
By Attending
Three Scheduled Concerts

Best Wishes for Success
To New Officers
Of Campus Organizations

The Florida Flambeau

Published by the Students of Florida State College for Women

VOLUME XXIV. Tallahassee, Florida, April 9, 1937 NUMBER TWENTY-TWO onradi Talks Over National Radio Network

ducation for Living" Program Sponsored By Woman's Club

RESIDENT CITES CONDITIONS HERE

Colleges of Faculty In Building Youth Are Emphasized

President Edward Conradi of Florida State College for Women in a prepared radio address which he delivered Saturday afternoon from Washington, D. C., over a national hookup, declared that all colleges should be builders of life." Ha faculty members should see "with a clear sight that teaching which helps the building of the intellectual and spiritual life in the mind and heart of youth set a job just as President Eliot of Harvard put it: 'a privilege which the angels of heaven might envy mortals.'"

President Glenn Honor of the Florida State college official is quoted to appear on an "Education for Living" program of the General Federation of Women's Clubs. He was one of a number of college presidents accorded the honor. The speakers were asked to tell particularly the advantages offered in home economics, family relations and home training in general at their respective colleges. The subject was "What Can College Educate Women for Best"

In the 13-minute talk on what Florida State college is doing in home economics, the family finance and home making in general to help its students, he said:

Florida State college has as its fundamental aim acquainting the student with those opportunities which make a cultivated and beautiful life, for this is the basis of a cultured home. In the school of Home Economics the student gets first a thorough acquaintance with the problems of adequate diet and nutrition, the problems of the every social and financial problem of making the best of the resources available."

Beta of Management Honor

Mr ann told of the college home management house where girls majoring in home economics and several weeks in residence of the demonstration school for students get first hand

Continued on Page Two

New Officers Are Installed

Edlund, Gehan, Raulerson Among Twenty-Six Taking Office

The officers for College Government Association for next year were installed Monday night in a traditional candlelight ceremony in Auditorium. The officers assumed their responsibilities following installation.

Betty Cedlund, the incoming President of College Government Association, received the robes of office from Mary Jeanne McKay, the outgoing president, and then conducted the remainder of the ceremony. The outgoing officers lighted candles and after each new president gave the oath of office, her candle was lighted from that of the retiring officer.

The newly installed officers are: Betty Cedlund, president; Marjorie Raulerson, freshman advisor; Frances Lewis, treasurer; Winifred Ewart, first president; Katherine Autrey, second vice-president; Katherine Gehan, secretary; Louise Lingo, librarian; Dewey court, Hilda Hamilton and Marian Andrews are representatives to senate; Betty Hatch, Alice Mae Bell and Ella Ashton are junior representatives; Elaine Fleischer and Doris Slade are the sophomore senate representatives. House chairmen are Isabelle Sands, Elizabeth Lee, Mary Enright, Lois Bowen, Mary Cooper, and Mary Ellen Brown.

Members of the officers' nominations committee are: Barbara Hardy, chairman, Elise Phillips, Mary Barry, Jane Rice Jean Smith, Marjorie Horton and Bev- Brown

McKay is Chairman Of Women's Group

Mary Jeanne McKay left Wednesday to attend the annual southern regional N. S. F. A. convention at New Orleans, La. The convention, which opened yesterday at the Hotel Roosevelt, will be in session until Saturday. Mary Jeanne will serve as chairman of the women's division of student government at the convention.

Orchestra And Dancing Group To Entertain

Musical Part of Program Will Be Directed By Cowles

CONCERT WILL BE THURSDAY NIGHT

Miss Nellie B. Dickinson Is in Charge Of Dance Forms

Combined this year with the dancing group for the first time, the college orchestra, under the direction of Walter Rue Cowles, conductor, will present its spring concert Thursday evening at 7:45 o'clock in the college auditorium.

Program Is Given

The program will include Symphony in E Flat Major by Haydn, the Andante Cantabile by Tschaikowsky, and the Air de Ballet by Herbert. Emma Lee Goodwin will present a piano solo. Introduction and Allegro Apassionate, Opus 92, by Schuman, and a flute solo, Mazurka Mignon, will be given by Carl Hoffman. Master Hoffman will be accompanied on the harp by Mary Reeder and Mary Ann Wall.

A feature of the program will be the five dance forms to be given by the dancing group. The dancing forms include Pavane by Gigue, Gavotte by Grieg, Minuet by Rameau, a Waltz by Kramer, and Farandole by Bizet. The dances are under the direction of Miss Nellie Bond Dickinson of the physical education department.

Personnel Listed

The orchestra personnel is composed of first violins: Julia Rosser, concert master, Betty Parker, Bernice Bird, Mary Ann Wall, Marion Perrell, Eleanor Mullins, Mary Jane Whitaker; second violins; Veola Evans, Gertrude Tomlin, Betty Hatch, Karolyn Patterson, Eleanor Daniels, Frances Posser, Agnes Martin, Donna Haney. Piano, Gertrude Bush

Continued on Page Two

Tilt Elected Dietetic Head

Faculty Members Attend Annual Convention St. Petersburg

Dr. Jeanne Tilt, professor of physiological chemistry and nutrition, was elected president of the Florida State Dietetic Association at its third annual convention held at St. Petersburg April 3.

Among others from this college who attended the convention was Dr. Frederick Gilbert Moore, college physician, who spoke on "The Biochemical Foundation for Diet Restrictions in Kidney Disease".

Dr. Tilt made a report on professional standards in the field of dietetics. Miss Helen Davis, assistant dietitian, gave a report on diet therapy, and Miss Anna Mae Sikes, extension nutritionist, reported on extension activities. Miss Mary Lois Gill, assistant dietitian in the college infirmary also attended the convention.

Dean Margaret Sandels of the school of home economics served as chairman of the program committee.

First Editor Reveals Early Beginnings of College Paper

Omission of Headlines Proves Tragedy in First Struggle as Students Publish Flambeau In Face of Varied Difficulties

By EVELYN FISHER

Memories of the days when the Flambeau was audaciously launched back in 1915 shone in the blue eyes of Mrs. James Milton Carson, the first editor of the publication as she looked at the present issue of the Flambeau and talked to the new editor, Mrs. Carson, who was Ruby Leach when she edited the first Flambeau, was in Tallahassee for a few days recently while doing special research work for a Macmil newspaper.

Gasping at the display of national cigarette advertisement in the present Flambeau, Mrs. Carson began to tell about the birth and early trials of the present college publication.

Coming to this college as a sophomore transfer student from University of Missouri, Ruby Leach with the help of Dean Dodd and several other members of the faculty launched a tabloid-size sheet of college news, mostly faculty-censored, which soon aroused the interest of the student body in such a publication.

"I feel like I started something now," said Mrs. Carson when she noticed the full size edition of the Flambeau and commented on its makeup.

Putting out the paper in those days was a one-woman's job, Mrs. Carson's early struggles included a weekly chat with the printers who insisted upon leaving out the headlines. In those days any woman's activity, Mrs. Carson explained, was considered rather daring and particularly anything so lacking in feminine modesty as the editing of a newspaper. But the staff of that year, and Mrs. Carson in particular was possessed with the true journalistic spirit—the paper must come out. It was this spirit and several cups of very black coffee that helped Mrs. Carson put out an eight-page Jubilee edition of that first year single-handedly so that the Thanksgiving night issue appeared on time.

In those days the Flambeau was ren' by some four hundred students and also had quite a wide circulation among the town people. One of the events of the year was the naming of the paper through a contest in the editorial staff. Mrs. Steve Yates of Tallahassee submitted the winning name of The Flambeau.

"It is remarkable,' said the first editor, "that it has stuck all this time."

The first editor was not without a few faculty moods. One of her former school friends divulged the story of a party that was held in Tallahassee for the staff and friends at which glasses of "Flambeau punch" were drunk solemnly served as refreshments.

"It was very good punch, and I feel to have been first editor" were the last words of Mrs. Carson as we told her "goodbye."

Summer School Session Dates Are Announced

Dr. Conradi Will Head Faculty of Chosen Instructors

The summer session of Florida State College for Women will begin June 14 and end August 24, it is announced recently by R. S. Doyle, registrar. Dr. Edward Conradi, and Edward Conradi, and the faculty will be chosen from among the regular instructors.

Students are admitted to summer school either by a certificate from an approved high school or accredited secondary school, or through an entrance examination. A student may earn nine semester hours in each summer session.

One of the features of the summer school will be a series of lectures and entertainments open to all students. The college administration has also arranged for Ben Wood for a week of educational lectures. Dr. Wood is an associate professor of education at Columbia, New York, and director of the Bureau of Collegiate Educational Research in that institution.

The summer session offers opportunities to both men and women for three types of work; first, regular college work leading toward a degree; second, college courses for teachers who wish to satisfy the state certificate requirements; and third, graduate work for those who wish to continue their work beyond the bachelor's degree.

Three halls, Bryan, Broward, and Gilchrist, will be open this

Continued On Page Two

Eight Elected To Membership In Fraternity

Phi Beta Kappa Honors One Alumnae, Seven Students Here

One alumna, five seniors, and two juniors in the College of Arts and Sciences were elected to membership in the Alpha of Florida chapter of Phi Beta Kappa on March 31.

The seniors are Josephine Binns, Rosemary Hall; Anna Mae Mitchel, Daisy Parker, and Sue Whitaker; the juniors, Elizabeth Lewis, economics major from Alabama, Shirley Long, a member of the class of 1937 now on the faculty of Hunter college, New York City.

Membership in Phi Beta Kappa is based on high scholarship and breadth of cultural interests. To be eligible, a student must have at least 100 hours of liberal subjects, exclusive of courses in physical education, vocational, and fine arts, exhibit wide interest in many fields of study, and be well regarded for moral and cultural qualities.

The initiation ceremonies are not complete, but the ceremony will be held sometime during the month.

Andrews Speaks Sunday

A series of lectures on the topic "What Religion Means to Me" is being given by members of the Methodist Sunday School.

Dr. Edwin Mims Andrews will speak to the student group on this topic next Sunday morning.

Flambeau Head Chooses Staff For Next Year

Annual Banquet is Held At Dutch Kitchen Tuesday Night

KEYS ARE GIVEN FIVE REPORTERS

E. L. Vance Speaks About Ideal College Paper During Program

At the annual Flambeau banquet held Tuesday night in the Dutch Kitchen, new staff members were announced and keys were awarded five of the outstanding sophomore reporters. Prof. E. L. Vance was the chief speaker of the evening.

Fisher Names Staff

Pearle Sheehan, former managing editor, was named co-editor by Evelyn Fisher, editor who appointed also Arline Grey Lockhart, assistant editor; Dorothy Barclay, managing editor; Frances Brunson and Alma Warren, news editors; Mary Jeanne Bowden and Alicia Meacham, feature editors; Martha Lumpkin, copy editor; Petrea Cabaniss and Betty Eppes, literary editors; Ruth Atkinson and Mary Ellen Lee, sports editors; Ella Virginia Brooks and Elizabeth Turner, exchange editors; Mary Noble and Anne Ladd, society editors; Evelyn Glazier, art editor and Lucy Kelly Bell, make-up man; Nancy Rogero, special feature writers.

To the business staff, headed by Jane Quinn, were appointed: Sarah Knox, assistant business manager; Riva Hemphill, circulation manager; and as assistants to the circulation manager, Tilly Anderson and Betty Hatch.

Requirements Given

The five reporters awarded keys for distinguished work were: Dorothy Barclay, Frances Brunson, Petrea Cabaniss, Alma Warren and Evelyn Watermolen.

The program for the banquet was announced in place-card fac-

Continued On Page Two

Mirelle, Nice To Appear Here

Opera Star and Conductor Will Share Honors Monday Night

Wilma Mirelle, young New York concert and opera star, will share honors with Dr. Clarence Carter Nice, conductor, in appearances as guest artist in the Florida State Symphony concert at the Florida State College for Women auditorium Monday night.

Miss Mirelle is one of the young-er American singers who has won popularity on the concert stage and in radio and soprano roles. She was given a tremendous ovation when she appeared in Tallahassee and in Miami during the early winter.

The Florida State Symphony has made a great reputation during the past few months and is gradually being developed into an organization of 100 symphonic musicians under the direction of Dr. Carter Nice.

The concert is co-sponsored by the Tallahassee Post of the American Legion.

Sir Herbert Ames, Financial Head Of League Of Nations For Seven Years, Speaks During Series Of Six Lectures

In a series of six lectures, under the auspices of the International Relations club, here this week Sir Herbert Ames, financial director of the League of Nations for seven years, explained the significance of the League's position in world affairs.

League Purposes Stated

Opening his lecture series Monday afternoon, Sir Herbert outlined the Covenant of the League. The Covenant he described as "the first chapter of the Treaty of Versailles" and as "one of the world's greatest documents". To prevent war and to promote international cooperation Sir Herbert stated, are the purposes of the League.

Although there are some loopholes in the set-up of this international organization, even major disasters such as Mussolini's conquest of Abyssinia have not affected the principles on which the League is founded, Sir Herbert believes.

Obligations Present Conviction

On Monday night Sir Herbert chose as his topic "The Balance of Caudron of Central Europe." After giving a background of central Europe to-day, he explained that the conditions which now exist in the heart of Europe are due to that the discontent of the Austrians and Germans with the terms of the Treaty of Versailles and of Saint Germaine is one of the principal threats to the peace of the world.

Sir Herbert, in stating the possibilities of another World war, suggested that if Hitler should decide to lead an army down through the southern states in a war of liberation of the German peoples outside of Germany, Hungary would undoubtedly join him in order to liberate her lost empire. Austria, who is prevented from joining Germany in any way by the terms of her foreign loans, might, in such a case, throw in her support with Germany for the map of Europe. If this should happen, Sir Herbert predicts, the minorities in these states, would be helpless to prevent the change.

In convocation Tuesday Sir Herbert made an historical approach in answering the question "Why has German foreign movement necessarily means war. Starting with the year, 1919, he traced the development of the overloving Germany into a warthreatening nation carried out by Hitler, who began his rise to power in 1933.

How Hitler beat down all opposition to gain his place in the sun, Sir Herbert explained, by picturing the violent election campaign which threw him into power dictator. Furthermore, the speaker pointed out, Hitler has repudiated one by one the clauses of the Treaty of Versailles until to-day Germany stands free of the "shackles" of Versailles. A clash between Germany and the rest of Nations later came about over the disarmament question.

Despite the big army which Hitler is building up, Sir Herbert believes that Hitler is unlikely to use it. Moreover, the most hopeful thing to look for in the future of Great Britain to take full responsibility for the maintenance of the peace.

In the afternoon Sir Herbert lectured on the "British Foreign Policy," which he fondly dubbed "Mr. Baldwin's Dilemma." He explained that Britain's foreign policy, which depends on the political party in power, has fluctuated a great deal in the past few years. Since the formation of the League, the Covenant of the League was

Continued On Page Two

President

Sunday Vesper Service To Be Led By Visitor

Gainesville Presbyterian Minister to Speak To YWCA Group

The Young Women's Christian Association is planning to sponsor several speakers on the campus for its vesper programs for the rest of this year.

Rev. U. R. Gordon of the Presbyterian church in Gainesville will be the guest speaker for vespers Sunday night. Rev. Gordon graduated from Southwestern with an A.B. degree and holds a B.D. degree from the Presbyterian seminary in Louisville, Ky. He became pastor at Barnwell, Miss., in 1922. In 1927-28 Rev. Gordon held the position of associate pastor of the Second Presbyterian church in Memphis. Since 1928 he has been pastor of the First Presbyterian church in Gainesville where a large part of the congregation is made up of the University students and faculty. In 1930 the Alma Mater of the Publical seminary and Union Theological seminary in New York City conferred upon him the honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity.

This program is scheduled in the Lasata Conrad Little theater Sunday night at 7:30 o'clock. Special music will be given by the Y. W. C. A. choir.

Miss Mary Jane Willet, national secretary of Y. W. C. A. for this region, visited the campus Monday and met with the local executive council of Y. W. C. A. Miss Willet is on an extensive tour of colleges in Georgia, Florida, and Tennessee.

Speaking at vespers Sunday evening was Sara Rutledge who used as her topic "Self and Personality." A change has been made in the location of Wednesday morning worship services from Bryan atrium to the open air theater

On May 2 Rev. Albert Kissling of the Riverside Presbyterian church in Jacksonville will speak on the vesper program. Rev. Kissling conducted services for Religious Emphasis week on this campus two years ago.

Andrews Makes Report Of Study of Students' Grades and Schedules

In her report to the health committee Dr. Elizabeth Gordon of Florida State College for Women's convocation with the local team last Friday afternoon. While the debate is a return engagement for the debate held by the University last Friday night. Phil Asher and Mary Jeanne McKay will represent Florida State in the last debate at Gainesville. Emma Rankin Edwards and Peggy McMichael will participate for Florida State against the University of Miami team in the debate to be held Thursday night in the Auditorium. Coleman will meet this debate also the local team will have the affirmative.

During the first two weeks in May the colleges have invited Georgia State College for Women piece. On May 8 a team composed of Carl Golvin and Cary Wynn, who debated against William and Mary college earlier in the year, will go to the Georgia campus. The following Friday afternoon, May 14, Mary Noble and Mickey Conn will meet the Georgia team here. At this time the debate team, the president of the student body and the faculty debate will be the guests of the local debate group for the week-end.

Three Changes In Constitution Are Advocated

CGA Officials Consider Recently Suggested Impeachment Plan

OTHER CHANGES EXPECTED SOON

Extra - Curricular Group Offers Senate Point System Revision

Chief among the proposed constitutional changes that are before the College Government association now is the plan for proceedings for the impeachment and trial of officers of the College Government association. Other changes that are being considered concern the point system and off-campus houses.

This plan states that all officers elected at a general student body election shall be subject to impeachment and trial on the grounds of disloyalty, attitude, constant neglect of duty, marked inefficiency in the performance of the office, and disregard of any college government regulations.

Impeachment proceedings may be initiated by a petition of 25 members of the student body presented to the student senate which petition shall be acted upon within 48 hours after it is received. Trial for impeachment shall be held by the senate in place of members of the senate. Should the senate refuse to function a petition signed by one hundred members of the association shall make a trial mandatory.

The court trying the case shall consist of the chairman, ex officio of the appointed members of each of the judiciary and legislative branches of the lower court. The presiding officer shall be the chairman of the judiciary council when she shall be ineligible, in which case the presiding officer shall be the president of the College Government association. In case either is also, in the trial, shall be ineligible, the chairman shall be the next officer in authority in the association.

The trial shall be called by the presiding officer and shall be held within two weeks from date of the filing of the petition with the senate. The court shall be in continuous session during the trial. Decision shall be made by secret ballot. The decision shall be the penalty. If the penalty includes removal from office, the senate is empowered to make the necessary arrangements for filling the office either by a special student body or a senate election; the two methods are left open.

Continued On Page Two

U. of F. Team To Come Here

University of Miami Debaters Also Scheduled

Two debate teams composed of Florida State college students will clash with teams from the University of Florida and the University of Miami on this campus next week, debate coaches announced of whether congress should be empowered to fix minimum wages and maximum hours of industry.

The debate with the University of Florida will be held Wednesday's convocation with the local team taking the affirmative. This debate is a return engagement for the debate held by the University last Friday night. Phil Asher and Mary Jeanne McKay will represent Florida State in the last debate at Gainesville. Emma Rankin Edwards and Peggy McMichael will participate for Florida State against the University of Miami team in the debate to be held Thursday night in the Auditorium. Coleman will meet this debate also the local team will have the affirmative.

During the first two weeks in May the colleges have invited Georgia State College for Women piece. On May 8 a team composed of Carl Golvin and Cary Wynn, who debated against William and Mary college earlier in the year, will go to the Georgia campus. The following Friday afternoon, May 14, Mary Noble and Mickey Conn will meet the Georgia team here. At this time the debate team, the president of the student body and the faculty debate will be the guests of the local debate group for the week-end.

Church Groups Hold Retreat Over Week-end

28 Presbyterian Girls Attend Conference At Camp O'Lena

Twenty-eight students at Florida State college joined a group of students from the University of Florida for a Presbyterian retreat held last week-end at Camp O'Leno, located near Lake City. The time was devoted to programs, committee meetings, and entertainment.

The accomplishments of both Presbyterian leagues were outlined by Lillie McGuire and Richard Taylor during the Saturday program. The problems facing both organizations for the coming year were presented by Mariam Harrold and Tom Hammett, and talks on forward-looking objectives for both organizations were given by Mary Ensign and Lewis Coleman.

Four committees met Saturday night to discuss their designated topics: "Racial Problems," led by Mrs. Lester Geisler, "Peace," with Osborne McKay acting as chairman; "Student House Plans," under the direction of Dean Barry, and "Vacation Church Schools" and "Young Peoples' Synod Programs" supervised by Miss Anne Van Devanter, Orlando, director of religious education in the Southern Presbyterian churches.

A highlight of the Saturday afternoon program was a talk by Lester Geisler, of Palm Beach. The title of his talk was "Christian Home Relationships" Rev Edward Montgomery, brother of Miss Katherine Montgomery who is head of the physical educational department on this campus, gave an address early Saturday evening.

Those leading devotional services were Sara Hethcox, president of the Presbyterian student council on this campus; Osborne McKay, Adele Barnard and Miss Rachel Wylie, Presbyterian student secretary

The morning church service Sunday was conducted by Wilmer Bassett, outstanding Presbyterian worker on the Gainesville campus. William Matthews delivered a message on "Opening the Doors to Christian Living" Dean Barry led the singing Accompanying the local students were Miss Wylie and Dr E. N. Caldwell, Presbyterian pastor of Tallahassee.

Florida State students attending the retreat were: Sara Hethcox, Lillie McGuire, Mariam Harrold, Mary Ensign, Adele Barnard, Alma Lester, Lorraine Oyles, Kitty Kyle, Martha Moore, Lois Behrens, Eleanor Daniels, Harriet Duke, Frank Wildman, Serena Stockbridge, Mary Lou Duncan, Elizabeth Finch, Harriet Kent, Merrydey Rosser, Betty Bartholf, Grace McKee, Betty Lou Ingermann, Mary Neel, Mildred Hill, Anne Lois Moore Edna Warren, Dorothy Emerson, Kathryn Todd, and Sara Vance

Last night the members of the Presbyterian Student league heard Capt. Reginald Wallace, secretary of the Young Men's Christian association in Dublin, Ireland, talk in the local Presbyterian church on matters of interest to young people.

The Presbyterian Student league will hold no service this Sunday night in order that its members may hear Dr. U. S Gordon, pastor of the Presbyterian church in Gainesville, who will speak at the monthly Young Women's Christian association church service on this campus.

Sir Herbert Ames Speaks During Series

Continued From Page One

less binding and had less influence on the affairs of Europe. Under the Liberals' regime the League's influence increased, and member states tread softly lest they wake the British lion

According to the speaker, "Mr Baldwin's great dilemma" was getting England re-armed so that she could play full part in defense, and so that she might assume her share of world peace. The failure of the League in regard to the Italian expedition relieved Mr. Baldwin of any obligation to keep England's promise to the League. Therefore, she is arming to-day in hope of keeping peace.

Should war come, Sir Herbert is "confident that the American people will not be too tied up by legislation to see which is the aggressor and which is the victim of such a conflict"

Wednesday morning Sir Herbert reviewed his experiences as financial director of the League, giving both humorous and serious illustrations concerning the financing of the League during the seven years that he was a member. In a later lecture the speaker dealt with present-day economic problems

Budget Committee Requests Reports

The business managers and treasurers of all campus organizations must have their new budgets in to the budget committee by April 19 This is absolutely essential if the recommendations are to be considered by the committee.

Freshmen See Goals Gained By Contacts

Friendships Made Here Are of Much Value To Students

By BLANTON BARRETT

It's not so much the lessons you learn in college that count; it's the contacts you make. Ask any one. Even the dullest freshman knows it. Even the Phi Beta Kappa senior will admit the longevity of four-year long friendships. And who could be expected to remember that William the Conqueror invaded England in 1066, or that William Caxton was the first man to introduce the printing press into the country from which Europe is isolated, or vice-versa.

When a freshman comes to the college, it is true, she usually rooms with the girl she has "run around with" most at home. And when the puzzling problem of sororities arises, she pledges the one with the most home-town buddies in it. But she makes contacts. She can't help it. It isn't long before the president of the college government knows her by name. She meets people at the foreign language tables in the dining room if she is following the gleam room if she is following the gleam. She knows "everybody." Everybody, what's more, knows her.

Night after night there are "bull sessions." These aren't to be confused with the shallow affairs of high school days. These are attended by college women. They are for the discussion of serious matters And what, pray tell, is more serious than the qualities a girl would like to find in her future husband. That's a subject every girl ought to consider seriously And it is one which most girls do discuss with utmost gravity, marvelling that the men they picked three years before they started thinking thusly conform so thoroughly to the standards which they have set up. These sessions cement the friendships It's a good thing too, to know that the jeweler's daughter from Sopchoppy, and the clerk's child who hails from Miami are of the same mind. With such a diversified set of opinions one could hardly go wrong. Really, contacts are invaluable. If the parallel reading for the Latin-American history course goes un-read, if the lecturer speaks to a half-empty auditorium, still these fortunate collegians will have gained knowledge that will help them in years to come. They will know just how to choose a husband They will know just how their friends will choose a husband.

And when the freshman year is drawing to a close, what will be the advantages, the visible advantages, of their year of contacts? Well, then is when the "honoraries" tap. Thirty or forty freshmen will be publicly recognized They will be tapped for the honor council, which will give them the privileges of turning "closed" signs after first light flash, of checking roll in chapel, of performing any number of distinguished services for the Alma Mater. There's a lot of fun to it. They all say so. And they make more contacts than ever.

Other years are more or less a repetition. One meets the officers of the school, the editors of the school publications One sits at the table of the "b.w.o.c.'s" at dinner. The president of the college speaks to one. There is little time to study Professors realize that the college girls of today will be the leaders of tomorrow so they make exceptions of girls who are terribly busy with the management of the school

But contacts are not being forgotten. The school officers work together in perfect, or nearly perfect, harmony. They are learning to get along for the benefit of the tax payers They will carve great careers for themselves. They will be running the state soon, and running it efficient, for they have worked together before

In student forums each young lady is given opportunity to rise and express herself If she has nothing to express she rises and says so Kindred spirits can find each other without difficulty. One seldom has time to stay for after-lecture forums One's contacts do not, therefore, reach beyond campus confines. But one undoubtedly has them

Why, ask any alum who is happily married and living in a flat in the remotest part of the state. She will gladly tell you that college days were the happiest of her life, and that the friends she made there—why, she got seventy-three cards just from old college chums only last Christmas.

Classes Elect New Officers For Next Year

Pratt, Douglas, Robinson Will Be Presidents During '37 Term

Definite plans for next year began to hum in next year's senior, junior and sophomore classes last week as Kathryn Pratt, Frances Douglas, and Ina Margaret Robinson were elected presidents.

Other new officers of the senior class under Kathyn Pratt are: Vice-president, Sara Nance; secretary, Mary Nell Pinckard; treasurer, Elizabeth Pierce; representatives to senate, Kathleen Gruppe and Pearle Shepard; athletic manager, Felicia West, parliamentarian, Helen Daniels.

The junior class officers under Frances Douglas are: Vice-president, Mary Emily Parker; secretary, Mary Noble; treasurer, Florine Morris; representatives to senate, Irene Peck and Margaret Walcott, parliamentarian, Nell Colvin; athletic manger, Sarah Lytle.

Sophomore officers for next year under Ina Margaret Robinson are: Vice-president, Eleanor White; secretary, Bettie Young; treasurer, Marion Grinnelle; representatives, Marjorie Jessup and Frances Moss; parliamentarian, Riva Hemphill; athletic manager, Mary Collins.

Program Presented By Demonstration Pupils In College Gymnasium

Approximately 350 students took part in a demonstration school program of physical education activities given Wednesday night at the Florida State college gymnasium. The program in which pupils from the first to twelve grades took part was followed by a double header basketball game

All competitive events were staged by two teams of junior and high school pupils. The teams chose maroon and silver colors which corresponded to the odd and even colors of Florida State college. The events included: a spectacular entrance; folk and tap dancing; relays by both boys and girls; stunts; and girls' and boys' basketball games.

The first grade demonstrated such rhythmic activities as bouncing balls to music. The second grade performed interpretive rhythms; the third grade, singing games; the fourth, fifth, and sixth grade girls, folk dancing, stunts, and pyramid building.

Officials were Miss Katherine Montgomery and Miss Nellie Bond Dickinson of the college physical education department, and Mrs. Charles Stephens.

Plans are underway for making this program a weekly affair for the demonstration school corresponding to "Play Night" for the college students.

Conradi Talks Over National Radio Network

Continued from Page One

training in teaching, and of recreational facilities at the college

"A proper understanding of recreational facilities for young people is a fundamental principle of a good and successful home since such activities are an essential part of the life of children and of youth," he said.

President Conradi said also "there is a tendency to overemphasize the idea that students must learn to make a living in the sense of earning money . . . that, of course, is very important, but it is more important that they build that finer and larger and richer life which is the basis of successful living, and of course, of a successful home."

4-H Club Installs New Officers With Special Dinner Saturday Night

Following a special dinner in the dining room, the 4-H club installed its newly elected officers Saturday in the Broward club room in a ceremony with Miss Mary E. Keown, state home demonstration agent, as honor guest.

The president is Dot McCullough; first vice president, Lois Bahrens; second vice-president, Geraldine Meyers; secretary, Margaret Alford; assistant secretary, Thelma Ham; and treasurer, Jeanette Kish.

The club is planning an annual joint meeting with the Agricultural club from Gainesville at Camp Flastacowo on April 24.

U. of F. Debaters

The two debaters from the University of Florida who will meet Mary Jeanne McKay and Phil Asher Tuesday morning in convocation. At the left is Marshall Green and at the right is Neil McMullen.

Women Unjustly Accused Of Having Vanity Fault

Men Have Far Less Excuse to Gaze in Mirror and Linger In Process of Combing Hair Than Female Sex Has

By RUTH ATKINSON

It may be rather doubtful that women need any defense other than their own self-assurance and powers of persuasion, but, nevertheless, it seems to me that women have been unjustly accused for timeless ages of a fault which is considered typically feminine, and which is really a fault just as peculiar to the male sex and just as typical. This fault is the one of vanity, and as a direct result of that, an unnecessary amount of time spent in the dressing room, and especially before the mirror.

It seems to me that men have far less excuse for looking into mirrors than women have, anyway. Men always look so pleased when they're shaving because they can gaze into the mirror and admire their own lathery faces. They can see plenty of male beauty behind all that soap, too.

Now as for the matter of dress and personal decoration, there may be some excuse for women to linger in the process, but there is little excuses for the men. For example, consider the care of the hair. Women have a lot more of it than men, and consequently, a lot more to do in taking proper care of it. They must have it shampooed and set, rinsed to make it soft, trimmed to have it neat. Many women, too, have offered sleep as a sacrifice to the god of beauty when they took to screwing their hair up on curlers or bobby pins. The next monring it must be combed into a million curls, or if it is a long bob, it must be put up into one of a dozen kinds of knots All of this takes time, but what have men to offer a little hair cut and a lot of barber shop gossip on politics and the horse races. Men must wear their hair short and the only chance they have for any orginality is in their choice of where to part it, if they have any hair to part. Of course, a lot of men don't really have to worry about the outside of their heads at all except to keep them from getting sunburned.

As for the matter of dress, let us consider the art of tying ties and scarfs. Scarfs for the women have been much in vogue lately and their arrangement take a lot of time, and it is only natural that they should. There is a choice of many ways to tie a scarf. It may be tied in a bow at the neck, tied in a sailor's knot, looped in a half knot, or worn plain and untied Women must experiment to decide which method is most becoming to their outfit As for men, they can only tie a folding tie one way and be really correct, and the bow ties usually come already tied.

In care of the face, those of the stronger sex must shave every morning to remove the evidence of their strength, and use a shaving lotion and possibly a face powder. Women must use the contents of a dozen jars and tubes of things designed to make women beautiful. First, a layer of cold cream then Noxema, then a powder base, then powder, rouge and lipstick. If she believes in further beauty treatment, she pencils her eyebrows, and adds mascara to her eyelashes. No wonder they take time! It is true that if a man has a mustache, he has to care for it as carefully as a woman does her eyebrows. Her eyebrows must have just the right arch; his mustache must have just the right twist.

If men believe in care of the fingernails, it merely means that they spend a pleasant half hour letting a pretty girl hold their hand, but to a woman, the manicure is a serious business She must change the color polish to match her outfit these days, and her toenails must match, too, when they are seen through the straps of her evening sandals.

So we must conclude that the time men spend in dressing is really longer than necessary. Their sisters and mothers, wives and sweethearts, have been accused for ages of that same thing, and come to find out, we see that it's a wonder women ever get ready to go anywhere because of all the preparations they must make, while men, on the other hand, spend far too much time on their few necessary personal attentions. Perhaps they use the extra time they spend in looking for the proverbial collar button that men are supposedly always dropping in queer places.

Conradis to Entertain At Reception Opening Night Alumnae College

Florida State college faculty members, headed by Dr. Edward Conradi, president, will entertain graduates who come back for the Alumnae college April 16-18. The college president with his daughter, Miss Louise Conradi, will entertain at a reception on the college's opening night and various faculty members will have at homes for the alumnae the following afternoon.

Tours of the campus, swimming in the college pool and trips to the college pool and trips to the college camp at Lake Bradford, are among the college's social activities planned for the returning graduates. A dinner Saturday night, April 16 with the welcome from the college president and after-dinner coffee for faculty and alumnae at one of the college residence halls, are other social events planned. Alumnae who are members of Eta Sigma Phi, honorary classical sorority, or Mortar Heard, senior honorary society, will be entertained at a tea and breakfast also.

The Alumnae college, the first ever held at Florida State college and believed to be the first in Florida, will open at 2 o'clock Friday, April 16, with registrations and continue through Sunday morning, April 18, with a devotional service to which the public is invited Faculty members will speak on current topics and varied programs are planned for the occasion

Headquarters and place of residence will be at Bryan hall Alumnae will be guests of the college during their entire stay Reservations may be made by writing Miss Maud Flowers, care of Florida State college.

Alpha Chi Alphas Name Lockhart as President

New officers of Alpha Chi Alpha, honorary journalism society, were elected at their meeting Wednesday afternoon in the Pi Beta Phi house.

Arline Grey Lockhart was elected president; Pearle Shepard, vice-president; Lillie McGuire, secretary-treasurer, and Evelyn Fisher, contributor to "Al-Chi," the national publication.

Reservations Are Scheduled

Flowers Sets April 19 For Assigning New Term Rooms

Students wishing to make room reservations for the school year of 1937-38 are requested by Miss Maude Flowers, director of Residence Halls, to sign up for their rooms during the week of April 19-24

A deposit of ten dollars, which is required to have a room reserved, is to be paid in the Cashier's Office, and the student will be given a card to fill out to leave with Miss McNeill in the President's office.

All accounts must be paid up to date before reservations can be made, and no reservations will be held after June 1 unless all accounts for the second semester are paid.

Regulations as to choice of rooms are as follows: A room deposit of $10 must be paid and a room assignment card must be properly filled out and filed in the president's office before the assignment is made; only freshmen may room in Jennie Murphree hall and Reynolds hall, and only students above freshmen in rank can room in Broward hall, Bryan hall and Gilchrist hall; any student may retain her present room provided it is in Broward, Bryan or Gilchrist, but it must be listed as one of her choices; rooms reserved for C. O. A. officers may not be signed up for. Any student remaining in a room can choose another roommate if her present roommate does not return to that room, if her other choice is made promptly, and if the person selected has paid her fees and is entitled to a residence above freshman rank, students who will be seniors by fall are given first choice, juniors second, and sophomores third choice, but to take advantage of this ruling students must sign up and pay their ten dollars the week of April 19-24

New students must see Miss McNeill regarding room residence. If a student finds she will not return to school, she must notify Miss McNeill immediately to cancel her reservation in order that the room can be filled, and the money will be credited to her account.

Three Changes In Constitution Advocated

Continued From Page One

pendent on the importance of the office made vacant and the length of the unexpired term.

The trial shall be open to members of the student body and the faculty. An officer who is on trial shall be temporarily suspended from office

The presiding officer shall appoint a clerk of the court who shall present the indictment to the court, keep an exact record of the events, and report the case to the faculty committee on student affairs for its information. The dean of students shall furnish the material for any reports to be made public.

The extra-curricular committee of the senate, headed by Mervyn Everett, has submitted a revision of the point system of college government offices. The most significant of the changes is the reduction of the six-point offices which now include only: President of the College Government association, chairman of judiciary, editor of the Flambeau, editor of the Flastacowo, editor of the Distaff, freshman adviser (first sem.) and president of Y. W. C. A.

Other proposed changes include:

Article X, Section 1, page 59 last sentence changed to read. "The house chairman for each off-campus house shall be elected by the students resident in the house with the approval of the off-campus committee and subject to removal by that body if incompetent."

Article V, Section 2, page 59: Removal of this section to Standing Rules

Article X, Section 3, page 60—Change the election of vice-house chairman from the halls to the senate.

Article X Section 4, page 60—That portion of section 4 reading, "Who shall have supervision over their respective halls and are responsible to the chairman making the appointment" shall be put under standing rules.

Campus Dolls Form Display Of Art Group

Fierce Pirates Hob-Nob With Fainting Garbo In Exhibition

By RIVA HEMPHILL

There are dolls on campus—one hundred and thirty-seven of all descriptions in one room. These are the dolls made by the students in Industrial Arts 101, which were on exhibition this week in room 112 Education building.

A pirate stands fiercely on a table, his pistol in his belt, his crutch under his arm, and his parrot on his shoulder. Near him are two children, Jack and Jill. Uncle Tom leans comfortably against Martha Washington, while George is sprawled at her feet. Greta Garbo as Camille is fainting nearby.

On another table an ugly young Negro boy joins hands with Mickey Mouse who carries Orphan Annie on his head. A little queen with yellow hair, jewels, and a velvet dress rules over a swarthy Puritan gentleman, several Dutch maids, and a colored mammy doll.

A dark, angry Indian with long black hair, leather coat, and high feathers sits next to a tiny Japanese lady. Three Humpty-Dumpties gaze benignly over the room as Popeye and Olive Oyl seem to wave goodbye.

Flambeau Head Chooses Staff For Next Year

Continued From Page One

similies of "Harper's." The contributors to this magazine, edited by the toastmistress, Sarah Sealey, included: Hazel Bowman, retiring editor, who spoke on "Back to Work: When and Where?": Professor Vance, who discussed the ideal college paper and evaluated the Flambeau by this standard: Evelyn Fisher, whose soliloquy, "Conversations at Midnight," sketched the new editor choosing her staff; and Pearle Shepard, who wished the retiring members goodbye

The banquet was arranged by Martha J. Baker, this year's assistant editor. Helping her were Margaret Claire Lafferty, Ella Virginia Brooks, and Elizabeth Turner.

The guests at the Flambeau banquet included: Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Kellum, Mr. and Mrs. J. Kilgore, Dr. and Mrs. H. F. Richards, Dr. and Mrs. W. H. Rogers, Mr. and Mrs. John Tapers, and Professor and Mrs. E. L. Vance.

The staff members and reporters who attended were: Hazel Bowman, Martha J. Baker, Pearle Shepard, Evelyn Fisher, Evelyn Glazier, Virginia Early, Arline Grey Lockhart, Jane Quinn, Margaret Claire Lafferty, Minna Agress, Mary Lynn Massie, Ella Virginia Brooks, Elizabeth Turner, Hazel Adams, Ruth Atkinson, Dorothy Barclay, Blanton Barrett, Frances Brunson, Petrea Cacanis, Elizabeth Causey, Theressa Christel, Mary Coleman, Virginia Davis, Mary Gober, Mary Margaret Gourlie, Leona Howe, Lucy Kelly, Anne Ladd, Betty Leach, Martha Lumpkin, Mary Jeanne McKay, Alicia Meacham, Mary Noble, Alberta Patrick, Marion Purviance, Betty Spicer, Mary Sullivan, Alma Warren, Frances Waterhouse, Marguerite Brown, Sarah Sealey.

Summer School Session Dates Are Announced

Continued From Page One

summer to accommodate all women students. Bryan hall has been reserved for graduate and mature students and Broward and Gilchrist reserved for undergraduates.

The student body of the summer session, expected to range between 700 and 900, is governed by a chairman of chairmen, a chairman and vice chairman for each hall. This group is chosen as a result of consultation between the director of residence halls and the social directors who recommend five students to serve as nominating committee. The summer school council handles all offenses during the session.

DUKE UNIVERSITY
SCHOOL OF NURSING
DURHAM, N. C.

The Diploma of Graduate Nurse is awarded after three years and the Degree of Bachelor of Science in Nursing for two additional years of approved college work before or after this nursing course. The entrance requirements are intelligence, character and graduation from an acceptable high school; preference is given for one or more years of successful college work. The tuition is $100 per year which includes all cost of maintenance, uniforms, etc. Catalogues and application forms, which must be filed before August first for admission September thirtieth, may be obtained from the Dean.

Colvin Chosen NSFA Head At Forum Mee[ting]

Elect Wynn and Hemph[ill] As Representatives Of Their Classes

Nell Colvin was elected chai[r]man of the N. S. F. A. fo[r] ... Tuesday night in a meeting wh[ich] also featured a debate on co[m]pulsory convocation.

Assisting Nell, Betty Wynn w[ill] serve as junior representative a[nd] Reva Hemphill as sophomore re[p]resentative. The election of ... [sen]ior representative and progr[am] chairman was postponed until t[he] next meeting of the forum.

Considering the question ... continuing compulsory convo[ca]tion for this campus the affirma[]tive side of the argument was ... en by Margaret Ainsley and B... Mack while Frances Forth a[nd] Mary Ann Hill presented the n[eg]ative argument.

In the argument the affirma[]tive pointed out that convoca[tion] is the only way possible to br[ing] the student organization togeth[er] to settle college government a[f]fairs and to make important an[]nouncements. The negative cou[n]tered this argument by emphas[iz]ing the fact that speakers can ... give their best efforts to a ... interested group. Both s... pointed out the need for more ... teresting programs that w... produce a better spirit in the st[u]dent body towards convocation.

Following the debate an op[en] discussion was held and a v... taken to postpone further disc[us]sion and a define decision u[ntil] the next meeting. In the st... vote that was taken on the que[s]tion students favored the do[ing] away with compulsory convoca[]tion gradually.

Orchestra and Dancing Group to Entertai[n]

Continued from Page One

Brooks; violas: Katherine Ba... Evelyn Patterson and Betty Ba[r]tholf; violoncellos, Owen Sel... Gordon Epperson and Char... Veith; double bass, Jean Ke... and Alta Weahl; flutes, Merr... Rosser and Carl Hoffman; cla[ri]nets, Betsy Anderson, Dor... Sanford and Aleyne Clayto[n]; French horn, Margaret Tyler an[d] Edna Moon; trombone, Hazel Bo[w]man; trumpets, Mildred Hurst, I... Johnson and Sidney Moore, har[ps] Mary Reeder and Mary Ann Wa[l]ler; tympani, Louise D Johnso[n] and percussion, Evelyn Bayless an[d] Jessica Jane Mackey.

The dance forms will be inter[]preted by Betty Ostlund, Isabe[l] Sands, Viola Brooks, Felicia We[st], Janet Cook, Dulcie Cavagne... Ruth Prather, Beth Daane, Vi[r]ginia Allen, Male Anderson, Lou... Posgate, Julia Hodgson, Fran... Lamotte, Elva Melvin, Mary Lo[u] O'Haver and Betty Wynn.

Louise Bowery, Dee Carroll Vi[r]ginia Craig, Doris Fillingim, Do... Geiger, Hazel Hinsey, Mary E... Pemberton, Marcia Ranney, He... Hall, Mickey Conn, Bunney Lo[w]ery, Patty Hamilton, Patty B... ringer, Ruth Wilson, C... Blount, Mary Boatwright, ... Seekins and Marion Weeks

GELBERG'S
2-DAY
CLEARANCE
Early SPRING
DRESSES
Repriced for Quick
Close-Out
$4.88
Values to $7.95
$6.88
Values to $10.95
SAVE ON Washable
Cotton
FROCKS
$1.38
$1.95 Values
$1.88
Values to $2.95
SHOP EARLY!
THESE WILL GO FAST
GELBERG'S
"Complete Store For Ladies"
COLLEGE AVENUE

SPLENDID LUNCH
HALF A FRIED CHICKEN with FRENCH FRIES 50c
Western Steaks—Cooked to Your Taste!
SANDWICHES BEER

THE IDEAL GIFT ON MOTHER'S DAY
A Photograph By
PIKE'S STUDIO

Sports Squints

RUTH ATKINSON AND HAZEL ADAMS

The athletic board went "easy" on itself last night when they met their annual banquet at the Tea Kitchen. The new camp will be open till school now at this writing so plan on all camps and place cards.

Talk about the irony of fate myself, here a fish story that will take the heart out of any human. It seems that on my last week-end Vail Hunt the whole family and I had a nibble that turned to be a success, but then Ha-ha-ha and Tay Corey went out again and for the ride and a fish fell through in the shuffle—it is the luck of a fisherman.

That was the same week-end that scared Pepper Smith over the top and came back with the air all gone and big grins on his face. It must have been bad as they had expected

Hundred professors will be given their degrees this year by professors' wives, according to when they meet students on the net in the faculty-student-relationship next week. I'll get even a Ph. D. can remember the face of a professor.

Then, too, this tournament may be the answer to a man's prayer for a chance to that class-room technique I mentioned.

In this age of modern marvels one supposes we should be surprised at anything, but this idea is perplexing. Many learned men takes the cake, so far as the concerned engage colleges the country participating tournament and of competing with over while they're still in sport Boston, Mass., is to be the general gathering together the telegraphic results of the tournaments. That ought to be equivalent to the "shot was heard around the world."

It hasn't quite decided yet the hour of dinner a certain physics professor was obtaining in favor of the last week, so we know that he was leading a group of students a merry time at a roller skate hockey

[illegible] is removed that one of the [illegible] winners at the Florida Relays was either overcome with emotion or bursted of the back of an animal for he left he horse just as the ribbon had been presented.

"Everybody's trucking" including Dunsmore's tap class, note that explains together the the intricate art of shuffling, swaying, and foot-shuffling dominate has been doing for years.

Years of rivalry is evident between the Odds and Evens every year when the two get together to field when the teams get together to practice the favorite pastime.

Peek Captures Championship Of Horse Show

Top Division Composed Of Winners in Other Four Classes

With Anita Peek, freshman, taking first place in the championship rider class, the first annual horse show, to be staged by Florida State College for Women was held Saturday afternoon at the college stables with about seventy contestants took part.

The championship division, which Anita won, was composed of the winners of the other four classes. The first and second events, Katherine Bacon, Jane Jewett, and Anita Peek were the victors. In the advanced horsemanship class, Wither O'Brien, Sara Stanbaugh, and Edythe Stanley took top honors.

The show was conducted under the direction of Jane Jewett who was awarded a riding crop in appreciation of her work. Ribbons also, by special request, demonstrated different phases of skills on the horse, Tallahassee Girl.

Twenty-one prizes were donated for this contest by various merchants in the city. A M Middlebrooks and Moon Jewelry Company gave the first and second prizes shown by Anita Ribbons for first, second, and third place in each class were also donated by Mr. Middlebrooks.

Judges for the show were E A Gilbert, Dr J W DeMilly, Frank Hall, and Mrs. A M Middlebrooks. Mrs Middlebrooks was announcer for the show and the win silver was presented by

Morning Rush Becomes New Indoor Sport

Thrill Seekers Try Out Speed by Rising At Breakfast Bell

There must be something very fascinating about coming to breakfast. Judging from the crowds that were not, the greater part of the student body would not appear at the breakfast table at all, were it not for the cereal.

It must be the craving for cereal that makes the students get out of bed till the breakfast bell rings. Then, too, there is a fine chance and dash out, leaving the beds unmade and the room in wild disorder. Perhaps it is the fun of having to run all the way to the dining hall, then walk back to bed before the doors close.

Maybe it is flattering to the cook to appear at breakfast in a bedroom slippers or shoes slipped over the feet, and to see the horrifying scrolds and dirty finger nails of the girls who wait on table. It can it be the desire for recognition which causes so many students to appear at breakfast during the mornings? Or is it simply the love of cereal?

Perhaps it is an effort to keep warm that makes the students of the dormitories breakfast with coats slipped on over pajamas; on the other hand, it might be a desire to show an eternal desire to wear trousers.

There must be a certain charm about being able to say, "I always get up at eight-forty-five, and here I am."

Wilburn, Deetz Attend Association Meeting

Miss Emily F. Wilburn and Miss Bernice Deetz, representing the Industrial Arts department of Florida State College, participated in panel discussions of "Art in Industry" and "Art in Education" at the Southeastern Art association convention in Raleigh, N. C., April 4-10.

The sessions included addresses by Mr. Arthur Young, head of New College Fine Arts at Columbia university, on "Contemporary Aspects in Art Educational" and "The graphic expression of children and their relation to industry, trade and idealism," and were illustrated by lantern slides included Mexican, Mexico, arts and crafts.

The association has been invited to hold its next convention in Tampa, Florida.

Allen to Lead Forum

The Economic Changes Essential to a Just and Peaceful World Order," will be the topic of a discussion led by Virginia Allen at the Emergency Peace Campaign forum which is held in 304 History building from 5 to 6 o'clock on Monday afternoon.

WHY JUNIOR COLLEGE?

California's Two-Year Post-Graduate School of 1907 has Future as Democratization Process for American Education

By JOAN MILLER

More and more the junior college has been forging into prominence in the educational world, until now it is recognized as part of the traditional educational system of America. The whole American educational program is in the process of reorganization and into this program the junior college, which is the result of a great desire for democratization of educational opportunity, is gaining a definite place, and it is now seen as a necessary corrective for the overemphasis on the long established American system.

The pioneer work in the junior college field was made by the state of California. The first stage in the development of the junior college was called the permissive stage in 1907 when it was passed authorizing the high school board of trustees to prescribe for the graduate of the high school post graduate courses of study which were approximately the same courses which were prescribed for the first two years in the university. The following this period came the recognition stage.

In 1917 a law was passed which recognized the junior college as an integral part of the educational system of the state. Any high school which maintained certain amounts of assessed valuation of taxable property could establish a junior college department, whose standards were set up by the committee on relations of the University of California. Admission requirements, curricula, etc., were the same as for the University of California, the institution being required laboratory equipment, the number of volumes necessary in the library, the qualifications of instruments for faculty members, and so on to which the college was subjected to determined by this committee

This law was the affiliation stage. In 1921 a law was passed which gave the junior college the privilege of existing independently with a university. This law also provided that there be no junior college districts complying with its provisions. The last of the four periods of the development is that of assured permanence. The junior college of Vail marks the coming of the junior college complexity into its own. This institution is now definitely assured. The work of the lower school has been standardized to the point that pupils are ready for mature advanced courses when they reach the end of the eighth grade.

Therefore, I believe that it is a distinct economy of human time and effort to advance pupils into college classes as soon as they are ready. These opportunities are now provided in high school and should be continued in the work of the junior college, which, since it is a terminal institution of education, should be attached to the high school. The assigned lesson time means earlier entrance on advanced stages of study, and if a student is specializing in some particular field it means that he will be able to enter upon that work and this studying will be done in the most favorable years of his life.

The junior college has many varied purposes Dr. Henry Louis Smith has said, "What the American junior college is doing is to offer the critical and formative first years of training which, by common consent, are the most crucial and wholesale distinctions and dismissal by the faculty differ."

I think this situation can be remedied in a measure by the junior college which gives young people an opportunity to find themselves out. It provides more adequate means of dealing with the student as an individual in his intellectual life and of insuring the physical and mental health. It provides some common knowledge of certain fields of learning for all students as an indispensable foundation: it prepares the way for

National Honorary Adds Seven Members to Roll

In recognition of outstanding literary achievements, seven students were initiated into Chi Delta Phi, the national literary sorority, Tuesday afternoon at 5 o'clock.

The new members are Misses Mamie Milliken, Phil Asher, Marie Joffre, Evelyn Cooper, Mary Lou Hayes, Hazel Bowman and Mrs. Edna K Burbans.

The purpose of Chi Delta Phi is the recognition and improvement of literary talent and the rewarding of literary effort. Officers are Catharine Levy, president and Nettie Lamar, secretary-treasurer; Dr. Hazel Stevenson is the faculty adviser. Other members include Clotilde O'Rourke, Elisabeth Bockwell, Daisy Barker and Ermin Lawrence.

Six Are Initiated By F Club at Camp

As a climax to five weeks of goating, six F club initiates were initiated at Camp Flastacowo last Saturday night under the direction of Hazel Viertel president. Those initiated were Dorothy Meisner, Louise Rice, Sara Jane Stanbaugh, Lynn Thompson and Frances Fryer, and Ruth Wilson.

Cooking and good court occupied the afternoon preceding the initiation.

Tennis Teams To Begin Play Saturday

Faculty Invades Courts For Second Annual Tournament

Faculty members will shed their proverbial dignity and forget their years to engage in tennis when they pair up with their students in the second annual mixed doubles annual faculty-student tennis tournament.

Play in series for the tournament must be made before Monday, April 20, and the winners for the first matches will be made Actual play in the first round of the tournament will be held Tuesday or Wednesday.

Faculty members and their student partners who have already signed up include Dr. William Joubert and Ruth Rubin, Dr. C. P. Heinlein and Marjorie Horton, Dr. Wilbur Hunter Rogers and Evelyn Fisher, Miss Ray Fraser and Valerie Hunt, Miss Grace Peacock and Betty White, Miss Ruth Lehman and Amelia Purchase and Miss Elizabeth Lyn and Marie Joffre.

Capitol Visits Are Regulated

Special Provisions Made For Legislative And Social Events

Since the legislature has convened, many students will wish to attend. Miss Maude Plowden, dean of women, has announced certain rules which those wishing to attend the sessions of the legislature.

Students may attend the legislature and social functions, approved by the committee, with friend from home and also with young men under the regular date rules. Students may not cut classes or late permissions will be granted. Those wishing to attend the legislature

Students may attend the meetings of the legislature the following conditions which are submitted by committee: Students may go with one other student; students in receptions may attend without further chaperonage; students may be excused for legislative sips, students may attend receptions only when previously approved by the college, with a friend from home at the college or with a regular chaperone; freshmen may go to dinner or dance only when invited by or with legislators or mature people attend the dinner or dance and there are back on campus at 7:45 without counting it as one of their permissions; there will be no permission to visit over night in town except under the regulations to be given.

An exception will be made for the county banquets if they are given and if absolutely necessary, by permission given by the dean evening and it will not count as a town visit.

Announcements are to be made appropriate dress is necessary to the occasion, such as dress, hose, not socks, are to be worn and no sun back dresses can be worn.

is interested with high school. It is a distinct addition to the educational system of the curricula.

The curriculum of the junior college is still a debatable subject. The junior college has not been established long enough to find many results from the differentiated curricula given in the conventional practices of college courses are given throughout the first two years of college. The curriculum of the junior college is not yet definite. There is very little opposition to the idea of giving the first two years of college work the same degree of specialization in the later years of university work.

It is the purpose of the American people to develop through these educational systems young men and women able and willing to participate in the activities of life as most efficient citizens. The department of the educational system is the fundamental basis for this development is found in the junior college.

Junior colleges were first established as an attempt on the part of the people to provide useful training opportunities for all young persons who had the ability to benefit from these opportunities.

There are two main causes for the development of the junior college. The first one was the four-year church schools or private foundations which were inadequately equipped or unable to meet standard college requirements. The second cause was the publicly supported institutions which were overcrowded. From these two causes the junior college has evolved and is steadily advancing and developing. However, there is an obstacle to this development, and the real obstacle to junior college development and progress is not to be found in the lack of vision of educational leaders but in the lack of functions.

The junior colleges have been said to have four basic functions: "Preparatory" function, "popularizing" function, "terminal" function, and "guidance" function. The preparatory function is one of the same implies, the preparation for advanced or upper division work in the institutions of higher learning. It supplements the work of the high school in such a way as to prepare its students for the activities of life as well as for the upper division and the undergraduate professional schools.

The junior college performs its popularizing function by removing artificial barriers between the high school and the university. This law also provided that there be no junior college districts complying with its provisions. The last of the four periods of the development is that of assured permanence. The junior college of Vail marks the coming of the junior college complexity into its own. This institution is now definitely assured. The work of the lower school has been standardized to the point that pupils are ready for mature advanced courses when they reach the end of the eighth grade.

Therefore, I believe that it is a distinct economy of human time and effort to advance pupils into college classes as soon as they are ready. These opportunities are now provided in high school and should be continued in the work of the junior college, which, since it is a terminal institution of education, should be attached to the high school. The assigned lesson time means earlier entrance on advanced stages of study, and if a student is specializing in some particular field it means that he will be able to enter upon that work and this studying will be done in the most favorable years of his life.

The junior college has many varied purposes Dr. Henry Louis Smith has said, "What the American junior college is doing is to offer the critical and formative first years of training which, by common consent, are the most crucial and wholesale distinctions and dismissal by the faculty differ."

I think this situation can be remedied in a measure by the junior college which gives young people an opportunity to find themselves out. It provides more adequate means of dealing with the student as an individual in his intellectual life and of insuring the physical and mental health. It provides some common knowledge of certain fields of learning for all students as an indispensable foundation: it prepares the way for

Tennis Practices For Odd-Even Games Well Begun Leaders Report

Odd and Even tennis practices are now in full swing, according to the leaders of each.

Evelyn Fisher, leader of the Even, stated that they are daily practicing for the team are still stressing the forehand drive in the game. Those on the Even side practice on Monday and Wednesday at 4:30 and on Saturday at 3:30

Students practicing for the Odd team are to sign in the tennis book at the lower gymnasium's office and practice for an extra half-hour. The regular practice hours for the Odd team are on Tuesday, Thursday and Friday at 4:30 o'clock. The leader of the Odd team is Valerie Hunt.

Even practicing are Marjorie Horton, Dorothy Sanford, Evelyn Fisher, Nan Clark, Marcia Richter, Martha Robbins, Juanita Purchase, Marie Joffre, Connie Ash, and Yvonne Marchbroun.

The Odds include Ruth Rubin, Irene Braverman, Fay Covey, Valerie Hunt, Jean Nash, Valerie Hunt, an, Nancy Williamson.

Worst Kind Of Roommate Thinks Everything Hers

Well-Intending Parasite Not Only Bothers One With Borrowing Clothes But Also By Monopolizing Joint Books

By MARY NOBLE

"There are good roommates and bad roommates, but the worst of these is the one whose motto is 'what's mine is mine, and what's hers is mine, too.'"

Loving with a theory like that is no fun. You get up on a bright spring morning planning to wear your new blouse, but when you come back from the laundry crisp and starched, only to find your roommate fully dressed—in your blouse, dress.

"You don't mind if I wear this today, do you?" she asks sweetly. "It's really so becoming. I'll only be tights for your anyway."

Maybe it isn't a dress. Maybe it's just a belt or scarf, or your last clean handkerchief that your pal has walked off with. Or you've just come back from a date with your best beau and display a new hat. She tries it on before telling her opinion.

"I like it," she says in that "I'll-let-you-keep-it tone. "Mind if I wear it on the campus Friday night?" and she takes it for granted that the permission has been given.

Clothes aren't the only things over which this apparently well-intending parasite exercises her proprietary rights. Ownership of a book Roommate starts out the library habit.

"You don't mind waiting until after light-flash when I get back, do you?" She concludes. "I have to get my beauty sleep tonight."

Then she settles down peacefully and can easily picture it work on a fountain pen. Or that psychology notes in pencil because your pen is busy writing letters.

You get chummy with a girl down the hall, and before you realize it, the girl down the hall is asking for your roommate instead of you. Your roommate is cool. That's the effect of this "what's hers is mine, too" idea. It's selfishness.

"Since you're just a sophomore, do you mind if I ask Ted to the prom? I wrote him last night."

The damage is already done. There goes your best boy friend, and probably also your best dress.

She uses your kleenex, washes clothes with your soap, gargles with your Listerine, writes letters on your stationery, and rolls up her hair with your bobby pins. You get a box from home. You hardly get a good look at it.

"I'll be so glad that they sent stuffed dates. I just love them," and down goes another box.

And so it goes day in and day out. It never seems to enter the heads of these friendly leeches that they are being obnoxious. Instead they cleverly to justify their actions. Nevertheless, something must be done to rid us of them. Is there no answers to this description? Try taming this monster. Kill her if the spirit won't be tamed, she'll probably move out.

Call to Dance Finds Student Willing, Ready

Even Disillusioned Ones Cannot Resist Idea Of Crashing It

Eight o'clock. Footsteps sounded, the clicking of high heels resounded in the corridor. Laughter floated through the air. Voices, shrill, high ones, mingled with deep, husky, masculine ones.

Hearing these sounds from her room on the fifth floor of the dormitory, Jeanne could stand it no longer. She threw her book down as she was studying, pushed back her chair, stood up, and hurriedly left her quiet roommate. "I'm going to that dance!" Panhellenic ball is the biggest affair of the year, and I'm not missing it just because I didn't make my sorority or wouldn't be initiated."

Four hours later Jeanne looked at her watch. She had been at the dance. She had slipped in the side door, and by walking a little, no one had ever knew she had crashed a dance. Now she was back in her room, sitting at her desk. All the lights were out except a table lamp which looked at her sleeping roommate and envied her. Roommates were funny. She threw her head back and that crashing dances wasn't all it was cracked up to be after all. She had had a good time, she didn't mind saying so, but she couldn't honestly say she had had a good time. She knew there all thought it over.

Apparently it was fun—Everybody joking and laughing, balloons, punch, and dancing, of course. But was it worth the price? Nothing was real; it was all put on. The jokes were stale, and why couldn't Billy learn a new one?—and the laughter was insincere. Just the idea of balloons sial and intellectual contacts of students who live together.

Thus with the junior college as a capstone of secondary education, the way will be open for experts to include in the curricula of the junior college those courses that are needed in order to achieve the civic as well as the cultural aims of our public school system.

Even with its failings the junior college is now become a definite permanent fixture, an established fact, fully accepted, and destined to develop rapidly and vigorously. In 1930 there were almost five hundred junior colleges in the United States, of which 30 were public schools. The vast majority of these institutions are coeducational; however, in the South and some other sections junior colleges there are almost four times as many for women as for men.

A movement, which has developed from almost nothing to one that numbers institutions by the hundreds, has by the term of thousands properly valued at over a hundred million dollars, is one sending thousands of graduates into advanced work in universities, one, moreover, authorized in the fundamental law of over one-third of the states and recognized in many more, is hard to characterize as a fad which will soon die out. The junior college is here to stay.

Eighth Annual Archery Meet Will Be Held

Telegraphic Tournament Will Include Many Women's Colleges

Plans are being made by the physical education department of Florida State College for Women for entrance in the eighth annual national women's inter-collegiate telegraphic archery tournament. All colleges having women students are invited to participate in this tournament which will be held during the period between April 22 and April 22, or May 13 and May 20, according to the schedule of each college.

The tournament which is under the supervision of the national Archery association, will be conducted by districts as well as national rounds. The state is composed of eight undergraduate women's colleges which will be run in round, or twenty-four arrows at each of the following distances: 60 yards, 50 yards and thirty yards. Regulation forthright-style targets are being used with regulation scoring and tournament rules. A gold will be given to the contestant and a certificate giving the score of each member of the team and to each competitor who makes score of the highest.

The results of each meet are to be telegraphed to Miss Ruth Bell of Baker, Mass., by noon of April 30 or of May 31, according to the date of the tournament. The entrance fee of $1 will be collected from each member of each team in the tournament and the proceeds will go toward expenses involved in conducting the match

Miss Betty Washburn is in charge of the meet as intercollegiate Florida State College for Women.

Love is Elected Next Head of Day Students

The Day Students' Organization elected new officers in their meet at their meeting Wednesday morning. Mattie Lou Love was elected president, with Mary Eva Parker, vice-president. Ann Moon, secretary-treasurer. Bera Back in her room, Jeanne looked at Belamy, senate representative. Meta Holley, social chairman. Emma Bradford social chairman. Mavis McMillan, religious chairman.

The new officers assumed their duties immediately after the election held in 203 Administration building.

Jewitt Named Chairman For Sophomore Council

Jane Jewitt was elected chairman of the new sophomore council group in a meeting in Broward lounge Wednesday night. Elections serve with her for the coming year are: Marjorie Raider, vice-chairman, Ruth Dunsmore, Midge Marwick, treasurer, and Lelia Iverson, parliamentarian.

The new council will officially take over the duties of the old sophomore council at their first meeting in the C. O. A. room.

---

was childish and wrong, they were all bursted within ten minutes.

That punch—what was wrong with it? That fourth glass of punch that Jeanne had had. Probably put too much water in it trying to make it go further. Girl break dances—how exasperating! Jeanne had been looking forward coming up just as you've located the boy you've been looking for all evening, and then go grabbing you by the hand and dragging off some one else. Yes, I met him all right—him and his two friends. Ugh! Make my feet still hurt Someone actually came to rescue and broke after about an hour.

After looking for Ed for an hour, finally found him and broke. But before taking two steps some one else had asked him, and that was an end to that. By the time I looked around he was once more lost in the mob. And the main reason I wanted to go was the first place was to dance with him.

Guess I had better go to bed tonight! Into the room Gee, you look peaceful sleeping there, Jessie. I hear merry dance tunes. Consider yourself lucky! Well, I'll never crash another dance

SPECIAL
Three Bags of Pop Corn 10c
Double Dock Ice Cream Cone 5c
CANDIES
NIK-NAK
201 West College Avenue

The Florida Flambeau

EDITORIAL STAFF

HAZEL BOWMAN — Editor
ELEANOR WILLIAMS — Associate Editor
MARTHA BAKER — Assistant Editor
PEARLE SHEPARD — Managing Editor
EVELYN FISHER — News Editor

Member: National Scholastic Press association and Florida Intercollegiate Press association

DEPARTMENTS

Art, Evelyn Glazier. Exchanges, Virginia Early; Features, Arline Grey Lockhart and Jane Quinn, Literary, Sarah Beth Davis and Sarah Sealey. Outside News, Clotilde O'Rourke, Society Margaret Claire Lafferty and Minna Agree Assistant. Special Reporting Arline Lockhart Mary Lynn Massie. Sports Ella Virginia Brooks and Elizabeth Turner

REPORTERS. Hazel Adams Ruth Atkinson Dorothy Barclay Blanton Barrett Dorothy Bellamy Frances Brunson Cetrea Cabaniss Elizabeth Causey Theresa Christel Glenn Coarsey Honor Coleman Virginia Davis Hazel Donnegan Maxine Fussie Mary Gober Margaret Gourlie Leona Howe Betty Lou Ingermann Lucy Kelly Ann Ladd Betty Leach Martha Lumpkin Anne Lyddane Mary Jeanne McKay Alicia Meacham Mary Noble Alberta Patrick Janet Pierce Marion Purviance Nancy Rogero Jane Sharon Lavine Spaulding Elizabeth Spicer, Mary Sullivan Alma Warren Frances Waterhouse

BUSINESS STAFF

LILLIE McGUIRE — Business Manager
MARY SULLIVAN — Advertising Manager
MARGUERITE BROWN — Circulation Mgr

Represented for National Advertising by
NATIONAL ADVERTISING SERVICE INC.
College Publishers Representative
420 Madison Ave New York N Y
Chicago - Boston - San Francisco - Los Angeles
Portland - Seattle

Entered as second class mail matter January 30 1915, at the post office at Tallahassee Fla under act of Congress of March 3 1879

Light Shed On Point System

To light has come the work of one of those silent, but efficient commitees on campus, the extra-curricular committee which has prepared a reorganized schedule of the point system. The merit of this work is not whether this changed point system is the best, but rather its merit lies in the fact that something is being done in a field which has needed a lot of revamping.

In the first place, the point system hasn't been consistently enforced. There are of course the exceptions who have been denied the chance to do extra work, work that perhaps the individual could well have handled, but on the other hand there are innumerable cases of the over-worked campus leader who in an effort to give her best to her position has slighted herself in so doing, physically, mentally and most of all academically. That the point system is being aired should affirm to the determination that this system will be enforced effectively.

The committee was quite businesslike in its method of reorganization. First of all it made a catalogue of all the extra-curricular organizations. Then instead of attempting to pitch in and make any changes in the present set-up of the point system the members of the committees began a program of intensive interviewing. Each of the campus organizations were contacted. In most cases the president or chairman after careful consideration gave an evaluation of the work entailed in each position, under her. With this information as the starting point the committee then set to work to build up a point system.

Believing that a better system could be managed with six as the maximum number of points, instead of five, the list of officers was shifted and changed, until the finished product looks quite workable. With the increase to the maximum points a finer distinction between offices has been given and it is the opinion of a number of people that gradually this maximum will be increased in order to allow students an opportunity to participate in more organizations. As soon as it has been found that the duties entailed in chairmanships or minor organization offices are not as confining as first thought the way will be laid open to enlarge the system more and more. A better discrimination between various offices, it is felt, will result as the point system is expanded.

However the system may be changed from time to time there will probably be little change in the top ranking offices. Those students who have held the seven offices which now come under the six-point category think that justice cannot be done by the student to more than this one position. Several officers which were once included in the upper bracket were struck off leaving now only the president of C. G. A., chairman of judiciary, freshman adviser, president of Y. W. C. A. and the three publication editors. The other offices are arranged proportionately down the list, a copy of which is posted on the C. G. A. bulletin board. This revision of the point system will be voted upon at next Tuesday convocation. Before that time interested students should consult the bulletin board, especially those who are being elected to office or who are being considered.

A point system seems mechanical and it is such. Its one great drawback is that it is no respector of personalities. The student who has a capacity for work is hampered by a numerical restriction. There is no way, through a rigid point system, that a discrimination may be made between individuals, their capacity for work and responsibility. Only through ever widening of the limits of the points can the exceptional person be allowed any freedom. However, the good derived from a rigidly enforced point system overbalances to a great extent these discrepiciences. The almost 100 offices, as listed, can be scattered over a large number of people, an asset always to a campus which has a large student body.

Another shortcoming of the point system is that it cannot or does not take into consideration the work given by students to church organizations or any extra-curricular activities for which academic credit such as the Glee club and orchestra participation may be given. From observation it has been found that the work demanded from these groups is often greater than that from the average campus organization.

Where there has been careless enforcement of the extra-curricular point system, there has been a rigid enforcement of the work point system, on the other hand. Nowhere has there been any discrimination or leniency. Those who work, regardless of their ability to lead in campus activities are confined to a strict work point system. This is undoubtedly the only way that students, as a whole, can be allowed to work and at the same time do justice to their education, but at the same time it would seem that rigidity of enforcement of one point system would call for a like enforcement of the other. Otherwise it would seem that those who are forced to work are being discriminated against.

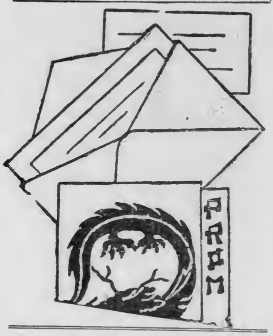
It is to be hoped then that with the introduction of the new point system will come a plan of enforcement. For without an adherence to this system the whole benefit of the extra-curricular committee's work will be lost.

The Flambeau In Preview and Review

The Flambeau of April 16 will be of double importance to old staff members who leave their official capacity as editors this week for it will represent not only their final word as college journalists but their final word to the students of the Florida State College for Women.

Several weeks ago the idea of a national peace day as suggested by Mary Jeanne McKay became one of the campus events scheduled for April. The Flambeau was asked to participate by putting out a special peace day edition. Thus it happens that the final work of the old staff will materialize in the form of a campus-wide journalistic project with non-Flambeau people as well as staff members taking part.

Newspaper policy is not always as evident to readers as it might be if those readers persisted in a consistent reading policy. It is therefore to readers who have not been able to discover any 1936-1937 Flambeau policy that we address this article.



Throughout the present year it has been our aim to interpret the Florida State College for Women to a large number of students and faculty members and to the readers represented by subscription and exchanges lists which take the paper into nearly every state in the union. But as we tackled the job of making the campus live in print we tried also to better campus spirit by pointing as objectively as is human to student government changes which would make for a more wholesome, more beautiful campus atmosphere.

We have concentrated our editorial energies upon the student body rather than upon the faculty committees which adjudge student affairs. In short we have tried to devote ourselves to a program of revaluation of student needs and purposes with a view to producing more harmonious living.

It is with untold gratification, therefore, that we as a staff are able to produce next week our final effort along the line of campus cooperation. In choosing those who would contribute articles for the peace edition we tried to represent all student groups. In addition we invited all Florida editors to attempt for us a written interpretation of their campuses.

Naturally our scope is narrow from the cooperative standpoint since only the subject of national and international prides and prejudices will be discussed. But we feel justified in believing that only through similar programs of cooperation will the campus grow and that only in tending to those points in our educational system which need revamping can Florida State college build in the minds of its graduates a proper appreciation of its resources.

Spirit of the Week . . . . By Glazier

This Week — War Abroad, Peace Here Corner World Interest

Twenty years ago this week the United States entered the World War to make an eternal peace. Tuesday, Mussolini gave the boiling cauldron of the Spanish situation a tip which may cover Europe and the world with the white-hot lava of another conflict. Following the publication of a list of 'flagrant violations of Spanish neutrality accord" by France and other European powers in Gironale D'Italia, Il Duce's mouthpiece, the Fascist leader threatened to plunge whole-heartedly into the civil war on the side of the insurgents.

In the meantime, the insurgent government with an amazing lack of tact and discretion, twice bombed a clearly marked English warship, thereby arousing a definitely personal antagonism in the one country which has been making a valiant effort to remain neutral. France has also promised action in plenty if insurgent attacks on her shipping are not stopped immediately, and the Netherlands have taken the precaution of moving many national destroyers to the vicinity for protection of merchant marine.

* * *

Nearer home in interest, for the moment at least, is the opening of the legislative session. The election of D. Stuart Gillis as president of the Senate, and of William McL. Christie as speaker of the House, were attended by many students of the college. Cone's assertion that the governmental activities of the state, the public schools, and the social security program can be financed without either raising old taxes or levying new ones met with considerable doubt on the part of legislators. Both senators and representatives seem to fear lest the "expense cutting" campaign on which the governor has publically embarked shall seriously impair efficiency of operation in state departments.

* * *

Very personal interest will be awakened on the campus when the cattle-free highways bill, destined to be among the first introduced, apepars before the legislative body

* * *

A Washington hearing which may decide the fate of the trans-Florida canal project is being held today by the Rivers and Harbors committee of the House. Called by Rep. J. J. Mansfield of Texas, the meeting will be the battle ground for pros and cons. Both will, according to Mansfield, have a chance to present all pertinent material in order that some conclusion may be reached.

* * *

Farmers of the stricken 'Everglades vegetagle bowl" area, who last week lost a bean and tomato crop valued at $3.000.000 in a rain and hail storm, have determined to ask no direct aid from the American Red Cross, although it is estimated that 1,500 families of the district will require relief this summer.

Since such aid would encourage thousands of transients to stop in for hand-outs, the people of the district have determined to band together in taking care of those who need immediate attention and to preed with WPA projects of the district.

* * *

The Senate of the United

Continued on Page Six

Lucrezia Visits Heaven

Model Convocations Displayed to Little Girl Saturday In Extraordinary Visit to Upper Spheres

By ARLINE GRAY LOCKHART

The sound of voices, laughter and the treading feet of students pouring through the wide doors echoed along the walls of the auditorium. It was eleven-thirty, Tuesday morning—convocation time. Lucrezia rather sleepily threaded her way among the groups blocking the aisles to her designated seat Occasionally some of the confused noise about her clarified into fragments of conversation.

"Do y' suppose there's a chance of getting out of here early today?"

"I dunno. What are we having on the program?"

"I dunno. I brought my French book."

Farther down the aisle a girl was saying. "—and it was the most gosh-awful test I ever had."

"Did you know Mary's date can't come to the Prom?"

'To bad Where's Jean? I've got to find her before she makes that announcement. The time for the meeting has been changed to five-thirty Thursday"

Across a dozen rows of seats someone shrieked. "Sue, did you bring the candy?"

Lucrezia sank wearily into convocation seat 10, Row D, center section and watched a tall girl check her name in a neat little notebook. In convocation seat 11 Cronie One looked up smiling.

"I'm writing to Joe This is the only time I have to do it."

Lucrezia smiled too, but she was thinking darkly of the Shakespeare paper she had to write. The hub-bub subsided as the organ swelled into the strains of "Our Alma Mater" Lucrezia stood respectfully with the rest of the student body as the black-robed seniors filed into their places.

Five minutes for that little performance, then the girl behind the rostrum announced that the hymn to be sung this morning was "Lead Kindly Light" Only a few students made an effort to sing it. Lucrezia glanced two rows over at Cronie Four who was engrossed in a book which was not a hymnal but her political science text Frowning, Lucrezia eyed the other students. The majority of these eager alert faces had become a study in boredom, restlessness and indifference.

Seated on the stage, Lucrezia saw two students and a small nondescript looking woman wearing spectacles.

"Who's Mrs. Spectacles?" whispered Lucrezia to Cronie One

'That is our speaker today. She's the president of the Federated Ladies' society and she's going to tell us about the early cultural life of the American Indians."

The music flowed to a stop and the resounding clatter came when some two thousand students had managed to sit down in their respective places. The girl behind the rostrum inclining her head toward the loud-speaker began to read the scripture. Lucrezia became preoccupied with a shaft of sunlight which danced playfully on her face. To escape it she leaned her head on her hands and closed her eyes. Now in that Shakespeare paper, Lucrezia thought I might say—but the tones of the girl behind the rostrum droned distractingly into her ears:

"When I was a child, I spoke as a child. I understood as a child: but when I became a man, I put away childish things"

At what age does one become a man or a woman and put away childish things. Lucrezia asked herself. Am I considered a woman or a child when I am compelled to attend convocation every week? Or does a woman have the power of discriminating between things which are worthwhile or not for her?

The slender shaft of sunbeams blased and

Continued on Page Five

Collegiate Comebacks

The end of this journalistic year having arrived and the new staff having been appointed, we've been called upon, battle-scarred and weary but still kicking, to mumble a few last words. We're not going softie, either! Anything we've ever said still goes. We just hope you'll give us a chance to rest up before calling us to the mat about it. Too, when we think of that gentle and innocent (we could go a step farther with this, but we won't) soul who is taking up our duties for next year, we could weep, if it didn't make the mascara run. Our only advice to her is that it's important to hear all, see all, and TELL all; if you aren't sure about the facts, tell something You're sure to get the truth then: that is, if your feeble constitution can stand it.

From the Tech-O-Gram we give you a foreshadowing of our own big weekend event. You know, the one at which we have men, the prom.

* * *

Half an inch, half an inch, half an inch onward.
Into the seething mass danced the six hundred.
Couples to the right of them, couples to tha left of them
All over their insteps stumbled and blundered.
Theirs not to halt or fly, theirs but to dance or die.
Theirs not to reason why, but gosh! how we've wondered.

* * *

In the Student Printz, we read that red seeds plucked from the pods of the bixa orellana bush serve many coeds at the University of Hawaii for lipstick. Known as the "lipstick bush," it is quite common and widely scattered throughout the islands. Wait a minute, girls. It's useless for you to write Hawaii. We've already inquired, and the bush won't grow here. You'll have to get some other excuses for the boy-friend's appearance than that he ran into a bixa orellana.

* * *

Looking through an exchange, we see that since a careless bird caused a $2,500 fire at the Delta house at Western Reserve University by building its nest too near the chimney, members have been waiting with shotguns for its return. Oh, but, sirs, have a heart; maybe the little bird doesn't want to get married.

* * *

Also from the Student Printz we learn that by betting on horses, a professor at an English university is trying to show his pupils the folly of gambling. If they were American students, we'd be pretty certain that they'd recognize the fact that they were getting a class in pulling the wool over somebody's eyes by a dumb professor, but being English—well, why go on?

* * *

Philosophically the Chat points out a great truth:
Kings and queens are great and strong,
Earls and lords are powerful, still,
But laying jacks and jokes aside—
There's nothing potent as a pill.

* * *

A coed arts sophomore, at the University of Minnesota, according to the Brown and White, earns her school expenses by reading palms at local hotels. Ummm . . . That gives us ideas. We've always craved an opportunity to hold hands with some of the big men in town and still retain Em Post's approval.

* * *

In the Davidsonian we read where any kind of lice one would shun can be found in the "lousiest place in the world," the museum of natural history at Stanford University, which houses the 220 different species in the collection of a biologist. May we suggest that you don't have to go that far to find such shunned insects? Witness the prof who gave a sleepy class an exam the morning following said sleepy students' return from Easter holidays.

* * *

The Kentucky Kernel expounds a theory that's not too new but still interesting:

Once upon a time
Wimmen wore bustles gentlemen were chivalrous ladies were ignorant and a kiss meant marriage . . .
Once upon a time
you came to college to get An education.

* * *

Best advice of the season, from the Campus Chat: Respect age—especially when it's bottled.

* * *

In leave-taking we urge the observance of the very generous prom rules in order that those coming after us may be so treated. Or maybe you'd prefer an Uncle Wiggly story.

Magazine Jottings

BY SARAH SEALEY and SARAH BETH DAVIS

Syphilis: Mrs. Grundy's Disease

By Anthony M. Turane

One out of every ten people in America to- day, according to Mr. Turane's article in the April American Mercury, is probably infected with syphilis.

At present 683,000 cases of syphilis are con- stantly under treatment, and 423,000 new ... arrive each year. But since only a fraction of the infections are receiving medical care, the total number is unknown. The generally ac- cepted estimate is that there are at least ... 000.000 syphilitics now among us. That the number of syphilitics is increasing is indicat- ed by the fact that the number of people who sought treatment in New York City in the first half of 1936 was 95 per cent higher than dur- ing the same period in 1935. In short ... Mr. Turano, the complete syphilization of ... Republic is a definite possibility during the ... few years.

As a source of chronic suffering, syphilis ... responsible for such pitiful conditions as ... motor-ataxia, many cases of blindness ... more than ten per cent of all forms of insan- ity. It stimulates arthritis, nephritis, and ... other serious afflictions of the nervous ... mentary, and circulatory systems. The ... number of fatalities due to syphilis is ma... times greater than the number ascribed to ... because doctors commonly attribute their pa- tients' deaths to more "respectable ailments."

The general scientific verdict is that if ... sufferers were given adequate treatment ... ing the early stages 86 per cent would be ... cured. A positive diagnosis can readily be ma... at any time by use of the Wassermann ... and an infected person's condition can be ma... non-communicable within twenty-four to ... enty hours.—S. D.

* * *

Is the World Going Mad?

By Farnsworth Crowder

One of the most charming predictions ma... today by social prophets is that if the pres... rate of increase holds, the population of ... civilized world will some day be insane

To support this prophesy, alarmists point ... that in Canada mental cases are increas... four times as fast as the general populat... that one half of the million beds in Americ... hospitals are occupied by mental cases. ... while the national population during the ... half century has doubled, the mental hosp... population has jumped to nine-fold.

"One way to increase a disease is to di... cover it," says Farnsworth Crowder in ... month's Survey Graphic. He points out ... all of us are somewhat like restless balloons an- chored toa base of sanity; and whether or ... we are shipped loose and go floating off ... clouds of lunacy depends on a variety of cir- cumstances over which we have only lim... control. It may be then that we are not be- coming alarmingly abnormal, probably we ha... always been so. What we are doing is find... it out.

Our statistics are not only very recent, ... are fragmentary. We have no way of know- ing how normal, poised, and serene the hum... soul was in other civilizations.

Mr. Crowder believes that a mental illness ... usually a slow-growing, cumulative, even ab... ing, tendence: its roots may strike back to ... fancy, or back, through the germ plasm, to an- cestors now dust. Insanity belongs to man, ... the human race, not simply to certain period... and civilizations.—S. D.

* * *

"The Causes of the Coming War"

By Emil Ludwig

The main cause of the coming war Emil Ludwig believes to be inevitable is the will ... power, the German determination to redeem its national prestige by the sword.

The German character is particularly suited for war, Mr. Ludwig explains in the current issue of Forum. They, the most militaristic ... people, are at the same time the most obedient and the only ones who seek revenge. Therefore in order to completely arouse this warlike peo- ple, a race theory was introduced that aims to reveal the Germans as the noblest of peo- ples and demands the unification of all Ger- manic stocks under the leadership of German...

The French and British, by their passive re- actions to the German threat, contribute to the inevitability of the coming war. When the French, desiring peace, allowed Hitler's occu- pation of the Rhineland, the German confidence in their own ability to conquer mounted higher. England postponing her rearmament after the World war, recognized too late the Ger- man will to fight Because the British prepara- tion for a new conflict will not possibly be com- plete before 1936 the Germans are hastening their push toward war.

Ludwig concludes: "War is coming because the Germans have not yet fulfilled their ... and because they are strong enough—or at least because they find others weak enough. It ... coming because they have fused their brutal impulsive force with the war philosophy of fascism, because they have given their cold or- ganizational set-up a mystic background, be- cause they obediently march forward to the triumphal procession of the Germanic race"

The only person whom Ludwig believes might prevent the war is Roosevelt, but he would have to be backed up by the American people who might not understand the situation.

The Social Week

Annual Junior-Senior Prom Will Climax Gala Week-end

The most formal occasion of the year, the Junior-Senior Prom, will be held tomorrow night in the gold ballroom room from 8 to 12 o'clock Mary Miller and Milton Sperry, presidents of the junior and junior classes respectively, are co-chairmen of the event.

Others making arrangements for the dance are Betty Hammond, refreshments; Marjorie Tulle, program; Janet Cook decorations, and Ruth Sanders' committee. Decorations will remain a secret until the prom.

The entertainment program includes a novelty tap by Janet Sawyer, a dance composed of Peter Gourlie, Frances Moss and Janet Masters, accompanied by Winifred Ewart, and a jazz drama made up of Becky Ashworth, Sawyer, Miss Gourlie, Betty Cashen and Peggy Meredith.

As a part of the week-end festivities, the inspirational tea-dance for juniors and seniors and their guests will be held in the college auditorium from 4 to 5 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. The auditorium will be set for both the prom and the tea-dance.

There will be no intermission for the Prom and no student will be allowed to leave the dance until it is ready to go straight to the place of residence, according to announcement from the dean's office.

Members of these classes and for date who will attend are as follows: Mercedes Garriga, Jimmy Brooks; Mary Miller, Alva Butler, Robert Sperry; Cary Engstrom, Raymond Jacoby; Rosetta Williams, Lamb Knight; Jane Dowdell, Charles Hobbs; Katherine Bodein, John Roseburgh; Virginia Bridges, Wilbur Hamilton; Robinson, Madison Smith; Nicola Bridges, Charles Mayo; Marie Ginn, Ralph Wilson; Olive Dane, Jim Spencer; Nancy Pruitt, Ewart Johnson; Marian Leary, Marshall Anderson; Marie Wynn, John DeMilly; Ann Hill, Mitchell Scally; Mary Ann Hamilton, Clarice Sanchez; Frank Hendrick; Mary Lee Hopkins, Tommy Carter; Ann Venn, Bob Johnson; Pat Hamilton, Robert James; Virginia Hamilton, Bob Mickler; Jane Wood, Charles Sharp; Barbara Beall, Clarence Parrish; Lillian Burford, Stanley Fowler; Margaret, Reedy Johnson; Margaret Schmid, Ernest Edwards; Martha Wright, Jack Cobb; Mary Elizabeth Thomas Lawson, Marjorie Bowden, Sam Warren; Nellie Ham, T. Sloan Guy; Barbara Curry, Sloton Underhill; Ann Ham Hopkins, Jimmy Rogers; Helen Godwin, Clayton Johnson; Ruth Hamilton, Hugh Paul; Betsy Anderson, Godfrey Rhodes; Annie Turner, John Walker; Mary Jane Gallsmore, John Causey; Elsie Kersey, Bob Lee; Nellie Hall, Harold Bryan; Elizabeth Meigs, Bruce Bowden; Mary Walker Wilson, Marranna Swank, Jay Pratt; Beverly Horn, Harvey McKeithen; Mary Ann Simmons, Mary Jetton, Gene Hamilton; Rosalie Hall, Barbara Barbara Womack, Joe Hunter; Annette Brewer, Carl Causey; Julia Cole, Jamie Dorothy McCullough, Jack Hamilton; Sara Hall, Ben Lee Bynion; Alma Lester, Hicks; Betty Ann Graham, Jack Wallace Mary Dickinson, Davis Ruth Margaret James, Gene Hamilton; Sara Hall, Ben Lee Bynion; Alma Lester, Hicks; Betty Ann Graham, Jack Wallace Mary Dickinson, Davis Ruth Margaret James, Gene Hamilton; Anne Hall, Merritt Knabb; Mary Kathryn Scott, Sandy Isabel Hall, Jack Stambaugh; Anne Pendleton Curtis; Alberta Pat Dr. J. V. Giddens; Marjorie Charles Walker; Mary Ann Boyd, Bob Hendrickson; Nancy Sumner, Ben Hill; Mary Elizabeth Crockett, Frederick Johnston; Virginia Brooks, Bob Brooks; Helen Randall, Alvin Patterson; Sara Barrow, Ben Bruce Nunum, Ed Brubaker; Martha Lester, Creel Nuckolls; Betty Ellen Gibson, Morris Desmaan; Marian Hall, Jim Bell; Grace Hall, J. A. Barrineau; Elsie Billy Moeller; Rita Sue Walker Wallace; Betty Evelyn Braxman; Hazel Bowden, Jack Markwardt; Evelyn Walker Harder; Evelyn Roser Snow; Martha Ellsworth Brown; Mary Bess Daniel; Pearle Shepherd Lee Sowell; Mary Lou Wood, McQuire Mary Ellen Sol Johnson; Pearl Smith, Carl Lauffer; Mae Whitten, Dorothy Bellamy, Mirabb Love; Mary Voss, Louis Mallie Lou Love, Jim Rickenbacker; Virginia Schreiber, Charles Mabry; Mary Brisman, David Lewis; Mary Elizabeth Hall, Jean Willis, Willard Fontaine; Virginia Duke, Vincent Mary Loper, Willard Fouke; Elizabeth Flocks, Charlie Gamma, Anne Jane McCrea, Phillip Arey; Maxine Ward, Joe O'Brien; Ruth Garcia, Lamar Hicks, Ruth Holman, Burrell Hancock; Ruth Hall, Carl Lauffer; Louielle Ball, Nathan Allen; Margaret Smedley, Howard Taylor; Lorine Lewis, Harry Bennett; Edith Adkinson, Howard Lee McQuagge.

Marguerite Browne, Oglesby Browne; Mildred White, Ernest Hodnette; Frances Dean, Jean Vincent Stewart; Marjorie Cox, Bill Harper; Jay Carter, Harry Knight; Ruth Hollis, Orville Tvochon; Elizabeth Touchton, W. B. Rowell, Jr., Sylvia Pegg, Dr. William Kupper; Ruth Bradwell, Grady Palmer; Minna Agress, Dr. Natha Blass; Ida Pearl Miller, Joe Cobb, Margaret Wiggins, John Cherry; Winnie Morrell, Peter Daniels; Ann Hanson, Bob Hendrickson; Mary Ann Moore, Phillip Stone; Elizabeth Lewis, Charles Lester Jr.; Margaret Holloway, Robert Pudrell; Evelyn Hendrickson, Marshick; Annie Connell, Ed Williams; Tennie Tomkins, Bill Bernard; Margaret Perry, Bennett Frances Ellis, Heywood Ellis; Mary Hutchinson, Grady Palmer; Eunice Moe, Curtis Bowman, Mary Elizabeth Hall, Bernard Mallard; Ralph McKinnon, Gladys Keen, Mac Keen; Betty Hamilton, Bill Hamilton; Mary Lewis, Lewis; Kathryn Pratt, Paul Bowden; Mary Ann Brown, Jackie Treada, Jack Hallinger; Sally Antony, Mozo Kelly, Billy Hall; Virginia Lee Wood, Virginia Peyton, Bill Roberts.

Mary Ann Hall, Oscar Davis; Mary Jeanne McKay, Robert Hamilton; Mary Elizabeth Lewis; Eileen Robinson, Pete Murphy; Marjorie Robinson, Johnson; Mickey Conn, Bert Krentzman; Betty Gelland, Grant Gelland; Mary Ann Hamilton, Lewis; Kathryn Pratt, Paul Bowden; Mary Ann Brown, Jackie Treada, Jack Hallinger; Sally Antony, Mozo Kelly, Billy Hall; Virginia Lee Wood, Virginia Peyton, Bill Roberts.

Mary Jeanne McKay, Robert Hamilton; Mary Elizabeth Lewis; Eileen Robinson, Pete Murphy; Marjorie Robinson, Johnson; Mickey Conn, Bert Krentzman; Betty Gelland, Grant Gelland; Mary Ann Hamilton, Lewis; Kathryn Pratt, Paul Bowden; Mary Ann Brown, Jackie Treada, Jack Hallinger; Sally Antony, Mozo Kelly, Billy Hall; Virginia Lee Wood, Virginia Peyton, Bill Roberts.

The new officers of Chi Omega installed following the business meeting were: Jean Lykes, president; Sara Carter, first vice-president; Betty Harrison, secretary; Jane Cralley, treasurer; Mary Phillips Chalker, editor; Betty Mackey, historian; Mary Owen, house chairman.

Miss Ruth Bowden installed the following officers Monday night: Betty Bary, president; Sarah Chandler, vice-president; Ruth captain; Jane Button, recording secretary; Betty McMillan, corresponding secretary, and Frances Hobbs, treasurer.

Engagements of Two Students Announced

Announcement of the engagement of Gayle Gallwright to Whitney Bell, Jr., was made Sunday at Mrs. Wrastham Edwin Gathright on March 21. Gayle is a freshman, and is a member of the Alpha Delta Pi sorority. The wedding will take place in the Methodist Memorial Presbyterian church of Clearwater in June.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Skinner, Sr., of Jacksonville, announce the marriage of their daughter, Betty, to Rev. John Turner last Saturday. Mrs. Turner will be an event of June in Jacksonville. Betty is a sophomore and a member of the Delta Delta Delta sorority.

Personals

Professor Charles Tilden, professor of road engineering at Yale University, visited Walter Rud Cowles, college faculty member and his graduate, here recently.

Dean Ella Scobbs Opperman of the School of Music was a guest of the Delta chapter of Theta Sigma Phi at Chicago University recently. She went to Bloomington, Ind., and spent a day in the north to visit her sister.

Miss Eula Ley of Tampa, who was a freshman here last semester, is spending the week-end at 315 Bee St. Phi Omega.

Miss Bertha Veith of Jacksonville, is spending the week-end with her sister, Christine Veith, at Alpha Chi Omega house.

Residence hall proctors, house chairmen, and fire lieutenants were entertained by Miss Lois Wimberley, social director, in Byran, with after-dinner coffee in Leonard club room Wednesday night.

Installation Held By Four Sororities

At the weekly chapter meeting of the Phi Mu sorority March 23, the following officers for the coming year were elected: Barbara Hendry, president; Gertrude Hamilton, vice-president; Lillian Lukens, secretary; and Katherine Bodein, treasurer.

Alpha Delta Pi officers installed in chapter meeting Monday night are: Lucy Cobb Lamar, president; Jean Faulin, vice president; Leone Thornton, secretary; Mary Hall Harris, treasurer; Mary Elizabeth Dougherty, rush captain; and Nancy Kemp, editor.

The new officers of Chi Omega installed following the business meeting were: Jean Lykes, president; Sara Carter, first vice-president; Betty Harrison, secretary; Jane Cralley, treasurer; Mary Phillips Chalker, editor; Betty Mackey, historian; Mary Owen, house chairman.

Miss Ruth Bowden installed the following officers Monday night: Betty Bary, president; Sarah Chandler, vice-president; Ruth captain; Jane Button, recording secretary; Betty McMillan, corresponding secretary, and Frances Hobbs, treasurer.

FOURTEEN SORORITIES TO ENTERTAIN WITH INFORMAL PARTIES THIS WEEKEND

Tea dances, buffet suppers, breakfasts, after dinner coffees and a surfing party are among the affairs being given by sororities on campus this week-end honoring pledges, actives and their dates and escorts.

Alpha Delta Pi supperclassmen will be honored at a tea-dance from 4:30 to 6 this afternoon. Tomorrow afternoon in the sorority house followed by a dinner at the Dutch Kitchen. Wednesday night will be in a color scheme of the sorority colors, blue and white, with a low bowl of red roses being used effectively.

Alpha Chi Omega members and pledges will entertain at a tea-dance and buffet supper tomorrow afternoon and evening. The house will be decorated with arrangements of spring flowers.

Alpha Gamma Delta juniors and seniors will entertain with a tea-dance at a buffet supper tomorrow night. The dining table will be covered with a lace cloth and decorated with a low bowl of red roses. Lighted candles will be placed on either end of the buffet.

A tea-dance will be given at the Alpha Omicron Pi house from 2 to 5 o'clock tomorrow afternoon for juniors, seniors, their dates and Cardinal and white, the sorority colors, will be used in the decorations.

At the Alpha Xi Delta house tomorrow night a buffet supper will be given during the afternoon tomorrow.

Beta Phi Alpha junior and senior members will entertain their dates at a tea-dance in the sorority house from 4 to 6 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. The sorority colors will be carried out and will be used in the decorations.

A waffle breakfast will be given in the Beta Sigma Theta house Sunday morning for supperclassmen and their escorts. An informal open house will be given by the sorority members tomorrow afternoon.

A tea-dance will be given from 4 to 6 tomorrow afternoon in the Phi Mu house. Attractive floral white decorations will be used.

Beta Phi juniors and seniors will entertain their prom escorts at a tea-dance tomorrow at the house tomorrow night preceding the prom. Spring flowers will be used in decorations.

A luncheon will be given at a noon tomorrow in the Sigma Kappa house. Freshmen and sophomore members and pledges will serve supperclassmen members and their dates.

From 2 to 4o'clock tomorrow afternoon the Theta Upsilon members will entertain with an informal open house. A buffet supper will be served at 6 in the house for upperclassmen and their escorts.

Beta Tau Alpha members will entertain in the sorority house tonight with a taffy pull.

Lucrezia Visits Heaven

Continued from Page Four

filled the whole auditorium, blinding the eyes of Cardinal and Duke, and every thing was blotted out by the flash.

"Lucrezia, Lucrezia." A clear strong voice pounded in her ears.

"You are to come immediately to the house of the Lord." Lucrezia rose college to attend the student convention on convocations.

She stumbled and fell up and in no time at all reached the gates of heaven. She was greeted at the door by a benevolent Saint Peter.

"Isn't it a bit unusual to allow women in heaven?" Lucrezia asked him.

Saint Peter nodded. "But," he explained," the President of Heaven has just finished a convocation which made him feel unusually magnanimous. He had been informed that there was considerable difficulty in interesting students in convocations and that the deans were being held on the question of whether convocation should be compulsory or not. He has decided on you blundering mortals and has given you free will to be shown some light. This way please."

Lucrezia was led into a long hall where other student delegates were sitting in conference. She

"You're rather late s a i d Saint Peter, "but be patient, your turn will come presently." He left her.

"We're waiting to see the President," the delegate next to Lucrezia informed her. "He is interviewing each one of us to find out our point of convocation problems."

Maybe she reminds me of college except for the gold chairs and thick carpet," Lucrezia muttered.

Finally the door opened and Lucrezia stood before the President. Her knees shook and her heart pounded as she was announced. She decided this must be due to the extraordinarily smooth running of Heaven's administrative system. Ushered by a small page Lucrezia took a chair and sat down portals into the President's chamber. She was struck at once by the polite the door and ranged around him were the angelic Executive Council and a secretary imposing in their white robes.

"Lucrezia, how do the students of your college feel about convocation?" the President asked.

"They are evidently dividing into two camps." Lucrezia gulped for composure. "One group believes that the present convocation it undemocratic and an insult to the intelligence of college students and thereby fosters an attitude of indifference. The other group contends that if convocation were not compulsory only a few students would attend and that it is essential for all to come because , because it is good for them."

"Shadow," the President said, beckoning to the dark figure that had led to Lucrezia like the shadow of Peter Pan, "Shadow, show Lucrezia our model systems."

Lucrezia followed the Shadow to the front of the room. Shadow pressed a button and the lights went out. Then there was a whirring sound and Lucrezia walked down a long shining white corridor to the auditorium. There three oddly shaped pieces of apparatus and machinery filled the front of the stage. Shadow informed her that these were the latest wireless and electric inventions. "Here," he said, pointing to the first piece of apparatus, "is College Model A. Convocation, as you see on it, has been abolished there."

"Abolished?" Lucrezia stammered, "Do they have a democratic form of student government?"

Shadow wore a sheet of a smile. "Yes. Whenever the students have a student body meeting for the purpose of elections one is called and it is compulsory. The same rule holds for any special meeting, such as to hear some famous visitor speak. Such meetings are not frequent and they have found by experience that the students do not mind attending."

"But what about announcements?" Lucrezia asked.

"Those are usually made through the medium of the bulletin posted on the student government bulletin board. Such announcements are published in the college newspaper calendar, under the student activities, or notices of their meetings to the individuals concerned."

Lucrezia took some way of arousing an interest among students. "Why," she asked, "should not be compelled to attend. Don't regular convocations develop a civic spirit of unity that is needed in a large college?" queried Lucrezia.

"Look here." Shadow twirled a dial on the glass disc. Lucrezia looked and saw engravings.

"That is Model B. Student assemblies are held once every week and attendance is taken by them." Shadow explained. "In this college they have mixed something pertinent to their education with entertainment programs."

"How, how is their interest stimulated?" Lucrezia was breathless.

"In the first place, these assemblies are held in the convocation hours. The term has a connotation of a compulsory nature to the council. There is not singing of hymns or reading of scriptures. Programs are varied. The reason for this is that different religious groups are represented in the college, and no student must be allowed to feel that the college is trying to impress him with a particular religion."

Surely the spiritual side of life is important to the student?" Lucrezia asked in surprise.

"The church organizations and Y. W. C. A. on the campus take care of that. They look after chapel and sometimes disagreeable to bring religion into a public meeting. Such is not the purpose."

"How else do you get the students to the assemblies?"

"By advertising the varied programs for a part of the solution. The remainder is always rendered by a talented student or faculty member or the college glee club. The programs for the year are chosen for their ability to appeal to the interest of the whole knowledge of the subject. They are elected from among the student body, citizens in town, figures of state or national repute. Programs are chosen from local, state or national questions are given. Sometimes the program is entirely to student affairs and open discussion on open discussion on the problems of the college. Prizes are used to create the speaking spirit. Sometimes prizes are awarded for the greatest part of the auditorium."

"Do the students actually participate in the open forum discussions?" Lucrezia was wide-eyed.

"Of course. The program each hour is highly advertised so that everyone knows what is to be given in particular as campus matters students come prepared to share in the discussions. No announcements are ever made that do not concern the entire student body or campus. Everyone must attend. The result is that a student feels an assembly meeting is the most worthwhile and enjoyable way she or he can spend that hour."

Lucrezia said, "But this is Heaven. We don't have to—"

The shaft of sunlight shifted and Lucrezia found herself thoroughly shaken by the shoulders.

"Lucrezia, wake up. Lucrezia! Lucrezia!"

"Of course. The program each hour is highly advertised so that everyone knows what is to be given in particular as campus matters students come prepared to share in the discussions. No announcements are ever made that do not concern the entire student body or campus. Everyone must attend. The result is that a student feels an assembly meeting is the most worthwhile and enjoyable way she or he can spend that hour."

Lucrezia said, "But this is Heaven. We don't have to—"

The shaft of sunlight shifted and Lucrezia found herself thoroughly shaken by the shoulders.

"For Heaven's sake, wake up, Lucrezia! Lucrezia! Lucrezia!"

Lucrezia sat up. "I was dreaming," she said, and the loan may be made in the full amounts or in smaller units such as might be necessary in summer school work. Application for the loan is available to any graduate of Florida State College who has done at least two years of her work on the campus. Further information will be furnished by Dr. Sherron request.

THIS WEEK'S CALENDAR

Friday

University of Florida Symphony orchestra concert in college auditorium, 8 p. m.

Saturday

Tea-dance in gym for juniors and seniors, 4:30 p. m.

Junior-senior prom, college dining hall, 8 p. m.

Sunday

Y. W. C. A. Vesper service, Augusta Conradi little theater, 5:30.

Monday

Emergency Service Symphon. 304 history building, 8 p. m.

W. P. A. orchestra concert in college auditorium, 8 p. m.

Tuesday

Debate with University of Florida, convocation, 11:30 p. m.

College orchestra concert combined with dancing group, auditorium, 8 p. m.

Debate with University of Miami, Augusta Conradi theater, 7:45 p. m. ed, "Do they have a democratic form of student government?"

Shadow wore a sheet of a smile. "Yes. Whenever the students have a student body meeting for the purpose of elections one is called and it is compulsory. The same rule holds for any special meeting, such as to hear some famous visitor speak. Such meetings are not frequent and they have found by experience that the students do not mind attending."

"But what about announcements?" Lucrezia asked.

"Those are usually made through the medium of the bulletin posted on the student government bulletin board. Such announcements are published in the college newspaper calendar, under the student activities, or notices of their meetings to the individuals concerned."

Lucrezia took some way of arousing an interest among students. "Why," she asked, "should not be compelled to attend. Don't regular convocations develop a civic spirit of unity that is needed in a large college?" queried Lucrezia.

"Look here." Shadow twirled a dial on the glass disc. Lucrezia looked and saw engravings.

"That is Model B. Student assemblies are held once every week and attendance is taken by them." Shadow explained. "In this college they have mixed something pertinent to their education with entertainment programs."

"How, how is their interest stimulated?" Lucrezia was breathless.

"In the first place, these assemblies are held in the convocation hours. The term has a connotation of a compulsory nature to the council. There is not singing of hymns or reading of scriptures. Programs are varied. The reason for this is that different religious groups are represented in the college, and no student must be allowed to feel that the college is trying to impress him with a particular religion."

Surely the spiritual side of life is important to the student?" Lucrezia asked in surprise.

"The church organizations and Y. W. C. A. on the campus take care of that. They look after chapel and sometimes disagreeable to bring religion into a public meeting. Such is not the purpose."

"How else do you get the students to the assemblies?"

"By advertising the varied programs for a part of the solution. The remainder is always rendered by a talented student or faculty member or the college glee club. The programs for the year are chosen for their ability to appeal to the interest of the whole knowledge of the subject. They are elected from among the student body, citizens in town, figures of state or national repute. Programs are chosen from local, state or national questions are given. Sometimes the program is entirely to student affairs and open discussion on open discussion on the problems of the college. Prizes are used to create the speaking spirit. Sometimes prizes are awarded for the greatest part of the auditorium."

"Do the students actually participate in the open forum discussions?" Lucrezia was wide-eyed.

"Of course. The program each hour is highly advertised so that everyone knows what is to be given in particular as campus matters students come prepared to share in the discussions. No announcements are ever made that do not concern the entire student body or campus. Everyone must attend. The result is that a student feels an assembly meeting is the most worthwhile and enjoyable way she or he can spend that hour."

Lucrezia said, "But this is Heaven. We don't have to—"

The shaft of sunlight shifted and Lucrezia found herself thoroughly shaken by the shoulders.

"For Heaven's sake, wake up, Lucrezia! Lucrezia! Lucrezia!"

Lucrezia sat up. "I was dreaming," she said, and the loan may be made in the full amounts or in smaller units such as might be necessary in summer school work. Application for the loan is available to any graduate of Florida State College who has done at least two years of her work on the campus. Further information will be furnished by Dr. Sherron on request.

Dow and Murphy Give Musical Program For Recent AAUW Meeting

Miss Margaret Whitney Dow, organist and director of music at Rollins college, violinist, presented a musical program at the March 23 meeting of the meeting of the American Association of University Women.

The program began with a group of organ numbers played by Miss Dow: "Fugue in G Minor" by Bach; "Sonata in A Minor" by Guilmant; "Pastorale" by Franck; "Prelude" by Lawrence, K. Bradley; Frances Morrow, Joe Williams, Lee Wood, Virginia Dale Zimmerman; Jean Clark, Mary Swaggart, Dean Dasher, Van York; Alicia Meacham, Kenneth Titus Frances Lingle, John Durso; Dorothy Borden, H. E. Goodwin; Marian Heper, Bill Lowery, Anna Glenn, Henry White.

Betty Parker, Skeets Gallager, Dorothy Atkinson, Robert Stripling, Virginia Shultz, Francis Williams; Marjorie Smith, G. L. Patton; Dorothy Kamuya, Frank Following the musical program which was open to the public, a social hour and business meeting was held by the members of this organization.

Nautical Theme Used At Athletic Banquet

The Athletic board held its annual banquet last night at the Dutch Kitchen, with Beth Deane, president of the Athletic association, presiding as toastmistress.

The nautical theme was carried out in the table decorations with a miniature sailboat filled with flowers as the centerpiece and snapshots of the new camp sailboat on the menus and place cards.

Viola Brooks, incoming president of the board, made four accomplance speech, and Miss Kathleen Mansfield, head of the physical education department, gave a short talk. Keys were presented to the board members.

The program consisted of a sailor hornpipe dance by Janet Lockwood, and a medley of sea songs by Betty Cleland, Janet Cook, and Sarah Neilson, aKthleen Cruppe was the accompanist.

Faculty members present were Miss Nelle-Bond Dickinson, Miss Ruth Lehmann.

Board Members attending were Beth Deane Mary Ellen Horton, Sarah Lyle, Marion Weeks, Janet Cook, Frances Thull, Sarah Heth, Mary Ann Hamilton, Mary Lou Sarah Jane Stanbaugh, Hazel Viertel, and Evelyn Pabst.

Application Time For AAUW Graduate Funds Extended to April 27

Time for making application for the graduate loan fund provided by the Tallahassee branch of the American Association of University Women has been extended to April 27, Dr. Venila Shores has announced.

The $800 now available may be borrowed in either large or small units according to the need. The full amount will be permitted on a three-year note. The fund was should be used ins full year of study in a graduate school. However, it may be awarded in smaller units on eighteen month notes beginning the second year of enrollment for work during, a summer session. Any graduate of the Florida State College for Women who did at least two years of her undergraduate work in the college is eligible to apply for the loan.

Those attending the meeting were: Mr. and Mrs. Joe Henry and son, Dr. Andrie Pepper, Dr. Kathryn Abbey, Dr. Venila Shores, Mrs. Shores, Miss Florence Tryon Andenda entertained in honor of Miss Enslen, Mary Emily Parker, Daisy Parker, Anna Marie Mitchell, Roslyn Bowden, Anna Lester, Florence Cameron

New Leaders Selected For Three Sports By Athletic Board Group

At the last meeting of the athletic board, March 24, new leaders for tennis, swimming, and baseball were appointed.

The leaders are as follows: Evelyn Hendrickson, tennis; Assistant Dorothy Colburn; Even baseball, Mamsey Moore; Odd—Jimmie Palmer; Even swimming, Yvonne Whitaker; Odd—Jimmie Lou Betty White. Installation of the new officers will take place Tuesday night.

Members of the board attending the last meeting were: president, Viola Brooks; secretary, Marion Weeks; secretary-treasurer, Marjorie Horton, Sarah Lytle Marion Weeks Winona Ireland, Viola Brooks, Dot Marwick, Sara Jane Stanbaugh, Esther Pabst, Valerie Hunt, Sara Heithcox, Janet Cook, Hazel Viertel, and Frances Thull.

Time Extension Given Applicants for Loan

Florida State College graduates, who are in financial need because of the use of the $800 graduate loan fund established by the Tallahassee chapter of the American Association of University Women have been granted an extension of time announced Dr. Venila Shores, associate professor of history at the state college who is loan fund chairman.

The time is extended to April 27th, she said, and the loan may be made in the full amount or in smaller units such as might be necessary in summer school work. Application for the loan is available to any graduate of Florida State College who has done at least two years of her work on the campus. Further information will be furnished by Dr. Sherron on request.

Students Take Festival Part

Musical Event Scheduled For This Afternoon In DeFuniak

A group of students from the folk dancing classes under the direction of Miss Eunice Hurd will participate in the W.P.A. Music Festival at De Funiak Springs today.

They will present a group of dances consisting of three Morris dances: Rags O'Marlow, Bean Setting and Laudnum Bateshaw; two American dances: Chase the Squirrel and Soldiers' Joy; and a Scotch Dance, Dumbli dance.

Besides three representatives from Florida State College for Women, the University of Florida is contributing its band for the occasion.

Those students from the college who will take part in the dance groups are Laura Doub, Aysaine Kennedy, Betty Reel, Dorothy Green, Mildred Arnold, Evelyn Hammond, Mary Nickol, Louie Pittsrirrd, Mary Anna, Sarah Martin, Edwin Gis Jordan, Marjorie Pirate, Marion Lewis, Marion Leslie, Marion Weeks, Beth Deane, Dot Molnar, Margaret Lanier, Peggy West, Mary Shepherd, Mary Stevenson and Elisabeth Drake

Ensign Elected Head Of History Honorary Succeeding Mitchell

At a recent meeting of Phi Alpha Theta, history honorary, held at the home of Miss Frances Tryon, Mary Margaret Ensign was elected president of the honorary and Mary Emily Parker as secretary. Other officers elected will take the place of Anna Marie Mitchell and Daisy Parker, the retiring president and secretary and treasurer, respectively.

Plans for the next meeting, Mrs. Joe Henry gave a lecture illustrated with slides on "Old Houses of Tallahassee and Their Historical Backgrounds."

Those attending the meeting were: Mr. and Mrs. Joe Henry and son, Dr. Andrie Pepper, Dr. Kathryn Abbey, Dr. Venila Shores, Mrs. Shores, Miss Florence Tryon Andenda entertained in honor of Miss Enslen, Mary Emily Parker, Daisy Parker, Anna Marie Mitchell, Roslyn Bowden, Anna Lester, Florence Cameron

Robert a Richter Wins Second Music Contest

Miss Roberta Richter, junior in Cairo, Georgia, school of music, was judged winner of a field of three contestants in a music contest held Wednesday afternoon in the college auditorium. By virtue of this decision, Miss Richter will compete in the state contest to be held at Cairo April 23-24.

The Wednesday afternoon contest was the second in a series of local contests for public schools to be held here as a feature of the faculty members as judges. Preliminary selections as officials for this affair were Miss Mary Elizabeth Winston, Miss Gladys Kotch, and Miss Mary Duncan.

Other contestants were Miss Mary Walker Cowles, Cairo, and Miss Hilary of Cairo. In the first contest of the series held last week, the competing music pupils were from Bainbridge, Ga.

Have Dinner at the Dutch Kitchen

TUESDAY NIGHTS—Creamed Chicken and Waffles.

THURSDAY NIGHTS—Baked Beans, Individual Pots.

SATURDAY NIGHTS—Fried Oysters.

BROILED STEAKS AND THOSE GOOD DUTCH KITCHEN ROLLS EVERY NIGHT!

ADAMS' STUDIO

119½ East College

Photographs that Please

Library Adds Several Books Of Wide Range

Seventy - Five Volumes In "Stacks" Since Last February

Approximately seventy-five books have been added to the stacks in the library since February according to a report by Miss Louise Richardson, head librarian. These volumes offer a wide range of fiction, travel, biography, and some poetry from which the students may choose.

The list includes: Astley, "Restless Jungle"; Alexander, "Aaron Burr, The Proud Pretender"; American Library Association, "Microphotography for Libraries"; Andrade, "Earth and Man"; Arkell, "Green Fingers"; Armstrong, "We or They"; Baring "Lost Lectures"; Beard, "The Discussion of Human Affairs"; Bersams, "Rainbow Empire"; Brown, "Glory's Children"; Bruce, "The Book of the Crafts men"; Case, "Jesus Through the Centuries"; Chiang "The Pageant Eye"; Childers, "Sailing South American Rivers"; Cleaver, "Make a Job for Yourself"; Comer, "In Quest of the Western Ocean"; Dawson, "Larchbook or Collection of Medical Recipes of the Fifteenth Century"; Dobe, "San Francisco's Chinatown"; Doe, "Fame, "Frazrance in the Garden"; Dunbar, "My Talks with Dean Spanley"; Eastman, "Enjoyment of Laughter"

Felleman, "The Best Loved Poems of the American People"; Foldes, "The Street of the Polishing Cat"; Gentile, "As I Remember"; Hale-White, "Great Doctors of the Nineteenth Century"; Harlow, "Old Wires and New Waves"; Hart, "Pish and Tush, Now or Never"; Heck, "Earthquakes"; Hibbard, "Soviet Money and Finance"; Hutchison, "Shining Scabbard"; Irvine, "John Gay's London"; Lao-tzu, "The Way and Its Power"; Lawson, "Theory and Technique of Play Writing" Lieberman, "Magazine Essays of Today"; Lovejoy, "Magazine Essays of Today"; Lundberg, "Imperial Hearst"; McBride, "Towns and People of Modern Germany"; McMurtrie "A History of Printing in the United States"; Marshall, "Rare Poems of the Seventeenth Century"; Miller, "Sam Adams, Pioneer in Propaganda"; Morley, "The Life and Times of Henry Crabb Robinson"

Morris, "Walt Whitman"; Nemirovich-Danckenko, "My Life in the Russian Theatre"; Nevins, Hamilton Fish"; Pratt, "Bat Box"; Randall, "Principles of College Library Administration"; Reppilier, "In Pursuit of Laughter"; Richmond, "Personality: Its Study and Hygiene"; Rosenbach, "A Book Hunter's Holiday"; Ross, "Adventures in Reading"; Schreiber, "Portraits and Self-portraits"; Sherwood, "From Forest to Furniture"; Simkins, "South Carolina During Reconstruction"; Sitwell, "Victoria of England"; Stark "The Southern Gate of Arabia"; Steffens, "Lincoln Steffens Speaking"; Stern, "Monograms"; Sullivan, "More Stunt Plays for Your Club Night"; Tunis, "Was College Worth While?"; Walpole, "A Prayer for My Son"; Waring, "My Pioneer Past"; Wells, Fremont Older"; Wheelock, Poems, 1911-1936"; Wright, "Truly Rural"

Society Appoints Pages

Ann Sams and Elizabeth Matheny were recently appointed as Florida pages to the 44th continental congress of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution which is being held in Washington, D. C., April 19-23 inclusive.

This Week

Continued from Page Four

States may condemn sit-down strikes as illegal, but it condemns with even more vigor the presence of having an "industrial spy system" which, according to a statement of policy sent to the House yesterday, "breeds fear, suspicion and animosity tends to cause strikes, and industrial warfare and is contrary to sound public policy" The statement also advocated collective bargaining.

And while senators legislated and discussed, peace was restored and 100,000 wage earners, who have been unemployed for almost a month in the motor corporations strike prepared to return to work.

Gov. Frank Murphy of Michigan using the ten-point Chrysler agreement as a yardstick in other strikes succeeded in inducing the 28-day sit-down of 7,000 employees of the Reo Motor Company and each last evening he met with representatives and officials of the Hudson Motor Car Company, which over 11,000 workers have been holding out since Monday 6

Flastacowo Wishes To Increase Staff

Anyone interested in working on the editorial or the art staff of the Flastacowo see Eileen Robinson, editor in 220 Reynolds.

Qualifications for staff membership are genuine interest, accuracy, cooperativeness, a C average, and the willingness to devote much time to the work. Previous experience is not required.

Arrival of Spring Greeted by Library

"When Dunsinane wood moves to some where or other," the Shakespeare would have it, or when the Florida State College library bursts into bloom then some momentous occasion is here—the final and definite arrival of spring.

Slender blue harebells pen Jack-in-the-pulpits graceful white trillium blossoms are scattered through the foyer of the library this week in a display designed to show students of nature which wild plants of this region can be gathered with a free hand and a clear conscience and which should be allowed to mature and go to seed.

Books on the care of flowers, the beginnings of summer gardens, and the appreciation of various forms of floral decorations as planned by that well-known landscape gradner, M. Nature, are set forth in books which accompany the water colors and prints adorning the bulletin boards.

College Girl Cleaning Day Is Big Event

Cleanliness Expeditions Resemble Korean River-Treks

By ELANTON BARRETT

As the brightly kimonoed women of Korea used to flock to the river's edge, there to paddle their clothes clean on the flat stones of the bank, so do American college women set forth in groups on their expeditions of cleanliness.

After several years of this effort to become "neat-to-God" one gets her cleaning-up processes highly systematized. One voice school cheerfully down a hall in upper Broward. "Oh, it won't take more than three-and-quarter minutes. I just have to straighten up my room and sweep, and wash out a few clothes." And it was no idle threat. That girl knew. Numerous freshmen give it as their opinion that one can not manage a college career successfully and keep the room swept at the same time. Some leave the campus as the dreaded "semester" Others sweep once a quarter—provided they don't go home.

Arystine Kennedy, a sophomore, declared that she and her "roomie" had worked out the perfect system.

"We both do all the work every day," she announced proudly. "That is, one day I dust and put away and make beds while roommate sweeps, mops and shakes the rugs. The next day we reverse the procedure. It works fine."

Dwellers in the covered upperclassman suites, contrary to what one might expect, believe that it is harder to keep their rooms presentable than for other girls.

"You see," expostulated one young lady, chucking a tennis racquet under the bed as she spoke, "each of us throws down her things, and each expects one of the others to "straighten" later. It would be a good thing" she ruefully concluded.

Meet Will Be Thursday

The interclass swimming meet will be held Thursday, April 22, at 4:30 in the college pool. Viola Brooks is in charge, and has a list of the rules governing the meet. Anyroe wishing to participate should get in touch with her immediately.

Conductor

Dr. Clarence Carter Nice, musically known conductor, will appear as guest artist in the Florida State symphony concert at the Florida State college auditorium Monday night.

Two Organizations Will Cooperate in Sponsoring Legislative Petitions

The Florida branch of the American Association of University Women is cooperating with the Business and Professional Women's club of Florida in sponsoring during the 1937 legislative session three bills, one dealing with women's property rights; another with the custody, service and earnings of legitimate minor children, and a third with certain changes in the laws regarding jurors.

Four copies of these bills have been made for the use of the members of the Tallahassee branch of the A. A. U. W. One of these copies is attached to the A. A. U. W. bulletin board in the administration building, the other three are in the periodical room of the college library.

Modern Dance Classes Present Program With Orchestra on Thursday

Waltzes, gavottes, and other dances will be featured in a program given by Miss Nellie Bond Dickinson's modern dancing classes and the college orchestra Thursday night.

There will be six dance forms corresponding to the numbers on the orchestra's program: A gavotte, rigaudon, a waltz, a farandole, a pavane and a gigue. The first two forms will be given by the beginning modern dancing classes and the others by the advanced groups. No costumes except the regulation leotards will be used.

Girls taking part in the gavotte are Virginia Allen, Male Anderson, Louise Pounds, Julia Hodnson, Frances Lanotte, Elva Melvin, Mary Lou O'Haver and Betty Wynn. Those in the pavane and gigue are Betty Cottrind, Isabelle Sands, Viola Brooks, Felecia West, Janet Cook Darle Chavannes, Ruth Prather and Beth Daane.

Taking part in the rigaudon are Louise Bowery, Dee Carroll, Virginia Craig, Doris Fillingim, Doris Geiger, Hazel Hinsey, Mary Elsie Pemberton and Marcia Ranney. In the waltz are Helen Hall, Mickey Conn, Bunny Lowery, Patty Hamilton, Patty Barringer and Ruth Wilson. Girls in the farandole are Carolyn Blount, Mary Boatwright, Mildred Seekins and and Marian Weeks.

Request for Speakers Comes from Naval Base

Florida State college has been invited to furnish speakers for an educational program at the United States naval air station in Pensacola next fall.

The college will provide speakers for lectures on social and economic subjects as requested. Talks will be made before an audience of officers of the navy and marine corps, cadets training for aviation and rated enlistment men. Approximately 400 officers and 600 cadets are stationed at Pensacola.

Invitation for the speakers came from M M. Witherspoon, commander.

E. P. C. Works Out Neutrality Bill

The Emergency Peace Campaign forum, having studied the latest questions of neutrality, have drawn up what they consider to be a good neutrality bill, in an endeavor to inform the student body on neutrality legislation they have prepared copies of their bill as comparing to the six major bills now before Congress. These copies will be placed in every student's mail box, Saturday, April 10.

DeGraff Receives Frog as Rare Gift

Tuesday morning Dr. Mark DeGraff received a touching gift from a secret admirer.

Environ-on-looers in the college post-office noticed that there was a small package in his mailbox that morning. Even Dr. DeGraff seemed interested when he discovered, under its several layers of wrapping paper, a whitman's candy box.

Expectantly he lifted the lid. The vigoral and physical shock caused by a bloated frog jumping out of the box to flop into the floor nearly threw him unceremoniously. As the toad jumped forward, Dr. DeGraff jumped backward.

The toad fell back into the box, which Dr. DeGraff still held. He quickly replaced the lid and carried away the box, with one twitchine, outspread toad foot still protruding from it.

Carson Receives Diploma

Miss Mary E. Carson, 1936 graduate, has received her graduate nursing diploma from the Francis Payne Bolton School of Nursing of Western Reserve university, Cleveland, Ohio.

Only college graduates are received as students at the Bolton school, which, with the Yale School of Nursing, shares the distinction of being the only nursing school in the country.

Bread Affords New After-Dinner Game

Fourteen scraps of bread cut from a single slice is the basis for the latest form of after-dinner amusement. With a few deft saws of a knife, a slice of bread becomes an intricate jig-saw puzzle.

This puzzle has proven to be a source of a great deal of amusement at tables where some individuals do not care for desserts or where some of the diners are slow.

Twelve Students Tapped By Education Honorary

Kappa Delta Pi, education honorary, yesterday recognized twelve student's for outstanding work in education by selecting them for membership in the organization.

New members include Mary Ann Graham Beth Deane, Ruth Prather, Rosalind Dasm, Nellie Lassar, Gwinnie Perry, Kitty Caney, Marcia Smith, Marianna Swank, Ida Pearle Miller, Anne Norris and Pearl Overhulit.

College Nurses Hold Meeting on Wednesday

A round table discussion of "Organizations of Nurses—National and International" was the feature of the regular meeting of the College Nurses association held Wednesday evening in the Science building. Lorena Simms, chairman of this week's program, opened the meeting with the open discussion following her talk.

Following the appointment of a nominating committee which will submit names of candidates for next year's officers, refreshments were served and a social hour enjoyed. Members of the association are Marthajean Cook, Ruby Ellis, Barbara Enders, Beverly Horn, Catharine Levey, Eleanor O'Haver, Helen Randle, Leona Rebhinder, Marcia Ricker, Jean Rosh, Lorena Simms, Pearl Smith, Jeanette Spector, Vivian Testa, Mary Catherine Condy Jane Thomas, Hetty Wadsworth, Florence Ward, Margaret Wheeler, Betsy White, Frances Woodward, Julia Harrison, Myrtle Wilson, Floyd, Charlotte Connel, Mary Bowman Smith.

Dining Room Is Scene Of Dinner Party

Tallahassee Civic Club Entertain Honoring Legislature

The community of Tallahassee extended its hospitality to members of the legislature last night when the Junior Chamber of Commerce and the several social organizations of the city combined in the Civic Round Table of Tallahassee were hosts at a dinner given in the college dining room.

The program, which Dr. Rainey Wyman as member of the committee was instrumental in arranging, consisted of several short speeches with entertainment accepted by the music and physical education departments of the college. The speakers of the evening, Governor Fred P. Cone, Mayor Leonard Weison; president of the senate, the Hon. Stuart Gillis of De Funiak Springs, and speaker of the house, the Hon. W. Mell Christ of Jacksonville, were introduced by Judge Ben A. Meginnis, who acted as toastmaster.

During the dinner the college string quartet with Betty Parker, Julia Rosser, Charlotte Veith and Pat Patterson played orchestral music.

The Glee club under the direction of Miss Etta Robertson began the program with three Norwegian and Russian folk songs. Marian Carson and the double trio were featured in the Norwegian folk song. Then the entire College Glee club sang "A Song of Thanks" and "Gypsy Drums" from the Russian.

The physical education department next presented a dance program. It consisted of the Eglantine morris dances. Rigs o'Marlow, Bean Setting, Laudnum Bunches and the Danish dances, Little Man in a Fix, Napoleon.

...Something you both can Enjoy

Everybody enjoys refreshing mildness in a cigarette...everybody likes good taste and pleasing aroma.

These are the things that make smoking a pleasure.

For all the good things that smoking can give you we invite you to enjoy Chesterfield Cigarettes.

take plenty along They Satisfy

Copyright 1937, Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co.

This Week's Flambeau Dedicated To Peace

The Florida Flambeau

Participate In Activities For Peace Day

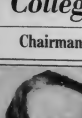
Published by the Students of Florida State College for Women

VOLUME XXIV. Tallahassee, Florida, April 16, 1937 NUMBER TWENTY-THREE

Alumnae to Gather For First "College"

Program to Get Underway This Afternoon With Registration

KATHERINE WARREN GENERAL CHAIRMAN



Events Include Social Affairs, Lectures And Meetings

Today more than 100 alumnae of Florida State will arrive on the campus for the first alumnae College" program which begins this afternoon and continues through Sunday dinner in the dining room. Under the direction of Miss Katherine Warren, chairman, a full schedule of events has been planned for the first event which is the only one of its kind ever given on a college campus.

"College" Opens This Afternoon

Beginning with registration this afternoon at 2 o'clock the program will include a wide range of mass-lectures on current trends and topics on musical, social and civic activities, and a devotional hour Sunday morning. Florida State college faculty members will make over "classes" in the "back to school" movement. Alumnae will be guests of the college during their visit here and will be housed in Byrne Hall.

Chairman

Miss Katherine Warren, chairman of the Alumnae college which will be the leading event of the campus this weekend.

Chief among the social affairs will be a banquet tonight given by President Edward Conradi and his daughter, Miss Louise Conradi All Tallahassee alumnae are invited to attend the reception.

Saturday morning will be devoted to "classes" conducted by seven members of the faculty including Dr. Kathryn T. Abbey, Dr. Tenia L. Bivens, Miss Rita Holmes, Dr. Paul P. Pitner, Dr. Ralph P. White, Dr. Margaret R. Smith and Miss Ruth Vanable. The morning lunch there will be a "get-together" at 1 o'clock in the

Continued on page Four

Kellum Goes To Atlanta

Business Head Attends Professional Meeting April 16-17

Mr. J. G. Kellum, business manager of Florida State College for Women, left Thursday morning for Atlanta, Georgia, where he will attend a meeting of the Southern Association of College Business Officers. The University Business Officers will be held on April 16-17. Mr. Kellum is president of the group.

One of the principal features of the meeting will be a conference of university and college accountants. Technical advice and assistance from the financial advisory service of the American Council on Education will have representatives on hand at the proceedings in accounting.

The General Education Board in collaboration with the Department of Education has set up a special accounting service to aid in colleges and universities. The business office of Florida State College has set up an additional feature in the Federal Educational Board plans an advisory service in finance. It will offer "day to day accounting of any institution" has adopted this system. Kellum said.

The advisory service. In the received notice that his had been examined and the committee was so favorable that they were to use some of his statements in the report. Kellum which they were preparing so as the accounting con-

Hours, Wages Affords Topic For Debators

Mackay and Asher Oppose McMullen and Green From U. of Fla.

PLACE FOR POWER HOTLY DISPUTED

Labor Legislation Called Necessary, Sane By Local Team

A non-decision debate between Florida State College and the University of Florida on the question Resolved: "That Congress should be empowered to fix maximum hours and minimum wages for industry" featured convocation Tuesday. The local team, represented by Mary Jeanne McKay and Phil Asher, took the affirmative side, while the university team, represented by Jack McMullen and John Marshall Green, took the negative. Dr. Harold Richards was chairman of the debate.

McKay is First Speaker

Mary Jeanne, as first speaker on the affirmative side, defined the terms of the question and stated the two affirmative contentions. Namely, that there is a definite need for this legislation and that such legislation is practicable. She further stated that in upholding the first point, Mary Jeanne stated that the present low wages and long hours were responsible for the present depression. She asserted in the United States today and that the low wages and long hours of the nation with improper food and poor housing conditions. But these wages are related to shorter hours provided, new employment would be created.

McMullen Speaks for Negative

As first speaker for the negative, Mac McMullen asserted that there was no need for the proposed legislation. He stated that would put the worker in a worse plight by raising prices and causing unemployment. He said that small business man would be forced out of business as he would not be able to pay for the higher wages from his limited capital. Then, he said, the masses of laborers would have to pay higher prices as well as the industrial workers, without receiving the benefits of additional wages, since only eight per cent of those employed in industry would be affected by the raise in wages.

Asher for Centralized Control

Phil continued the affirmative talk by stating that the low wages of the sub-minimum wage earners affected industry, that since this would provide additional purchasing power, the farmers, with which he regards, and seemed to be so concerned would be aided. Also and instead by centralised control, cut-throat competition would be eliminated. Then Asher closed the negative side by raising the question

Continued on page two

Big Business Organizations Educate People Against War

Groups Reorganized After World Conflict Take Different Form Than Sentimental Clubs Existing Then

Dorothy Barclay, member of the Flambeau reportorial staff, was recently appointed managing editor of the new editorial staff.

BY DOROTHY BARCLAY

The present enthusiasm for permanent peace is no spontaneous development. Even before the World War groups of men and women, banded together in the interests of better international understanding, were working toward this goal. When the war broke the majority of these organizations, carried away by the hysteria of the period, disintegrated completely and soon disappeared. With the signing of the Armistice, however, and with the realization that "such a thing must not happen again," these groups became active once more, and with renewed purpose.

Many of the organizations were merely patriotic clubs which existed to disseminate sentimental-ly-flavored material on the horror of war; but the pacifist spirit changed until today there exist huge business organizations of national and international scope working to educate people against war and for peace. The forces which such education take are as numerous and varied as the countries of the world. There are Leagues of Nations, Societies in Ceylon and Iceland, Dannig and Kyoto, Japan, and Czechoslovakia are only six of the more than fifty countries in the Peace Yearbook as having active anti-war groups.

Of particular such work in Germany has suffered untold losses since Hitler came into power. Before, there was a strong group there as recently as 1933. The German Peace Society, the World Peace Association of Mothers and Teachers, and the War Resisters' movement were three of the strongest forces and, considering the number of their members, it is hardly possible that the spirit can have died out already.

France is another nation ac-

Continued on page five

Emergency Peace Group Has Definite Goal Says Leader

Campaign Planned to Avert Recurrence of Old Tendencies Toward World-Strife, Repetition Of 1917 Situation

BY VIRGINIA ALLEN

Under the chairmanship of Virginia Allen the Emergency Peace campaign has not only become the most vital peace-fostering group on campus but has proved that students are capable of putting themselves wholeheartedly into the study of world affairs.

Someone has said of Columbus, when he started his famous voyage of discovery, that he did not know where he was going; when he arrived he did not know where he was; when he got home he did not know where he had been. Some lines drawn an analogy between this statement and the peace movement in America, except it is claimed that the peace movement has never gotten home.

Whatever may be said of the past, the peace movement today not only knows where it wants to go but it is going there. A new unity of purpose is gradually emerging from the pioneer organizations which have been paving the way for the last 26 years. The National Peace Conference has been a herald to this in promoting "safe programs of cooperative activity as may be agreed upon by members of the conference." The Emergency Peace campaign is a new limitation of this same cooperative spirit in a less closely knit form. The method it has been increasingly evident that the aggrieved of world peace and war give every evidence of repeating itself slowly but persistently, we march with direction of another world catastrophe. The cycle has been almost still we find ourselves repeating the mistakes so evident in the years just preceding 1914. We thought we had learned the lesson. Have we?

Are we, then, to stem this tide of war? Is there yet

Continued on page two

U. of F. Plans Peace Program For Next Week

University Men to Observe April 22 with Program On Neutrality

According to the University of Florida Alligator, the University will cooperate with other colleges and universities throughout the country in the observance of a National Peace day on Thursday, April 22. The main speaker for the day will be Dr. Josiah Morse, professor of psychology at the University of South Carolina.

Each class on the morning of April 22 has been asked to devote fifteen minutes, or as much time as the instructor sees fit, to the discussion of peace. The discussions will be organized by means of a questionnaire given the instructors.

At 11 a. m. classes will be dismissed in order that a Peace day rally, featuring student speakers, may be conducted in the auditorium. Subjects or speeches to be given are: "Why This Meeting?" by Mary Jeanne McKay; "Causes of War," by Tony Harlow; "The Present Crisis," by Seldon Waldo; and "So What?" by J. B. Patterson.

At 8 p. m. in the auditorium Dr. Morse will make his address. He will discuss such questions as "Why Has the League of Nations Failed as an Instrument for World Peace?" "What Can Students Do to End Wars for All Time," and "What Cannot Violations of the Versailles Treaty be Prevented?"

Dance Group To Perform At College

Martha Graham to Appear In Auditorium Next Friday Evening

Martha Graham, who is considered one of America's greatest dancers, will give a program here in her dance group in the College auditorium next Friday evening at 7:45 o'clock. This performance will be the last in this year's artist course, according to this campus.

Last season Martha Graham completed a transcontinental tour, the first ever undertaken by a modern American dancer. Thirty thousand people across the country were present at her recitals, and so great was her success that she is making another nation-wide tour—this time accompanied by her famous concert group.

Each of the group is a solo dancer in her own right, as well as of them. In addition to performances as a group, she appears in programs of their own. The aims of the group range from 20 to 25 years. Six of the company come from the Western states and from the Pacific coast. Some have had classical ballet training while others have had their training in modern technique exclusively. The co-ordination of these varied backgrounds is the result of intensive training and rehearsal under the direction of Martha Graham.

Miss Graham and her musical director, Louis Horst, who has been with her for the past ten years, he is known both as a critic and is a member of the faculties of the Neighborhood Playhouse studio, Barnard college, Sarah Lawrence college and the Bennington College School of the Dance, at all of which he teaches composition of dance form.

The program consists of a group of solo dances including two lyrh fragments, a dramatic perspective of the plains, two asiatic dances, a study in arrogance, a dance of exultation, a dance of adulation, and Sarabande, from suite Americaine. The group dances are entitled: "Celebration," "Three Casual Developments." "American Provincial," "Chronicle," "Course," "Heretic," and "Primitive Mysteries."

Engravers Cause Annual To Come Out Belatedly

Because much of the engraving prepared for the Flambeau has been unsatisfactory, thus delaying delivery of copy and because an announcement has been made by Virginia Allen, editor, and Miss Louise Richardson, chairman of the faculty committee of the annual that the Flambeau will be late in coming out this year.

Dem. School Wins Meet

The first track meet of the Demonstration School was held here Friday when the Demonstration School beat Woodville, 32 to 28.

The high point men from the Demonstration School were Rufus Keel and Charles Hobbs.

Diastaff Head Names Staff For Next Year

Sealey Adds Contributions Board to Encourage Student Writers

Sarah Sealey, editor of the Diastaff, has announced her staff for the coming year. The staff has been reorganized to include a contributions board composed of one representative from each class.

The contributions board will read and criticize all material submitted for the magazine, aiding the contents of the Diastaff and the individual writers, improve their work. The contributions board representatives will also encourage more writing and attend meetings of their respective classes.

The appointments are as follows: Ermine Lawrence, advisory editor; Arline Lockhart, senior contributions editor; Frances Williams, junior contributions editor; Lucile Lewis, freshman contributions editor; Frances Williams, art editor; and Frances Moss, circulation manager.

Mary Jane Parker was elected business manager Wednesday night to succeed Virginia Allen, resigned, after the resignation of Nell Colson had been accepted.

Within the next few weeks, the staff will occupy its new office in the basement of the west wing of the Wescott building which is to be furnished with mahogany finish desk, work table, chairs and bookcase, and typewriter, according to Miss Sealey.

The spring edition of the Diastaff will appear during the last week of the semester. The fall edition of the publications has been set for April 30.

Mortar Board to Launch Initial Leadership Drive With Conference May 7

Recognizing the need to train student officers, Mortar Board will launch its initial Leadership Training conference on May 8 as a major part of its service program for the year.

Dr. Olivia N. Durman, dean of students, will open the conference Friday evening, May 7, at which time she will confer together with a talk on "Qualities of Leadership." Group discussions and individual discussion groups dealing with parliamentary procedure and training of council secretaries, treasurers, committee chairmen and presidents will be featured Saturday afternoon. Faculty members will lead the discussions.

Marjorie Tills, president of Mortar Board, urges that all students newly elected to the College Government Association, class offices, and to sorority offices reserve the week-end of May 8 for this conference which is being held for their benefit.

Chemical Society Meets

Dr. L. J. Lewis, Miss Isabel Mc Kinnell, Miss Gertrude Vermillion and Dr. Jennis Tilt left last Monday for Chapel Hill, S. C., for the meeting of the American Chemical society. They will return today.

Peace Workers Circulate New Anti-War Bill

Voorhis Plan Offers Most Approved Provisions Say Students

EPC COUNCIL ASKS COLLEGE BACKING

Embargos, Treatment Of Belligerants Planned By Campaigners

Since the members of the local council of the Emergency Peace campaign under the leadership of Virginia Allen have studied and discussed at some length neutrality and the most effective means of achieving it, the council has drawn up its own neutrality bill and circulated copies of it to the students here at Florida State College for Women.

Chesse Voorhis Bill

Of the six most prominent neutrality bills now before congress, the council has found that the Voorhis bill meets with the greatest number of the provisions they have drawn up from a study of the conditions leading the United States into the World war. Other prominent neutrality bills now before congress are the Pittman, McReynolds, Nye-Bennett-Clark, Bone, Vandenburg, and Shipstead bills.

In view of the world alarm over impending war, the Emergency Peace campaign believes that such a bill as they have drawn up is warranted and necessary to keep the United States out of future world conflict. Through the amendments to this bill they hope to inform the college students of the various provisions of the neutrality bill now before congress and present the amendments they have drawn up. The council is also suggesting that the college students support the Voorhis bill by declaring their favor of the Voorhis bill with the organized amendments to the congressmen in their districts as well as to their friends and parents.

Provisions Set Forth

The neutrality bill which the council favors includes under the U. S. backwards relations with the embargo on munitions, permissive embargo on other materials, and the carry-on" of belligerent trade in war materials. Prohibition of loans to the rebels, or the "Rightists." Prohibition of loans to either side. Decisive victory for either side will be considered both from the point of view of Spain and from that of the other European countries involved. The bill will also include some of her personal experiences in Spain during the first few weeks of the Spanish revolution.

In addition to this talk, Dr. Hay will give a brief talk in Spanish on "Spanish Intellectuals in the Revolutionary Crisis." In Spanish supplies, all belligerent vessels re-

Continued on page two

Students Unaware of Peace Movements on the Campuses

Discouraging Number of Supposedly Intelligent Young People Ignorant of Importance Of Need for Pacific Measures

BY RUTH ATKINSON

Ruth Atkinson, one of the new Flambeau sports editors is the author of the sophomore reportorial staff of the Flambeau.

A surprising number of students are unaware of the meaning of the collegiate peace movements which are being promoted all over the country. A discouraging number of the supposedly most intelligent group of young people are found to be appallingly ignorant so far as the importance of the agitation for peace is concerned.

Many college students have the unconfirmed attitude that we young people have nothing to do with the truly great problems and decisions of the nation. How wrong such an attitude is! In our colleges are young men and women at the ages during which they should consider most seriously the problems of war and peace. It is only too true that we shirk the burden of decision on to older and more experienced shoulders, but if war should be declared tomorrow it would be the students of college age who would find the responsibility of theirs to carry. The older people may well declare war as a means of "protecting the honor and integrity of the United States," but it will be the young people who will do the actual fighting if it should become necessary.

Too many times have the people here built-bound in to war: too many times has irresistible propaganda been the judgement of otherwise sane men and women. War to protect our interests on the seas, war to uphold the Monroe Doctrine, and finally—war to end wars! All excuses have been utilized, all methods have been attempted, and always there are the same results. The people become disillusioned and cynical when the ideals for which they fought do not prevail and the country is swept by a reaction that results in a period of re-

Continued on page four

C. G. A. Aids E.P.C. In Peace Day Plans

Flambeau Edition Devoted to Peace

This week's edition of the Flambeau has been devoted to peace, in cooperation with Florida State college's observance of a nation-wide Plans for this peace day on student peace movement. April 22 originated on this campus under the direction of Mary Jeanne McKay, president of the student body for the past year. Hazel Bowman, retiring editor of the Flambeau, has had charge of this edition, which includes articles representing many points of view of students on this campus and one contributed by a student of the University of Florida.

Hay Speaks At Meeting In Georgia

Addresses Educators At Convention of G. E. A. In Savannah

Dr. Marion Hay, associate professor of education, left yesterday to attend a meeting of the Georgia Educational association held at Savannah, Ga., where she will speak today on "The Little World War and Its Probable Repercussions."

Attending this meeting will be Spanish, French, Latin, and German teachers of high schools and colleges of Georgia.

The general theme of Dr. Hay's speech will be the political situation in Spain and other parts of Europe, the events in Spain which led up to the establishment of the Republic in 1931, the problems which the Republic has faced due to the heterogeneous elements in its political set up, such as the problem of labor and capital, separation of the church and state. Dr. Hay will continue her talk, explaining the implications of the aid which has been given by Soviet Russia to the government forces, or the "Leftists" and that given by Germany, Italy and Portugal to the rebels, or the "Rightists." Probable outcomes in terms of a decisive victory for either side will be considered both from the point of view of Spain and from that of the other European countries involved. Dr. Hay will also include some of her personal experiences in Spain during the first few weeks of the Spanish revolution.

In addition to this talk, Dr. Hay will give a brief talk in Spanish on "Spanish Intellectuals in the Revolutionary Crisis." In Spanish

Continued on page two

Eaton Will Open Program With Special Forum April 22

WTAL BROADCAST TO BE FEATURED

Paraders to Hear Talk By Attorney General On Theme of Day

National Peace day, Thursday, April 22, is being commemorated on this campus by the College Government association and the local Council of the Emergency Peace campaign. The program outlined by these organizations begins with a special forum at 11:30 in the Augusta Conradi Little theater. Miss Mary Eaton will be the speaker.

During the day various faculty members have been asked by the sponsors of peace day to discuss peace problems with their classes.

Broadcast to be Given

Second on the peace day program is a radio broadcast from station WTAL from 1:00 to 1:30 this time a one-act play will be presented. Arrangements are being made to have tables in the dining hall so all students may have an opportunity to hear the program.

The parade will leave from Byrne hall at 4 o'clock and go to the band shell in front of the new postoffice. Here Cary D. Landis, attorney general, will address the group on "Peace Conditions Four Answers" answering the legislators, faculty members, and day students to furnish cars for the parade. Sophomore council members will act as parade marshals.

Plaque to be Presented

Peace plaque to be presented in the college auditorium at 7:45 officially end the peace day program. Mary Bertha Powell will read a three-act play, "Bury the Dead." The Tuesday Meek" will also be presented.

A panel discussion Monday at 4:30 in the Augusta Conradi Lit-

Continued on page three

Local Art Talent Sees Light of Day in Show At Palm Beach Gallery

Potential Rosa Bonheurs on campus will have an opportunity to show their masterpieces in an exhibit in which the art department of Florida State is joining Florida universities and colleges with particular local interest presenting all students work done in the art department; of Florida State College for Women will be in attendance in the galleries of the Boca Raton Hotel and Four Arts, where the art show is being sponsored. It will last to May 8 in Palm Beach, according to announcement by Mrs. Williams, head of the Art Department.

Invitations to take part in the exhibit have also been issued to the University of Florida, Rollins College, University of Miami, and Stetson University.

Students entering work and the classifications of the entries are: Figure sketching: Margaret Pierce, Barbara Jo Lowe, and Lorelei Lingo; painting: Sara Bell Palmer, Emily Davis, Sara Jean Clark, Olivia Stevens, Mary Henderson, Eloise Mosley and Margaret Murray; drawing: Sara Bell Palmer, Madelina Curran, Nancy Rigby, Jeannette Kronenfeld, Marjorie Hall.

Lithograph: "Bank Night," by Sara Bell Palmer; "Portrait Sculpture": "Art Ass't Becky's," by Mildred Wheeler; sculpture: "Mr. Mark's," by Sara Bell Palmer; drypoint: "April Showers," by Eloise Mosley; drypoint, "Moving Toilet," Grace Whitaker; etching: "Mr. Mark's Class," by Margaret Milton; colored illustration: "For Kipling's 'How the Elephant Got His Trunk'," by Grace Whitaker; black and white illustration: "Mr. Mark's Stationery," by Mary McGuragie; "Massaine Cover For Fortune," by Elnar Moeller, Jeanne Peter Cards," by Margaret Anderson; "Book Jacket," by Mary Lou Bowden; work by Sinclair Lewis," by Jean Zacharias; "Manuscript," by Jean Zacharias; "First Year Design, All-over pattern (Banana Plant Motif)," by Madeline Curran; "First Year Design, Bath Set," by Margaret Anderson; "First Year Design, Radio," by Reuben Coleman., "First Year Design, Cambie Block," by Louise Pyrde.

Arm of Law Is Subject To Breaks

Indignant College Woman Apt to Vent Ire On Law-Abiding Cop

Just as with everything else in life, there is a pleasing and displeasing side to having an official car of the law to regulate traffic in front of the college.

Time and time again we are very glad to have this smiling gentleman stop cars in order that we can cross Copeland street in Park avenue without risking our necks. It is very nice to know that if we wish to dash over to Three Torches or Spic and Span for just a second after lunch there will be no long wait for a line of cars to pass. If we have overslept in the morning, and are dashing madly to class, the fact that our friendly cop will always give us right of way is a big help in making that first hour class.

And when we walk through the gate later in the morning we manage, o. k. down across the street and through the gate without fear of loss of limb or limb.

But when the shoe is on the other foot, and our smiling friend stops Mommy as he is rushing to church—and we must rush so we will be—just to let a couple of the girls get across the street who couldn't be in a hurry any way for just an old messin' car.

Emergency Peace Group Has Definite Goal Says Leader

Continued from page one

hope of resisting the maelstrom? Is there hope of peace? The Emergency Peace campaign was born of these fears. It is supported largely by individuals, who are not only hopeful but determined to keep the United States from participation in another war, and if possible, to keep that war from the world. A "Quaker concern," that led to a conference of peace leaders at Buckhill Falls, Pennsylvania, in December, 1935. After much earnest discussion and several succeeding conferences, the movement was launched to promote a cooperative nation-wide campaign to keep the United States from going to war and to achieve world peace by:

Strengthening pacific alternatives in current political thinking about such political and economic changes as are essential to a just and peaceful world order, so as to curbing and uniting in a dynamic movement all organizations and individuals who are determined not to approve of or participate in organizing for peace-minded people with the program and policies of the member organizations of the National Peace Conference and other peace groups.

If this great undertaking were to succeed, obviously thousands of people would have to sacrifice for peace now as in the past they have had to sacrifice for war. This sacrifice would have to include their time, money, thought, and energy. So whole-heartedly has the challenge been accepted that today thousands of people are giving of themselves and their substance in this great adventure. Millions have been influenced. Mass meetings have been held in the principal cities of the United States. Peace forces have been united and strengthened in churches, synagogues, and other religious groups. The campaign is conducting a nation-wide poll of attitudes on war and peace. It is taking a national enrollment of those determined to work for peace and to refuse participation in war. It is promoting peace education through pamphlets, farmers' unions and other farm groups, encouraging a vigorous peace legislative program, and enlisting hundreds of young college men and women in emergency volunteer units.

But the fourth Section of the Emergency Peace campaign is by no means the entire movement. The No-Foreign-War crusade headed by Rear Admiral Hilary E. Byrd, the neutrality program headed by Charles P. Taft II, and the chairman of the entire campaign, Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, the whole backed by Reinhold Eddy, Kirby Page, Grace Abbott, Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, Jane Addams, William Allen White, Norman Thomas, Gen. Smedley D. Butler, Kathleen Norris, and many others of note.

War is the greatest single menace facing the student world today. The Emergency Peace campaign early determined to open a channel of action whereby students might be enabled to do something to further the cause of internationalism. Two guinea pig teams of four students each were sent out as an experiment to form e beats for the training of the units to follow. So successful was the response of students to the Emergency Peace campaign program that the summer of 1936 saw the first mass movement of American students into a concentrated long-time peace offensive.

September 1936 saw these same students returning to their own campuses prepared for action. Ten days or more at an institute of international relations and several weeks of field work in small communities. Field secretaries were made of some of the more successful students and a definite plan for contacting a thousand university and college campuses was put into action. Wherever student feeling arose to meet the challenge councils were formed, plans were laid for group study, for discussions to be led in the surrounding community, for political pressure through the questioning of congressmen on international peace issues, and for the financing of volunteers for the summer of 1937. After the field secretary left contact was not lost; the organization continued to function under their own power with the headquarters of the Emergency Peace campaign in Philadelphia serving as a source of information and directing force for guidance and other necessary materials.

Stuart Wright, field secretary for the southeastern section, contacted Florida State College for Women and other Florida colleges late in December with the result that the Emergency Peace campaign forum began functioning in January as a study group. Slowly gathering momentum, the group developed and spread their activities to include political activity. At the end of three weeks study of neutrality legislation, the group was told what they considered to be a good neutrality bill with which they were asked to acquaint themselves before Congress. Two thousand letters of their conclusions were sent to all students in the country with the hope that endeavor to interest, interest, and motivate them to do some constructive work in the interest of some of the causes of war.

Students of the country have a right which is usually forgotten by Congressmen and should necessarily anxious to follow the proper procedure in home district. If enough pressure is brought to bear on congressmen by students on a thousand university campuses and by citizens which have been reached by the various councils formed during the winter of 1936-37 in Pennsylvania, one of the country's largest lobbys would be formed—a lobby for enlightened citizenry. Immediately there will be a criticism that college students should stay out of politics. But, after all, students of today are the voters of tomorrow; they must become politically conscious now if they are to become intelligent citizens. And may we ask if the present political do not affect us?

During the year 1936, the campaign held meetings and conferences in 176 cities in the spring and 500 in the fall, addressed by more than 500 prominent men and women who volunteered their services. College students, 250 of them, worked as peace volunteers in 50 rural areas in 23 states last summer. This winter 4,000 are participating.

The American Friends Service committee, a Quaker organization which administered over 25 million dollars in relief and reconstruction in Europe during and after the World war, acts as treasurer and exercises general control over the Emergency Peace campaign. Money has poured in from all sides. Approximately $350,000 of the $1,000,000 required had been contributed by December 31, 1936. More than 16,000 individuals have contributed $176,000 in gifts of 25c to $10,000. In addition, gifts of $50,000, $33,000, $32,000, $26,000, $20,000 and $12,500 have been received.

The United States need not go to war. The likelihood that the United States will be subjected to armed invasion is extremely remote. Therefore, if the sentiment against American participation in war, whether in Europe or Asia, can be made articulate and effective, there will remain only the slightest possibility that the United States will resort to war with any other nation. But it is in times of peace that all efforts must be strained to prevent another conflagration. The Youth Section of the Campaign unites the soldiers and nurses of the next war; the adult section unites the soldiers, nurses and wives of the last; the news service and national radio hookups reach all in an effort to build a bulwark which will be impregnable when the real test comes. The real test of peace will be determined by the strength of public sentiment to overcome propaganda which inevitably ushers in war.

"ALUMNAE COLLEGE" PROGRAM

Friday

2-8 P. M.—Registration, Bryan hall.

6:30 P. M.—Dinner, College dining hall.

8 P. M.—Fine arts program. Auditorium, Conrad theater.

9 P. M.—Reception, Dr. Conradi's house.

Saturday

Addresses—Augusta Conradi theater.

8:30 A. M.—"Political Responsibilities of Women," Dr. Kathryn T. Abbey; "European Trends Away from Democracy," Dr. Vernia L. Bisbee.

9:30 A. M.—"Children's Literature," Miss Etta Mathews.

10:30 A. M.—"Adjusting to the Strain of Modern Living, Dr. Paul F. Pinner and Dr. Sarah P. Wiley.

11:30 A. M.—"Public Facts and Public Control," Margaret R. Sandels; "Federal Legislation for Consumer Protection," Miss Lelia Venable.

12 noon—Luncheon. college dining hall.

2 P. M.—Tea together for alumnae. Augusta Conradi theater.

3 P. M.—Tours of campus, trips to camp, at-homes of faculty members.

6-8:30 P. M.—Dinner. College dining hall.

8:30 P. M.—After-dinner coffee, for faculty and alumnae. Gilchrist hall parlor.

Sunday

8 A. M.—Mortar Board breakfast.

10 A. M.—Devotional service, speaker, Dr. Edward Conradi, college auditorium.

1 P. M.—Dinner, college dining hall.

FOR MOTHER'S DAY

Make her day a happy one—give her the one thing she will appreciate most—your photograph.

ADAMS STUDIO
119½ East College

French Student Interviewed On Current Peace Problems

Martha Thomas Declares Her Country Doesn't Want War

By ARLINE GRAY LOCKHART

Arline Lockhart, well-known to Flambeau readers for her Lucretia monologues, is new assistant editor of the Flambeau, senior member of the Dean's' contributions board, and president of Alpha Chi Alpha.

"We want peace. We do not want war any more than you people do." Martha Thomas, French exchange student declared in an interview with the Flambeau reporter yesterday.

Her gray eyes were quite serious as she explained that the French armaments program and the size of the army of the French were for protection the same as American program. Adequate war apparatus and conduct fire drills in schools.

"It is not that we expect war—soon," she said, "but that it might happen, and we must be ready if it might have a fire, and it is necessary for safety."

In answer to the query is it true that French students are taught to hate Germans, Miss Thomas said, "Pouff!"

"We have many Germans in our schools and we sent many students to Germany. In my opinion," she continued, "The best way to get peace is the exchange of young people, for it will be us who are in the war. We must stay and study and live with a people before we can know or understand them. To understand a people is the best way to avoid war."

Miss Thomas pointed out that Florida State is the only foreign student on this campus, in France much smaller colleges may have as many as ten foreign students. The schools are free, but the students contribute to pay the expenses of an exchange student.

She considers French youth have rather wide international student contacts in comparison with American youth. Students from all over the world enter colleges and universities in France, many of them from North and South America. No racial prejudices exist in her country and as she explains, "It makes no difference if you are verse white or verse black or yellow; you are judged by your ability and intelligence. There is no discrimination against the Jews, except that a few cannot be sent to another country as an exchange student to represent France."

Asked if French students had freedom to express their opinions on any topic from side to side, Miss Thomas widened her eyes in surprise.

"Oh, but yes," she said, "we are a republic. There are many places in Paris where we can go and hear discuss world affairs or anything. At the International Exposition in Paris this summer there will be a meeting of young people from every nation to discuss everything, including peace."

"At a whole are the young people in France greatly interested in social, economic and political problems?" the reporter questioned.

"Oh, yes, verse much. They pay close attention to politics. The students are so compact in our universities, for there we study and they express their likes and dislikes freely. Always before elections they stand up on tables and harangue from side or the other. They feel deeply about war, for in every little town even, there is a reminder of the last war," she answered.

"Are the young people in France having peace movements as the youth in this country?" the reporter pressed for home district point.

"I have left Europe for seven months now," she smiled, "so I don't jus' know exactly what is going on, but I have been in touch with something in it."

Miss Thomas mentioned a recent Paris newspaper and pointed to an article called "The Young People Prepare Peace for Asking Parry."

According to the French article the youth in Europe have not been at all idle. Young people of France held a Congress of youth in national Congress of youth in 1933 for the purpose of combating war and fascism. For the most part, however, only political organizations were present and their aim was not attained. It was many people an opportunity for participation. A copy of this program was attached to the second letter sent out, but has brought forth much comment.

Among the most unusual and most remarked upon features is the student-faculty class discussions on peace. Every teacher is asked to give all or part of each class period on Thursday to a forum on war problems. Each faculty member is sent a letter suggesting topics for different class hours, and sources of material. Thus every faculty member is given a chance to participate and the student body is divided into small workable groups. Further, more, the entire student body is reached in a special forum arranged for the benefit of club members and being arranged at the present time.

Members of the club are chosen from students of any class who have a scholastic average of 2 and can pass the required reading test. A new test is given soon to obtain members. The club is limited to twenty-five members.

In addition to the efforts of other charter members are Evelyn Edwards, Sara Hethon, Ernestine Anderson, Mildred Mahan, Jemson, and Mary Peacock.

Twenty Students Pass Swim Examination For Sr. Life Savers

At the completion of tests conducted here during the last three weeks twenty students were added to the list of senior life savers at the college pool. Twenty-one of senior life saver qualifies these girls to become members of junior and life savers at summer camps.

The new senior life savers are Louise Brown, Marguerite Brown, Frances Brunson, Nancy Burr, Mary Frances Campbell, Carolyn Collins, Mary Cone, Dorothy Cropper, Mildred Hill, Lee Hughes, Annie Jennings, Margaret Maxwell, Martha Moore, Ruth Oliver, Mary Elizabeth Osborne, Mary Palmer, Mary Stevens, Nancy Rogero, Mildred Perkins and Judith Wilensky.

Peace Workers Circulate New Anti-War Bi

Continued from page one

quired to leave after a state of war is declared and permitted at President's discretion or be put under protective custody. The use of radio within our territory is believerents, no recruiting of men for belligerents on our soil, and no submarines allowed to enter our territorial waters, no airplanes allowed to fly over our territory, countries which permit the use of flag not recognized by our ports, no distinction between belligerents.

Hours, Wages Affords Topic for Debaters

Continued from page one

as to whether the needs of such legislation really existed and whether such a change would be beneficial. In support of his contention that this was not the case, he said that conditions are better now than they have been in several years; that eighteen new industries are now providing additional employment; and that the United States has the highest standards of living in the world. In setting forth the disasters that such a plan might have upon the nation he cited the conflict that it would cause with the two present policies of the government relating to adjustagricultural situation and developing foreign trade.

In the rebuttals in which Neil and Mary Jeanne participated, the negative side admitted that there might be a need for legislation governing minimum wage and maximum hours, but he continued the assertion of his side that such legislation should be a state rather than federal. The negative side met this argument with the fact that economic conditions did not confine themselves within state boundaries and, therefore large regional areas were the only practical means of coping with the situation.

A debate on this same subject was held Thursday night with the University of Georgia, the Augusta Conradi theater with Peggy Aldschaft and Emma Randolph Kiebach speaking for Florida State on the affirmative side. Mrs. Lockhart acted as manager of debating.

Liberality Marks Form Of Observances In Sixty Colleges

Because in the minds of some student leaders as Florida State College for Women it was felt that students could do much for world safety by an organized and active consideration of peace. Furthermore, they felt that any such consideration in the name of peace should be liberal enough to allow any college a choice in the manner of its own observance—that peace should be the objective and not a method or calling for it.

To achieve such a program was a problem that perhaps one audacious and stubborn minds would attempt, after repeated warnings by scoffers and cynics that such a project was not practical. Many were shy who maintained that the college world have no such a thing as peace —and that if it were accepted, no real value would result. The response from nearly 60 colleges has shown that such a plan could succeed—and the fact that the majority of colleges were not participating in the peace organization program indicated that it filled a need.

The first set of letters sent out to colleges all over the United States by the executive council of C. O. A. contained an explanation of the idea and an invitation to join in it. By the time the second set was ready, the mechanism for a very ambitious program on this campus had been organized —one which was to include a morning worship, student faculty peace discussions, an open forum and public address, a series of peace plays, a radio program, a special edition of the school paper and a series of weekly student forums on the causes and cure of war. This extensive program was especially designed to accomplish two purposes: to bring a literary type of activity for peace from college to campus, and to be extensive enough to give a great

They made this appeal to the youth of all countries:

"The love of peace is not the fear of death.

"The peace which we want is not that which is satisfying to the strong qualities which certain ones pretend are only consummated through war.

"We are not afraid of war, but we are not desirous of fighting.

The reporter asked one more question. "What do you think of the peace day program this college will have April —?"

"I do not know much about it." Miss Thomas replied, "but I think anything for peace is a good idea. You young people in this United States that is so large, are headed to help and influence the young people of Europe in their fight against war."

New Method of Demonstrating For Peace Began at F.S.C.W.

Liberality Marks Form Of Observances In Sixty Colleges

Because in the minds of some student leaders as Florida State College for Women it was felt that students could do much for world safety by an organized and active consideration of peace. Furthermore, they felt that any such consideration in the name of peace should be liberal enough to allow any college a choice in the manner of its own observance—that peace should be the objective and not a method or calling for it.

To achieve such a program was a problem that perhaps one audacious and stubborn minds would attempt, after repeated warnings by scoffers and cynics that such a project was not practical. Many were shy who maintained that the college world have no such a thing as peace —and that if it were accepted, no real value would result. The response from nearly 60 colleges has shown that such a plan could succeed—and the fact that the majority of colleges were not participating in the peace organization program indicated that it filled a need.

The first set of letters sent out to colleges all over the United States by the executive council of C. O. A. contained an explanation of the idea and an invitation to join in it. By the time the second set was ready, the mechanism for a very ambitious program on this campus had been organized —one which was to include a morning worship, student faculty peace discussions, an open forum and public address, a series of peace plays, a radio program, a special edition of the school paper and a series of weekly student forums on the causes and cure of war. This extensive program was especially designed to accomplish two purposes: to bring a literary type of activity for peace from college to campus, and to be extensive enough to give a great

They made this appeal to the youth of all countries:

"The love of peace is not the fear of death.

"The peace which we want is not that which is satisfying to the strong qualities which certain ones pretend are only consummated through war.

"We are not afraid of war, but we are not desirous of fighting.

The reporter asked one more question. "What do you think of the peace day program this college will have April —?"

"I do not know much about it." Miss Thomas replied, "but I think anything for peace is a good idea. You young people in this United States that is so large, are headed to help and influence the young people of Europe in their fight against war."

Hay Speaks At Meeting in Georgia

Continued from page one

journal "Hora de Espana" which is now being published in Valencia, the seat of the government, by a group of outstanding poets, critics, and professors.

Thill Heads Tarpon Club

Ward, Colburn Assist In New Organization For Swimmers

At an initial meeting of the newly organized Tarpon swimming club, April 13, Thomas Thill was elected president. Frances Ward vice-president, and Dorothy Colburn, secretary-treasurer.

The club's first plans are for a swimming demonstration during the Alumnae Homecoming, April 16-18. Other swimming demonstrations will be given next year during the Thanksgiving holidays and the freshman festivities. A closed dinner party for the benefit of club members is being arranged at the present time.

Members of the club are chosen from students of any class who have a scholastic average of 2 and can pass the required reading test. A new test is given soon to obtain members. The club is limited to twenty-five members.

In addition to the efforts of other charter members are Evelyn Edwards, Sara Hethon, Ernestine Anderson, Mildred Mahan, Jemson, and Mary Peacock.

Sports Squints

Since everybody is talking and thinking about peace, and seems to be up in arms for the sacred cause, we think it only right that attention should be called to the fact that the sporting world is contributing its bit by establishing friendly relations with foreign countries through the medium of the Olympic games. Through participation in these international sports gatherings the young athletes of all countries are bound together through a common interest.

Curbing our ambitions a little, we force ourselves to come down from international competition to inter-class competition and discover that the freshmen will meet the sophomores in a diamond ball game right here on our own campus, next Monday afternoon. From the rumors we've been hearing lately about the strenuous rivalry that's been going on out on the practice field, the game should really be a honey!

By the way, while we're on the subject of diamond ball, we would kinda like to offer our bit of evidence that seniors are either too lazy or too dignified to go in for the rough and tumble stuff that the freshmen seem to love. We regret to say that only two fourth-year girls signed up for diamond ball this season, so it is impossible to have a team to represent the senior class on the diamond. It might be appropriate to add here, too, that one of the two faithful seniors wanted to participate in a class game in order to earn a star, and the other in order to earn her letter. Now because of a lack of cooperation in the class, and through no faults of their own, these two girls can take part only in the Odd-Even games.

Still on the subject of diamond ball we might air that big worry the Odds had on their minds when their one and only pitcher was put out of commission recently when she pulled a tendon in her shoulder during practice. After a bit of worrying, however, it was discovered that this little misfortune brought to light the talents of four other promising pitchers. Sounds like another case of "hiding your light under a bushel."

The faculty seems to be coming in for a very fair share of glory outside of the classroom these days. Not only are they in the spotlight this week while participating in the faculty-student tennis tournament, but will continue their efforts for athletic fame when they compete with their students in a canoe race as part of the water-sports day program which will be held soon at Camp Flastacowo. Here's hoping that they don't get their ardor dampened.

Believing the old proverb that "opportunity knocks but once," we are taking this chance, which may be our last, to "squint" at one who used to "squint" at us. It seems that "Jinks" is now going in for the real thing, only the real thing seems to be getting the best of her. She is taking riding lessons, and in attempting to learn to post she has acquired a charley-horse in her right leg, has lost the skin from her left knee, and swears she'll never be the same. The back of the horse has been taking punishment, but after all "Jinks" is getting the worst end of it.

With Katherine Rawls out of the picture, the lesser water stars with their swimming and diving feats will do their share in strengthening class rivalry next Thursday when the pool will be filled with the splashing and kicking of juniors, seniors, sophomores, and freshmen. It might not be too much to ask for some of the swimmers' classmates to hop over to the gym that afternoon and do a little bit of pulling for their class team. It promises to be a good meet.

We know that we predicted once before that the springtime sport, sunbathing, was once more in vogue, and then the late March winds kinda knocked our predictions into practically nothing. However, we're pretty sure this time in saying that the sport is here to stay. Those who tan are lucky, but we pity those unfortunates whose touchy skins do nothing except turn to a pretty pink and then develop into freckles. We should know!

PEA Elects New Officers

Louise Whitting was elected president of the Physical Education association at a short meeting held in Bryan Atrium yesterday morning. Other officers elected to serve with Louise were Ruth Wilson, vice-president; Sidney Moore, secretary, and Martha Robbins, treasurer.

Freshmen Meet Sophomores In Diamond Ball

First Class Game to Be Monday, Winners To Play Juniors

Interclass rivalry will again be in evidence next Monday afternoon when the freshmen meet the sophomores on the athletic field at 4:30 in the first diamond ball game of the season.

Next Wednesday afternoon at 4:30 the junior class team will play the winners of the freshman-sophomore game.

Players from whom the teams will be selected include:

Freshmen—Ruth Rogers, Sidney Moore, Yvonne Marchesseau, Loraine Halliburt, Gladye Peacock, Elaine Fleischer, Helen Brown, Frances Fryer, Nita Helmns, Fern Robinson, Elsie Nell Black, Mary Ruth Clayton, Judy Triplet, Ruth Weber, Louise Rice, Louise Prine, Merryday Rosser, Pat Mack, Lynette Thompson, Frances Jones, Lucy Grant, Mary Collins and Janet Jewett.

Sophomores — Jean Magnus, Bunny Lowry, Ruth Wilson, Sadie Anderson, Mary Palmer, Fay Corey, Nancy Williamson, Jean Gilles, Harriet Duke, Dot Colburn, Ruth Barrington, Betty White, Valrie Hunt and Marion Leslie.

Juniors—Nan Clark, Felicia West, Frances Waterhouse, Elise Barrette, Marjorie Raulerson, Lillian Douglas, Audrey Cooper, Mary Peacock, Helen Daniels, Frances Thill, Hilda Spradlin.

Faculty and Student Teams Will Compete In Water Sports at Camp

Camp Flastacowo will again be the scene of the annual water-sports day which will be sponsored by the F Club Saturday afternoon, April 24.

Trucks for the benefit of all students who wish to attend the water program will leave from the back of Bryan at 1:45 and will return at 5 o'clock. Those planning to go are requested to sign up on the W.A.A. bulletin board in the Westcott building.

The afternoon's entertainment will include: canoe, kayak, and dory races among class teams and between Odd-Even teams; tilting between the Odd-Even teams; a canoe race between students and faculty members; acrobatic stunts in canoes; and demonstrations of handling canoes.

Hazel Viertel is in charge of the general plans for the water sports day. Her committee includes, Valerie Hunt, who is in charge of the Odd teams, sophomore class teams and senior class teams; Felicia West, in charge of the Even teams, freshman class teams and junior class teams; Fay Corey, in charge of the student canoe team which will race against the faculty; Miss Katherine Montgomery, in charge of the faculty canoe team; and Frances Thill, in charge of canoe demonstrations and stunts.

Merit Examinations Are Scheduled for May First

The Florida State Welfare board Merit examination will be given on May first, Dr. Elizabeth Gordon Andrews announced today. All applications, to be procurable in the personal office, must be in the hands of the examining board by April 20.

The requirements for the examination are that the applicant be at least 21 years old and not more than 50 years old, that she must have lived in Florida for at least two years, that she have high school education and either sufficient experience in related fields or adequate college work in sociology and economics, and that the applications are complete, accurate, and legible.

C.G.A. Aids E.P.C. In Peace Day Plans

Continued from page one

tle theater will precede the peace day movement on this campus. The topic "Is a World State the Solution of the Present World Crisis?" will first be discussed by various faculty members, and then opened to the students for comments and questions. Virginia Allen, chairman of the emergency peace campaign, is in charge of the meeting.

Faculty members invited to attend this meeting include: Dr. Ralph L. Eyman, chairman; Dr. Raymond Bellamy, presenting the social phases; Miss Marian Irish, representing the political phases; Miss Sadie Young, economic and financial phases, and Henry F. Becker, natural resources. This discussion will take the place of the weekly forum.

Among the first colleges to join with Florida State College for Women in the movement are: Vassar colle egin Poughkeepsie, N. Y.; Colorado State college in Fort Collins, Colo.; Albion college in Albion, Mich.; American university in Washington, D. C.; Pennsylvania State College for Women in Pittsburgh, Pa.; Brenau college in Gainesville, Ga.; University of Florida in Gainesville, and State Normal and Industrial school in Ellendale, N. Dak.

Sixteen other colleges added to this list more recently are: Wayne university in Michigan; Wesleyan college in Connecticut; Hillsdale college in Michigan; Rutgers in New Jersey; Skidmore in New York; Hendrix college in Arkansas; Agnes Scott in Georgia; University of Midlands in California; Knox college in Illinois; North Adams State Teachers' college in Massachusetts; Bethany Peniel college in Oklahoma; Stanford university in California; Lawrence college in Wisconsin; Lake Erie college in Ohio; Williams college in Massachusetts, and University of Tulsa in Oklahoma.

The chairmen and their committees for peace day include:

Forum Committee — Virginia Allen, chairman, and Florence Evers, publicity.

Faculty-Student Discussions Committee — Jo Binion and Louise Gehan, chairmen; Louise Lingo, Eileen Robinson, Becky Ashton, and Katherine Autrey.

Publicity Committee—Martha Baker and Hazel Bowman, chairmen; Pearle Shepard, Evelyn Fisher, Frances Brunson, Clara Luke, Mary McGunagle and Bonnevieve Tomlinson.

Radio Program Committee—Lutrelle Patterson and aMrjorie Raulerson, chairmen; Martha Baker and Marian Harrold.

Parade Committee—Winifred Ewart and Margaret Walcott, chairmen; Helen Daniel, Mary Emily Parker, Dorothy Bellamy, Maxine Ward, Kathryn Pratt, Sarah Sealey and Jean Gillies.

Peace Plays Committee—Betty Ostlund and Maurjorie Tillis, chairmen; Marian Herbert and Elizabeth Ann Webb, staging; Elizabeth Pierce and Mary Lopez, properties; Katherine Bacon and Lynette Thompson, rehearsals; Nell Colvin, business manager; Jean Lykes, ushers; Eleanor Williams, programs; Barbara and Jane Hubbard, lights; Eleanor Flint, costumes; and Miss Elizabeth Thompson, faculty adviser.

Y. W. C. A. Vespers Committee—Janice Borton and Marion Conn, chairmen.

Library Display—Marie Taylor.

Inter-Club Cooperation Committee—Polly Eveleth, chairman; Beth Daane, Hilda Spradlin, Peggy McMichael.

New Glossary Is Demanded for Use This Season By Those Who Do Not Understand Sandlot Lingo

By BETTY LEACH

How about a new dictionary for student use during the current baseball season? A real need for this glossary of sandlot lingo is felt by those of us who can't understand the cryptic words and phrases used by the game's ardent followers.

"At home" in the etiquette books may mean an "open house," but out by the gym it signifies that some player is guarding the home plate.

Lady Windermere had a fan that brought her a lot of trouble, but Odd and Even "fans" are the cause of a lot of flattered looks and pleasantly swelled heads on the part of the players.

In grammar shool days, "catching flies" meant skillfully pursuing insects and divesting them of their wings while the teacher's back was turned, but now we find that it means standing on the receiving end of a ball batted into the air by another player.

"Soft white hands" may be "in the glove," but so is a baseball after a particularly brilliant exhibition of catching.

To a debutante, "out" indicates placement on the matrimonial market; to a job-seeker, it means just one more long wait for an interview. But to the adherents of our national game it means one of the three divisions necessary to make an inning, and it may be the cause of great rejoicing or of great grief.

"Nine" is a perfectly good number and goes into the making of a very difficult multiplication table, but it is also a baseball team.

A "slide" is an accepted form of amusement for young children and a vital part of playgrounds and roller-coasters; in baseball repartee, it means the best way to get to a base if there is a possibility of being put 'out."

This is an early and unabridged edition of the proposed glossary.

Tennis Games Get Under Way

Faculty and Students To Play Two Matches In The First Round

The second annual faculty-student tennis tournament will get under way this week when the first round matches will be played.

Only two matches will be played in the first round, byes having been drawn by the other entrants. Miss Ray Fraser and Valerie Hunt will meet Dr. Viola Graham and Fay Corey, and Miss Nellie Bond - Dickineon and Yvonne Marchesseau will play against Dr. William Rogers and Evelyn Fisher.

The second and third round matches, which will comprise the quarter finals and semi-finals, will be played off next week.

Entrants who drew first round byes are: Miss Grace Fox and Betty White, Mr. William Jonbert and Ruth Ruben, Miss Ruth Lehman and Juanita Purchase, Dr. Christian Paul Heinlein and Marjorie Horton, Mr. Miller and Janice Borton, and Miss Elizabeth Lynn and Marie Joffre.

Telegram Marks Archery Victory

Long - Distance Contest For Women's Colleges Judged by Wire

Florida State College for Women has been invited to participate in the eighth national women's inter-collegiate telegraphic archery tournament which will take place during the period between April 22-29 or May 13-20 according to the college schedule.

Each college may enter one or more teams consisting of eight archers, each shooting a Columbia round at each of the following distances: fifty yards, forty yards, and thirty yards. Regulation forty-eight inch targets and regulation scoring are to be used. The rules this year permit a competitor to shoot several complete rounds during the prescribed period and to report as the "official" round the one having the highest score. An entrance fee of $1 collected for each team entered will go toward the expense involved. The results of each meet will be telegraphed to Louis C. Smith of Boston, Mass. This telegram will indicate the total hits and total scores of the teams separately but not individual scores. As soon as the results are received and tabulated, a summary will be mailed to all colleges entering teams.

Miss Betty Washburn is in charge of the team representing Florida State College for Women. So far only the following three students have signed up for this team: Katherine Bacon, Charlotte Kamper, and Annie Laurie Polk.

Girls Learn How to Play

Leisure Time Activity Is Subject of Study For College Classes

Members of the class in Community Recreation, in connection with their study of leisure and recreation as a world problem, are planning a survey of recreational pursuits of the student body. The group has formed a questionnaire that is to be presented to all students on and off campus.

The questionnaire will include such items as: the number of hours the student works, the number of hours devoted to classes, the number of hours used in study each week, and the time that the student spends in beautifying herself.

Questions will be asked concerning leisure time that one is most interested in, what one does in her leisure time, how much money is spent on recreation, the greatest hindrances that prevent the student from making use of the recreational facilities on campus, and in what way the student has broadened her scope of interest since entering college.

It is hoped by Miss Eunice Hurd, instructor of the class and now acting as co-ordinator for the study, that this survey will help to prepare students to make their own surveys and that it will be used as a sample for showing simliarities and contrasts.

The story of the history of the college and what it offers to the student has already been organized by Melba Parks, a member of the Community Recreation class.

Other members of the class who are chairmen of the committees in charge of the questionnaires are: Sarah Hethcox, Jennie Murphree representative; Jackie Gates, Gilchrist; Elizabeth Boyd, Broward; Martha Moore, Bryan; Jean Jernigan, Reynolds; Mary Voss, town students; and Harriet Duke, Pan Hellenic.

The questionnaire was originally formulated by Elizabeth Boyd and Harrist Duke, who presented it to be approved.

A faculty committee is assisting in the advising capacity.

Golfers Find Game No Soft Bed of Roses

Future Patty Bergs Make New Rules to Meet Difficulties

The life of a golfer is no bed of roses. Just ask any member of the golf classes. The future Patty Bergs of F. S. C. W. find the going a little rough on the school "course" — the old cow pasture opposite the hockey field.

First, there is the difficulty of getting out to the course on time. Everybody knows how hard it is to get out to the gym at the proper time, but to get out to the field as soon as a hard-hearted teacher expects you to is really quite a feat.

Once the enterprising golfer has got to the course, there comes the little matter of hitting the ball. Under the stern eye of the instructor, the poor golfer struggles for the proper stance, tries to remember to keep her head down, swings gracefully, and after recovering from the shock of hitting the ball, looks up to find the little white pill winking impudently behind a tuft of grass a foot away.

This difficulty, however, fades into nothingness once the golfer gets under way, so much greater are the other obstacles than that of hitting the ball. First of all, there is the danger of a sudden shower. Think of the dampened pride of a player, who, secretly gloating over the fact that she has succeeded in getting to the far side of the cow pasture, finds herself suddenly drenched by unexpected April rain.

Rain also causes hazards on the course, and many a golfer has lost her ball as well as her balance in a pool of water. Then there is the problem of avoiding the various patches of sandspurs which dot the course. Why is it a golf ball just seems to be attracted by sandspurs? High grass is also quite irksome to the would-be-golfers, for who would suspect that a ball hit towards the gym would land in that clump of high grass near the stables?

Besides such minor difficulties as sandspurs, high grass, hollows, and pools of rain water, there is yet a greater obstacle to frustrate the golfer—a cow. How many times has poor Belle's life been threatened as she munches her cud in what, in better days, was her private pasture! How often does her piteous "moo" rend the air as a protest against a golf ball that has disturbed her privacy!

So great are the obstacles in the way of a low score that the ingenious F. S. C. W. golfers, refusing to be daunted, have devised a new set of rules. The object of the game as it is now played is to make as high a score as possible. It is said that some amazing results have been produced.

Athletic Board Plans To Purchase Victrola For College Campers

Prominent in plans made for next year by the athletic board in their meeting Monday night, was one for raising money to buy an automatic victrola for the gym. Another event planned for next year is the Athletic Federation of College Women convention here. Speakers brought from the National Physical Education association convention in Atlanta are to be heard by representatives from 29 colleges. The board also will sponsor a campaign for a regulation allowing students to take their dates out to Camp Flastacowo, Sundays for swimming. More participation in intramurals and more student-faculty games are objectives for next year.

Headed by Viola Brooks as president, new officers installed Tuesday in convocation are Bunny Lowery, vice president; Valerie Hunt, secretary; Sarah Jane Stambaugh, treasurer; and Irma Engel, senior intramural manager. First appointment made by the president is Hazel Adams, publicity chairman. Play night chairman will be appointed this week.

Many Events Scheduled In Annual Meet

Teams from All Classes To Strive for Honors In Swiming Races

Freshmen, sophomores, juniors and seniors will hold their annual inter-class swimming meet Thursday afternoon at 4.30 in the college pool.

Events that are scheduled include the 25 yard front crawl, 25 yard back crawl, 25 yard breast stroke, 50 yard medley composed of English racing and crawl, 100 yard relay, side stroke for form, breast stroke for form, elementary back for form, and diving.

Swimmers who will compete will be chosen from the following groups: Freshmen: Louise Rice, Virginia Makemson, Mary Collins, Merryday Rosser, Natalee Houchard, Carolyn Collins, Betty Barry, Marjorie Rader, Mary Swearingen, Earnestine Makemson, Mar-

Continued on page five

The Florida Flambeau

EDITORIAL STAFF

EVELYN FISHER, PEARLE SHEFARD ..... Co-Editors
ARLINE GRAY LOCKHART ..... Assistant Editor
DOROTHY BARCLAY ..... Managing Editor
FRANCES BENSON, ALMA WARREN ..... News Editors

Member National Scholastic Press associations and Florida Intercollegiate Press association.

DEPARTMENTS

Art, Evelyn Glazier, Exchanges, Elizabeth Turner and Ella Virginia Brooks, Features, Frances Waterhouse and Alinda Meacham, Literary, Perrie Chastain and Betty Spicer, Society, Anne Lane and Mary Nobe, Sports, Ben Hall Patten, Typists, Mary Elizabeth Howe, Lucy Kelly, Patsy Dunlap, Rogers and Hazel Alsobrook, Reporters, Blanton Barrett and Mary Sullivan.

REPORTERS: Hazel Adams, Ruth Atkinson, Dorothy Barclay, Blanton Barrett, Dorothy Bellamy, Thelma Chisholm, Marguerite Curry, Homer Coleman, Virginia Davis, Hazel Donnigan, Maxine Fugate, Mary Gober, Margaret Griffin, Louise Howe, Betty Ann Ingraham, Lucy Kelly, Ann Lane, Betty Leach, Martha Livingston, Mary Elizabeth Lyon, Alinda Meacham, Mary Nobe, Mary Rose Alberta Parker, Jean Pierce, Marion Fortunoff, Nancy Rogers, Jane Sharon Lavins Shankland, Elizabeth Spicer, Mary Sullivan, Alma Warren, Frances Waterhouse

BUSINESS STAFF

JANE QUINN ..... Business Manager
ELIZABETH HORST ..... Assistant Manager
RIVA HEMPHILL ..... Circulation Manager

Represented for National Advertising by
NATIONAL ADVERTISING SERVICE INC
College Publishers Representative
Chicago · Boston · New York · Los Angeles
Portland · Seattle

Entered as second class mail matter January 30, 1931, at the post office at Tallahassee, Fla. under act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

Concrete Signs Of Peace at Last!

All predictions to the contrary, students at the University of Florida and the Florida State College for Women have exhibited signs of concrete action upon international affairs as they relate to war and peace.

Most notable achievement upon this campus is the recent good neutrality bill worked out by members of the Emergency Peace campaign, mimeographed at the expense of the campaign, and sent to all students and members of the faculty.

The Emergency Peace campaign while not at first considered a welcome addition to campus organizations has proved itself to be the one campus organization really thoroughly interested in the cause of peace.

Not to be outdone by Florida State's Emergency Peace Campaign the University of Florida's quarterly magazine, the Review, recently published an anti-war edition which for maturity of writing and editing has set a record for itself among college publications. Student contributors included outstanding leaders on the U. of F. campus and one Florida State contributor, the editor of the Distaff.

By securing the cooperation of several other American colleges in a united peace day plan, the executive council of college government has made wide contribution to another contribution to the cause of international understanding. With a program thoroughly practical in nature, dramatic but not in program demanding the participation of many students instead of just a few, the council will celebrate national peace day on Thursday of next week.

The International Relation: clubs of both Florida State and the University of Florida have done much this year to make students conscious of the realities behind diplomatic relations by bringing speakers of international experience to the two campuses.

Peace movements and collegiate organizations are in it together as far as their ability to public ridicule, for the layman always expects high-flown phrases, promises, pledges, and no concrete contributions to the causes being fostered. It is with a great deal of pride that we are able to point to the examples above as definite proof that young people are capable of taking an active interest in public affairs.

We may be accused perhaps for pointing to this issue of the Flambeau as a further evidence that Florida State students can do their share for an international cause

—By Hazel Bowman.

Why Pick On War First?

Why pick on war? Why have peace campaigns and anti-war strikes? Why all this excitement over conflict?

The answer, of course, is obvious. War is waste. War is tragedy. War is hell. Men are killed. Billions of dollars are shot out of guns, blown up in villages, destroyed in art galleries. Such things should not happen in civilized society; resultantly, we have our speeches and our demonstrations. Papers print editorials, women's clubs pass resolutions, patriotic Americans write to their congressmen, students walk out of classes avowing the world that they will not be the crippled, the blind, the white crosses of the future.

And certainly war is waste. The inefficiency of armies is appalling. During the World War it cost $25,000 to kill a man—and 17,000,000 of them were killed. A well-organized gang can in these days get rid of an enemy for about $50. Certainly war is tragedy—consider the broken bodies and minds, the ruined lives. Certainly war is hell: Sherman said so. And then, too, most certainly war is spectacular—be none and the color are fit material for speeches and demonstrations.

But why pick on war? Why not campaign for a stable currency? Why not demonstrate against unemployment, against racketeering, crooked courts, child labor, exploitation of human beings and resources. Why not leave classes—since that seems to be the approved fashion—to show the world that we will not be the unemployed of the future, that we are opposed to paying the bills being run up in coal and oil by the exploiters of the present. If a nation can go mad in its attempts to take the "doughboys out of the trenches by Christmas," why not a little more enthusiasm to take the children out of the bed fields by 1940?

Can it be that the American people can see only that which is spectacular? War is so terrible and so thrilling. Almost any human being will feel moved to tears by the solemn splendor of a soldier's funeral. It requires a very fanatical mind or a poetic soul to weep over a stripped forest or a coal mine ruined for future use by the frenzied haste of the operators to get all they could before the price dropped. The women making lamp-shades for prisons are a hour never marched to work with bands playing and colors flying. The factory man who loses an eye to a bit of flying steel receives no public ovation. Only too many states he receives not even monetary compensation.

Intelligent effort must be made to eradicate war. Very well, it is. But why pick on war? What of these other regarded? Might it not be that war is only a very spectacular symptom of a very deep-seated disease? Might not a fundamental cure of the whole disease prove more lasting than the spreading of a salve, however excellent, over only the most noticeable sores?

—By Dorothy Barclay.

Why Pick On War Alone?

Truly may it be said—war is not the only problem confronting society today, and the conscientious reformer may well question a program advanced to attack but one social ill with that very ill being the least of a letter with a proposal of a "fundamental cure for the whole illness."

Words are cheap, and as long as no one is pressed to contribute to minister the "fundamental cure" the programs with a single cause may surely seem inadequate. But only a reformer of the type Theodore Roosevelt mentions in his autobiography as "demanding only that which means the whole without its parts" would attempt so intensive and extensive a plan. It stands to reason that if it is a long hard struggle to make a nation agree on but one idea, it is next to impossible to make a nation to agree on several, simultaneously. Seasoned leaders know the wisdom of the strategy advocated by W. B. Monro in his book, Personality in Politics, when he says, "It is far better to get first the common background and get it, than to bestow ten times as much energy upon a comprehensive plan of public recreation facilities and get nothing."

We are faced with the fact that any fundamental cure cannot be national in character—because the fundamental problems are all integral parts of our economic system. Any reform advocating a change in economic conditions will have world wide repercussion We will not be allowed to work out our own small problems without the necessity of foreign intercourse. This intercourse will in some cases be in the nature of dispute will war as the accepted method of settling such quarrels—what is to be gained by taking our children out of the beat fields if only to put them in trenches? Only if first we outlaw armed conflict as the god of international justice, can we afford to settle those disputes. Today while men are afraid their ideas and attempts at arbitration will be shots that may kill another nation's ideals, ideas that need to be solved will go unsolved.

It may be rational to think of the crusade against war only as a salve on the most notable sore but there are those who cell to mind another telling allegory. No dentist will extract an abscessed tooth—no matter how acute the condition—until he has first treated the gum to make the removal safe.

—By Mary Jeanne McKay.

Spirit of the Week . . . . . By Scott

This Week

Spain's War Engrosses International Powers

Dainy Parker, out-going editor of the Distaff, has written this week's resume of international affairs. Miss Parker is a member of Phi Beta Sorority, Nine Parker is a sister of Phi Beta Kappa, Phi Alpha Theta, Chi Delta Phi, Sigma Delta Pi, Mortar Board, and Spurgeon.

International news still centers around the disastrous civil struggle in Spain, which supposedly is a problem of concern to the Spanish people. Such has been friction there, the very beginning with Italian, German, French, Russian, and every other conceivable nationality of volunteers, on both sides. This mark, however, the international implications of the war become more complex and more threatening, with the British backdown in regard to the insurgent blockade of Bilbao.

On last Saturday General Franco, rebel commander, refused to allow food supplies, merchant vessels, bound for Bilbao, now under siege of Franco's troops, through the blockade and is supposed, to have sent England a most threatening note fire on her vessels that attempted to come through. By the non-intervention agreement, England had agreed not to send war materials to either party. The vessels in question were carrying food supplies, which Franco maintained were "war material," as the Basque capital would starve very on the defense of the city without food.

Evidently Baldwin promptly called the cabinet together to meet the international crisis. The cabinet was in a very warm spot. To ignore Franco and take the supplies into Bilbao was virtual announcement that England was for the loyalist cause, or would seem that way.

To heed Franco was virtual espousal of the rebel cause. The cabinet evidently considered itself side-stepping with a ringing pronouncement "that any interference with British shipping on the high seas constituted 'piracy', but in the interests of 'safety-first' the British warships would not be used to escort British ships through the three-mile limit of the blockade," which means, simply, that England will heed the blockade England, however, insists that she is merely "advising" vessels not to attempt to run the blockade.

The Labor party in Britain assails this as "running up the white flag" in the insurgent cause. But the Laborites failed by a wide margin to secure a vote of censure in the House of Commons. France rather surprisingly concurs in the blockade, showing a desire to keep dependent France feels on England for the peace of Europe and the integrity of her borders. Any unfortunately the blockade trouble is only part of the threat to Europe's "peace" at the present time. For some time the rumor has been rife in Europe that on coronation day Adolf Hitler has arranged a "civil revolution" in Czechoslovakia by Slovak Separatists and Sudeten Germans in Czech borders, aided quietly by imported Nazi troopers. Although merely a rumor, Hitler could be contemplating such, and certainly with attention focused on the coronation and with the blockade situation very likely tense in Western Europe, Hitler might get by with a great deal in Central Europe.

Fortunately things may not

Continued on page five

Shall We Strike?

Two Campus Leaders Discuss Important Problem Concerning Use, Misuse of Strikes In Furthering Peace

By JO BINION

Jo Binion, out-going freshman adviser, has had part in nearly every major activity during her long her four years here. She is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, Phi Beta Kappa, and Theta Kappa.

Eleanor Williams, out-going associate editor of the Flambeau, belongs to Phi Beta Sorority, Mortar Board, Spurgeon, Pi Kappa Phi Forum, has taken part in S.P.E., Forum, has served as editor, and was past commander of the Florida State Post of the American Legion, the Veterans of Future Wars.

Peace, not violence: diplomacy, not war; construction, not destruction; these are the changed So the youth of our nation would like to acclaim to the world. At least we are agreed on the goal—now the methods of attaining it are in question.

Some sort of demonstration to show our sentiments seems to be the first step. Shall this demonstration be one behind which one's spirit exercises the same as that which urges us on to war, or shall it be one of less questionable duplication? Shall we lay our emphasis on the effectiveness of a method or the method of showing how we feel, or shall we consider more vital the essential spirit that determines the sincerity of any movement?

The sensationalism of a strike would doubtless make for a strong emotional appeal But just how dependable is a stand taken with this sort of emotion as its basis may be easily seen from a review of past instances. Emotion, sensation, are slippery qualities and can't be made the foundation of anything on which to base permanent. Only too readily can

Continued on page six

With Women In War

Another editorial by John Paul Jones, editor of the Florida Review, University of Florida literary magazine. Mr. Jones has just put out an anti-war edition of his magazine and was a contributor to the last issue of The Distaff

Have you ever listened to the coming of a storm, heard its ominous rumble grow louder and louder as it swept across the woods, beating down defenseless trees? If you have, you, too, have had that end-of-the-world feeling and then felt like laughing when you suddenly realized that the terrible sound was only rain and wind.

There is a storm today gathering in the hurricane-center of the world, preparing to whip across the globe to beat down upon, not trees, but men, the defenseless hearts of men. When it has passed there will be little laughter in its wake.

Five years ago prophets shouted and raved that there was danger of war in the world at any moment. They are still repeating the same message, but today their voice is flung from a moving screen of portentous events; it comes like a sharp burst of thunder from an overcast sky.

And the events themselves group together in rumblings that mark the gathering of the storm. They revolve about a mad frenzy of arms building that reminds many people of the "naval scare" of 1913. There have been numerous "peace conferences" during the past few years, just as there were prior to 1914. The "peace conferences" are resulting in the largest expenditure for armament that the world has ever seen. Nearly every American writer into the war budgets of the nations of the world, and especially of those already bloated budgets swell to larger proportions. England alone is planning to spend nearly sixty million pounds sterling. Germany, Hitler asked the people if they wanted butter and other fats to eat or cannon to shoot. He answered in unanimous and tough cannon. So it looks as if something much more fundamental than "peace conferences" is needed.

The sides are forming and it seems to be a matter of time before the referee, death, will be called to officiate. The line-up, on the same old rivals, the satiated states and the unsatiated states. Those who got little or nothing from the World War are growing more and more embittered against those nations that got much. Population pressures are increasing, and the fight for the basic materials, food, power, iron, steel, iron ore, machinery, chemicals, coal, and petroleum, and for control of the seven seas becomes more intense.

But we know these things. We have heard them in class and our insight from daily reading at the hands of the student. We can not help but feel that something must break loose. If we face the issue honestly and squarely we must base ourselves for the approaching storm. Realising this, the vital question is what will be the attitude of the United States? What are the fear attitude of women? Surely we are not still blinded to reality by the sight of a dashing uniform and a straight back? Have you ever seen a bedraggled uniform with tattered, empty sleeves?

Oh yes, poets have sung and will sing of the stories of war. We have not failed to see the picture of men marching proudly into the marching mouths of guns, pictures of men who go bravely! But those who are about to enter that do not fall so often or so readily from the mouths of poets, for they are cries from the broken hearts of women who do not die. It is not men who bear the brunt of war. Men have the easier task for they only die. It is the mothers, the sisters, wives, and sweethearts who should have the final say about war. It is your voice that should be heard for it is your sons who will be broken and your tears that will wash dead bodies and your thoughts that must travel bitterly backward through the years.

No, men make wars because they do not have to live and face the consequences of their acts. They tell you that it is your patriotic duty need to send your men to "fight for democracy" and to "tear down the walls of tyranny and despotism." They lie when they tell you you would not have a man who will not fight. They make you despite the male pacifist. They, for the most part, do not have to face empty years and resentful thoughts. You do.

We only repeat what men and women the world over are saying when we state that, in fact, if women must stop wars. Men have talked about it through the ages, but they have done nothing. It is fundamentally up to women to preserve peace. Proof of this lies in the fact that the last twenty years of peace efforts have been the setting for some of our worst conflicts.

In conclusion we add that there are many things to prevent you from doing anything about war. Prejudice is one obstacle to yourself. You are targets daily for propaganda that serves either consciously or unconsciously to prepare you for the hour when you will send some man

POR PEACE

By ZULEMAE RUSSELL, Junior

Thundering is heard from afar
Oh! God let it not be war.
The mother heart stands still
The maiden eye heavenward turns
On every lip a prayer burns.
Oh! God give them power to run
From the destruction of a gun.

to war, little thinking of what must follow, but considering only the sacrifice you are making. You read about the trip of mothers to France with the graves of their sons, and you are glad of the glorious sacrifices that these valiant women made. You do not think of the actual hearts of the mothers who made that trip, the women who must face the fact that they have sons buried in nameless graves; you do not think of the mothers who must make such more valuable to the nation the son would have been if he had lived. Such bitterness you must experience and that experience if events follow their customary paths.

And we must remember when people point accusingly at the man who refuses to fight that pacifists must be divided into two classes, those who will not fight under any conditions and those who refuse to fight aggressive wars in foreign soil. We feel that a man who would refuse to fight for his home and his people when attacked is not a man, but the person who merely refuses to fight an aggressive war on foreign soil for some concept that is forgotten just as soon as the war is over, that man is noble and is doing society a favor

Halt! Cry The Dead

Edited by Frederick A. Barber

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bechtell, graduate student in psychology, active member of the Emergency Peace Campaign, member of Chi Delta Phi, and contributor to The Distaff.

As stated on its title leaf, this booklet is a pictorial primer on war and a presentation of some ways of working for peace. It is planned to catch the attention of its readers. In such a pace that we devote shamefully little time to even the graves and deepest problems confronting us today: life, death, the fate of civilization.

Graphically and relentlessly the dozens of illustrations depict the cost of past wars in lives and money, the probable technicues of future wars, the blind hypocrisy of the munitions profiteers, the farce of quantitative and qualitative disarmament as practiced rip to the present; the unlovely story of a challenge disregarded and a faith betrayed. Presented as they are, these facts grip the imagination in more quickly and realistically than words alone could do.

Besides the illustrations there are brief, straight-to-the-point articles by President Roosevelt, Senator Borah, Selma Lagerlof, J. B. Priestley, Harry Emerson Fosdick, General Pershing, Carrie Chapman Catt, and other eminent persons. They speak of our forgiving pledge to the Unknown Soldier, of the paradoxical sense of values, of our heedlessness and fatal complacency in the fact that wars never settle anything, of the impact of conflict upon the children of this world, of who it is that pays for war and who it is that profits from it, of the actual steps which can be taken to halt our international suicide.

Irritating questions are raised: who won the last war, why? Here by any modern standards is the next one; why, since public opinion is overwhelmingly against war, do we make so little progress toward peace; why, since millions of mass murder with our Christian principles, how can we prove that we are not going right down a vast bloody drain and still have the unmitigated gall to ask what is wrong with the world?

Definite ways in which the average man and woman can work for peace are pointed out; steps to be taken by them as voting citizens, as church members, as parents, as teachers, as students; ways of transforming hatred of past enemies into a militant crusade against war itself and against the causes of war. It is not a helpful book for those who wish to purse, unruffled, the even tenor of their ways.

So much interest has been exhibited in the pictorial accounts of war horrors as described in Halt! Cry the Dead that we are giving here a second review of the same book as seen by another student. The Emergency Peace Campaign thinks the book worth copy, so far as we could ascertain on campus.

Beverly Horn, student of nursing, has professional reason to be greatly concerned with the prospect of a future war, and has been an active member of the S.P.E. she has proved her interest in anti-war activities by her review.

"Halt! Cry the Dead" is a pictorial primer on war and some ways of working for peace. The collection of pictorial and text material has been gathered from practically all over the earth—cartoons, drawings, newspaper clippings, books and charts—and have been arranged and edited by Frederick A. Barber. The first part of the book deals with armaments and the destruction of men and property.

Striking statements: money spent in the World war would pay wages to 15,000,000 workers for 200 years—the World war cost 400 billion dollars—it killed 10 million lives—told vet erans in an international meeting in 1933 said, "Peace, peace at any price, peace by every means, but peace above all!"—it is for us to cry out of every tax dollar goes to maintain the war system—tramp—tramp—ten in a row—8 seconds apiece / 1 day—few if any—for days! These are the dead in the war.

Harry Emerson Fosdick, Senator Wm. E. Borah, Gen. John Pershing and numerous others have contributed pertinent remarks. The second part tells what we as students and church members, voting citizens and teachers and mothers can do about it. Pacifists, Gandhi, Polish artist, startlingly depicts the retirement plans of war in several pictures and in the scroll "The Voice of the Dead." The volume is alarming in its disclosures and is well worth a couple of hours devoted to its perusal.

usie Squeals
nd Broadens
After Capture

orority Girls Accept New male Into Close Bond Of Sisterhood

ge still squeals. What baby ession! After squirming the situations Susie has ed in the past week? It was morning from the very be-the animals, recalling nd chase she led their terific person who followed through mud puddles and ave fences, slipping and ng until he finally grasped ecurely between his deter-fingers.

ast spectacle about the matter, especially when he her into a sorority house pace offering! Humph!—
father, oomph! Susie would them. Rushing and ising wildly, she eluded the ny fingers of her captors dashed headlong into the . Susie's whereabouts rea secret until she left afternoon when she mis-ly squealed to Mr. Hand and the Gainesville person her morning surprise y about the campus. What the use anyway? They'd it well as I could.
e decided that col-
s quite an experience.

Susie squeals happily now ened milk and bread from college dining room are con-to the meandering ef-
and a bed of warm blankets he well satisfied with her ts. Susie Student is a ifts from somewhere on the Susie She smiles, wrinkling ing black snout appealing-she recalls the events leading her enrollment at Florida and scolds herself wildly thought that it's not every ge who can squeeze hero the sisterhood of a large
's college!

Business Organizations Educate People Against War

Continued from page one

ed in promoting the cause of the world. Fourteen of ex-servicemen joined in ternational action to abolish ntions for peaceful ion and settlement. They have ber motto, "No more war, no ic militarism, and support the League of Nations." The this section of the Women's ternational League for Peace
Freedom has 30 groups num-g 1,000 members. Their ac-s educational and they work whom through member or-groups in France are the ation for Peace through the Association for Concibetween the Crime of War, and Pacifists of Peace. of the European countries,
Great Britain seems the active. Of the educational there are the National Council working through rences, special campaigns,
s, and other publications;
League of Nations Union,
ben movies, posters, and ublic reports; the Union of ratic Control, which sponrums, speakers, and pub-and the Rotary Interna-
which attempts to work a greater understanding national economics, world s, and international fel-
More special associations same type are the All-Pen-association, which merits its by including in its member-people, regardless of race, or color, and works through ication of a paper in diflanguages. Active especially the universities is the British ation League of Nations Soceral of the British groups to peace through interrelationship and sponsor activities are valued among

The World Alliance for oting through Churches is strong, and the Fellowship of ciliation, the Friends Peace ittee, and the International ue League work for peace
the basis of friendship and ts motto is, "While war-are being built for war, friendships for peace." One the main active organizations planning ards together for people from ent countries.
The United States there are erable organizations having ilar motive. The pres-of these groups are largely

Florida State College Acts as Miniature Of "Great American Melting Pot" for Foreigners

By CLARA LUKE

Clara Luke, a freshman journalism student, contributes her first important article for the Flambeau.

In Notes on Pacifism Albert Einstein has written: "Peace cannot be kept by force. It can only be achieved by understanding." And on the campus of Florida State College for Women, a like attempt is being made—the fusion of interests of different nationalities is taking place though almost without conscious attention from the student body. In Tallahassee—memories of dark skies suddenly lit up as a barrage of shells belched from enemy guns to wreck ruin on men who grimly returned the fire; men who wonder "why?" as they see their comrades falling to the right and to the left of them: memories of crude, overcrowded hospitals, and memories of feeble hope spread in Paris.

Some of the faculty of Florida State participated in this war. One of them was even given a reward for bravery. But we did not mention that when he consented to be interviewed for this story. He will be entertained at a breakfast given by members of Alpha Sigma Phi, honorary Classical society, plans a tea for its returning members.

Closing of the program will be the vocational service at 10 o'clock on Sunday morning with Dr. Conrad as speaker and with music by Mrs. Glenn Dole.

Seniors of the college may attend the Junior-Senior banquet and the classes Saturday morning. The banquet is formal and the program is open to the entire student body.

Also an added attraction for the homecoming event, it was announced today, is the Annual Reece Haun New York city opera singers. It is a graduate of Florida State college will sing on the opening program Friday night in connection with the Dr. Bridges' talk. Mrs. Haun, who was graduated from the college with a record of a medallion by the college Alumnae association last spring for her outstanding notable achievements in the field of music, is here visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Haun.

Another interesting event Saturday afternoon are: Miss Louise Richardson and Miss Hazel Stevenson at the Alumnae house from 5 to 6 o'clock; the modern dance department of which Dr. Seymour is the head will entertain at the home of Miss Lucy Gray from 4 to 6 o'clock; Miss Henry will entertain at Miss Lessie Westbrook from 4 to 6 o'clock; the home economics faculty and the girls who are living in the home management house will be at home in the home management house from 3:30 to 5:30 o'clock; Mrs. F. Udell and Dr. Katherine Abbey will entertain at the Alumnae house; Mrs Sadie Young, Miss Eada Devinney, and Dr. Richie will be at home from 4 to 6 o'clock; and the women's glee club will entertain at the Alumnae house from 4 to 6 o'clock.

Another terrible memory is seeing a shell strike by another to explode beside it, only to present the size of a grape fruit tear into his stomach. He survived but—blind.

"Our advance in the Argonne was so swift that the Germans did not have time to bury their dead. As we moved up, we passed literally hundreds of killed Germans lying everywhere. Allied Horses helped fill the air with evil odors.

"I saw one of the worst sights imaginable when I went into a dressing station after a severe pas-

TO MOTHER . . . .

On Mother's Day, a lasting remembrance — a photograph by

PIKE'S STUDIO

107 W. College Phone 787

War Horrors Are Reviewed By Soldiers

Memories of Struggle Related by Faculty Who Fought.

Lucy Kelly is one of the Flambeau reporters and has just been appointed to special feature writer.

Many minds will be full of war memories next Thursday when Peace day is observed in Tallahassee—memories of dark skies suddenly lit up as a barrage of shells belched from enemy guns to wreck ruin on men who grimly returned the fire; men who wonder "why?" as they see their comrades falling to the right and to the left of them: memories of crude, overcrowded hospitals, and memories of feeble hope spread in Paris.

Some of the faculty of Florida State participated in this war. One of them was even given a reward for bravery. But we did not mention that when he consented to be interviewed for this story. He will be entertained at a breakfast given by members of Alpha Sigma Phi, honorary Classical society, plans a tea for its returning members.

Closing of the program will be the vocational service at 10 o'clock on Sunday morning with Dr. Conrad as speaker and with music by Mrs. Glenn Dole.

Seniors of the college may attend the Junior-Senior banquet and the classes Saturday morning. The banquet is formal and the program is open to the entire student body.

Also an added attraction for the homecoming event, it was announced today, is the Annual Reece Haun New York city opera singers. It is a graduate of Florida State college will sing on the opening program Friday night in connection with the Dr. Bridges' talk. Mrs. Haun, who was graduated from the college with a record of a medallion by the college Alumnae association last spring for her outstanding notable achievements in the field of music, is here visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Haun.

Another interesting event Saturday afternoon are: Miss Louise Richardson and Miss Hazel Stevenson at the Alumnae house from 5 to 6 o'clock; the modern dance department of which Dr. Seymour is the head will entertain at the home of Miss Lucy Gray from 4 to 6 o'clock; Miss Henry will entertain at Miss Lessie Westbrook from 4 to 6 o'clock; the home economics faculty and the girls who are living in the home management house will be at home in the home management house from 3:30 to 5:30 o'clock; Mrs. F. Udell and Dr. Katherine Abbey will entertain at the Alumnae house; Mrs Sadie Young, Miss Eada Devinney, and Dr. Richie will be at home from 4 to 6 o'clock; and the women's glee club will entertain at the Alumnae house from 4 to 6 o'clock.

"Our advance in the Argonne was so swift that the Germans did not have time to bury their dead. As we moved up, we passed literally hundreds of killed Germans lying everywhere. Allied Horses helped fill the air with evil odors.

"I saw one of the worst sights imaginable when I went into a dressing station after a severe pas-

Alumnae to Gather For First "College"

Continued from page one

Tallahassee Concert theater. Tours of the campus, trips to camps and at-homes by faculty members will be among the day's entertainment. There will be a dinner Saturday evening at the Woman's Club of Groveland, president of the Alumnae association, as toastmistress. Dr. Conrad will give the invocation and Dean Olivian Downs will speak on "Florida State College."

Mortar Board to Entertain

Alumnae who are members of Mortar Board, honorary society, will be entertained at a breakfast Saturday morning given by Sigma Phi, honorary Classical society, plans a tea for its returning members.

Closing of the program will be the vocational service at 10 o'clock on Sunday morning with Dr. Conrad as speaker and with music by Mrs. Glenn Dole.

Seniors of the college may attend the Junior-Senior banquet and the classes Saturday morning. The banquet is formal and the program is open to the entire student body.

Also an added attraction for the homecoming event, it was announced today, is the Annual Reece Haun New York city opera singers. It is a graduate of Florida State college will sing on the opening program Friday night in connection with the Dr. Bridges' talk. Mrs. Haun, who was graduated from the college with a record of a medallion by the college Alumnae association last spring for her outstanding notable achievements in the field of music, is here visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Haun.

Another interesting event Saturday afternoon are: Miss Louise Richardson and Miss Hazel Stevenson at the Alumnae house from 5 to 6 o'clock; the modern dance department of which Dr. Seymour is the head will entertain at the home of Miss Lucy Gray from 4 to 6 o'clock; Miss Henry will entertain at Miss Lessie Westbrook from 4 to 6 o'clock; the home economics faculty and the girls who are living in the home management house will be at home in the home management house from 3:30 to 5:30 o'clock; Mrs. F. Udell and Dr. Katherine Abbey will entertain at the Alumnae house; Mrs Sadie Young, Miss Eada Devinney, and Dr. Richie will be at home from 4 to 6 o'clock; and the women's glee club will entertain at the Alumnae house from 4 to 6 o'clock.

Marianne, Mrs. Cornwall P. Chadwick, Mrs. Charlotte Chase, Milton, Sara Kreatman, Marguerite Ala, Mrs. McAllister, Mount Pleasant, Mrs. Annie May Smith, Orlando, Roberta Clifford, Wilma Mitchell, Ocala, Adelaide Duval, Lucille Horne, Palatka, Mary Catherine Drennan, Palmetto, Louise Goodbread, Pensacola, Virginia Schimmel, Isabel Brainard, Mary Mc-Millan, Lillian Pasco, Sarah Taylor Nobles Maulton and Mrs. Robert Lee Ruley, Plant City, Cedora Futch, Quincy, Mrs. Dorothy Shady Grove, Louise Bailey Sanford, Charlotte Allen Tampa, B. Chapman, Mrs. Winifred Strong Mosely, Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Sims, Mrs. Dorothy R. Whitner, St. Augustine, Mrs. Myrtle Warren Fehlhaber, Tampa, Lurline Dennis Cone ton, Mrs. Effie Doran Ames, Mrs. Rosemary Brewster, Nelle Norris, Mrs. Mabelle Williams Graceville, Mrs. Grace Flournoy Ashmore, Vera Barefoot, Mary Elizabeth Grace Dove Stevens, Mary Key, Groveland, Mrs. Cecil Bunn, Lake City, Hazel Hendricks, Ruth Persons, Mary Newton Green, Willie Belle Terry, Anna Brown.

Many Events Scheduled In Annual Water Meet

Continued from page three

Jane Marwick, Connie Ash, Janet Hewett, Esther Schoen, Kitty Ford, Elsie Goltz, Martha Robbins, Marjorie Benson, and Evelyn Beale.

Sophomores: Dorothy Marwick, Florence Ward, Jean Gillis, Dot Colburn, Sarah Zytil, Betty White, Margaret Walcott and Nancy Lowry.

Juniors: Frances Thrift, Mary Peacock, Marguerite Brown, Nan Clark, Irma Engle, Mary Katherine Scott, and Helen Dendel.

Seniors: Margaret Marvell, Polly Flint, Peggy McMichael and Sarah Rebhorn.

Russian Professor Is Campus Visitor

Pierre Lyzlau, associate professor of law at the University of Latvia in Riga, Latvia, who has recently finished a period of study in criminology at the University of Chicago, was a visitor at Florida State College for Women last week-end.

The Russian professor stated in an interview that he found crime to get more "play" than any other American law abroad; but the newspapers in his own country pay little attention to crime as a source of news.

During his stay here the visitor was entertained by Dr. Annie Popper of the history department. Dr. Popper invited a group of faculty members and students to meet the guest of the international law class and the honorary sociology, Phi Alpha Theta, to meet him last Friday night. In the group were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Becker, Miss Martin Irish, Miss Ruth Koch, Dr. and Mrs. Ernest Liddell, Miss Clara Guerry, Mrs. Amy Bridges Baldwin, Miss Cathryn Baker, Miss Elizabeth Parker, Miss Alma Lester, Miss Lillian Burford, Miss Audrey Cooper and Miss Elizabeth Lenz.

The professor plans to return to Latvia in July. He is now on a tour of the United States and stated that he was much impressed by the beauty of the college campus and the vicinity of Tallahassee. He also visited Sarasota Springs during his stay.

NSFA Forum Holds Peace Discussions

Emergency Peace Work Here is Outgrowth Of NSFA Forum

Polly Freilich has been chairman during the past year of the National Student Federation of America, and sponsor of the freshman class.

The National Student Federation of America considers the securing and maintaining of peace in the world today to be one of the most important duties of every American college student.

The N. S. F. A. Forum group on this campus has held a number of profitable discussions this year on peace problems. One of the major outgrowths of these discussions is the local branch of the Emergency Peace campaign. This group is awakening students to the fact that following Herr Hitler in any such treks, Mussolini's apparent friendship with the German dictator is considered as a bluff to use with Britain and France against Export Germany to bring Britain around to grant concessions in, say, the Mediterranean. Mussolini is very effectively tied up with Ethiopia at present as second count, without aid, or even with the aid that Italy could give it, will be impossible for Germany to carry on war, annunciation Germany probably has, but food she has not. At the present time having to threaten to seize the property of farmers who have not been taxed production quotas. On third count, none of the Balkan States are strong enough at the moment to take the German side; rather, if any of them join anything, it will more than likely that the French and Russian agreement with Poland and France and Russia would come to their aid.

On the other side of the picture, though, is the German navy which is being built up for a great revival of German power and prestige. To realize this report, Germany has no submarines cannon for bitter, as has been so widely published. Rather it is going to have to come across with submarines as the prestige and stability of his government will be in doubt, to say the least. There must be some other reason an attempt to fulfill his promises; in doing it in this manner he would be encouraging German unity by providing the nation with a common enemy from without.

France realizes this with more poignancy than any other country in Europe and therein lies the greatest danger to the maintenance in the British lead in the blockade affair. All of which leads to the conclusion that England, whether she likes or not, seems to hold the key to the situation. What England will do no one can guess probably not even England herself.

"Kay, what'll we give 'em?"

"Music and Rhythm Hal, everybody loves it!"

St's Chesterfield Time

HAL KEMP

Voted most popular dance band

Starring KAY THOMPSON

EVERY FRIDAY AT 8:30 P. M., E.S.T.

ALL COLUMBIA STATIONS

Chesterfield

THE FIRST PRODUCT TO HOLD TWO NATIONAL RADIO AWARDS

Eyeman Will Head Panel Of Faculty Members For World Crisis Discussion

In connection with Florida State College for Women's peace demonstrations, the Emergency Peace Campaign will give as its contribution to the spirit of the week, a faculty panel discussion on the subject "Is a World Solution the Solution of the Present World Crisis?" The panel discussion is scheduled for 4:30 Monday in the Augusta Conradi Little Theater.

Dr. Ralph Eyeman will act as chairman of the discussion, with Dr. Raymond Bellamy presenting the population, race, and social side. Miss Marian Irish and Miss Hallie Young will discuss the political, the economic, and the financial sides. The effects of natural resources will be taken up by Mr. Henry Becker.

All students and faculty are invited to attend this panel.

This Week

Continued from page four

be as black as they seem. For one thing, European observers, whose opinions must be fairly reliable, say that Mussolini has no intentions of actually making Herr Hitler in any such treks. Mussolini's apparent friendship with the German dictator is considered as a bluff to use with Britain and France against Export Germany to bring Britain around to grant concessions in, say, the Mediterranean. Mussolini is very effectively tied up with Ethiopia at present as second count, without aid, or even with the aid that Italy could give it, will be impossible for Germany to carry on war, annunciation Germany probably has, but food she has not. At the present time having to threaten to seize the property of farmers who have not been taxed production quotas. On third count, none of the Balkan States are strong enough at the moment to take the German side; rather, if any of them join anything, it will more than likely that the French and Russian agreement with Poland and France and Russia would come to their aid.

On the other side of the picture, though, is the German navy which is being built up for a great revival of German power and prestige. To realize this report, Germany has no submarines cannon for bitter, as has been so widely published. Rather it is going to have to come across with submarines as the prestige and stability of his government will be in doubt, to say the least. There must be some other reason an attempt to fulfill his promises; in doing it in this manner he would be encouraging German unity by providing the nation with a common enemy from without.

France realizes this with more poignancy than any other country in Europe and therein lies the greatest danger to the maintenance in the British lead in the blockade affair. All of which leads to the conclusion that England, whether she likes or not, seems to hold the key to the situation. What England will do no one can guess probably not even England herself.

STATE THEATRE

FRIDAY and SATURDAY April 16 - 17

THE WORD HAS NEVER SEEN ANYTHING LIKE IT!

POP TOWN

SUNDAY AND MONDAY April 18 - 19

CALL IT A DAY

Ann Dvorak

Olivia de Havilland

Frank McHugh

Jean Muir

Alan Mowbray

Directed by William Keighley

Produced by Hal B. Wallis

Warner Bros. First National

TUESDAY, APRIL 20

Gail Patrick

NEVER LET ME LIE

COMEDY

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 21

JOHN BOLES and MARGARET PERRY

Espionage

A MYSTERY DRAMA

THURSDAY, APRIL 22

TIME OUT FOR ROMANCE

ROBERT ARMSTRONG

ALICE FAYE

GLENDA FARRELL

Taylor Meets Presbyterians In Conference

Missions Executive Holds Openings Abroad With Girls Interested

Dr. Kerr Taylor, educational secretary of the Presbyterian executive committee on foreign missions, will be in Tallahassee all day tomorrow for conferences with students who want to know present openings on foreign fields.

He will also speak at the home of Miss Richard Wylie, the Presbyterian student secretary, at 2:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon. Anyone wishing a conference with him may arrange for this with Miss Wylie.

Several members of the Presbyterian student league this past week attended meetings of the Presbyterian groups in various parts of the state, where they spoke on student work at the campus. Miriam Harrold and Lalia Brenon went to Panama City Tuesday to talk to the members of the Presbytery of Florida; yesterday Miriam Harrold and Merryday Rosser spoke in Madison at the women's auxiliary of the presbytery of Florida; and Thelma McGuire spoke at Live Oak. Mrs. Smyrna at a joint meeting of the Presbytery and the women's auxiliary of the northern Presbyterian church.

Monday night a group of Presbyterian students will have charge of the women's auxiliary meeting in the local church. The program will be entitled "Using or Losing Our College Days."

Both the Methodist and Baptist students are planning outings at the college camp this weekend.

The Baptist Y. W. A. group is going to camp Friday afternoon and returning Saturday afternoon. Miss Susan Abney, the secretary of the Baptist Young People, will hold a discussion group at camp Friday night and Saturday afternoon using the book "The Life of Basil Lee Whitsett."

New council members will be elected Monday morning at the day school. Sunday night, instead of having a program, the B. Y. P. U. will have a discussion on "The Character of God."

The Methodist students are going to camp Saturday at 1:45 and returning Monday morning before breakfast. That morning at Sunday-school Dr. Abby will give the last of a series of talks on "What Religion Means to Me."

Senior Committeewoman Will Be Chosen Soon

Senior Committeewoman will be elected at the next N. S. F. A. forum to be held Tuesday night at 7:45.

The election will be followed by the concluding discussion on compulsory convocation at Florida State college. Eleanor Williams and Nancy Mack will present brief summaries of the arguments given at the last meeting and will lead the forum discussion afterwards.

The place of the meeting will be announced in convocation on Tuesday.

Shall We Strike?

Continued from page four

By JO BINION

they be? How about to serve the purpose of the opposite side. So may the spirit behind a strike be compared to the spirit behind war itself.

I question the earnestness of all participants in strike movements. Human nature at its best provides for few leaders and many followers who follow and seldom recognizing the true principle underlying the issue. I wonder what percentage of the strikers use the strike demonstrations as a rationalization for cutting classes. I should like to know how many participants are actually reached by any educational program preceding the strike day.

The strike movement is of a type to receive more publicity than the less ostentatious program. However, though a misinformed public opinion should never be taken as our criterion, the idea for change brings with it to the general public some understanding. Consequently, the success and the extension of our student movement is to depend on how much on what the outside world thinks of it, we can't afford to be totally uninfluenced by the judgment our elders are only too eager to cast upon us.

Let's denounce war. Let's demonstrate to the world that we are a thinking generation, and what's more important, that we know how to think with level heads.

IRC Groups Working For World Peace

International Events Are Subjects Discussed By Local Group

By MARY KATHRYN GIBSON

Under the presidency of Mary Kathryn Gibson, the International Relations club recently brought to the campus Dr. Ratcliff and Sir Herbert Ames, figures of international fame. Miss Gibson is out-going chairman of the campus social committee, member of Eta Sigma Phi, and Mortar Board.

The International Relations clubs located throughout the United States and many parts of the world are sponsored by the Carnegie Endowment for International peace and are under the direction of such outstanding men as Nicholas Murray Butler. The International Relations club of this campus was founded several years ago under the direction of Dr. Mosely, who is at present club sponsor, and Ida Engel, class of 1935.

The club endeavors through programs of world events to inform student members and the student individuals on campus about international affairs, thereby trying to carry out the ideal of bringing about international understanding and thus a more peaceful situation.

During the brief years that this club has been on the campus it has done numerous things to advance the cause. Interesting open forums on current problems of the world; presented student programs based at closer participation in developing them, and bringing outstanding men like Martha Thomas of France, to the campus, are a few of the outstanding speakers such as Samuel K. Ratcliff and Sir Herbert Ames; and the book reviews which have been held especially for students interested in international affairs and world peace.

These are but example practical on most campuses where there are I. R. C. clubs, this organization of all colleges having a limited closed membership but with the ideals of all students on campus who through their scholastic standing and interest in world affairs and peace prove themselves worthy of membership.

The club, being international in scope, has endeavored to give unbiased information in regard to all countries of the world. Information is sent to the various clubs in the United States from the Geneva office. Much of this material are important recent books and pamphlets; quite many news letters given to each member. Better international interrelations are also encouraged through the student exchange scholarships, the students can study in countries other than their native land.

It is the aim of our club on campus to create in the minds of world fellowship and peace, and strive to develop in our members the ideal of true citizens on campus an intelligent interest and curiosity in regard to world affairs.

Shall We Strike?

Continued from page four

By JO BINION

ben to be about to serve the purpose of the opposite side. So may the spirit behind a strike be compared to the spirit behind war itself.

I question the earnestness of all participants in strike movements. Human nature at its best provides for few leaders and many followers who follow and seldom recognizing the true principle underlying the issue. I wonder what percentage of the strikers use the strike demonstrations as a rationalization for cutting classes. I should like to know how many participants are actually reached by any educational program preceding the strike day.

The strike movement is of a type to receive more publicity than the less ostentatious program. However, though a misinformed public opinion should never be taken as our criterion, the idea for change brings with it to the general public some understanding. Consequently, the success and the extension of our student movement is to depend on how much on what the outside world thinks of it, we can't afford to be totally uninfluenced by the judgment our elders are only too eager to cast upon us.

Let's denounce war. Let's demonstrate to the world that we are a thinking generation, and what's more important, that we know how to think with level heads.

Students Unaware of Peace Movements On the Campuses

Continued from page one

bellion against all sentiment and idealism. Students who had hardly started to live come home from college to die, and those of the people who waited for them after college returned to be casualties of drawing them back to normal. The nation honors returning soldiers for a short time, and then when the hysteria of war has calmed down, leaves them to find their place in a changed world and in a world that has forgotten them.

How can we colleges students genuinely participate in war? For in spite of the results of war that all of us know as well because we have heard them so often, we still insist on sitting back easily, refusing to take our part in rightful responsibility, and continuing to leave the whole matter of peace or war to the decision of older people even when we know that the decisions to be made, we will be the ones to carry it out.

And so we come to the question of how we students may make our voices heard, and cause our opinions to be noticed. At the present time two methods of accomplishing this purpose are being offered to the college students of the country. Considering this, it hardly seems possible that there are a vast number of students on our own campus who do not realize the significance of these two movements, and who, when confronted with the suggestions and a request for cooperation, and unable to see how such movements may effect the national peace emblems.

The first is through the use of the strike. The idea originated in the United American Congress, which includes among its members not only college students representing all the young persons of college age who live in the United States, but also suggested that colleges all over the country, and representative of all classes, should participate in an anti-war strike on the day of April 22, by walking out of classes for one hour. It is thought that this suggestion originated from a representative number of American colleges, it will mean that the young men and women of the nation are thinking seriously enough to be ready, in large numbers, to take a stand and dare to be different.

The second method of showing student opinion originating here on our own campus, as the supporting of the amendment of the student body. This method is to take the form of a Peace Demonstration Week. Other colleges are being contacted in an attempt to make the peace emphasis national in character. The date set is April 22, and the plans are that the colleges demonstrate for peace by parades, class meetings, election forums and faculty lectures.

Arguments for and against both methods may be found. For instance, it may easily be said that the anti-war strike would afford a lot of students the opportunity for cutting a class without even thinking about the anti-war purpose behind the strike and it may also be said that a strike could be a mere demonstration that would not live, and the feeling but actually accomplish nothing. On the other hand, it may will be argued that students must necessarily be aware of the reason why they are leaving class at least during the five minutes that they are leaving it would be an opportunity for students to actually participate in a peace movement instead of having to sit passive and listen to speakers lecture to them rather than for them. A strike would be an effective way of forcing the public to realize that students are considering problems and are making their own decisions.

Also, it may be said that a Peace Demonstration day might easily degenerate into just another platonic gathering of speakers and listeners, as suggested of them and that is all. It is not so daring a method of expression as the strike idea, in fact has yet been developed into a national movement, while the strike has the advantage of already being accepted as a method of national participation. On the other hand, it may be argued that a Peace day would be a more sane and peaceful method of presenting a peaceful movement, and it might possibly be a more certain way of educating students concerning peace.

There is a great need to excite the interest of the student majority; there is a need of pe.sonal participation in political activity on the part of students in the two Americas. President Roosevelt traveled to South America to attend this conference which is said to have been the largest peace conference since the League of Nations in 1919.

Today in both large and small communities throughout the United States peace meetings are taking held. These are not attended by middle age and older persons alone but also by the youth of our nation. Youth is playing a larger part in peace today than ever before. Youth is pleading for peace and asking that the United States stay out of the next war. It has what is perhaps the best of reasons for this, for the next war, the war which will again take the youth of the nation of the world and control them under its heel.

Even the campus of the Florida State College for Women, in the executive session of the College Government association, originated plans for a national peace day. This is to be in the form of a nation-wide participation of college girls in a movement to dictate their desire for peace in a manner which will be effective nationally.

Letters have been sent to 700 colleges telling about these plans and asking them to take the most serious consideration to this movement. The date set for peace day is indeed an excellent one, for the youth of the world of America is doing toward reaching that great goal of peace.

Members of the United States Congress have in the past year or so brought to attention many concerning neutrality. The neutrality law, as amended in the present session of Congress, states that upon the outbreak of or during war between foreign countries or such a civil war as exists in Spain, the President shall proclaim and the facts thereof and thereafter it shall be illegal to send or carry arms, munitions or implements of war from any place within the United States to any nation of strike plans. Students if they wish, may secure from the national headquarters of the American Student union information as to the summer colleges planning to participate in the strike, the various ways they are making, the suggestion of plans for their own local campus. With a local chairman of each campus acting as coordinator of the plans, we have unity, and in unity, strength.

There are other dramatic qualities in the strike. Student youth is actively doing something to combat war, even though she is only walking out of class or leaving the platform she may be doing in order to devote a day to peace. The fact that she is "striking" for peace, that she defends all over the country are striking drives her a feeling of solidarity with a national movement which in itself is dramatic. Dramatic discussions or the presentation of peace plays cannot quite reproduce this feeling, we believe, because in the former only a few students are taking part in it. For on the latter masses of students are acting together.

Finally, the purposefulness of the strike, to which everything we have already said applies, now this article has related. It may be helpful to students, how the purposefulness of the strike is kept before the students taking part in it. For several months before the strike hour, student committees are held at which plans are laid for engaging speakers of national import on the program during the strike hour and committees are appointed to arrange for pamphlets, posters, and a parade, perhaps, if these are part of the strike plans. Student pickets are also appointed to remind us of the object for which we are set aside for it. These pickets also if they'd any need, help to keep the rallies and parades orderly. Last year the New York strike demonstrations that were over the country were conducted with activity and enthusiasm, befitting a sincere protest of college and high school youth against war.

In conclusion, those of us who favor the strike method might reiterate: We do not consider our strike an educational forum or an anti-war rival movement struggle for mastery. Our strike is an activity which will supply the most practical insurance that the anti-war movement are educational instruments only in a parallel sense. Basically, they are instruments of political pressure which can only realize their effectiveness by applying thousands of students into unified organization against war.

War—When, Why and Where Forms Conversation Topic

European Countries Having Race for Armament Never Equalled Before; United States Prepares and Talks of Peace

By ELIZABETH CAUSEY

Elizabeth Causey is a member of the newspaper reportorial staff:

With the major nations of Europe preparing more and more each day for war, the little three-lettered word, w-a-r, has fast become the topic of conversation in the walks of life throughout the world. Will there be another war soon? Who will be the participants? How long will it last? These are only a few of the questions heard in drug-store row, restaurants, over back yard fences, and between Mrs. Van Astorbilt and Mrs. Whitley's chauffeurs.

Today in Europe there is taking place the greatest armament never equalled before in the history of the world. France has recently voted to match Germany's armament program, and at the same time it is taking of peace. Recently there was held at Buenos Aires, Argentina, a meeting for the purpose of which was to bring about a better understanding between quate defense. Therefore, with minimum numbers of both students and others behind it, the anti-war strike can become an effective, powerful political pressure.

Shall We Strike?

By ELEANOR WILLIAMS

Continued from page four

We recognize the fact, however, that no matter how many students representing voters were to walk out on April 22, no law would still have little political influence. The Congress of the economic control demanded declaration of war. Thus in addition to the walking out of seek labor's support. Labor is dealing blind at organized refusal to cooperate in production under existing conditions puts sufficient pressure on the men in economic control to force them to allow" it to be used as a weapon in industry. By using the strike to protest war, we are declaring that we not only sympathize with it in collective bargaining but we also propose that labor's power can keep us from war by refusing to cooperate in the process of production. If labor "struck" in industries and farm fields whose products are vital to war purposes a war, those owners would be powerless. Labor power, a small minority, would not work in the factories or fields themselves. It is simply going to ask the men who go to war.

In view of the critical world situation, the objection of some students that anti-war strikes are a war-like method to preserve peace seems to us almost superficial. Students realize that they may be "defying the college administration" by walking out of their classes before the 11 o'clock on April 22, then we say they are precisely what to announce war as an instrument of national policy for fear they may be defying the administration. If the country is allowed to slip into war, as it did in 1917, students will find themselves forced to make life-long sacrifices. But they will find no choice.

Besides, in many colleges, the administrations, realizing the necessity for p a n i s m against war, have cooperated with the national student strike. Faculty members have not only dismissed classes but they have also joined the students in the fisher classroom to the rallies and parades during the strike hour. Many faculty members along with students have made speeches in the strikes. Even the high elected letters in advance from presidents and administrators, explaining that the strike is in no way a personal affront to their authority, but simply an effective way to protest war as the negative of education and everything else we deem worthwhile in life it is needless to add, and of life itself.

That brings us to the second and third reasons. Students anti-war strike movement has already several years behind it and since approximately one million students are planning to participate in it this year, we see no reason for attempting a substitute like the peace date.

Furthermore, a substitute which would equal the strike in

Opera Singer

Kathryn Reece Haun, New York opera singer and Florida State college graduate, who will sing Friday night on the opening program of the Alumnae college.

its dramatic effectiveness. Its feeling of solidarity, its purposefulness and its practical implications we have not yet found.

The national anti-war strike has dramatic qualities because a strike is still news. Appearing in headlines of newspapers throughout the country, the reports of the anti-war strike declare in the strongest terms that we know to the world at large that we refuse to support war. Furthermore, at least fourteen national organizations sponsor the anti-war strike. These include the youth section of the American League Against War and Fascism, the youth section of the Emergency Peace Campaign, the Federation of Methodist Youth, the American Youth Congress, the League of Nations Association, the National Intercollegiate Christian council, which includes the southern Y. W. C. A. and Y. M. C. A., the Joint Committee of the United Christian Youth Movement, the Committee on Militarism and Education, the Methodist Movement of the Foreign Policy association, the War Resisters' league and the Methodist Peace Association of America.

No student, however, has to be a member of any of these organizations to participate in the strike. Anyone may be a member of the American Student Union, which is the largest organization of strike plans. Students look back in history and see that the national headquarters of the American Student union information as to the summer colleges planning to participate in the strikes, the various ways they are making, the suggestion of plans for their own local campus. With a local chairman of each campus acting as coordinator of the plans, we have unity, and in unity, strength.

There are other dramatic qualities in the strike. Student youth is actively doing something to combat war, even though she is only walking out of class or leaving the platform she may be doing in order to devote a day to peace. The fact that she is "striking" for peace, that she defends all over the country are striking drives her a feeling of solidarity with a national movement which in itself is dramatic. Dramatic discussions or the presentation of peace plays cannot quite reproduce this feeling, we believe, because in the former only a few students are taking part in it. For on the latter masses of students are acting together.

Finally, the purposefulness of the strike, to which everything we have already said applies, now this article has related. It may be helpful to students, how the purposefulness of the strike is kept before the students taking part in it. For several months before the strike hour, student committees are held at which plans are laid for engaging speakers of national import on the program during the strike hour and committees are appointed to arrange for pamphlets, posters, and a parade, perhaps, if these are part of the strike plans. Student pickets are also appointed to remind us of the object for which we are set aside for it. These pickets also if they'd any need, help to keep the rallies and parades orderly. Last year the New York strike demonstrations that were over the country were conducted with activity and enthusiasm, befitting a sincere protest of college and high school youth against war.

In conclusion, those of us who favor the strike method might reiterate: We do not consider our strike an educational forum or an anti-war rival movement struggle for mastery. Our strike is an activity which will supply the most practical insurance that the anti-war movement are educational instruments only in a parallel sense. Basically, they are instruments of political pressure which can only realize their effectiveness by applying thousands of students into unified organization against war.

Americans Often Overlook Obligation to Fatherland

Duties of Citizenship Neglected in Rush To "Get Ahead of the World" is Opinion Of Flambeau Reporter

By VIRGINIA DAVIS

Virginia Davis is a Flam beau reporter.

"The future of America rests upon its youth."

This statement has been preached by each generation to its youth just as glibly as it was quoted to it, but is any generation conscious at the time that it is molding the future any more than we are today?

Time flies so quickly and the necessary work for our daily bread is so consuming that few, if any, realize how little they are doing to make of America the great nation they pledged themselves to make of it until their young enthusiasm is gone.

The national anti-war strike has dramatic qualities because a strike is still news. Appearing in headlines of newspapers throughout the country, the reports of the anti-war strike declare in the strongest terms that we know to the world at large that we refuse to support war. Furthermore, at least fourteen national organizations sponsor the anti-war strike. These include the youth section of the American League Against War and Fascism, the youth section of the Emergency Peace Campaign, the Federation of Methodist Youth, the American Youth Congress, the League of Nations Association, the National Intercollegiate Christian council, which includes the southern Y. W. C. A. and Y. M. C. A., the Joint Committee of the United Christian Youth Movement, the Committee on Militarism and Education, the Methodist Movement of the Foreign Policy association, the War Resisters' league and the Methodist Peace Association of America.

No student, however, has to be a member of any of these organizations to participate in the strike. Anyone may be a member of the American Student Union, which is the largest organization of strike plans. Students look back in history and see that the national headquarters of the American Student union information as to the summer colleges planning to participate in the strikes, the various ways they are making, the suggestion of plans for their own local campus. With a local chairman of each campus acting as coordinator of the plans, we have unity, and in unity, strength.

There are other dramatic qualities in the strike. Student youth is actively doing something to combat war, even though she is only walking out of class or leaving the platform she may be doing in order to devote a day to peace. The fact that she is "striking" for peace, that she defends all over the country are striking drives her a feeling of solidarity with a national movement which in itself is dramatic. Dramatic discussions or the presentation of peace plays cannot quite reproduce this feeling, we believe, because in the former only a few students are taking part in it. For on the latter masses of students are acting together.

Finally, the purposefulness of the strike, to which everything we have already said applies, now this article has related. It may be helpful to students, how the purposefulness of the strike is kept before the students taking part in it. For several months before the strike hour, student committees are held at which plans are laid for engaging speakers of national import on the program during the strike hour and committees are appointed to arrange for pamphlets, posters, and a pa-education of a good citizen is said? We all know the answer to this unassuming acceptance. Ours is the best government, each one says, the best flag, our best political party. It always has been so and always will be. We have fought the good fight, victory is ours; let us rest secure. But think—when we look on our complete supremacy, our rest be entirely healthy unshrouded? When we lapse into remainder of the world and placidity between our oceans, is to the changing problems, psychology seething outside our shore—and within our world will not we, perhaps, find ourselves sitting on a fuse? Yes, on the point of eruption? Shall we then look to our leaders to look down on their neighbors as inferiors, as those who come from "foreigners"? Or shall we look for the true, the actual need for other nations, the renovation and progression of their thought? Shall we teach them as unthinking sheep to follow governments, and teach them choose the good qualities of a good leader, or shall we teach them only the good qualities we find in ourselves?

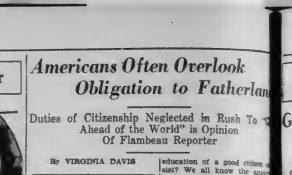
Youth naturally rebels against labouring and doubt all qualities of this divine belief in perfection. Ours is not a problem of government. We are behind think it heresy to begin to criticize and seek for improvement in it. As the flag of America rests in its youth, so does the unpredictable education in all things that must be entirely theirs. If we as national and international affairs it does not want to be swallowed up in blind faith and trust, and say taint of so-called radicalism, many of our youth have been branded unhealthy, branded with the epithet "red" in our people"; they hear on all sides "he is a radical" and "he is able to say that we shall not have fought the good fight between them, perhaps, within lifetime?



Not no other reason, material should not be enlist-

Continued on page four

THE SWEET SHOP
701 W. Jefferson
Phone 1091
Opposite Gilchrist
We Deliver

— WEEKEND SPECIALS —
BAR-B-Q WITH POTATO CHIPS 15c
ICE CREAM SODAS—ALL FLAVORS 10c

BUY YOUR LOTIONS, TOOTH PASTE, SOAP AND ANY OTHER TOILETRIES AT
THE LITTLE STORE
KOTEX, MODESS 21c
KLEENEX 15c

is as flower-true and lovely in the daytime version—Bouquet Lentheric—and as heavy a perfume itself! Both interpret in fragrance the romance and glamour of the South Seas.
Classic decanter hand-etched with a spray of flowers and distinguished by a cunning gardenia boutonniere. Gift packaged. From $1.75.

The big news in shoes is WHITE FABRIC
Caberfeet Linen! Model Three—a rope is summer shoe price. And Naturalizer gives you three not behind in cleverness and comfort, persons that are as cool as an ocean breeze. Choose your favorite and wardrobe NOW from our collection of Naturalizer Spring Styles. $6.75
Don't Spoil Your Shoes
You feet from happiness
Naturalizer
VOGUE
SHOE STORE
Tallahassee, Florida

The Social Week

Gainesville Houseparties Week-end's Festive Event

Gainesville's festive houseparties which began at four o'clock yesterday afternoon with activities scheduled to last throughout the week-end are being attended by many Florida State College students.

Banquets, luncheons, swimming parties, breakfasts, picnic dances and parties will be among the numerous affairs given.

Scheduled Affairs

Friday's schedule includes the Kappa Chi bumper party, the Phi Kappa Tau sport dance, the Chi Psi barn dance, the Alpha Xi Delta breakfast, the Sigma Phi Omega "Just Jooking" party, Following those will be the Delta Sigma Theta shipwreck dance, the Sigma Nu South Seas island party, the Phi Delta Theta "Jook Joint Jamboree" the Kappa Sigma "Gangsters' Gambol" and the Phi Chi Spanish ball. The "Jook Joint" dance party will be staged at the Pi Kappa Alpha kid party, late Saturday afternoon.

Those Attending

Among the girls who will be guests for the week-end in Gainesville are

Ruth Parkinson, Marion Hudnall, Margaret Rodgers, Marjorie Bella Sutton, Frances Dale, Martha Lee, Sunny Dell, Grace Brown, Isabel Ramsey, Mary Shackleford, Sara Moore, Nancy Adamson, Peggy Van Dyke, Mary Manning, Anita Jaeckel, Melwyn Brooks, Mary Phillips Chalker, Barbara Watson, Ann Towson, Betty Blodworth, Caroline Lowe, Anne Ladd, Alice Dastwyler, Joan Miller, Marjorie Stewart, Frances Moss, Janet Mattern, Frances Woodward, Louise Fossitte, Eugenia Cannon, Martha Robbins, Lucille Stephens, Susan Rowley, Danner Baker, Betty Curtis, Lorraine Mowry, Dorothy Frederick Frink, Harriet Post, Lois Adkins, Florine Morris.

Mary Virginia Ruff, Julia Hodnett, Clara Stewart, Dorothy Williams, Janie Gallimore, Ann Dickson, Eleanor Hickson, Anna Tilden, Marian Vail, Mary Frances Shaw, Molly Scales, Mary McCaskill, Lorrian Van Meter, Dorothy Caruthers, Charlotte Connell, Ruth Ross, Jane Hall, Frances Johnson, Dorothy Rickards, Barbara Hendry, Mabry Summer, Polly Ann Hamilton, Ruth Smith, Catherine Carr, Victoria Crisp.

Others Attending

Rosalyn Cohen, Jeanette Kronenfeld, Dorothy Barr, Lovina Hamilton, Ruth Ann Thompson, Nell Annie Laurie Sanchez, Edythe Stanley, Margaret Robinson, Ruth Ann Bell, Dorothy Lillian Burford, Kitty Craney, Marjorie Wynn Dowling Pool, Murray Ann Pilcher, Helen Hall, Erma Engle, Ines Senbrook, Pegy Hamilton, Dorothy Schoen, Frances Thomas, Jane Baughman, Lutrelle Parker, Betty Sue Gilbert, Martha Kennedy, Myrtle Alice Clifford, Ann Raleigh Eastham, Emma Randolph Eleuth, Martha Van Brunt, Rebecca Ashton, Sara Tillman, Jane Cook, Lucile Lockwood, Helen Murphy, Jean Brown, Virginia LaMotte.

Sara May Davis, Edith Hayes Effinger, Betty Allen, Mary Kathryn King, Alice Lee, Marion Gilfillan, Mona McClean, Hazel Donnegan, Virginia Dowling, Maxine Hopkins, Jane Lee, Marion Gilfillan, Eleanor White, Virginia Schreiber, Jane Schreiber, Betty Graves, Betty Nicholson, Billie Pierson, Jerry Knapp, Mary Nell Pope, Mildred Hurst, Josephine Cranshaw, Evelyn Anderson, Elizabeth Whitehead, Ann Herbert, Leona Howell, Eleanor Hutchinson, Mary Elsa Smith Daugherty, Florence Mayfield, Kathryn Patterson.

Aileyne Calvina, Geraldine Albritton, Rosalyn Bass, Sara Blackwell, Clara Lake, Camille Mullen, Alice Dyal, Virginia Saxon, Laurie Cola Warwick, Larenne Holabird, Marjorie Butler, Myrtle Alice Clifford, Julia Mullis, Betty Parker, Mayme Louise Strange, Alegre Clayton, Helen Holloway, Bernice Oliver, Lucille Seed, Mary Wallis.

Pi Beta Phi Members Attending Province Meeting in Tampa

Alumnae and active members of Pi Beta Phi are attending the Zeta Province convention of the sorority in Tampa this week-end, Mrs Florence Hunt Webster, assistant to the Grand President, will be national representative at the convention and will address exhibits and tours for the benefit of the visitors. At 11:30 Miss Mary Rita Thistlethwaite will speak on Roman customs, visiting students will have lunch in the colleges dining room with juniors and seniors of Eta Sigma Phi as hostesses.

The alumnae of Eta Sigma Phi will entertain the visitors with a special luncheon in the lower dining hall. Mary Kathryn Johnson, president, will preside. Martha Smith and Julia Vandergrift will speak on the work done by the national organization and local chapter since their installation.

In Broward clubhouse from 4:30-5:30 an informal tea will be given for all alumnae of the classic department and members of the Classical club.

A report was given of the national Pi Beta Phi convention to be held in Birmingham April 23-26. The Birmingham-Southern chapter will act as host.

Misses Mary Green, Mary Kathryn Gibson, and Pearle Overhults will represent the Eta chapter as delegates.

Social Study Department Sponsors Colin English

Mr. Colin English, state supervisor, of public instruction, will speak in convocation Tuesday, April 20th, on "The Supposed New School Code" as announced by Dr. Kathryn T. Asher, head of the history department.

Mr. English is the third and last of a series of speakers brought here by the social studies department.

THREE CAMPUS SORORITIES ENTERTAIN FETING VISITING NATIONAL OFFICERS

National officers of three sororities are visiting here this week, and are being entertained by their hostess chapters during their stay on this campus.

A luncheon was given by the members of Alpha Chi Omega on Monday in the Alpha Chi Omega tea room honoring Mrs. J. Ellis Crosby, national vice-president of the sorority. The luncheon table was attractively decorated in scarlet and white, the sorority colors.

Kappa Alpha Theta

Honoring their national president, Mrs. D. Bligh Grascit, members of Kappa Alpha Theta entertained in the sorority house on Wednesday night with a formal reception.

The house was attractively decorated with arrangements of spring flowers. Receiving guests with Mrs. Grascit were: Marjorie Horton, Dr. Jennie Tilt, Mildred Simmons, Mrs. Estelle May Mackenzie, and Mrs. Laura McAdams.

Beta Phi Alpha

Beta Phi Alpha members and pledges will entertain in the sorority house tonight with an after dinner coffee honoring their visiting national inspector, Miss Ella Winters Tisdel.

The sorority house will be decorated with green and gold, the sorority colors, and spring flowers will be used in profusion.

Journalism of Future Will Require Educated Writers

Several Newspapermen Are Convinced of Need For Broad Knowledge of Social Sciences in Copy-Writers of Tomorrow

By HAZEL BOWMAN

Ridiculous is the word for schools of journalism. At least that idea has been fostered on movies and novels possible, stories about the brawn youngster just out of college determined he thought he knew more than the editor he got a job with immediately had the managing editor's boot planted in the seat of his pants. Then there is the story about the literary-minded sob sister who thought that reporting of divorce trials and wife-beatings in the high-flown, embellished style of her own imagination in course would revolutionize newspaperdom. Such are the conception of college journalism has provoked mirth wherever newspapermen gather. But the veteran man with a journalism degree was better off even than that fact if he expected to break into the news game without having first he to serve his apprenticeship as cub reporter.

But even the newspapermen are beginning to smile on the other side of their faces. Recent trends of journalism are having little trouble in placing men in the states. It is a new era in news selling just as it is a new era in fashions and in entertainment, although the would-be managing editor can still be seen on the pavements, a college degree is no longer the handicap it was once was. Journalistic leaders are saying that formal training may soon be a requirement for getting near any newspaper payroll.

Why this sudden about-face in the matter of preparation for a newspaper career? The question can best be answered by going back a few years in the national newspaper history and looking in on the editorial department of an ace daily.

A college man doing newspaper work! It was almost unthinkable fifty or ten years ago that professional training for the minority or practical work going for no lightly tossed aside, for 100 years ago only those who were going into one of the professions ordinarily had college opportunities. The law, the ministry, medicine, and a four-year degree went into the editorial offices of some magazines. Once in a while a large newspaper took on a cub reporter who was to do book reviews and to cover theatrical happenings. A college degree was an asset in the eyes of publishers, but the editors did most of the firing at "college men." The present-day publishing complexion were as it was a thing of the future, that newspapers were a one-man concern was also a factor in the prejudice of many university graduates. Future editors started as paper carriers and printers' devils. They worked hard to achieve the privacy of an office, and they knew and did not persons dedicated to one craft. They could and only had time the young upstarts who came with unsprecitative eyes and grandiose ideas to the profession.

Time passed. Editors were no longer the gods of Olympus. Associated Press and other news services made large staffs necessary. The day of the end to the eminence of other million-dollar concerns as to become important source of information for American life.

That eminences has been emphasized and reemphasized by the achievements and failures of the past decade. For instance the recent presidential election scored defeat for the newspapers as well as Landon when despite a majority press the Republican candidate went down for the second largest defeat in the history of American presidential campaigns. The question still is: What has happened to the power of the press?

Two conditions definitely point out the trend. The world is in a state of changes, far-reaching changes. The history of this period has not kept step with changing times. When the publishing world realizes the necessity of this social condition schools of journalism will assume a more responsible place in education.

Haphazard methods of news presentation must go. In the words Melvin Lee's History of American Journalism "Journalism's chief existence by the limited time in which staffs had to get their papers to the press. Even present-day presentation bears the marks of the rapidity with which the report must be prepared for readers. It is this slip-shod manner which has brought about criticism. If it would give its readers every side of the question such authorities as Mark Ethridge, long a figure in Southern journalism.

Walter Lippman in his Liberty and the News says that "in an exact sense the present crisis of western democracy is a crisis in journalism." His theory that "the difficulties which all the news written in the best possible manner is best summarized in this published statement because "so long as there is interposed between the ordinary citizen and the facts a news organization devised and operated by casual and unexamined standards, no matter how lofty, what he shall know, and hence he shall believe, no one will be able to say that the government of democracy government is secure."

Lippmann seems to hold the key to the problem of removing the stigma from college-bred news writers. Declaring that readers live by second-hand contacts, Lippmann declares that second-hand presentations be well-written, fair, as factual, and at the same time as unbiased as possible. Just as Mark Ethridge believes that the editors of the future will be college graduates well-trained in history, economics, and political science, so Lippmann believes that the college should do more than merely confer a degree in a realistic world. Impartial investigation of facts is now impossible, he says, "because the process we call education fails so largely to educate the sense of evidence or the power of penetrating to the controlling center of a situation."

"In the universities men should be able to think patiently and generously for the good of society. If they do not, surely one and the active mediocrity which terminates in doctor's theses and brown quartzites, and ends in the critical issues of politics."

But with all his condemnation Lippmann still has the courage to commend the publishing world for those who will come out of the colleges. He believes these men will revolutionize the front page of the world's news.

Ralph Gabriel, Yale University, Alabama journalism instructor, says that among the truly new

Eta Sigma Phi Completes Plans for Founders Day Program on Campus

Members of the Eta Sigma Phi, classical honorary, completed plans for the celebration of their Founders day at a meeting of the society Tuesday night.

April 17 is the day set for their celebration. April 16, 1926, Eta Sigma Phi was established here on this campus.

As part of their high school extension work in Tampa the society Latin students from high schools to visit the campus for the day. During the morning they will be exhibits and tours for the benefit of the visitors. At 11:30 Miss Mary Rita Thistlethwaite will speak on Roman customs. Visiting students will have lunch in the colleges dining room with juniors and seniors of Eta Sigma Phi as hostesses.

The alumnae of Eta Sigma Phi will entertain the visitors with a special luncheon in the lower dining hall. Mary Kathryn Johnson, president, will preside. Martha Smith and Julia Vandergrift will speak on the work done by the national organization and local chapter since their installation.

In Broward clubhouse from 4:30-5:30 an informal tea will be given for all alumnae of the classic department and members of the Classical club.

A report was given of the national Pi Beta Phi convention to be held in Birmingham April 23-26. The Birmingham-Southern chapter will act as host.

Misses Mary Green, Mary Kathryn Gibson, and Pearle Overhults will represent the Eta chapter as delegates.

Hay Will Conduct Tour Of Europe for Students

Sue Whitaker, Virginia Hamilton, and Mary Lee Hopkins Will leave New York on June 30 for Havre, France, and will tour the principal countries of Europe in the party of Mr. Harry H. Hay of Tallahassee. They will return to the United States on September 5.

Rosemary Hamly, a student, Miss Isabel McKinnel, of the chemistry department, and Miss Mary Winslow, of the School of Music, of Florida State College for Women, will leave New York on June 18 on the tour which Dr. Marion T. Hay of the School of Education directs. After touring Scotland, England, Holland, Belgium, and France, they will return to the United States on July 30.

Orchestra and Dance Group Present Program

Florida State College for Women's symphony orchestra, under the direction of Alfred Lindsay Cowles, gave a concert in the College auditorium last evening. Assisting the orchestra for the first time were the modern dance pupils of Miss Nellie Bond Dickinson, of the Physical Education department.

The program consisted of: Symphonie in E Flat major—Haydn; "Andante Cantabile," Tschaikowsky; "Air de Ballet," Herbert; "Introduction and Allegro Appassionato—"Opus 92," Schumann; and "Minuet" from Bizet. The dance forms were: "Pavane"—Gluck; "Gavotte"—arranged by Professor Cowles; "Gavotte," Gretry; "Sigurd-Jorsalfar"—Grieg; "Waltz," Kramer, and "Paradoxe" by Bizet.

advances in news presentation is the attempt to remove from stories such unknown phrases as

Continued on page eight

VARIED AFFAIRS PLANNED BY CAMPUS SORORITIES AS WEEK-END ACTIVITIES

After-dinner coffees, teas, a breakfast, a theater party and a slumber party are on the social calendars of sororities for this week-end.

A birthday party in the form of after-dinner coffee will be given tonight by the members and pledges of Zeta Tau Alpha in honor of their house-mother, Mrs. Grace Lee Gibson. Guests will include, besides Mrs. Gibson,

Garden Provides Girls Pleasure

Some may be inclined to agree with Bacon that a garden is the purest of human pleasures and a refreshment to the spirit if they chance to pass the college garden within the next few weeks.

Although Bacon was speaking of flower gardens in the above passages, it's also possible to get an equal amount of pleasure and refreshment from a vegetable garden, as proved by a student who recently visited the ivon gym munchins a carrot.

A vegetable garden is looked upon by most people as being a source of food which one must eat in order to get a sufficient quantity of vitamins. Even poets who write about every other phase of nature have ignored the lowly vegetable. Spinach, for instance, is considered to be a fit subject only for the carbuncled.

The college gardener, however, thinks as much of his vegetables as he does the flowers and gives them as much attention. They grow well in good condition and, though seldom used for decorative purposes, prove to be very useful and have a beauty all their own which may not be praised by poets, but is nevertheless appreciated by the gardener and would-be gardeners.

Although Bacon was speaking of flower gardens in the above passages, it's also possible to get an equal amount of pleasure and refreshment from a vegetable garden, as proved by a student who recently visited the iron gym munchins a carrot.

A vegetable garden is looked upon by most people as being a source of food which one must eat in order to get a sufficient quantity of vitamins. Even poets who write about every other phase of nature have ignored the lowly vegetable. Spinach, for instance, is considered to be a fit subject only for the carbuncled.

The college gardener, however, thinks as much of his vegetables as he does the flowers and gives them as much attention. They grow well in good condition and, though seldom used for decorative purposes, prove to be very useful and have a beauty all their own which may not be praised by poets, but is nevertheless appreciated by the gardener and would-be gardeners.

Mrs. Grace Lee Gibson, Guests will include, besides Mrs. Gibson,

Alpha Chi Omega members will entertain with an after-dinner coffee in the sorority house tomorrow night in honor of Marion Carson who will give her voice recital that night. Sunday afternoon the alumnae and pledges will entertain friends at an informal tea from 4:30 to 6 o'clock.

The members of Theta Upsilon Sorority entertained at an after-dinner coffee Wednesday night for friends. Saturday afternoon members will be hostesses at a tea from 3:00 to 6:00 o'clock in honor of the visiting alumnae. Among the visiting alumnae are Miss Barbara Green, Miss Charlotte Chase, Mrs. Richard Van Brunt, Mrs. Thomas Bell, and Miss Ruth Scruggs. Miss Mary McMillan, Mrs. Ben Bostick, Mrs. Will White, Mrs. Jack Ahlstrom, Miss Lillian Trotter and Mrs. Sam Hand

Alpha Xi Delta

Activities and plenges of Alpha Xi Delta will give a Founder's day breakfast in the Three Torches tomorrow morning at 8:30 o'clock. Yellow jonquils, colors, double blue and gold, and the sorority flower, the Lamarck rose, will be used in decorating guests will be Sarah White, faculty advisor: Virginia Algee, Mrs Edwin White, alumnae advisor and Mrs. H. L. Rhodes, chaperon.

Alpha Quinton Pi members will entertain rushees at a theater party and spend the night party at the house tomorrow night.

Student Group Formed Union One Year Ago

Unity in Ideals and Aims Overcame Differences Among Founders

By ERMINE LAWRENCE

Ermine Lawrence, advisory editor of the Distaff, is an officer on Chi Delta Phi and out-going junior editor of the Distaff.

A little over one year ago at Columbus, Ohio, several hundred students met to organize a group which has become known as the American student union. It was a heterogeneous gathering there, including Democrats, Liberals, Republicans, student body leaders, Y.W.C.A. workers, internationalists, who all had, however, this thing in common—a firm belief in the ideals of economic security, peace, and democracy. Agreeing that their common aims could be achieved under the capitalist state if student and public opinion were expressed unanimously, they decided to support the American student union as an instrument in expressing their views. Thus united, in spite of political differences, they presented a solid front for the discovery of truths underlying situations incompatible with their aims and for the formulation of action to remedy these situations.

Unity became the dynamic force behind the American student union. With it, to rely upon the union has made dramatic, undeniable progress. It has achieved a paid active membership of 20,000. Last year it led an anti-war strike of 500,000 students from the 750,000 students in attendance at American colleges and universities. It has established the United Students Peace committee.

To quote from Joseph P. Lash, executive secretary of the American Student union: "So strong have we become in New York—5000 A.S.U.'ers marching on May Day, election of student councils on A.S.U. programs in all the city colleges, a Board of High Education divided evenly upon the question of recognizing the A.S.U. in city colleges—that we have provoked a special investigation by Senator McNaboe and scores of editorials by that ace of reactionaries, Hearst."

No one can deny that the American Student union has succeeded. Nor can anyone question the need for a dynamic student union.

In working toward the three ideals for which all A.S.U. members stand, economic security, democracy, and peace, the Union has taken active moves. Toward achieving economic security for college students the A. S. U. has done some of its best work. It has organized students on the N. Y. A. issue at the Universities of North Carolina and Michigan, for negotiation with N. Y. A. administrators, for increased allotments, and for adapting jobs to applicants' interests. At Brooklyn college it succeeded in obtaining for students a voice in the administration of N. Y. A. activities. Its vigilance has also prevented N. Y. A. funds from being used for intimidation of progressive students.

In the face of approaching N. Y. A. cuts from congressional action the A. S. U. mobilized hundreds of students who appeared in Washington to demand the passage of the American Youth Act. To the challenge that this act was charity and that the government has pampered American youth long enough, the A. S. U. replied: "The same cries were leveled against the establishment of free public education in the early nineteenth century . . . A truly democratic society would give its young people a full education in healthy and inspiring surroundings. These young people would later repay that society by the intelligence and sanity that they would bring to the solution of social problems by the fullness and happiness of their lives.

In working for democracy, the A. S. U. has been most active in trying to secure academic freedom on American campuses. Examples of the lack of this freedom have been frequent—take the cases of Robert Burke who was expelled from Columbia, the three Washington U. students who lose their graduate fellowships because of their protests against the R.O.T.C. Jerome Davis, professor of Yale Divinity school, who was ousted because of certain remarks he made on the subject of capitalism. Such cases as these emphasize the necessity for some democratic instruments of discipline within the universities everywhere such as student-faculty courts which being democratic, will be more responsive to students and faculty than to trustees and scholastic

Baggott Discusses Star Temperatures at Club

"Measuring the Temperatures of the Stars" is the topic on which Dora Helen Baggott addressed the members of the astronomy club Wednesday night at nine o'clock in 203 Westcott building.

If weather conditions are favorable, next Wednesday the astronomy club will have another telescopic observation of the moon. Further announcements will be posted on the club bulletin board.

How About Checking Dates With Wraps Says Columnist

Collegiate Comeback Bewails Fact That Juniors And Seniors Are Ushered Out of Prom By Proctors with Notebooks

Some of the Juniors and seniors are old enough to vote but from the way the Prom was handled it seems that in the eyes of their Alma Mater they are still just a lot of overgrown children that must be taken care of. Even Mother couldn't have asked any more protection for daughter than a proctor wielding a notebook at every entrance. If things keep up at this rate, in the near future we'll be checking our dates with our wraps as we go in.

* * *

We noticed some men in the dining room at breakfast Saturday—which brings to mind the following from the Tulane Hullabaloo.

A thing of Beauty is a joy forever
But the joy is rapidly gone
When I see you, my beautiful thing
Without your make-up on.

* * *

A good will court in which the students air their grievances has been established at Cornell University. We don't have the good will court, but it doesn't keep us from muttering our grievances from time to time. Not that it means much sir. . . .

* * *

For those in danger of being hood-winked by a local male we print the following guide (with apologies, etc. to Esquire).

He is losing interest if:

1. He gets you home a half hour before light-flash "to make a good impression on the house mother." Funny, he never worried about that before.

2. He usually buys you Camels but absent-mindedly presents you with Pall Malls. Not that you object to a twenty-cent cigarette but there's dirty work somewhere. He isn't just naturally magnanimous where you're concerned.

3. He returns the trinkets you left in his car and among them is a compact you've never seen before. (If it's a nice one, down your desire to be dramatic and accept it quietly).

* * *

Quarter exams are over but the aftermath lingers on. An exchange sums it up in a few lines entitled "Post Exam Ode":

The Blue Book's in the basket.
The White Sixty in the fire.
And I am staying home at night
Because of papa's ire.

* * *

A bottle of nerve tonic to the hair-twisters, nail-biters and gum-poppers that make classes what they are. Don't they know that it's a sign of frustration, inhibitions and what have you?

* * *

From various and sundry sources we've collected the following "dafynitions"

Tower of Babie—where Solomon kept all his wives.

Franuscan Friar—a short order cook from San Francisco.

Black Maria—a negro's wife.

Viper—a Dutchman's napkin.

Sheep—what Columbus sailed the ocean on.

Incubator—where you burn old rags and such.

* * *

Duval county school teachers feel that they should be paid as much as the dog catchers up there. We who are in the know realize that the poor dears are just gaining on a brave front and the roots of forces whose existence denys the ideals for which it stands. Granting that the need is great, the A. S. U. is doing a job commendable from the point of view of all American people.

Nelson Elected, Plans Made at Club Meeting

Classical club officers for the coming year were elected Tuesday night at the meeting of the Classical club held in the lower floor of the library. Plans were presented for awarding the Classical club cup which is to be given to the freshman Latin student who prepares the best program outline for next year.

A boat trip down the St. Marks river into the Gulf for members of the club is scheduled for May 15.

New officers are as follows: Geneva Nelson, president; Gladys Warn, vice president; Dorothy Dietrick, secretary; Polly Ann White, treasurer; Marie Anderson, publicity; Fredrica Roberts, bulletin board, and Elsie Renfroe, chairman.

Journalism of Future to Require Educated Writers

Continued from page seven

"syndicalist" and "advisers" terms which ordinarily floor the university graduate and with which the average newspaper reader is certainly not equipped to wrestle. Fort says this unfortunate situation will be met by interpretative writing, a form of presentation current in news weeklies which attempt not only to tell the news but to tell what the news means. Thus is in no way the same thing as coloring facts as is indicated by the fact that real interpretative writing calls for analyses of situations, hitching their wagons to a star. By the way that's something for those who are slaving over education to think about in their leisure moments.

* * *

Another version of the k-can't happen-here theme:

Mary had a little lamb
Twas given her to keep
It followed her every where
And died from lack of sleep

Parlor Yoo

Nine Break Into Ranks Of Exclusive Society For Honorable Evens

In recognition of their service to their fellow Evens, Evelyn Palmer, Felicia Weil, Sarah Sealey, Kathryn Pratt, Janet Cook, Louise Linzy, juniors, Katherine Graham, Elizabeth Ann Web, freshmen, were tapped for membership in Esteren, the Evens honorary, Wednesday noon. Pledge service followed by a dinner in the college dining room, was held Wednesday evening.

Present members of the honorary include: Phil Asher, Louise Gehan, Frances Lewis, Anne Mizell, Betty Calland, Marjorie Sanderson, Viola Brooks, Hilda Spradlin, Ermine Lawrence, Jean Lykes, Dorothy Peach, Madge Glenn, Dorothea Marsh, Marion Conn, Eileen Robinson and Margaret Thompson.

not prejudiced statements of cause and outcome.

Already the Gainesville Courier-Journal and the Chattanooga News have become examples of the new form. Both papers demand college graduates as copy-desk writers, their policy in the matter being somewhat explained by Mark Ethridge, general manager of the Courier-Journal who says: "I believe there will be a major mistake in the style of news handling within the next few years. My own idea is that instead of having a central copy-desk, the medium-sized newspaper will have a copydesk of specialists. As the news comes in, it will be channeled to various men who have the background and the knowledge of how to handle it. They will take all the grist of the day's mail and fit it into connected stories that are both comprehensible and inter-sting."

Interpretative writing called by different names in separate in-

Canadian production of cement during the first seven months of 1936 amounted to 2,189,000 barrels, as compared to 1,784,000 barrels in the same period of the preceding year.

4-H Group Plans Camp With Agriculture Club

The 4-H club is planning a joint meeting at Camp Flastacowo with the Agricultural Club of Gainesville on April 24. There will be swimming in the afternoon with a steak supper and dancing in the evening. A program, a skit put on by members of both clubs, will be presented, and a speaker will talk to the group during the evening.

stances, but materially the same everywhere, has been added to the pages of the New York Times, the Baltimore Sun, and the Washington Star, Mr. Elbridge may not be terribly wrong in his belief that schools of journalism have a future.

Regardless of theory and such fact as is readily available to the person not versed in statistics forms a few ideas stand out concerning the coming era of news setting. The newspaperman of the past is going to become an obsolete form while the butt of his ridicule, the college graduate, will become universal desk material the big city daily. Newspaper readers will be given two things by the front pages of the future: spot news, and the background which will explain that news to the layman.

Perhaps the internationalists will find the answer to their problem in this new journalism. Pro with Walther Lippmann we would say that the way, in revolution, in race riots, in lynchings, in all the ills that beset our society the greatest ill of all is the "loss of control" is objective information." College-trained copy writers may be able to supply the objective information which present-day newspapers lack.

A planetarium is a circular room over which is suspended a stainless steel dome serving as a screen upon which, by means of an intricate projector, it is possible to show in a realistic manner every star or other object in the sky that is visible to the naked eye.

Freshmen Reporters Endure "Breaking In"

Sophomore reporters are making their charges to get, even with—whatever you get even with when you squelch somebody because somebody has squelched you.

The victims come from the first year journalism class. Under a new system of "breaking in" reporters, a sophomore and a freshman approach some news source for a story. The freshman takes down the information, writes the story, and hands the finished product to her critic—who criticizes.

The freshman winces under the onslaught. "Terrible". "Wrong lead", "Won't do". "Impossible" shoot out from the spluttering sophomore. The freshman cowers and slinks away, convinced her case is hopeless. The sophomore continues to sputter until the freshman is out of sight; then gaintully writes "Terrible" on the copy. After all, the editor was doing that to her, just two years ago.

Music Students Present Recital for Certificate

A certificate recital will be given tomorrow evening at 7:45 o'clock in the College auditorium by Marion Carson, coloratura soprano, pupil of Miss Rita Robertson, and Jessica Jane Mackey, organist, pupil of Miss Margaret Whitney Dow. In addition to a certificate in voice, Marion is a candidate for the B. M. degree a public school music this June.

The program will include: "Ballata," Sibella; "L'Heure Exquise," Poldowes; "Les Papillons," Chaminon; "Caro Nome" (Rigoletto), Cerdi; "Dorse Tocata," Bach; "Fugue in G Minor," Bach; "Second Sonata," Mendelsohn; "When Chloris Sleeps," Homer Samuels; "Autumn Leaves," Manning; "Old Kentucky," Stuard Lie; "To a Messenger," La Forge; "Jagged Peaks in Starlight," "Wind in the Pines," and "Canyon Walls," Clokey.

Alpha Chi Alpha Invites You to Jamboree

Attend College's First Movie Tomorrow

The Florida Flambeau

Published by the Students of Florida State College for Women

Tallahassee, Florida, April 23, 1937

VOLUME XXIV. NUMBER TWENTY-FOUR

ambeau Wins ll American" onor Scoring

spaper is One of 26 College Weeklies Given Rating

BLICATION GETS WARD FOUR TIMES

da Alligator Also Gets Top Ranking In Contest

e fourth time the Flor-Flambeau has been awarded al American" honor rat-by the Associated Colleg-ess of the National Scholas-Press, according to word ved early this week. For consecutive years, 1931-1933-34 and 1933-34 the pa-was given this rating, but the past two years has re-the first honor scoring.

Id Given Honors

report is presented by the ment of journalism at the ersity of Minnesota, the ctators of the Associated ge Press of the National Press. One hundred fif-ve weeklies were entered in petition, out of which only were given "All American." honor is conferred only by h "Pacemaker" which goes the world's student paper year and also to one hi-and one daily paper in ch.

The Flambeau is a member of Associated Collegiate Press, ch corresponds somewhat to ness associations among com-ial newspapers. In addition e news service supplied by Collegiate Press that organi-sponsors get-together of newspaper editors and busi-managers, to which it's been each year sends de-. The convention last pro-ed at St. Louis and that to be was a celebration for CM. The Flambeau is also a ber of the Florida Intercol-Press.

Flambeau Scores 800

100 possible points, given reference in all issues of paper make-up and content. Flambeau scored 800. The pa-was commended on its news m features and special de-ments, interpretative articles, alumnae news coverage. It from excellent writing on its ing, front page make-up and paper contents.

ion college papers from initi-in Florida entered the con-test from this number the Seminole and the Florida Alligator.

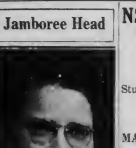
Continued on page two

orton Leads Installation

Officers of Y.W.C.A. ake Oath of Service At Sunday Vespers

w officers and cabinet mem-of Y. W. C. A. led by Martha Norton, were installed candlelight vesper service last ay night in the Augusta Con-ter theatre.

old and new officers and cab-members filed into the the-ressed in white. When they ssed on the stage Janice on, the out-going president, ten in prayer. After which ce spoke briefly of "Goals ey Promised."



ce spoke then on their re-ibilities and gave them the th. C. A. charge.

Martha Lester, the new presi-accepted the charge for the officers. Then she charged new cabinet and they re-by accepting the light ch.

e entire group sang "Follow Thrown," after which Mary ton in prayer and the choir ble benediction.

new officers installed were Nelle Kamper, vice - presi-Carol Bowden, secretary; Esther O'Byrne, treasurer; new cabinet, consists of Sara Barbara Moore, Kathleen Dr. Frances Williams, Helen Mrs. Phifia Park, Bunny Lou-Mary Nell Pinkard, Sallie Burt Jo Marjorie Oakes, Lalia Ty-Ida Margaret Robinson, Southern Summer," a work with three parts, "Dawn," "Noon," and "Dusk."

Jamboree Head

Hazel Bowman, who has charge of the Alpha Chi Alpha jamboree to be held the first four days of next week. Cooperating with the journalistic honorary are other publications and Chi Delta Phi literary sorority. Hazel has been editor during the past year of the Flambeau, which received this week word of its "All American" honor rating.

English Speaks On Legislation At Convocation

Education Superintendent Discusses Reconstruction Of All School Laws

Speaking on the subject "School Legislation" as a forum of the American Association of University Women held Monday night in Sopp Hall and in the regular student convocation Tuesday morning, Colin English, state superintendent of public instruction, advocated a complete reclassification of school laws as one means of improving existing conditions in the state.

Advocating a change in the present membership of the school code committee, Mr. English suggested that it include one school code commissioner, to be the state superintendent, three instructors, two members of the House of Representatives and two members of the State senate. Commissioners could then study present laws and accomplish necessary changes in the school code.

There are a number of revisions which should await the completion of a new code but should be enacted immediately, Mr. English said. These include: a guarantee of $800 for each instructor until a retirement system for teachers and other employees of schools and institutions of higher learning; the authorization of school surveys and the appropriation for the expenditure of larger local tax school districts; clarification of the duties of county superintendents; county boards of public instruction, and state tax school district trustees; the establishment of qualifications for county superintendents; improvement of laws relating to the certification of teachers; revision of the compulsory attendance law; and the provision for a more economical and efficient plan for adopting and distributing textbooks.

The school code committee also plans to submit to the voters two constitutional amendments, one of which authorizes the establishment of a lay state board of education to take the place of the present ex-officio board, and the other clarifying the responsibility of the legislature for providing the appropriations necessary to assure the maintenance of minimum school facilities.

Included In Anthology

Laura Veach Clark, member of the home economics faculty from 1927-31, is represented with three poems in the American States Anthology, a compilation of contemporary American poetry classified by states, edited by Greta Alson. The selections are "St. Stephens," "Rush of Winter," and "Southern Summer," a work with three parts, "Dawn," "Noon," and "Dusk."

NSFA Favors No Required Convocation

Students Vote 14 to 4 On Hotly-Debated Chapel Issue

MACK AND MOORE UPHOLD OPINIONS

Lockhart Chosen Senior Committeewoman Next Year

After much heated discussion, attended acutely by the F. A. forum Tuesday night voted, 14 to 4, that this group recommend to student senate that compulsory convocation be abolished in Florida State colleges.

Substitute Suggested

In place of the weekly program the forum suggested that a bulletin containing all student activities be published weekly or bi-weekly and be distributed to all students, that 15 hours today be left open for student body meetings, the subject of which would be published in the Flambeau and in the bulletin, and that any speech accompanied by interest to the entire student body be made in the dining-room.

In the discussion, Betty Mack, speaking for compulsory convocation, and summing up the points made at the forum meeting, said that she granted that compulsory convocation is not desirable as a principal, but that it is a necessary now. She stated that although the subject is not interesting now, they will be better by the time they graduate if not get all that is possible out of college unless they come to college with some interest as to work in convocation, she pointed out.

Moore Debates

Sidney Moore, first arguing against compulsory convocation, stated that it was the principal of compulsion. She declared that students must learn to go to student body meetings without being forced. She opposed the idea of compulsory attendance to a devotional or commencement and against the principals of C. G. A. She said that the thought of convocation's educating the students to participate in the campus politics and elections is ridiculous since so small a part of the

Continued on page two

Baptist Group Plans Meeting

Score from Organizations Throughout Florida To Attend Camp

Twenty students will attend the Baptist Union conference of college organizations over the state which will convene tomorrow at Camp O'Leno near Gainesville to discuss plans for the coming year. Miss Sara Beyer Wilson, faculty of Florida, president of the state organization of the Baptist Student Union, will preside at the meeting.

The theme of the convention is "Abiding In Him." The program will be featured by a banquet and social hour which is followed on Saturday with a series of worship meetings of discussion groups. These groups will also plan definite plans for promoting year among Baptist organizations. The convention will adjourn after a recreational Saturday afternoon.

Students who are to be guests at the council meetings will be Miss Billie Ruth Curren, Baptist student councilor on this campus, Troy Robinson of Gainesville, state student secretary of the group; Dr. Charles Maudry of Jacksonville, Dr. Addie Somerford of Tampa, and the Rev. J. S. Evans of Live Oak.

The Baptist students who have planned to attend the convention are Mary Ellen Thomas, president of the student organization on campus Percy Hughes, Mary Neil Pinchard, Frederica Roberts, Dot McCollough, Elsie Renfroe, Mary Lou O'Hare, Gladys Richardson, Mavis MacMillan, Laura McCauhon, Esther Goodwin, Alicia Meacham, Lois Bowen, Ruth Rogers, Beth Clarke, Ann Worrell, Sara Ruth Louise Doyle, Sunshine Maines, and Bernice Oliver.

"Know Thy Neighbor" Through Foreign Films To Be Presented on Campus, Williams Advises

By ELEANOR WILLIAMS

Perhaps one of the best ways to understanding of a people is through seeing their "movies."

With the object of broadening their own experience and thereby creating understanding as well, the providing that opportunity for others, the local council of the Emergency Peace Campaign plans to present a series of "exceptional" pictures, as rated by the National Board of Review, the first picture to be shown tomorrow night in the Little Theater at 7:45 o'clock. The picture is a well-known Russian production entitled "Road to Life."

A full-length Russian talkie with music and super-imposed English titles. "Road to Life" is a dramatic and luminous story of Russia's former "wild children." Countless travelers, by rail or by boat from ten years ago told and wrote stories of hordes of wild children who roamed the country-side and infested the city streets. The children were the war orphans of the Revolution of the World war and Russia's civil war. Numerous references were made to them in books, numerous were the impressions of them and Russia's treatment of them.

"This picture," says John Dewey, who makes an introductory speech to the film, "telling the story of their old life and of the road to the new life which was worked out by a brave band of Russian teachers. Under the leadership of a sympathetic educator —Sergey—a group of wild boys are taken, unguarded to a country establishment. Just when the rehabilitation work seems to be succeeding, their companions to the old wild life to lure the boys back. Though the leader of the boys is killed, the picture ends on a note of triumph for the new experiment."

The production which was di-

Continued on page two

Three Elected As Delegates To Convention

Senate Committee Heads For New Term Named At Meeting

Betty Cathind, Louise Gehan, and Sue Whitaker will represent Florida State college at the Florida Student Government convention to be held next week, in Orlando. Betty and Louise were elected at the regular meeting of the student senate last Wednesday to attend the state meet as official delegates with Sue, representative of the old administration.

Chairman of senate standing committees for next year were also elected at the recent meeting, first to be held for 1937-38. They are as follows: senate committee, Dot Marsh; social committee, Phil Asher; usher committee, Janet Lockwood; extra-curricular committee, Janet Cook; auditing committee, Lilly McGuire; handbook committee, Frances Williams.

The list of suggested freshmen advisors for next year was read and approved. The list will be returned to the office of the Dean of Students. It was recommended by the senate to the executive council that two delegates be sent to S. I. A. A. C. and Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Conference Regional convention of N. S. F. A.

Students Paint at Gulf

Art students will do paintings of the gulf when they spend the day at St. Marks Sunday, Mrs. Beatrice Beyer Willson's painting class will do oils and water colors and Miss Mary Perry Briggs' class in composition will work with crayolas, or opaque water colors. This is the first spring class work of the group and such trips are made each year.

Romance in Broadest Sense Product of Motion Pictures

Actros, Writers, Technicians and Even Men Who Guard Gates to "Lots" Invested With Aura of Hysterical Esteem

By RIVA LEIB HEMPHILL

Romance is the product of the motion picture industry—romance in the broadest, most adventurous and glamour. This romance is produced on the screen, but the actors who make it, the writers who write it, the technicians, even the men who guard the gates to the "lots" are invested with an aura of hysterical esteem. Nearly all that is connected with the industry is romantic.

But in one small space, the box-office, this illusion of exactly entertainment is dispelled. Hollywood business methods are put into practice. Each picture has a serial number on it, and the difference between the opening number of the day and the closing number of the night is the number of tickets sold. The tickets sold mean money taken in—money taken into a selective business—a business which in 1934 lost about $1,589,393 and which, in 1935, began to come to mean not just the little room where tickets are sold, but the money for which these tickets stand.

Box-office means something else. It means the attitude of the people who go to see the "shows." It means the attitude of time when a man or woman or child buys a ticket, there must not be the slightest action which might disturb him. If the money is to be taken in, the people who are given too slowly, if there is any unpleasant impression received on his mind he may become the dissatisfied complainer who wishes he could not waste his money buying the little piece of cardboard which will admit him to see the picture. A few dissatisfied complainers can make a show fail, and make the sixty millions of people who attend the "movies" each week in America stop going to see Shirley Temple and start taking hikes by the sea or dancing at dances or drinking in beer garden. This is why Hollywood is terrified during the great public sees when

Continued on Page Six

Publications And Societies Plan Jamboree

Celebration to Acquaint Students with Work Of Journalism

To better acquaint students of Florida State college with the work of the three publications, the Flastacuso, Distaff, and Flambeau, Alpha Chi Alpha, national journalistic honorary, and Chi Delta Phi, national literary society, are sponsoring a Jamboree, April 26-29.

Hazel Bowman is in charge of the jamboree and has scheduled a speaker at 11:30 Tuesday in the Augusta. Overall, the jamboree will various activities in the library and down-town stores. These displays are intended to explain the work of the two honoraries and the two projects made in college publications. The Flambeau office will be open during the week to anyone interested in watching the work, and on Thursday evening the Tallahassee Democrat office, where the Flambeau goes to press, will also be open to the public.

The first Jamboree was held by Alpha Chi Alpha in April, 1934, to acquaint students with journalism, and in 1935 there was another jamboree to celebrate the twentieth anniversary of the founding of the college paper.

Faculty Musicians Will Play in Perry, Florida

The instrumental trio of the faculty music department will give a concert in Perry under the auspices of the Perry Woman's Club, on Thursday of next week at 3:30. Club members have been invited to attend and a tea will be given in their honor following the concert.

Members of the instrumental trio are Mary Ester Wynn, violin; Miss Mary Ester Wynn, piano; and Prof. Owen F. Zellers, cello.

Landis' Talk Marks Climax Of Peace Day

More Than Five Hundred Students March In Parade

Local Organizations Sponsored Movement

Attorney General Defines Peace as Tranquility Of Public Mind

Climaxed by a parade of over five hundred students and an address by Attorney - General Cary D. Landis on "Peace Consciousness" yesterday afternoon the campus of Florida State College for Women took part in the Peace Day movement which included similar events all over throughout the United States. The movement was sponsored here on this campus by Mary Jeanne McKay and was sponsored by the local members of the Emergency Peace Campaign and the College Peace Association.

Landis Addresses Students

In his address to the student paraders in the city park Attorney-General Landis complimented the entire student body on their participation in Peace Day. Definite peace as public tranquility and public observance of the law, the speaker said, is the basis of democracies behind democracy and dictatorship. Mr. Landis pointed out the fact that education of the young is far different in countries ruled by will of one man than those in which the people have a voice in choosing representation.

Democracy Discussed

"The soldiers in the land of the dictator gather together to discuss democracy," Landis said, including his remarks about education towards peace.

Reviewing the devastation in money and lives lost in the last war, the speaker pointed out that the supreme waste of war and said "The last war should be a fine lesson to us."

Early morning worship in the college auditorium with Janice Borton in charge began the local observance of Peace Day. A quartet composed of Marian Herbert, first soprano; Maurine Peacock, second soprano; Maxine Ward, first contralto; and Jeanette Wichman, second contralto, sang an invocation. "Take My Hand" from Largo of the New World Symphony by Dvorak, and a benediction, "The Lord Bless You and Keep You" by Rubinstein, were a short talk.

Faculty Discussion

Members of the faculty directed class discussions in groups on "Democracy and War, and Miss

(Continued on Page Seven)

Vance Writes For Journal

"Integrating Freshman Composition" Title Of His Article

For the April number of "The English Journal," Mr. Arthur Vance, professor of English and journalism, has written an article entitled "Integrating Freshman Composition," in which he proposes a method for bringing freshman composition in line with the current academic trend of emphasis on the relation of subjects studied to the general educational needs of the individual.

His plan is to center the student's theme writing around a series of about twelve short papers organized so as to give a complete, intensive picture of his community.

Unity, depth, breath and variety are a few of the advantages which Mr. Vance says will be "most important of all." he writes, "in that they will help the world to grips with his ongoing life—its issues. Its conflicts. Its problems, as he has seen and experienced them."

In showing how his method has an important bearing on the student's educational progress, Mr. Vance cites examples in which a study of this sort parallels a student's study of history, economics, sociology, and religion with similar correlations in the individual's problems treated in these courses.

Honor Student

Amita Peek who was awarded the freshman honor plaque given each year by Mortar Board to the freshman having the highest average for her first semester. Amita's average was 2.88.

Mortar Board To Tap Twenty Tuesday Night

Dr. Richards Will Speak After Annual Torch Light Ceremony

Mortar Board will hold its sixth tapping ceremony Tuesday night at a compulsory convocation in the college auditorium, at which time 20 girls will be chosen for membership.

Mortar Board was installed on this campus in 1931, and has since chosen the outstanding women students. The ceremony will be lighted only by torches carried by the old members who will marche in and on to the stage while the student body stands.

The incoming senior class will be chosen from those girls who in alternate rows in the reserved front section, and the grouped members come down one by one and choose the girls who have been elected for membership. This will be the first time that the student body will have the opportunity of seeing the new members as the sororities were made by secret ballot.

The members of the faculty who were members of this organization will also be on the stage with the outgoing members.

Dr. Harold Richards, head of the piano department, will speak to the male faculty advisor of Mortar Board will read the oath after the tapping, speaking on the organizations triple aims of scholarship, service and citizenship. Miss Ruth Schoenhurst and Miss Elizabeth Lynn will give a party after the ceremony for both old and new members. Initiation will be held at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Richards on May 2.

After each girl has been tapped, the old member gives up her torch and puts her gown on the shoulders of the new girl and steps behind her, thus publicly proclaiming her to be duly pledged.

There are 13 old members: Marjorie Tillis, president; Jo Binion, Martha Makemson, Mary Jeanne McKay, Dawn Parker, Hazel Bowman, Sue Whitaker, Mary Kathryne Gibson, Shirley Stevens, Dorothy Leach, Eleanor Williams and Frances Porth.

Home Economics Club Will Elect Officers

The Home Economics club in its meeting Tuesday night presented nominees for the election of officers will run from 8:30 to 12:30 and from 1:30 to 4:30 o'clock next Thursday on the lower of the science hall. All members must pay their dues before they will be allowed to vote.

Major nominations include: Irene Day and Anita Leonard, vice president; Geraldine Albritton, Margery Morrison and Beatrice Ford Thrower, secretary; Louise Barnes, Margaret Sparkman, and Dorothy White treasurer; Hazel Myrick, Mabry Sumner, Dorothy Broward and Betty Harrison, social chairman; Peggy Jackson, Dorothy Broward, and Martha Hague, publicity chairman; Geraldine Meyer, and Eleanor Ruff, senior representative. Bershe Owen and Beafield Thrower, junior representative.

Last Program Artist Series To Be Tonigh

Martha Graham, Grou To Appear in Dance Entertainment

STUDIED UNDER RUTH ST. DENIS

Gets First Guggenheim Award Presented In This Field

Tonight will herald the comin of the last artist series for the year when Martha Graham appears in the auditorium with her modern dance group in a program of dancing. This will complete the year's schedule of artist programs which have included an opera, a string quartet, an opera singer, a monologist a cellist, and a pianist.

Talking Tour

Last season Miss Graham completed a transcontinental tour the first ever undertaken by a modern American dancer. Her trip was so successful that she is making another nation-wide tour this time accompanied by her concert group.

Miss Graham who is a direct descendant of Miles Standish was born in Pittsburgh, Pa. At the age of ten she moved to Santa Rosa.

Miss Graham, who is direct descendant of Miles Standish began her dancing career in earnest at 16 when she studied with Ruth St. Denis for a six-week period, returning after that time to Santa Rosa to finish her high school schooling. In 1919 she returned to the Denishawn school in Los Angeles and became a member of the concert company. She remained with the school until dancing with the company in the Greenwich Village Follies and Scandals at the Shubert theatre.

Evolves Technique

During the first few years after she left the Denishawn company Martha Graham toured in the Eastman School of Music in Rochester, N. Y. At this time, imbued with the traditions of the Oriental and interpretative dancing which had been given to her by Denishawn company, she began to evolve a new technique, a technique which she believes has reached its highest art of dance in her New York recitals.

In 1926 Martha Graham went to New York and gave her first recital. In addition to her recitals in New York and her concert tours, her activities included appearances with the Philadelphia under the direction of Leopold Stokowski, and with Arthur Judson the leading role in the League of Composers' production of "Le Sacre du Printemps." With the Cleveland orchestra under the direction of Nikolai Sokoloff she danced the leading role in Irving Lowens' Miss Elizabeth Bishop. Members in the theater she has also been active She directed the stage alliance's "Six More Days," assisted Oudrie McClintic in the direction of "Ethan Frome" and "Lucrece," and staged the dancing

Continued on page two

Twenty Merit Honor Ratings

H. Anita Peek Gets Award For Highest Average In Fresh Class

Mortar Board honor plaques were awarded to the names of seven freshmen having the highest average for the first semester of the year 1936-7, were read in convocation Tuesday morning by Sara Barbara Moore, president of Mortar Board. Helen Anita Peek was presented with the award for having the highest average—2.88

Other freshmen who receives the war of having their name appear on the honor boards to be placed in the freshman conference are: Elizabeth Davis, Shirley Davis, Kathryn Keller, Ella Mae Lambert, Elsine Oulin, Lallverson, Marjorie Joseph, Dora Lee Lewis, Mary Margaret Lasbo Agnes Martin, Joan Miller, Mary Ellen Moore, Mary Ruth Myers Ethel Merryday Rosser, Franc Slade, Lonette Thompson, Margaret Rae Voet, Lolise Steel Watrous, and Ruth Weber.

Mortar Board Mortar Board maks awards to the twenty freshme with highest averages in order to stimulate scholastic achievment. This year the average ranged between 2.50 and 2.88.

Psychologist Sets Forth Deep Concentration Plan

Equipment Includes Text, Mirror Watch, Will To Conquer All

"I'm learning to concentrate. Please cooperate and do not come in."

Into a world of droning radios, talkative roommates, inconsiderate neighbors, vociferous security matters, tolling clock chimes, persistent dinner bells and untold other minor but annoying disturbances come the psychologists with their plan for a new personal resistance to surrounding conditions.

Would you become impervious to the chatter of the girls in the next room? Would you learn to keep those brain cells functioning while the radio across the hall is blatantly announcing the winner of this week's sweepstakes? In short, would you become one of those seldom-found individuals who can concentrate in a room scething with people and sound?

Dr. Dorothy Dauber offers a pretested, guaranteed fullproof deep concentration plan, which, if properly carried out, will make you impervious to outside disturbances. Once the formation of the concentration habit has been established, little further individual effort is required. The art of concentration will become mainly habitual, and you will find yourself the unrestricted director of your mind's activity at all times.

The first step has already been mentioned. Place on your door a sign, printed in tall and legible letters, which will convey the impression that you do not wish to be disturbed. Once in the seclusion of your room (it is best to begin the experiment alone; acquaint your roommate that she catch up on her period in the library, or pack the week-end she has gone to visit her grandmother. The next step is to eliminate all possible distractions. Think of all the errands you must accomplish, and decide which of those are most urgent. Then see . . . a movie, walk, write Jimmy, finish that paper, and straighten the dresser. The letter home can wait until tomorrow, and I won't manicure my nails until Saturday." With these necessary tasks performed and the others placed out of mind for the time, you may now continue unhampered by petty distractions.

Sit facing a wall. The chair should be sufficiently uncomfortable to prevent the slightest drowsiness. A good plan is to wrap some one book about the legs of the chair in such a manner as to cause some pain, slight, but well defined enough to keep the senses wide-awake. Other equipment includes a mirror, a watch, a pencil, a sheet of paper, and the text which has been chosen for the experiment, preferably a dull time which will require intense concentration.

Begin to read. When you find that your mind is wandering, look at yourself in the mirror. When has been placed immediately before you, look yourself sharply in the eye, note the time on the sheet of paper, walk around the room once, return, and begin concentrating until your interest wanes a second time. (It will if the text has been properly chosen. Any college sophomore will do.) Face the girls in the mirror again, admit to her that you were thinking of military ball, take another turn around the room and come back ready for again. Notations of the time should be made at each interruption. As the period is repeated, the duration of time between interruptions will be increased, and concomitantly, the number of interruptions will be decreased. A favorable results are usually achieved at the end of one week, save in extreme cases, one month. If by that time you have not learned to concentrate, try another technique.

"Know Thy Neighbor" Through Foreign Films To Be Presented Here

Continued from page one

rected by N. Ekk and which features Mr. Balalov, star of the famous Russian "Mother." Now has well-received in this country.

When it was shown in Philadelphia, the Philadelphia Ledger carried the headlines, "Perhaps biggest crowds the house has ever enjoyed." The General Federation of Women's Clubs especially recommends it: "Excellent direction, superior photography and unusual subject make this an outstanding picture."

At the University of Florida where the International Relations club co-operate the picture, students and faculty members had to be turned away at the doors for lack of accommodations.

If the local council clears expenses on film, it plans to use the proceeds for sending a student from this college into field work for the Emergency Peace Campaign during the summer. Other pictures which the council hopes to bring here before June include a French satire, "A Nous La Liberte," on modern industrial society, a Spanish, German, Italian or Mexican film, and Dreams in Death," an American expose of the part played by the munitions makers in the World war.

Rollins's Peace Society Holds Active Seminar, Acts in Demonstration

This year the Rollins Peace Society has been doing some interesting and useful work. Under the direction of Professor Clarke a Peace Seminar was organized to meet once a week for two hours to discuss and study the international issues of the day. It takes up such things as the aims and probable results of such programs, issues and programs as neutrality, war referendum, and extension of trade agreements.

The purpose of the seminar is to find out what peace is and how they may become effective peace workers. Last week the Rollins Peace Society joined the Winter Peace Action Society which is composed of representatives of the various social, educational, and religious organizations in the town for the purpose of cooperative effort.

On April 18, the Rollins Peace Society presented a radio program over WDBO. It took the form of an interview with Dr. Sandspur and was intended as a demonstration of how to Peace Demonstration on the twenty-sixth of April.

Rollins celebrated the April 22 National Peace Day by a demonstration on the campus on that morning. The demonstration consisted of several student speakers and a parade. Similar to the similar program has been arranged for the demonstration at the Winter Park High School.

Sometime in May Rollins College will entertain the annual Inter-collegiate Peace meeting, at which time they will have representatives from Tallahassee and other state colleges.

Falmbeau Wins "All American" Honor Score

Continued from page one

tor Extension Service Publication, received "All American."

Heading this year's staff has been Hazel Knowles, editor-in-chief. Other members of the staff are: Dorothy Bennett, associate editor; Martha Baker, assistant editor; Pearle Shepard, manager; Virginia Belle Fisher, art editor; Arline Gray Lockhart and Mary Lou Hammond, typists; Virginia Early, exchange editor; Clyde O'Rourke, outside news editor; Hazel Knowles, society; Elizabeth Turner, sports editor; Dorothy Bennett, associate news editor; Evelyn Glazier, art editor; Mary Hood, assistant. Reporters included Hazel Adams, Ruth Atkinson, Dorothy Barclay, Jean Bannister, Lucy Kelly, Ann Lamy, Frances Brunson, Petrea Whitaker, Mary Ann Chaney, Theresa Christ, Honor Coleman, Jeanne Dixon, Mary Elizabeth Maxine Fuqua, Mary Gober, Margaret Gourlie, Leona Howe, Betty Jean Hunnicutt, Lucy Kelly, Ann Ladd, Betty Leach, Martha Lumpkin, Mary Lou McKay, Alta Jo Meachan, Mary Noble, Alberta Patrick, Janet Pierce, Marion Pulvinare, Nancy Reeves, and Shannon, Lovina Spaulding, Elizabeth Spicer, Mary Stallings, Alma Vernen and Frances Waterhouse. Members of the business staff were Jean Bannister, business manager; Nan O'Shaughnessy, advertising manager, and Marguerite Browne, circulation manager.

NSFA Favors No Required Convocation

Continued from page one

student body actually does participate in them.

The general discussion brought out the fact that something must be done to improve convocations. It was thought that if a change should be made, a new process of education would take place which after a discussion saging beginning, would grow as the student studens realized that they must not miss the worthwhile programs presented.

Arline Gray Lockhart was elected as NSFA representaman to N S. F. A in this forum.

Last Program Artist Series to Be Tonight

Continued from page one

in the ball room scene of Katherine Cornell's production of "Romeo and Juliet." She also directed the action in the Phoenix theater's Pani-," a play by Archibald MacLeish, and the dancing in the theater guild play "Valley Forge."

In recognition of the influence her dance has had on American life, Miss Graham was awarded a fellowship by the Guggenheim foundatiar. This was the first time such an award had ever been made to a dancer.

New Class Presidents

Presidents of the three classes, elected at recent meetings of these groups. At the left is Frances Douglas, president of the incoming junior class. Sue Margaret Robinson, senior, incoming sophomore president, and Kathryn Pratt, chosen to head the senior class.

Is Education Worth It?

Greatest Liability Lies in its Guarantee of Lifetime of Unhappiness to All Adherents, Says Writer

By CLOTILDE O'ROURKE

We have been discussing the subject of progressive education for many months—what it is, how it got that way, and what returns may be expected from it. The conclusion seems to have been that progressive education as defined by McKeiphin, Lewisohn and others is education in its truest sense, and that it will prove an asset t all those who follow. Its greatest quality lies in its guarantee of a lifetime of unhappiness to all its adherents. And that is a point to which I wish to call the attention whether education is worth while.

Progressive education proposes to fit its students for life in our present-day world. It proposes to do so by revealing to them the intricate pattern of the contemporary scene—its various political, social, educational, and religious make-ups—and by showing throughout the history of the race the gradual building up of the civilization we have today. In so doing, it is intended that the student's peace of mind will be permanently upset. It is impossible for a person to glimpse the immensity of the complications of a "brave new world" such as ours is today and still be satisfied as in the days when he was ignorant of its existence.

Let us take the case of a typical young woman who has followed this routine of higher learning for four years—and let us grant her truly ethical mind. She steps out from behind her four gray walls blessed with her knowledge of the world in which she lives. She is not only aware of its great size and long history, she is conscious of the many problems facing it, and she is intoxicated with the idea that she must do her bit toward solving them. She is sensible enough to realize, however, that she cannot step onto the national or international stage at once, and she decides that her first work will be for the betterment of her own community—a world in miniature after all. And because she is young and inexperienced she probably will not know that her plans are in the realm of unattainable ideals.

A year at home will bring her first disillusionment. For she will discover that no one is particularly interested in the welfare of the community—least of all those to whom it is entrusted. Generally speaking, the citizens are either ignorant or indifferent about the problems that arise in the former class consider Maryville the best little town in the United States! Its parks are the most beautiful, its buildings are the largest for a town of its size, its people are well-off financially and socially, its churches are the best, et, and its government is more honest than you will find anywhere. Who could ask for more? In the meanwhile the officials let the rest of the population labor under this illusion. Why improve conditions when the people are satisfied with it the way it is? Their only interest in making an honest money as possible, as soon as possible.

But our college graduate cannot blame the officials alone. She discovers that all of her friends uphold the fetish of dollars and cents. Their chief concern is making money, and all of their interests revolve around this goddess. They discuss the parties they have attended, the movies they have seen, the price of clothes, the price o' groceries, the price of everything—then talk about the nesaity of business, of stocks and

Pounds Disappear As Girls Shun Pie

"Thank you, no?"

This remark, usually accompanied by a set mouth and/or wistful eyes, is often heard at the table these days when pie or butter is served.

Florida State damsels have realized that spring has come and that summer is in the offing. And with summer come bathing suits. With bathing suits should come pie-shy, pie figures, and as every wise girl knows, pie-like figures and pie just don't agree.

Refusing pie, however, is but one daily hardship involved in looking like the girl in the swimming suit advertisement. There is the matter of exercising every day. And there is the trip to the gym or the infirmary to weigh.

All over campus you can see them . . . girls pounding painfully on the track, girls with a "do or die" grim of it," girls rolling on the floor, groaning after each exercise, and girls trying to look blissfully unaware of the person next to her suffering and red in the countenance.

The hardest trial of all is getting a box from home. After all one can't act quietly by while the room next door receives a box from her own mother cooked, even if one does want a Dietrich-like figure.

Movies Good Influence

142 Out of 150 Students Questioned Believe Motion Pictures do no Harm But Rather Are Inspirational

In answer to the question, "Do you believe that movies affect, either for good or bad, the girls here on campus?" 142 out of 150 students questioned answered in the affirmative. Eight girls replied that movies were merely a relaxation to be forgotten as soon as one leaves the theater.

Various reasons were given as to how the girls were affected by the pictures seen including the story, actors and actresses in the picture, scenery, and the music played.

One senior grew enthusiastic upon the subject, "I believe that the whole, good type of movie is inspirational as any story one can read. For instance—I'm sure anyone who saw the 'Life of Louis Pasteur,' 'Smiling Through,' and 'Camille' cannot help but feel that the pure artistry shown could uplift them."

One majority group said that they believed pictures were, on the whole, good for girls and displayed new styles, latest manners, clothes, hairdress and fine taste. "When I see a girl after seeing Norma Shearer or Myrna Loy or a Norma Shearer production of the novels of Zane Grey and Jack London.

A few girls enjoyed the historical costume pictures. They replied, "Richelieu' and 'Madame Du Barry.' They believed to interest-ing to be forgotten. Also they found them in a human way on the stage. "If I had seen more of this sort of picture." one senior explained, "I would have enjoyed my history so much more. I wish we could bring the screen into the class room and have pictures of this sort to reel off during the history period or even a travel talk for geography about twice a week."

The few students who didn't think the movies affected or interests one way or the other explained that they thought that they forgot about the picture as soon as something else came along. "When they get home and begin to study again, I believe they forget all things that they have just seen until the next time," one of these students said. Of course a great number of catchy tunes are remembered and sung, but that happens probably because they are heard over the radio about every hour.

The general opinion was, however, that the movies definitely affected the girls, and for the most part for the good.

French Honorary Elects Glazier New President During Tuesday Meet

Theta Kappa, French honorary, elected Evelyn Glazier as their president at a meeting Tuesday night in Knowles hall.

The other officers elected at that time included: Eloise Andrews, vice-president; Dorothy Perry, secretary; Geneva Nelson, treasurer, and Dorothea Mack, representative to the council of honorary fraternities.

At the election of officers there was a program on "The Prince of Today." Geneva Nelson presented a brief history of the French government from the time of the Napoleonic wars to the present, stressing the current crisis in government affairs. Eloise Andrews gave a summary of the many forms of government the French had on years. The opinions of a Frenchman and an American observer concerning the present needs of the French people with respect to governmental affairs, the "new deal," and their economic status was contrasted by Eloise Andrews.

Mrs. Dorothy Breen, member of the modern language faculty, explained the plan suggested by Theta Kappa Phi to coordinate the work of various honorary societies.

20c — LITTLE THEATRE — 20c
Tomorrow Night: 7:45
See Your First Russian Talkie
'ROAD TO LIFE'
An Entertaining but Dramatic Picture
You Won't Forget
Proceeds Go to Emergency Peace Campaign

Sunday Dates Suffer Agony From Stares

Uncomfortable Make Up For Dinner Making Many Faux Pas

One of the most interesting sights of a Sunday dinner is a dinner hour is that of some girl's date trying to appear nonchalant and poised as he is about to be dressed to look his most favorable position, which to watch this panorama about one or two tables are preferably in a direct line of vision, so that close observation is not obvious.

On first sitting down the boy is silent, fumbling with his napkin with the fraternity scrambling women. Women's conversation not another man in sight. The boy is responded a for his presence in the dining room calculating the casualty ratio to see who is noticing him the boy, fulping a time or two, and then attempts to start a conversation. He is greeted with laughs, grows red, and lapses into conversation. He is complaining his courage and his superiority back when the food is placed on his table. Upon the appetite by the girl at the boy's table he finally chooses a meal becoming more and more confused as dishes are passed, decides what he should eat and when he should pass the dishes on to the next in line.

He begins eating very slowly almost exaggeratingly at first, leaning over his plate to crumble a girl's ear anything that pops into his head, and finally settles down which will give him an excuse for laughing, for shrugging his shoulders and for saying nothing. Unless he is truly uncommon with his surroundings he will regret very little to eat. The stress of having everything turned on him from the time his fork leaves his plate until it reaches his mouth is something one can't get used to. Even talking and playing with food.

He watches the dessert being placed before him rather with hot unhappy eyes, and makes a desperate glimmers in his eyes as he remembers at the start of the variable ice cream. This should be the handle to his fork.

Girls are beginning to love dining room. One or two more Sunday dinners should suffice and stop to speak to him, adding more confusion, rising, sitting down again.

The ordeal is almost over. The boy is thinking of his date, the thought of freedom so close at hand, the boy summons down the slate and out the door, feeling that he has at least passed successfully as a man of the world, used to the admiration of admiring glances, and is greeted on him during the meal.

So hard is the shell of the beast not that it will withstand a pressure of six tons. And so is the female's ball. It is a cluster of nut meats resembling shelled Brazil nuts.

STATE THEATRE
FRIDAY AND SATURDAY
April 23-24
WAKE UP AND LIVE WITH HENRIETTA HILTON
ALICE FAYE
PAT O'BRIEN
JACK HALEY
SUNDAY AND MONDAY
April 25-26
50 ROOMS OF THRILLS
BOB BURNS
ZASU PITTS
WEDNESDAY, APRIL 28
MIDNIGHT TAXI
BRIAN DONLEY
FRANCES DRAKE
THURSDAY, April 29
Lionel Barrymore
in
"FAMILY AFFAIR"

Give MOTHER HER FAVORITE CANDY
Whitman's CHOCOLATES
Your gift of a package of Whitman's Chocolates will give Mother double pleasure. It says . . . "Nothing is too good for Mother, and you see, I have not forgotten your day."
An excellent variety of Whitman's Chocolates here now, ready for your selection . . . call today.

Sports Squints

By RUTH ATKINSON AND HAZEL ADAMS

In spite of all the demonstrations for peace throughout the country and—most important to us—here on our own campus, and in spite of all the speeches advising peaceful settlement of all disputes by means of discussion, the freshmen, sophomore, and junior diamond-ball teams would not adhere to this policy. Instead the freshmen and sophomore teams settled out their chief argument on the diamond Wednesday afternoon and the freshmen won 18-16, 36-30. Not satisfied with this clever maneuver, the freshmen are going on to higher things when they line up against the junior team this afternoon in an attempt to prove their superiority once more. No doubt the juniors have a different idea on the subject.

The swimmers of our fair school, however, gave way before the pressure of peace demonstrations and postponed their inter-class meet from yesterday afternoon until Monday afternoon at 4:30.

There comes a time in every one's life when the urge to try one something new overwhelms him gets the upper hand. That one has come in the life of yours truly. Sandspurs, ankle-deep weeds, and the tendency of a golf ball to hide in unexpected places are the reasons for our sale of golf.

Florida State has a good soccer field, a good hockey field, good tennis courts, good volleyball and basketball courts, and a good archery range, but that golf course is terrible! We realize that an golf courses are just a makeshift, and that it would cost a big amount of money to have a good course. However, golf is one of the individual sports offered to both students and it seems to us that some arrangements could be made to better the conditions of a place to play.

Two improvements could easily be made. In the first place, some kind of a fairway could be formed by having the grass cut in a fairly straight line from the driving tee to the green, and in the second place, the clay greens could be rolled by the same machines that are used to roll the tennis courts. As the situation is now all the pleasure is taken out of golf by the poor conditions of the course. Half of the player's time is used looking for her ball and the whole game is spoiled. Were going on record right now in favor of bringing the playing conditions for golf up to a par with the playing conditions offered for other minor sports on campus.

Back to more pleasant subjects we find that our pet possession of all is camp is be named by student with a knack for words. To, to, our one and only sailboat is to be named by means of a survey. All students are eligible and any student may contribute as many names as her imagination allows. So rush it up, girls, cause there's a prize waiting for the winner and the contest closes today. Don't lose any time and kick your suggestion in the box in the W. A. A. bulletin board.

From the results of a side issue on a sophomore English class several days ago, one would judge that P. S. C. W. dances must have an interest in "crack." One fair member of the class, desirous to get to the front of the room as soon as possible and without disturbing her neighbors, calmly hurled over the back of the seat in front of her. It was effective.

Our sympathies go to Ruth Aiken McClain who slipped when she was climbing out of the pool, and broke a cartilage in her elbow and practically ruined the play of skin on her left leg. She's walking, but is having a hard time of it.

There's that girl on campus who was always riding with a right good will, and came out a different person. In an effort to get over the soreness and stiffness she vaulted from her ride, she went out and played a set of tennis and now, she's got all her muscles sore. Her shoulders alone took a beating in tennis, and her arm and other important but unmentionable parts took a beating from her riding. Such is the life of a sportswoman!

Soap Carvings Available

Students who took courses in art appreciation or design last year may get their soap carvings and designs at 4:30 Tuesday from Miss Amy Briggs' room on the top floor of the Westcott building. They can not be kept there any longer due to lack of space.

Tennis Rounds Will Continue All Next Week

Faculty-Student Matches Progress as Six Teams Play

After several interesting first round matches student faculty tennis tournaments will advance into second and third round matches next week as Herron and Heinlein face Borton and Miller, Joffre and Davis play Corey and Graham, and Fisher and Rogers will play White and Pou.

Play in the tournament advanced this week as Fay Corey and Dr. Viola Graham defeated Valerie Hunt and Miss Ray Brown 6-3, 6-4, and Evelyn Fisher and Dr. William Rudolph Rogers won a 6-2, 6-2 match over Dorothy Marchesseau and Miss Nelle Bond Dickenson in the first round matches.

In the second matches played in advance Marjorie Horton and Dr. Christian Paul Heinlein won over Juanita Purcham and Miss Ruth Lehman 7-5, 6-4 and Janice Borton and Dr. Ralph Borton defeated Ruth Rubin and Wm. William Joubert 6-1, 6-1.

The Corey - Graham, Hunt - Fraser match proved to be a hotly contested battle between four contestants. Corey in the first set play was quite even until the Corey-Graham team broke loose after the sixth game and kept it up to win the first set. The second set saw a display of consistent and steady struggle again with a fourth game win for Hunt-Fraser side of the net. Their opponents finally outstedied them though to win the second set.

The Fisher-Rogers team began their match with a determined spirit by taking a straight three game lead over their opponents Pou and Passeau-Dickenson. They kept this lead to win the set after dropping only one game.

In the second set Marchesseau put over some brilliant serves and net placements to win the first game at one all. Although the second set was decidedly better contested the Fisher-Rogers combination came through with a 6-2 victory to take the match, 6-1, 6-2.

The Horton-Heinlein, Purchase-Lehman match Tuesday proved the most fiercely contested of the two second round matches played. The perplexing problem each his partner got off to a 3-1 lead in the first set. Then Jack Lehman's left-handed twist service and Juanita's sliced drive pulled the score up to 5-3 in their favor. This spurt was followed by a spirited rally from the other side of the net as Horton and Heinlein tied the games at 5-5 and took the first set at 7-5.

In the second set both teams settled down to a steadier pace with Purchase and Lehman taking the lead at the beginning. After a score of 2-2 the Purchase team took lead 4-3 only to have Heinlein and Horton come back with a rush taking the next three games to win the set 6-4.

The Borton-Miller, Rubin-Joubert match produced little fireworks as the philosophy professor and his partner took the first set 6-1 and the second set by the same score after a little keener competition.

Four Students Attend Classical Convention At Alabama College

Four Florida State college students left yesterday for Birmingham, Ala., where they will attend the thirteenth annual convention of Eta Sigma Phi, classical honorary. Members of the classical club at Birmingham-Southern are acting as official hosts at the convention.

The guests were welcomed at a reception held last night at the college. Highlights of today's program were the addresses given by Dr. D. M. Key of Millsaps college and Dr. George Currie of Birmingham-Southern. The p r o g r a m will also include the election of officers, various committee meetings, and informal seminars.

A sight-seeing tour planned for Saturday will include the "Vestavia," Birmingham mountain mansion patterned after the Greek temple of "Vesta," and a visit to the statue of Vulcan, second largest statue in the United States.

The convention will be climaxed with the installation of the officers and the formal banquet, which is to be held on Saturday evening.

Members of the chapter at Florida State college attending the convention are Mary Kathryn Gibson, president; Pearle Overhulte, vice president; Molly Wall, treasurer; and Mary Greene.

Athletic Board Makes New Regulations For Inter-Class Contests

New regulations for inter-class and Odd-Eve swimming meets which were adopted at a called meeting of the Athletic board Monday were submitted to the play-ed for the lowers.

In the semi-finals, played last week and beginning of this, the Reynolds team won an engagement with Jones at Madison, and Caroline Mills of Pi Beta Phi. The Tau Zeta Alpha team made the finals by defeating Mary Chalker and Bertha Owen of Chi Omegas.

of the second, leaving the score 14-7.

With Colburn pitching for the Odds at the beginning of the third, and Hunt and Corey cooperating to put out two, Thompson of the Evens started out for the freshmen by bagging a home run early in the inning. It was followed by only two runs, however, before Palmer put out the third freshman by catching Jewett's fly in center field. Score at the end of the second inning was 17-7.

Early in the third, Hunt hit a three-bagger, followed by Corey's strong two-base hit. Duke made the first base, and Lowrey sent her home by hitting a strong one to left field, bringing in both Corey and Duke. Wilson made first, and Thompson caught Lessey's low one to first, making it 16-11, with the Evens resting only a slight edge. Early in the fifth, however, Moore hit a pretty homer, bringing Thompson in safely and cruising in easily herself. Swift and snappy playing by both teams followed, and in the end of the fifth the freshmen were still ahead, with a seven runs over the scores of their opponents.

Corey was pitching for the Odds at the opening of the sixth. Prine,

Reynolds Shuffleboard Team Captures Finals

Reynolds Shuffleboard team composed of Lucille Hamilton and Margaret Thorpe defeated the Zeta Tau Alphas, Wednesday for the college championship. Louise Lee and Margaret Patterson played for the losers.

Freshmen Beat Sophomores In Diamond Ball

Strong Batting Results In 26-20 Victory For Even Team

By NANCY ROGERS

Consistently strong batting won for the freshman diamond-ball team a 26-20 victory over their sophomore opponents in a closely contested battle played off Monday afternoon. Batting was not receive any points unless she actually made it to the base.

Those swimmers who have met all requirements for making a numeral may be excused from all participate for physical reasons, reverned by the usual pool regulations, will automatically receive on class points provided they attend the meet.

A new plan for tennis matches was also drawn up at the meeting. Instead of continuing the matches the following day, all matches must be played off on the same afternoon and all of them matches will be played off similar fashion.

Tennis practice will continue as it has been, which by no means there is still plenty of time to come out and get practice points.

Students Suffer From Hot Rays Of Spring Sun

Camp Devotees Turn All Shades of Scarlet During Outings

By ELIZABETH CAUSEY

Ouch! Say listen, can't you tell when it gets sunburned? Well, it doesn't look like it the way it's been hitting me all day. 'Course I know you keep forgetting but jus' the same my poor back is a good memory. Yeah, I know, I should have known better than to go in the sun that much with a complexion that can't take it. So what? Everyone at camp is getting sunburned and sailing. What did you expect me to do—sit under a tree all weekend like a stay? Sure, I could have worn more clothes, but being in Gainsville last week-end you wouldn't know how hot it was here, would you? Don't you feel like they'll never bend again. Oooh!

Say, have you anything good for sunburn? Well, why haven't you? Oh, so you never are so foolish as to get in the sun too long, eh? What about that summer we visited your aunt at the beach? Boy, you had a swell "baking" if ever I saw one and those blisters didn't rose up! Whew! I really felt sorry for you and yet I did want to laugh at the way you had to dress. Remember how badly the straps of your bathing suit hurned? You really were a sight hobbling around barefooted. You couldn't wear shoes and you could see our gang gave that summer and were you mad! No, you won't forget when it comes to staying out in the sun too long. Not enough!

By the way, I'm not the only one who got burned. There was a whole bunch of us. Got lots of sand are they red? They look like the well done lobster will look this season, so I'm in the mood for lobsters? At any rate these girls really got a sunburn—and they're arguing doing my sunburn? Nothing like that. A little savvy to be me? Atta girl! Could I interest you in putting some of this on your back? Sis just borrowed from a fellow sufferer, on my standing her off. Ah, you know I have to mind setting my hands sweaty but honest, I can't reach my back with any degree of comfort. Please? You really are swell to me. Thanks a million and please go easy. It hurts like everything to touch it, so don't rub too hard.

Well, you may like to be out behind Gilchrist sod lay in the sun on Saturday afternoon? Hey, don't you dare throw that pillow at me!

Riding Classes Arranged

Riding classes for this quarter are being arranged this week and Miss Martha Taylor, student riding instructor.

Although most of these classes will be held at 4:30 in the afternoons, other hours will be arranged if groups of six or more girls request them. There will be classes for both beginning and advanced riders.

Girls wishing to enroll may see Marie in 303 Gilchrist or sign up for the classes on the bulletin board in the lower floor of the Administration building.

Tarpons Plan For Try-Out

Interested Swimmers May Take Tests Required For Club Entrance

Practices for tryouts for membership in the newly-organized Tarpon club will begin next week, and tests will be given on May 1 and 8 for prospective members. A member of the organization will be present at the pool every day in order to assist those practicing for the test.

Copies of the diving and swimming tests are posted on the athlete board in the Westcott building and in the gymnasium.

Members of the Tarpon club will be chosen from students having a scholastic average of C who can pass the required test. The club is limited to twenty-five members.

An orientation meeting for those interested in becoming members will be held Tuesday night, and the aims of the Tarpons were outlined as follows: To learn protection of self and others; to develop in the individual an interest in swimming which will continue through college and afterwards, to make students realize through knowledge and mastery of skills and techniques the worth and social values inherent in activity; to add recreational value to life; to help swimmers closer together in promoting better swimming and in cooperative work in water stunts and games.

Charter members of the club are Frances Thill, Florence Ward, Dorothy Colburn, Evelyn Edwards, Sara Herbert, Dorothy Herbert, and Mary Peacock.

Water Sports Day Features Varied Events

Canoe, Dory, Kyak Races Will Lead Odd-Even Rivalry to Fore

Dory, canoe, and kayak races, canoe demonstrations, and stunts will be featured on the water-sports day program which will be sponsored by the F club tomorrow afternoon at Camp Flaxcomeco. Odd-Even teams, class teams and faculty-student teams will all participate.

The Odd-Even canoe race will be a highlight of the afternoon. Paddling the Odd war canoe will be: Evelyn Edwards, Ruth Bailey, Dorothy Curry will paddle for the sophomores and Marian Weeks and Marian Lesser will handle the senior canoe. Against them Frances Thill and Felicia West will wield the paddles for the juniors and Yvonne Marchesseau and Ruth Bailey will take over the freshman canoe.

The dory race will see Felicia West for the Evens paddling against Valerie Hunt for the Odds.

The Odd-Even Kyak race will probably be an event of hectic and thrills. Announcement of pilots for the preserving boats will be made that afternoon.

Tricks for the benefit of all students who wish to attend the program will leave from the beck of Bryan at 1:45 and will return 4:5 o'clock. Three planning trips are requested to sum up on the W. A. A. bulletin board in the Westcott building.

Hazel Vietel is in charge of the general plans for the water sports day. Her committee includes. Valerie Hunt, who is in charge of the Odd teams, sophomore class teams and senior class teams; Felicia West, in charge of the Even teams, freshman class teams and junior class teams; Fay Corey, in charge of the student-faculty teams will race against the faculty; Miss Kathryn Montgomery in charge of the faculty canoe team; and Frances Thill, in charge of canoe demonstrations and stunts.

Swimming Meet To Be Monday

Four Class Teams Swim In Inter-Class Meet Held Next Week

The annual inter-class swimming meet for freshmen, sophomores, juniors and seniors will be held Monday afternoon at 4:30 at the college pool. This is the first time the four class teams will compete in one meet.

The meet this year will be especially eventful since swimming fans expect that several records will be broken.

The order of events as scheduled include the 20 yard free style for speed, elementary back for form, breast stroke for speed, side stroke for form, back crawl for speed, breast stroke for form, 50-yard medley composed of English, racing and front crawl for speed, diving, and a 100-yard free style four-man relay for speed.

Team members who will compete are as follows: Freshmen, Louise Rice, Virginia Alexander, Ernestine Makemson, Merryday Rosser, Mary Collins, Carolyn Collins, Marjorie Rice, Marjorie Reader, Connie Ash, and Janet Jewett. Sophomores, Betty White, Bunny Lowry, Sarah Lytal, Margaret Wishart, Jean Gillis, Dot Wilson, Betty Ann Bell, and Dot White. Juniors: Frances Thill, Elsie Eagle, Ruth McClain, Helen Daniel, Mary Katherina Scott, and Mary Pearock. Seniors: Jane Marchesseau, Pinky Plant, Mercy McMichel and Sarah Hethcox.

sports day. Her committee includes. Valerie Hunt, who is in charge of the Odd teams, sophomore class teams and senior class teams; Felicia West, in charge of the Even teams, freshman class teams and junior class teams; Fay Corey, in charge of the student-faculty teams will race against the faculty; Miss Kathryn Montgomery in charge of the faculty canoe team; and Frances Thill, in charge of canoe demonstrations and stunts.

ALL HONOR TO A GREAT athlete LOU GEHRIG OF THE WORLD'S CHAMPION NEW YORK YANKEES

LARRUPING

FOUR HOME RUNS IN ONE GAME? YEOW!

UM-M-M, HERE'S THE BEST PART OF EATING!

SMACK

PACK OF CAMELS? YES, SIR!

SOCK IT, HIGH INFIELD!

YES, MABEL, IT'S HIS IBOW! CAMELS WITHOUT A BREAK!

X MARKS THE SPOT where once there was a thick juicy steak smothered in mushrooms! Lou's favorite dish. Gehrig is a big eater—6 ft. 1 in. tall—weighs 210 pounds. And he has a big man's appetite. Says he: "I get hot rewards from a fellow sufferer, on my standing here in the sun. Ah, you know I have to mind setting my hands sweaty but honest, I can't reach my back with any degree of comfort. Please? You really are swell to me. Thanks a million and please go easy. It hurts like everything to touch it, so don't rub too hard.

Well, you may like to be out behind Gilchrist sod lay in the sun on Saturday afternoon? Hey, don't you dare throw that pillow at me!

HOME-RUN KING! Gehrig (a regular Casel smoker) has an average of 34 home runs per season. In 1934, and again in 1936, Gehrig topped the American League for home-runs. Gehrig's follow-through is shown above. He takes terrific punishment to connect, and, as Lou says: "Camels don't get on my nerves."

Copyright, 1937, R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, Winston-Salem, N. C.

HERE'S LOU'S FAVORITE BAT and his favorite first baseman's mitt. His bat is extra heavy model. He wears out two mitts a season. Last year, with 1,377 games played, he batted .447 for first base was only 6/1000ths short of PERFECT.

FOR A SENSE OF DEEP-DOWN CONTENTMENT... JUST GIVE ME CAMELS, AFTER A GOOD MAN-SIZED MEAL! THAT'S THE PHRASE CAMELS SET YOU RIGHT! COVERS THE WAY I FEEL. CAMELS SET ME RIGHT, WHETHER I'M AT HOME OR JUST ENJOYING LIFE

"ANOTHER BIG REASON why I prefer Camels," continues Lou, "is that they're a 'lift' with a Camel!" Enjoy Camels freely—they're friendly to the throat.

FOR DIGESTION'S SAKE —SMOKE CAMELS

BASEBALL'S "IRON-MAN"! When Lou says on the field, for his first game of the 1937 season—he'll be playing his 2,000th consecutive game. Injuries never stopped Gehrig. Once he chipped a bone in his foot—yet knocked out a home, two doubles, and a single next day. Another time, he was knocked out by a "bean ball," yet next day walloped 3 triples in 5 innings. Gehrig's record is proof of his splendid physical condition. As Lou says: "I've been careful about my physical conditions. Smoke? I enjoy it. My cigarette is Camel."

EVERY TUESDAY NIGHT!

"Jack Oakie's College"

A gala show with Jack Oakie running a "college" in his own way! Catchy music! Hollywood comedians and singing stars! Join Jack Oakie's College. Tuesdays — 8:30 p.m. E. S. T., 7:30 p.m. C. S. T., 6:30 p.m. M. S. T., 5:30 p.m. P. S. T. over WABC-CBS.

COSTLIER TOBACCOS

Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS . . . Turkish and Domestic . . . than any other popular brand.

CAMEL

The Florida Flambeau

EDITORIAL STAFF

EVELYN FISHER, FRANCE SHEPARD..... Co-Editors
ARLINE GRAY STEWART..... Associate Editor
DOROTHY BANCROFT..... Managing Editor
FRANCES DENSON, ALMA WARREN..... News Editors

Member: National Scholastic Press association and Florida Intercollegiate Press association

DEPARTMENTS

Art, Edwin Glaser; Exchange, Elizabeth Turner and Ann Bellamy; Feature, Ann Bellamy; Literary, Frances Sidi and Alma Meachum; Literary, Phyllis Chastain and Betty Spicer; Society, Anne Ladd and Mary Nesbit; Sports, Ruth Atkinson. Special Reporters, Theresa Rose, Lucy Kelly, Sally Rogers and Hazel Adams. Typists, Mary Nesbit and Betty Spicer.

REPORTERS: Hazel Acuna, Ruth Atkinson, Dorothy Bancker, Blanton Barrett, Dorothy Bellamy, Frances Bush, Petra Celestin, Elizabeth Clauer, Theresa Christ, Glenn Corbett, Homer Coleman, Virginia Davis, Hal Dickinson, Maxine Fuller, Mary Gober, Margaret Goodlet, Lamar Howe, Betty Lou Ingermann, Anne Ladd, Ann Lawrence, Mary Lou Lewis, Mary Ann Lyons, Mary Margaret McKay, Alma Meachum, Mary Nesbit, Alberta Parker, Janet Powers, Marion Rhodes, Sally Rogers, Frances Sidi, Betty Spicer, Spaulding Spencer, Mary Sullivan, Alma Warren, Frances Waterhouse.

BUSINESS STAFF

JANE QUINN..... Business Manager
ELIZABETH SCOBEY..... Asst. Business Manager
RIVA HEMPHILL..... Circulation Manager

Represented for National Advertising by
NATIONAL ADVERTISING SERVICE, Inc.
College Publishers Representative
420 Madison Ave. New York N. Y.
Chicago • Boston • San Francisco • Los Angeles
Portland • Seattle

Entered as second class mail matter January 30 1931 at the post office at Tallahassee, Fla., under act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

Flambeau Points To Criticisms of Prom

In this issue of the Flambeau, three letters concerning the recent Junior-Senior Prom are printed in the pro and con column, the reader writes. Two of the letters setting forth the masculine view of the affair were sent to the Flambeau by two visitors from the University of Florida who attended the Prom. The third article is contributed by a member of this student body who feels that student thought should be turned to the social problems of the campus.

In printing these letters the Flambeau is following its usual policy of making the pro and con column the expression of student opinion. It will welcome any replies or expression of disapproval or approval from other sources.

Since the social life of the campus is necessarily limited, careful consideration needs to be given to any problems that arise from time to time in this connection. Much has been achieved during the past three years to clear up petty detail, especially in the line of social regulations. This year's prom regulations, however, prove that a great deal can yet be accomplished in way of giving Florida State College for Women regulations in keeping with the times.

We are judged by visitors during the time that they visit us. The fact that our day-by-day regulations are more liberal is unfortunately overshadowed in their eyes when a regime of petty details is attached to as an important a social event as the Prom.

The New Deal Speaks to the Campus

With the ushering in of new campus officers the question of the policy and attitudes of "the new deal" becomes, or should become, one of considerable importance to the student body. Those who have been made officers in the college government association and those who have been made editors of the publications have in their hands the power to shape the affairs of the campus world. It is with a definite feeling of responsibility to the student body which elected them that the new co-editors take over their office.

This is a changing world we live in. National and international events are moving in such rapid succession that it is difficult to keep up with them. Every day timeworn institutions crumble on their shaky foundations and fall. Traditions fire before the onslaught of the modern mind. The campus of Florida State College for Women is not an exception to the prevailing order of change. New and vital ideas are in the air. Progressive movements are waiting to be worn. But there are obstacles. Here surrounded by modern physical equipment of every description are concepts and patterns of thought that belong in the days "when East Hall was new." In spite of the unceasing efforts on the part of college [illegible] are still large groups of students [illegible] indifferent to all student activity, take no part in their own self-government and who add nothing to campus thought. None of that group will be reading this editorial. The Flambeau and the Pearl go to the same waste basket.

But it is to the group who are interested [illegible] that we, as new editors of the Flambeau, are addressing this editorial. Our campus world is changing. Such things as the new integrated courses, the new liberal cut system, and improved social regulations prove it. We need to adopt our thinking to these changes, to work out new ways of keeping the campus up with the latest movements in education. We can't afford to let our thinking stagnate.

Alumnae College— Has It Come to Stay?

Florida State's first alumnae college has come and gone. Now it's time to take stock, while the week-end is still fresh in our minds, as to the success or failure of the endeavor.

The first success which must be scored up is definitely on the side of the college, as against the Thanksgiving "homecoming" which has heretofore served as a medium of drawing former students back to the campus and now is reserved as a time for visiting parents. Never before has there been such an influx of former students and never before has there been such a wide divergence of ages represented—the way from graduates of the class of 1910 to last year's crop. This should be an indication that an "alumnae college" has the drawing power that the Thanksgiving "homecoming" has not had.

But those who vote for the Thanksgiving "homecoming" uphold the argument that those people who favor this sort of return to college signified their disfavor of the "alumnae college" by their absence. At the same time they explain the large attendance by the drawing power of new or novel activities. However, something beside the newness must account for the variation in ages represented. It would seem indicative that an "alumnae college" offers something to more people than the "homecoming" at Thanksgiving. It would seem also that the more distant alumnae are not as interested in the traditional Odd-Even rivalry as evidenced in sports and other activities as their younger schoolmates are.

I refer, of course, to the Junior-Senior Prom and its attendant rules and regulations. The Prom is undoubtedly always the largest and most important single social function given each year on the campus of F. S. C. W. It has long been a function to which every junior and senior has been proud to invite as her escort the young man of her choice best. However, if successive Proms are policed and regulated as was the last one, the social attendance will be considerably lessened and the girls will be ashamed to invite their friends to witness the complete mistrust which authority have in us.

It is not from the group silently critical that complaints and "gripers" that the complaints regarding the restrictions come this time. Most of the complaints I have heard were made by girls who are ultra-conservative and whom I have never known to break a rule or ridicule a tradition. Some of our staunchest defenders of C. G. A. have been compelled to criticize the severity of the rules for the dance, rules which have exceeded in hardships any that we have had since that red letter day when it was announced that the girls of F. S. C. W. would be allowed to dance with

Continued on Page Six

Peace Day And Campus Progress

Yesterday approximately five hundred students of this college marched in a parade throughout the town of Tallahassee to express their belief in peace. This action was the climaxing event of a series of Peace Day features which included the cooperation of students and faculty in classroom discussions, several stimulating open forums and panel discussions.

The fact that five hundred students ironed a parade in the cause of peace may seem an insignificant or external thing to some. If we are to judge by the smiles of some of the townspeople the expression of our belief in peace was even a little humorous to many. But the significant thing about the whole affair is that for the first time on this campus not only were we participating in a peace movement but we were joining with other students in a widely represented area in saying to the world in general and our government in particular that we have the right to live in a peaceful and harmonious society, that we refuse to be cannon fodder and that we are united in opposing war as a bloody and unnecessary blot on the society in which we live.

The college government association, the Emergency Peace Campaign and all other organizations that participated are to be congratulated on their cooperation in making this program effective.

Spirit of the Week . . . . . By Scott

CONGRATULATIONS, STAFF OF '36-'37

The Reader Writes

ABOUT THE PROM

Feminine View—

Judging by the restrictions which were placed upon us two week-ends ago, one would seem that Florida's Fairest Damsels are a most untrustworthy lot, of girls and our merriment treatment with strongarm tactics, reminiscent of Hitler or Mussolini. Such tactics will, if pursued further, eventually encourage dishonesty among members of the student body. There have already been evidences of such dishonesty.

I refer, of course, to the Junior-Senior Prom and its attendant rules and regulations. The Prom is undoubtedly always the largest and most important single social function given each year on the campus of F. S. C. W. It has long been a function to which every junior and senior has been proud to invite as her escort the young man of her choice best. However, if successive Proms are policed and regulated as was the last one, the social attendance will be considerably lessened and the girls will be ashamed to invite their friends to witness the complete mistrust which authority have in us.

It is not from the group silently critical that complaints and "gripers" that the complaints regarding the restrictions come this time. Most of the complaints I have heard were made by girls who are ultra-conservative and whom I have never known to break a rule or ridicule a tradition. Some of our staunchest defenders of C. G. A. have been compelled to criticize the severity of the rules for the dance, rules which have exceeded in hardships any that we have had since that red letter day when it was announced that the girls of F. S. C. W. would be allowed to dance with

Continued on Page Six

Masculine View—

Dear Editor:

As a university man who finds a distinct contrast between the dark ghosts of Gainesville-by-the-Swamp and the warm charm of Florida State College allow me to congratulate your fellow students upon the success of their recent Junior-Senior Prom.

It is unfortunate, however, that young women capable of such brilliant management as went into the Prom arrangements should be treated as small children by the college's administrators. One officious person literally seized young ladies with her long claws and shocked them by walking through the door of a residence hall, waiting all the while that she was "straining my conscience to let you stay out this late." Her petty mind failed to grasp the

Continued on Page Six

Dear Editor:

Members of F. S. C. W.'s Junior class are to be congratulated for being hostesses at what was—in many respects—one of the most delightful college proms we have ever been privileged to attend. The decorations were clever, the entertainment was actually entertaining; the food was good, sweet or hot; the punch was refreshing. The young ladies themselves were as natural lovely, and gracious as might be expected under the conditions which govern their cloistered education.

And it is exactly these conditions which nearly discouraged all the happy impressions given by the music, punch and demure ladies.

The girls could under almost no conditions leave the Prom.

Continued on Page Six

This Week

National Economy Asked By President Roosevelt

College students feel a peculiar interest in President Roosevelt this week as he works on his budget problem. for it would seem that the United States economic axe is due for cut of balance as are those of any sophomore or senior. In his message to congress Wednesday the president stated, "Expenditures must be planned with a view to national living expectancy and government activities should be authorized unless the necessity . . . has been definitely determined and funds are available to defray the cost. Any other proposition imposes any substantial increase in expenditures. . . . It becomes a matter of sound policy simultaneously to provide new revenue sufficient to meet the additional cost. He asked for national economy, and expressed himself ready to meet every means at my command to eliminate the deficit during the coming fiscal year."

* * *

One is reminded on hearing Representative Keller's statement to the effect that they talk about skimping and pinching is ridiculous. The government isn't broke," of a wealthy man's remark to a poor bookkeeper:

"You have never seen the narcissi in the Tyrol in spring? My dear fellow fellow, go! Economize on something, declared the potentate And, "Oh Wash!" simply replied the book-keeper. That seems the present status of the government. If "economizes" people stop eating. It may not be "broke" as the Indonesian says, but it is not taking any trips to the Tyrol this spring.

* * *

Britain's Stanley Baldwin seems to have adopted one of the few rational peace measures extant when he virtually commanded British ships to keep out of the lane bordering the Spanish insurgents. He doesn't express it in so many words, but the reasoning seems to be that if nobody can get to you to boost you, then you're safe. And why not? Obviously, no one can stop the Spanish-Germo-Italian (Russian) war. Most of the rest of the central-European continent has wisely kept its remaining free of the entanglement. Britain has simply shown the way, and the British navy is supporting him to the limit.

* * *

In the meantime Mussolini and Hitler are working hand-in-hand on a great anti-communist wall across their eastern fronts so that they may devote themselves solely to Spanish war preparations. Germany is now engaged in an attempt to "line up" Poland; while Italy, already in agreement with Austria and Hungary, is angling for a Rou-manian treaty. And Russian aid pours into Spain through sources either undiscovered or ignored.

* * *

Any one who believes that education is not definitely the order of the day should look to the plight of the New York "white wings." Those street-sweepers who have not at least a high-school diploma are entirely out of the running and scholarships, based on competitive examinations, are being offered for courses in civic sanitation at the New York University.

* * *

A race between democracy, dictatorship, and communism is on in Europe today, and the latter took the lead this week when Nicholas, of the ruling family of Roumania, made his choice between his royal family and his commoner wife—in favor of the wife. All has been fair from well in the little country since his decision. for the Roumanian Fascist society seized the occasion of his "abdication" to promote insurrection. Nicholas, however, made his decision in connection with the movement, thereby crushing it.

* * *

The battle of the century between Premier Mulchell Hepburn and John L. Lewis looks as though it were going to rival the Spanish affair in intensity, if not in size. Last Sunday Hepburn urged the Canadian strikers in the automobile industry to "forget about the United Automobile Workers of America" and send a delegate committee to his office to discuss peace terms with the company. This message utterly ignored the John L. Lewis union which the strikers had selected as their agent in collective bargaining. The effort toward reconciliation was disregard. Whereupon Hepburn declared that there was "no room in this country for John L. Lewis' hirelings," and instigated proceedings to have said John Lewis and his "rebel" CIO union "expulsed."

The matter naturally went to the high command of the American Federation of Labor, and there, at present, it rests, to the extreme perturbation of the Federation which seems to have encountered opposition to the proposed expulsion.

Collegiate Comeback

This is the time of the year that room mates try to break the news to each other that they are thinking of living elsewhere next year. They become so kind in the process that neither one can make the first move and they are likely to go on rooming together for the rest of their college careers.

* * *

We wonder how many of the avid peace advocates were present at the recent Military Ball. It would seem that if we meant business we could harden our hearts to the boys in those fetching uniforms with the nice shiny buttons—or is that going too far? There's no use running a thing to the ground.

* * *

Those vague looking people that spent the better part of last week-end out under the trees were not communing with nature. They were the chosen few who ventured their sleeping quarters that the Alumnae might really get into the back-to-college-spirit.

* * *

An exchange informs us that love is the delusion that one man differs from another. That's not love. It's the delusion, either. There couldn't be a carbon copy of some of the dates we've had this year—for which we murmur Deo Gratias.

* * *

Intercollegiate Chapter 2 of the 'Thank-God-It's-Friday Club" has been established at Washington University in St. Louis. "end of the week relaxation with temperate beer drinking and scholarly discussion of the week's events." The only part we could take in such a club would be the scholarly discussion of the week's events —and who wants to? But it makes us happy to know that others are enjoying themselves.

* * *

For the benefit of the students that are submerged in the business course we print the following classification of typewriters, from an exchange. We have all these and a few more in our typing department.

The commonest type is known as the "Hawaiian, or hula model"—it shimmies.

The "love bird type"—every part is stuck on some other part, and the keys are stuck on themselves.

The "journalist's special—an aviator type of machine. The keys always look over the field before they land.

The "Secretary"—it sits and top your laps at the slightest provocation.

* * *

Mary had an Elgin watch.
She swallowed it. Now it's gone.
Every time that Mary walks
Time marches on.

—Tech Hi Rambow.

* * *

We've been kicking about the laundry with great gusto but we were silenced by a story in the Florida Alligator. It seems there was a student who sent his socks to the laundry and got back two tea bags.

* * *

Magazine Jottings

South Trends Toward Democracy By Arthur Raper

Arthur Raper, who lectured on this campus during the Chain of Missions program in February, points out in the current issue of the North American Review a few hopeful signs of efforts being made for the bettering of relations between the whites and negro race in the South.

"An increasing number of Southerners are becoming aware of the wide gap between the ideologies which their institutions proclaim and the practices which their institutions demand." Mr. Raper states. "Many of them are dissatisfied; they would lessen the gap. They stand toward decency—toward a society which would help them practice the brotherhood their churches teach; achieve the democratic institutions and their political theories proclaim: and realize the hospitality their region boasts."

Included in the efforts which have recently emerged to help the Negro and to improve race relations are the establishment of private schools and colleges for Negroes, preaching services organized by the white churches for Negroes, and free health and dental clinics. The University Race Commission, along with a growing number of other Southern organizations, has openly condemned lynching, advocated better Negro education, and encouraged the study of race relations in colleges and universities.

Mr. Raper believes that a few Southerners are beginning to sense that a philosophy which neglects Negroes also neglects white people. In conclusion he states two choices open to the South: "it can set itself seriously to the task of utilizing all its human resources, and share in a reasonably abundant life; or it can continue to discount great blocks of its people, and fall a frustrated and helpless victim of its own disharmonies."

Crisis in the Dance By Lincoln Kirstein

With the advent of Martha Graham to our campus, the article "Crisis in the Dance" by Lincoln Kirstein in the spring edition of the North American Review is quite timely.

Mr. Kirstein is director of the Ballet Caravan, co-founder of the American Ballet, author of a short history of theatrical dancing called "Dance." He has written on dancing and allied subjects for periodicals in this country and abroad ever since his graduation from Harvard University a few years ago.

According to Mr. Kirstein, roughly speaking, the division in the dance is between the supporters of the traditional ballet and so-called "modern" or "concert" dance. In his article he gives a concise statement of the beginnings and advancements of dance from 1890 to 1930. In one instance he says that the ballet dancer stands as the opponent and cleanser of ballet. His chief exponent in this country defines it not as a specific technique of movement nor an idiom of gesture, but an "attitude" towards dance composition in our time.

He further states that the bankruptcy of the realistic theatre has created a new school of dramatic poets involved in mental themes. Poets will soon turn to the ballet to demonstrate the full intensity of the mental lyric action. The creative theatre of the future will resemble ballad-opera more than may be fully realized at the moment, and in a healthy threatrical revival, dancing, and song, and whatever form the tradition of the classic ballet will then embody, shall surely have its grateful place.

International Relations and the Press By Jac. G. De Beus

In the article "International Relations and the Press" in the March issue of "World Affairs," Jac. G. De Beus states that there is a conflict that has been played over at diplomatic conferences, international congresses and pacifists meetings. The theme of the matter is the considerable influence which the press can exert upon the minds of the nations, and thereby upon international relations. It concludes by making an appeal to the journalists to use their influence for peace. The author suggests that the record be played once more in order to show that maybe there is another side to it. It is his idea that the press may exert an equal influence for evil and steps should be taken to frustrate such harmful influence.

The author thinks that international peace is retarded by every ever-repeated report of a false idea which is fed day by day by the policies which enters the sick body by way of the press. The reader is told that the first step to prevent this is the recognition of an international right of reply with the appointment of an international bureau to control its application. Mr. De Beus says that journalists have taken steps to institute their own court of honor, but that the other necessary measures will require considerably more time and preparation as well as their fulfillment.

FLORIDA STATE ALUMNAE NEWS

By LAURA STRUNK LESSER
Alumnae Secretary

Inside College Gates

...sident Edward Conradi of ...e State College for Women, ...epared radio address which ...livered April 6 from Wash...D. C., over a national ...k declaring that "all col...should be builders of life." ...Florida State college official ...ented to appear on an "Ed...for Living" program of ...National Federation of Wom...'s clubs.

...e subject of college presidents ...dio talks was "Education ...r Living."

...Jennie Tilt, professor of general chemistry and mi...ics, was elected president of ...Florida State District Asso...n at its third annual con...tion held at St. Petersburg, ...l 3. Almost others from this ...ol who attended the con...n on Dr. Frederick Libby, ...college physician, who ...on The Biochemical Foun...n for Diet Restrictions in ...Disease."

...

...a series of six lectures, un...the auspices of the Interna...l Relations club, here, Bir...Ames, financial director ...College of Arts and Sci...ces, explained the simplifi...of the League a position in ...ghan.

...

...ond was broken April 6 for ...ection of a new $13,000 Bap...t center on the corner ...d and Copeland streets. ...e pictures were taken of ...ceremony, by Ruth Cur...ington student secretary, ...e dedicatory prayer.

...

...ivated this year with the ...ing group for the first time, ...ese ceremonies under the ...ion of Walter Ruel Cowles, ...ic professor, spring ...ent Miss Nellie B. Dickinson ...e charge of the dance forms.

...

...officers for College Gor...ard Association for the year ...alled April 5 in the tra...ceremony in upper Bry...n. The officers assumed ...responsibilities following ...n Betty Cantrell, the re...t president of College Gor...ard Association received the ...of office from Mary Jeanne ...the outgoing president. ...ion concluded the remarks ...the ceremony. The outgoing ...rs carried lighted candles ...ther each new member gave ...national oath of office, her ...was handed from that of ...ming officer.

...

...ss Myrelle young New York ...and opera star, shared ...with Dr. Carl Glenn Cheli...nationally known conduc...piano artist in the Florida ...Symphony concert at the ...State College for Women ...Miss Myrelle is one of ...College American singers ...n won popularity on the ...stage and in leading ...ncerts. The Florida State ...ter has won national re...n during the past few ...

...

...Alumnae five sensors and ...ters in the College of Arts ...ences were elected to mem...p in the Alpha of Florida ...r of Phi Beta Kappa on ...1. The seniors are Jose...Burns, Tallahassee; Hazel ...Mrs. Mitchell, Dairy Park...for Southwestern nurseries; ...Knapp and Sarah Sea...of Shirley Lona...r of the class of 1937, now ...ssity of Hunter college, ...York City.

...

...the annual Flambeau ban...and April 8 the staff members ...were announced and keys ...arded proud staff members. ...ditorial reporters. Profes...L. Vance was the chief ...of the evening. The pro...by the banquet was an ...ed on placard facsimile ...papers.

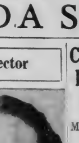
...

...summer session of Florida ...ersity for Women will be...s 14 and ends August 25, ...nounced recently by S. R. ...ngwriter. It will be headed ...Edward Conradi, and the ...will be chosen from among ...ulties' instructors. One of ...tures of the summer school ...e series of lectures and ...ts of interest to all stu...The college administra...s engaged Dr. Ben Wood ...week of educational lec...Dr. Wood is an associate ...at Columbia University ...New York and director of ...ureau of Collegiate Educational Research in that institution.

* * *

April 16 more than 100 alumnae of Florida State arrived on the campus for the first "Alumnae College Day" ever held on the campus. Registration began in the afternoon and lasted through the banquet hour in the dining room. Under the direction of Miss Katherine Warren chairman, a full afternoon program was carried out. It was the first event of its kind ever held in the south and one of the few ever scheduled on a college campus.

* * *



Mr. J. O. Keller, business manager of Florida State College for Women, attended a meeting of the Florida Association of College and University Business Officers, held in Miami, Fla., on April 15, Georgia. Mr. Kellum is president of the association.

* * *

Dr. Marion Hay, associate professor of education, attended a meeting of the Georgia Educational association in Atlanta last month. Georgia. Her topic was "The Little World War and Its Probable Repercussions."

* * *

Natio ' Peace day, Thursday, April 22, was sponsored on the campus by the student government association and the local council of the Emergency Peace campaign. The program outlined by these organizations began with a special forum at 11:30 during which Augusta Conradi Little theater lass Mary Eaton was the speaker. During the afternoon a community members discussed peace problems with the student body. And on the peace day program was a tribute to Jane Addams, who on WTAL from 1:00 to 1:30. A parade left from Bryan hall at 4:30 and went to the band shell in front of the new postoffice. Here Cary D. Landis, attorney general, addressed the group on "Peace Consciousness." Peace poems were presented in the college auditorium at 7:45 which official day ended the peace day program.

Miss Maude Flowers, director of alumnae relations, who supervised arrangements for dormitory facilities provided for returning alumnae. Miss Flowers' office at Eriza was vacated by students in order that former students might be taken care of.

Director

Fine Arts Are Discussed Here

Kathryn Haun, New York Given Vocal Program Friday Evening

Considered as one of the most interesting events on the Alumnae College calendar was the fine arts program given Friday evening in the Augusta Conradi Theatre by members of the college faculty and alumnae. Miss Dickinson Presiding at the program was Miss Katherine Warren, Alumnae College chairman.

Dr. William G. Dodd, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, gave a discussion of "Modern Poetry" which was followed by readings of Arts and Sciences. Mrs. Ida Alman Allen, head of the Art Department; Mr. Owen Sellers, Miss Alman's assistant; and Miss Mary Esther Winslow, of the music department, assisted Miss Nellie Bond Dickinson, of the physical education department. Mrs. Kathryn Haun, soprano of New York, gave several vocal numbers. Immediately following the fine arts program was a reception at the home of President and Miss Louise Conradi.

Faculty Give Talks

Saturday's program also featured "Classes" for the alumnae. Faculty members who gave the courses were Dr. Dodd, Miss Abbey, professor of history, "Responsibilities of Women"; Dr. Vic-

Continued on page seven

Child's Growth Is Dependent On His Books

Matthews Declares Power Of Thinking Comes With Reading

That books are as necessary to the child as playmates was expressed at the Alumnae College by Miss Etta Lane Matthews, assistant professor of library science, who gave a discussion on "Children's Literature."

"The children of today are our future law makers, governors and perhaps presidents." Miss Matthews stated. "It is said that the child who reads is the child who reads. We are often criticized for bringing our youth to adulthood without the ability or even the desire—which is worse—to think on serious problems. The power to think does not come automatically with the years and increase with each birthday. It is not a physical growth but mental. There can be no growth, physical or mental, without food for the intellect. Books are to the mind what food and sunshine are to the body. If we would be as careful to expose the minds of our young people to good books as we are to expose their bodies to the sun as well will get a healthy tan, the criticism that we are bringing up unthinking citizens would be unjustified."

Four aids in encouraging children to read were given by Miss Matthews as follows: "(1) Give them books which interests them. If the interest is unknown, first change the interest as diplomatically as possible. (2) See that the child has mastered the mechanics of reading. If a boy or girl dislikes to read it is a sign to watch how. Most of these children who do not read do not know how or are shy about letting anyone know the truth. Reading is a tool and in the child's intellectual age. Children can be bored with too many books and they will soon be discouraged with too hard ones."

"There are three classes of books now on the market, Miss Matthews said. Realistic books, fantasy book which gives a mental stimulus, presents a wholesome pattern of living, cultivates the appreciation of good literature, and helps to develop further reading; the harmful book which makes crime attractive, is immoral in its influence, wrong view of life, and emphasizes the baser natures; and the indifferent book which is neither good nor bad but is worthless because it is a waste of time to read and gives the wrong impression of literature. Miss Matthews further explained certain types of books found in the current stores and mentioned books which are undesirable because they encourage mental laziness. "There is no harm in either thinking for the same characters in books or in reading about the same things, and do the same things." Miss Matthews said.

"There are certain groups into which we can divide reading interests—pre-school age, school age, when certain types of books are "outgrown" and "outlived," the librarian said. During early childhood, that is up to eight years old, children like picture books, picture story books, tales of fantasy and fairy tales, and in the picture books, which are their first books, that they get their first impression of the world side world, so they should be of the best. Also, they like realistic in physical make-up, bright colors, but exact and not "over-done"—not gaudy—. They should present only the highest types of human relationships, truth, fairness, sympathy, thoughtfulness, and kindness. They are simple things and still be inexpensive. In fact there are many in the dime

Continued on Page Six

Eleven Alumnae Have Marriages Recorded

The following marriages of alumnae have just been recorded in the alumnae office: Esther Boardman, AB-30, Mrs. Marion Hall, Jr., Gainesville; Mary Barco, BS-H, Ec-35, Mrs. Park Swindell, Lakeland; Mary Hall, AB-36, Mrs. R. Clay Lewis, Jr., Port St. Joe; Mary Elizabeth Lee, AB-34, Mrs. E. B. McFarland, Havana; Grace Lo. Re. Lf-24, Mrs. Ernest Campbell, Tallahassee; Cora Winifred Register, LI-34, Mrs. Edwin T. Chamblee, Tallahassee; Adaline Clough, BS-32, Mrs. Frances Ross Marbury Birmingham Ala.; Dorothy Wright, LI-35, Mrs. Vance Harris, Monticello; Helen June Risher, BS-36, Mrs. Thomas Edward Evans, Lake Alfred; Marguerite Wooddell, LI-23, Mrs. Robert Knight, Largo; Elizabeth Alvin Crom, AB-31, Mrs. Frank R. Harrison, Fitzgerald, Ga.

Lack of Envelopes Holds Up Mailing

Alumnae in the smaller Florida cities and in states other than Florida are just now receiving the last two alumnae editions of the Flambeau. The reason—the stock of envelopes for mailing Flambeau's sent out was exhausted and was delayed in coming. Requirements are that Flambeaux mailed to addresses of state alumnae or to cities where there are only a small number of alumnae to be wrapped or placed in envelopes. Flambeaux mailed to cities there are five or more alumnae are wrapped in one bundle and not placed in envelopes.

Shores Talks On New Trends

Drift of World Affairs Described in Address To Alumnae Group

In a discussion of "European Trends Away From Democracy" given as one of the courses on the Alumnae college program, Dr. Venila Shores, associate professor of history, remarked that "the drift of world affairs away from democracy was hardly ended when the nations of Central Europe and Europe found themselves living under dictatorships."

"The economic instability which was inevitable after the war and the political instability not only destroyed the traditional alignment of European social groups but also created political instability as well."

Even before the war, Marxian Socialism was no longer a closely knit organization but had developed into numerous groups, the most two strongest of these was a factions, Bolshevism and Fascism. Bolshevism tactics with special emphasis on political democracy also with emphasis on economic and social change, willingness to collaborate with democratic socialists and recognition of the special interests of the working classes. This faction was made up of the regular majority parties of Social Democracy. The Fascist faction was equally devoted to direct action, such as revolutionary seizure of industry through proletarian dictatorship, uncompromising opposition to the bourgeoisie, and a minimizing of political nationalism. This group was the Bolshevik of Communist party in Russia."

"Communist Russia it was neither branch of Marxian Socialism that developed into a drive toward dictatorship. Rather it was nationalism which gathered under its banner all those who were opposed to the foes of Marxianism, and the drive of economic nationalism and instability.

At the close of the war all Europe seemed committed to political democracy; ten years after, only in Great Britain and Western Europe, but of the world at large, there was a sharp reaction against democracy. The "Fascist Revolution" the liberarian said During early childhood, that is up to eight years old, children like picture books, picture story books, tales of fantasy and fairy tales, and in the picture books, which are their first books, that they get their first impression of the world side world, so they should be of the best. Also, they like realistic in physical make-up, bright colors, but exact and not "over-done"—not gaudy—. They should present only the highest types of human relationships, truth, fairness, sympathy, thoughtfulness, and kindness. They are simple things and still be inexpensive. In fact there are many in the dime

Continued on Page Six

Finner Preaches Finer Courage, Sanity For Life Today

"Combat Nervousness," Says Psychologist In Speech to Alumnae

Practice in courageous living and adherence to a sound philosophy of life will overcome the feverish worry and nervousness than any single correction, Dr. F. F. Finner, professor of psychology, told alumnae in attendance at the Alumnae college here last week. Dr. Finner's topic was "Adjusting to the Stress of Modern Living—Psychological Aspects."

To combat nervousness and worry Dr. Finner advised one to cultivate the friendship of people who are courageous and optimistic, to set a time for careful consideration of the problem that causes worry and anxiety, to confide in other people, to develop hobbies, and lastly to do something about the problem that causes the anxiety.

Dr. Finner's address in full follows:

"The ability to adjust to the multitude of problems and difficulties which most people face always has been considered as a great an art as is accomplishment in the mastery of the application of plastic material. Back of this art lie years of open and unrestrained living. Frustrations and difficulties were conquered by the person who had developed the courage for the impossible, we shall call it, which will not permit us to be unnerved, cultural and spiritual, not transitory, superficial and material." Dean Dorman said.

According to the dean of students, somethine is wrong with the educational system of the colleges and universities of the country when we find no one is more acutely aware of it than they themselves are. "This fact is well attested," she said, by the vast amount of activity evident on every side—the many books, the articles, the lectures, the experimentation, the experiments and the research, the conventions and methods of instruction—all the complex machinery that has been set up to make the liberate us from a system of instruction that failed to educate."

The dean of students believes that the dissatisfaction with the result of education is due to the fact that the college training is superficial. that is superficial either of factual information, which was soon forgotten, or of a process of mechanical feeding, which left them mentally dependent upon the guidance of the instructor, and which, when withdrawn, resulted in an intellectual

Continued on next page

Speaker

Dr. Fred F. Finner, who was one of the Saturday morning speakers during the "Alumnae College" held at Florida State. Assistant in the Study of Modern Living — Psychological Aspects," Dr. Sarah White spoke on the subject, dealing with the physiological aspect.

Dorman Speaks Before Alumns

Advises Continuation Of Education After School Days

"If women would stay educated they must have opinions that are based on information, not hearsay or prejudice," Dr. Olivia Dorman, dean of students, told alumnae in an address at the alumnae banquet Saturday night. The theme of her address was "Staying Educated."

"Women must have ideals and ideas which result in action. They must be respected as guardians of children and not only their own children but children in general with decision and public morals and the suppression of crime. They must seek to respond to our educational systems an emphasis on values which are personal, cultural and spiritual, not transitory, superficial and material," the dean declared.

According to the dean of students, sometimes is wrong with the educational system of the colleges and universities of the country when we find no one is more acutely aware of it than they themselves are. "This fact is well attested," she said, by the vast amount of activity evident on every side—the many books, the articles, the lectures, the experimentation, the experiments and the research, the conventions and methods of instruction—all the complex machinery that has been set up to make the liberate us from a system of instruction that failed to educate."

The dissatisfaction themselves have been dissatisfied with the result of education. They have harmed with the charge that their college training was superficial. that is superficial either of factual information, which was soon forgotten, or of a process of mechanical feeding, which left them mentally dependent upon the guidance of the instructor, and which, when withdrawn, resulted in an intellectual

Continued on next page

Alumnae Will Take Part In Commencement

Distinguished Graduates Will Receive Medals At Ceremony

Plans are now under way for alumnae activities during commencement May 29-31, and from all indications a large number of alumnae will return to witness the second presentation of alumnae medallions to distinguished graduates, to attend the annual alumnae meeting and luncheon, and the various other events of the commencement season.

Saturday, May 29, has been designated as Alumnae Day" with the ceremony for the conferring of alumnae medallions scheduled at 10 o'clock to the morning in the Alumnae Council room. Also the alumnae meeting at 11 o'clock, and the alumnae luncheon at 12:30 o'clock in the lower dining room.

There classes have made plans to hold reunions this year, members of those of the class of 1912, The class of 1912, of which Mrs. Agnes Carothers Chilver of Lakeland is president, will have a silver anniversary reunion. President of the class of 1912 which is celebrating its fifth-year reunion is Miss Clementine Newman, formerly of Madison, and of Columbia, Missouri. Plans for the reunion year reunion of the class of 1935 are being promoted by Jeanne Hall of Fall Creek, Alameda, California, permanent class president. Assisting Mrs. Hall on the various details of the reunion is Miss Charlotte Stevens of Tallahassee.

Chairman of the committee on alumnae awards is Mrs. Dorothy Thompson Nilson of Jacksonville. Though the committee has met to consider the nominations for the medallion, names of those who will receive medallions this year will not be known, it was declared, according to Mrs. Nilson, but it is expected that alumnae returning for commencement activities will be guests of the college.

Commencement speakers this year include Mayo Hall of Jacksonville, former president of the American Bar Association, and will deliver the commencement address Monday morning, May 31, at 10 o'clock. And Dr. O. E. Rice, pastor of the First Methodist Church of Tallahassee, Alabama, who will give the baccalaureate sermon, Sunday morning, May 30, at 11 o'clock.

Other events of the commencement season include "at home" at the residence of President and Miss Louise Conradi Friday afternoon and Saturday afternoon May 29, a play by the Dramatic Club and the annual Y. W. C. A. vesper services Sunday afternoon, and a concert by the College Band on Sunday evening.

More than 300 students will receive degrees and certificates at the close of the 1936-37 year, it is expected, at the exercises in the auditorium.

Subscribe to The Flambeau

this movement is becoming nation-wide.

"Such centers as these are among other similar ones, colleges and universities are providing for adult up-to-date, and supplement their formal education and there to find out against the evil influences which so often follow graduation. Most of these centers are specifically for their own graduates and at the same time to the general public. They are meeting ses of loyalty and association which graduation and alumnae associations have conceived. Inaugurated by Lafayette college in Easton, Pennsylvania, in 1920, the movement has now extended to many of our college, and universities throughout the nation; and so marked has been the success and enthusiastic response to the movement is a practicability that must be shared alike by college faculties and college alumnae.

"Never before Dr. Dorman said, "has there been such opportunity and challenge to the adult man and woman to regard education as a continuing process contagenisive with life itself, the four years of college as mere preparatory to the main process. Never before has there been given to adult education in recent years is astonishing. Not only are practically all the great universities offering summer courses. Institutes, lecture series, clinics, forums, extension courses, counseling services, and correspondence courses in the general public, but colleges everywhere are opening their doors, often without cost, to those who are eager to learn. but civic and urban participation in

Continued on page six

Presbyterians Hear Speaker

Talks on Serving Christ Presented at Meeting Of League

Mrs J. L. Burnette will speak on "What Homemakers Can Do to Serve Christ" while Alphonse Pichard will tell "What the Business Mao Can Do to Serve Christ" at the regular Sunday night meeting of the Presbyterian fellowship league.

Two comic operas were presented in the Presbyterian annex last night by members of the Presbyterian Sunday school classes. The junior and senior classes acted the roles in "He-Men," a parody on "Carmen," written by Miss Elizabeth Lynn and featuring a bull fight. The other operetta entitled "La Fiero," was presented by the sophomore class.

Miss Lena Smith, director of religious education for the Presbyterian church, U. S. A., will arrive in Tallahassee Sunday, remaining here until next Friday. She would like to have a conference with every girl in the missionary to a U. S. A. Presbyterian church. These conferences may be arranged by telephoning Miss Smith at 1059 or by calling Miss Rachael Wylie.

Miss Rachel Wylie, Presbyterian student secretary, returned Thursday from DeLand, having attended the executive board meeting of the Florida Council of Missions. Assemblies, where she headed the committee of the executive board on youth conferences and reported on the student conference held here in February.

The Reader Writes

MASCULINE VIEW—

Continued from page four

men. Perhaps next year we may not be allowed to do even that. It would not surprise many of us if we were required to check our dates at the door along with our wraps. And it might be a good idea at that. It is far better not to have an escort at all than to spend an uncomfortable evening in this supposedly modern day, with embarrassed apologies to a bewildered date for harmless which "they" say we can't do.

One of the most amusing of the regulations this year which was painfully enforced was that of not allowing girls and dates to leave the floor for any reason whatsoever. Girls could not leave at all. If your partner wanted to smoke you could escort him to the door and sit down on a bench inside the hall while he went outside and hastily puffed at a cigarette, hating to keep you waiting, but desirous of smoking at least once in four hours. Why, since smoking is not discouraged on this campus are girls not allowed to leave long enough to smoke with their partners. There were proctors, faculty members and C.C.Aers at this last function to see that no one strolled off into a dimly lighted corner of the campus. And if they had, what harm could have been done in five minutes? If the powers-that-be didn't want to do their charges out of sushi why didn't they allow girls and boys to smoke on the arcade adjacent to the dining room. I know the college gets a lower fire insurance rate by not permitting smoking in the building, but it seems that they might make exceptions in such cases as this. The benevolent legislators of the state of Florida puffed heartily at many a class while attending a dinner in the dining room last Thursday night. They were invade the hallowed. Why can't other attendants smoke on the concrete and brick arcade where a few smouldering ashes could never start a fire?

However, smoking was not the only reason for which girls wished to go to the dance floor. Would a friend of mine lost a bracelet while waiting to be received. She did not miss it until she had entered the dining hall and was prepared to partake of the Grand March. Approaching the girls at the door she asked to be allowed to search for it and was told that she could not leave the floor. But her escort might leave to hunt for the lost jewelry. Another girl I know became quite ill with a headache and wished to have to get some medicine which would relieve her. She was nearly fainting before they finally agreed that it would be better to let her leave under her own power than to be carried off the floor later.

There is only one dressing room in the dining hall and it is in the kitchen, known only to dining-room girls. Under the circumstances it seems that if the girls wished to leave without their escorts for a few minutes they should be allowed to do so. We are taught that it is common to apply make-up in public, but if we can't leave the floor what else can we do? Make-up needs repairing at least once during the evening and girls will take care that it is repaired even if it is necessary to have their dates hold mirrors during the process of going on.

And yet we are supposed to be attending an institution to garner some culture and to be prepared for social life. We are subjected to which such restrictions approximate those which we would find in a prison farm or in the asylum at Chattahoochee. And I don't believe that many of us are going to such places to warrant the training.

During the intermission no one sakin. was allowed to leave. Intermission is described as a "rest period. For the orchestra, perhaps, but certainly not for the chairs to accommodate approximately 600 people, it can readily be seen that the removal of the dancers "rested" by standing on them. Perhaps it is commendable the length of the dining-room and back again. Some few appreciated the opportunity and hurried to be allowed to leave the floor. But the majority, of which, as supper had not been served in the dining room that night and they were hungry. They were told that under no conditions would refreshments be given. A few girls finally found a way around this by the kitchen and left via that route. It is a pity that on a campus where we are supposed to have a Student Body System such sly sneaking around should be necessary in order to get a smoke, a rest, or a breath of fresh air.

Even odd moments after the intermission couples began leaving the floor to go home. Others asked to sign out the exact time they would be back. Some few appeared at the function of the evening in order to be recorded immediately to their dormitories or houses of residence and then left. Others dates within fifteen minutes. Two seniors, living in Bryan hall, were formally engaged to her escort, left the dance at 11:15 o'clock and unwillingly bade their partners adieu. Upon arriving at Bryan they had to sign in on their cards and later supposedly to be checked up by the prom list for discrepancies in the times of leaving and arriving. They were told, too late, that they could not obtain their dates in the parlor until 12 o'clock. To them forty-five valuable minutes were lost. They had left the dance because of tired feet, blisters, and to let her boy friend again until June, and both are still fuming because, there being so many rules, the authorities did not get together on them, and as a consequence a mistake was made which meant much to them.

In signing out from the dance, not even the state name was asked too, had to designate the time at which they left the most important social function of the year. Every person was checked out as if he were there in the interest of a fraternity or sorority, using the clock in a large factory.

The prom ended at midnight and girls were expected to be in their houses by 12:15 o'clock. However, the fact that it took time to sign out did not seem to occur to those who made such

Playwriting Contest Is Opened by WPA Federal Theatre Project Here

A collegiate playwriting contest was announced this week by Mrs. Hallie Flanagan, national director of the WPA Federal Theatre Project and its newly formed national collegiate advisory committee.

Any student regularly enrolled in Florida State College for Women, or any other American college, is eligible to submit an original manuscript. The themes are unrestricted, but the plays must be suitable for production by the direct observation of contemporary American life is preferred. The inescapable part of American people who are interested in the theatre should be rigorously by the maroons that the plots were dreamed into Bryan hall's front door by sheer force. It seemed as if some of the guardian Greedies were expecting something as cataclysmic as the descent of bombers, morsome—the board of control, the P. E. C. is undertaking the higher education of young women, giving the benefit of their experience and a minimum of independent thinking, why not the intelligent action? Perhaps during P. S. C. W.'s own example throughout the state's institutions for adult study, why not also the treatment accorded adults?

The question, of course, is that many of the girls are still children, still dependent, still dancing ground ignorance of the world and if given "adult freedom" would probably for a short time only in disgusting and embarrassing the dignified P. S. C. W. state.

Such a line of thought is analgous to the practice of compelling children to take baths, kiss to spend their school days in kindergarten, in high-top shoes, and upon the entrance to the first grade compel them to hold hands, hold of Life, presenting a pair of oxfords—and shortly, busted toes. Which is because it is a weren't given exercises to strengthen those poor spindly ankles.

We suggest that the whole problem of adjustment provides for P. S. C. W. students as wholesome and natural an environment as possible under the mono-edu-cation system, and of inuring the student body to the grace of self-government by offering courses of study in "self-discipline"; which will acquaint students with the Parks Association's standard of conduct. For the usual recalcitrant exceptions usually produce the best citizens (Patrick Henry pre-college days) only an attitude more courageous than that now prevails will have to hold.

In short, a re-evaluation of ideals of the Florida female modus vivendi seems in order. Instead of the tearfully regarded shoulder at the fast-dwindling group of Victorian parents and guardians, a little grace of action would better, we believe, look fearlessly forward to the post-college days of their wards.

—Signed: Prom Trotter.

The Reader Writes

MASCULINE VIEW—

Continued from page four

a ruling. A friend of mine waited for his date to sign out until exactly 12:15. Not wishing to appear in the light of waiting for and starting her escort's automobile, they immediately bade their dates and her parents good-night at the door. The report hour was 2:00. Another girl I know was bidding her date good-night on the porch of Bryan hall when the night matron clasped her by the arm and drew her inside. "Before," she said, "I have to report you for being late."

With such a ban on prom surrounded and the gay Japanese lanterns hung in vain, the lovely music, the beautiful gowns, and the handsome men all went to waste. The unpleasantness of the whole affair. If our parents did not trust us they would not send us to a school where they couldn't keep an eye on us. No mother or father likes to think that his daughter bears watching. But if such rules and were enforced last week-end are repeated our parents may come to the conclusion that perhaps daughter is a dangerous environment over there in Tallahassee and perhaps she had better come home rather than be subjected to such great evils that the faculty and C. G. A. officials have to constantly involve themselves in looking out for her. Such a condition leaves a bad taste in the mouth of our guests whom we have invited to share the dance with us. He first said he is the slightest opportunity. Some how or other it doesn't occur to us that we are being dishonest or sneaking when we break rules such as these.

—Signed:

Margaret Claire Lafferty.

Child's Growth Is Dependent on Books

Continued from Page Five

stores that would pass this test creditably. . . . .

"From the picture book stage children go into the fairy tale books. Do not let the psychoanalysts every get their hands on to discussing the effect of fairy tales on youth. If a few folks grow up queer they are not to blame. All on fairy tales—there is something more than that back of it. Children do not believe these stories—but they have a kind of inner mind They are just a kind of magic with them. They read them with the other mind—the mind while the other side says they are not true.

"At a later period when they are mastering enterprise while the reading, and reading is no longer a matter of spelling out words. Children should never grown up books. They are through with the books and want more mature books—books to satisfy that thirst for knowledge. that curiosity which they have developed. They travel books, science, mechanics, and books of history.

"After fifteen boys and girls like to read books they have what. Up until that time they have read pretty much the same books and want more mature books the born go in more for adventure and girls more for romance, and love stories. They are continuing to get into the adult group. They discover that their predictions are correct. the reading tastes of young people change with the time they are fourteen. This does not mean they have decided they will suppress their love of reading but it does men that they have found their level of what a good book is. What their ideas are is dependent upon what they have had as their food during those fourteen years. The first fourteen years of life are the hardest and the most important. There is no time to be lost in bring mind here and that is that it does not do any good to prohibit or restrict the kind of reading books. Prohibition or restrictions are simply an invitation to the book prohibited." . . . .

Shores Talks On New World Trends

Continued from Page Five

state"; in this there developed a policy of "planning for all things which subordinated all individual interests completely and strictly to the welfare of the state as an entity . . . this directs the culture and thought and orientations of the nation as a whole . . . Nationalism is self-sufficiency . . . militarism . . . and totalitarianism . . . have been outstanding policies of the governments of the countries included under the fascist dictatorship."

In January 1933, Adolph Hitler, leader of the National Socialist party, was given authority by President Paul von Hindenburg to form a cabinet which would govern Germany. In the succeeding April, the Reichstag voted to delegate legislative power for a period of four years. By this and other legislation, the dictatorship of the man republic passed away and was succeeded by what was styled the Third Germany.

"The dictatorship of Germany has been constantly reinforced by the Hitler-Jugend, Hitler Youth. The chief elements of its program are: (1) individuals exist for the state, not the state for individuals; (2) the state should regulate all the activities of the individual—economic, social and cultural; (4) the program provides for an authoritarian party which controls the country; party should rule and from which political appointments to positions should be banished; (5) it provides further for a corporate state in which employers and employees and class distinctions, would exist but in which a closer relationship and mutual welfare would make occupational groups, rather than individuals the units of a small political life."

DUKE UNIVERSITY
SCHOOL OF NURSING
DURHAM, N. C.
The Diploma in Nursing Nurse is awarded after three years and the degree of Bachelor of Science in Nursing for two additional years of study. Graduates of either before or after this nursing course. The minimum requirements are intelligence, character and graduation from an acceptable high school; preference is given for one or more years of successful college work. The tuition is $100 per year which includes all cost of maintenance, uniforms, etc.
Catalogues and application forms, which must be filed before August first for admission September thirtieth, may be obtained from the Dean.

Four Recitals for May Are Planned by Speech Students and Faculty

During the coming month two senior recitals and two Silver Cord recitals will be presented by students in the speech department as the final entertainments of the year, according to Mrs. Mary Bullard, head of the department. Part of the performances will be given in the Augusta Conradi theatre at 7:45 o'clock.

On April 28, Betty Peck will give a three-act play, "The Silver Chord," by Howard; May 13, Frances Linale will give a three-act play, "The Talk of the Town"; May 11, Beverly Brown and Shirley Fortescue will give a one-act play; and May 13, Rachel Seay and Sallie Burt Mixon will give a one-act play.

Dorman Speaks Before Alumnae

Continued from page five

es be made available to children and for unemployed youth, participants in social service work in communities, state, national and international questions of importance. For the college woman, it lends herself slipping intellectually, who misses the stimulus of college days and who is wondering how to stay educated the A.A.U.W. has the answer. Its program is excellence, while participation in its varied activities and thorough familiarity with its aims make it a liberal education in itself."

The Reader Writes

FEMININE VIEW—

Continued from page four

fault. She is impossible. The girl to reach the residence halls by 12:15 a. m. if she has been standing in line for a movie from a dance at 12:30 a. m.!

These incidents of the Prom are not an isolated case, however, they are evidently symptoms of the attitude which seems to prevail large is administered. "We would be glad to do away with restrictions, but your parents entrusted you to our care, and the responsibility is ours. Make it easier for us"—and so runs the usual defensive formula.

I should like to suggest—very humbly indeed, as befits a mere girl—that the whole system be abolished—that your students and faculty cooperate in a change in the philosophy and attitude which has in some cases, I believe, a distant past of southern school for women. Is not the college beginning to lose sight of its duty by failing to build up habits of independence and self-reliance which its young women should have still need when they graduate and enter the world?

—Signed: A Date.

Fines Are Discussed Here

Continued from Page Five

to dislike things or do not understand because it makes us feel inferior.

"If we believe that a work of art is the product of these four causes, some need, certain material, tools and the ability to use them, and the idea, we can define art as the imposition of form on material by means of certain forms; or instrumental. Good art will be good making. This also implies sincerity and innocent enough, but it will mean more than that we have the habit of as art are not art at all, while other things which we have never thought of as art will be found who expresses his idea with paint and canvas is an artist, but that man who copies another's picture is not. Technique is not to imitate the appearance of what has been without organizing it or saying anything new, and such work is not.

"The emphasis on materials and the ability to handle them is very noticeably affecting the painting of artists in the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries. Paintings which were very beautiful when they were painted are now full of cracks and the paint is falling away, whereas some fifteenth century paintings are well preserved. In the best art schools of today, students are taught that technique and physical necessary for the good handling of their materials."

Tschaikovsky Music Record Is Favorite

"Fifth Symphony" Ranks First With Students In Music Room

The low, pounding, melodious tones of Tschaikovsky's "Fifth Symphony" floating out into the still night was suddenly broken by someone failing over the numerous steps leading to the music room in back of the auditorium. A voice was heard to exclaim, "For heaven's sake, can't you pick up your feet? You have just ruined a perfectly wonderful dream." Here the voice lowered and softened, "I was in Paris, France, one of those elaborate boxes at the Metropolitan Opera House, and now you have spoiled it all."

Listening to the records in the music room is a favored pastime of quite a few students on campus. Students have access to this room on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday from 7.30 to 8:30.

Since the presentation of Shaw-kowsky's "Fifth Symphony" has ranked as numerous pushing George Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue" into second place in the popularity rating. Gershwin's "Rhapsody" is Shaw-kowsky's which are requested after are his "Romeo and Juliet Overture," which follows this well known love story with musical score. And the "Nutcracker Suite," "Another favorite is the "Unfinished Symphonn" by Schubert, which is known as "Who Are My Song of Love," in which the 'cello and violin carry the melody. The 'cello tones, which are heard at the end of the piece of Schubert's "Unfinished" is also one of the popular choices.

"Little Pugue in G Minor" by Bach is also a favorite, followed by the flute is asked for time and time again.

In the operatic group, Wagner's "Ride of the Valkyries" although these are not called for as often as the other musical selections.

Every kind of music can be found in the music room from the early or prehistoric musical forms. This music ranked at one time as high as the "Fifth Symphony."

The most popular time in the music room is during the evening when music memory contest when there were fifty people, the largest number ever present. Miss Bullard remember all the tunes for the test the next day.

College D. A. R. Group Organizing Meeting Held Wednesday Night

The organization meeting of the college chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution to develop a literary club was held in Audi 14, at 8 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Rosa Stevens. Mrs. E. M. Brevard, of Tallahassee, the state regent-elect, presided over the meeting. Organization meeting has been sent out and Miss Ruth Bullard, presented to the national board for confirmation at its next meeting Saturday.

